A. From that time up until I was married when I was twenty-two years old.

Q. You may state whether or not while you lived there you knew Granny Letcher? A. Yes, sir, I knew Granny Letcher.

Q. Did you as a boy have any playmates in that neighborhood? A. Yes, sir, had lots of playmates.

Q. You may name some of them, name the boys that you played with big and little?

A. Well, the Eggleston boy and the Seckler boys, Ralph and Harry Seckler, Ed Lanzer, the Dix boy, Busey boy, Madusky boy, John Waidele; and then there was a colored boy named—we called him Otto Jones, I understood his name was Otto Jackamilly, he went under the name of Otto Jones; and then there was Walter Banks and this little boy Tommy, that was over there with Walter Banks; and let me see—

Q. Any boy named Eggleston?

A. Yes, I got the Eggleston boy.

Q. Now, when you boys would play around there, what territory would you cover there in your boys plays?

A. Most of the time we would play around in the lumber yard and back of Granny Letcher's yard.

Q. Where was the lumber yard, Mr. Crilley, with reference to Granny Letcher's? A. Adjoining.

Q. Do you remember whether there were any pear trees in Granny Letcher's yard?

A. Yes, sir, I remember very distinctly there was two.

Q. Do you remember whether there was any railing around the porch at Granny Letcher's house, or lattice work?

A. Yes, sir, a short piece of lattice work and also what we would call a hand rail.

Q. Do you remember whether there was a well at or near this railing? A. Yes, sir, near the end of it.

Q. What part of the lot, back or front?

A. Well, it was right approximately in the center of it.

Q. You may state whether or not you boys went frequently over to Granny Letcher's?

A. Like most of boys did, we did.

Q. What relation, if any, if you know, was Walter Banks to Granny Letcher?

A. Well, I never knew that he was any relation, I always presumed that he was some relation——

By Mr. German: We object to what he presumed.

Q. You didn't know? A. Didn't know.

Q. Did he claim to be any relation?

A. Nothing more than to call her Granny.

Q. Did Walter live at Granny Letcher's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The boy you called Tommy, where did he live?

A. He lived in the same house.

Q. State whether or not you boys ever went to Granny Letcher's and whether or not you remember of her giving you anything? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was that, Mr. Crilley?

A. Lots of times she would give us cookies and things like that. I called her Granny like the rest of the boys did.

Q. At that time the white boys and the colored boys all played together on that street?

A. Yes, sir, in a large measure.

Q. This boy, Tommy, how large was he when you first knew him?

A. Well, I judge him to be about what I would think would be a reasonable size for a six or seven year old boy.

Q. Six or seven years old when you first knew him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In 1901 and '2? A. Ninety-two.

By Mr. German: I object to the question on the ground that it is leading and suggestive, and as answered before the objection was made, I move to strike the answer, for the reasons stated.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you have already stated that you saw him for the first time in ninety-one or two?

By Mr. German: Object to that again as leading and suggestive.

Q. Answer the question?

A. Just about that time, the best of my recollection.

Q. Now, what kind of a looking boy was this little boy Tommy that you saw there, as near as you can describe him, did he have kinky hair or straight hair?

A. He didn't have kinky hair.

Q. He didn't?

A. No, sir. It was short cropped hair the best of my recollection.

Q. Do you remember whether he was an active boy or a clumsy boy? A. Decidedly active.

Q. Do you remember whether he was—I will try to make myself plain—an undemonstrative boy or whether he was a mischievous boy?

By Mr. German: I object to the question as calling for a conclusion and opinion of the witness and as leading and suggestive.

Q. Answer the question? A. He was very mischievous.

Q. He was a very mischievous boy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you know the little boy called Tommy that lived at Letcher's, how long do you remember of seeing him there?

A. Well, a space of what I would judge ranged from a year to two years along about that time.

Q. After that time, he disappeared?

By Mr. German: I object to that question as leading and suggestive.

A. I don't know what became of him after that.

Q. You may state whether or not you failed to see him after that around there?

A. I don't remember of ever seeing him any more than that.

Q. And you may state whether or not you have ever seen him since? A. Not to my knowledge.

Cross Examination by Mr. Bell (appearing for Mr. Blakeney by agreement of counsel).

Q. How old are you Mr. Crilley?
A. I will be thirty six next month.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. You say you will be thirty-six next month?
A. Next March.
Q. The first day of this coming March?
A. The 20th day of March.
Q. Mr. Crilley, where were you born?
A. In Leavenworth, Kansas.
Q. At what place in Leavenworth, Kansas, were you born?
A. Born on the street called Choctaw Street near Fifth Street.
Q. On March 20th, 1880, as you have been told?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You lived then on Choctaw Street how long?
A. A short while.
Q. When did you move from Choctaw Street?
A. I can't say as to that, I was really small, just only a short while that I lived on Choctaw Street.
Q. When did you commence living on Seneca Street in front of Granny Letcher's home?
A. Sometime between—when I was really small, because we lived there for quite a while before—when my mother died.
Q. When did your mother die?
A. I think I was seven years old when she died.
Q. You had been living there with your father sometime before that, had you? A. Before my mother died?
Q. Yes? A. Yes, sir, but she had left home and went——
Q. And went to Ohio?
A. I think she went to Minneapolis, is my understanding.
Q. And you didn't go with her? A. No, sir.
Q. You stayed there with your father and were in his barn nearly all the time, were you not, and around the barn?
A. I think we were living, brother and I, with a gentleman by the name of Pope, a family by the name of Pope.
Q. But you stayed and played around the barn and this lumber yard, didn't you, on Seneca Street?

A. I can't say that I did.

Q. How old were you, do you remember when Granny Letcher moved up there next to your barn, don't you, with all those colored children that you are talking about?

A. Didn't have but the two.

Q. And you remember when she moved over to you, don't you? A. I can't say that I do, not positive.

Q. I don't mean the year, but you know the occurrence of her moving there, don't you?

A. I remember when she came in, but I don't remember anything about the time, in regard to the time.

Q. But you remember that she came there to Seneca Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were a good big boy then, weren't you?

A. Pretty good sized.

Q. It was soon after she came there that you got acquainted with those boys, was it not?

A. It must have been very soon because I liked to play with boys.

Q. And when she moved over there to Seneca Street, this Tommy must have been some six or seven years old, wasn't he when Granny Letcher came there, when you say you remember the occurrence of her coming there, this Tommy that you are talking about was six or seven years old, wasn't he, that is when you got acquainted with him, wasn't it?

A. Yes, when I got acquainted with him.

Q. And you say he was six or seven years old?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Walter Banks was nearly grown then, wasn't he?

A. No.

Q. You knew the one armed Sam Nash, didn't you?

A. Sam was practically grown though.

Q. And this man Jim Mayo, did you know him?

A. Didn't know him by that name. We all called him Jim Letcher.

Q. Jim Letcher, he was a young man too wasn't he?

A. He was older than Sam Nash.

Q. Older than Sam Nash? A. I thought so.

Q. Wasn't he about the age of Walter Banks?

A. No, decidedly not.

Q. Can you tell me the names of the other children living in that house?

A. There weren't any other children that I know of only Sam Nash, Jim Letcher and Walter Banks and this little Tommy.

Q. You said a while ago, when you named the other boys, you called them white boys and then you said you ran with some colored boys there in the community? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sam Nash and this Tommy?

A. Yes, sir, also a boy named Otto Jones.

Q. He was the son of Dennis, wasn't he? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, Tommy then was a negro boy, wasn't he?

A. I can't say whether he was a negro or not.

Q. He was always regarded as such by you?

A. At that time I considered him as——

Q. Everybody else did, didn't they?

A. I suppose so, I don't know what the others thought.

Q. You said a while ago in your testimony that you played with certain colored boys and you named him as one of them; he was not white, was he? A. No, wasn't white.

Q. He looked like a mulatto, didn't he? A. Largely.

Q. He was not any lighter than Walter Banks, was he; he was darker than Walter Banks wasn't he?

A. My impression is he was just about the same color as Walter.

Q. What was his nickname?

A. Tommy was all I knew about him.

Q. He went by some nickname didn't he?

A. Not to my knowing.

Q. You never knew him but a year in your whole life, did you? A. A year or a year and a half or such a matter.

Q. He came there to that street when Granny Letcher moved on that street, and you never saw him a year after that, did you? A. He came there.

Q. And you never saw him before Granny Letcher moved to Seneca Street, did you? A. Not to my recollection.

Q. He stayed there about a year and you never saw him afterward? A. I don't think I did.

Q. Do you know Henry Carter? A. Henry Carter?

Q. Yes? A. No, sir.

Q. Hasn't your father told you that the boy that you played with there is now living in Leavenworth and his name is Henry Carter?

A. No, sir, he didn't. However, I would like to ask you a question. I answered your question by saying I didn't know Henry Carter. Is that the undertaker up there you have reference to. I am acquainted with an undertaker named Henry Carter, I don't know what his other name is.

Q. You refreshed your memory, wasn't this boy called Commodore? A. Not that I know of.

Q. You lived with your father all of the time from the time you were born until you were twenty-one years old, except when you were away in eighty-nine, didn't you?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where did you live before then?

A. I stayed with this Pope people.

Q. Where were they living?

A. They lived down on Fourth and Miama.

Q. How long did you live with them?

A. From 1886—that was when my mother went away—up until my father married the second time.

Q. When was that?

A. I don't remember the year, but it seems to me it was about in 1888.

Q. But from 1880, the time that you were born, up until 1886 you lived with your father, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in 1886 you were a good sized boy and playing with other boys in the community, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. White and colored? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After your father married in 1888 you came back then to live with him, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir, but we didn't live there.

Q. What? A. Didn't live on Seneca Street at that time.

Q. Where did you live?

A. We didn't live in the Seneca house property, lived up on Seneca near the Explanade, almost two blocks distant.

Q. When did you move then to Seneca across from Granny Letcher's again?

A. Well, we moved from Seneca and Explanade down on Miama Street after that next to where the Pope's lived.

Q. How far was that from the barn?

A. Two blocks this way.

Q. Your father supported you and took care of you while you were living at the Pope's, didn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And all of the time from 1886 until you again commenced living in his house, you played and stayed a good deal around the barn, didn't you, and around your father?

A. I have recollection—— Let me see—— No, I don't think we were around the barn much at that time.

Q. Well, you were around there a good deal, weren't you, as a boy playing around the barn and around this lumber yard? A. Not at that time, no, sir.

Q. Didn't you ever go around the barn?

A. Occasionally, but not often.

Q. You played with the children in that community, didn't you? A. Up to what point?

Q. Up to 1886 when you commenced living with the Pope's?

A. I wasn't around the barn scarcely any, because there was an old Irishman there I was afraid of around the barn.

Q. Your father was there, wasn't he? A. Occasionally.

Q. He wasn't around the barn much then was he?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where was he?

A. He was out on his hacks, driving hacks.

Q. When he would be around the barn, you would be there, wouldn't you? A. Once in a while.

Q. You played with children a good deal, didn't you?

A. Not a great deal.

Q. What children was it you played with?

A. Around where I lived.

Q. What children? A. The Pope children.

Q. Who are they, name them?

A. Lula Pope and the Jordan children.

Q. What were the Jordan children names?

A. Harry Jordan and Lula Jordan and Al Goldsmith.

Q. Now, the Jordan's, you played with them a good deal, didn't you?

A. Well, I don't know as I did any more than anybody else.

Q. Well, I know, but they were your regular playmates and associates from along in eighty six up until————

A. There are others there I would like to mention, Leonard—I think his first name was, Tom Leonard had a couple of children who played a good deal with us at that time.

Q. What were the children named?

A. They were relatives of the Pope's.

Q. I know. but what were their names?

A. Dollie Leonard, and I believe the other one was named Lilly, two girls.

Q. Now, the Jordan's lived near where you lived, didn't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They lived too in the same block that the barn was in, didn't they?

A. No, sir, they didn't, nowhere's near it, they lived further away than we did when we lived on Miama.

Q. You played with them a good deal and the children around in the community?

A. In the community, yes, sir, mostly that up to the point of 1886.

Q. Up to 1886 where did you live, did you live on Seneca Street then? A. In 1886 I will take that back, 1888.

Q. You were around your father's barn most of the time with the exception of the years part of 1886 and 1887?

A. Yes, sir, I was around it a good deal.

Q. 1888 and 1889 and 1890 you were around your father's barn most of your time, weren't you, playing there in the community of the lumber yard and other places?

A. No, I can't say that I was.

Q. You were there sometime? A. Not often.

Q. How long after Granny came there to that place on Seneca Street was it that you commenced playing with Tommy and Walter Banks?

A. I suppose I commenced playing with them as soon as they came.

Q. And you played with them a year and you never saw him again in your life, did you?

A. Not to have any recollection of him.

Q. You never heard the name called until recently, did you? A. What do you mean by recently?

Q. That happened more than thirty years ago, didn't it? Hadn't that fact and that occurrence passed out of your mind until this case came up? A. No, sir, decidedly not.

Q. Has your father talked to you about this case recently? A. He asked me one day if I remembered him.

Q. What did he say to you about it?

A. He asked me if I remembered those colored boys that lived over there with Granny Letcher and I said, wait a minute and let me see, and I stopped and thought a little bit and then I remembered the occasion and of this little boy pointing his finger at some pears and teasing Walter Banks about it, and I remembered also his throwing rocks and sticks in the well.

Q. Did you tell your father about his pointing his fingers at these pears and somebody told him if he did that that the pears would drop off? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You never heard this boy called Commodore?

A. Might have been, I didn't have—I don't have any recollection.

Q. You didn't get very well acquainted with him in the one year, did you?

A. No, not more than other children.

Q. It didn't create any concern in your mind when he mysteriously disappeared and was not heard of and was never seen again?

A. I didn't know he disappeared, I didn't say he did.

Q. You simply saw him at Granny's and you didn't know he lived there?

A. I said he lived there when I played with him in the yard along with Walter Banks.

Q. Who else lived there? A. Sam Nash.

Q. Who else? A. Jim Letcher.

Q. Who else?

A. I called him Jim Letcher, they got another name for him I believe, Jim Mayo.

Q. Jim Mayo, who else? A. Granny Letcher herself.

Q. Who else?

A. That is the only ones I have any recollection of.

Q. Walter Banks lived there, didn't he?

A. I said Walter Banks.

Q. Who was the oldest Walter or Tommy? A. Walter.

Q. Walter was how much older?

A. I judge Walter to be about the same age I am, maybe a year or so older.

Q. You were a pretty big boy then to be playing with a boy like Tommy, wasn't you?

A. I don't know as I was, I got boys that little playing with my children.

Q. Well, you were a boy ten years old, this boy wasn't but about three or four years old, was he?

A. I didn't see him when I was ten years old.

Q. When you were fifteen or sixteen years old he was a little boy wasn't he?

A. I didn't see him when I was sixteen either.

A. During the year 1891 and 1892, during that time.

Q. Well, you were about eleven or twelve years old, wasn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was a little boy then wasn't he?

A. Seven or eight years old.

Q. How do you fix that time? A. Judging by his size.

Q. Well, you say he was a good big boy for that age, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't, I said that he was very active.

Q. Do you know anything else that he did except dropping splinters in the well and pointing his finger at the pears?

A. He was a good runner and a good climber climbing over the lumber piles.

Q. You weren't with him all the time during that year that you knew him, were you?

A. I don't think I was all the time.

Q. You went to school along in those days?

A. I think so.

Q. You didn't go around Granny's at night, did you?

A. I might have after school.

Q. You don't remember about that? A. What?

Q. Going there after night?

A. I stayed there after dusk, yes, around the yard, sure.

Q. Did you ever talkto Mr. Long here about this law suit, do you know this gentleman over there?

A. Did I ever talk to him?

Q. Did you ever talk to him? A. Not very much, no, sir.

Q. When did you tak to him the first time?

A. The first time? He came out to my house one time.

Q. Just once? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where, at Independence?

A. No, sir, at 31 and Jackson.

Q. Kansas City, Missouri? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Crilley came with him, your father?

A. I don't think he did.

Q. Refresh your memory and tell me whether he did or not? A. I think he did not.

Q. You think he did not? A. No, sir.

Q. He came to see you after Mr. Crilley had asked you if you had seen this boy Tommy around Granny Letcher's?

A. Did he come after that?

Q. Yes, sir?

A. He came to my house subsequent to my conversation with my father.

Q. Have you ever talked to your father any more about this except the one time that he came to see you?

A. In a casual way like we did the first time.

Q. Where did you have that next casual conversation with him? A. When we had our visit to Leavenworth.

Q. How many times did you talk to him about it?

A. Oh, I judge three or four times perhaps.

Q. How many times have you talked to Mr. Long about it?

A. I think the total of about three times; when he first came out to the house and then twice lately; I didn't get to talk to him not to speak of the first time I saw him at all.

Q. Who else has talked to you about it? A. Who else?

Q. Yes?

A. I don't believe I have talked to anybody else about it, without it might have been to say a few words to Mr. Hanford.

Q. When was that?

A. That was one evening I was to make a deposition in Leavenworth and I didn't go up there in time.

Q. Did you ever hear what became of this boy?

A. No, sir, never heard.

Q. Nobody ever told you about what happened to him or what became of him? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear he was drowned? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you ever hear that he is Henry Carter?

A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't your father tell you that?

A. He mentioned that they were trying to put somebody in claiming to be this Tommy, he mentioned that to me.

Q. Didn't he tell you the reason he felt like this fellow was Tommy Atkins was because when he came in there with anything asked him if there was anything about the pear trees, that Henry said yes, I know I used to point my finger at the pears and they told me I must quit that or the pears would drop off; didn't your father tell you about that conversation he had with Henry Carter?

A. He did tell me after I told him about the pear incident.

Q. And then he told you about having this conversation with Henry Carter, didn't he?

A. I didn't know who it was.

Q. He told you that must be the boy, didn't he?

A. No, he didn't say it must be the boy.

Q. What did he say about it?

A. He said he thought possibly it might be him.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Do you know a darkey over there by the name of Tommy York? A. Yes, sir, played with Tommy York too.

Q. Was that the Tommy you were talking about?

A. No, sir.

Q. You know that Tommy York is not the boy you were talking about? A. Yes, sir, I know that.

By Mr. German: I object to that as leading and move to strike the answer.

Q. Did Walter Banks have any nick name over there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you call Walter? What was his nick name?

A. Called him Maple, and for short we called him Mape.

A. Lots of colored boys, I don't recall any of them being called Commodore.

Q. Did you ever know of any one around there being called Commodore?

A. Daddy said he used to call this little Tommy, Commodore, but I don't recall it.

Q. But do you recall anybody being called Commodore?

A. I don't, no, sir.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon GEORGE CRILLEY, a witness produced on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins, et al., being first duly sworn, under oath testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Your name is George Crilley? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How old are you, Mr. Crilley?

A. I will be sixty—I was sixty-three the fourteenth of October—I think the 14th of October.

Q. Mr. Crilley, when did you go to Leavenworth?

A. I came to Leavenworth on the last day of June, in 1870, about nine o'clock in the morning. I remember it very well.

Q. What business did you enter into at Leavenworth?

A. Well, I think it was 1880 before I went in the livery business for myself; on the 15th of March 1880. No, for myself I went in on the 24th day of July, in 1878, for myself.

Q. And you have been in the livery business ever since?

A. Continuously, ever since.

Q. You own your own stable? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And teams? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At one time you were a member of the firm of Crilley & Cranston? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that, Mr. Crilley?

A. Well, that was in 1880, on the 15th of March that I—when I spoke of, I was going to say that was the first time I started in business; that is when we formed the Company, on the 15th of March 1880.

Q. And how long did that partnerhip continue?

A. Oh, until about 1890—about 12 years.

Q. You also had a term of Roderick, Crilley & Cranston?

A. Yes.

Q. That was in connection with a contract at——

Q. At Fort Leavenworth, yes, sir.

Q. Running buses and freight to Fort Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did that firm exist?

A. Ph, three or four years—I don't remember; three or four years, along in there somewhere.

Q. And Mr. Roderick had charge of carrying out that contract principally?

A. He had charge of the Fort, of the handling of the public stores; hauling wood and coal and stuff of that kind out to Fort Leavenworth.

Q. And when was that dissolved?

A. Well, I think it was along—I wouldn't be positive, I never stopped to look that up; but I think it was sometime the latter—some time in '85, or the beginning of '86; I wouldn't be positive about that.

Q. To refresh your memory, wasn't it January, 1885?

A. Well, I don't know——

Mr. Allen: We object to that, if the Court please.

The Court: Yes, let the witness testify.

A. I don't remember; I have no particular reason for recalling it. I think it was along in that time; and as I said before, I don't know.

Q. Mr. Crilley where was your stable located along in the 80s?

A. Well, my stable at the time I speak of was on Seneca street, was at 220 and—that is, my stable was 220, 222 and 224; a portion of lot at 220 was occupied by the stable; about 12 feet, but the other two lots was covered in full by the stable.

Q. Did you live there near the stable?

A. I lived right adjoining it, on the east.

Q. What was the name of the house there you lived in?

A. Why the house, it was called the old Seneca House; a house about, as near as I can remember now, back thinking of the different rooms, I think about 19 or 20 rooms in the house.

Q. How many stories? A. Two stories.

Q. Now, this was between 2nd and 3rd on Seneca street, you say?

A. Between 2nd and 3d on the north side of the street.

Q. Did you know Granny Letcher?

A. Yes, sir, I have known her since 1877.

Q. Who was she?

A. Well, she was an old colored lady; very black, about that age, I should judge 30 or 35 years old, and I first knew her on Choctaw street, back of what was known as the Chaplin and Gleason stable.

Q. Mr. Crilley, you say she was an old woman 35 or 40 years old; when was she 35 or 40 years old, when you first knew her? A. When I first knew her, yes, sir.

Q. And then you knew her continuously until she died?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did she die?

A. Well she died in 1900; I think; along about the 8th of July or August, I wouldn't be positive.

Q. Did she ever live near you? A. How is that?

Q. She ever live near you?

A. Right across the street.

Q. What house across the street?

A. Well, what was known as the Dotter property in early days; it was afterwards occupied by a woman by the name of Lilly White, and then occupied by Granny Letcher afterwards.

Q. Little White succeeded the Dotters? A. Yes.

Q. And then Granny Letcher succeeded Lilly White?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know when the Dotters moved out and Lilly White moved in?

A. Well, no, I don't know; I know I sold the Dotters a team when they immigrated way to the south from my stable, and I wouldn't say the exact year, so long ago to think of it; but I don't think Lilly White was there but a short time.

Q. Well do you know when Granny Letcher moved in?

A. Well I know she moved in '85 sometime; well, it must have been about the middle of the year in '85; I wouldn't be positive about that, as to the exact date.

Q. Did you know an Indian girl there?

A. Yes. I knew an Indian girl.

Q. What was her name? A. Indian Minnie.

Q. Did you ever know any other name——

A. No, I never heard her called by what is now spoken of as Atkins; I never knew that name.

Q. You only knew her as Indian Minnie?

A. Only knew that, is all.

Q. About how old a girl was that?

A. Well, I have to guess at that; I imagine at that time in the neighborhood of 22 and 25, guessing at it. I never heard her say.

Q. Did you know her personally?

A. Knew her features as well as I know yours, Mr. Hanford.

Q. Where did you know her?

A. Well, I had seen her around on the streets, time and time again, first one place and then another; afterwards when she—that was a good while before she came to the Granny Letcher property.

Q. Well, when did you know her there?

A. Well I think that was along in, when I first knew her there, was in the latter part of '85, along in there.

Q. Did you see her around there often?

A. Why, I would see her there, she would come in and be around there two or three days at a time, and then she would disappear and wouldn't see her for a week or ten days, and then probably some day she would show up there, and then probably wouldn't see her again for a week or ten days, or maybe two or three weeks. Only guess work on my part, but I know she was not continuously there, but I know she would be absent for a time.

Q. Did you know where she went to? A. No.

Q. Now, how long about did you see her around there?

A. Around the city?

Q. Yes, altogether?

A. Granny Letcher's; oh, that would be guess work; in the neighborhood of two and a half or three years; might have been three or four. Just only guess-work on my part, when she was around Leavenworth city.

Q. Did you ever know of her having a children?

A. No, I didn't know only I——

> Mr. German: We object to the general talk.
>
> The Court: Yes, if he states he didn't know.

Q. Just answer my question: Did you ever know of her having any children?

A. I know she had this boy, reputed; that is, the general reputation——

> Mr. German: We object.
>
> The Court: That will not be considered. It is stricken from the record, as to what he heard.

Q. Did you ever see her with any children? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When?

A. Oh, along in '85; say July or August; no later than that, I guess. It must have been the latter part of the year, when I seen her, because I know the child was five or six months old, judging from the short dresses it wore at that time; that is what makes me think it was that late.

Q. Now, what did you see her doing with this child?

A. Dressing and handling it, the same as any mother would handle a child.

Q. Where was she when you saw her with the child?

A. On the back porch, the first time I ever saw her was on the back porch of this house that was built there, occupied by Granny Letcher.

Q. That was the house across the street?

A. Across the street.

Q. What kind of house was it, Mr. Crilley?

A. Well, a two-story house, in front, flush with the street, and on the back portion of it, where Granny Letcher and this Indian Minnie were, was a one-story, that was built probably at the same time the big house was, built up against it; I don't know.

Q. That had a porch, did it?

A. Had a porch facing the west.

Q. And it was on that porch you saw her?

A. That is where I saw her first, I remember well.

Q. Now, how many times would you say you saw her with this child?

A. Oh, I seen her there with this child at different times, probably half a dozen times; I don't remember the exact times.

Q. What did she appear to be doing with it?

A. Simply had it in her arms the same as any person would, nursing and caring for the child.

Q. Did you ever talk to her about the child?

A. No, sir, I don't think I ever did.

Q. Do you know the name of that child?

A. I know he was called Tommy.

Q. Did you see him around there continuously after this, after you saw him there the first time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how long did you see him around there?

A. Now, I should judge five or six years, something to that effect, along that line.

Q. Until he got about how big?

A. Oh, he was a boy along about that size. (Indicating with hands about 3½ feet high.)

Q. What kind of looking boy was he?

A. Oh, he was a light—he wasn't what you call dark; he was a kinder light, real light child, and yet he showed signs of some—he had dark features to a certain extent about him; dark appearance.

Q. Well, did he show what race he belonged to?

Mr. Allen: I wish your honor would have the witness indicate by age, instead of measurement. He said about this high.

A. And that is the way I think he put the question to me.

The Court.

Q. For the purpose of the record, Mr. Crilly, about how old in your judgment was this boy Tommy the last time you saw him?

A. He, I would say, was six or seven years old.

Mr. Hanford.

Q. Now you had seen him you say around there all the time up to that age? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever talk to him?

A. Oh, many and many a time, sir.

Q. Call him by name?

A. I called him Commodore, had my nick-name for him Commodore.

Q. Called him Commodore?

A. Yes, he played in my carriages and would take both hands and lean over the dash board and pretended that he was whipping the horses. I knew him so well, he was a very obedient child. He would stand up between my limbs and I remember often taking his hat off when he was three or four years old and rubbing his head and saying, Commodore that will give me luck. I used to call him that, and he would walk up to me and take his hat off and hold his head over for me to rub his head; he seemed to think that was part of the business.

Q. When was the last time you remember of seeing him, Crilly?

A. Well, the last time that I positive know I saw little Commodore was that I was at the corner of Third and Seneca at a stable of Van Tyle's; Van and I were out there talking when little Commodore was playing around our feet; and Van had to go back in the stable. He took his pipe out of his mouth and laid it in the chair. When he turned and looked for his pipe, little Commodore had his pipe in his mouth; and he made some not very complimentary remarks to the child. And then I remember thinking this boy ought to be older than to do a trick like that. I may have seen him after that but I couldn't say. I might have known him for a year or two.

Q. You remember that incident?

A. I remember that incident and will remember it a thousand years if I live that long.

Q. You had a fire while you were on Seneca street?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that?

A. On the morning of the 11th of April, 1890.

Q. Your stable burned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And a large number of horses?

A. I lost thirty-six head of horses in that fire.

Q. After that fire where did you go?

A. At this time, I remember Crilly and Cranston had a stable for our light livery down on Cherokee street, I think it was about 324 Cherokee street. I wouldn't be positive as to the number.

Q. Just tell me briefly where you moved after the fire, the business you had up on Seneca street?

A. I sold my interest in Crilly and Cranston to Mr. Cranston but kept one carriage and team and moved down on Miami street and got a stable right back of that and put this carriage in there for the time being.

Q. Were you located part of the time on Shawnee street?

A. Never on Shawnee street.

Q. Or further down on Seneca?

A. Yes, further down on Seneca.

Q. And that was during the time you were out of this place after the fire? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, you started building up and moved back later?

A. In a few weeks, not over three or four weeks after the fire, to rebuild a stable on the back end of that property where my old stable had been.

Q. And then later moved back?

A. And then later built a residence and moved back there, yes.

Q. Crilly, you say you remember seeing this boy, this baby in the arms of this Indian Minnie in 1885, I will ask you if you have anything to fix that date?

A. Well, the only thing that I have to fix that date that my wife was away and had been away for some little time——

Q. Do you remember when she went away?

A. She went away along in 1885 just about the time this Indian Minnie was seen around there. I have some papers in my pocket by some parties that took the oath years and years ago.

Q. You know your wife had been away a little while when you saw this child in the arms of its mother? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was prior to your wife's death? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She died up in Wisconsin when?

A. On the 4th day of September in 1886 and was buried on the 7th.

Q. How long had she been away at the time she died?

A. Oh, in the neighborhood of a year, about a year.

Q. About a year? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Hanford: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Crilly, I believe you say you moved to Leavenworth in 1870?

A. I came into Leavenworth about nine o'clock in the morning of the 30th day of June, 1870.

Q. You got acquainted with Granny Leicher soon after you went to Leavenworth? A. No, no, sir.

Q. You first became acquainted with her in 1877?

A. Yes, sir, that's right.

Q. From then on until she died you knew her intimately, didn't you? A. I knew her as well as I know anybody.

Q. You knew all of the members of her house, or during all those years, didn't you?

A. I knew those three or four boys, I don't know the rest of them, hundreds of people were in and about her house.

Q. But you saw and knew all the people that lived at her house during all those years?

A. Yes, if I had an opportunity to see them all, yes, sir. Some people would come in and stay two or three days.

Q. Crilly, did you go to school in your early life with some of the relatives of Frank Long?

A. No, sir, not to my knowledge, I never heard of Frank Long until this case came up.

Q. Didn't you know of his people in Indiana or Iowa?

A. No, sir, never did.

Q. You were not acquainted with any of them?

A. No, sir, not acquainted with any of his family.

Q. He met you early in the beginning of this case, didn't he? A. Yes, sir. Yes, sir.

Q. He told you what people he knew in your state, didn't he?

A. Yes, he told me of being acquainted with some of my brothers, yes, sir.

Q. He told you of the friendly relation that existed between the members of his family and the members of yours in Indiana, didn't he?

A. Something on that order of his family, but he knew my brothers in that way.

Q. He talked to you a long time about your old family associations?

A. He mentioned it on several occasions, yes.

Q. He then asked you if you remembered Indian Minnie, Minnie Atkins, didn't he? A. Yes, I think he did.

Q. You had told him that you knew a woman there that they called Minnie or Mollie, but that you didn't know her by Atkinson, didn't you?

A. I never said anything about Mollie, I said I knew a woman named Minnie.

Q. But you told him you never heard of any Atkins or Atkinson?

A. I told him I didn't remember that name, which I repeat now.

Q. So, the first time you associated this name of Atkins or Atkinson with this case was when Frank Long mentioned that name to you at your stable?

A. As far as the Atkins part of it is concerned, yes, sir.

Q. He paid you for the time that you lost, time away from your business discussing this case with him?

A. Whenever I hauled him to any part of the city, Mr. Long always paid fairly and squarely, yes, sir.

Q. About how many times has Mr. Long been to Leavenworth since this case started?

A. Couldn't tell you but I never kept no recollection of it; quite a number of times.

Q. Some fifty or seventy-five times?

A. Oh, no, I think you have that exaggerated; say fifteen or twenty times you will come nearer hitting the mark.

Q. Every time he has been there he has employed your rigs and paid you for them?

A. I can't say every time; he has a few times, several times, yes, sir.

Q. They have used your stable exclusively in all of their drivings, haven't they? A. No, sir.

Q. Who else have they used?

A. They used Cranston's rig once that I know of.

Q. That is when Sadie James used it, wasn't it?

A. I don't know who used it.

Q. Did you get after them about it?

A. No, sir, I never did.

Q. How did you happen to find it out?

A. I don't think he knew I existed when he got this rig of Cranston's.

Q. But since he knew of your existence, since he asked you about Indian Minnie, or Minnie Atkins, he hasn't used anybody else's rig at Leavenworth but yours, has he?

A. I couldn't tell you.

Q. You have hauled him to every witness in this case who has testified on behalf of the Government at Leavenworth, haven't you? A. No, sir, not by a long ways.

Q. Didn't you testify in your deposition at Leavenworth, in 1914? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That you hauled Frank Long to every witness that testified upon the witness stand?

A. Those who probably testified at that time, I might have hauled him to some of them. I was surprised at the number of witnesses that have been in this case.

Q. There were some twenty or twenty-five witnesses who testified on behalf of Mr. Page at that time, wasn't there?

A. No, sir, I never hauled any such a number as that, my friend; never, Judge, not over five or six witnesses at the most at that time.

Q. You testified that you hauled those witnesses to the court room?

A. I hauled a bunch of five or six witnesses there one morning.

Q. You took Long and Page to Mattie Cobb, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir, I went over with them to Mattie Edwards.

Q. You saw her on the street and followed her up?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And asked her if she knew about this case?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You communicated that to Page and Long and took them to her?

A. Not until after I had communicated it to Mr. McMillian, your man. I told him first.

Q. Did they tell you to make a practice of meeting these witnesses and talking to them, finding out their story and then giving us their names? A. No, sir.

Q. Why did you give it to Mr. McMillian?

A. I happened to run across him first; I would gladly have told Mr. Long if he had been present.

Q. You knew at that time that she stated she saw Minnie Atkins in a family way at your house?

A. Well, Granny Letcher's house or my house, yes.

Q. You knew she wouldn't change that story, didn't you?

A. No, I couldn't tell you what she intended to do; that wouldn't be fair, Judge, to say so.

Q. You met McMillian in the hotel lobby, didn't you?

A. Yes, I met him somewhere. If you will allow me I will tell you where I met McMillian.

Q. All right?

A. You came by with, I think, the warden of the state penitentiary and Mr. McMillian and one or two other persons; and stopped in front of my stable and put your hand out and asked me if I had some way positive of recalling so I would know positively that this thing occurred at the time, and I told you as willingly as I would Frank Long.

Q. You talked to me in the presence of Fred Cook?

A. I don't know, I know that the warden of the state penitentiary was present.

Q. You told us at that time that Minnie Atkins you saw with this baby before your wife left, didn't you?

A. I think about that time; I saw Indian Minnie before this but whether she had the baby—that is, so I could see the baby, before she died. I am not exactly clear on that subject.

Q. You later came into the hotel at Leavenworth when Mr. Bruff and myself were there?

A. I don't know the gentleman you speak of.

Q. The gentleman back over here? A. Well, probably so.

Q. Do you remember him now?

The Court: Stand up Mr. Bruff.

A. Yes, I guess that was the gentleman with you.

Q. You told me you wanted me to go down to your house so you could let me see the records you had there to show that you were not mistaken about when your wife left Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. We then went out to your house, didn't we?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you showed the record there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Showing that your wife died in November, 1885?
A. No, sir.
Q. In 1886, I mean?
A. Not in November at all, in September.
Q. In September, 1885? A. In 1886, that is right.
Q. That you told us that she left you more than a year before that, didn't you? A. Along about that time.
Q. You told us that you saw this boy long before your wife left, didn't you? A. Well, I saw her——

The Court: He is asking you as to a conversation sometime ago; the question now is what did you tell him then?

Q. Did you tell us that you saw this boy with Minnie long before your wife left you?
A. I don't think I did, that is long about that time.
Q. You told us the boy at that time was about two years old, didn't you?
A. Oh, no, I didn't tell you anything of the kind.
Q. Didn't you testify in this case in October, 1914, that the boy was a year or more old when you first saw Minnie?
A. No, sir. Why, no.
Q. Did you testify, give your deposition to be used in a case pending in the District Court, state court? A. Yes, sir.
Q. On October 13, 1914?
A. I don't remember the date, but I gave my deposition in the courthouse at Leavenworth before yourself.
Q. At that time you testified that you knew this boy by the name of Commodore, didn't you?
A. I gave him that name myself. Yes, sir, I always called him that.
Q. You never knew his name was Tommy Atkins until Frank Long told you?
A. I remember calling him Tommy, I remembered that they called him Tommy.
Q. Who called him Tommy?
A. Oh, everybody around there universally by everybody; everybody called him that.
Q. You say Lilly White moved out of this house in the summer of 1885? A. I think she did, I am sure she did in fact.
Q. How do you happen to remember it was the summer of 1885?
A. Well, I remember it as I told you from the petition papers that I found afterwards and I agreed with you to hunt those papers up.
Q. Well, your wife had left you before Lilly White moved out, hadn't she?

A. I don't know whether—— No, I don't think she did, I wouldn't be positive either way.

Q. Well, it was about the same time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You can't associate those two events together?

A. I can't say, it was thirty years ago I am trying to remember back; thirty off years.

Q. She left there in the winter, didn't she, Lilly White?

A. No, I think not.

Q. You won't say will you positively?

A. I am sure she left earlier than that Judge, I think she left along in June or July, 1885.

Q. Who told you that this child had to be born at Granny Letcher's in the summer of 1885? A. Had to be?

Q. Yes?

A. I never heard such a thing approached me, nobody ever told me anybody had to be born at any time; I am surprised.

Q. How can you remember now the month that Lilly White left there?

A. Well, now, I don't say, I won't be positive.

Q. You don't know whether it was the summer or fall of 1885?

A. I don't know any more than I know Granny Letcher moved in there, it was in the fall, she may have left late in the fall.

Q. Granny moved there in the fall of 1885?

A. I think she was in there.

Q. Didn't Granny Letcher move in there in December, 1885? A. I think she was there before that time.

Q. Well, was she there in the fall of 1884? A. No.

Q. When did she move in there to your best recollection?

A. Well, along in 1885, I wouldn't be positive to which of two months either way.

Q. You think it was in the fall of 1885, you think it was in the winter, Crilly? A. No, I don't think so.

Q. You think it was in the fall?

A. Yes, I think early in the fall.

Q. Lilly White had moved out, hadn't she?

A. I don't know whether she had moved out or not; Granny Letcher first moved in the back portion of that house.

Q. Crilly, you testified positively in 1914 that Lilly White moved out and Granny Letcher moved in?

A. Even now it might be correct.

Q. What has changed your opinion?

A. I haven't really changed it. I know Granny Letcher was in the back portion of that building and that there was where Indian Minnie was, with Granny Letcher. I never Indian Minnie——

Q. You have been in constant association with Lee Bond and Frank Long since depositions in 1914?

A. I saw them once in a while, yes, sir.

Q. You have been out searching the country for witnesses in this case?

A. When I was hired to go and that was a very few times.

Q. You think now that Granny Letcher had moved out and Lilly White—— I mean Lilly White had moved out before Granny Letcher moved in?

A. No, I wouldn't be positive; that is my idea.

Q. One moved out about the time the other moved in?

A. Yes, I think about that time.

Q. Whether just before or just after you don't know?

A. It is a long while ago.

Q. But they didn't live there for any considerable time together? A. You won't allow me to explain why?

> The Court: Mr. Crilly, he has asked you whether you remember that they both lived together in that house at the same time?

A. Well, I think they were for a while at the same time, yes, sir.

Q. Why do you think so?

A. Well, I know that Lilly White wanted me to buy that property. She told me she paid fifty of dollars a month rent for that property and she told me if I would buy that property that I could buy it on the installment plan for in the neighborhood of thirty dollars a month and that she would gladly pay me the same rent for that property, and she would be paying the installments and I would be making eighteen or twenty dollars a month. I spoke to my partner, Mr. Cranston, and he wouldn't have anything to do with it. And Lilly White moved out very shortly and suddenly and I was awfully glad I never tied myself up.

Q. And then this nigger came in very suddenly and shortly after she moved out?

A. She was there about the same time; I know Lilly White moved out very suddenly, only a few days after she was trying to get me to buy the property.

Q. Do you remember what time of the year that was?

A. No, sir.

Q. Were you in your shirt sleeves?

A. Oh, I wouldn't remember that.

Q. Was she in her summer robes?

A. I couldn't tell you that.

Q. Where did that conversation occur?

A. At my stable or in my office.

Q. You have remembered that conversation since 1914, haven't you? A. No, I could have told you that before.

Q. You never did tell it before?

A. Never did have reason to.

Q. You have been on the witness stand twice?

A. Yes, sir, that is true.

Q. And both times you testified that Lilly White moved out before Granny Letcher moved in?

A. I testified she was occupying the house and Granny Letcher moved in, and that Granny occupied the whole house afterwards.

Q. You never heard anybody except Frank Long say they lived there together?

A. I never heard Frank Long say that either.

Q. Did you ever hear anybody say so?

A. Well, yes, I believe I have—— Oh, possibly common street talk.

Q. You know the defendants in this case have been trying to prove that recently, don't you?

A. Well, I don't know as they have.

Mr. Hanford: We object to that.

The Court: He may answer.

A. No, sir, I don't know that they have been trying to prove that.

Q. Haven't you been talking to people and asking if they remembered that they lived there together? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you hear Frank Long and Lee Bond asking them? A. No.

Q. Will you say you didn't?

A. Yes, I will say I didn't.

Q. Why has your recollection changed about it?

A. I don't think my recollection has changed any, Judge.

Q. Now, Crilly, you say Granny Letcher moved there in the fall, was it in the early fall or late fall of 1885?

A. Couldn't remember, couldn't tell you the exact months, no, sir.

Q. You saw Minnie there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Granny Letcher never lived in that house until the time she moved there in the fall of '85, did she?

A. I don't think she ever did.

Q. She hadn't, while you were living on that street?

A. No.

Q. You had been living there since seventy-seven, hadn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Since what time? A. About 1882 or '3.

Q. And during that time, Granny Letcher had never lived in that house, had she?

A. No, I don't think she ever had.

Q. Lilly White never lived there but the one time?

A. That is all I know.

Q. She never moved out and came back?

A. No, she never moved back.

Q. Granny was there the first time you saw this Minnie Atkinson or the Minnie you are talking about?

A. Well, I saw Minnie around the street long before this occurred; she wasn't around Granny Letcher's but I would see her on the streets.

Q. She was regarded by you as a public prostitute, wasn't she?

A. No, all I can say is I had seen her with a girl whose character was questioned, a girl by the name of Foster.

Q. She had the reputation of being a public prostitute?

A. No, sir.

Q. You thought she was?

A. Well, I was inclined to believe that she was a fast girl, yes, sir.

Q. You swore in 1914 that was a woman of the street, a prostitute?

A. Seen her on the streets. I don't know as I ever saw anything wrong in Indian Minnie at the time.

Q. You said you didn't know whether she was living with Ida Foster or not? A. I had seen her with her.

Q. Ida Foster ran a house of prostitution at that time?

A. No, sir, she was only a girl.

Q. Well, she was in a house?

A. No, I can't say she was in a house, but I know she had the reputation of being a fast girl.

Q. Why was it you associated this Minnie with Ida?

A. They associated themselves together, my friend.

Q. Was there anything in her association with Ida Foster?

A. No, no more than I knew Ida Foster was considered fast. I never knew her to live in a house of prostitution.

Q. You said in your testimony in 1914 you didn't know whether Minnie lived with Ida Foster or not?

A. I say that now.

Q. Crilly, don't you know the woman you are talking about is the Indian Mollie that lived in Leavenworth in 1884?

A. I know positively this woman Indian Minnie is the identical girl that I am talking about that I see here every day.

Q. You never heard her name as Atkinson? A. No, sir.

Q. While you knew her in Leavenworth?

A. Never did, no, sir. Never heard the word Atkinson to my knowledge, neved did.

And thereupon, court recesses until two o'clock P. M.

And thereafter, and at 2 o'clock P. M., court having convened pursuant to adjournment, further proceedings herein were had as follows:

GEORGE CRILLY, being recalled, further testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mr. Crilly, I believe you say that Lillie White left 217 [] street quite suddenly? A. Yes, quite suddenly.

Q. 217 Seneca Street? A. On Seneca Street, yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Phillip Feth

A. Phillip Feth—I knew the old man in his lifetime, if that is the one you have reference to.

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. You remember a petition being circulated there to remove Lillie White from 217 Seneca Street?

A. No, sir, I don't remember of any pettition.

Q. I hand you Government's Exhibit 59 and ask you if you ever saw that petition before?

A. No, sir, not as I know of; I don't have any recollection of it; can't recollect any time that I ever heard of it, or seen the petition.

Q. Did you know M. A. Jordan?

A. Yes, I knew the Jordan family that lived right west of me; yes.

Q. They lived right down there on Seneca, didn't they?

A. Right west of me.

Q. Did you [] George T. Scott? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And John Maduska? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was Scott living?

A. Scott lived right adjoining Modaska on Shawnee Street, right south of the alley a little bit; west from the Letcher family.

Q. That was right up against the Letcher property, wasn't it?

A. No, it was across the alley and facing Shawnee, and to come from their house to the Letcher property you would have to cross three lots into the alley and go east two or three lots to get in to the property.

Q. They back together with the properties, against the alleys there?

A. Yes, not exactly against there; one was at a certain point and the other one about three or four blocks farther west.

Q. Do you mean lots—you said blocks?

A. Yes, sir, lots; I beg your pardon, Judge, I meant lots.

Q. George T. Scott then lived facing Shawnee close to the Letcher property? A. Yes, he lived there.

Q. And John Moduska lived out where?

A. Well, he lived—I think, right next to there.

Q. Right next to the Scotts? A. Yes.

Q. And Peter Wilkins, did you know him?

A. There was a Wilkins family there that run a hotel there; yes, I know Wilkins.

Q. That is in the same block also?

A. P. Johnson—I can't recollect any person by that name.

Q. Did you know a Johnson that lived there in that neighborhood?

Q. And G. H. Sudolph, did you know him?

A. G. H. Ludolph.

Q. It is Ludolph. J. H. Ludolph?

A. He lived there I think one lot west of Scott & Madusky property.

Q. That was right up against the Lilly White home?

A. Well, faced Shawnee Street across the alley.

Q. In the same block? A. Yes, sir, all in Block 25.

Q. On the south side of the alley?

A. Yes, on the south side of the alley.

Q. M. Roach, did you know him?

A. I don't recall the name Roach, no—— I beg your pardon, Judge, that man Roach lived in the block still west of our block, he lived—— If it is the same Roach, he had a daughter named Lottie. They lived across Third Street on the identical property that afterwards Mrs. Letcher lived in.

Q. Now, are any of these people whom I have named living? A. Read them to me.

Q. Feth, Gordon, Scott?

A. Gordon is dead, Scott is dead, Feth is dead.

Q. Madunsky? A. Yes.

Q. Gordon? A. Yes.

A. I am not sure about knowing Johnson, I think the old man is alive, but I think his wife is dead. I am not sure about that, Judge.

Q. Ludolph?

A. Ludolph has been dead for years. He has a son living there.

Q. M. Roach? A. M. Roach dead years ago.

Q. E. Sherrons?

A. I don't remember anybody by the name of Sherrons.

The Court: How old are you, Mr. Crilly?

Q. Ira Rivard, did you know him?

A. Can't recall him by that name.

Q. John Rippencroger? A. I don't remember that name.

Q. A. H. VanDusee? A. Yes, I know him.

Q. Where did he live?

A. He lived on the corner of Second and Seenca, on the southeast corner of Second and Seneca.

Q. That was right next to the Lilly White place?

A. Five lots.

Q. It was in the same block? A. No, in the block east.

Q. In the vicinity? A. Yes, five or six lots.

Q. F. C. Peck?

A. Well, I tell you I knew Frank Peck in his lifetime, but I don't remember when he lived in that locality; I knew him as a traveling salesman afterwards, I had nothing intimate acquainted with him.

Q. Is he living?

A. He was traveling for a Chicago house the last I heard of him, I think he is dead.

Q. Is VanDusee living?

A. Yes, I think they are both living, the old man and his old lady.

Q. F. C. Peck? [A.] I knew him, he lived in Leavenworth in the early seventies and then became a traveling salesman out of Chicago.

Q. Did you know Mrs. Higgins?

A. Can't recall any person by that name now.

Q. Mrs. H. D. Higgins?

A. Don't know anybody by that name.

Q. Did you know Thomas McNally?

A. Yes, sir, I knew him well, he is dead.

Q. He lived in that vicinity?

A. Well, he afterwards owned this property that you speak of that was owned by Van Dusee; I don't remember which lived in there first. They both lived in that same house.

Q. B. Cranston?

A. Yes, there was an old man by the name of Cranston that lived in that same block.

Q. In that same block?

A. He lived in that same block, he has been dead for years.

Q. J. Media?

A. You haven't it quite right but I know who you mean; he lived on the corner of Second and Shawnee.

Q. Lived in that vicinity? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is he dead? A. Yes, long ago.

Q. John Ulrich?

A. I knew a man by that name but I don't know where he lived at that time.

Q. Otto Ristenport? Rittenbach, do you remember him?

A. Don't remember him.

Q. John Seckler? A. Knew him well.

Q. Is he living? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know the signatures of any of those men?

A. Don't know the signatures of any of them.

Q. You don't know whether it was the result of this petition and the order of the city council that caused Lilly White to move? A. Never heard of the petition.

Q. But she moved suddenly?

A. Yes, only a week before she was talking to me about staying there for God knows how long, and then moved out, and I was surprised to see her go so soon.

Q. Did you know a member of the city council at that time by the name of Bond?

A. Bond? I don't remember who was councilmen of the city; I know Mr. Bond's father, here, well; Billy Bond.

Q. What was his name? A. Billy Bond.

Q. Do you know what his initials were?

A. I don't know whether he was—W. H. Bond, I am not sure about that.

Q. He was a member of the city council, wasn't he?

A. I don't know that he was; I don't know anything about that.

Q. Mr. Crilly, you stated this morning that you and Mr. Page, and someone else, who was it—went out to see Mrs. Cobb?

A. Well, I think Mr. Long, and Mr. Page, and I rode out there, and the person who was in the car with us was—no, I don't know whether I drove the car or had a party to drive it. I don't know which.

Q. You had a chauffeur to drive the car that day?

A. Yes, I think I did that day; I wouldn't be positive about that.

Q. Where did you drive Mr. Page and Mr. Long to that day? A. Drove them over to a place called Tracy, Missouri.

Q. Tracy, Missouri? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How far is that from Leavenworth?

A. Ten miles, I judge.

Q. You went in an automobile? A. Yes.

Q. How long were you out there?

A. Oh, twenty or thirty minutes, or fifteen or twenty minutes—it wasn't long, though.

Q. You were out there sometime?

A. Probably twenty or twenty-five minutes; it was not over that, I don't think.

Q. Did Mr. Page talk to Mrs. Cobb on that occasion?

A. I don't know whether he done most of the talking or Mr. Long; they were all conversing among one another.

Q. That the only time you hauled Mr. Page to the witnesses?

A. The only time that I ever hauled Mr. Page there, yes, sir.

Q. You hauled Hanford and Minnie Folk around Leavenworth in the fall of 1914, didn't you?

A. I think I hauled Mr.——

Q. In the summer of 1914?

A. I think I hauled Mr. Long and Minnie together the first.

Q. Hauled Mr. Long and Minnie together?

A. I think so, yes; that is my recollection now.

Q. And then later, you hauled Hanford and Minnie together?

A. Well, I won't be sure now; I have hauled Hanford with Minnie; I know I did Long because that was the first time I had seen her in all those years.

Q. That is the first time that you saw Minnie?

A. The first time for—oh, twenty-odd years; she was with Mr. Long.

Q. That is the first time in twenty-odd years that you had seen her?

A. Yes, sir; that was the time that I hauled Mr. Long and her together from the National hotel—the west door.

Q. They told you that they wanted you to haul Minnie Atkins and Long, didn't they?

A. Well, Mr. Long—I had expressed a desire to see this woman; to see if it was the person I had in my mind.

Q. To see Indian Minnie?

A. Well, they might have put on somebody else and I wanted to be sure what I was testifying to, and he told me to bring my car around and they were going out—I think to the post, or somewhere, and I took a car out to Mr. Long and Indian Minnie came and got into the car and that was the first time I have seen her since——

Q. They told you they were at the hotel and they wanted you to take them out somewhere?

A. Yes, Mr. Long told me.

Q. So, when you got to the hotel there, you and Minnie and Mr. Long——

A. I think that was the two—is my recollection.

Q. You hadn't seen her for twenty-odd years, if you had seen her before?

A. I hadn't seen for twenty-odd years; I had before, yes.

Q. You had not heard her before called Minnie Atkins, had you?

A. I don't think I had ever heard the Atkinson part of her name.

Q. Atkins?

A. Atkinson used to run a store there and I get the name mixed somethimes.

Q. You had before read articles in the Leavenworth papers?

A. I don't [] so, personally, until Mr. Long came to me.

Q. That was the beginning of this controversy at Leavenworth, wasn't it?

A. That is as far as I was concerned, yes; I don't know what was public before; I hadn't seen it.

Q. You knew her there by her features being the same as the features of the woman you saw in the '80's?

A. Isn't a bit of question about it; I knew the person by her features. That was the same party.

Q. You testitfied the way that you knew her, in 1914, was because of her features being the same?

A. Yes, sir, and her general features, yes, sir; testify now to that effect.

Q. She was considerably larger when you saw her the last time, wasn't she? A. Sure, yes, sir.

Q. You testified, I believe, in this court, in the receivership hearing, did you not? A. I was here.

Q. That you first heard the name Tommy applied to this boy that you called Commodore when this controversy arose is that right?

A. No, I remember them calling him Tommy before.

> The Court: The question is what you testified when you were here at Muskogee before; that is the question now.

Q. I don't remember, Judge, testifying to that.

Q. I will ask you if you testified here as a witness at the receivership hearing?

A. I testified before his honor here and I guess it was the same time, yes, sir.

Q. At that time, which was in 1915, did you—was the following question asked you, to which you returned the following answer: "Do you know by what name it was known?", referring to this child; and you said, "Well, of late, why I am satisfied his name was Tommy; I always called him Commodore."

A. That is it.

Q. "I had him nicknamed Commodore"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This Edwards woman you saw said that this name was Tommodore, didn't she?

A. No, I don't know that she said that.

Q. Don't you remember hearing her say this name was Tommodore? A. Tommodore?

Q. Yes. A. Well, I don't remember hearing her say it, no, sir.

Q. Didn't you hear her testify—— A. No.

Q. That his name was Tommodore?

A. I never heard her testify in my life.

Q. Did you remember that she testified his name was Tommidore? A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you ever in your life hear him called Tommidore?

A. I called him that.

Q. Did you ever hear anybody call him Tommidore?

A. Com—Commidore, I never heard anybody that I know of.

Q. Tommydore, did you ever hear anybody call him that?

A. No.

Q. He never was known by that name?

A. I don't think I ever called him that myself.

Q. Anybody?

A. I don't think I ever called him that myself.
Q. Did you ever hear anybody call him that?
A. No, sir, I never called him that.

The Court: Mr. Crilly, just answer the question.

A. No, sir. I have answered the question, Your Honor, I have answered the question.

Q. You say, Crilly, that you understood at the time you saw Minnie that she was a woman of the street, that was your impression of her then, wasn't it? A. Why, no.

Q. That she was a common woman at that time?

A. I understood nothing of the kind. Just from general observation. Nobody told me nothing with regard to the matter.

Q. You got that impression because she ran with Ida Foster? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. Crilly, when was it that you first laid eyes on Minnie, the Minnie that you saw at Granny Letcher's?

A. Oh, I don't remember, Judge.

Q. You said it was long, didn't you, before your wife left?

A. Yes, it was a good while before any of this matter came up. I seen the girl on the street at different places.

Q. It was before you and your wife separated?

A. We separated temporarily, yes, sir.

Q. A long time, wasn't it?

A. Oh, I don't know, probably a couple or three months, I don't know, maybe longer.

Q. Was it a couple of years? A. Oh, no.

Q. Was it a year?

A. No, may not have been that much, and it might have been.

Q. Then, it might have been a year?

A. I don't think it was.

Q. At that time how old was the boy?

A. Why, at this time when I first saw her, I don't know whether the child was born or not.

Q. She wasn't in a family way, was she?

A. I never seen her when I thought she was in a family way.

Q. You never saw her in your life when you thought she was in a family way? A. I don't think I ever did.

Q. You tried to get Mollie Peters to make a date for you?

A. Yes, asked her to make an appointment for me to meet the lady.

Q. You watched her critically?

A. I seen her, but that was after the child was born.

Q. After the child was born? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And for years after that, you saw her weekly at Granny Letcher's? A. Oh, I seen her for sometime.

Q. For three or four years, you continued then to see her around Granny Letcher's did you?

A. Might have been two and might have been three years.

Q. It was the next two or three years?

A. From the time I first seen her until she disappeared out of sight all together.

Q. This child you spoke of was six months or a year old, was it a month or year old?

A. Oh, when I first seen the child, I had to guess from across the street, one hundred yards apart, and I know the child was in short clothes. I heard she had had a child.

Mr. Allen: I move to strike the answer that he heard she had had a child.

The Court: I will consider it in connection with his testimony.

A. I had been told she had had a child by the old fortune teller, Aunt Mollie Peters, and when I seen her with this child on the back porch afterwards, it confirmed the statement, otherwise I wouldn't have knowed she had a child.

Q. Crilly, how old was the child when you saw it that time?

A. I wasn't near the child, I was probably a hundred and fifty feet away.

Q. About how old was this child or whatever you call it that you saw you thought might be Minnie's?

A. The mother you mean or the child?

Q. The child?

A. It was in its mother's arms and I was a hundred and fifty feet away from it; I knew it had short clothes on and was told by Mollie Peters it was probably five or six months old.

Q. Then you saw Minnie when this child was five or six months old? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You continued to see her there every week after that, I believe you say, for several years?

A. Oh, she would be there sometimes for two or three days and then she would be away and you wouldn't see her for a month or two months.

Q. Then you would see her again?

A. Then she would be a day or two and then gone again.

Q. But at other times you saw this same woman around town?

A. I saw her at different places before I ever seen her at Granny Letcher's.

Q. She at that time you thought was not a good woman, was a common woman?

A. After I seen her with this Ida Foster I thought she was a little careless about her company.

Q. And weren't you at all aroused about her when you saw her living at this negro place?

A. Yes, I was somewhat surprised.

Q. To know she was staying there? A. No.

Q. You believed she was living there?

A. No, I didn't believe she was living there permanently.

Q. You saw the child there? A. Yes.

Q. You saw this woman there?

A. That was afterwards now that you are talking about.

Q. How long did she stay there at that time?

A. Which time do you mean?

Q. The time that you saw her with the child when the child was five or six months old?

A. I don't remember. I don't know whether she was just there a day or two; she was back there in the neighborhood from one to two years after the child was born, I would see her at Letcher's.

Q. For how long?

A. From one to two years, I don't know how long.

Q. You have never fixed it before this minute at less than two and one-half years?

A. Well, I am talking about after the child was born. I ain't positive about that, Judge.

Q. And you continued to see her there every week or two or month or two at Granny Letcher's?

A. I seen her there more or less.

Q. You were trying to get an engagement with her?

A. I asked Aunt Mollie to make an engagement for me; she flirted with me on the Fort Road one time and that caused me to want to make her friendship.

The Court: Your cross examination has covered this matter two or three times. First he said a year or two and one time he may have put it more than that, but you have covered that very fully. Go to something else.

Q. Did you ever at any of those times see her when she appeared to be in a family way?

A. No, sir, I don't know as I did. This all happened after she had had this child.

Q. Did you see her when she appeared to be in a family way?

The Court: The witness has answered a number of times that he never saw her when she appeared to be in a family way. I have that well fixed in my mind, there is no question about that.

Q. You testified, Mr. Crilly, twice before that this was a mulatto child, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't testify as to the exact color. I testified I thought it probably was tinted with colored blood and I even yet; I probably got that from the fact that the child was living among colored people.

Q. You made that explanation before?

A. I don't know whether I was ever required to or not.

Q. In 1914, when you testified in Leavenworth, were you not asked the following questions to which you returned the following answers: "This child called Tommy was part negro?" to which you answered: "Yes, I classified him with the rest of them, I thought so, yes"?

A. Yes, that was the opinion I had.

Q. You believed then that this boy was a negro?

A. I believed it, yes, from the fact—— That is, from the fact it was raised among the colored people; I thought so, and think so yet, that it must have been tinted with that or it wouldn't have been there.

Q. You have heard it all your life that to rub your hand over a negroe's head would bring you good luck?

A. That's the stuff Judge.

Q. And when you rubbed your hand over that negro's head you thought you were rubbing it over the head of a negro? A. No, I knew it was Indian Minnie's child.

Q. You thought it would bring you good luck to rub your hands over a nigger's head?

A. No, sir, but I made that remark because I felt kindly towards the child and was playing with him. I am not superstitious.

Q. You remember now of rubbing your hand over this boy's head? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And saying that that will bring me good luck?

A. Yes, sir, that is a fact.

Q. Did you ever hear that it would bring you good luck to rub your hand over a white person's head?

A. Oh, I have heard that remark made by lots of people.

Q. But to rub your hand over a negro's head, that would bring you good luck? A. Yes, that was what was said.

Q. Then weren't the following questions asked to which you returned the following answers in your deposition at Leavenworth: "Do you remember the color of this boy Tommy? A. He looked to me kind of mixed like, a mulatto more than anything else." A. Well, he was.

The Court: Now, let's get along. Was that your testimony there?

Q. Yes, that is what I said.

Q. Then, you testified here, Mr. Crilly, did you not as follows. "Q. It was part negro, according to your judgment? A. Well, at that time, that was the way we thought, yes, sir."

The Court: That was your testimony, was it?

A. Why, I probably testified that it was a colored boy.

The Court: Did you testify that way?

A. Perhaps I did, if it says so. I won't deny that; I haven't denied it.

Q. Then was the following question asked you ,to which you returned the following answer: "Q. You may describe the appearance of the child as to its blood. A. Well, I was always under the impression that it had colored blood and Indian blood, that was my opinion—that it was a colored child with Indian blood. Whether I arrive at that conclusion from general observation or whether it was associated [] that class of people so long, altogether, it is pretty hard for me to tell, but we considered it was part Indian and part negro; that is the way we looked at it at the time. I had no particular reason outside of what would naturally come to every other man." You testified to that fact at Muskogee, long after you had testified at Leavenworth?

A. I testify that now, as far as that is concerned; that was the idea I had at that time to the best of my belief. I say the best thing now, to the best of my belief.

Q. If Minnie ever worked at the Fort, you never knew anything about it, did you? A. Not personally, I didn't.

Q. Well, you testified before that you didn't know anything about her working there?

A. Myself, I don't know that she ever worked at the Fort.

Q. You testified that you never heard of her working nywhere, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That you thought she was just a prostitute around own?

A. No, I won't say that; I said I never heard of her working anywhere; that last clause you add in there I won't ay that—I say she was with a woman whose character was uestioned.

Q. Did you ever talk to Rube Smith and Dennis Jones bout this?

A. I don't know about any of the details of this; I don't hink I ever did. I don't think they knew what I testified.

Q. Did you ever talk to Lee Bond?

A. I talked to Lee Bond, yes.

Q. Did you know about the time Mr. Bond was employed n the case?

A. Well, not long after; I never heard about him being in the case until after I testified before Your Honor here before.

Q. You knew that Dennis Jones and Rube Smith were employed before then, didn't you?

A. Never knew it until I came down here and found them around this Government building.

Q. You knew they were working on this case?

A. I knew it when we got down and I found them here; I heard they were on the case.

Q. On the Receivership hearing?

A. I think it was in 1914, Your Honor.

The Court: You will have to do the testifying.

A. Well, that was the time, anyway.

Q. After you took Mr. Page and Mr. Long out to see Mrs. Edwards, you took Long and Lee Bond out, didn't you?

A. I don't know whether I took them out or not; I can't remember. I probably did.

Q. Didn't you take them out there just a few days before Mrs. Edwards testified at Leavenworth?

A. I don't remember the exact time.

Q. Mrs. Cobb?

A. Mrs. Cobb is the name; I know who you mean, or meant, all the time. After I learned them of their knowledge, I acquainted any person that was interested in it—in the case, I think the first man I met after I heard of it——

Q. You told all about that—I said did you take them out to Mrs. Cobb's? A. Yes.

Q. A few days before she testified?

A. I don't know how long before she testified, no.

Q. Did they get a Bible there and bring it back that day?

A. I don't think so.

Q. You never saw the Bible? A. I don't think so.

Q. You saw the Bible, though, didn't you?

A. I never saw the Bible; I heard the Bible was there but I never saw it.

Q. Did you see that big Bible that they brought—

A. I never saw the Bible, Judge.

Q. You heard there was a Bible, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir, I heard it.

Q. Who told you about it?

A. Mrs. Cobb's daughter I think first mentioned it.

Q. They claimed that had the record of the age of the Edwards children? A. No.

Mr. Cruce: If the Court please, we object to that, as having no bearing.

The Court: I can't see the bearing on this. I presume there are a lot of depositions with which I am not familiar. Go on, conclude as rapidly as possible, Judge.

Q. Mr. Crilley, did you come down here with Mrs. Welch?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who paid her expenses down here?

A. Mr. Long. I don't know that it was Mr. Long; he sent the money to pay her expenses.

Q. Sent it to you? A. No.

Q. Who else did you pay the expense of to come?

A. The expenses of a woman name of Goldberg, and a man named Roderick, and a man—Mrs. Goldberg, I didn't pay hers; John Roderick and myself—three tickets were bought by me.

Q. John Roderick is the same man you said in '85 and '86—what time in '86—January?

A. Some time in '86, I wouldn't be sure.

Q. That he was the man that you said had charge of the wood and coal?

A. The Government storage—transferring that from one part of the reservation to another.

Q. Running a transfer line? A. Yes.

Q. And he worked then for you?

A. He was partly interested in that portion of the firm.

Q. That line? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much money did he send you to pay these witnesses' expenses?

A. He sent me sixty dollars; a draft for sixty dollars to pay the expenses of all persons down here and any little things they could need while on the way. Sixty dollars was the amount anyway.

Q. You are all staying at the hotel here together, the Severs hotel, here together, are you?

A. No, sir, we went in there the morning—Roderick and I, and I found two other witnesses after I got off at the depot I didn't know had anything to do with the case. Nobody was there—it was so early in the morning, to meet us and they followed us to the Severs hotel and her and another lady went up to a room, and I and him went into breakfast. We had our breakfast and came out and our bill was so enormous, I said this looks pretty rough, and the ladies just had their everyday clothes to wear, had no change——

Q. Well, where are you stopping?

A. Well we are—where are we stopping?

Q. Yes.

A. I am stopping at the Huber house, and there is where they are stopping.

Q. These other witnesses who came with you are stopping there?

A. When they first came, they stopped there a few days.

Q. Have any of them gone home?

A. Yes, all of them have gone home but me.

Q. Roderick is the only one of them who has testified, isn't he? A. No, Mrs. Welch testified I believe.

Q. Mrs. Welch and Roderick?

A. No, Louis Bell testified.

Q. They didn't come with you, though?

A. No, but they came on the same train and went to that hotel with me.

Q. Well, how much are you being paid this time to come here?

A. Well, I haven't been offered a five cent piece but I expect to the gentleman to be as fair with me as they were before and I will tell you that if you want me to. They haven't paid me a cent.

Q. Well, you may tell.

A. Five dollars a day and expenses.

Q. You expect them to be that fair with you?

A. They have offered me a five cent piece but I am satisfied they will be gentlemen and treat me as they did before.

Q. Are they paying all the witnesses all that?

A. I don't know anything about that. I am only telling you about what I expect myself. I don't know anything about what they are paying the other witnesses.

Q. Now, Mr. Crilley, in November, 1914, Henry Carter came to your house, didn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Allen: Stand up, Henry Carter.

(Henry Carter stands up in the rear of the court room.)

A. I can point him out where he stands. That is the fellow.

Q. He came to your house, didn't he? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: You may be seated.

Q. That was in November, 1914, wasn't it?

A. I don't remember the time, Judge; I don't remember the month; I remember the time of the day but I don't remember the month he was at my house.

Q. That was about the time that Page took a lease from Henry, wasn't it?

Mr. Cruce: If the Court please, we object to that; there is no testimony that Page took a lease from——

The Court: If this witness knows anything about it——

A. I never knew that he had took a lease; I never heard of a lease being taken by Henry Carter.

Mr. Allen: Counsel evidently doesn't understand the state of the evidence here.

The Court: However, that is immaterial in connection with the cross examination of this witness if he doesn't know.

Q. This man came to your house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you went out there and identified him positively as the Commodore that you saw in 1886 there?

A. No, I didn't and you never heard any person say that I identified him as the same person.

Q. Didn't you tell him that you thought he was the same person?

A. No, I didn't; I didn't know who he was. I will relate the conversation and prove it by him.

Q. Well, tell the conversation.

A. My wife told me there was a man outside who wanted to see me and I went to the door and young Mr. Carter was there standing on the outside. He looked at me earnestly and sincerely and said do you know me, and I said why no, I don't know you—who are you? He said I was told—answered me directly—I was told by a party that if I would come to you that you could identify me; I reminded the second time that I didn't know him and asked him who he was and then I think he told me that he was not positive but that he thought he was the Indian Tommy, and I began asking him questions—if he knew me. I said, do you know me; and he wouldn't say that he did know me, but he said he had seen me before. I said well, you knew me in those days days he did then; after talking to him I happened to think about how I used to rub his head and the idea occurred to him that if I could get him to remove his hat, it might show some signs of it; and I said to him, remove your hat, and he removed his hat, and I couldn't identify anything, and I said, Carter, if you are the man—it has been years ago and I am not surprised if you are the boy, I couldn't identify him as a man—grown to manhood, that I had not seen since he was seven or eight. Then afterwards I knew my boys, I had two boys, one almost the same age of him, well no, probably a little bit younger as he said Tommy's age would be. I asked him if he remembered playing with my boys and I tried in every way to ascertain the facts from him and he didn't seem to know anything about it, and he would keep saying I know lots of things, but he seemed to harp on the fact that he wanted to find his mother; that was the main feature—I want to find my mother; that is the remark he made to me, kept harping on that. So I took him and afterwards my boys wasn't at home; one of my boys was living in Tulsa, Oklahoma—not Tulsa, but Inola, Kansas; the other was living at 31st and Jackson Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri; and quick as I laid eyes on my oldest boy, I asked him if he knew or had any reasons to remember this here little Tommy at that age, because he was a year or two older, or about that size. He said yes, he remembered——

The Court: You needn't to state what your boy said now.

Q. Well, I beg your pardon, then. Judge, I don't want to——

The Court: You have probably answered his question now.

A. Yes, I will answer his question if he wants me—go ahead.

Q. Then, you satisfied yourself that he was Tommy—Commodore, didn't you?

A. No, sir, I never satisfied myself to that effect.

Q. What did you say when you got through with the examination of him?

A. Well, I never said anything particular to him but I did tell Mr. Long shortly afterwards that I wouldn't be surprised if this boy didn't prove to be Commodore—that is before there was any sifting into the matter and I put Mr. Long in a car and took him out to a house where Carter was working on a house cleaning the roof and we called Carter out—it was almost time for him to quit work, and I think Carter rode in my machine down to the hotel. And they got out and went up stairs, it seems to me, and that was the end of it that time. I will tell you the last I seen him if you want me to.

Q. Long was satisfied, too, that it was Commodore that you saw there?

A. Well, you ask Long about that, I don't know what he was satisfied about.

Q. I said did he tell you that?

A. No, sir, he didn't; he went out in the country and came back and I will tell you what he told me if you want to know. He says it wasn't the boy.

Q. Wait a minute; he told you after viewing the boy that it was Tommy, the boy?

A. I never saw him any more that day; they went up stairs—he did not.

Q. Now, Mr. Crilley, when you were down here at the receivership hearing, didn't you have a conversation with C. W. Turner; you know him, don't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you tell Mr. C. W. Turner—— A. Yes, sir.

Q. That you could go back home and in two hours put your hands on the Tommy that these people are talking about?

A. No, sir, I didn't tell him nothing of the kind.

Q. You told him that you knew this boy and that he was living under the name of Henry Carter, didn't you?

A. No, I told him that I knew the boy that might prove to be, this Henry Carter. I was interested about it; I hadn't heard other facts that caused me to change my mind.

Q. Didn't you tell Mr. Turner that you knew the boy that you were talking about here and that these other witnesses were testifying about, and that you could go back home in two hours and put your hands on him? Answer that yes or no.

A. No, sir; I say no, sir, I didn't tell him I could do that.

Q. Didn't you tell him you could go back home and find the boy; that you knew him there—that these witnesses were talking about? A. No, sir, I didn't tell him that——

Q. Wasn't there a peach tree incident that you mentioned?

A. No, I will tell you that. It wasn't no peach tree; it was a pear tree.

Q. Alright; pear tree.

A. There was a tree on Granny Letcher's lot, what caused me to make the remark favorable to Carter I think—I asked my boys if they got anything—could relate any circumstances that I could go to this man Carter that would convince me whether he was the boy or not. My youngest boy didn't know anything about it; had no recollection; my oldest boy said, they throwed rocks in the well, and I said that ain't anything—can't you think of something else. He studied a while and said there was a pear tree on the back end of Granny Letcher's lot and that some of the boys—either Sam Nash or Carter, or Mayo, had got my boy, teasingly to point up to the fruit on this tree, so he said it made one of the boys angry, I think it was Carter, angry to make him think he had pointed at the fruit and he said the fruit would fall off. The next time I seen Carter, because I was anxious to find this little Commodore, I asked him if he had any recollection of this and he emphatically told me no, and I didn't get to tell the whole story until he told me, I said you remember the fruit there on the back end of Granny's lot, and he said no, he didn't remember that. I said did you ever remember of me pointing up to the fruit on that tree and he said no, but I know fruit will fall off, won't do any good, if you point at it. I, all my life had never heard of such a thing, and that is what made me think this boy might be the boy. I never heard of such suspicious things before, and he joining in with my boy with that remark is the only reason that I thought that he might be the boy; outside of the general appearance that he looked like he might have Indian blood in him, there, that boy there.

Q. Acting upon the information that you gave him?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Turner telephoned you twice asking you to help him get a lease from this Commodore?

A. I wasn't at home when the telegram came; I stopped to see my son and the message arrived and they notified him that I hadn't arrived home, and then he telephoned my son at Iola and after he telephoned I was then on my way home to Leavenworth. I arrived in Leavenworth and I wasn't there two hours until I got a telephone message in reference to that matter.

Q. Speaking of this boy in 1914, when you were testifying in reference to this matter, was not the following question asked you to which you returned the following answer: "Q. Who had the care of him? A. It seemed to me like Mrs. Letcher." A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. Then, was not the following questions asked you and the following answers returned: "Q. Now, as I understand you, he was six or seven months old when you first saw him in Minnies' arms? A. Well, he may have been a year old, but she could pick him up and have him in her arms, yes. You see he lived right across the street and I never was over in that house; my folks would not stand for it."

A. Well, you are right on that, but I don't think I placed it as high as a year old.

Q. Who were your folks that wouldn't stand for it?

A. Well——

Q. Your wife?

A. No, my wife and I had quite a temper. We never parted, we simply lived apart; she came back and visited me and the children for three days and went away again.

Q. "And every once in a while you could see her inside that house? A. Yes. Q. And sometimes she had the child in her arms and sometimes other people had it in their arms? A. Yes, she had it more than anybody else, and I do not know how I got the idea, I got the idea that it was mother and son. I paid no particular attention, I had no particular reason for knowing." Did you answer that question in that way in Leavenworth? A. I don't think so, because I——

Q. I just asked you if you answered it in that way?

A. No, sir.

Q. The last time you ever saw him you say he was seven or eight years old?

A. Yes, I should judge seven or eight years old.

Q. Crilly, you say your barn burned in 1890?

A. Yes, on the 11th day of April, 1890; I have had three or four fires, but that is the fire we have reference to.

Q. Had this boy left there when your barn burned?

A. No, I think it was a year or so afterwards that this Van Tyle affair occurred.

Q. About what time after?

A. I don't know when he left; the last thing I am positive was the time this pipe affair came up and I think he was six or seven years old, because I remember then challenging my memory that the boy ought to know better about putting somebody else's pipe in his mouth. I might have seen him for a year and a half or two years after.

Q. How much younger is your boy that played with Tommy there than Tommy?

A. Well, my youngest boy was born on the 20th of March——

Q. Well, I say about how much younger?

A. The youngest boy I think was about the same age or probably a year younger.

Q. That answers it. How long was that boy—— How old was that boy when your wife left you?

A. Which boy, my boy?

Q. The youngest boy?

A. Well, now, since I come to think about it——

Q. Just answer the question. How old was that boy?

A. Oh, that boy of mine was—the youngest boy must have been four years old.

Q. When your wife left? A. Yes.

Mr. Allen: That is all.

A. I think about that time when my wife left.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. Mr. Crilly, as long as this boy stayed at Granny Letcher's he played around your place there?

A. Yes, out in the yard and in the barn.

Q. Played with your boys?

A. Played with all the boys as far as I know.

Q. What other boys were staying at Granny Letcher's, Sam Nash? A. Sam Nash.

Q. Walter Banks?

A. Walter Banks. Jim Mayo I think was pretty well along in years at that time, that is he was more of a man and I don't know about Sam Nash.

Q. But they were around there?

A. They had opportunity to play around there.

Q. This Walter Banks and Sam Nash still live in Leavenworth? A. No, I think they live in Tulsa.

Q. When was the last time you saw them?

A. I seen them both I think since I testified before Your Honor on the other date.

Q. Haven't you seen them since you have been here on this trip? A. No, probably a year, either one.

Q. Now, you say Carter came to you and you and Carter talked over his early childhood? A. He didn't have any recollection about his childhood.

Q. He was trying to get you to identify him?

A. Yes, he came for that purpose.

Q. And you recited to him certain incidents that you remembered, among them the fruit tree incident?

A. I got it from my oldest son afterwards and recited that to him afterwards.

Q. You talked with them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And from your conversation with him raised some question in your mind as to whether he was the Commodore that you knew there as a boy? A. Yes.

Q. You had some doubt then about the matter as to his identity?

A. I thought probably he might prove to be the boy.

Q. Did you believe that so strongly that when you came down here you talked to your old friend Clarence Turner?

A. Yes, I hunted up people, among the first I met was Mrs. George Zufall——

Q. I am talking about Clarence Turner? A. Yes.

Q. You knew Clarence Turner for years before you came down here?

A. I knew of him, wasn't so well acquainted with him as I was with the other parties, yes.

Q. And you had a conversation on that trip?

A. I went in to shake hands.

Q. Wait a minute. I am going to ask you the questions. You had a conversation with Clarence Turner at that time about Carter's claim?

A. Yes, our conversation was about this boy.

Q. About his rights in the premises; about the likelihood of him being the Commodore that you knew?

A. I had a talk with him.

Q. And afterwards Clarence Turner wired you at Leavenworth to get him a lease on this land, didn't he?

A. He wired there twice before when I was on the way back, but I had stopped at Inola to see a son of mine. When I got home he wired to Inola but I had left Inola and gone home.

Q. The object of those telegrams was to get a lease on this land? A. Well, yes.

Q. Now, I will ask you if you didn't state to Mr. Turner upon that trip down here, in substance, while this trial was going on up here at the courthouse, that you didn't believe that the parties engaged in that litigation were trying to find the real Tommy Atkins? A. No.

Q. Wait a minute until I get the question through. That if you were in Leavenworth you could lay your hands on him within forty-eight hours; that he was there going under the name of Henry Carter; didn't you tell him that, or that in substance?

A. No. I told him I thuoght there was a boy there, probably called his name, that may be true. And told him I didn't know but he might prove to be the Henry Carter.

Q. And at that time you believed he was Tommy Atkins?

A. No, I told him I thought he might prove to be. I had no particular proof positive outside of this fruit tree.

Q. But that was your opinion at that time?

A. That was my opinion at that time, yes, sir.

Q. Now, do you know R. E. Martin of Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have seen him around the courthouse and you have seen him at Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you know that he is trying to sustain the interest of the Carter defendants in this case, don't you?

A. That is what I heard, that he is in sympathy with the Carter claim.

Q. You have known that all the time, you have talked with Mr. Martin a number of times about this matter, haven't you?

A. Well, I will tell you——

Q. I just wanted to know.

The Court: Just answer the questions.

A. I have talked to Mr. Bell in the presence of Mr. Martin the first time I ever heard of it.

Q. Now, you talked to Mr. Martin at your livery stable a time or two?

A. No, I don't think he was ever at the livery stable, don't know that he was.

Q. Now, you had a conversation with T. W. Bell and Coody Johnson? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In Mr. Martin's presence in Mr. Bell's office in Leavenworth, didn't you? A. That is right.

Q. Along about 1915?

A. I don't remember the time; Mr. Bell sent for me to come down there and I went down.

Q. I will ask you if you didn't state there in that conversation that your judgment was that Carter was the boy that you knew as Commodore; that you had told Clarence Turner that he was and that you had not made up your mind that he was not the boy; that you had talked to Carter on several instances about things that happened when he was a boy, and that he, Carter, seemed to have a recollection of it and convinced you more than ever that he was the boy you had known as Commodore. Didn't you communicate that statement or that statement in substance? A. No.

> Mr. Cruce: On behalf of Mr. Page, we object to that because it is not cross examination. They can make him their witness on that question if they want to but it isn't cross examination, and as between Page and Carter we are adversaries.

> The Court: Well, now, the witness has answered that he didn't make such a statement. This will come up again when it is sought to prove this statement. Your objection will be noted and for the present overruled, and exception noted, and you will be allowed to renew the objection if it comes up at a later stage in the case.

Q. Now, I will ask you if on two different occasions, at your livery barn in Leavenworth, one of them along about 1915, after your return from Muskogee here at the receivership trial, and later in 1916, sometime in the year 1916, if you didn't state to Mr. Martin that your judgment was that Carter was the boy you had known as Commodore?

A. No, sir, I didn't say anything of the kind.

Q. Didn't you make that statement?

A. No, sir, not my judgment at any time. I merely said that he might prove to be the boy. I was as anxious to find the boy as anybody on earth.

Q. You stated a while ago that you knew the interest with which Mr. Martin was identified; I will ask you if after your arrival here in Muskogee, if you didn't see Mr. Martin and put your hands on his shoulder and say to him that he need have no fear about your testimony; that you was going to tell the truth about the matter according to the dictates of your conscience, either that or that in substance?

A. I don't remember of laying my hands on him, but I will say that I expected to tell the truth at all times.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Martin that?

A. No, I don't remember.

Q. You won't say you didn't tell him that?

A. Probably I might have said something of the kind.

Q. What was your object in telling him that, Mr. Crilly?

A. I don't know if I had any object. In fact, I don't remember telling him at all. I don't remember telling him that.

Q. Before you went to Mr. Beall's office in that conversation you had there with Mr. Beall and Coody Johnson and Mr. Martin, you had already talked to Mr. Long and Page about this matter, hadn't you?

A. No, sir, that is since I ascertained the knowledge I had from Carter, I don't think after I talked to them until I talked to Beall.

Q. I am speaking about this particular conversation. You never talked to them then?

A. No, Bell called me to his office and I went down at his request and there they told me——

Q. I asked you whether you talked to Mr. Long prior to that time? A. Oh, I had talked to him, yes.

Q. You had talked to him before then? A. Yes.

Q. You had talked to Judge Allen and Fred Cook about the matter? A. Yes, probably did.

Q. The fact is, you talked to every interest in the case prior to that time?

A. Everybody that came to me and asked for information, I had nothing to hide.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Crilly, did people come to you claiming to represent the Government? A. Well, I——

Q. Did Judge Allen talk with you? A. Yes.

Q. Who did he claim to represent, did he talk to you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. German talk with you, this gentleman here?

A. No, I can't remember him.

Q. Did any of these other gentlemen you see here?

A. Yes, I see Mr. White here, he talked to me about the matter.

Q. Did you tell him what you knew about him?

A. I think I did.

Q. Did Mr. McMillian, the detective in the case, come to see you? A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell him what you knew about it?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: I want to object to Mr. McMillian being called a detective.

The Court: Well, that is in the question.

Mr. Stuart: Well, your Honor, I was perfectly honest. I thought he was a Dawes Commission man. I beg Mr. Robinson's pardon for calling him a detective.

The Court: I don't know who Mr. McMillian is, but I consider the calling of a detective as honorable as any other calling.

Q. Did Mr. Bell talk to you about it? A. Yes.

Q. Did you refuse to tell anybody who came to you what you knew about this case?

A. Never anybody I don't care who it was.

Q. Now, Mr. Crilly, when this young man who called himself Henry Carter came to you, did he say to you, I am Indian Tommy? A. No, he didn't say that.

Q. What did he say?

A. Well, he thought he was, but he didn't say that he was positively.

Q. Indian Tommy, around what place?

A. Well, he thought he was Indian Minnie's child. In other words, he wanted to find his mother.

Q. Did he indicate to you that he was the Indian Tommy that stayed over at Granny Letcher's? A. Yes.

Q. That was the boy he was trying to identify himself as being? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He told you he had stayed over at Granny Letcher's

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when he made that statement to you, you at once talked to your boys about it?

A. As soon as I seen them, yes, sir.

Q. Just answer my questions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You at once consulted your boys? A. Sure.

Q. And you consulted your boys, why did you consult your boys about it?

A. Well, because they had played with this boy.

Q. What boy?

A. If this boy proved to be the boy. He played with Tommy Atkins.

Q. Where?

A. Around on the streets and there in the yard, and in the buggies and in the hacks.

Q. That is the reason you consulted your boys about it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Because you knew they had played with Indian Tommy? A. Yes, sir, Indian Tommy.

Q. Whatever may have been this boy's blood, you say you saw it in Indian Minnie's arms? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you saw Minnie taking care of him? A. Yes, sir.

And thereupon DENNIS JONES, a witness produced on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins et al., being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Your name is Dennis Jones? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where do you live?

A. I live in Leavenworth, Kansas.

A. I will be 60 years old the 9th of November if I live that long.

A. I was admitted to practice in 1892.

Q. And have been continuously in practice ever since?

A. No, sir, not continuously.

Q. You lived in Leavenworth about fifty some odd years?

A. Yes, sir, came there in 1863.

Q. What was your business along in the '80's?

A. Well, from '80 along up to '85, '86 and '87, I was porter at the Continental hotel part or the time and part of the time on the police force, special police and part of the time barbering.

Q. When did you go on the police force?

A. Well, I think in 1884.

Q. That was the first time?

A. I think that was probably the first time.

Q. What were you then, special policeman?

A. Yes, sir. I can tell you if you will let me refer to a record I have just exactly when it was.

Q. I won't ask for that now. Your recollection is that you were on the police force forst in '84?

A. That is my recollection now.

Q. Then you were let off?

A. Now—no, we were not let off; of course if you will let me explain it——

Q. Go ahead and tell what happened.

A. In the summer of each year they would put on special policemen to collect road tax.

Q. And you were on in '84? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were you on again in '85? A. Yes, sir.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know her when she lived on Cherokee Street?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember what part of Cherokee Street?

Q. And where is the next place that she lived? After Cherokee Street?

A. She moved from Cherokee Street to Seneca Street.

Q. Between what blocks?

A. Between Second and Third on the south side of the street.

Q. What kind of a house was that she lived in there?

A. It was a framehouse.

Q. How many stories?

A. Well, about two or two and a half—something like that; I don't know whether it was complete two story or not but it had an upstairs to it.

Q. Had an upstairs? A. Yes.

Q. Did you know the members of her family? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell who they were.

A. There was Jim, her son, and Sam Nash, and a boy named Walter Banks, and another little boy around there they called him Arch—he stayed there occasionally; a one-eyed boy.

Q. When—were there any other boys around there?

A. Yes, sir, a little boy there sone of a woman—Indian Minnie who used to be there.

Q. What was his name? A. Tommy.

Q. What kind of a boy was her?

Q. Well, he was a boy—wasn't of an Indian color, lighter complected than a real Indian; he had enough Indian for a person observing to know that he was a white boy; he wasn't colored.

Q. What kind of hair did he have?

A. He had black hair.

Q. Straight black hair? A. Yes.

Q. What did you say his name was? A. Tommy.

Q. Did you know who his mother was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who?

A. Well, that is, who was reputed to be his mother——

Mr. German: We object.

The Court: Who was reputed to be?

A. By Minnie Atkins, was his mother.

Mr. German: Wait a minute—the witness knows better.

The Court: He says by Minnie Atkins—did I so understand you?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Alright.

Q. You knew Indian Minnie did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You know what her other name was—her real name was?

A. Well, at first I did not but quite a while after I found out that.

Q. When did you first——

Mr. German: Pardon, me Mr. Hanford; Your Honor, you understand we are objecting to all the statements of Minnie, as we did to the statements made by Nancy?

The Court: Yes, the record may show your objections, overruled, and exceptions.

Q. When did you first know her, Dennis? Or when did you first see her?

A. In along about the winter of '84.

Q. Where did you see her then?

A. Down at Mrs. Letcher's on Cherokee Street.

Q. And did you know her then?

A. No, I didn't know her then.

Q. When did you come to know her?

A. Well, to know her was at Mrs. Letcher's on Seneca Street—to know her.

Q. And when did you get to know her up there?

A. That was along in the spring of '85.

Q. Do you remember when Granny Letcher moved from Cherokee Street to Seneca?

A. She moved there after I was commissioned as a special policeman in '85.

Q. Did you ever see her in a condition that was not normal—I mean as to being in a family way? A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. I seen her there at Granny Letcher's in the month of May, '85.

Q. In the month of May? A. Yes, sir, 1885.

Q. Did you know of her giving birth to any children there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About when was that?

A. You asked me did I know of it?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I knew a child there she said was hers, but when she gave birth to it, I don't know.

Mr. Allen: We object to that, she said.

A. Yes, the mother said.

Mr. German: For the record, Your Honor, may it be noted that we object to every statement which the witness gives——

The Court: Yes, every question which is asked as to what Minnie said with regard to the parentage of this child, or its kinship to her, or in answer—or any answer which the witness makes purporting to state what she said—told him, is noted as objected to by you and the objection overruled and exception noted.

Q. How old was this child when you first saw him, Dennis?

A. Well, it may have been several months old and it may not have been. I don't know just how old it was; quite a child.

Q. A little infant? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it in arms or——

A. I had seen her have it in her arms and have seen her playing with it on the floor, and seen the child up to a chair—pushing it, or attempting to push it around.

Q. How old was the child when you last saw it?

A. The last I saw it, 12 or 13 years old—somewhere along in there. May not have been that old.

Mr. Cobb: I didn't understand the answer.

Q. About 12, or 13, or 14; maybe not have been that old but——

Q. A good big boy? A. Well, quite a chunky boy.

Q. Did you see him almost continuously from that time—from the time he was a child?

A. Well, I would see him around like I would see other boys; no special reason for seeing him continuously. I would see him at times.

Q. I will ask you to state whether you saw him often enough to keep track of him during that time? So you knew it was the same boy?

A. Oh, yes, I think I did. I know I did.

Q. How long did you know Minnie around—to be around there? A. You mean at Mrs. Letcher's place?

Q. Yes, or in Leavenworth.

A. Well, from the time I seen her on Cherokee Street along in '84, until along in '86 or '87 when she left there.

Q. Did you know when she left or——

A. No, I don't know just when she left.

Q. Do you know where she went? A. I do not.

Q. Don't know what became of her? A. No, sir.

Q. Then, you mean that she disappeared? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how old do you think—how old was the child at that time?

A. The child was probably a year and a half or somewhere along there. He may have been older than that.

Q. Now what kind of looking girl was this Indian Minnie? Can you describe her as she was then?

A. She was a girl that I would describe as being about 5 feet; maybe a little over in height, maybe weighing a 120 or 125 pounds and light complected; she had good hair; she didn't dress well, her dressing was not at [] well—she dressed comfortably but not flashily.

Q. Do you remember how she wore her hair?

A. I don't think I can say just exactly how she wore her hair; she had good hair.

Q. Good hair? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What color? A. Black.

Q. Have you seen her since that time, that you knew her in Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where? A. I seen her in Leavenworth.

Q. Have you seen [] here?

A. I have seen her here since I have been here.

Q. Are you able to state positively or not whether that is the same woman that you knew there—that you see here?

A. Yes, sir.

> Mr. Cruce: He says that he has seen her here; ask him whether it is Mrs. Folk.

Q. Do you know what her name is now?

A. I know what she is called—Mrs. Folk.

Q. How does her appearance compare with what it was like then?

A. Well, it doesn't compare; she is stouter. Mrs. Folk is stouter now, heavier, more developed; has more the appearance of a woman than she did at that time.

Q. Dennis, do you know Sadie James? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you known her?

A. I have been knowing Sadie about 33 or 34 years, maybe longer.

Q. Around there in Leavenworth?

A. Not as that name; I didn't know her as Sadie James that long. I have known the woman.

Q. She has had different names at different times?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. But you have known the same woman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember Sadie James coming to your office to see you about this Indian Minnie or Indian Tommy?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know when she came the first time?

A. Well, I don't know the exact date when she first came; it was in the year 1914, sometime that she came to my office; I think it was in the spring of the year.

Q. In the spring of the year?

A. I think it was in the spring of the year.

Q. Did she come by herself or come with somebody?

A. The first time she came she came alone.

Q. She came alone? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what did she come to see you about then?

Q. She came to see me about a woman who lived there in the early '80's by the name of—used to call Indian Minnie —Minnie Atkins.

Q. State as near as you can just what she said to you at that time.

A. Well, she came in and addressed me. She had been to my office numerous times before on some other business matters; she said that she had been over to see Mr. Lacy, and she was looking for an Indian woman, an Indian girl that we—using her language—used to know around here, who stayed at Granny Letcher's, that we called Indian Minnie, and asked me if I knew her—remembered her, and I hesitated a minute or so and said Sadie, I believe I do; since you state that much—since you said that much, I remember who you are talking about, and I said she used to live at Granny Letcher's on Seneca Street; she said that is the woman; and I said she had a kid there; and I said I don't know where she is, she is gone from here long ago, I don't think you could find trace of her around here; and she said she thought she could; and she asked did I know anybody who might know; and I said you see George Craig, Rube Smith, and I named over half a dozen other men; I named Browder and John Glenn, and I said if you can find John Glenn, probably you can find out where she is.

Q. Well, what else occurred there?

A. Well, with that, she said alright, and went away. She may have said other things but I can't just remember. At any rate, she left then.

Q. Well, did she seek anything except information?

A. That is all she ask me for.

Q. When did she next come to see you about the same matter?

A. She came a short time after that; it wasn't many days, in company with a woman I afterwards learned was Bettie Mann.

Q. Was it the same day or the next day?

A. I can't recall whether it was the next day or not; I hardly think it was—I think it was longer than the next day.

Q. She brought Betty Mann?

A. Yes, sir, a light complected woman.

Q. Did she—what did she want that time?

A. She wanted more information and wanted the names of some old colored women and I named her several colored women and among them I named a woman called Mrs. Mathews and Mrs. Carver, and Tommy York; I named Tommy York; they lived up in the north part of town and I said you might find some information up there.

Q. Did you tell her on either of those visits that you didn't know this woman? A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did she tell you she was hunting for this boy and she knew there never was such a boy but that they would make one?

A. No, to use her own language, she said we knew folks, and I knew myself, who used to stay at Granny's. She said we know them, to use her own language.

Q. Did she tell you on either of those visits that she wanted to hire you? A. Oh, no.

Q. Did she tell Bettie Mann in your presence that she wanted to hire you to help her manufacture a Thomas Atkins?

A. No, sir, she did not.

Q. Did you tell her on either of those occasions or at any time that you could get bankers and doctors, and lawyers to swear that hell was an ice box? A. No.

Q. Did you ever use that expression?

A. No, sir, I never said any such stuff as that.

Q. Well, when did you next see them?

A. I think it was the following week; I think, now, it was the following week—early in the next week; at this time when she came, I knew it was on Friday—and on Saturday I remember telling her, she wanted to come the next day, and I said no, tomorrow is Saturday, with motions in court, and I have some matters there and you had better come some other time; that is the reason I am sure it was in the following week—wasn't the next day.

Q. What did she want the next time she came?

A. She came in there—the next time she came there, she came with two white men.

Q. What were their names?

A. I don't know their names; Swift, I think was the name of one of the men.

Q. Was Porter the name of the other? A. Sir?

Q. Was Porter the other?

A. Well, I don't know; I wouldn't say as to that.

Q. Was that George Swift or Jim Swift?

A. Well, I never heard the full name—I don't remember what the full name was.

Q. What did she want that time?

A. Sadie came in there with these two men and she said, after bidding the time of day, and my office girl was sitting at the typewriter, and she said I want to see you, Mr. Jones, and I said very well; I said step into my private office, and opened the door and left the door open; I didn't close the door, and I said, well, what is it; and she had a paper and unfolded it and she said I want you to execute this paper—we want to execute this paper and we want you to put your seal on it, and sign your name as if it was done in Leavenworth; and I said, let me see the paper, and see what it is; she handed me the paper, and I looked it over and it was an instrument transferring some land down here in Oklahoma somewhere and I saw—the heading of it was State of Missouri, Jackson County, ss; and I said, Sadie, you will have to go back to Missouri to get this paper fixed up, I can't do that, and I said whose signature is this—yours? And she said no, that is a woman in Kansas City and I said what the thunder do you want me to do; I wouldn't do that for you or anybody else, and she said well, sign your name, it is alright; and I said I won't do it, and she said you wouldn't ever make a living practicing law in Oklahoma; and said you had better stay right here, and I said that is what I am going to do—stay right here; and I said I can give you the name of a man in Kansas City if it is an upright proposition, I will give you the name of a man in Kansas City, Mr. Calloway; I think he is a notary, and they went on out.

Q. Did she say anything to you at that time about Minnie Atkins and Tommy Atkins?

A. Not a word, I am pretty sure she didn't.

Q. On either of those two visits, did she tell you that she was going up to Kansas City with Bettie Mann to meet a man from Oklahoma? A. Yes, but her and Bettie Mann were at my office together before that.

Q. Before that?

A. They came back to my office again.

Q. Well who was it she told you she was going to meet?

A. A man name of Bartlett, I think she said.

Q. Did she ask you to go with her?

A. She wanted me to go down to Kansas City to meet somebody—a man named Buell or Bartlett, or something; and I told her that I didn't have the time—I didn't bother with it; I didn't bother after they came there with that paper, I rather thought something was wrong and I treated Sadie alright; I never let her know I had any suspicions but I didn't bother with it.

Q. You mentioned the name of Buell; was it Buell or Bartlett?

A. Well, she mentioned both names; some man named Bartlett and some man named Buell.

Q. You didn't go with her? A. No, sir.

Q. When was it she came back the next time after that?

A. I just don't remember when she came.

Q. Well, did she come back after she saw Mr. Bartlett in Kansas City?

A. I don't know whether she did or not, but another time she came with Bettie Mann; they had been up in the north end of town.

Q. Did she ever come to your office and tell you she had met this man and that he had a lot of money and that she wanted you to go ahead and help her manufacture Thomas Atkins? A. No, sir, she never did tell me that.

Q. Are those all the dealing that you had with Sadie James with regard to Minnie Atkins or Thomas Atkins?

A. No, sir.

Q. At that time?

A. No, sir, not in the year '14; I had some other talk with her.

Q. When is the next time after these visits of Sadie James that you heard of this case relating to Thomas Atkins and Minnie Atkins?

A. After I had talked with Sadie James?

A. Yes, after you talked with Sadie James.

A. I got a telegram from Mr. Long at Tulsa, Oklahoma, asking me to come down there.

Q. Well, when did you go to work for the Gypsy Oil Company?

A. I went to work for the Gypsy Oil Company on the 4th day of March, 1914.

Q. Well, did you go to work for them before you got in touch with Mr. Long? A. Oh, yes, oh yes.

Q. Then listen to my question; when was the next time that you heard anything—that anybody came to you in regard to this Indian Minnie matter? After the first visits of Sadie James, didn't Mr. Greenslade come to see you?

A. No, Mr. Greenslade didn't; a man name of Adair, or Odair.

Q. Adair? A. I think that is the name.

Q. That is the next time you heard? When did he come to see you?

A. I think it was about the 3rd or 4th day of August 1914

Q. In the meantime you hadn't had any further conversation with Sadie James? A. No, sir.

Q. Hadn't heard anything about her? A. No, sir.

Q. Who sent Mr. Adair to you?

A. Well, I don't know who sent him to me; I was in town —I think it was the 3rd—I was called to Mr. Bond's law office and Mr. Adair talked with me.

Q. In Mr. Bond's office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he tell you he had been referred to you by Mr. Bond?

Mr. Linebaugh: Objected to as leading.

The Court: Overruled.

A. I won't be sure that he said Mr. Bond, but somebody referred him to me; I think he did say Mr. Bond.

Q. Now, what did he want you to do?

A. Well, Mr. Adair talked with me and said that he heard I knew something about an Indian woman that used to be there in the early times, and about a boy she had there some place in Leavenworth, and asked me if I knew anything about it and I told him what I knew; and I further told him that I had heard of a boy of that name that answered that description living in Washington, D. C.

Q. Well, did you have any business dealing with him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time?

A. No, sir, not at that time, no. The next day.

Q. Well, tell what took place the next day?

A. When I left that evening, he wanted me to accompany him or somebody else representing this oil company to Washington to hunt this boy. I said I have a boy in Washington and we can communicate with him and have him hunt him up; I hardly had time to go. Well, he says, we don't want to send any telegram or letters, if you can go we will pay you for your trouble and make it so you can go all right, so I agreed to go the next day.

Q. Now, you stated that you had heard of a boy by that name being in Washington?

A. A woman by the name of Ray Venerable—I was repairing one of my houses, getting it ready for her to go into.

Q. You heard it from Mrs. Venerable? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She had been away and just come back?

A. She had been in Washington and Maryland.

Q. And you asked her about the boy?

A. I asked her if she knew of a boy in her travels named Tommy Atkins.

Q. What induced you to ask her about the boy?

A. It was fresh in my mind looking for the boy; they said whoever found boy and mother would be paid well for it.

Q. Who said that?

A. Sadie, when she first came to see me she told me that, and somebody else told me.

Q. Did you make a contract with this Adair, who was there representing the Gypsy Oil Company? A. I think so.

Q. Where did you make that contract?

A. At Mr. Bond's office.

Q. Who represented the Gypsy Oil Company?

A. I think Mr. Adair.

Q. I hand you Defendant Minnie Atkins Exhibit B-7, and ask you to state what that is?

A. That is the agreement.

Q. That is the copy of the agreement that you entered into at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is signed by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the bottom line? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And just above Gypsy Oil Company by Mr. Adair?

A. I don't know whether it is Odair or Adair?

Q. That is his signature? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He signed it in your presence? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Hanford: Offer that in evidence.

Mr. Allen: I thought we had already offered that in evidence.

Mr. Hanford: You offered the contract with the Gem Oil Company.

Mr. Allen: We have no objection to it.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Q. This contract provides that you was to receive the sum of ten dollars, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your necessary expenses? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was to continue during the time necessary to locate Tommy Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It also contains a provision, does it not, that C. E. Crawley representing the Gypsy Oil Company was to accompany you? A. Yes, but he didn't.

Q. And also contains the provision that in case the said Thomas Atkins is located and certain arrangements made with him and said first party, and his identity is established by witnesses, the second party, that is you, is to receive the further sum of five hundred dollars? A. That is right.

Mr. German: We object to it. The contract speaks for itself.

The Court: Well, the only objection is just duplicating it in the record. I will have to read the contract.

Mr. Hanford: Then, I may read the contract?

The Court: You may read it into the record.

Mr. Hanford: Well, I will read it.

"Leavenworth, Kansas, August 3rd, 1914. This Agreement made and entered into this 3rd day of August, A. D. 1914, by and between Gypsy Oil Company, party of the first part and Dennis Jones, party of the second part; Whereas, it is the desire of the first party to locate one Thomas Atkins and it is claimed by said second party that he has reasons to believe that he knows the whereabouts of said Atkins.

It is therefore agreed that the said first party shall pay the second party the sum of $10.00 per day and all necessary expenses during the time necessary to locate said Thomas Atkins and that C. E. Crawley, representing said first party is to go with said second party and in case the said Thomas Atkins is located and satisfactory arrangements are made with him and said first party and his identity is established by witnesses the said second party is to receive the further sum of five hundred ($500.00) dollars. The expenses of the witnesses necessary to establish his identity in Court is to he paid by first party but their names and addresses are to be furnished by said second party.

It is further agreed that upon leaving Leavenworth a round trip ticket to the destination will be furnished to the second party by the first party and an advance payment of fifty ($50.00) dollars will be made.

Witness our hands the day and year first above written.

Gypsy Oil Co.,
By C. E. Crawley
Dennis Jones."

Q. What did you do under that contract, Dennis?

A. Well, I went to Washington in the first place with Mr. Greenslade, went to St. Louis.

Mr. German: Pardon me, this signature is by C. E. Crawley, it is not Adair.

Mr. Hanford: I couldn't make it out. I don't know whether it is or not.

Mr. German: The only point is that they are talking about an Odair whereas it is Crawley.

The Witness: Mr. Adair was there.

Q. Did Mr. Adair come there later?
A. I think Mr. Adair was——
Q. What kind of a looking man was he, bald headed, thin? A. I don't think so.
Q. The man that signed this contract?
A. Yes, he was a thin man.
Q. Bald man? A. I think so.
Q. Light complected? A. I think that is right.

Mr. German: I think the witness ought to be permitted to testify.

The Court: Yes, I would very much prefer to have the witness testify.

Q. What did you do under that contract?
A. Well, we went to St. Louis, and from there to Washington, and we searched and went to the places that we were told to go and we found a fellow there, a man——
Q. Well, did you find Thomas Atkins?
A. We found a Thomas Atkins, yes.
Q. Did it turn out to be the right party or not?
A. No, sir.
Q. Did you continue to search after finding this man?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And did you get any further information relating to him? A. Yes, sir.
Q. What information did you get?
A. We found—I have the numbers and places in here—We found a woman there in Washington that said she knew Thomas Atkins, and she went on to describe him. Said he was a boy looked to her to be half white and half Indian; said he strayed into Washington and a family had taken him up.

Mr. German: Your Honor, I don't see the materiality of these movements.

The Court: I don't either.

Q. What did you find out regarding him?
A. The Thomas Atkins the woman told me about left for Baltimore and he had left there and gone to New York and then by going back to Washington we found that he had gone to Chicago, and then Mr. Greenslade went to New York City and I came on home.
Q. And that was the last that you did under the contract?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, were you relieved under the contract by the Gypsy Oil Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, who next came to you?

A. I don't know just how long it was. It was some little time after that.

Q. Who next came to you?

A. I don't know who came to me, but I got a telegram, I think Mr. Long, I wont be sure of that, but at any rate I got a telegram from Tulsa, Oklahoma, to come to Tulsa.

Q. To come to Tulsa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was that telegram signed by?

A. By Mr. Long, I think.

Q. Well, did you go to Tulsa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who did you see there?

A. When I got to Tulsa I met Sadie James at the depot.

Q. This is the telegram? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It says "Will expect you Tuesday morning, September 22nd sure," signed Long? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And dated Tulsa, Oklahoma, September 16, 1914?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the telegram? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To go to Tulsa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say somebody came to you in Leavenworth before you got that telegram?

A. Yes, sir, and I have been trying to think who it was talked to me.

Q. Was it Sadie James?

A. I am sure I can't say whether it was Sadie James or not.

Q. Well, did they talk to you about going to work for the Gem Oil Company?

A. Yes, let's see—I can call that to my mind just who it was talked to me—— No, I can't, I don't know just exactly who it was talked to me.

Q. Well, you went to Tulsa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, before you went to Tulsa on that trip, I will ask you if Sadie James came to you in your office there and told you that she wanted to hire you for the Gem Oil Company, and that she was going to bring Mr. Long up to see you, but that she didn't want you to do any business with him, but to tell him that you wanted to see the head man, that you wanted to see Mr. Page before you made any arrangements?

A. No, I never had any such talk as that with Sadie.

Q. You never had any such transaction?

A. No, no, no.

Q. Now, who did you see when you got to Tulsa?

A. I met Sadie James when I got to the depot and she said she would show me where Mr. Long was.

Q. You went to see him at his office, did you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who else did you see?

A. I saw Mr. Page and Mr. Rice.

Q. And Mr. Rice? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any business dealings with them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do there? Tell what happened after you arrived at Tulsa?

A. We talked about the whereabouts of Thomas Atkins and I told them what I had found out from my eastern trip; and I entered into a contract with Mr. Page. Mr. Rice drew it up, I have a copy of it if you want it.

Q. Now, Dennis, that contract you made with the Gem Oil Company at that time, with Mr. Rice, was to do the same work that you had been doing for the Gypsy Oil Company under the old contract?

A. Yes, sir, practically the same thing.

Q. Was it upon the same terms? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That you were to receive ten dollars a day and expenses?

A. Yes, sir, the expenses wasn't to exceed five dollars a day.

Q. That is stipulated in it? A. I think so.

Q. Now, Dennis, at that time did you know that Sadie James was working for the Gem Oil Company?

A. No, sir, I didn't know it, I didn't know what Sadie was doing; she was around about I couldn't tell what she was doing.

Q. Did she ever tell you she was going to get you hired by the Gem Oil Company? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever ask her to get you hired by the Gem Oil Company? A. No, sir.

Mr. German: Your Honor, we object to his leading the witness so much.

The Court: Well, I suppose that these are all matters about which Sadie has testified and this witness is put on the stand I suppose to interrogate him with regard to those transactions about which she has testified in depositions which I haven't read.

Mr. Allen: If it is for the purpose of impeaching Sadie, he ought to ask the witness the same questions.

The Court: Here is a case where it is the theory of the Government that there is a manufactured case, and a Government witness has testified with regard to certain details that I understand are relied upon as establishing that. I think his examination in view of that is possibly competent.

Q. I will ask you if Sadie James came to your office and told you she had been on a trip to Omaha, or up into Iowa?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Or Nebraska?

A. She didn't name the places, she just said she had been out west.

Q. Did she tell you where?

A. Yes, sir, some of the places.

Q. Where did she tell you?

A. Said she was in Seattle, Washington and in Tacoma, Washington, and some other places, in fact she wrote me three postal cards while she was away.

Q. Did she tell you that she had found Minnie?

A. When she come back she said that she had found the mother of Tommy.

Q. She said she had found the mother?

A. Found the mother of Tommy.

Q. What did she tell you about her?

A. Said she found her up in Seattle, Washington; and she related quite a lengthy story about what she had done and about what others done there after she had found her.

Q. Did she tell you that she had framed her up to claim that she had a son named Tommy Atkins? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't tell you anything about that?

A. No, sir, she told me about her son but that aint what she said to me.

Q. Now, at that time, were you working for anybody?

A. At that time she come back?

Q. Yes? A. When she come back?

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. Who were you working for then?

A. Working for the Gypsy Oil Company.

Q. Did she have any arrangement with you to the effect that she was going to find this boy and then while she worked for Mr. Bartlett, and then you and she were going to switch him over to the Gypsy Oil Company to get more money?

A. No, sir, she never talked to me that kind of talk to me.

Q. Now, Dennis, under that contract you have with the Gem Oil Company, how have you been paid under that contract, ten dollars a day continuously, or ten dollars a day when you worked?

A. Ten dollars a day when there was anything to do, not continuously.

Q. You were just employed at different times?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is the nature of your employment?

A. Well, to attend to things when there was anything to do. During the time they were taking depositions at Leavenworth I was there and taking depositions in Kansas City I was there, and we went out on trips out in the country once or twice out in Jefferson County, and at times they would write me to look up things at Leavenworth and I would do it.

Q. What do you mean by certain things?

A. Well, they would hear about some one, write me about the names of some people that they had information about and ask me to hunt them up and see them.

Q. Did they ask you to look up any records?

A. Oh, yes, Court records and deed records and newspaper records and things of that kind.

Q. Dennis, the first time you talked to Mr. Long about accepting employment from the Gem Oil Company, did you tell him that you could accept?

A. The first time I talked with Mr. Long?

Q. Yes?

A. No, sir, I told him I couldn't because I was working for the Gypsy Oil Company and I had a contract with them.

Q. You were still under the contract with the Gypsy Oil Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, after you were relieved by the Gypsy Oil Company, did you notify Mr. Long?

A. I don't know whether I notified him by letter, maybe I did write him a letter. It may be I wrote him a letter that caused him to send me the telegram, perhaps I did.

Q. Have you a copy of any such letter?

A. I don't think I have a copy of the letter.

Q. Well, have you a copy of the letter of the Gypsy Oil Company releasing you under their contract?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. This is the letter, Defendant Minnie Atkins Exhibit B-8; I desire to offer that in evidence.

The Court: The letter just offered may be admitted.

Mr. Hanford: I will read it.

Q. That is the final letter which you received from the Gypsy Oil Company, which I have just read? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And terminated your employment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I will ask you if it wasn't following the receipt of that letter that you took the matter up with the Gem Oil Company, you entered their employment? A. Yes, sir.

Second Party."

Q. That is the contract and agreement that you made at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Dennis, when you were under contract with the Gypsy Company what were you—who were you trying to find?

A. Thomas Atkins.

Q. You were trying to find Thomas Atkins himself, were you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And under this contract you were to find evidence relating to Thomas Atkins and especially his death?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Cobb: Objected to, the contract speaks for itself.

The Court: Well, that is—go on.

Q. And you set out to get evidence of the death of Thomas Atkins?

The Court: Well, now, let him state what he set out to do.

Q. Well, what did you set out to do?

A. At what time, Mr. Hanford?

Q. At the time you entered into the contract with the Gem Oil Company?

A. Well, I wanted to make the trip where I had information that the boy had died.

Q. Well, then you had had information that the boy had died? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Cobb: Objected to as hearsay.

The Court: Well, it will not be considered as substantive proof in the case; merely relates to his activities under this contract.

Q. And did you relate that information to Mr. Page and Mr. Rice?

A. Yes, sir. I showed them some letters and things I had, and some grounds I had gone over, and what gave me reason to believe that the boy was dead.

Q. I will ask you to state whether or not that information led to the discontinuance of your employment by the Gypsy Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you were working for the Gypsy Oil Company to find Thomas Atkins himself, and when you reported to them that you had information as to his death, they terminated your employment?

Mr. German: We object to that on the grounds that those letters——

The Court: Well, merely relating to what the witness has already testified. Objection sustained.

Q. Now, Dennis, what did you set out to do after you made that contract with the Gem Oil Company, that I just asked you about?

Mr. Cobb: If the Court please, wouldn't the better plan be to ask him what he did?

The Court: I think so.

Mr. Hanford: I want to ask what he set out to do.

The Court: I assume he set out to do what he contracted to do, and get this evidence.

Q. Well, Dennis, what did you do?

A. Well, I sought to get more information and more evidence as to the death of the boy; I took up correspondence with a detective agency in Washington. I have a letter from them, and things of that kind. I wrote a letter to a man in Chicago, asking him to go to certain street numbers there for me and ascertain if possible whether or not a boy by the name of Thomas Atkins had lived at that place, and whether he died there or not. To that letter I never got a reply. To the letter I sent to Washington, to the detective agency, I did get a reply.

Q. Did you investigate amongst people that you knew?

A. Well, with reference to this——

Q. Make enquiries?

A. With reference to the death of this boy?

Q. Yes?

A. No, I didn't; I kept that to myself; I didn't tell anybody except the company I was working for; I didn't tell that to everybody.

Q. Well, did you make enquiry in regard to him and try to find out the facts?

A. Yes, sir; I tried to find out whether it was a live boy or not, after I had that death information. I was so satisfied from the information I had received, that I didn't try to find any live Thomas Atkins.

Q. And you reported whatever you found to the Gem Oil Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And charged them for your expenses and your time?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Hanford: Some correspondence, your Honor, I want to introduce. I haven't it here now. * * Before he leaves the stand I would like to offer it for identification.

The Court: Alright.

Mr. Stuart: I would like to ask him one question, your Honor.

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Jones, I will ask you whether or not at any time you, in conjunction with Sadie James or Charley Page or Frank Long, or any party to the suit, whether you attempted to practice any fraud in this case? A. None whatever.

Q. Did you ever agree to frame-up any Tommy in this case? A. None whatever, at no time.

> Mr. German: We object, your Honor, and move to strike, because it is a statement of a conclusion. The only way to prove that is the prove what the witness did; what was said and done.
>
> Mr. Stuart: I don't think so, your Honor: Those gentlemen have charged that this man helped to fabricate a case. Just exactly like trying a defendant for a crime, and you can ask him what his intention was, and what he d——
>
> The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you ever at any time, in conjunction with Page or Long or Sadie James or any party to this suit, attempted to fabricate a case for this Court or any other Court. A. No, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Dennis, you are one of the attorneys of record in this case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For the defendant Charles Page? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember the occasion of taking testimony before Mr. Penick at Leavenworth, Kansas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Objection was made there to your presence in the room, was it not? A. Not in my presence it wasn't made.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you were then made an attorney of record in this case in order that you could remain in attendance while the witness testified?

A. I can't tell you that, why I was made an attorney of record in this case.

Q. Telegraphic communication was sent here and returned advice that you had been entered as an attorney of record in this case, is that right?

A. I can't tell that; I don't know anything about that, whether it was or not.

Q. You say that you had a lot of papers, letters and memorandum, and other things, showing—containing information about the birth, life, and death of Thomas Atkins?

A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. What papers did you have?

A. I said that I had some letters that I had received, one from a detective agency in Washington, D. C., and the letters I wrote to the man in Chicago I never got a reply to it.

Q. And have you the letter with you that you wrote to Mr. Long before you received the telegram from him?

A. No, I think Mr. Long has that; it is my custom and rule to take a copy; if I did, I haven't it here.

Q. Can you get that for us, Dennis?

A. I expect I can; I will see. I have some other matters at my room, and I think I have a case like this containing letters; I will look it up and see. I think probably I did.

And thereupon Court recesses until 9:30 A. M.

And thereafter, and on May 23rd, 1917, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., Court convened pursuant to adjournment, and further proceedings herein were had as follows:

DENNIS JONES, being recalled, further testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Dennis, were you raised in Leavenworth?

A. Practically.

Q. How old were you when you went to Leavenworth?

A. About 5 or 6 years old.

Q. You have been there continuously since that time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where have you been?

A. I have been out in Washington state, in California, Colorado, and have been in Iowa, Illinois, and oh, quite a number of places.

Q. In 1884 or '85, you say that you saw this Indian woman the first time at the home of Granny Letcher on Cherokee street I believe? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was the first time you saw her?

A. Yes, the first time I saw the woman; yes—that I can remember.

Q. Dennis, you testified as a witness in this case—in the case pending in Creek County in Leavenworth in 1914, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Prior to that time you had been engaged in looking for a living Thomas Atkins by Sadie James, and later by the Gypsy Oil Company, hadn't you? A. No, no.

Q. Well, you had upon your own initiative then, looked for a Tommy Atkins before your employment by the Gypsy Oil Company, hadn't you? A. Put that question again.

The Court: Read the question, Mr. Penick.

A. No.

Q. You had made no inquiries?

A. Yes, I had made some inquiries.

Q. In whose behalf were you attempting to locate this Thomas Atkins at that time? A. In my own behalf.

Q. Then you were, before your employment by the Gypsy, seeking to find a living Thomas Atkins?

A. No, I was just trying to inform myself as to the whereabouts of the living Thomas Atkins that I knew.

Q. What was the object or purpose of that investigation?

A. Well, I heard that if he could be found or located there would probably be a reward paid for him; that was my purpose.

Q. A reward paid for him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had anybody offered a reward for him?

A. I was simply told by Sadie James when she came in there, if you can find him you will be paid for him; we know he lived here and his mother lived here, and we have got to find the boy.

Q. You say when Sadie James and Bettie Mann first came to you in March 1914 that you hesitated a while after they asked you about Indian Minnie, and then said that you did believe that you did remember her?

A. No, I didn't say that; I said when Sadie James came to me the first time; Bettie Mann didn't come then.

Q. Then you remembered this Indian Minnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sadie James and Betty Mann came later to see you, that was the following day, wasn't it?

A. Well, I don't remember, I don't recall whether it was the next day, shortly after that.

Q. Sadie told you at that time Betty was in town?

A. No, sir, she never mentioned anybody's name the first time.

Q. When Betty came with Sadie to your office, they had a conversation with you concerning the location of this party, did they?

A. Well, if you want to put it as a conversation, simply asked me if I had found out any more, if I could tell them any more where they could look to find Tommy Atkins.

Q. You say, I believe, that Mr. Swift and Mr. Porter were in the outer office and the door was open?

A. Not at that time.

Q. They were when Betty was there? A. No, sir.

Q. That was at the second visit that Betty made, was it?

A. I don't recall that Betty Mann was ever in the office with Mr. Swift or anybody else. Sadie James was there with two white men.

Q. I believe you stated on yesterday that you thought you knew Sadie James, or when the question was asked you if you knew her, you said, well, yes, I knew her by some other name?

A. I knew her by Sadie Harris, Sadie Carris, Sadie Johnson, Sadie Lane.

Q. Did you want to convey the idea that you were not very well acquainted with her?

A. I should say not; I have known her for years.

Q. You have known her very intimately for thirty odd years?

A. No, sir, I knew her when she was a child and she left Leavenworth and I didn't see her for twenty or twenty five years.

Q. You say you have had some business with her?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the nature of that business?

A. She came into my office. She had been in Leavenworth living on Second and Cherokee street; I had seen her and spoken to her; asked her about her mother; passed her on the street, and one day she came into my office and told me an old gentleman out at the Soldier's home by the name of Lain wanted some papers down in Odessa, Missouri, he wanted to will her that property and she wanted me to fix it up. And she also said he had some papers of some kind in the bank held by the bankers and they wouldn't turn them over to her nor to him, and she wanted me to go down there and look over the matter and see if I could have them upon an order from him turn them over to me. I told her that I wouldn't go down there because that was one of the intolerable places, Missouri, a black man didn't have any show; I could recommend a lawyer that would probably take the matter up for her, and I did so.

Q. The fact is, isn't it Dennis, that in 1912 or 1913 Sadie came to your office? A. No.

Q. And you suggested to her that she marry an old soldier? A. I should say not.

Q. She didn't know that soldier until you told her?

A. Why, she certainly did, she came to my office and had me prepare papers for the old soldier. I never saw the man before in my life.

Q. Didn't you get him into your office and furnish the money to buy the marriage license? A. No, sir.

Q. You paid for the marriage license? A. I say no.

Q. Dennis, didn't you later get this old man into your office and get a power of attorney for Sadie James? A. No.

Q. By which she was to handle his entire estate?

A. No. I never did get the old man into my office at no time.

The Court: How is that related to this case?

Mr. Allen: Your Honor please, it is the contention of the Government that these two people thoroughly understood each other, and that they were aware of the desire of each other to make money in any way they could.

The Court: Has there been testimony in some of the depositions relating to this transaction?

Mr. Allen: He stated in his direct examination, said that he had other business with Sadie.

The Court: All right.

Q. I hand you Government's Exhibit A-108, and ask you if you remember that paper?

A. Yes, that is a power of attorney I made to Sadie.

Q. In this power of attorney, Sadie was authorized to attend to all business for Charles Lane, and write all letters and sign his name to any and all papers, bank checks, and other instruments of writing, and to sell and convey by deed or otherwise all of his property, wasn't she?

A. He told me to put that in the power; Lane himself.

Q. He was an old decrepit soldier, wasn't he?

A. No, he is there on his feet now.

Q. A member of the Soldiers Home at that time?

A. He was old but not decrepit; he is around town there now.

Q. He was an inmate of the Soldiers Home at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sadie was married to James at that time?

A. I don't know anything about that.

The Court: What was he, a colored man?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You took that acknowledgement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Dennis? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Six days after taking that acknowledgement, didn't you tell Sadie James that she ought to get a good reputable white lawyer, and didn't you send her to Codding and tell her that Codding could do more to get this property away from this old man than you could possibly do?

A. What is the date of that acknowledgment?

Q. The 20th day of November?

A. Well, the 26th day I gave Sadie a letter to Mr. Codding.

Q. On the 26th day of November, 1913?

A. Just wait a moment, I didn't answer your question; I believe you asked me didn't I tell Sadie James she could go and get a white man to do more down there for her than I could?

Q. Yes? A. Yes, I told her that.

Q. The thing that you and Sadie wanted to do was to get this old man's property away from him and divide it, didn't you?

A. Oh, no, I didn't want to do anything more to the old man than to prepare the papers in my office and she paid me for my services.

Q. On November 26th, she went to Codding's office, didn't she? A. I don't know whether she did or not.

Q. Didn't Mr. Codding telephone you and ask you if you knew Sadie?

A. No, not on that date. He didn't telephone me at all about that.

Q. And didn't you then tell him yes, that you knew her?

A. No.

Q. And that you would furnish her a letter to him?

A. No; this is the letter on the 26th.

Q. I am talking about the 26th.

A. Well, this is the letter.

Q. That is the day she went to your office and got the letter to Mr. Codding?

A. Well, Mr. Codding hadn't telephoned me before that.

Q. Well, he did on the 26th, didn't he?

A. No, he didn't telephone me at all.

Q. So, that you wrote this letter to Codding, didn't you—Codding and Codding, lawyers, Leavenworth, Kansas, dated November 26th, 1913, "I have known this woman for many years, dating back to her girlhood days, during which period I have not at any time heard of any wrong act or deed on her part, her maiden name was Sadie Harris, and until her marriage to Charles Lane, her name was Sadie Johnson, and as far as I know she is a worthy woman. Respectfully, Dennis Jones." A. Yes, I said every bit of that.

Q. Dennis, after that letter was written, that power of attorney signed, you and she did [] charge of the property of this old man and divide it, didn't you?

A. I should say not; no, she didn't get a dime's worth of it—nobody got it.

Q. Didn't you try—draw the pension and take it as your commission, that was paid to that old man for a year and a half following the execution of that contract?

A. Nobody didn't draw no soldier's pension; nobody—no sir, I didn't.

Q. And didn't he turn his pension check over to you?

A. You can't do that, no, sir.

Q. And didn't you get that money from the pension for a year and a half after that?

A. No, sir, you can't negotiate a pension check for an old soldier.

Q. He turned the money over to you, though, didn't he?

A. He didn't pay a dime, a cent or a penny. Sadie James paid me ten dollars for my services and that ended it.

Q. After this visit of Sadie and Bettie to your place, to your office in March 1914, was it after or before that that Sadie brought a deed to you? A. After that.

Q. How long after? A. Oh, it was within a week.

Q. Within a week she brought a deed to you and wanted you to put your acknowledgement to that deed without seeing the party and with knowledge that the deed was executed in Kansas?

A. Well, I said a deed; as I said yesterday, my best recollection now is that it was an instrument transferring property. I didn't read the whole business because I couldn't do any good for it.

Q. Well, this instrument transferring property she wanted you to falsely certify? A. She did that.

Q. Had there been anything in your connection with her in this Lane case that caused her to think that she could get you to? A. I don't know what she thought.

Q. And you told her that you couldn't afford to do that?

A. Told her I wouldn't.

Q. It would be a public record and you would get caught—didn't you?

A. No, I didn't; I just told her I wouldn't do it; I didn't say anything about a public record, I just told her I wouldn't do that and didn't do it.

Q. After that you went to work with her looking for a Thomas Atkins?

A. As I said yesterday, I simply treated Sadie right, but I held her with a great degree of suspicion; I didn't do any work with Sadie whatever looking for anybody.

Q. You know that she wanted a false certificate made to that instrument conveying real estate, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You told her to go to a party in Kansas City and gave her the name of the party who would furnish that false certificate, didn't you?

A. No, I told her she would have to get that executed in Kansas City if at all; I wouldn't execute it for her under no circumstances and didn't.

Q. You knew she didn't want an honest acknowledgment taken to it?

A. I knew when she came to me I wouldn't do it myself.

Q. You sent her to a man in Kansas City to do it?

A. I said to who ever she went to in Kansas City if he was a notary in Kansas City, and if he would take the acknowledgment it would be alright so far as he was concerned.

Q. At that time you knew, Dennis, whether you were connected with it or not, that she had pulled off this deal with this old soldier there, didn't you?

A. She never pulled off any deal with any old soldier.

Q. You knew at that time that she had married this old soldier when she was married to some one else?

A. That was her own choice; I didn't know she was married until she came to my office.

Q. But you knew it at the time she came to make that false acknowledgment? A. I knew she said so.

Q. The soldier had started a divorce? A. No, sir.

Q. You defended it, didn't you?

A. I should say not.

Q. Who did defend it? A. I don't know.

Q. That was settled for fifty dollars alimony?

A. I don't know about that.

Q. Didn't you get a part of that fifty dollars alimony?

A. I should say not. I had nothing to do with it one way or another.

Q. Well, after the bringing of this suit, you and Sadie continued to negotiate for a living Thomas, didn't you?

A. Now, what suit are you talking about? You were talking about a divorce case.

Q. Divorce case?

A. No, I didn't operate with Sadie at all.

Q. About how many times did Sadie come to your office there in Leavenworth in March and April, 1914, Dennis?

A. I just recall she was there several times.

Q. She was there almost every day, wasn't she? A. No.

Q. She would be there and be out looking for a grave or a picture of some Tommy and come back?

A. No, I don't know what she was looking for, but no such operation as that.

Q. You yourself were looking all over the country for a Thomas Atkins?

A. At one time when I was working for the Gypsy Oil Company.

Q. You and Sadie had agreed if you could find somebody that would answer that description you could make some money?

A. I should say not. Sadie and I never entered into any agreement. After Sadie came into my office with that particular business I simply used her nice, but I treated her with a high degree of suspicion and didn't have anything to do with her.

Q. Dennis, didn't you testify in November, 1914, that the first time you saw this Minnie Atkins was when she came to your church with a negro man?

A. No, I never testified I don't think in November, 1914.

Q. You testified on the 13th of October, 1914?

A. Yes, sir, it was October.

Q. You testified that the first time you ever saw her to know her was not at Granny Letcher's on Cherokee but was at your church? A. No.

Q. And that she came there with a negro man and that it created a commotion in the church?

A. No, I didn't testify to that.

Q. What did you testify? A. Well, get the record.

Q. You tell me?

A. I said the first time I seen Indian Minnie was at Granny Letcher's on Cherokee Street, that is, I said I saw her in the years '84 and '85, and the first time I seen her was at Granny Letcher's.

Q. Yesterday was the first time you ever claimed to have seen her on Cherokee Street in any testimony, isn't it?

A. That is the first time the question was ever asked me.

Q. You found out since you testified in 1914, Dennis, that she couldn't have been living on Seneca Street when she was in a family way?

A. No, I didn't find that out. I just testified what I knew.

Q. But you were asked all about your knowledge of this woman and when you first knew her? A. Yes, sir, I told it.

Q. And you didn't tell you saw her on Cherokee Street?

A. They asked when I knew her and I said eighty-four and eighty-five.

Q. Wasn't the following questions asked you and answers returned, your deposition at Leavenworth October 13, 1914: "Q. You lived four blocks from this Letcher home? A. Just about four. Q. You lived at the same place thirty five years? A. Have lived in one house. Q. The place the Letcher woman ran was a house of ill repute? A. Kind of a tough joint." Is that right?

A. Yes, sir, but I don't think that is the next question following that one

Q. Then, the next question and answer: "Q. How is that? A. How is that? Q. A kind of a tough resort, a place where men and women resorted for immoral purposes." Did you answer that question that way? A. Read it again.

Q. "How is that? A. A kind of tough resort?"

A. Yes, sir.

Q. "A place where men and women resorted for immoral purposes? A. Yes, sir. Q. Yes, a place where men and women resorted for immoral purposes. Do you know how many women stayed at that house? A. Besides Mrs. Letcher and Minnie? Q. Yes? A. No, there was always two or three women there, two or three, sometimes more than that, then again maybe you would not see them. Some one around there all the time. Q. Did Minnie stay there all the time? A. Most of the time she was there when she was pregnant and after the birth of the child, and stayed around there when the child toddled around and crawled pulling two cairs." A. Pulling to chairs, not t-w-o chairs, pulling up to chairs.

Q. You have read this testimony?

A. Before I signed it.

Q. Read it lately?

A. No, sir, I read it in Mr. Thorp's office.

Q. You remember the typographical errors in your testimony? A. I remember reading that much.

Q. And the word t-w-o you recollect?

A. I certainly did.

Q. Was intended to be to "t-o" instead of "t-w-o"?

A. Pulling up to chairs like a child will.

Q. You have made a very thorough and careful study of your testimony?

A. No, I remember what I said. That is, I think I do. As we go along I will find out.

Q. "You did not see her? A. The first time I ever saw Minnie in my life was at Granny Letcher's?" A. That is so.

Q. "The first time you ever saw Minnie she was at Granny Letcher's? A. Yes. Q. You think that was in 1884? A. About that time. Q. And at that time she was pregnant? A. No, well, that time I guess she must have been the first time I ever seen her, but it developed and developed until it became noticeable. Q. But the first time you saw her she must have been pregnant judging from what took place? A. Yes, sir. Q. The child was born at the Letcher woman's and you were not present then? A. No, I know nothing about that." Were not the following questions asked you and answers returned: "When did you find out her name was Atkins? A. I will tell you about that: She came to the colored church on Sixth and Pottawatomie Streets with a colored man and the other darkies wanted to know why he would bring a white to a black church, so I among others begun to inquire about her name and whether that was her husband or not." That is the first time you ever saw her to know what her name was? A. I didn't know then.

The Court: Well, now, let me get an answer. Was that your testimony with regard to this church incident at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You testified that at all this time you saw her there at the home of Granny Letcher that you lived four blocks from her? A. Within four blocks.

Q. It is seven blocks from your home to Cherokee, isn't it? A. No, I was speaking——

Q. Answer the question?

A. I am speaking of the time she lived on Seneca Street.

Q. Didn't you testify as I read a while ago, that you first knew her at Granny Letcher's and that all of that time that she was living at Granny Letcher's that she was within four blocks of your house. Now, Dennis, how far is it from your house to Cherokee?

A. From my house to Osage is one, Miami two, Cherokee five, and East Fourth, east of Third would be six, about six and a half blocks on Cherokee Street.

Q. It is seven blocks?

A. About six and a half blocks.

Q. It is four blocks to Seneca, isn't it?

A. Counting Miami; Osage is the fourth—counting Miami, Fourth to Osage is one block; Miami to Seneca three blocks, Shawnee to Delaware four blocks; Delaware to Cherokee five blocks, and from Fourth street to Third is six blocks and about half way of the block is where Granny lived.

Q. Four blocks from your house to Seneca where Granny lived?

A. Yes, about that to where Granny lived; about four and a half. I was speaking when I testified to where Granny lived on Seneca.

Q. You didn't know in 1914 about Minnie telling you that she was the mother of this boy, did you?

A. That question wasn't asked me.

Q. You have been sitting here in the courtroom, you found out you had to swear to that in order to answer to it, didn't you?

A. I did not; no, sir, I never took that into consideration at all.

Q. Weren't the following questions asked you and the following answers returned when you gave your deposition in 1914; "Q. Why did you then say that the boy's name was Thomas Atkins that was born at Mrs. Letcher's? A. They all called him Tommy Atkins; I don't know whether that was her husband or not; I began to ask about her and what her name was, and that is when I found out her name was Atkins. Q. About how old was this Tommy when you first saw him? A. He was a baby. Q. Well, about how old? A. Maybe two or three months, maybe four months, maybe six months. Q. That you are not able to state now within a period of six months as to when he was born? A. Well, I said for two or three months maybe longer; within two to six months when I first knew about him, that has been a long time ago." Those were your answers, weren't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Weren't the following questions asked you and answers returned: "Q. When did you find out her name was Atkins? A. I will tell you about that. She went to the colored church on Sixth and Pottawatomie street with a colored man—

The Court: Isn't a repetition?

Mr. Stuart: Yes.

The Court: Let's not go over that again, Judge.

Q. Dennis, did you know about a petition to remove Lillie White there—Government's exhibit 59?

A. I have some recollection of that; I was in the police service at that time.

Q. Is that petition—I hand you Government's exhibit 59, is that the petition?

A. Well, I never seen this paper to my own knowledge until I seen it before the Examiner—when it was brought in there before the Examiner up at Leavenworth.

Q. But you have heard about that petition, haven't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Lillie White had moved out of there before that petition was circulated?

A. Yes, sir, I can tell you about it if you want me to.

Q. No, that is all. She couldn't have of been living there—

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, he wanted to——

The Court: Yes, but he has answered the question, as to whether she moved out of there before that petition and he says yes; if you desire to ask him on re-direct, you may ask.

Q. That petition was circulated signed and filed and an order made on it sometime after?

A. Well, I don't know; I suppose it must have been——

Q. Answer yes or no, if you can.

A. Well, I don't know that it was or not; I never seen it until it was presented to the Examiner there in Leavenworth.

Q. You testified in 1914, did you not, at which time you made the following answers to the following questions: "How do you know Tommy was Minnie's child? A. By seeing her nourishing and cherishing and nursing it around after she had been in a family way to my knowledge; the child was born there and she took care of this child, and naturally I thought it was her child."

A. Yes, I said that.

Q. "You didn't talk with her? A. Just how do you do, and good morning, and where is Jim, and where is Sam."

A. Well, that is along the line of talk.

Q. You didn't say that you asked Minnie if that was her child or if she told you so, did you?

A. The question wasn't asked me; if it had been I would have answered it yes.

Q. Well, they did ask you how you knew it was her child when you were first asked about it?

A. Well, I didn't say that I asked her——

Q. You didn't think it was necessary to make that answer did you?

A. Well, I didn't have that in mind at the time; the competence or necessity of it. I just knew the facts as I stated in there.

Q. How long before this child was born was it that you saw Minnie or this woman that you saw there at the negro church in Leavenworth with a negro man? A. How long before?

Q. Yes?

A. I never seen her there before the birth of the child at the church with a negro man; I saw her there after that.

Q. Oh, you didn't know her name then?

A. No, only her name was Indian Minnie.

Q. You didn't know her name then, not until after you quit seeing her with the child, did you?

A. Yes, I knew her.

Q. Then you were surprised?

A. Well, let me answer the question. I knew her as Indian Minnie. I didn't know her as Minnie Atkins until after I had found out what her name was.

Q. Then you were surprised and a great commotion occurred when you saw at your church the same woman that you had seen on Cherokee street at Granny Letcher's in a family way, that you had known had given birth to a child; that you knew was living with Granny Letcher, is that what you want the Court to understand now?

A. I will tell you what I want the Court to understand is this: at church I didn't see the woman's face, I seen her sitting in the audience with a colored man—I was sitting near the door and she was down among the people. I don't think I remained until they got out but the people were talking about her and I wanted to find out who it was and I did find out and I found out since then who the man was with her.

Q. If you had seen her face there wouldn't have been any commotion at the church would there?

A. My not seeing her face didn't cause the commotion, I didn't know who it was——

Q. I believe you testified that Walter Banks and Tommy Atkins were about the same age?

A. I want to answer the question that you asked me a few minutes ago.

Q. Well, answer this now. A. Did I say that?

Q. Did you say it?

A. I might have said Walter was a little older; I don't recollect now.

Q. Your recollection now is that he was considerably older, isn't it?

A. Well, I don't know how old Walter Banks is. He asked me one question there that I would like to answer——

The Court: You may answer.

A. He asked me about how long after it was I was on the police force that I saw Minnie Atkins—about how long after she gave birth to the child. I don't know when she gave birth to the child but I know how long I seen her before she did give birth to the child; that was about the 17th or 18th day of May, 1885. I was appointed as a policeman on the 13th of May, '85, and went to work, and that ward was part of my territory and I was serving road tax notices and went to the home of Jim Mayo and served two notices—three notices.

Q. Did your appointment of special policeman have anything to do with the birth of this child? A. I didn't say it did.

Q. Wasn't associated with it?

A. Certainly did not, no, sir; but I wanted to answer your question, you asked me when was the last time and I wanted to answer it.

Q. You have found out it was a contention here that this child was born the first two weeks in June?

A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. Don't know that now? A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. You didn't hear Mrs. Edwards testify, did you?

A. No, sir, I didn't; you know I didn't because you wouldn't let me in the courtroom; didn't hear any of the testimony there at all.

Q. Wouldn't let you in the courtroom?

A. Before the Examiner, not until later.

Q. You did finally get in, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why did they let you in——

The Court: Let's not go into that; I have heard about that.

Q. Examine this petition, please, Dennis; Government's Exhibit 59; the Lillie White petition. Do you know any of those names? A. I know most all of them.

Q. They lived in the vicinity there, didn't they?

A. Yes, sir, some of them lived in the immediate vicinity and some did not.

Q. They signed that petition, and circulated it, and presented it to the City Council after Lillie White moved off of Seneca street? A. They did that; they did that.

Q. They were all adults, were they?

A. Those people signed it, yes, sir.

Q. They are all dead now, aren't they?

A. I don't know that.

Q. They were of sound mind of that time?

The Court: That will be assumed until the contrary appears.

Q. And at the time the city council made the order for her to be put out, she had long prior thereto moved out?

A. Quite a while before that she had moved out; she moved out in April.

Q. Dennis, when Sadie and Bettie went to your office the first time you told both of them that you knew Granny Letcher but didn't know any Indian Minnie, didn't you?

A. No, no, I never did tell them that.

Q. You told them that you did know an Indian Mary, didn't you?

A. No, sir, I didn't. Yes, sir, I knew Indian Mary, I may have told them that I knew Indian Mary and Minnie, too.

Q. Told them you would first have to find but whether Indian Mary had any children or not? A. No, I never.

Q. That maybe you could fix it on one of her children, didn't you? A. No, I never talked about that.

Q. You did tell them about Indian Mary, didn't you?

A. No, I told them I knew Indian Mary; she had been dead about 45 years ago at that time.

Q. Dennis, you took the directory there at the Public Library at Leavenworth, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. City directories, of the City of Leavenworth, showing that Granny Letcher lived on Seneca street in '85?

A. No, sir, I never took a directory out of the City Library in my life.

Q. What became of those?

A. I don't know; I never took them out of there.

Q. Didn't you tell Sadie James and Bettie Mann that you took them out?

A. No, sir, if you take a book out of there, you have it in the record there; I never took a book out of there at any time.

Q. On the second trip—well, after the first trip that Sadie James and Bettie Mann made to your office, did you telephone Bettie to come up to your office?

A. No, Sadie telephoned to Bettie from my office one time to some hotel in Kansas City.

Q. And she came up?

A. No, she didn't. If she did, she didn't come that day. Bettie Mann was never in my office but twice in her life.

Q. Well, the second time she was there, did you make this statement there in the presence of Bettie Mann and probably Sadie James that you wanted Bettie and Sadie to see Henry Byrd, a negro man living in Leavenworth and have him agree to be the father of Tommy? A. No, sir.

Q. Rube Smith wanted to be this child's father, didn't he?

A. I don't know what Rube wanted to do.

Q. You told Bettie and Sadie that wouldn't do, didn't you? A. I never told Bettie and Sadie any such thing.

Q. You told them that Rube would talk too much, didn't you?

A. No, sir, I never told them that Rube would talk too much; Rube is a good citizen, a good man.

Q. Yes, he has been working with you, working with you on this case, hasn't he? A. Some little bit, yes.

Q. He has been drawing five dollars a day, and you ten?

A. I don't know anything about what he is drawing.

Q. Haven't you heard him say? A. Never heard him say.

Q. You never heard Mr. Page or Mr. Long say?

A. No, sir, I have not.

Q. You have no idea?

A. I do not; that was his business.

Q. You haven't heard him say? A. No.

Q. Rube got a boy living in New York, named Lucien? Hasn't he? A. I don't know where his boy is.

Q. You know Lucien, don't you? A. Lucien, yes.

Q. Rube wanted in that conversation that you and he and Sadie had up there in your office during March and April, when you were looking for a living Tommy——

A. Me, and Rube and Sadie never had a talk or conversation together in [] lives.

Q. Well, did you tell Sadie that Rube wanted to have Lucien for this Tommy—— A. No, sir.

Q. But that everybody in Leavenworth would know who Lucien's mother was?

A. No, sir, no, sir, Mr. Allen; no, sir. Never had any such talk with Sadie or anybody else in my life.

Q. You told the Gypsy Oil Company that you could certainly find this Tommy, didn't you?

A. I thought I could when I told them that, and I done the best I could to find him.

Q. And you didn't go to work for the Gem Oil Company until you had become convinced of the death of Tommy?

A. Well, I thought he was dead, yes.

Q. Well, you felt reasonably certain that he was dead?

A. Well, I was relying upon the information I had received and I didn't get the chance to run it out like I would like to have done.

Q. You were a practicing lawyer in Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you, after having been working for some considerable time looking for a living Thomas, you quit the Gypsy and immediately accepted employment by the Gem Oil Company, that was at that time an adversary in the proceedings involving this, is that right?

A. Well, when the Gypsy folks hadn't anything further for me to do I felt at liberty to take up employment with the Gem Oil Company.

Q. For the Gypsy you were looking for a living Thomas and for the Gem a dead Thomas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The Gypsy didn't tell you that they were through with you, did they? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: I apprehend that all that was said in that regard is in the letter which is before me. I understand from the testimony yesterday a letter was introduced here which was considered by this witness as terminating his employment?

Mr. Allen: Simply leading up to something else, Your Honor.

The Court: Well, all right, get to it. I don't want to prolong this examination longer than necessary.

Mr. Allen: Your Honor, this is a peculiar circumstance.

The Court: Go on, go on. I am willing to give you lots of latitude, but just don't repeat.

Q. You received a letter from the Gypsy people in which they said that they didn't want to pursue the investigation until you could find out something definite? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About Thomas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had just taken Mr. Greenslade on a journey to Washington and New York and other places?

A. Mr. Greenslade took me.

Q. Well, he was following you wasn't he?

A. No, sir, we were together.

Q. But you were telling him where to find Thomas?

A. I was following up the places that had been given to me in Leavenworth.

Q. Mr. Greenslade was just simply going along with you to see that you got the right Thomas?

A. Well, he was paying the bills, I thought I was going with him.

Q. You told him your step-son, when he lived in Leavenworth, played with Tommy?

A. Yes, sir, told him I could correspond with my boy, I didn't want to go——

Q. You met your boy in Washington?

A. I wanted to telegraph my boy——

Q. Just answer the questions. You met the boy in Washington? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He told you that he had seen the boy about two months before that he played with in Leavenworth?

A. No, I don't think he said that.

Q. What did he say about it?

A. When he went to where my boy was working I asked him, I says, Robert, have you seen Tommy around here? and he says what Tommy? Why, Tommy Atkins. He says, yes I have seen him but I think he is in New York. I asked him if he knew where and he gave me the name of a man named Ed Jonson up on Third Street somewhere in New York.

Q. So, that the Thomas that your boy played with in Leavenworth your boy told you he had recently seen in New York? A. No, he didn't.

Q. And told you about where you could find him?

A. No, he did not.

Q. Told you he had seen him?

A. Yes, said that Thomas is in New York——

Mr. Cruce: If the court please, if they are introducing that statement to show that the boy is now alive in New York we object to it because it is hearsay testimony.

The Court: I am only considering it in connection with this witness' activities; in determining whether or not the contention upon the part of the Government that they were not in good faith.

Q. Then you took him to find several other living Thomases didn't you?

A. We went to the place that Mrs. Venerable told us to go. I have the numbers in my book here, went there, the barber shop, and he told us that Thomas was around there an hour or two before we got there. And he told us where he thought we could find him. So, we started out and did find him. His mother was also an Indian woman but she lived in Virginia. And I says you are not the man I am looking for. I says to Mr. Greenslade, this is not Tommy.

Q. Did you find out that his mother lived in Virginia?

A. He told us, said his mother was an Indian.

Q. So, he wouldn't do?

A. He wasn't the one, I knew he wasn't.

Q. Then, you went to Chicago, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. You wrote to Chicago?

A. Yes, I wrote after I got back to Leavenworth.

Q. You went to Vera Cruz? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you go somewhere in Mexico?

A. No, sir, I never went south I went east.

Q. Yuma? A. No, sir.

Q. When were you employed by the Gem?

A. Along about in September 16, 1914, I think.

Q. The last letter you wrote the Gypsy people was in August, 1914, wasn't it?

A. I don't know just when was the last one. I wrote them a letter—— I don't know the date of the letter.

Q. On August 22nd, you wrote them this letter, didn't you: "C. E. Crawley, Tulsa, Oklahoma. Dear Sir: The other people were here today and had an interview with Ruben J. Smith, the supposed uncle of the missing Thomas Atkins."

A. Yes, go ahead.

Q. "And tried to get him as I understand to say that he knew of the death of the boy some several years ago, but he (Ruben J. Smith), has repeatedly told me that he knew of the boy being a live person and that he knew this to be a fact. I have not seen him since his interview with the other people and cannot tell you just what he said to them but will find out when I meet him. I saw the woman Sadie James as she is known there, she was here yesterday and called at my office and told me she had come to the conclusion that the boy Thomas Atkins was dead and seemed to be interested in the other people but I told her that I knew better, that the boy was still living and that I would produce him in a very short time, she left me and said she would call again but she did not and I have not seen her since. What is the name of the other firm that is on the still hunt for the boy, for if I knew I could look the hotel register over and tell you who eas here. Mr. Bond told me that he had sent in my expense account which I trust you'll approve and allow. Very truly, (Signed) Dennis Jones."

A. That is all right. That is the letter.

The Court: Who was that written to?

Mr. Allen: To the Gypsy Oil Company, to Mr. Crawley.

Q. So, on the 22nd of August, after you had returned from your trip north—— A. I never went north.

Q. To Washington and New York? A. East.

Q. You wrote a letter to the Gypsy which I have just read? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And on the 26th you got another letter from them telling you that they didn't want to send you out again until you got definite information? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the letter you say terminated your employment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, you thought they didn't want your services if they wanted definite information about this boy?

A. I never thought about it. I just thought they didn't want me any more.

Q. And that was the end of your services for the Gypsy people was it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, on the 22nd day of September of the next month, when you said in your contract with the Gem people, that you had definite information as to the death of Thomas Atkins, you were not telling them the truth were you?

A. Yes, the information I had was definite as far as I knew.

Q. Then, between August 22nd and September 23rd you obtained definite information as to the death of Thomas Atkins, didn't you?

A. No, I never did obtain definite information.

Q. You obtained some information?

A. I relied upon what information I received.

Q. Tell us what information that was that you received between those dates?

A. I think I have the letter here. I have the letter here that I received from the Detective Agency.

The Court: You say I have a letter here that I received from——

A. From William D. Allen, Jr., in Washington.

Mr. Stuart: What date?

A. September 29th, 1914. I have my letter I wrote him and then I have his answer.

Q. Will you let me see the letter from the Detective Agency? Will you please read this letter?

A. I would rather read mine first.

Q. Well, your letter didn't give you information, I am asking you what information you received, so just read the letter you received.

The Court: Read the letter you received, and then if it is necessary put in yours.

A. "Washington, D. C., September 29th, 1914. Mr. Dennis Jones, Leavenworth, Kansas. Dear Sir: Yours of the 27th instant was duly received this A. M. and contents noted. In reply thereto we will say that we furnished Mr. Greenslade with the names of the people in Chicago, who probably could give the history of the Thomas Atkins, which was furnished by the woman you referred to in your letter. The address in Chicago is Samuel Ambler, Keystone Hotel, Chicago, Ill. I, also, forwarded a letter to Mr. Duvall, which I received from the Pullman Company, stating that they never had a man in their employ by the name of Thomas Atkins. I was just talking to Mr. Viett, the chief terminal detective of this city, and he informed me that they had been unable to locate anybody working for the roads answering the description of Thomas Atkins.

If I should ever have any business at the Leavenworth penitentiary, or if my friends should, I will remember you.

Trusting that this will meet with your favor, I am

Very respectfully,

(Signed) Wm. D. Allen, Jr."

Mr. Cruce: If the court please, it seems to me that the letter that he wrote, that he illicited this answer from the detectives, ought to be read in this connection.

The Court: I will hear it.

A. "Leavenworth, Kansas, September 27th, 1914. Thomas D. Allen, Washington, D. C. Dear Sir: You will remember me as the man who was in Washington, D. C., some weeks in re matter of Thomas Atkins, the much wanted Indian boy, or in other words, the mixed breed of Indian descent. What I want at this time is to know the parties in Chicago who gave some information as to the death of Thomas Atkins, because

I am going there in a few days and look into the matter. Mr. Greenslade wrote me that you got from the Carbi woman and Bud Miner the information that Thomas Atkins died in Chicago, so if I cane get the names of those who know of the death of Thomas Atkins in Chicago, I will make an investigation. Will you give you please give the names of the Chicago people given you by the Carbi woman and Bud Miner, and oblige. P. S. I will be glad to look up any matter at the U. S. penitentiary here that will be of any interest to you and your lawyer friend. Call on me at any time that you desire and I am willing to serve you. D. J."

Q. Dennis, when did you write that carbon?

A. When did I do what?

Q. Write that carbon—that letter?

A. It has its date there.

Q. That was written on September 27th, wasn't it, 1914?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Four days after you were employed by Page to establish the death of Thomas, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the reply that you read a while ago from that company that you said gave you the information of his death was written on September 29th, six days after your employment by Page, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then where did you get the information that you said you had when you made that contract with Page?

A. From Mr. Greenslade.

Q. Mr. Greenslade told you that Thomas Atkins was dead?

A. He got the information; I was sick a day there in New York and Mr. Greenslade dug around—in Washington—and Mr. Greenslade made the rounds himself and he got the information and told me and then when we went to New York, we parted and I came home and Mr. Greenslade told me what he found out from the detective agency in Washington, and I couldn't remember the name of the people and I wrote to Mr. Allen there, to give me the name of the people who gave him the information.

Q. So, Mr. Greenslade is the man who gave you the information that Thomas Atkins is dead?

A. That picked it up there in Washington; it was told him by Detective Allen, who operated there with us several days.

Q. Dennis, we can shorten this if you will just tell us who gave you the information about the death of Thomas. Mr. Greenslade is one, who else?

A. This detective agency there.

Q. This detective agency is another one?

A. That is enough.

Q. You received that after you went to work for Page; who was the other one? A. Mr. Greenslade.

Q. Those two are the only ones?

A. That is enough; I didn't——

Q. Mr. Greenslade told you that in Washington?

A. After we made the rounds in Washington; he told me that in New York.

Q. But before you returned from that trip? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you get back from that trip?

A. We were gone about fourteen days from the 4th of March.

Q. From the 4th of March?

A. About 14 days; maybe more; about that.

Q. You were back in Leavenworth, Kansas, on August 17th, were you not?

A. Well, I stayed about fourteen days now; there were 14 days some time in the there from the time I left Leavenworth and got back.

Q. After you returned to Leavenworth, and on August 17th, three days—five days prior to the letter I read a while ago that you wrote the Gypsy people, you wrote this letter to Mr. Crawley, of the Gypsy Oil Company, did you not? "Dear Sir: I have been [] the trial of .... since I left Mr. Greenslade, and feel like the condition of our contract will soon have to be carried out——" A. Yes.

Q. "When away from here a few days ago. I heard that the .... had died in Chicago some years ago, but upon investigation I found that to be untrue." A. Yes.

Q. "I talked with a man who knew the object of my search to be living; that is he was sometime ago." A. Yes.

Q. "I have this day handed to Honorable Lee Bond a statement of my expense account and so forth." A. Yes.

Q. "Mr. Crawley, I feel a great degree of confidence in the matter and if I am retained to further my investigation and search for the missing link, I will be successful. I shall meet the Masonic Grand Lodge in Pittsburg on the 25th of this month and will there see and meet several hundred people and among them I may locate the link. Let me know as early as is convenient for you to do so. Very truly, Dennis Jones." So, Dennis, the information you got from Greenslade was found by you to be untrue before you made the contract with Page, wasn't it?

A. Well, I had heard so many different reports and things about it, I had come to the conclusion that——

Q. That is what I am trying to get at—who else did you hear the report from?

The Court: Let him complete the answer.

A. The information I had got about the boy's death I had heard different stories later on; that there was a Tommy Atkins who lived up in Nebraska, somewheres; that is what prompted me to write that letter to Mr. Greenslade; that the information that I had from Chicago proved as I understood to be untrue, and I asked him if he wanted me to make further search and he wrote me the letter that I could not.

Q. You were not disturbed because Roberts' Tommy didn't develop? A. Roberts never had one.

Q. I mean the boy that he played with, that he saw sometime before you went up there, or because this boy Tommy that you saw in the barber shop developed to be the son of a living woman in Virginia, or because you had heard that some other Tommys had died in Chicago, and you were willing to go ahead and carry out the contract with the Gypsy?

A. Certainly.

Q. And told them that you would soon make them fulfill that contract by paying you the money because——

A. No, I never said that; never asked them to pay.

The Court: Oh, well, the letter speaks for itself. Now, come to the point.

Q. Because you had found there was another Tommy living in Nebraska, is that right?

A. I never found it, I heard it.

Q. Did you go up there to see about it?

A. No, sir, I didn't.

Q. Now, what information did you have further than you have given us of the death of Thomas when you made the contract with Page?

A. Well, I don't know that I had any; I think I gave them all I had.

Q. You said in that contract that you agreed in the contract to produce evidence of the death of Thomas, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you said in your testimony yesterday that that was what you were employed to do? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Dennis, just within a month, to be exact on the 13th of October, after this contract was made on the 23rd of September, you produced 19 witnesses, who testified in Leavenworth, didn't you?

A. I never produced a witness, not one.

Q. Well, a great many you talked to?

A. No, sir, I never talked to but two witnesses before they testified at Leavenworth.

Q. Well, what were you doing between those dates?

A. Well, I was attending that deposition court there.

Q. Well, what were you doing the date your contract was entered into and the date the depositions were taken?

A. Practicing law in Leavenworth.

Q. Weren't you trying to fulfill the agreement you made with Page?

A. They wouldn't let me make this eastern trip; I wanted to and talked to Mr. Long two or three times about it and they thought different.

Q. They didn't want you to find a living Tommy, did they?

A. I don't know what they wanted; they wouldn't send me east again.

Q. They told you that they had found the mother and wanted evidence of his death, didn't they?

A. No, sir, they didn't.

Q. You drew your per diem from that time, didn't you?

A. When I worked.

Q. You drew your per diem from the time that contract was entered into until the depositions were taken in Leavenworth, didn't you?

A. No, sir, no, sir. Lots of days there was nothing to do, and whatever they owed me they paid me.

Q. Page paid you a hundred and fifty dollars in advance the day you signed the contract?

A. He gave me $37.50 the day we made the contract.

Q. And Long went to Leavenworth with you?

A. Gave me $37.50.

Q. The—— and a hundred and fifty dollar salary, didn't he? A. No, sir.

Q. 37.50 expenses, wasn't it? A. Expenses.

Q. And he gave you a hundred and fifty dollars on salary?

Q. You asked me a question a while ago that I would like to answer.

Q. Well, answer the question.

> The Court: He answered as to that. You said he gave you a hundred and fifty dollars on salary and he said, no, sir. Now, that is answered.

Q. You went to Leavenworth with Mr. Long, didn't you?

A. From Tulsa?

Q. Yes.

A. I think I returned by myself—went home alone.

Q. Mr. Long went up there either the next day, didn't he?

A. I don't remember just when Mr. Long got there.

Q. He stayed there most of the time until the depositions were taken, didn't he? A. No, sir.

Q. Who got up the depositions, then?

A. I can't tell you that; I didn't.

The Court: Judge, doesn't the contract recite there that fifteen days were paid in advance?

A. Fifteen days' time within which to carry out this contract.

Mr. Allen: Yes, sir.

The Court: Just read that portion of it.

Mr. Allen: "And it being in the contemplation of the parties that at least fifteen days of time of the second party will be consumed in said work, it is agreed at the conclusion hereof that second party shall be entitled to fifteen days' pay, and an advance of $37.50 to cover expenses, and to be prorated on the actual amount expended by second party."

The Court: Now, you say you didn't get that fifteen days' pay at that time?

A. No, sir, no, sir; $37.50 was all.

Q. You were to work in Leavenworth on this case, weren't you? A. I was to carry out that contract there.

Q. By getting up this proof in Leavenworth?

A. No, sir, I never got up the proof in Leavenworth.

Q. Well, they wouldn't let you go outside, would they?

A. Well, they didn't send me east as I wanted to go.

Q. Well, what was this five dollars a day expenses to be used for Dennis?

A. They never advanced me any five dollars a day expenses.

Q. Wasn't it understood between you that that was to be used in getting witnesses?

A. No, sir, no, sir. I never got a witness; there were two men I talked to before they testified in Leavenworth—just two.

Q. Who were they? A. Frank Miner and Ed Smith.

Q. You have never talked with Dennis Jones?

A. Yes, sir, I have talked with him quite a lot, quite a bit.

The Court: Who?

A. Dennis Jones; I have talked to myself quite a lot; quite often, yes, sir.

Q. Rube Smith, I mean?

A. Yes, Rube and I talked about it, yes, sir.

Q. You never talked to Crilly about it before he testified?

A. Nc, sir.

Q. Never did? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't know he knew anything about it?

A. Yes, sir, I did know he was a witness.

Q. Crilly testified first when these depositions were taken up there? A. I don't know who testified first.

Q. Who testified first there?

A. Well, Crilly, this record shows.

Q. Who second? A. Dennis Jones.

Q. Who last? A. R. J. Smith.

Q. Was that Rube? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many witnesses testified there, Dennis? A. 19.

Q. Every one of them testified to the birth of Thomas Atkins and not a one to his death, did they?

A. I never heard them testify.

Q. Well, you know what that testimony is?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Did you ever hear anybody testifying about his dying?

A. They wouldn't let us in the room when they were taking the evidence; I don't know what they were testifying to.

Q. You didn't produce any evidence there of his death, did you?

A. No, they wouldn't let— give me a chance to hunt it up.

Q. They never would give you a chance to hunt it up, would they? A. They did, at any rate.

Q. Never gave you a chance to hunt up a living Tommy?

A. No, sir, they never said anything about hunting a living Tommy.

Q. So far as you know, there was a particle of testimony offered there about the death of Thomas Atkins, was there?

A. The only testimony I know was offered is what I offered myself.

Q. How many of those witnesses have testified here, Dennis; name them? A. Down here in Muskogee?

Q. Yes; name them. A. I never heard a one of them.

The Court: He probably is not familiar with that. The record will show if you will read the names to me into the record.

Q. Read the names into the record, then. A. Of those?

Q. Who testified in Leavenworth on behalf of Page at that time?

A. George M. Crilly, Dennis Jones, William Grape, Arthur M. Ferguson, Mrs. Arthur Ferguson, Walter Banks, Charlie Anderson, Frank Miner, Madison Burns, W. H. Parker, Samuel Nash, E. C. Murphy, Mary A. Smith, Annie Wills, Adolph Lange, Dick Nichols, Lewis Brown, Elizabeth Dillman, R. J. Smith.

Q. How many of those people have you seen in Muskogee since you have been here as a witness?

The Court: Well, now, the point is how many of those have testified, the Court knows from the record.

Mr. Allen: No, the point I want to know how many he has seen.

The Court: Well, what is the point on that?

Mr. Allen: I don't like to explain it to this witness.

The Court: Well, all right. He may answer.

A. I have seen George Crilly, William Grape, Walter Banks, Frank Miner, Madison Burns, W. H. Parker, Samuel Nash, Annie Wills, Adolph Lange, R. J. Smith.

Q. Dennis, did you ever talk to Walter Banks and Sam Nash? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say you have seen them here since you have been in the city? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were the members of the Granny Letcher household during all the time you knew her?

A. I don't know during all the time.

Q. Well, did any one live with her continuously during all the time you knew her?

A. Sam and Jim that died, Sam was there, Granny died and Jim lived a while and Jim died; and there was a little Indian boy there, Tommy, around about there; and a one-eyed boy they called Arch; and there used to be a fellow around there named Dan Hudson, he was a cook.

Q. Where is Arch? A. I don't know.

Q. Nobody has been able to find him?

A. I haven't looked for him, I don't know.

Q. Is he dead? A. I couldn't tell you that, Judge.

Q. You haven't seen him in years?

A. No, I haven't seen him I guess in twenty years.

Q. Is that Artie Price?

A. I never knew any other name except Arch.

Q. Do you know Tommy York?

A. Yes, sir, I knew him in his lifetime.

Q. Did this Indian Mary have any children that you know of? A. Not that I remember.

Q. You don't remember the child she had?

A. If she had any I don't know, sir.

Q. Then, the only living witnesses that you know that lived with her a considerable time were Sam Nash, Walter Banks, and this Charlie Hudson?

A. Charlie Hudson didn't live there, he roomed there, he was a cook.

Q. Walter Banks and Sam Nash are the only ones that you know living there all the time?

A. They appeared to me to be direct members of the family.

Q. They were direct members of the family?

A. Appeared to me to be so.

Q. You say they testified on behalf of Mr. Page in March, 1914?

A. That is Sam and Walter, I think they did. They were there at any rate.

Q. And you have seen them in the City of Muskogee since you have been here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know who they are working for now?

A. I think they are working for Mr. Page.

Q. At Sand Springs? A. I think so.

Q. Mr. Page or Mr. Long have told you that?

A. Well, I have seen Sam sweeping around the bank building there, but whether it is for Mr. Page or not I don't know, I think he is working for Mr. Page.

Q. Walter Banks is looking after the freight coming in and going out of Mr. Page's depot at Sand Springs?

A. Well, of my own knowledge I don't know.

Q. He works at the depot? A. I have seen him there.

Q. And Sam Nash works in Mr. Page's bank?

A. I don't know whose bank it is, I know he works at the bank there.

Q. At Sand Springs? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Dennis, you didn't testify in March, 1914, that you knew anything about the death of Tommy?

A. The question wasn't asked me.

Q. If it had been asked you, you would have given the same answer as you gave here?

A. I don't know what I would have said.

Q. You don't claim to know and don't know?

A. Not of my own knowledge.

Q. You didn't produce a witness there and haven't here who knows anything about his death?

A. I haven't produced any witnesses anywhere, Judge.

Q. You haven't furnished the names? A. Two names.

Q. What two men know about his death?

A. No, I haven't furnished anybody that knows about his death.

Q. And you were satisfied then that he was dead when you went to work for Mr. Page?

A. Is that the end of the question?

Q. Yes?

A. I was from the information I received that I had.

Q. You got some more information later on that same year that he was a living person, didn't you?

A. Yes, a person called Tommy Atkins was supposed to be in Nebraska, whether it was the same one we knew in Leavenworth I didn't know.

Q. But you didn't want to find him?

A. They didn't send me after him.

Q. They told you they didn't? A. You read the letter.

Q. I mean you told Mr. Long and Mr. Page about that?

A. I don't just recall whether I did or not, I may have told them.

Q. Do you remember taking the acknowledgment to a deed that Henry Carter signed as Tommy Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So, you at least come in contact with another living Thomas in 1914, didn't you?

A. Well, I took that acknowledgment all right. Whether there was a living Thomas I don't know.

Q. That acknowledgment was taken just exactly thirty days after the depositions were taken at Leavenworth, wasn't it? A. I don't know.

Q. In that acknowledgment you said that you personally knew him, didn't you? A. Knew this man that signed that.

Q. Who told you that he was Thomas Atkins?

A. I don't think he signed as Thomas Atkins, Thomas Atkins Henry Carter. (Witness examines instrument handed him by counsel.) Yes, he told himself.

Q. Now, you remember he told you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't know that he even made that representation until I showed you the book that had his name, did you?

A. I never knew him as Thomas Atkins, I was surprised when he said that.

Q. Just a minute ago you didn't know that that representation was made, did you, Dennis?

A. I knowed he signed as Thomas Atkins Henry Carter Thomas Atkins, both of them. It was late at night I was called to take that acknowledgment.

Q. Who called you?

A. Some one at the hotel, I don't know who it was, I was at home.

Q. Frank Long? A. I don't know. My wife told me.

Q. You had told him about Henry being Thomas Atkins before then? A. No, sir.

Q. Who was that conveyance to?

A. Well, I have it in my record at home, I could tell from my books.

Q. I show you page 439 of the printed transcript and ask you if that refreshes your recollection, if you remember who procured that?

The Court: Well, now, let's get this other question answered. Who that assignment or transfer was to.

A. What do you call my attention to on this page?

The Court: Who was the grantee in that instrument which you acknowledged?

A. Well, this is Henry Carter of Leavenworth, Kansas, lessor to Gem Oil Company, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, lessee.

Q. Do you remember who called you to come and take that acknowledgment?

A. No, but I know who I found there.

Q. That is what I want.

A. Mr. Long and Mr. Carter and Mr. Jacominy, a young man there, the hotel keeper.

Q. That is Frank Long? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is this the certification that you made to that instrument: "State of Kansas, County of Leavenworth. On this 13th day of November, 1914, before me the undersigned, a notary public in and for the county and state aforesaid, personally appeared Thomas Atkins known as Henry Carter, to me known to be the identical person who executed the within and foregoing instrument, and acknowledged that he executed the within and foregoing instrument, and acknowledged that he executed the same as his free and voluntary act and deed for the use and purpose therein therein set forth. Given under my hand and seal of office the day and year last above written. Dennis Jones, Notary Public"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is the man who signed that in the court room now?

A. Sitting over there.

Q. That is Henry Carter in the court room now?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That man don't answer to the description you gave yesterday of Thomas Atkins?

A. I know he wasn't; I told him so.

Q. You told Mr. Long right then that that wouldn't do at all? A. I don't know that I told Mr. Long that.

Q. You told him that that was not Thomas Atkins?

A. That that wasn't the Thomas Atkins I knew loafed around Granny Letcher's.

Q. And yet Mr. Long took that lease and filed it for record? A. I don't know what he done.

Q. You knew it was not Thomas Atkins?

A. He said his name was Thomas Atkins, Henry Carter, Tommy Atkins; I always heard that his name was Henry Carter; he said his name was Thomas Atkins too.

Q. You knew it wasn't the Thomas Atkins you knew in Leavenworth?

A. Sure, at least I thought so, I had every reason to believe it wasn't.

Q. You say your first connection with the Gem Oil Company was when you received a telegram from Frank Long to come to Tulsa?

A. Well, now, that was my testimony yesterday, but I was thinking the matter over whether I had talked to Mr. Long prior to that time at Leavenworth or someone else. I just can't get that clear in my mind, evidently some one.

Q. You don't remember realizing any surprise at receiving that sort of a telegram?

A. No, it must have been based on some other talk with somebody, I expect it was Mr. Long; I rather thought I met Mr. Long near the National Hotel.

Q. It couldn't have been Sadie James? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't talk to Sadie about getting employment from the Gem, did you?

A. No, sir, Sadie wanted me to sign one paper.

Q. Wasn't you a little surprised when the first person you saw when you got off the train at Tulsa was Sadie James there to meet you? A. Rather so, yes.

Q. And she then took you to Mr. Page's office?

A. She showed me where Mr. Page's office was.

Q. And that evening you wanted her to help you cash a check for this thirty-seven dollars and fifty cents?

A. I don't know whether I did or not.

Q. She told you that check would be good in Leavenworth?

A. I don't know, I don't remember whether they paid me in money or gave me a check.

Q. And she took you out to Mr. Page's park for the evening, didn't she? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You certainly told Mr. Page, didn't you, that you knew that Sadie James was cooked; that she had had this affair with that soldier up there, and that she tried to get you to make a false acknowledgment to a deed?

A. I think I told him about this paper; but the old soldier business was perfectly straight as far as I know; the old man is there now and has a divorce from her and is a good old soldier.

Q. He is about eighty years old?

A. I don't know how old he is. He is a good old soldier. Our transaction was as honest as with any client you ever had. I have the will and the receipt showing where the will was deposited in the probate court.

Q. Did you have him make her a will?

A. I didn't have him do it.

Q. Did he make her a will? A. He did.

Q. Let's see that. I hand you Government's Exhibit A-110 and A-111, and ask you what they are?

A. Exhibit A-110 last will and testament of Charles Lain.

Q. What is Exhibit A-111?

A. 111 is the certificate of deposit of will with the probate court.

Q. The will is made in favor of Sadie James?

A. This is a copy of the original, yes, sir. Mr. Lain did that voluntarily of his own volition and motion.

Q. Is that your office carbon copy of that will?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So, you wrote the will yourself? A. My girl did.

Q. You dictated it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long after they had married was it that you wrote that will?

A. Well, I don't know just when she married; this is the 21st day of November.

Q. And about how long after the marriage?

A. Well, I don't know whether it was after or before.

The Court: November of what year?

A. 1913.

Q. That was before you and Sadie commenced working on this case?

A. That is when I held Sadie up to be as good as any other woman.

Q. Sadie, during all the time of her marital relations with this old soldier was living in one of your houses?

A. Sadie never lived in one of my houses.

Q. Did you collect the rent from the house she lived in?

A. No, sir, she lived at Second and Cherokee Streets.

Q. You knew where she lived? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew she was living there with her other husband, Will James? A. No, sir.

Q. You knew Will James?

A. I saw a big dark man with her on the street.

Q. You knew who he was?

A. I never had any personal acquaintance with the man in my life.

Q. When Sadie brought you from the depot to Mr. Page's office, they let you read the testimony of the witnesses that testified at Sapulpa, didn't they? A. Let me read it?

Q. Yes, you did read it?

A. I don't think I read anybody's testimony.

Q. Were you employed as a lawyer in this case without advising you what testimony had theretofore been offered?

A. They never said anything about that.

Q. They didn't keep you advised of the testimony that they have been offering, have they, Dennis, since your employment?

A. Oh, they have told me some things about it, yes, sir.

Q. And some they have kept from you?

A. Well, I don't know whether they have told me all or not.

Q. You didn't read Minnie's testimony at Sapulpa before the depositions were taken at Leavenworth?

A. Whose testimony?

Q. Minnie Atkins? A. Where at?

Q. Sapulpa? A. I don't know anything about that.

Q. Don't you remember when you met there in Mr. Page's office, that after Mr. Page hired you that you went up to Mr. Rice's office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they gave you the testimony that had been produced at Sapulpa? A. No, sir.

Q. And that you went over that?

A. No, sir, all they done at Mr. Rice's office, Mr. Rice wrote out the contract and I signed the contract and sat there a few minutes.

Q. Mr. Rice didn't write this contract?

A. It was prepared at that place.

Q. He prepared one and you didn't like it and prepared another? A. No, Mr. Rice prepared the contract I signed.

Q. Sure of that?

A. Yes, sir. I took a contract with me and they didn't take that contract, and took the contract that I had and prepared that.

Q. When you came down, you brought a contract already prepared? A. Yes, sir; yes, sir. Yes, sir.

Q. You felt reasonably certain you would be hired?

A. I didn't know whether I would or not, but in all my business I prepare.

Q. You thought you would be prepared if they desired your services as a lawyer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You learned though then, or sometime later before the depositions were given, that Minnie had testified about having this child at the Sister's Hospital?

A. No, sir, the first I knew of that was over here at Muskogee when Mr. Peterkin was talking about that.

Q. The first time you had ever heard that she testified at one time that this child was born at the Sister's Hospital was at Muskogee in 1915?

A. I never heard she testified. I say the first time I ever heard about the Peterkin baby was at Muskogee.

Q. And this is the first time you heard she testified to that?

A. Since you told me. I didn't know anything about what went on down here. The first time I ever heard it.

Q. You don't know whether the child you saw was born at the hospital or not, do you? A. No.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Greenslade all about what you testified about this child when he came to see you?

A. Mr. Greenslade?

Q. Yes?

A. I hadn't testified at the time I was talking to Mr. Greenslade.

Q. I mean did you tell him—— You saw Mr. Greenslade, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You told Mr. Greenslade that your boy Robert knew exactly where the boy was?

A. No, I didn't. I talked to Mr. Adair, I remember Mr. Crawley was there at Mr. Bond's office. I didn't want to go to Washington at all. I told them to take up the matter with my boy in Washington and he will locate the boy there. They prevailed on me to go. Mr. Bond will remember that.

Q. Where is Robert now?

A. I really don't know where he is; I haven't heard from the boy for a long, long time; I don't know where Robert is.

Q. He is not here as a witness? A. Sir?

Q. He is not here as a witness?

A. No, sir. I did hear once he was in Van Couver.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. When did you first learn that Mr. Frank Long was working for the Gem Oil Company or Mr. Page?

A. Well, it was about the time I went to Tulsa. As I said a while ago, it may have been, oh before that; he was working for the Gem Oil Company, he was in Leavenworth quite a little bit.

Q. Well, you knew it along about the latter part of August or the 1st of September, 1914?

A. About that time, yes, sir.

Q. In your work at Leavenworth you worked in conjunction mostly with Mr. Long, didn't you?

A. After I was employed by the Gem Oil Co., yes, sir.

Q. And you knew that he had charge of the interest of the Gem Oil Company and of Mr. Page up there in that matter, didn't you? A. Well, I felt sure he did, yes, sir.

Q. Now, you knew both Minnie Atkins and Tommy Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Years ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When Tommy stayed at Granny Letcher's?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew him up until he was——

A. 12 or 14 years old.

Q. And a good sized boy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now that night when you were called down there to the National Hotel, believe you said that was the place that lease was taken? A. Yes, sir; yes, sir.

Q. You knew who Tommy Atkins was at that time?

A. Yes, it had been so long since I had seen him, it might have come in my mind, the fourteen years that he had growed up to be a man and developed, had changed him some.

Q. You knew him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew Henry Carter, H. Carter, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir; I always called him that.

Q. Knew him for quite a while? A Yes, sir.

Q. You knew when H. Carter represented himself as being Tommy Atkins that he was an imposter and a fraud?

A. He said this——

Q. Well, answer my question, you knew he was not Tommy Atkins, didn't you?

A. I knew he wasn't Tommy Atkins; I knew, yes, sir.

Q. You knew that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Yet, knowing that, you took the acknowledgment to that instrument under the name of Tommy Atkins, didn't you? A. Yes, sir; yes, sir.

Q. And I believe you said that you didn't inform Mr. Long there, who was negotiating the deal, that this was not Tommy Atkins, did you? A. Mr. Long knew——

Q. Just answer my question.

A. No, he had information; I didn't have to inform him.

Q. He had information about the matter himself?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew it was not Tommy Atkins and you didn't tell Mr. Long there at that time? A. Yes.

Q. You told him that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before you took that acknowledgment?

A. I told Mr. Long all the time I didn't believe that was our Tommy.

Q. Did you tell him before you took that acknowledgment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Long, knowing that, still had you to take that acknowledgment to that instrument? A. Yes, sir; yes, sir.

Q. Now, Dennis, since you have been down here, haven't you had a talk about this matter with Bell here, T. W. Bell, an attorney in this case representing the Carter interests?

A. No, I had a conveysation with Mr. Bell.

Q. About the Carter claims in the matter?

A. No, we haven't talked about no Carter claims.

Q. Haven't had any conversation about it? A. No.

Q. Haven't had some conversation about the identity of Carter and Tommy Atkins? A. No, sir.

Q. None whatever since you have been down here?

A. No, sir; no, sir.

Q. I will ask you if you didn't state to Bell, here in the corridor of the courthouse, since you have been down here, that you wouldn't say that Carter was not the boy Tommy Atkins, that was at Granny Letcher's? A. Oh, no, sir, no; no.

Q. You didn't make that statement? A. No, sir, I didn't.

Q. Or that in substance?

A. No, sir, I didn't say any such thing to Mr. Bell.

The Court: Now just connect with your question the person or persons to whom you conceive the statement was made.

Mr. Cobb: Mr. Bell.

The Court: Alright.

Q. I will ask you if in Leavenworth, Kansas, during the year 1915, shortly after the depositions were taken in this case, if you didn't state to Mr. Bell up there in—or state in substance that you were unable to say that this boy was not the Tommy Atkins that was at Granny Letcher's

A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't make that statement? A. No, sir.

Q. Or that statement in substance?

A. No, sir. I haven't talked to Mr. Bell—I think I said this to Mr. Bell: That if you can land your man, go ahead. I didn't want to discourage him; if you think that is Tommy Atkins, go ahead. I told him that.

Q. Didn't you also state in that same conversation——

Mr. Stuart: Mr. Cobb, will you kindly fix the time?

The Court: He fixed the time as 1915.

Mr. Cobb: After the depositions were taken in Leavenworth, Kansas.

Mr. Stuart: Where in Leavenworth.

Q. In the State District Court room at Leavenworth, Kansas, in the spring of 1915, didn't you make that statement or that statement in substance, that you wouldn't say that Carter was not the boy, Tommy Atkins, that you saw at Granny Letcher's

A. I never talked to Mr. Bell in the District Court room—

Q. Answer my question. A. No, sir; no, sir.

Q. You did not? A. No, sir, I didn't; no, sir.

Q. I will ask you if in the spring of 1916, at your office in Leavenworth, Kansas, if you didn't make the same statement in substance to Mr. R. E. Martin. A. I should say not.

Q. You did not? A. No, sir.

Q. You know Mr. Martin?

A. Mr. Martin never was in my office but once in his life.

Q. You know Mr. Martin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You never made that statement to Mr. Martin in Leavenworth at any time?

A. No, sir; no, sir, because I knew better.

Q. I will ask you if you didn't state to Mr. Bell in the federal court room, in the spring of 1916, in Leavenworth, Kansas, this: That if you had been permitted to have gone ahead, you would have found the real Tommy Atkins.

A. Found the dead boy.

Q. Wait a minute. And that for you folks to go ahead, speaking to Mr. Bell—and you folks go ahead, as you are; you are on the right track?

A. No, sir, I didn't tell him that.

Q. You didn't make that statement? A. No, sir.

Q. Or that statement in substance?

A. No, sir, I didn't. I never tried to discourage Bell. I told him if you think you got the right man Bell, go ahead. I always said that to him; say it now; if you think you got the right man, keep pushing ahead.

Q. And didn't you also state in that conversation that he, Bell, had taken up Carter where you dropped off, and that he, Bell, was wise in doing so?

A. I never had Carter up; I can't say that——

The Court: Well, did you——

A. No, sir; no, sir.

Q. You didn't make that statement? A. No, sir.

Mr. Cobb: That is all.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Now, did you write this letter (marked defendant Minnie Atkins' Exhibit 9)? Dennis, I will ask you whether or not you ever stated to anybody, at any time, that Henry Carter was the Thomas Atkins you saw at Granny Letcher's?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever have anything to do with Henry Carter's claim in this case? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever accept employment from anybody to assist in developing whatever claim Henry Carter had in this case? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever have any connection with him, in any way, professionally or personally, in this case?

A. No, sir, not in this case, no, sir.

Q. Now, you know Rube Smith, you say? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether Rube Smith holds any position with the courts up there? A. He is a deputy sheriff.

Q. He hold any position with the United States court up there?

A. He is usually one of the deputy marshals there during court time.

Q. Well, what is he, bailiff, or what does he do?

A. Usually takes the prisoners to and from jail and out again; sometimes he stays in charge of the door, and jury room, and other places.

Q. Whose court?

A. Federal court; Judge Pollock's court.

Q. How long has he been in that position in Judge Pollock's court there? A. Several years.

Q. Several years? A. Has been for several years.

Q. Now, Dennis, with reference to your employment in these matters, your various employment thereof, the first employment by the Gypsy then your subsequent employment by the Gem Company, and the contract that was entered into, I will ask you whether or not your requirements under your contracts were carried out by you as best you could?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Stuart: Now, Your Honor. In this matter I want to offer this letter.

Mr. German: Do you offer this?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir.

Mr. German: We object to it as self-serving and as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. Stuart: I don't see how it could be self-serving for a witness.

Mr. Allen: It was written subsequent to the time Sadie James claimed——

The Court: Has the witness identified this and stated this is a letter which he wrote?

Mr. Stuart: Well, I assumed he would do that.

Q. Is this your letter? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Signed by you and written at the date it purports to bear, December 26, 1914?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: I might hear the objections which you gentlemen desire to interpose and then I will read it during the noon hour.

Mr. German: We object upon the ground that it is in the nature of self-serving testimony or declaration; that it is hearsay; there isn't any theory upon which it could be admitted at all.

The Court: As I view it, the only theory upon which this letter could be received in connection with this witness' testimony now, would be as throwing light, if it does throw light, as to the question of good faith of this man in this transaction.

Mr. German: This declaration was not made at a time which would bring it within the rule, because it comes after Sadie James' alleged so-called confession to the Government, and at a time when it would be to the interest of the witness and the parties to whom the letter was written to make statements such as the witness made in that letter.

The Court: Now, I have your views and objections.

Mr. Stuart: Now, our view is this; that this letter on its face couldn't have been written for serving any purpose in this lawsuit, none whatever. It was written after Sadie James came to his office. It is claimed here that this man was a party to a conspiracy to put up a job. It has furthermore been developed on cross examination by question after question that this man is crooked; that he knew Sadie James was crooked and that he and Sadie James put up a crooked transaction on this man. Now, this letter written in good faith without any attempt of anybody to influence testimony, and before his good faith as to Sadie James had ever been challenged by anybody, explains that transaction with Sadie James months before this suit was ever begun and while no controversy was in action at all; this man makes this statement to his employer as to his knowledge of Sadie James.

Mr. German: In Sadie James' confession she impugned the motives of this witness in connection with this very case. This declaration contained in this letter is made to the Gem Oil Company with relation to that matter.

The Court: All right. I will read the letter during the noon hour.

And thereupon, court recessed until two o'clock P. M.

And thereupon, court reconvened at two o'clock P. M., pursuant to adjournment, when the following proceedings were had:

And thereupon, DENNIS JONES was recalled for further examination and testified as follows:

Examination by the Court.

Q. In regard to this letter of December 26th, Mr. Jones, which you wrote to the Gem Oil Company in Tulsa, you say: "The information that I have received relative to the actions of Sadie James, etc." What information did you refer to? What information did you then have when you wrote this letter as to the actions of Sadie James?

A. Sadie James had said that I and her and Rube Smith and other people in Leavenworth and Mr. Long had framed up, was in a conspiracy to frame up evidence in reference to Tommy Atkins.

Q. Now, from whom did you get that information?

A. I had a letter—— No, I got it from Mr. Long, I met him in Leavenworth. He laughed and told me about what Sadie James had said we were trying to do.

Q. Then, the information you referred to is the conversation you had with Mr. Long?

A. Yes, sir, and then afterwards I wrote a letter to the Gem Oil Company and Mr. Long.

Q. Now, is this the letter?

A. I haven't seen that, Judge.

Q. This is the letter that was offered in evidence?

A. Yes, sir, to the Gem Oil Company.

Q. Now, then, the information which you referred to in this letter was the conversation which you had with Mr. Long at Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that all the information you now recall having had about Sadie James' actions when you wrote this letter?

A. No, I think Mr. Cook, a gentleman by the name of Cook.

Q. Fred Cook?

A. I think that was his name. I think he talked about it to me. He was in Leavenworth quite a bit after that.

The Court: Does the record so far in this case show anything with reference to the date that Sadie James made this alleged confession?

Mr. Allen: He deposition does your Honor.

The Court: What does that show in regard to that, when did she make this alleged confession?

Mr. German: December 4th, if I am not mistaken. I know this is on record, the so-called immunity paper from Frank Montgomery, which was about the same time, and part of the same transaction, and it is dated December 4th if I am not mistaken.

Mr. Hanford: If the court please, I suggest, however, that that alleged confession was in the possession of the Government and is not in the record when it was disclosed to us.

The Court: Well, that is what I wanted to know is when—— First, let me ask you——

Mr. Hanford: I will state to Your Honor, however, that that letter is written after the proof shows that Sadie James was out to Seattle with Mr. Robinson and later returned to Leavenworth with him.

Mr. German: This is after Mr. Montgomery was at Seattle.

The Court: I appreciate that. What I am trying to get at here is, was that after it had come to the ears of Mr. Long or the others for whom this witness was working, that Sadie James had divulged or made this so-called confession?

Mr. Hanford: I think at that time, your Honor, the only thing——

The Court: Probably I had better ask the witness.

Q. Now, can you tell me about how long it was before you wrote this letter that you had this conversation with Mr. Long in Leavenworth?

A. Your Honor, I can't tell you just how long; I don't remember just how long it was. It strikes me I saw something in the newspaper about that; I won't be sure about that. It seems to me I read something in the newspaper about that, about Sadie James told somebody that there was a conspiracy on the part of some other people and her to do something, I think that was an Oklahoma paper.

Q. You say here the information that you have received relative to the actions of Sadie James does not worry me in the least because whatever has been said by the people here, who gave evidence before the notary public, in the matter of Minnie and Tommy Atkins, was most satisfactory and based on solid facts as they knew them and was not at all in accordance with any frame up with Sadie James if there ever was any such thing as a frame up put on by her, or pulled off in Leavenworth. Now, if you had a conversation with Mr. Long I presume he at that time was representing the Gem Oil Company? A. Yes, sir, I suppose so.

Q. Then, why did it become necessary or what impelled you following your conversation with him about this to write this letter; that is what I am trying to get at?

A. Well, Judge, I don't know. Now, I said that— I wouldn't be positive that it was before or after right now. I wouldn't be positive that it was before or after that I got that information.

Mr. German: May I ask him a question or two?

The Court: Yes.

Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Dennis, you were not talking about anything that Sadie had stated before you learned what she had said?

A. No. Sadie had said evidently what she had said before I wrote that letter.

Q. Evidently? A. Yes.

Q. And did you not learn that she had made a so-called confession to the Government? A. No, not at that time.

Q. What had you learned about it?

A. She was talking around at Tulsa and places over the country.

Q. You had heard she had been to Seattle with Mr. Montgomery?

A. I don't know whether I had at that time or not, I don't know.

The Court: What did you have in mind as to the frame up that she was reported to have pulled off that you referred to in the letter?

A. Framing up evidence to use in the case of Tommy Atkins.

Q. Well, now, who was reporting that or who was giving that out? A. Sadie James.

Q. You had heard at that time—— A. Yes, sir.

Q. That she was giving that out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was she telling that?

A. Down here in Oklahoma.

The Court: Well, I am going to admit this letter together with his statements with regard to what brought it out, and give it such place as it seems to be entitled to if any, together with all the other facts and circumstances.

Mr. German: We except.

Mr. Hanford: Your Honor, may I ask the witness at this time one question?

The Court: Yes.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hanford.

A. Dennis, didn't you get out a warrant against Sadie James for criminal libel in connection with that?

A. I gave the information to the county attorney there.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, we object to that on the ground that it is self-serving declaration and hearsay.

The Court: Well, it was about this time, it will throw some light upon the witness' frame of mind; if it was afterwards, it won't.

A. Yes, sir, I did, I went to the county attorney and consulted him about it.

Mr. Allen: Your Honor, may I ask a few more questions?

The Court: Well, Judge Maxey wanted to cross examine. I permit you either now or later, I will permit you.

Mr. Maxey: Go ahead.

The Court: Alright, Judge Allen, you may go on.

Recross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Dennis, you merely threatened Sadie with criminal prosecution, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't threaten her at all.

Q. Did you say in Kansas City when we were taking the depositions there that if Sadie went to Leavenworth, you would have her put in jail? A. Say that to whom?

Q. To the different people around the courthouse.

A. No, I didn't say it to Leavenworth; [Q.] didn't I tell you then that she was in the city and that you were at liberty to start any prosecution? A. I never said that.

Q. You didn't start any prosecution, did you?

A. I never said that; never told you or anybody else that if Sadie came to Leavenworth——

Q. You didn't start any prosecution of her there, did you?

Q. No, sir, it was months before she came there, too, before I consulted the county attorney it was months before she came there.

Cross Examination by Mr. Maxey.

Q. Dennis, what time did you go to work for the Gypsy Oil Company?

A. Well, the date is in that contract; I don't know just—

Q. Is the contract in evidence?
A. Well, I think it is——

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Maxey: Alright; that will fix the date.

Q. You knew at that time that there had been a trial of the case down at Sapulpa between Nancy Atkins and Bartlett and the Gypsy Oil Company?

A. No, Judge, I didn't at that time.

The Court: Let me ask you; were you here during Judge Allen's cross examination, Judge Maxey?

Mr. Maxey: Part of it.

The Court: I assume, then, that you will avoid as far as possible covering the same ground.

Mr. Maxey: Yes, sir.

Q. You learned afterwards, if you didn't know it then, that there had been a suit down here between Nancy Atkins and Bartlett and the Gypsy Oil Company?

A. Judge, I can't say that I ever learned that until I heard it here today, that there had been a law suit down here about this claim. The only law suit that I know about is what they have here in Muskogee a couple of years ago.

Q. How, how long did you work for the Gypsy Oil Company? A. About 12 or 14 days?

Q. About that? A. About that.

Q. Did you make any trips for them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you go?

A. Went from Leavenworth to St. Louis, and from St. Louis to Washington, D. C., and then went to New York.

Q. That was the trip with Mr. Greenslade that you spoke of this morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much money did the Gypsy Oil Company pay you for the work that you did for them?

A. Well, expenses and all, probably two hundred dollars.

Q. Two hundred dollars? A. Then you commenced work for the Gem Oil Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the date of your contradt with them? Do you remember?

The Court: That is in evidence.

Mr. Maxey: I thought maybe he remembered it.

A. The 16th of September, I think 1914.

The Court: The 23rd of September, I think it was.

Q. Now, you had been at work for them ever since them?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have devoted most of your time since them to this case, haven't you?

A. Well, Judge, I can't say that I have devoted most of my time; whatever time was necessary, I would devote to the case.

Q. Have you made any trips for th[illegible] over the country?

A. Well, around in our own count[illegible] down in Missouri, and Kansas City, and Kansas C[illegible]sas, and out in Jefferson county; I went out, I th[illegible]hison once or twice.

Q. Go ahead. Oklahoma?

A. Well, yes, down here at the trial at Muskogee, two years ago.

Q. How many times have you been to Tulsa and Sand Springs since you have been employed by the Gem Oil Company?

A. Well, I have been there three times, I think, on behalf of the Gem Oil Company. I have been to Tulsa four times but one time I went on my own—went there to take care of a fellow who had been arrested for introducing liquor they said.

Q. Now, when you found out in your investigation anything that you deemed important, why, you would go down to see Mr. Long or Mr. Page, and report, would you?

A. No, sir, I wouldn't go to report. anything that I found out that I thought was important I would write it or communicate it to them in some way.

Q. Mr. Long was at Leavenworth a good deal of the time?

A. Yes, sir, quite a bit.

Q. And you would communicate with him there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Page up there frequently?

A. One time, I think.

Q. Now, what is the Gem Oil Company paying you?

A. When I would serve them, they would pay me at the rate of ten dollars a day.

Q. And expenses? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how much money have they paid you since you have been in their employ?

A. Well, I expect they have paid me four or five hundred dollars.

Q. Four or five hundred? A. I expect.

Q. No more than that?

A. Judge, I can't say; whenever I worked, they paid me.

Q. Do you know who was living at Granny Letcher's in 1890?

A. In 1890? I think the same family was there; I think she moved away from there at one time in 1890.

Q. What is it?

A. I think the family—Jim and Sam and the boys and Granny——

Q. Now, how old was Granny Letcher in 1890?

A. Oh, I don't know, Judge, just how old she was; when I first knew Granny Letcher she was 40 or 45 years old—50 years old, I guess.

Q. And you knew her back in '84?

A. Oh, I knew her before that.

Q. And she was about 45 when you first got acquainted with her?

A. Yes, I expect maybe older, Judge. I was quite a boy, maybe ten or twelve years old when I first got acquainted with her.

Q. Did you ever know William Phillip?

A. He was a black boy—a black fellow who used to be around there; yes, I knew Will.

Q. He was Molly Letcher's son, wasn't he? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know Sam Smith?

A. Yes, Sam Nash, they call him now.

Q. Walter Banks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Fannie Powell? A. I didn't know Fannie.

Q. She was a mulatto girl?

A. I didn't know her by that name.

Q. Walter Johnson?

A. Well, I know a Walter Johnson in Leavenworth.

Q. Now, was Tommy Atkins at Granny Letcher's in 1890?

A. No, sir; oh, in 1890? Yes, he was there until '97, the year of the Spanish American war.

Q. Then if the census taker in 1890 who took the census of the people living with Granny Letcher failed to get him, how do you account for that?

A. They don't take children.

Q. They don't? A. No, sir.

Q. Wasn't Walter Banks and Sam Nash children?

A. Well, they were boys, yes.

Q. Sam was about the age of Tommy, wasn't he?

A. No, Sam is now about 47—46 or 47 years old; ten or twelve years old then.

Q. Walter Banks was about Tommy's age, wasn't he?

A. No, sir, Walter Banks was a little older than Tommy.

Q. Well, he was just a boy then, wasn't he?

A. Yes, sir, just a boy.

Q. Ten or twelve years old then?

A. I don't know how old he was.

Q. Then, they do take children?

A. I never knew them to, Judge, if they did, I never knew them to.

Mr. Cruce: If the Court please, this is not cross examination of anything we drew out.

The Court: Well, I don't think so either, and I don't think that this witness' account of what the census failed to show would help the Court much. There is this, however, in evidence; there is a verified statement with regard to the census, showing certain individuals in the family; this witness testify that Tommy Atkins was in the family at that time. Now, it is proper for the Court to account for that.

Mr. Maxey: Well, alright.

Mr. Cruce: I want to make the further suggestion; it is true Judge Maxey's client is a party to this suit, but not a line of testimony what we drew from this witness, was directed toward his client, and it does not seem to me that the Government has the right to use a half a day in cross examination and then for another defendant to come——

The Court: Here is the thing I suggested a while ago; so far as any field covered by Judge Allen, it will be unnecessary for you to go over that; I will permit you to cross examine this witness on any material matters which Judge Allen overlooked, if he overlooked anything, but we are not going to cover all that field again, certainly.

Cross Examination by Mr. Maxey.

Q. I will ask you, Dennis, if these questions and answers wasn't given by you at Leavenworth when your deposition was taken up there: "Where did Crilly carry on this business along about 1884—'5 and '86? A. On Seneca Street north side between second and third. Q. Were you, during that period acquainted with a woman named Letcher? A. Yes, sir. Q. Do you remember what her name was, how she was designated? A. Known as Granny Letcher. Q. Granny Letcher. Where did Granny Letcher reside at that time? A. She lived just opposite Crilly's stable. I think the number was 217 to the best of my recollection at this time, and in an old shack built probably thirty or forty years." Is that your testimony there? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Maxey: I will try, Your Honor, not to ask anything that Mr. Allen went over.

Q. This question and answer: "Q. How old was Granny Letcher at the time? A. Well, at that time I would take Granny Letcher to be about thirty-four years old.'' Is that your testimony?

A. I said fifty-four. I told Mr. Tharp about that and he said he would correct it, but I signed it; fifty-four.

Q. These questions and answers—— These questions asked you and answers given: "About how old was the child when Minnie left Leavenworth? A. Well, I don't know, I couldn't tell exactly, the child was a couple of years old. She hung around Granny's for quite a while after the child was born. Q. You may state whether Minnie lived at Granny Letcher's all the time or whether she was there sometimes and other places in the city? A. Well, I couldn't say, I have seen her there quite often, she stayed there and lived around; I have seen her at the table eating and seen her in the wash tub helping wash, and I just supposed she lived there.'' Is that your testimony there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This question and answer: "The first time you ever saw Minnie she was at Granny Letcher's? A. Yes. Q. That, you think, was about 1884, about that time?'' A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, under your contract with Mr. Page, have you done anything more than give the names of witnesses or have you talked with the witnesses and communicated to them what they testified to?

A. No, sir, I haven't talked with the witnesses; I have talked with them after they gave their testimony. Those witnesses that testified up there at the state court, I have talked with them since they testified.

Q. Didn't you talk with any of them before they testified?

A. Two.

Q. Who were they? A. Frank Miner and Ed Murphy.

Q. Those were the only two you talked with before they testified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what other services have you done?

A. Well, whenever there was Court going on in Kansas City and the Examiner was around I would be there to see if I would know people and do whatever they desired. I was generally pretty well known up there, put in seven years in detective services and seventeen years on the police services and I knew pretty near everybody around.

Q. They would consult you about the different witnesses, whether you knew them or not and what their character was and whether they were to be believed and all of those things?

A. Well, not as to whether they were to be believed, Judge, I don't know as it went that far, but I knew them.

Q. That applies to the Government witnesses as well as their witnesses? A. Yes, sir, everybody.

Q. And to witnesses for any of the other parties to the suit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You gave your deposition up there in 1914, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew there was a case pending at Sapulpa, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. What did you suppose they were taking your deposition up there for?

A. To use here at Muskogee. I knew there was to be a trial here at Muskogee.

Q. This suit hadn't been brought then, had it?

A. Well, I don't know. The only lawsuit——

Q. You was a lawyer in the case and was helping there and didn't know what case it was in?

A. The only case I knew about was the one at Muskogee a couple of years ago. I have heard all about it since then but at that time I didn't know.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. When you went down to the National Hotel to close up the lease that Carter made to the Gem Oil Company, who did you find there besides Carter and Frank Long?

A. A young man by the name of Romeo Jacomy.

Q. Wasn't Sam Nash there?

A. No, sir, I don't think he was; I don't think Sam Nash was in the room.

Q. Well, wasn't he at the hotel? A. I don't think he was.

Q. Wasn't Rube Smith there?

A. I don't think Rube Smith was there.

Q. Did you ever at any time see Frank Long and Rube Smith and Sam Nash and Carter all together? A. No, sir.

Q. Never did?

A. I don't have any recollection of seeing Rube Smith, Frank Long, and Sam Nash together.

Q. Were you ever present when Sam Nash and Carter and yourself were together?

A. Yes, one time up in North Leavenworth at a restaurant. Henry Carter came in while we were there.

Q. Was Rube Smith there at that time?

A. Well, I couldn't say that, he was in and out.

Q. He hung around there? A. He lived there.

Q. He might have been there at the time?

A. Yes, he might have.

Q. Was Mr. Long there at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Was there anything said there at that time in regard to the identity of Carter and Tommy Atkins?

A. Not to me and not in my presence.

Q. Not in your presence? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever present at any time when an examination was made in the presence of Sam Nash and Rube Smith of the body, the person of Henry Carter? A. No, sir.

Q. Never was?

A. No, sir. I heard about that but I wasn't there.

Q. You heard about that being done? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who told you about it, Mr. Long?

A. Annie Wills told me.

Q. Annie Wills told about that examination?

A. Told me she heard it.

Q. Was that before or after the execution of this lease?

A. Now, I couldn't tell you as to that.

Q. You don't remember? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you knew where Carter lived at that time?

A. He lived there in Leavenworth.

Q. Carter lived there in Leavenworth? A. Henry?

Q. Yes? A. I think he did.

Q. Wasn't he out in the country there?

A. No, I think he lived in the city out on High Street in the southwest part of our town.

Q. Before this lease was taken you had been to see Carter a time or two? A. Not I.

Q. You never had gone to see him about the matter?

A. No, sir.

Q. Then, you hadn't talked to him about the matter at all until the execution of this lease?

A. No, I didn't do much talking to him then.

Q. Well, I say you hadn't done much talking to him?

A. No, sir, not that I recall. I don't say I did.

Q. I would like for you to be certain?

A. No, I won't be certain that I did or did not, I can't see any reason why I should talk to him.

Q. Well, you were working for the Gem Oil Company?

A. Yes, but I wasn't considering Carter.

Q. Now, I will ask you if you didn't go with Mr. Long out near McLouth where Henry Carter formerly lived?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In making an investigation of this matter?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that with reference to the taking of this lease? A. I think it was after.

Q. It was after that time? A. I think so.

Q. Are you sure?

A. No, I am not. Mr. Josey was with us and Mr. Long.

Q. You and Mr. Josey and Mr. Long?

A. Yes, sir, and Henry.

Q. Did you make more than one trip out there?

A. No, sir, I think I only made one.

Q. You just made the one trip? A. That is all I made.

Q. You don't remember whether that was before or after the lease was taken? A. I think it was after.

Q. You think it was after? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But you are not sure. Didn't you go out there at one time when the automobile broke down and you didn't get back until after night?

A. That is the same trip. We had three machines to break down, two to break down and the third took us through.

Q. Now, wasn't that along about the latter part of Sepber or early part of October? A. The weather was cold.

Q. Getting cold?

A. It was cold, we encountered cold weather when we rode out there.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Dennis, when you signed that deposition which you have been questioned about, I will ask you whether or not you read it over first and made certain corrections in your own hand on the original copy?

A. Some of it I did, and then I told Mr. Tharp, I called Mr. Tharp's attention to it.

Q. But you did read that deposition over? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you did make some corrections? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the original copy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was the one to which you affixed your signature? A. Yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Dennis, the copy I have been reading from is the copy that has been corrected, isn't it?

A. Well, I don't know that, I don't know whether it is or not, Judge.

The Court: Well, turn to your testimony and see whether you made the corrections there or not.

A. Here is one question.

Q. Won't you please take your time now and correct all these mistakes in that?

The Court: No, we won't wait for that now; he has suggested certain errors in that part to which his attention was called, and that part which has gotten into the record and the part not in the record, are of course, no interest to me now.

Mr. Allen: I will state to Your Honor, that I have been reading over from the certified copy of the deposition of this witness which was filed in the District Court of Creek County, and there does appear there a number of pen and ink changes.

Mr. Cruce: I think probably the witness started to make an explanation that probably will settle it, when the judge interrupted.

The Court: I know, but only a very small portion of this deposition is in the record, and the court is not interested in the part not introduced and will not read it and it is only the portion that is introduced and as to the correctness which is material of course.

Mr. Allen: I think as to all that I have read he has testified it was correct with the exception of one word—to, that should be too.

The Court: You needn't go over it now.

Q. Were you at the Severs last night?

A. At the Severs Hotel?

Q. Yes? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you talk to anybody about this case last night?

A. No, sir, the judge put me under the rule and I didn't break that rule.

Q. Did you and Albert Hopkins have Henry Carter down on South Second Street Sunday? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you introduce him down there Sunday to anybody? A. No, sir.

Q. Can you find out how much money has been paid you by Mr. Page?

A. I said four or five hundred dollars; I don't think it is much more.

Q. Will you try and figure that up?

A. I will give it to you now the best that I can remember.

Q. When did you get here this time?

A. A week ago today.

Q. How much are they paying you now?

A. The same that they paid me before.

Q. You came a week ago today and you were put under the rule yesterday, were you?

A. Yes, sir, and I was in the courtroom part of two days.

Q. You came here from Sand Springs?

A. Tulsa, from Leavenworth to Tulsa.

Q. When did you go to Tulsa? A. On Tuesday.

Q. Tuesday before that?

A. We came over here the same day that we went to Tulsa; I think it was Wednesday; left Leavenworth and got to Tulsa Wednesday and came over here that afternoon.

Q. Who came with you?

A. Well, Rube Smith, Will Parker, Joe Lacy, Mrs. Kayzee, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Brown and one or two others.

Q. Who paid the expenses of the party over here.

A. Money was sent to me to pay the expenses with.

Q. How much was sent to you?

A. Two hundred and forty dollars was sent to me at Leavenworth to bring them down here.

Q. To bring these witnesses? A. Yes, sir.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Dennis, there was one thing that I omitted asking you on the original examination: Did Sadie James ever make a proposition to you to go into the Bartlett matter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was it?

A. Along about the 9th or 10th of November, Sadie——

Mr. Cruce: What year?

A. 1914. Sadie was in Leavenworth at the home of Mrs. Yokum on Shawnee Street; she called me up at my office on the telephone and asked me to come down to see her, said that she wanted to see me on some important business, and I tried to get her to tell me on the 'phone what it was but she said come on down and I will tell you, I can't talk it on the 'phone. Well I went down.

Q. Well, now just cut it as short as you can. Tell what she said.

A. I went down and she invited me up there to her room. She got a front a room and she said—slapped me on the leg that way, and said, now, sit up close to me I want to tell you something to make some money; she said the Government is going to take hold of this thing and Mr. Bartlett has got a boy named Garrett, and if they can land that Garrett boy for Mr. Bartlett, we can make two or three thousand dollars apiece. She said we will have to turn around now and say what we knew wasn't so, and I said Sadie, I can't make money that way, and she said I know but all we got to do is to say the other was a frame-up and say that the boy was born here—we know that he was and she said I am going to make mine, and I said, well, I can't help you.

Q. What did she say to you?

A. Well, all right; I am going to make mine.

Q. What is the exact words she said to you?

A. She said hell, you would starve to death down in Oklahoma; those nigger lawyers down there would grab at that in a minute; and I said I can't do that, and I met her again on Delaware about half after four o'clock, and Charlie Anderson was standing there and she called me to the corner and she said Dennis come here; why don't you agree with me and let us make some money and she said Mr. Buell is in Kansas City now and you can go down with me and you will get a thousand dollars and it won't be long until you get the other; and I said Sadie, I can't do it and won't do it; and she said alright, I am going to give myself up and I am going in; and I said well, go ahead, I wouldn't do that for you or anybody else.

Recross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. You immediately wrote the Gem Oil Company about it?

A. I don't know whether I did or not, Judge.

Q. You didn't say anything about it in that other letter that you wrote?

A. I don't know whether I did or not.

Q. You had heard at that time that Sadie had made a confession, hadn't you?

A. Not at that time. She told me what she was going to do.

Q. You did go up there and talk to her?

A. Yes, sir, I did; November 9th, 1914.

Witness dismissed.

The Court: I haven't tried to keep track of the names of the various witnesses whose depositions have been introduced by the various interests heretofore. Has there been any deposition introduced of William Phillip?

Mr. German: No, sir.

The Court: Sam Smith—Sam Nash?

Mr. German: Your Honor, that William Phillip, I think the evidence shows that was this Mayo.

Mr. Cruce: Well, I don't know of any proof of that kind, Your Honor, please.

The Court: Well, there has not been any deposition of Phillip's introduced offered so far; is it conceded that Sam Smith is the same as Sam Nash?

Mr. Cruce: We don't concede that Your Honor.

Mr. Allen: Let me make that proof by Dennis.

Mr. Maxey: Dennis Jones said when he was on the stand that Sam Smith was Sam Nash.

Mr. Cruce: I believe he did say that.

The Court: Is there any deposition of Sam Nash offered——

Mr. German: This way; we offered the testimony of Sam Nash, given in 1914, the truth of which we will not vouch for, but only in support of our fabrication theory.

The Court: Is Walter Banks the other party?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: Fannie Cobell, any testimony like that in the case?

Mr. German: No, sir. May I ask Your Honor a question? Is there a Jim Phillips in that list?

The Court: I am reading from Government's exhibit—the census card—Government's Exhibit A-98, the 1890—what purports to be the 1890 census of the Molly Letcher family.

Mr. German: Possibly I can give Your Honor a little light on one there. Now, William Phillip, Your Honor—you remember we had a witness named Flynt, a colored woman from Spokane—George Flynt, and she is the wife or was the wife of Phillip, and Phillip is dead; he has been dead for some time.

Mr. Hanford: Was his wife at that time?

Mr. German: No, she became his wife October following of the taking of that census.

The Court: Alright.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, we have Mr. Merrick, and if counsel desire, we can put him on now.

The Court: You may put him on.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Equity vs. No. 2131
MINNIE ATKINS, et al.

VOLUME V.

Statement of the Evidence (Continued).

And thereupon, EDWARD MERRICK, being produced as a witness on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. Edward Merrick.
Q. Mr. Merrick, you are in the employ of the Superintendent for the Five Civilized Tribes? A. Yes, sir.
Q. What position do you hold?
A. I am a law clerk at the present time.
Q. You reside at Muskogee? A. Yes, sir.
Q. What age are you? A. 55.
Q. You have been ill recently? A. Yes. sir.
Q. You are back at work now?
A. Yes, sir, I came back to the office two or three days ago; I am not very strong.
Q. How long have you been connected with the Indian service at Muskogee?
A. Since the 4th day of March, 1901, except the few months I was out; I was in the legislature a couple of sessions.

Q. What year was that about?

A. I was in the legislature the year of 1909 and 1910.

Q. Yes, sir? The Oklahoma Legislature? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You began your service in 1901?

A. March 4th, 1901.

Q. In the employ of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you had connection with the work of the Commission before that date?

A. No, sir, not before March 4th, 1901.

Q. When did you come to Muskogee? A. When?

Q. Yes? A. On March 1, 1901.

Q. You had not been practicing law here at all?

A. No, sir.

Q. Hadn't lived here?

A. I practiced law back in Illinois.

Q. What was your first work with the Commission?

A. The first work I did for the Commission was writing up the dockets in 1896 cases; that was the first work.

Q. Now, you then a little later had to do with the enrollment of Creek citizens, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir, beginning about the 1st of April—along there.

Q. After the 1st of April, 1901? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was your position then? What position did you hold—what name did you give the position?

A. I was just a clerk in the enrollment division, Creek enrollment division.

Q. Clerk, who was in charge of the Creek enrollment division?

A. Primarily, I think Mr. Hopkins was in charge.

Q. Chief clerk, was he?

A. Well, I don't know whether that was his official title or not but he——

Q. Mr. Bixby was the acting chairman?

A. Mr. Bixby was acting chairman of the Commission, yes, sir.

Q. Which one of the Commissioners had the most to do with the Creek enrollment work? A. Mr. Bixby.

Q. What tribes did the other Commissioners work with?

A. Commissioners Needles and Breckenridge had in charge the Cherokee.

Q. Who had the Choctaw and Chickasaw?

A. Well, I believe the entire Commission handled that.

Q. Who had the Seminole?

A. The Seminole at that time were all enrolled practically except the new borns in 1901; I don't know who had charge.

Q. Now, Mr. Merrick, you remember the occasion of the Creek council meeting at Okmulgee and considering the ratification of the Original Creek Agreement, the Act of Congress approved March 1, 1901? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you go over there?

A. Sometime shortly after the first of May, I don't know just what day it was we went over there.

Q. Who else was over there with the Commission?

A. I don't know whether I can name all: Mr. Bixby was there in charge, Mr. Hopkins was there, Mr. Hastain, J. J. Beaver, Mr. Leiber, Miss Mira Young, Mrs. Lane, or Mrs. Brown at that time.

Q. The ones of the party you have named, which ones of them worked in the matter of the enrollment of Creek citizens?

A. Well, Mr. Bixby and Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Beaver and Mr. Leiber, Mr. Hastain and myself.

Q. Well, do you remember the date on which the treaty was ratified by the council? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What date? A. May 25, 1901.

Q. How long had the council been in session approximately before they ratified it?

A. I think the council had been in session more than two weeks.

Q. Why did the parties go over there that you have named?

A. Well, it was for the purpose of trying to ascertain whether or not the names on the rolls unaccounted for were entitled to enrollment. In other words went over there to try and complete as near as possible the Creek enrollment.

Q. What tribal rolls did you have?

A. The 1890 and 1895 rolls.

Q. Now, you spoke of unaccounted for names, what do you mean by that?

A. Well, up to that time, there were certain names on the tribal rolls that application had not been made for their enrollment. No one had appeared asking for their enrollment and they were, up to that time, unaccounted for. The Commission was not advised whether they were living or dead or moved away.

Q. About what stage in the progress of the work of the Commission in accounting for names on those tribal rolls had been reached up to the time you went to Okmulgee?

A. You mean the number?

Q. Yes, sir?

A. I think when we went over there we had approximately seven thousand or sixty-eight hundred.

Q. Already listed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many names on the tribal rolls approximately were unaccounted for at the time you went over there?

A. Well, of the Creeks——

Q. That is what I mean?

A. The names on the roll probably there were fifteen hundred or two thousand.

Q. Now, the rest were accounted for and in what way, what do you mean when you say the other names had been accounted for?

A. Well, application had been made or the Commission had obtained information that justified us in placing them on a census card.

Q. Now, were there any names on the tribal rolls which were not placed on the census cards, but which had been accounted for; in other words, the word dead was written by the side of the names on the roll?

A. On the roll, yes, sir. Quite a number were marked dead. They were not listed.

Q. They were not listed but they were accounted for?

A. They were disposed of.

Q. You mean by unaccounted for names, the name that wasn't listed on a card, where there was a name that had no notation by the side of it showing that it had been otherwise disposed of?

A. Yes, sir, there was no card number or other notation that the party was dead.

Q. That was an unaccounted for name?

A. Well, I called them unaccounted for.

Q. Now, I show you the original census card of Thomas Atkins, it isn't marked here, but a certified copy of it has been introduced, and ask you to look at that. Who made that card?

A. I did.

Q. When? A. May 23, 1901.

Q. Two days before the treaty was ratified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I am going to exclude from any of my inquiry the red ink writing that is on there.

A. I was going to say that was made in the last two or three days.

Q. Let's don't consider that at all? A. No.

Q. The other work that is in pen and ink is in yours?

A. The black ink is my work.

Q. State whether or not that card, the black ink work there, was completed at Okmulgee on May 23, 1901?

A. I would say it was. It seems to be the same color of ink all the way through in my writing.

Q. Now, Mr. Merrick, have you made any investigation to see whether there was any record in the office of the Commission relating to that record other than the tribal roll prior to May 23, 1901?

A. I made an investigation and I was unable to find any record that we have in the office.

Q. What record might have been found if it had existed, what record was sometimes found in such cases?

A. Well, we might have had what we called old census cards made in 1897 and 1898 by field parties.

Q. In taking census of the Creeks? A. Yes.

Q. There was none in this Atkins case?

A. No, sir, not so far as I was able to ascertain.

Q. State whether the name Thomas Atkins as it appeared on the 1895 tribal roll and picked up and used in this case was one of the unaccounted for names at Okmulgee in 1901?

A. Yes, sir, it was one of the names to which was added no notation of any kind at the time we went over there.

Q. Yes, sir. Now, what use if any did you make of the placing of the name on the 1895 roll there at Okmulgee on May 23, 1901?

A. Well, every name that appeared on the 1895 roll unaccounted for was listed on a card before we left there.

Q. Yes, sir, why?

A. The Original Agreement contained a provision to the effect that no person whomsoever shall be enrolled——

Q. Shall be added to the roll?

A. Or added to the roll after the ratification of this agreement.

Q. To the rolls of citizenship of the tribe?

A. And there was quite a number were under the impression that unless these names were enrolled in some manner possibly they would be excluded after the treaty was ratified without getting that name on a card or enrolled or enlisted for enrollment.

Q. Now, that original agreement that you refer to, was that the agreement then pending before the council?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, go ahead.

A. And for that reason it was decided by Mr. Bixby, who was in charge, that every unaccounted for name, whether any person appeared on behalf of that person or not, should be listed on a card. So, we made a great many cards there the last three or four days that contained only the name and the tribal enrollment. That is all we could get from the tribal rolls. Of course a great many of those unaccounted for were completed over there, because Town Kings and Warriors and other persons appearing there gave us the other information.

Q. Now, then, it was your purpose to enlist for enrollment either on a completed card or an uncompleted card the name of every unaccounted for citizen appearing on the tribal rolls before the treaty was ratified?

A. That was the intention, yes, sir, and I think it was done.

Q. And you think it was done? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have any recollection about the information, any independent recollection as to the information that was received with relation to Thomas Atkins appearing on census card No. 2774?

A. No, sir, I have no independent recollection.

Q. Now, I will ask you this, what was the tribal roll evidence of to you on that occasion insofar as it related to Thomas Atkins?

A. Well, the tribal roll was the basis for our placing these names on the roll, unless the Commission was advised that they died prior to April 1st, 1899, it was our authority for placing them on a card.

Q. In other words, that name, Thomas Atkins, was used there and considered because it appeared on the tribal roll?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Approximately how many names were enlisted for enrollment the last three days before that treaty was ratified, per day?

A. Well, I am unable to state, I could guess at it, Mr. German.

Q. What is your best judgment?

A. Including those names that we had no information at all other than the rolls, where we just simply wrote the name and the tribal roll, and most of those cards written the last few days were of that kind, I would say probably five or six hundred a day, but that is only a guess.

Q. Now, how many persons were engaged in making census cards on those three days?

A. I think that Eddy Hastain and myself probably wrote most of them. I found by going through the cards, making an investigation, I found that Mr. Leiber wrote a few of them. I also found that Mr. Beaver wrote a few there, and also one day I think possibly one day Mr. Beall was over there and wrote just a very few of them.

Q. What Mr. Beall is that?

A. W. O. Beall, used to be connected with the Commission.

Q. Now, was it the practice of the Commission to work after five o'clock in the afternoon?

A. Over there we worked several nights quite late.

Q. Was it the practice of the Commission to do that except upon that occasion?

A. Oh, no, it was not the practice, no, sir.

Q. State whether during the course of your work with the Commission, which covered several years, if there was ever an occasion when there was so many names listed for enrollment per day as upon those last few days before that treaty was ratified?

A. Well, I don't think there ever was a time where there were so many names placed upon cards, Mr. German.

Q. Well, did you work hurriedly and rapidly to get through there before they ratified the treaty?

A. Well, I think we put in time there, overtime, yes, sir. We were trying to get the matter done.

Q. You were rushing were you not?

A. I might say we were. Of course there was one other time just prior to March 4, 1907.

Q. That you had another rush? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was by reason of the Act of 1906 closing the enrollment on March 4, 1907?

A. Yes, sir, we worked then until late.

Q. Those were two occasions, the one just before the original treaty and the other before March 4, 1907, when the work was specially rushed? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Beall.

Q. Mr. Merrick, you have been continuously employed by the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes and its successors for the last sixteen years with the exception you were in the Oklahoma Legislature?

A. About five months the two sessions, and probably a short time.

Q. Before you came to the Indian Territory you say you lived in Illinois? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the character of work you were doing there?

A. Before I came here I was in bad health and didn't do anything, the year before I came here. But prior to that I was corporation clerk in the Secretary of State's office; and prior to that I practiced law, I practiced law fourteen years.

Q. Your occupation then during your business career has been clerical and in the practice of the legal profession?

A. Yes, sir, altogether.

Q. You came to the Indian Territory on March 1, 1901, I believe you stated? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Merrick are you married? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your wife's name?

A. Her name before she married me was Lona Cummings.

Q. Is she a Creek citizen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are still living with her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had had no experience in the enrollment of Indians prior to the time you came to the Indian Territory?

A. No, sir.

Q. You were delegated to the Creek enrollment of the Dawes Commission April 1, 1901?

A. Yes, sir, the first two or three weeks I worked for you on those 1896 dockets and after three weeks of that I was placed in the Creek Enrollment Division.

Q. To what particular duty were you assigned upon being transferred to the Creek enrollment division?

A. I assisted in the enrollment of Creek citizens.

Q. That is the hearing of applications, the listing for enrollment and the incidental work of enrollment of Creek citizens?

A. I couldn't say, Mr. Beall, whether before I went to Okmulgee that I personally heard any of the applications in the enrollment division. I think Mr. Hastain did most of that. Probably in a rush I assisted but I couldn't say as to that.

Q. Do you know the time you went to the Creek enrollment division as to about the number of Creek Indian full bloods who had up to that time been enlisted for enrollment?

A. Well, up to that time probably between five and six thousand names on the cards.

Q. Now, you stated in your direct examination that these names were placed upon these so called census cards as being listed for enrollment; that some of them were there by application and others from information. I wish you would state to the distinction you make between the words application and information?

A. I don't remember, Mr. Beall, of making any statement.

The Court: You stated a number of census cards had been prepared prior to the time you went to Okmulgee?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: That they had been prepared, a part of them—— Well, probably you didn't state in that connection, but you stated accounted for names had been placed on census cards, and that a part of them covered names for which application for enrollment had been made, and a part of them upon information received by the Commission. I so understood it.

A. What I meant to say, at the time we went over to Okmulgee, there was probably something over six thousand names on the census cards. All of those six thousand, if there was that many, were placed there upon information furnished the Commission, because all of those cards gave the parentage and age and postoffice address. That is the census cards that we had up to that time at the time we went over there. Then when we got to Okmulgee there were several hundred names on these rolls that I call unaccounted for, that is that were on no census card, and while over there we placed them all on census cards. Some where information was given and we could complete the card, some where we could get no information we simply noted on the card the name and tribal roll, being all that we could get.

Q. Mr. Merrick, prior to the time you went to Okmulgee, I wish you would state what information was contained on the so called completed census card?

A. Well, a great many of these census cards like this, the information was taken from, that is old Creek Census Cards that were obtained in the field in 1897 and 1898, a great many of them by Mr. Hopkins, that had the complete information relative to that family. Mr. Beavers, you remember, for quite a while copied on this census card the information that was obtained on those old Creek Census Cards. That information had been obtained—— Of course, I am only advised of that—in field parties in 1897 and 1898.

Q. If I understand you correctly, that was the transfer of information that the Commission had received in 1897 or 1898 in making the census of the Creeks before the Commission secured the possession of the tribal roll?

A. Yes, sir. And then there was a great many of these census cards made in which we had no old census cards, but people would come in and make application and they would be heard and the cards completed.

Q. What was the general policy and practice of the Commission in respect to application for enrollment as Creek citizens as to the requirement of personal application?

A. Well, the Commission always required some one to appear and give the information. It wasn't always the person himself, the father and mother would come in and give information relative to the family, and very often we listed for enrollment members of the Creek Nation that refused to come in and we would gather the necessary data from the Town Kings and Warriors.

Q. Then, there was no established policy requiring that application should be made in person by adults, but permitted applications to be made by other persons who were sufficiently well acquainted with them to testify as to the parentage and so forth?

A. No, sir, there were hundreds of Creeks enrolled who never did appear. None of these Snakes appeared, the only way we could get the data to enroll the Snakes was to get it from other people.

Q. That is my question. You got that information from other people? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did not require their personal application?

A. Oh, no.

Q. Then there was no well established practice or rule requiring personal application to be made? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, at the time you went to Okmulgee in May, 1901, I believe you stated it was about the first of the month, the Creek Agreement—the Original Creek Agreement had been ratified by Congress? A. Yes, sir, I think March 1st.

Q. Section 28 of that agreement had the provision in reference to the termination of the enrollment on the date of the ratification of that agreement?

A. Yes, sir. The first paragraph I think.

Q. Now, was the policy of the Commission in going to Okmulgee to account for the persons whose names were on the tribal rolls who had not been placed on the census cards, or was it with a view to receiving applications of persons who might be there in attendance on the Creek Council?

A. Well, I think the object covered both, to receive applications and try to get information.

Q. At the time you originally went to Okmulgee, had any question been raised in the minds of the Commission or its employees that section 28 of the Original Creek Agreement would terminate the hearing of applications or the placing of the names of persons upon census cards, or the Commission's records, whose names were on the tribal rolls?

A. Don't think I heard the matter discussed when I went over at first, but after we were over there a week or two the question seemed to be raised by somebody.

Q. Wasn't that question raised after the Commission went to Okmulgee by members of the Creek National Council?

A. Well, as I stated a moment ago, I heard nothing about it when we first went over there, but after we were there a week or two that matter was discussed, it was raised by somebody.

Q. You understood the purpose of the Commission in going to Okmulgee was to be present where there was likelihood of a number of Creek citizens being present in attendance upon the Council?

A. Oh, yes, the members of the Council were there, and in addition to that the marshal's office went over there and went out and brought in a great number of Creeks.

Q. But this question of accounting for the names of persons on the tribal rolls was never seriously considered by the Commission until after this field party had been established at Okmulgee during the session of the Council?

A. I never heard that subject discussed prior to that time.

Q. After the question was discussed, Mr. Merrick, do you know what action, if any, was taken by the Commission to account for the names of the persons who were on the 1895 and 1890 authenticated Creek Rolls?

A. If I remember correctly, the Council was asked to postpone action of the ratification of this treaty until we could get every name unaccounted for on a census card and numbered.

Q. What efforts were made to ascertain whether the persons unaccounted for were entitled to enrollment, and if possible to procure their attendance before the Commission?

A. The Commission had before it at all times different members of the House of Kings and the House of Warriors and prominent Creek citizens, trying to ascertain whether or not different persons on the rolls were living and where they lived and all about them. That was the object of the Commission being over there. That character of work was done all the time and there were in the room where we were working at all times with Mr. Bixby and Mr. Hopkins, the men in charge, had before them some members of Council.

Q. Then you inquired of Town Kings and Town Warriors and other tribal officials of the Nation what persons who were on the Creek Tribal Roll and unaccounted for?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what other efforts were made by the Commission to secure this information or the attendance of these parties?

A. Well, Creek citizens other than members of Council were called in and questioned about the names that appeared on the rolls; and every effort possible was made to get them in. And I know we had two or three wagons there that were sent out and several loads were brought in.

Q. The Commission had at the time had a considerable amount of field equipment located at Okmulgee?

A. Yes, sir, we had several wagons.

Q. Did the Commission use any of its own employees in going into the field to ascertain whether these persons were living on April 1, 1899, or otherwise entitled to enrollment?

A. I think, yes, sir, we had field parties. I don't remember now Mr. Beall who all went out. Of course, there was some members of the marshal's party.

Q. By the marshal's party you refer to the United States marshal? A. Yes, sir

Q. His office was lending equipment and assistance to the Dawes Commission in this work?

A. Yes, sir, Marshal Bennett I believe is the name that was over there with several of his employees.

Q. What, Mr. Merrick, was the general class of citizens whose names still remained on the tribal rolls and unaccounted for by the Commission at the time you went to Okmulgee?

A. Well, generally they were the full bloods because they were hard to get, and refused to come in.

Q. They were the class of Indians that were opposed to the enrollment and allotment by the Federal Government?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether the localities in which these Indians lived were such that they would be accessible—that it could be easily reached?

A. Well, a great many of them are located at quite a distance away from town and some of them were very hard to find and some of them never were found.

Q. In what would the information be furnished the Commission gathered by the employes of the marshal's office—by the employes of the Commission, and by the Creek tribal authorities that would be basis upon which this enrollment was predicated?

A. Well, so far as the Creek Nation was concerned most of the information was in the shape of verbal statements made by persons who appeared before the Commission, there was no testimony taken except in some few cases where there was contests made on the part of the Creek National Attorney.

Mr. Cruce: Just a moment; you mean testimony taken down?

A. Yes, transcribed.

Q. Was that true also as to the investigations that would be made by the men sent into the field by the Dawes Commission? And by the United States marshal's office?

A. I know it is true of parties sent out by the Commission; of course I can't say what the marshal's office did when they were out.

Q. Did the marshal's office in furnishing you any information in reference to these unaccounted for citizens ever furnish you a transcript of any testimony or statement that had been taken down at the time they interviewed these different Indians?

A. I don't recall Mr. Beall, that the marshal's office ever took to secure any testimony with reference to that. They were over there, primarily to bring these Indians in that they found. I don't recall that they ever—some member of the marshal's office might have given information but I don't recall.

Q. But the information that was conveyed to the enrolling officer—that is the person who actually prepared the census cards, by the employes of the Commission who were sent into the field, was not in the form of any written or transcribed testimony?

A. No, sir, only as I stated before in contested cases where the Creek Nation would probably contest the enrollment.

Q. This matter of securing this information continued until the ratification of the Original Creek Agreement on May 25, 1901. I believe you stated?

A. We completed taking the names of the tribal rolls and placing them on the cards before the council acted and as soon as we were through, the council was advised and then they voted upon the ratification of the treaty.

Q. In securing this information and from your personal knowledge, so far as it exists, the Commission used every possible effort that was then available to secure either the attendance of these Indians or such information as they could gather that would protect any rights that they might have, prior to the ratification of the original agreement?

A. I so understood, yes, sir.

Q. The card that you have in your hand, Mr. Merrick, which is the original of Government's Exhibit Number 1, has two numbers in the upper righthand corner, 2707 card number, and field number 2774; I wish you would explain to the court the significance of those two numbers.

A. At the time we went to Okmulgee and prior to making a schedule of an enrolled citizen, the census cards were numbered consecutively from 1 on; that number was called the field number.

Q. May I interrupt you; you mean the blank card—the cards were numbered in blank?

A. Well, we numbered them ahead, yes, sir. Yes, sir; of course when we went over to Okmulgee, we had several hundred and had them numbered before we went over there. That lower number, that field number is a number that runs from 1 consecutively. The card number is the number given at the time the schedule was prepared and a citizen given an enrollment number; the enrollment number and the card number are the two numbers that appeared on the approved roll. This field number was the Dawes Commission number, reference that we had to card and we called that the field number.

Q. Was that the only form of census card you used in listing Creek Indians by blood?

A. It is all that I know of, that they used at this time.

As I stated before, in '97 and '98, there was some old census cards, smaller, on different color paper, but I know of no other cards but these.

Q. Those are the cards that you referred to as having been used in taking the census in 1897 and 1898? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Merrick, you said that these cards were consecutively numbered with a field number from 1 up?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any distinction made in those census cards by the Commission in the cases of application made by—in person, applications of—that is applications made in person, or where the citizen was listed from information, or where his name might have been transferred from the tribal roll in eighteen hundred and—from the tribal roll in 1901 at Okmulgee?

A. No, sir, there is no way from an examination of these census cards.

Q. Now, in examining Government's Exhibit 1, is there any way in which in you can differentiate that particular census card as having been made from a personal application or whether the name was listed there from information furnished by other parties, or whether it was transferred from the 1895 census roll?

A. Well, as to this Thomas Atkins card, I will have to say that someone furnished information to the Commission to the Commission over at Okmulgee on May 23rd——

Q. You didn't get my question.

Mr. Cruce: Let him answer that question.

A. And this card was written and completed over there on that date; possibly I didn't get your question.

Q. Would there be any distinguishing characteristics which would show to the Commission or any employee that that card was prepared from a personal application, or whether the name was listed from information or whether it was transferred from the tribal roll?

A. I didn't quite understand, Mr. Beall, what you mean by transferred. Of course all these names——

Q. Mr. German asked you and I believe you answered in the affirmative, that on the last two days at Okmulgee, it was the purpose to account for all of the names of the tribal roll for whom no application had been made, and that you transferred those names from the tribal roll to the census card?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have testified that these applicants were placed upon the census card either by applications made by them or from information? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, the cards were consecutively numbered from 1 on up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, is there any way that you can distinguish from this particular card whether that was a personal application, whether the name was listed from information furnished by other parties, or whether it was transferred from the tribal roll?

A. Well, from the data on this card, I would have to say that this listing—this enrollment on this card was from information given.

The Court: Did you say from the data, or date?

A. From the data—I mean the parentage, blood, and age. Of course, I might say it was not a personal application because age here is given as 10, and I don't we take any application, of course, ten years of age, so I will have to say that this card was made from information given by some one other than Thomas Atkins to the Commission over there on that date.

Q. Might have been made by some member of the family?

A. It might have been, yes, sir.

Q. In other words, there is nothing that would show you whether the parent or some near relative had not appeared there and made an application for the enrollment of this child?

A. No, sir, there is nothing appears on the card.

Q. And there were no distinguishing characteristics in all of the census cards? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Merrick, in the column marked "tribal enrollment" appeared the words "town, 1895, Euchee, 213;" I wish you would state where you secured that information.

A. That information was taken from the 1895 Euchee roll.

Q. I now hand you the original payment roll of 1895 of Euchee Town, copy of which is in evidence, and ask you to identify the notation on the census card from the data on the roll.

A. The Thomas Atkins listed on field card number 2774 is the same person as the Thomas Atkins on the Euchee payroll, an authentic roll, opposite number 213. That is evidence of the fact that after the name of Thomas Atkins on the roll—on the payroll—2774—and that corresponds to the field number of this census card.

Q. Was there any other data upon the 1895 Euchee town roll opposite the name of Thomas Atkins other than appears in the column marked "Tribal enrollment" and which appears upon the census card?

Q. Except from an examination of the authentic 1895 roll; this column—this name opposite 213, Euchee town, appears as short Thomas; or Thos. Atkins; and note of that has been made on this card—this roll, his payroll.

Mr. German: By short Thomas—the word short is not a name.

A. Thos. I call it, short Thomas, on the authentic 1895 Euchee roll.

Q. Mr. Merrick, is the 1895 receipt payment roll of Euchee town the exhibit now before you, the one from which the name of Thomas Atkins, on field card 2774, was identified?

A. Yes, sir, it was taken from that number 213 Euchee town.

By the Court.

Q. Now, let's see if I understand; do you mean to say, Mr. Merrick that the 1895 roll which were used over at Okmulgee at the time that you were there in May, enrolling, is the payroll of 1895 which you now hold in your hand?

A. Yes, sir, this is the payroll and that name is on there as Thomas Atkins.

Q. Now, is this the payroll which you hold in your hand the one which you used at Okmulgee as the 1895 payroll, from which you took the various names?

A. Yes, sir, we took the names from the payroll.

Q. That is, this roll which you hold in your hand?

A. Yes, sir, but we go back to the authentic roll for further identification and as the notation is made on that card that this name appears on the authentic 1895 roll, as Thos.

Q. Now, the authentic roll is that the typewritten roll to which you refer?

A. No, sir, that is the authentic tribal roll; this other roll is the payroll. The other is the authentic roll certified to by the——

The Court: Has that so called authentic roll been before me?

Mr. Hill: I don't know; I was inquiring about that the other day.

Mr. Beall: If the court please, I think Mr. German did offer a photograph of this at the time.

Mr. German: Yes, I think that is in the evidence.

The Court: Alright.

Q. What I was trying to get at was, and I think I understand this now, that the 1895 roll which the witness has testified as being the one from which the names was taken over there at Okmulgee in May, 1901, is the 1895 payroll which has been used here from time to time, in interrogating witnesses?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: As distinguished from the so-called 1895 authenticated roll?

A. Yes, sir. If we had used the authentic roll, probably we would have written that name T-h-o-s., Thomas.

By Mr. Beall.

Q. Now, Mr. Merrick, I present to you the original of the authentic 1895 census roll of Euchee Town, photographic copy of which is in evidence as Government's Exhibit A-30, and will ask you to state if that is the particular roll to which you have just referred as the authenticated 1895 roll?

A. Yes, sir, we always made reference to the authentic roll if we had them; we haven't all of the authentic rolls.

Q. Now, is there any additional information on the authenticated 1895 roll of Euchee Town than there is on the 1895 receipt payment roll, from which the card was prepared?

A. No, sir, there is not as much information on the authentic as there would be on the other roll.

Q. Can you, for the enlightenment of the court, tell the difference between those two rolls while you have the two of them?

A. Of course, I can only tell, Mr. Beall, why the payroll was made just from the manner in which it was handed down to me.

Mr. German: Historical matter?

A. The payroll was copied from the authentic roll on blanks that had lines, so that they could make notations of the payment.

Q. Then, the authenticated roll is the roll of the Euchee Town upon which the council acted?

A. Yes, sir, the council acted upon the authentic roll and I think the payrolls are all certified to, also.

Q. You are not sure of that?

A. Well, I am pretty sure that they are; they are sometimes sometimes some difference in the spelling of the given names.

Q. Then, if I understand you correctly, the only information in reference to the name of Thomas Atkins that you have procured from either the 1895 receipt payment roll of Euchee Town, or the 1895 authenticated roll of Euchee Town, was the notation appearing under the caption "tribal enrollment"?

A. Yes, sir, and the name; the name and the tribal enrollment was all we could get from either those rolls.

Q. Now, Mr. Merrick, on this card appears, after the printed words "postoffice Muskogee, Indian Territory," did you write that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you get that information?

A. I can't say positively but it could have been in two ways: one, the person who gave the information as to the parentage, age, degree of blood, gave it; the other, by looking up the card that had the name of the mother; this card shows that Minnie Atkins, 1895 Euchee roll, was the mother; by reference to our books, I find that there is an old Creek census card that has Minnie's name—Minnie Atkins' name on it, and that old Creek census card, because—gives her postoffice as Kuskogee, and possibly I placed Muskogee there because the name of the mother as given was Muskogee, and it might have been given by the person who gave the other information.

Q. Under column marked "age" appears the figures ten, is that in your handwriting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are testifying, now, from the original of Government's Exhibit A, census card number 2707, containing the name of Thomas Atkins?

A. Yes, sir, field number 2774, age 10, is written by me.

Q. Where did you get that information?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you get it off of the 1895 receipt payment roll of Euchee Town, or off of the 1895 authenticated roll of Euchee town? A. No, sir.

Q. In what other manner could you have secured that information?

A. Someone must have told me or some member of the Commission. I might state here that because this card is in my handwriting, it is not conclusive evidence that any person appeared before me, because there were persons who appeared before Mr. Bixby or Mr. Hopkins and gave information about these members and Mr. Bixby would make a memorandum and sent it to either Mr. Hastain or myself with the necessary data to fill out one of these cards, so I can't say this—any person appeared before me.

Q. But that information was placed on that card by you from the evidence or testimony of some one who appeared before the Commission, and irrespective of the 1895 payment roll, of the authenticated roll?

A. Yes, sir, that information would have to be given by someone.

Q. Now, under the column marked "blood" appear the figures ½; what would be your statement as to the manner in which you secured that information?

A. Well, I would say in this case—I would have to say in this case that that information was probably given to us, because of an examination of Minnie's old census card I think she is marked less than a fullblood on that; that is my recollection, but if there was any card that would show Minnie to be a fullblood and then the father being a half-blood, then the child would necessarily have to be a half-blood.

Q. You could procure that information from the Town King? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Or some other person who might have testified with reference to this child?

A. Oh, yes; people appearing before the Commission often told me the degree of blood.

Q. Now, Mr. Merrick, in the column "name of father" appears the words white man, and under the column "name of mother" appear the words Minnie Atkins, both in your handwriting, I believe. Are they not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you get that information?

A. I don't know; I can't say who furnished it.

Q. Could you have secured that information from the 1895 payment—receipt payment roll or the 1895 authenticated roll of Euchee Town? A. No, sir.

Q. Then, that information appearing on the card as to the parentage of Thomas Atkins, must have been secured from the testimony or evidence of some other character that was before the Commission outside of these tribal rolls?

A. Yes, sir, it would have to be; someone would have to furnish it, furnish in some manner.

Q. Those notations in pencil were not on this card at the time that you wrote it?

A. No, sir, they were made here after the matter was in the land office.

Q. The card as originally prepared by you are the names and figures in black ink? A. Black ink, yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Merrick, you said that this name was listed for enrollment at Okmulgee on May 23rd, 1901? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that the information that you secured with reference to the age, sex, the degree of blood, and parentage of Thomas Atkins must have come from some other source which the Commission had before it other than these 1895 rolls?

A. Yes, sir, except possibly the sex; possibly no question was asked about that on account of the name. All that other information would have to be furnished in some manner.

Q. After the conclusion of the field party that you had at Okmulgee and the ratification of the original Creek Agreement, what action, if any, was taken by the Dawes Commission in reference to those persons who you had listed for enrollment during the last few days before the ratification of the agreement?

A. In all cases where the cards were not completed this data as to age, parentage and degree of blood, copies of those cards or in some cases the cards themselves were taken out by field parties; identification parties we called them. These parties were out sometimes three or four months trying to get information about them and copies of those cards were made and taken out on thin paper, and then when Town Kings, or members of the council, or prominent Creek citizens would come into the office occasionally, Mr. Hastain would ask them about different persons, whether they knew them and the Commission was constantly at work for two or three years to try to complete these cards to ascertain whether or not they were entitled to enrollment.

Q. At the time of the ratification of the Original Creek Agreement, had any Creek citizen been enrolled as entitled to an allotment, and his enrollment approved by the Secretary of the Interior?

A. At the time we were at Okmulgee?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. When was the actual work for the preparing of the final rolls for the approval of the Secretary of the Interior instituted?

A. I think I commenced that work sometime in 1902.

Q. Did you have the supervision of that work?

A. Yes, sir, I did for practically all the roll, possibly the last few numbers but practically all of it.

Q. On Government's Exhibit A in front of the name of Thomas Atkins and under the caption "Dawes roll number" appears the number 7913; state to the court what that number is.

A. That is the approved roll number of Thomas Atkins.

Q. Did you place that number there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When?

A. I can't say just when but at the time I prepared the schedule and transmitted the schedule having these roll numbers, before the schedule was transmitted, I noted these roll numbers on the census cards to correspond with the approved roll as prepared.

Q. In preparing the schedule or the approved rolls, would you in every instance submit the census card with the schedule as prepared by you to some member of the Commission or to the Commission as a body?

A. I don't remember of submitting that matter to anybody except Mr. Bixby, but I always had in the schedule—took in the schedule and letter of transmittal, or a draft of it, the census cards and any other evidence that we might have, and with Mr. Bixby and one other person, I believe there were three of us, and Mr. Bixby taken the census card, and sometimes the affidavit, death affidavit in case of death, that were pasted on the back of it, he took the census card and evidence, one reading the roll and one the letter of transmittal, and they were all gone over with Mr. Bixby.

Q. Mr. Bixby was the particular member of the Commission who had charge of the final enrollment of the Creeks?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Merrick, the Original Creek Agreement, under which you were preparing the final roll provided that only persons living on April 1st, 1899, were entitled to enrollment, or their children who were born up to May 25th, 1901, the date of the ratification of the agreement, is that correct?

A. Under the original?

Q. Under the original agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then when you submitted——

A. No, I believe in that also was children born, I think May 21st, 1901, and July 30th, 1901—1900, and living on that date; I believe there was another class.

Q. Yes, I believe that is correct. But, in case of a person born prior to April 1st, 1899, in order to be entitled to enrollment the Commission would inquire whether he was living April 1st, 1899? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Again presenting you Government's Exhibit Number 1, I will ask you to state if when that name was placed upon the schedule you furnished Mr. Bixby or he had before him information outside of the 1895 Euchee Town receipt roll, and the 1895 authenticated roll of Euchee Town, the testimony or evidence of some character, showing that this particular Thomas Atkins was entitled to enrollment, and was living on April 1st, 1899?

A. I don't think we had any information about—other than appeared on this card at the time this information was given; the person taking that information was satisfied that he was living April 1st, 1899.

Q. Both you and the Commissioner who placed the name upon the roll was satisfied at the time that he was living on April 1st, 1899?

A. Yes, sir, I thought so, or I would not submitted it to Mr. Bixby.

Q. And you state, Mr. Merrick, that the information as to the parentage, age, sex, degree of blood, and postoffice address appearing upon the census card could not be secured in any other manner except by evidence or testimony, or some information that was furnished the Dawes Commission upon which it acted in enrolling this name?

A. No, sir, that is the only way.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Now, Mr. Merrick, you completed that card at Okmulgee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whatever you got, you got there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time you made the card; and when the schedule was made afterwards, and I believe you said the first schedules of the names were in the fall of 1901, didn't you?

A. I thought it was sometime in 1902, but I am not certain.

Q. Well, you recall, Mr. Merrick that the first approval of any schedule by the Secretary of the Interior was March 2nd, 1901, do you?

A. Yes. Well, then, the schedules were prepared in 1902.

Q. Yes, sir, I misunderstood——

A. That was my understanding.

Q. Now, you would make the schedule from the cards?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You would take a batch of Census Cards which were in completed form and make the schedule, that is you would make a list of the names which you would take from the census cards? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That list of names with the data appearing opposite each one you would call the schedule?

A. Yes, sir, we prepared a schedule containing approximately five hundred names at a time.

Q. Yes, sir, your different schedules contained approximately five hundred names each? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you would take that schedule—— First, after preparing that schedule you would prepare a letter of transmittal? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To the Secretary of the Interior transmitting that schedule and it would be prepared in quadruplicate or quintuple? A. I think the roll was in quadruplicate.

Q. That roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, that is the schedule? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The roll and the schedule is one and the same thing?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Only you called it a schedule up until the time the Secretary approved it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you would call it the final roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you would prepare that schedule together with the letter of transmittal, you would take it to Mr. Bixby or some other Commissioner that passed upon it, together with each of the census cards from which you had taken the names to put upon the schedule, together with the tribal rolls, wouldn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And if you had any other data in written or typewritten form, you would take it too?

A. Yes, sir, we took all the evidence.

Q. All you had? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in this Atkins case all you had was the census card which you hold in your hand and the tribal roll, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir, that seems to be all.

Q. Seems to be all you had and you—— Some other commissioner, to either Mr. Bixby or some other commissioner?

A. Well, in this case I took this one and took it to Mr. Bixby because I never compared schedules with any other commissioner.

Q. How do you know you fixed this up?

A. On account of this roll number being in my handwriting.

Q. And when you considered those with Mr. Bixby did the other commissioners also consult them or not?

A. No, sir.

Q. In your experience, Mr. Bixby was the sole commissioner?

A. Yes, sir, he compared them and sometimes if he wasn't satisfied with one——

Q. It would be turned back?

A. Yes, sir, and I would have to get another card and put in that place.

Q. Now, Mr. Bixby then in this case considered the census card and the tribal roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And listed this name on the schedule? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it went forward and has been approved?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The old census card, you distinguish from the census card like the one you hold in your hand?

A. Yes, sir, we called those old census cards, Old Creek Census Cards.

Q. Now, see if we can't shorten this a little. The old census cards were the cards made up in 1897 and 1898 by the parties that went out in the field and took a census of the Creeks? A. Yes, sir, that is the way I understand it.

Q. And the new are regular census cards, or the regular census cards are the cards like the one you hold in your hand, Government's Exhibit 1? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The new, or regular census cards, like Government's Exhibit 1, technically are not census cards, are they, because they were not made in the field in the course of a canvass?

A. Well, I don't know, we called them census cards.

Q. But they were cards that would be made up, when you would have any name up for consideration and would conclude that it was entitled to go on the final roll you were making?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is the final action, of your final action, isn't it?

A. Yes, sir, this card completed is the final record.

Q. Except transferring to the schedule? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when there was a person—— Well, let's refer to the old census card again. You spoke a moment ago of the old Creek Census Card of Minnie, the mother. I show you Government's Exhibit A-31, is that a certified copy of the card you are talking about of the old census card of Minnie, the mother?

A. Yes, sir, that is the old census card that I had reference to.

Q. Now, the reason that you concluded that that is Minnie, the mother, who is referred to on the Thomas Atkins census card, card Field Number 2774, is because of these 1895 pay roll numbers appearing on Government's Exhibit A-31 prior to the name of the three persons there entered?

A. Well, I used the word mother there because the mother is given as Minnie Atkins here that has Minnie Atkins nee Harris on it, and the identification is the same as on the pay roll.

Q. In other words, No. 210 on the 1895 pay roll, which is the number by the side of Minnie Harris, nee Atkins, on the old Census Card? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The two numbers are the same? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And refers to the old roll now on this census card of Minnie, it contains the name of Harvey and Charlie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Not the name of Thomas?

A. No, the name Thomas is not on there.

Q. Now, in a case where there was a personal application for enrollment, either by one who sought enrollment, or on behalf of some one else, prior to the Original Creek Agreement of 1901, you had to find the name on the 1895 Pay Roll or on the 1890 pay roll, did you not, unless it was a new born. I am speaking now prior to the Original Creek Agreement.

A. I might say, Mr. German, that prior to that time——

Q. I might qualify it a little further and save a little time. Unless there was an enrollment made by the 1896 Citizenship Commission, or by the Dawes Commission under its provisions under the Act of 1896?

A. Yes, sir, or by the Colbert Commission, or some special act of Council.

Q. In other words, there had to be citizenship prior to any enrollment?

A. I think from an examination of the cards I made yesterday, I think practically every name on the cards that were completed prior to our going to Okmulgee, that is the tribal enrollment except where there were children born since; of course, since that time——

Q. Tribal roll constituted material evidence there to you on the question of tribal recognition as citizenship; that is the point I am making? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And also examination?

A. Yes, sir. Under the old Curtis Act of June 28, 1898, providing that the Commission should purge the tribal rolls of those not entitled; and if we found a name appearing on the tribal rolls and some person made application and said that they were living, it was considered there wasn't any question if they were living.

Q. And you found the name on the 1895 roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, over at Okmulgee, in May, 1901, did you swear those town kings and warriors, or did you just take their statements?

A. I couldn't say about that. Mr. Bixby was authorized to administer oaths but I couldn't say whether anybody was sworn.

Q. After that Okmulgee work, you spoke of field parties that took cards our and investigated them?

A. They were cards that were not completed as to descriptive data, parentage and age.

Q. That wouldn't include the Atkins card?

A. No, sir. I don't think anything was ever done with the Atkins card for several years.

Q. After May, 1901? A. No, sir.

Mr. German: I believe that is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Beall.

Q. You stated that in preparing the census card of Thomas Atkins, Government's Exhibit No. 1, that you reached the conclusion that he was half Indian blood. By referring to Government's Exhibit A-31, whereon appears the name of Minnie Harris, nee Atkins, as a full blood, can you show me where you get that information full blood from that exhibit.

A. I don't think, Mr. Beall, I made any statement of that kind. I said possibly I got the post office address by referring to Minnie's old census card showing her post office to be Muskogee.

The Court: He did state in his testimony either that they did or possibly might have referred—— I will not attempt to quote it.

A. I stated, Your Honor, that the degree of blood was given, or possibly by referring to the old Minnie Atkins census card, if it showed that she was a full blood. I didn't know what the old card showed.

Q. Then, you would have access to these old census cards made in 1897 and in 1898 in preparing the census card made under the Act of 1898?

A. Oh, yes, sir, we took those two boxes along.

Q. Would you state whether or not you had access to Government's Exhibit A-31 at the time you prepared the original of Government's Exhibit A-1?

A. Yes, sir, we had all of those cards over at Okmulgee.

Q. In the portion of degree of Indian blood of Minnie Harris, nee Atkins, on Government's Exhibit A-31, I wish you would state to the Court what it is?

A. The old census card shows that this Minnie Harris, nee Atkins, opposite number 210, was a half blood. So, evidently the half blood placed on the final census card was not taken from this card; some one must have told the Commission.

Q. Mr. Merrick, as a general proposition what would be your best judgment as to the number of census cards of Creek Indians enrolled by the Dawes Commission that would be supported by any written testimony or evidence of any character outside of the notations upon the face of the census card?

A. Will you read that question?

(Question read.)

A. I think we had something like eight or nine hundred enrollment cases in which we took testimony.

Mr. Cruce: You mean transcribed testimony?

A. In which we took testimony that was transcribed. And of that number possibly a thousand or fifteen hundred are enrolled and as to the other eighty-five hundred I don't believe we had any written or transcribed testimony. That they were enrolled from information obtained in different ways by the Commission.

Q. Would there be any way of differentiating any one of those eighty-five hundred from the Thomas Atkins on this card? A. No way at all.

Q. Now, Mr. Merrick was there ever any person placed upon the final schedule by the Dawes Commission as entitled to enrollment without information of some character having been gathered by the Commission, aside from the tribal rolls, as to the applicant's right to enrollment and to the fact whether he was living on April 1, 1899, or not?

A. I don't think so. I don't think any person was ever enrolled without some sort of information.

Q. Some sort of evidence exclusive of the tribal roll from which he was identified?

A. Yes, sir, there was quite a number of these unaccounted for cards that we could get no information. They were all dismissed. We had to have some information.

Q. In other words, you couldn't furnish this information appearing upon the face of the census card from the tribal rolls alone? A. No, sir.

Q. The Tommy Atkins that appears upon this card opposite Roll No. 7913, shows in the column "Name of Moather" Minnie Atkins, you say that information must have been gathered from some evidence or statement that was before the Commission exclusive of the tribal rolls?

Mr. German: I object to this upon the ground it is repetition.

The Court: He may answer that question.

A. Yes, sir, that name must necessarily have been furnished the office.

Q. Then the person enrolled as Thomas Atkins, opposite number 7913, was enrolled as the child of Minnie Atkins from the 1895 Euchee Town Roll? A. So identified.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What do you mean by enrollment cases, Mr. Merrick, does the term "enrollment case" have a peculiar significance?

A. Application would be made for the enrollment of certain Creeks or certain persons by attorneys; we would notify the National Attorney and he would investigate, and in a great many cases contest it, so that made an enrollment case.

Q. So, by enrollment case you mean contested cases?

A. Yes, sir, and we would write a decision.

Q. That is cases where there was no contest raised you didn't denominate enrollment cases? A. No, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hill.

Q. Mr. Merrick, you have just testified in answer to Mr. Beall's last question that there was some evidence or information before you that Tommy Atkins on this card was the son of Minnie, and you said there was some certain information before you at that time. That is correct, isn't it?

A. Yes, sir, some one must have given that information.

Q. There was also evidence before you at the time that he was a male aged ten, was there not?

A. Well, it would be necessary to have some evidence as to the age.

Q. Well, you might assume, being named Thomas, that he was a boy, but occasionally you find a girl named Thomas. There was likely information before you that he was aged ten or approximately ten when you made this card?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is not on the tribal roll, there is nothing in the tribal roll that gives—that that is correct as to the age of the party? A. No, sir.

Q. There was like information before you at the time that his father was a white man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was like information before you at the time that his mother was a full blood?

A. Yes, sir, I would take it that that information given that Thomas Atkins is given one-half blood.

Q. You have information right before you that his father was a white man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Necessarily then you had the information that his mother was a full blood?

A. Evidently the informant so told either me or Mr. Bixby or some one that the mother was a full blood.

Q. You have referred to the old Creek card, which I hold in my hand and present to you, it is Government's Exhibit A-31, as a source of information, or rather a possible source of information if I understood you correctly, in making out this card?

A. Only with reference to the postoffice address of Thomas Atkins. I stated a moment ago that the post office address might have been obtained in two ways: Either the person giving the information to the Commission said the post office was Muskogee, or it is possible I might have referred to that old census card of Minnie's and found that her post office was given as Muskogee and for that reason gave the child's post office as Muskogee.

Q. Do you find that this card, which is Field Card No. 193, that is the old Creek card?

A. What we called the Old Creek Census Card.

Q. And that family number 193 here, where is that taken from?

A. I don't know. That is an arbitrary number given by the parties out in the field.

Q. That number is not connected with any of the tribal rolls? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, this card was considered, was it?

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, were the field cards—— Suppose you were examining any family, the Smith family or Jones family, if there are such families among the Creeks, you would trace up all the families from whom they were descended in order to get the correct information?

A. Yes, sir, and no doubt that card was referred to.

Q. This was a proper source of information in making out the list if he was a son of Minnie?

A. Yes, sir. We have indexes to all of those cards, and the mother being named as Minnie Atkins, no doubt somebody looked for the old card.

Q. And you recognize this photograph as being a card such as you would get information from?

A. Well, that is a photographic copy.

Q. I understand you have no personal recollection at this time? A. No, sir.

Q. Of any of those matters.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. This card lists Thomas Atkins here as the son of Minnie Atkins, don't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Minnie Atkins, the census card listed him as Thomas Atkins, age, parentage mother Minnie Atkins?

A. Minnie Atkins, 1895, Euchee.

Q. Now, at the time you wrote out that card as Thomas Atkins and mother Minnie Atkins of the Euchee tribe, you intended to enroll Thomas Atkins the son of Minnie Atkins, didn't you?

Mr. Hill: We object.

The Court: He may answer.

Q. You intended to enroll Tommy as the son of Minnie Atkins, didn't you, as it appears there?

A. Well, as it appears, Minnie Atkins being given as the mother, but primarily the Tommy Atkins is the one that appears on the Euchee Roll No. 213.

Q. I understand, but you put Thomas Atkins' name on there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you put Minnie Atkins as the mother of Tommy?

A. That is the information given.

Q. From that information you intended to put Thomas Atkins up to the Dawes Commission as the son of Minnie?

A. That was the conclusion we arrived at from the information the Commission had, that Thomas Atkins was the son of Minnie.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hill.

Q. All you put on the roll itself was Thomas Atkins, age ten, a male and half blood Creek. That is all that went on the roll?

A. I think that is all on the approved roll, yes, sir.

Q. That is what is known as the tribal roll, final roll as approved by the Secretary, that is all that the Creek Final Roll is? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is all. Excuse me the roll number and then the card number is also on the roll.

The Court: There is a certified copy of the roll in evidence that shows. We will have to go back to that.

Q. That gives the card number you referred to, and that contains this information which was gathered by the Dawes Commission and you gentlemen working for it that resulted in placing that name upon the roll? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: That is all.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, JOHN COUCH, was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendant Minnie Atkins, et al., and testified as follows:

Q. Did you talk with her? A. No, sir.

Q. Was Minnie there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She stayed there with you until the train left?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your business now? A. Farming.

Q. Are you a married man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many children have you? A. I have six living.

Q. You were not married at that time? A. No, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. You and Minnie didn't go over to Leavenworth to see her son Tommy did you?

Mr. Stuart: Just a moment. I overlooked a question, Mr. German.

Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. What time in 1897 was that?

A. Well, sir, it was in August.

Q. How do you know it was in August?

A. No, sir, I took it back to my mother.

Q. Why didn't you keep it? A. I showed it to you.

Q. What do you have to identify it with, Mr. Couch?

A. I had a pin, emblem pin that was given to her as an immigrant to that country.

Q. You mean that that emblem was given to the old immigrants? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this is in the shape of a gold emblem?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you get it and bring it here?

A. Yes, sir, in about ten minutes.

Q. And what date did that have on it?

A. It had 1849——

Mr. German: We object.

The Court: The emblem itself would be the best evidence. Where is that?

A. Over on the corner of Sixth and Elgin.

The Court: We will not wait for it; I will permit you to put him on in the morning.

A. I suppose two or three days.

Q. Did she have Harvey and Charlie with her?

A. Not that I seen.

Q. You knew Harvey and Charlie?

Q. She didn't take them with her on that trip?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you go on the Katy?

A. From here to Kansas City?

Q. You did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What time in the day did you get to Kansas City?

A. Something a little after seven o'clock, I suppose, it was in the morning about the time—well, I believe the time now has been changed a little from what it was then. I used to make trips with the prisoners to Kansas City and from there to Fort Leavenworth. We would be due there something like seven-thirty.

Q. How long did you stay with Minnie at Denver?

A. Stayed there about two or three days.

Q. Well, which was it, two or three?

A. No, I can't be positive.

Q. Well, wasn't it four?

A. Well, I wouldn't say it was four at all, no, I don't think it was four. I think we got in there on Friday morning and Sunday evening it was we went to Fort Logan.

Q. How many different times did you take prisoners to Leavenworth? A. I believe I made two trips.

Q. What time in the week did you get to Leavenworth on the first trip? A. Which, with the prisoners?

A. I don't recollect.

Q. What day in the week did you leave there coming back the first trip? A. Which, with the prisoners?

Q. Yes.

A. I couldn't say just exactly; I never had no desire to try to keep track.

Q. How long did you stay in Leavenworth the first time you took prisoners there? A. Fort Leavenworth?

Q. Yes.

A. I think we stayed there one time about an hour.

Q. About an hour?

A. Yes, sir, just as soon as we could turn the prisoners to the warden and come back down.

Q. Have you ever been in the penitentiary? A. No, sir.

Q. Never had any trouble?

A. No, sir, no serious trouble.

Q. You think you stayed in Kansas City over a day?

A. When?

Q. When you went there with Minnie?

A. I didn't stay there a day.

Q. How long did you stay?

A. Something like maybe two hours, maybe a little longer, taken the first train out.

Q. You didn't go up town at all?

A. No, I didn't go only across the street to get shaved

Q. Where was Minnie? A. She was at the depot.

Q. Stayed at the depot all the time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you know you were going to testify in this case? A. When did I know it?

Q. Yes.

Q. Who came after you? A. Mr. Long.

Q. Frank Long? A. I don't know his given name.

Q. Where do you live?

A. I live up near Pryor Creek about a mile and a half south.

Q. How long did Mr. Long talk to you?

A. Yesterday evening?

Q. Yes.

A. He didn't talk to me more than five minutes, I don't suppose, until we started back.

Q. You told Mr. Long then, what you would testify to?

A. No, sir, I didn't.

Q. When did you tell him? A. I haven't told him.

Q. Never did tell him? A. No, sir.

Q. What did he bring you down here for?

A. He knew I had been a friend to her and was acquainted with her.

Q. How much a day are you getting for coming down here?

A. I don't know, there isn't no set price; they just said they would treat me fair and pay my expenses; there was no price set.

Q. When you got down here did you tell anybody what you would testify?

A. Yes, sir, I consulted with Judge Stuart.

Q. But you didn't tell Frank Long a thing? A. No, sir.

Q. You thought you were under arrest, didn't you?

A. Why, certainly not.

Q. Well, what did you come for?

A. Yes, ask me a civil question and I will answer.

Q. That is a civil question. A. What did I come for?

Q. Yes, sir? A. To testify in this case.

Q. You and Frank Long talked about it?

A. No, sir; he said they needed me in this case and they would treat me fair about it.

Q. Did you say alright? A. Well, not exactly.

Q. You didn't say that? A. No, sir, I didn't.

Q. Well, did you tell him how much you wanted?

A. No, sir, I didn't; I didn't set no price.

Q. Now, I didn't ask you this; did you and Minnie go over from Kansas City to Leavenworth to see her son Tommy?

A. No, sir.

Q. She never spoke of going over to visit him?

A. No.

Q. Well, how many times did you have intercourse with Minnie before you left Muskogee?

A. I don't think that is a fair——

The Court: We will not go into that.

Q. When you got to Denver, where did you and Minnie stay? A. I never taken the number of the house, sir.

Q. Well, tell us, then, the street.

A. I never taken no street number.

Q. What was the name of the place?

A. Denver, Colorado.

Q. What place in Denver? A. Town of Denver, Colorado.

Q. How far from the depot?

A. Well, I never [] the distance or counted the blocks.

Q. You didn't? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, can't you give us some idea?

A. Well, now, you take a strange man and throw him into a place like that, he might travel a mile and think he didn't go far; and then he might go a block or two and think he was going a mile.

Q. Well, you have been in Denver a great many times?

A. No, sir.

Q. When you stayed at Fort Logan several weeks, you were not far from Denver?

A. I believe I made two trips from Fort Logan back to Denver, what time I stayed there as well as I remember.

Q. Now, can't you tell us where you stayed in Denver?

A. Exactly the number of the house?

Q. Well, close to it.

A. Well, I suppose something like two or three blocks from the Union Depot.

Q. From the Union Depot in Denver? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What direction from the depot?

A. That country was kind of strange, I wouldn't say it was exactly due east but I rather think it was.

Q. You think it was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you describe the house? A. No, sir.

Q. Was it a hotel? A. Yes, sir, it was a rooming house.

Q. Rooming house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How large a rooming house? A. Now, I couldn't tell.

Q. One story?

A. It seemed to be a two story, we was on the second story.

Q. Who was the person in charge of it?

A. I didn't get any names.

Q. When you got over to Fort Logan where did you stay?

A. We stayed at a house, I don't remember the woman that was running the house; I heard her name called several times but it has been too long I never gave it much thought and the name has passed my memory.

Q. Well, that was a small place, Logantown; you were not in the fort? A. No, not exactly.

Q. You were in Logantown, adjoining the fort?

A. Next to the depot. The fort is southwest from the depot if I have the town located right.

Q. And there was a store or two there?

A. I never counted them.

Q. Well, now, where from the store, did you and she stay?

A. Now, it seems to me like there was one store west, kind of northwest, and seems like there was one right to the north side from the house.

Q. How close were you to those store?

A. Probably half a block or may be not so far.

Q. What direction? A. I just told you, sir.

Q. Alright, you said there was another store?

A. I said there was a store, if I ain't mistaken, north from the house and [] other was setting something like west. Say the depot was setting up there, and there was a store over that way, and one down this way, and a little further this way was the house right close to the depot that we stayed.

Q. That right by the side of the railroad?

A. Something like that, yes, sir.

Q. And in half block of the nearest store? A. I guess.

Q. Did you pay the rent on the house? A. I did, sir.

Q. Who did you pay it to?

A. I told you that I couldn't recollect the name of the woman.

Q. Was there a woman running the house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, it was a house where several people stayed?

A. Well, yes, sir, there were several people.

Q. Who else roomed there?

A. I don't know the names; they were all strangers.

Q. How long did you stay there?

A. Something like four weeks as well as I remember.

Q. Four weeks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But didn't learn the names of any of the people?

A. I learned the names of some of them; I don't remember them.

Q. You can't tell the name of one?

A. No, sir, I can't; you take it back 19 years.

Q. What did you do while you were there?

A. I didn't do nothing.

Q. You didn't do any work?

A. I helped thresh half a day.

Q. Who for?

A. I don't recollect the name of the company, company threshers.

Q. Didn't you have any men associates at all there?

A. I did not, I talked to some of the soldiers around there to pass the time off, but I didn't recollect their names; in fact I am a very poor man to ask a man's name.

Q. There was some other women in that house?

A. Well, not that I know of.

Q. Do you mean that there wasn't any woman in there but Minnie?

A. The woman that run the house. There wasn't——

Q. But there were several men?

A. As well as I recollect there was about two men that stayed there; there wasn't many rooms.

Q. Did those two men stay there all the time?

A. I don't know whether they did or not; I could see them every once in a while. One was a contractor as well as I recollect now; he roomed there.

Q. What was his name? A. I don't recollect his name.

Q. I wish you would think those names up.

A. Well, now, I can't do it; for ai don't know as I asked them their names.

Q. You think you talked with them there?

A. Yes, sir, just like I would meet you in the road somewhere and talk to you and never ask you your name.

Q. Ate meals with them?

A. No, sir, I never ate no meals with them.

Q. What did you do before—what was your business before you left to go to Denver? A. Here?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, I used to run what you called a freighter out of this town, teams and mules.

Q. Well, was that your business before you left to go to Denver?

A. Yes, I was working here in town; transferring here in town, hauling around here in town.

Q. For yourself?

A. Well, me and my brother were running teams together and when I left here I turned the teams over to them; let them run them.

Q. What was your brother's name?

A. One was called Frank and one Ben.

Q. Crouch? A. Couch.

Q. Where are they now?

A. One is dead and one is here in town.

Q. How much did your ticket cost in Kansas City?

A. I disremember how much it did; you can tell if you know the fare from here to Kansas City.

Q. I am asking you.

A. I don't recollect; the same fare it is now.

Q. You bought Minnie's ticket too to Kansas City?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the fare you paid for Minnie's ticket?

A. Well——

Q. You say it was the same fare then as it is now?

A. I think it is three cents a mile, if you bought a ticket clear through, but it was five cents when you rode in the Territory; in those days we called it the Territory, and had to pay five cents in the Territory and when you rode out it was a three-cent rate, I think.

Q. You bought a ticket for Minnie and yourself both?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was a very good sum wasn't it?

A. Very good sum, yes, sir.

Q. You buy a ticket from Wagoner to Kansas City or from Wagoner to Denver? A. Kansas City to Denver.

Q. Now the ticket from Kansas City to Denver?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much did your ticket cost to get back?

A. Well, that is very easily to figure out.

Q. Well, I am asking you what it cost you.

A. I think I left Denver with about ten dollars and when I got back here I think I had fifty cents or sixty cents left.

Q. You left Denver with ten dollars?

A. About ten dollars.

Q. Bought your ticket out of that?

A. No, sir, I didn't buy my ticket.

Q. You didn't?

A. I just rode back as I got the chance and paid the brakies whatever I could get over the division for.

Q. You came back then on freight trains?

A. I did, part the way.

Q. What railroad you come from Denver on?

A. I came to Pueblo on a freight.

Q. How much did you tip the brakey?

A. I tiped the brakey from Pueblo to Denver one dollar.

Q. How did you get out from there?

A. I started out on a road and got something like a hundred miles.

Q. What road? A. Santa Fe I think I came back on.

Q. Where, from Pueblo to where?

A. I disremember the little town where they cut the car off I was in.

Q. You can't call the name of it? A. No, sir, I can't.

Q. What state was it in? A. Colorado.

Q. How long were you in Pueblo between the time you got there and left?

A. I got there somewheres about midnight and stayed there until the next morning at eight or nine o'clock, until I could catch a freight out.

Q. Where did you sleep there? A. Me?

Q. You!

A. I went to a hotel there; I got a policeman to show me a place, and I went there and laid down through the night.

Q. What was its name? A. I never asked the name.

Q. Who did you see there?

A. A lady came up and showed me the room.

Q. Was that the only person you saw?

A. Only one I seen that night, except this policeman who carried me up there.

Q. The only person you saw?

A. Only one I seen that night.

Q. How much did you pay for the room?

A. Twenty-five cents for the bed.

Q. What did you do for something to eat?

A. I bought it.

Q. Where did you buy it?

A. I went down town the next morning to a lunch counter and bought a cup of coffee and some lunch.

Q. What did you pay for it?

A. I paid twenty cents for it.

Q. Let's see, on that hundred mile trip, did you pay your way on the freight train?

A. To where they cut the cars out?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much did you tip the brakies there?

A. I didn't tip him nothing.

Q. Did you steal that ride? A. I guess so.

Q. How long did you stay at that place?

A. I suppose about three hours.

Q. How long were you making that hundred-mile run?

A. I didn't time it.

Q. Did you ride in the caboose or—— A. No, sir, box cars.

Q. On top?

A. No, sir, down in the box cars, you have seen box cars——

Q. Inside of the box cars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you don't know how long you were making that hundred miles? A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. Was that a through freight or a local?

A. Supposed to be a through freight, I guess; I never asked him.

Q. How did you get from that place on in?

A. I caught a passenger that night about ten o'clock.

Q. Buy a ticket? A. No, sir.

Q. Beat your way on the passenger? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the blind?

A. Yes, part of the time and part of the time on the back end; rear of the sleeper.

Q. Where did you go to from there?

A. I can't tell you the town I landed in the next morning; I never asked nobody.

Q. How did you get from there?

A. I kept getting on, tipping the brakies when they would come around, when I was riding.

Q. Have you done any of that kind of work since?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Frequently do that? A. No, not frequently.

Q. Done it a good deal? A. Done it a good deal.

Q. Beat your way around a good deal?

A. No, sir, I am not no professional bum.

Q. Not a professional? A. No, sir.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, BETTIE MANN, being recalled, further testified as follows:

Recross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mrs. Mann, I understood you to say that it was in the summer time that you told Mr. Page, and Mr. Long, and Mr. Josey that there wasn't any Tommy. Was it in the summer time? A. In the summertime?

Q. Summertime of 1914? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the summertime. Now, I want to ask you if this is your signature there?

Mr. German: I want to suggest, Your Honor, that I didn't understand the witness to say that she told him——

Mr. Stuart: She says she said it.

Mr. German: Well, you led her that way.

The Court: Well, the record will show, I don't remember distinctly now.

Mr. Stuart: I will ask you now—Your Honor, I don't think it is quite fair to interpolate that after the witness has said she said it.

The Court: I understand that it comes with counsel's question; however, the record will show.

Q. You told them in 1914?

A. Well, I guess it was 1914, when I found Minnie Atkins.

Q. The summer of 1914, is that right?

A. '14, is when it was.

Q. I will ask you if you signed this instrument, whether that is your signature, that is your handwriting?

A. That is my handwriting.

Q. Now, this is a contract between a man by the name of Kirkbride and you and a man named Rogers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And purports to be an agreement between C. H. Rogers of Tulsa and S. E. Mann and Mr. Kirkbride?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is what it is? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is dated October 12, 1914?

A. I overlooked the date.

Q. Now, Mrs. Mann, I will read this to you: "Whereas, The West Half (W2) of the Northeast Quarter (NE4) of Section Five (5), and the Southwest Quarter (SW4) of the Northwest Quarter (NW4) of Section Four (4), all in Township Eighteen (18) North, Range Seven (7) East of Indian Base and Meridian was allotted to one Thomas Atkins as a member of the Creek Tribe of Indians, said Thomas Atkins being enrolled opposite No. 7913 and being, at the time of his enrollment, ten years of age; and

Whereas, There are numerous parties claiming title to said premises as heirs of said Thomas Atkins and as purchasers or lessees of said pretended heirs of Thomas Atkins, it being charged by said pretended heirs and purchasers that said Thomas Atkins died many years ago, as a minor, intestate, without children or descendants of children; and

Whereas, Said spurious heirs and their grantees and lessees have no right, title or interest in and to said premises, though all such rights are claimed adversely to the said Thomas Atkins, allottee; and

Whereas, The Gypsy Oil Company, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, is now, and has been for more than one year past, in the open, notorious and actual possession of said premises; and

Whereas, Said Thomas Atkins, allottee, is now living and his existence and whereabouts are known to said brokers; and

Whereas, The said purchaser is desirous of being put in touch with said Thomas Atkins for the purpose of purchasing said premises from said allottee, said Gypsy Oil Company having agreed to waive all objection which it had or may have, by reason of its possession of said premises, to the making of this contract and to the receiving by said purchaser from said Thomas Atkins of the deed herein contemplated;

Now Therefore This Agreement Witnesseth: That said purchaser, for himself, his heirs and grantees, in consideration of the said brokers producing the said Thomas Atkins in person, allottee of the above described premises, and obtaining from said Thomas Atkins a first valid warranty deed for the above described premises in favor of said purchaser for a sum not to exceed .... dollars, said deed to be procured and delivered to said purchaser within thirty days from the date of the signing of this contract, and further, in consideration of said brokers producing full, true, correct and competent legal evidence, whenever and wherever demanded by said purchaser, sufficient to prove to the Court having jurisdiction of said matter the identity of said Thomas Atkins and his right to the above described premises, agrees to grant, bargain, sell and convey to said brokers, or to such parties as they may designate, subject to an oil and gas mining lease theretofore to be given by the purchaser to the .... Oil Company, by a good and sufficient deed, an undivided one half interest in all right, title and interest in said premises which said purchaser may acquire hereunder, said deed to be delivered to said brokers within thirty days from and after the date the identity of said Thomas Atkins shall be legally ascertained, and the right of said Thomas Atkins to the aforesaid land shall be legally and finally determined," and so forth. Now, then, if you had told them in the summer of 1914 that there wasn't any Tommy Atkins, why did you make a contract in the fall to produce him?

A. Just because they wanted to frame up and wanted a Tommy Atkins.

Q. You mean to say this man Kirkbride——

A. Yes, I say that man Kirkbride.

Q. Wait a minute. This man Kirkbride agreed with you to frame up a Tommy Atkins?

A. Yes, sir, he said the Gypsy people wanted one and Mr. Wrightsman wanted one and he could get it with either one of them, and he wanted to find a Tommy Atkins; that there was lots of them running around.

Q. Now, then, in October of this year you and Mr. Kirkbride and Mr. Rogers agreed together that you would frame up a Thomas Atkins? A. Going to find one.

Q. You knew there wasn't any Tommy, didn't you, real Tommy; that Minnie didn't have any such son?

A. Yes, we knew that Minnie didn't have any.

Q. You knew there wasn't a real Tommy that was heir to this land? A. I didn't think there was.

Q. Therefore, you and Mr. Kirkbride and Mr. Rogers were to frame up a Tommy in October? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did Mr. Kirkbride live?

A. Lived in Tulsa I guess.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. After you had done your work for Mr. Bartlett along up to about the first of March, 1914, you had discovered there wasn't any such boy as Thomas Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Never was such a boy as the son of Minnie?

A. I knew Minnie didn't have none.

Q. You and Dennis and Rube and Sadie James framed this up to create one in March, 1914?

A. Yes, sir, in Leavenworth.

Q. You knew when you were working for Mr. Long and Mr. Page and the Gem Oil Company, when you took this trip to Seattle, you knew Minnie didn't have any such child?

A. I had never been able to find where she had one.

Q. When you talked to Minnie in Seattle, before Mr. Long got there, you were in the employ of Mr. Long and Mr. Page, weren't you, as well as Mr. Bartlett? A. Well, yes.

Q. All three of them? A. Yes.

Q. Working for both sides? A. Yes.

Q. What did Minnie tell you in the first conversation?

The Court: Isn't that something that has been gone over with this witness?

Q. Anyhow, when you signed this contract here that Judge Stuart has talked about, dated the 12th of October, 1914, you knew there wasn't any son of Minnie?

A. I knew that Minnie didn't have none.

Mr. Cruce: Judge, did you introduce that entire contract?

Mr. Stuart: Yes.

The Court: It may be admitted.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, F. B. LONG was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins, et al., and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Cruce.

Q. What is your name? A. F. B. Long.

Q. How old are you? A. Thirty six.

Q. Where do you live? A. Tulsa.

Q. What is your business?

A. I am employed by Mr. Charles Page.

Q. How long have you been in his employ?

A. I have been in his employ alone about a year and a half; prior to that time from 1912 I was employed by Page and Josey.

Q. Were you ever in the employ of the Government?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what capacity?

A. As District Indian Agent, subsequently as Field Clerk.

Q. During what years?

A. 1909, '10, '11 and part of '12.

Q. Now, you say you were in the employ of Page and Josey, when did that employment begin?

A. In December, 1912.

Q. How long did you work for Page and Josey?

A. Until, I think, the month of October, 1915.

Q. Since then you have been working for Mr. Page?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are your duties, Mr. Long, in a general way without going into detail?

A. Well, I am in charge of his land, his leases, rentals.

Q. Have you an interest in the Gem Oil Company?

A. I have no stock in the Gem Oil Company; I am Secretary of the Company.

Q. Have you any interest—I mean personal interest in this law suit? A. No, sir; no financial interest.

Q. That is what I mean. When was the first connection that Page and Josey had with this Tommy Atkins allotment?

A. I think probably in the winter of 1914, along very likely in February or March

Q. Of 1914? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What effort if any was made to procure that property, to find out the owners of it?

A. Well, the first information that came to us—prior to that time, we had checked up all the north extension of the Cushing field, and were advised of the litigation on this land. The first information that came to us was that Thomas Atkins the allottee of this land, was living; that information came from Mr. Kistler, I believe, of Muskogee, and that he was in the Army.

Q. That Atkins was in the Army?

A. Yes, sir. We wired Washington, the first steps that was made in this case, we wired Washington; Mr. Kistler wired Senator Gore. We ascertained that there was a Thomas J. Atkins in the Army, and that he was an Indian. In looking him up, however, we found that he was a Comanche, I believe; nevertheless, his home was in Lawton, and from that time on we pursued other inquiries. We investigated the claim of Nancy Atkins as to being his mother.

Q. What conclusion did you come to?

A. We came to the conclusion that Nancy Atkins was not the mother of Thomas Atkins; that conclusion was reached after talking with some of her relatives and after an examination of the records at Muskogee.

Q. The Dawes Commission records you mean?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what further steps did you take, then, to discover Thomas Atkins?

A. The matter then rested for some time until a man by the name of Rogers came into our office with information.

Q. Who was Rogers? A. C. B. Rogers.

Q. Where does he live?

A. Lives in Tulsa. He is a Cherokee Indian. He came into our office and advised us that he had some information about Thomas Atkins, and wanted to know if we would go into the matter of procuring a lease on the land. I told him that we would. I had that conversation with him myself, at that time.

Q. Were you acquainted with Rogers prior to that?

A. I knew him slightly, not very well.

Q. Go ahead.

A. We told him at that time that if we could get a lease from Thomas Atkins, the allottee of this particular quarter section, we would carry him for an eighth interest.

Q. What do you mean by carrying him for an eighth interest? Give him an eighth interest in the lease?

A. An eighth interest in the property; that is an eighth interest, working interest, after the expenses were all paid.

Q. Alright, go ahead.

A. He was in and out of the office some six or seven times, I don't know how often, but any way he always claimed to have some new information.

Q. Was that in your office at Tulsa?

A. In our office at Tulsa, in the office of the Gem Oil Company, and we didn't pay very much attention to him; didn't take him very seriously but he came in and talked. Finally in the month of May——

Q. 1914?

A. 1914, he came in to the office and said that he didn't believe that they could locate Thomas Atkins; that he had not been able to get any information, that he didn't believe that they knew—that we could find him. He said that he was working, however, with a woman name Bettie Mann, who had been doing some work on the case.

Q. Did you know Bettie Mann at that time?

A. I did. And that Bettie Mann had information as to where Bettie lived.

Q. Minnie Atkins?

A. Minnie Atkins; and that he believed then, as did Bettie, that Thomas Atkins perhaps was dead, and that if he were dead, that Minnie Atkins would be his heir. We discussed that in the office at some length. I remember that he came back once or twice after that, still telling us that Bettie Mann would be able to locate Minnie. Finally he came in the office one day and said that he had seen Bettie Mann, and that she knew where Minnie [] and he wanted me to see her, and if we could, make some arrangements for paying her to locate Minnie Atkins for us. I recall that I was very busy that day and I told him that I would go down to Sapulpa to see Bettie Mann, on the noon train, and for him to have her at the station; that I didn't want to take time to go out to her house, or to hunt her up. He said that he would do so. I went to Sapulpa and met——

Q. How long after that do you remember?

A. Oh, that was the next day I think; I am pretty sure it was the next day. I went to Sapulpa and met Bettie Mann at the Frisco Station.

Q. Did you have any conversation with her there?

A. Yes.

Q. How long did you talk to her?

A. Not to exceed ten minutes.

Q. Did you go out of the station any where, or talk to her right in the station?

A. We sat in chairs there by the Harvey House.

Q. What agreement if any did you come to there, and what did she say with reference to——

A. Do you desire me to relate the conversation, Mr. Cruce?

Q. Yes, as nearly as you can, Mr. Long.

A. Bettie told me that she had been working for H. U. Bartlett; she told me that Bartlett had had her make a trip or two, to Kansas City, I believe; whether she mentioned any place else, I don't recall; and that she just about had Minnie located, and that she was going out to see her; that Mr. Bartlett would probably be there also. She asked me what I would give her if she located Minnie so we could make a lease with her. We had previously discussed this matter in the office and had agreed on the price, and I told her if she located Minnie Atkins for us and placed us in touch with her, and she proved to be the Minnie Atkins, the mother of Thomas, and his heir, and we obtained a valid lease on the land, we would pay her two thousand dollars. She said she was going to leave the next day. I tried to get her to tell me where she was going and where Minnie was and that she refused to; but she said, now, you will receive a telegram from me soon, and when you receive that message, why you come. She said when I wire you, I won't sign my own name, but I will use some other name. At that time we didn't take her very seriously; we really—she had—this Rogers had talked so much that we didn't know definitely whether she was telling the truth or not. So, the conversation, had I known that she was sure of what she was going to do, I probably would have gone more into detail, but I wasn't with her there at Frisco station to exceed ten minutes.

Q. Do you remember what name she said she would wire you under?

A. No, she didn't say any name at that time, I don't remember that she did.

Q. Now, when did you next hear from her?

A. I next heard from her some four, five—no, it was a week afterwards; I got a telegram from her at Seattle, Washington.

Q. Have you the telegram? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let me see it, please. This telegram is dated Seattle, Washington, June 5th, addressed to Frank B. Long, Little Gem Oil Company, First National Bank Building, Tulsa, Oklahoma; and reads "Are you ready to come. Say nothing to Charlie. Answer in care Western Union, Bill Jones." Is that the telegram?

A. That is the first telegram I received from her.

Q. Who was Charlie?

A. Charlie was Rogers, the man who first put me in touch with Bettie Mann.

Q. Now, did you answer that telegram? A. I did.

Q. Let me see that; telegram that you hand me is dated June 6th, 1914, addressed to Bill Jones, Seattle, Washington, and reads "Am ready to go provided you are positive you have right party. Am busy, my time is valuable and do not want to make long trip unless you assure me absolutely that you have right party. Answer immediately, giving your street address, and stating whether you have satisfied yourself you have located party you want. Frank B. Long." Did you send that telegram? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you hear from her again? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is this telegram, dated Seattle, Washington, June 8th, 1914, addressed to Frank B. Long, First National Bank, Tulsa, Oklahoma, "Things perfectly identified, come at once. Answer room 425 Wright hotel. Bill Jones." Was that telegram received from Mrs. Mann? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you reply to that?

A. There were two answers sent to that.

Q. Telegram, June 9th, 1914, addressed to Bill Jones, room 425, Wright hotel, Seattle, Washington, "Will leave tonight or tomorrow night. Will wire you tonight exact time of leaving." Signed Bill Jones. Was that telegram sent?

A. That telegram was sent from my office, but I don't believe that I sent it. We were laughing about that Bill Jones business in the office.

Q. Do you know who sent that?

A. I think Mr. Eberle sent it; I may have sent it myself; I wouldn't have signed Bill Jones to it.

Q. Did you send a telegram that day? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This telegram I have in my hand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Telegram dated June 19th, "Bill Jones, room 429 Wright hotel, Seattle, Washington; Leaving tonight, arrive Saturday. Frank B. Long."? Paid, charge to form 19—— Is that the telegram you sent? A. I sent that telegram.

Q. Well, now did you leave for Washinton—Seattle?

A. I did, sir, on that evening.

Q. Did you send any telegrams to Bettie Mann on the way to Seattle? A. I did not.

Q. Did you send a telegram from Denver or Salt Lake or any place along the line which you signed as Bill Jones?

A. No, sir.

Q. When did you arrive at Seattle?

A. On Saturday morning June 13th.

Q. Do you remember about what time you got there?

A. A little after eight o'clock.

The Court: That was 1914, was it?

A. 1914.

Q. Saturday morning June 14th?

A. June 13th.

Q. June 13th? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What time that morning did you see Mrs. Mann?

A. About 9:30 or ten o'clock; any way, as soon as I got my breakfast and could get there.

Q. Where did you see her? A. At the Wright hotel.

Q. You went to her room? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, just in brief, Mr. Long, what conversation did you have there with her with reference to this matter?

A. Well, I went immediately to her room and inquired where I could find Minnie Atkins; that is what I came there for, and she told me that she lived out by the Fort, which was Fort Lawton. I asked her if she had seen her; she said that she had but that she had not talked to her; that she had walked by her house several times, and she was sure that it was the Minnie Atkins that she had known in this country. She told me for the first time, then, that she had a negro woman there with her, named Sadie James.

Q. Did you know Sadie James at that time?

A. I did not. I knew of her but I didn't know her. I knew of her after Bettie Mann told me who she was and different things about her but I didn't recognize her by that name. Bettie Mann said that Sadie James had really located Minnie and had been out to talk to her and had refused to tell Minnie where she was—to tell Bettie where she was; Bettie said that the only way she found where Minnie lived was by hiring a detective to follow Sadie, and the detective saw Sadie going to this house at the Post; then Bettie went out by the same house and saw Minnie sitting on the porch.

Q. But didn't talk to her?

A. Didn't talk to her at the time. I asked her why she hadn't talked to her, and she said that she didn't want to involve herself in any way with Minnie; that she had stayed away from her; and I said now, I want to get away from here just as quick as possible, and I want to see her; and she said I will put you in touch with Mr. Kohler, the man who followed Sadie out there, and I will have him come to your hotel. I was stopping at a different hotel. I went over to the Renier Grand hotel, and waited there a minute when a man by the name of Kohler came in and said that he had been sent there by Mrs. Mann, and would take me to Minnie Atkins, or the woman, I believe he called her; he didn't know her name. We took an automobile and went out to the Fort.

Q. Did you go to Minnie's house? A. I did.

Q. Who did you find there?

A. It was perhaps two or three hundred feet from the street where the car stopped to her house; and I left the automobile and Mr. Kohler in the car. I saw three men, one of them holding three horses, the other two men were sitting on the porch of Minnie's house with her.

Q. Go ahead?

A. I walked up and introduced myself and asked her her name. I didn't know her name was Folk at the time, but I asked her if she was Minnie Atkins. She told me that was her maiden name, her name was Folk now. And she then introduced me to Captain MacNab and Lieutenant McComb. I told them what I came there for, that she was the heir of an allotment in Oklahoma, according to the records and rolls, and that I wanted to go into negotiations for an oil lease on the land; that the land was looking good for oil.

Q. Mr. Long, let me interrupt you a little, do you remember about how far it was in the Cushing field, from the developed portion I mean, the Bartlesville or Deep Sand?

A. I think the nearest Bartlesville Sand well was on the Musselman lease about a mile, perhaps two miles south. We felt that the Bartlesville Sand was going to follow that direction and would get on the west eighty of this property. I told them what I wanted, and Captain MacNab spoke up and said: "Well, are you the white man that is supposed to be here?" I said: "I suppose I am." Well, he says there has been a negro woman around here for four or five days bothering Minnie and telling her a lot of things about this land and wanting to buy it from her. He says is that woman working for you? I told him I didn't know anything about her because I didn't hire her. I said I came out here to buy a lease on the land; we don't want to buy it, because it would be very difficult to fix a price for the fee and that we wanted to lease it. I told him I had brought some papers, the lease form with me, and a contract, and that I would like very much, since he was there to advise Mrs. Folk, to talk it over with him and go over it in detail. Mrs. Folk stepped into the house and I went in with her. I said first I wanted to assure myself that Mrs. Folk is Minnie Atkins. Well, Mrs. Folk said well I am Minnie Atkins. and I can tell you all about myself. Prior to going out there I had talked with Sam Brown and Mitchel Wadsworth and had pretty thoroughly posted myself on Minnie's family history, so I could ask her questions and know that she was the right person. After we went in the house I talked to her about her father, her mother, her brothers and sisters, where she had lived and where she went to school and about her children. She asked me about the children in Oklahoma and she said she was the mother of Thomas Atkins and Charlie and Harvey, but that Thomas Atkins was dead and she hadn't heard from Charlie and Harvey for some years at that time. Captain MacNab and Lieutenant McComb then came to the house.

Q. How long were you in there with Minnie before?

A. Oh, not to exceed five minutes.

Q. Well, go ahead?

A. They came in the house and we then resumed the discussion as to the lease. They asked me a great many questions; I answered them as best I could; I told them that the land was of considerable speculation value; that it was in such shape it would be difficult to find out just what it was worth. They told me this Negro woman had told Minnie that she would give her four thousand dollars for it to buy it. Well, I says, we will give more than that for a lease on it and Minnie will still retain the fee and one eighth royalty. The conversation went along until finally the questions of the employing of an attorney came up, and it was suggested that an attorney who was familiar with oil lease forms should be employed. In the meantime Captain MacNab and Lieutenant McComb had looked over the lease which I had had prepared before I left here.

Q. Who prepared that lease form for you?

A. Rice & Lyons. They had looked over the form and over the contract which was to be a part of the lease and which Minnie was to execute and we was to execute, the terms of which we were to perfect a title as a part of the consideration. Then, when they got into the contract matter the question of an attorney came up and I told them I would much prefer to go into this matter with a lawyer, that there would be some litigations. Very likely there would be some litigation. They told me then—— Oh, yes, in the meantime the question of whether this negro woman was working for me came up, and I noticed a little bit of suspicion on the part of Captain MacNab and Lieutenant McComb.

Mr. German: We object to the conclusion on behalf of this witness.

The Court: Well, in this connection I will let him answer that.

A. I felt that they were perhaps suspicious of me and I suggested to them that before we concluded our negotiations it would be well that they would wire to Oklahoma as to Mr. Page and Mr. Josey and as to me as their employee. I gave them the name of Mr. Kelsey, the Superintendent of the Indian Agency, of the Exchange National Bank of Muskogee, the Exchange National Bank in Tulsa, the Central National Bank in Tulsa, the National Reserve Bank in Kansas City, and James K. Jones, of Washington. Told Captain MacNab that if he would send telegrams to those places that I would pay for both messages going and coming. He told me then not do anything more with it until they had consulted their attorney, and for me to call him up along in the afternoon sometime. I left. Was there perhaps forty minutes or an hour all together. Went down and went back in the same automobile that I came out in. I had lunch and sometime about one-thirty or two o'clock I called up Captain MacNab at his Quarters at the Post and asked him if he was ready for me to return. He said, well now our attorney is right here or will be here soon and you come on out. I think I took the next car, street car, and perhaps waited a little while. Now, I got out there in the middle of the afternoon, maybe three o'clock. I got off at the station leading up to Minnie's house and started up there. I saw some people there and indications that there were visitors, saw this negro woman on the porch. Well, I didn't go on up to the house. I was to have my conversation with Captain MacNab and I stayed at the little station and walked up and down the Government road for a few minutes, when Captain MacNab and Mr. Hanford came down the walk. We stood in the road and Captain MacNab introduced me to Mr. Hanford, and said Mr. Hanford was to represent Minnie. We then discussed the terms of the lease and the proposition which I had to make, went into it in some detail. Mr. Hanford said that before we concluded the negotiations, that they were having Minnie execute a trustee deed, or a deed of trust of some kind to Captain MacNab so that she would be protected, and we agreed then in that conversation that I would not attempt to see Minnie any more, that I would not talk to her, and that I would have all of my dealings with Captain MacNab and Mr. Hanford. I very readily agreed to that.

Q. Did you see Minnie any more?

A. I did not until the day we left Seattle. After the conversation, I went back to the hotel. In the evening Mr. Hanford called me up and told me that Minnie had executed a deed of trust to Captain MacNab, and that he would see me tomorrow, the next day, which was Sunday. Sunday morning Mr. Hanford came to the hotel and now he said, we are ready to do business. We again talked over the value of the property and its location, the probability that the deeper sand would extend up to this land, and so forth.

Q. What statement did you make to them or to Captain MacNab as to whether or not it would probably be of value, great value?

A. I told them that the probability—— That in my opinion and in Mr. Josey's opinion that the Bartlesville Sand would go over at least the west eighty of this hundred and sixty and that it would be of very great value. I told them that Saturday.

Q. Well, go ahead?

A. Then, Mr. Hanford and I went over the same thing. We drew a little map of the lease. Mr. Hanford then told me that they had concluded that before they would make a lease, that they would go into it more thoroughly and have some investigation made independent of what I had told them. That he had some friends he would write to that would go and look the property over and report to him. I told Mr. Hanford that would require a week or ten days or two weeks and in the meantime I would be waiting in Seattle, and that the expense would be just about the same if he would go with me back to Oklahoma and make a personal investigation. He suggested that he would like to do that. And we agreed that I would pay his expenses both ways, but he was not bound in any way by the expenses which we would advance, that he was free after he got there to do anything he pleased to do. But, that if he didn't make the lease to us he was to reimburse us for whatever money was advanced to him. That agreement was made between us that Sunday and I was to meet him at his bank the next morning at ten o'clock when we were to make the financial arrangements for the trip. That was all the conversation I had with Mr. Hanford that day.

Q. Now, you say you saw Minnie again the day before you left?

A. Prior to seeing Minnie, I saw Sadie James and Betty Mann.

Q. What day did you see them? A. On Sunday.

Q. Where?

A. At the Wright Hotel. Betty Mann phoned for me to come up to her room and I went over there. I had seen her in front of the Renier Grand Hotel Saturday evening and told her then I would see her the next day. I went to her room and went in and Sadie James was there. Betty Mann told me that that was Sadie James and Sadie James flew into quite a rage.

Q. Is that the first time you had ever talked to Sadie James? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In your life? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Go ahead?

A. Sadie James flew into quite a rage over the fact that I was there; accused Betty of double-crossing her and asked what I had done. And I told her I had been out to see Minnie and that I found the army officers there who had taken over Minnie's business and that Minnie had signed up an agreement to them, and that I was through with my dealings with her; that I didn't know whether we would get a lease or not.

Q. With her, who do you mean?

A. With Minnie. Sadie said in that conversation—— I wasn't up there very long. She said well now we don't want to fall down on getting Minnie; if you will give me six thousand dollars I will go get her right now and take her to Everette, Washington, if you will get me the money. I told her there was nothing to be done with Minnie, that she had turned everything over to Captain MacNab and that I was going home.

Q. Did you state to Sadie James there at that time that you had found a Tommy or would make a Tommy?

A. The name Thomas Atkins wasn't mentioned in that conversation.

Q. Did Betty Mann or Sadie James either one say to you in either one of those conversations that there never was such a person as Tommy Atkins? A. No, sir.

Q. Was anything said about the baby having died at six months old? A. No, sir.

Q. You say Thomas Atkins name was not mentioned in either one of those conversations?

A. Now, I don't think it was. But, nevertheless, the principal thing in that conversation was the identity of Minnie Atkins. I told them I was satisfied she was Minnie; I had talked to her and she was the Minnie Atkins from Indian Territory. If the name Thomas Atkins was mentioned in that conversation it was in a way I don't recall.

Q. I believe you stated that Betty Mann said she had seen Minnie from the porch but had not talked to her?

A. That was in my first conversation.

Q. What did she say in the second conversation?

A. Nothing was said in the second conversation.

Q. When did you next see Minnie?

A. Monday about noon or a little after, just after lunch.

Q. For how long a time did you see her?

A. I will explain why I saw her if you will permit me. I went out to Captain MacNab's and we had lunch: Mr. Hanford was there also; and Mr. Hanford and I had made arrangements for his trip to Oklahoma. I told Captain MacNab and Mr. Hanford that these arrangements were perfectly satisfactory with me but that before we left, I wanted positive assurance from Mrs. Folk that she was satisfied for Captain MacNab and Mr. Hanford to represent her and deal for her. They told me all right; but I didn't see her alone. They called Minnie over to Captain MacNab's Quarters and I had that conversation with her. I asked her if she was perfectly satisfied that Mr. Hanford and Captain MacNab should deal for her and that I would have all of my negotiations with them, and she said she was.

Q. That was the extent of your conversation?

A. Yes, I hadn't seen the deed of trust or agreement that had been made between them; and all I had was her statement, and I wanted that before I went back, because I expected to close the deal with Captain MacNab and Mr. Hanford.

Q. Did Betty at that conversation at the hotel say anything to you as to whether or not she had seen Minnie Atkins or talked with Minnie? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you a copy of that contract that was prepared?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. By Rice & Lyons? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you in the talk with Minnie that you had with her on Saturday I believe you say? A. Yes.

Q. Did she say anything to you as to when Tommy was born?

A. No, sir, she said that he was born in Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. Did you go into a discussion or inquire of her as to when he died, or where? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you go into that matter? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, after you came back to Oklahoma with Mr. Hanford what is the next step you took with reference to this matter?

A. Well, Mr. Hanford and I arrived in Oklahoma—— Prior to going to Oklahoma, we went over to Spokane, where Harry Folk, Minnie's husband, was stationed with the band, he was there temporarily; and Mr. Hanford had Harry Folk join in the trust deed to Captain MacNab. And I talked with Harry just long enough to have him reassure me that it was satisfactory for Captain MacNab and Mr. Hanford to represent her. Then, we came to Tulsa and arrived, if I am not mistaken, on Sunday morning, and I placed Mr. Hanford in touch with Mr. Page and Mr. Josey; and then began the negotiations for a lease which finally resulted in our agreeing on a bonus of ten thousand dollars.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, getting back just a little, after you had had your conversation with Minnie in Seattle, what was your belief at that time as to whether or not Thomas Atkins was a genuine person or a myth?

A. Well, I had no reason to believe that he wasn't genuine.

Q. I mean what was your belief?

A. My belief was that he was. I was going more on the record here in Muskogee than anything else, and treated the matter with Minnie, when I talked to her, very briefly, didn't go into the question of birth at all.

Mr. Cruce: Have you any objection to the introduction of this contract, Minnie Atkins Exhibit B-11?

Mr. German: No.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Q. About when was your next step?

A. Two or three days after Mr. Hanford and I arrived at Tulsa.

Mr. Cruce: Shall I read the contract?

The Court: Well, you may.

Q. Is this a copy of the lease?

A. No, that is the carbon copy of the contract.

The Court: This is the contract that Mr. Long carried with him.

Mr. Cruce: I wont stop to read it.

Q. Have you a copy of the contract that was finally executed?

Mr. German: That has been introduced in evidence.

Q. Now, what steps did you next take with reference——

Mr. German: No, not the contract. We have already introduced the lease.

Mr. Cruce: Well, that is what I had reference to.

A. There wasn't any contract at the time. We thought we were dealing directly with Minnie and there wasn't any contract executed. Minnie and Captain MacNab were in Seattle and they executed the original lease which I left there with some changes and alterations.

Q. The contract you have referred to is a contract aside from the proposed lease?

A. To be a part of the lease.

Q. With reference to perfecting the title or something?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, let's get back to our story. What next step did you take as to procuring the lease with reference to finding Testimony as to whether or not Tommy Atkins was alive or dead?

A. The first thing that was done after the lease was signed and when it was on its way from Seattle to Tulsa, which took four days, Mr. Hanford and I made some investigations in Oklahoma. I brought him down to Muskogee, and he of course was unfamiliar with Departmental Records here; and we made a very thorough examination of every record in the Commissioner's Office affecting the Atkins family. We went —— I had made this before and was familiar with the papers. We went into the Minnie Atkins census cards, Thomas Atkins card; into the Chaney Trent family record and into the Nancy records. We went over everything and covered the ground as thoroughly as possible and even down to the letter of E. B. Miller as to the delivery of deed to his heirs, which to us at that time was an indication that he must be dead.

Q. Whose heirs?

A. The heirs of Thomas Atkins. After this examination here, we talked with William Robinson in Muskogee.

Q. Who was William Robinson?

A. A citizen of Muskogee and relative of Minnie's. William Robinson told us that Barney, his half brother, who was a cousin by blood of Minnie, would know more about it than anyone else. We went down and saw him and Carson. We saw Mitchel Wadsworth at that time, who told us considerable about Nancy's baby. We saw an Indian over by Bixby who knew something about Minnie; and we saw Sam Brown; and then went back to Tulsa. In the meantime the executed lease had reached there. The Gypsy Oil Company was in possession of the property and the decree of Court had been, as I remember, executed and filed at Sapulpa in the case between the Nancy Atkins people and the Gypsy. Just what the legal condition was I can't state. But it was agreed that Mr. Hanford and I should return to Seattle. This was along about the first of July. That we should return to Seattle and go over Minnie's life history thoroughly. Get all the facts that we could as to her son Thomas Atkins. As I recall, the purpose of this was so that we could file suit ourselves in Creek County under agreement to perfect the title as against Nancy Atkins and as against the Thomas Atkins leases and deeds which were on record. At that time there was a Nancy Atkins lease, two deeds from Thomas Atkins, and the H. U. Bartlett lease from Minnie Atkins in 1912.

Q. You mean that there [ ] on record two deeds that purported to be from Thomas Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To this allotment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, go ahead.

A. So Mr. Hanford and I returned to Seattle, arriving there along the first week in July, sometime, to go over all this information with Minnie. When we first reached there Captain MacNab was away and Mr. Minnie and did not want to take this up with Minnie until Captain MacNab's return; so we waited some few days, and then we started in our conversations with Minnie with reference to her history, which covered a couple of days.

Q. Who was present at those conversations?

A. Mr. Hanford and myself.

Q. Well, did you at that time after talking to Minnie make a memorandum of the substance of your conversation with her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you that with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was it made with reference to your conversation?

A. It was made during the conversation; Mr. Hanford did most of the questioning and I wrote—we both talked, of course, but I wrote this down on a little table in her house during the conversation.

Mr. Cruce: I wish you would mark this. (Marked defendant's exhibit 12).

Mr. Hill: I want to object——

The Court: Perhaps the record will be in better shape if the record shows it is offered.

Mr. Cruce: Put an exhibit mark on that, please sir.

The Court: Now, I might suggest, that what you are about to offer, from the witness' testimony, there appears to be notations made by him at the time of statements made by Minnie Atkins, when she was being questioned; that is true, I believe?

Mr. Cruce: Yes, sir.

The Court: Now, if it is competent for this witness to testify with regard to those statements, his direct statement, now, refreshed so far as is necessary, by notations made at the time, is the best manner in which to get that into the record, rather than the notations themselves, it appears to me, on that phase of it.

Mr. Cruce: Our idea in introducing this is not to introduce it as substantive testimony, to sustain the statements that are contained in it, but it is for the purpose of answering the Government's contention that the defendant's story here is a fabrication.

The Court: In my judgment, before I have heard the argument, it occurred to me that if this is competent at all, it is competent on the question as to the good faith of these persons who were dealing with Minnie Atkins with regard to this property, and on the question of their notice or lack of notice with regard to what the Government contends to have been the non-existence of this Tommy Atkins.

Mr. Cruce: That is exactly what we offer it for.

Mr. German: Yes, your Honor, if it is competent for that limited purpose.

The Court: Yes?

Mr. German: And while that matter is up, we would like to make this suggestion about the conversation, the witness relates to have had with Minnie on his first trip up there, that we object to that conversation, too, because it is a self serving declaration, and is inadmissible, and hearsay.

The Court: You mean something that he has already related?

Mr. German: Yes, sir, a while ago he testified about a conversation that he had with Minnie when he first met her at the house.

The Court: Now, I thought of that as it was being introduced, and my thought then was that it was competent merely to determine the state of mind of this witness and those who he represented after he related it to them, must have been with regard to the situation; and for that limited purpose, because before Minnie made any statement to him it developed that there had been attempts to get her deal in regard to this land, so in my judgment it is not competent as substantive proof of the facts which Minnie purported to state; but it does occur to me to be competent as to touching the good faith of the parties.

Mr. Hill: I want to state our position in regard to that; I am not of course in any question between the Government and these parties as to the good faith, but your Honor's rule that when we offered statements of Nancy—Your Honor ruled that they were not——

The Court: You offered them as substantive proofs of fact that Nancy purported to relate.

Mr. Hill: Yes, sir. * * * * Now, this statement is further removed than the statement—it further removes than that statement.

The Court: Well, it may be a difficult thing for the Court to do, the Court must distinguish between this evidence as relating to its substantive value and its value so far as it relates to the good faith here, and that I shall attempt to do.

Mr. Hill: And that is what I want to get in the record, that we object to it as substantive testimony.

Mr. German: And now, your Honor, may it be understood that any further conversations this witness relates might be considered for the same limited purpose?

The Court: Yes, and the record may show your objection to it for all purposes, if you desire the exception noted.

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, I would like to make this suggestion; Judge Hill not only offered that class of testimony, but he offered statements, declarations and words of Nancy to prove her parentage. We expect to offer the same thing from Minnie; Mr. German has made a very comprehensive objection here that no statements made by them are competent because they are self serving. Your Honor has already permitted Nancy to testify as to everything she knew about the parentage of this child——

The Court: Except that I excluded what Nancy told other parties. I excluded the testimony of other parties as to what Nancy told them after the controversy arose.

Mr. Stuart: That is right, your Honor, but in view of the comprehensive objection as to what these parties might have said, I still contend that statements made by Minnie are admissible the same as made by Nancy.

The Court: Well, to the extent that I admitted the statements in regard to Nancy, I expect to admit the same statements as to Minnie.

Q. Did you receive a telegram from Mr. Josey while you were there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is this the telegram?

Mr. German: On which trip?

Mr. Cruce: On the first trip.

A. Yes, sir, that telegram I received the morning I got there; it was there when I got there.

Mr. German: Are you introducing these messages—you didn't introduce the others.

The Court: I think it is unnecessary to introduce them because they were read.

Mr. German: Your Honor, the dates, I don't think were brought out and the little marks on them which cut some figure.

Mr. Cruce: Well, then I will introduce them, your Honor.

The Court: It occurs to me that the only possible bearing or interest that the Court could have would be as to the date, the contents, the person addressed, and the signature, and that has been read into the record.

Mr. German: Well, we will have them on hand, that is alright.

Q. That telegram is June 12th, 1914, Tulsa, Oklahoma; F. B. Long, Seattle, Washington. "Property looking better; use every effort to close deal. R. A. Josey." You received that telegram? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, see whether or not you—was that a letter or telegram that you sent?

A. This is a copy of a night letter dated June 13th, 1914.

Q. Addressed to?

A. It is not a carbon copy; just a copy that I made from my own——

Q. Who was that sent to?

A. That was sent to Mr. Josey.

Mr. German: We object to the telegram—purported copy, because it does not appear to be a copy but a pen and ink notation made on a letter head.

Mr. Cruce: I will ask him about that.

Q. You sent a telegram, did you, June 13th, 1914, to Mr. Josey? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, what is this document marked defendant's exhibit 12?

A. That is a copy of a night letter which I sent that night to Mr. Josey.

Q. When did you make the copy?

A. I made the copy at the time I wrote the telegram and then I put a note at the bottom, copy of the letter to R. A. J.

Q. Is that literal copy of the telegram?

A. Yes, sir, yes, sir.

Mr. Allen: We suggest, your Honor, if that telegram was sent at all, it was sent to his firm at Tulsa, and probably they have the original.

By the Court.

Q. Have you the original, Mr. Long?

A. I can't find it; Mr. Josey received it personally.

Q. Did you look for it? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: You may read it.

Mr. Cruce: Party looks to be right one but has been frightened by people already here and has called in advisers——

By Mr. Cruce.

Q. You read that?

A. "Party looks to be right one but has been frightened by people already here and has called in advisers, been with them all day. Am hopeful. Absence of one adviser, however, may be a delay closing until next week, Rogers at Aberdeene hotel, Kansas City. No proof here that boy is dead."

Q. Now, I hand you telegram dated June 16th, signed Long, addressed R. A. Josey. See whether or not that telegram was sent to Mr. Josey.

A. That was sent from Spokane, Washington on the 16th.

Mr. Cruce: "Spokane, Washington, June 16th, 1914, R. A. Josey, Tulsa, Oklahoma, Trust Agreement executed to Army officer. Bring one back with me. Here today to see husband. Leave tonight, arrive Saturday. Army man's trip not known here or in Seattle. Must be kept quiet in Tulsa. If you want wire me address hotel Spokane before 5 today. Are an abstract. Long."

A. That should be order an abstract.

Q. Now, Mr. Long that is all the letters and telegrams you have with reference to that first trip? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Getting back to this second trip now, exhibit 11——

Mr. Cruce: If the Court please, this is short and it is designated—I will let him——

The Court: Well, perhaps inasmuch as it is a statement made by him at the time, and if he refreshed his memory in regard to it, it would be very largely a reading of the statement, and he might just as well read it.

Q. Go ahead and read it.

A. Just read it as it is?

Q. Yes, sir, just exactly as it is.

A. Thomas Atkins, f.——

The Court: Perhaps, Mr. Long, it is just about a shorthand statement of what transpired there, is that so?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Perhaps he had better refresh his recollection and make the statement.

Mr. Hill: Let me make a suggestion; I have read about half of it and it is incomplete without his explanation; suppose we have the stenographer copy that into the record and Mr. Cruce may then examine——

The Court: Well if that is satisfactory——

Mr. German: I think I will object to it as being——

The Court: Mr. Long has that in his hands before him; no doubt before he has gone on the stand or sometime in the past he has re-read that; naturally he would have done so. Now, Mr. Long may proceed with that in his hand to state what transpired there. Your objections are already in the record.

By Mr. Cruce.

Q. Now, using that as a basis, and for the purpose of refreshing your recollection, state to the Court what that conversation was with Minnie, in brief.

A. We began the conversation with her birth. She gave us the name of her father, the name of her mother, and names of her brothers and sisters, and the date of her birth. She told us she was 13 years old when her father died, and she was 12 years old when her mother died; she said that she went to Tallahassee Mission to school when she was about 15; that she had been living with her uncle John Davis in Muskogee for a year and she went backwards and forwards to Tallahassee to his home; then about 1879—the way she fixed the date, she went to Carlisle Indian school with about 25 other Creeks, among Almarine McKellop and Betty Crowell; she said that Alice Robertson was her teacher at Tallahassee——

Mr. German: Your Honor, it is apparent that the witness is simply reading from that document; now, if he has any independent recollection about that——

The Court: No, make your objection; I am going to permit him to refresh his memory from this. He testified that he made the notes at the time. That was over two years ago; he may proceed.

A. She stated that she was in Carlisle four years——

Mr. German: We save an exception.

A. That she left Carlisle alone, George Hyde of Leavenworth, Kansas having written to his sister Mary to send out a cook; Miss Mary Hyde was an overseer of the girls at Carlisle; Minnie stated that Miss Hyde picked her out; she also stated that she paid her own fare with money John Davis had sent her, from Carlisle to Leavenworth; she figured that this was 1882; she said she worked two months for Hydes; that she quit there and went to Fort Leavenworth where she worked for four years; she said she worked for a Mr. Grodevant for three years; he was an overseer of the Military Prison; then she went to work for Mrs. Lieutenant Stafford of the Army where she worked for one year; she said that her boy right after she left Mrs. Stafford's. Now, then, I deducted or figured from that that the boy was born in 1886 or 1887, according to the way her years had figured out. She said the boy was born during the summer and that his father was dead as far as she knows; that she never heard anything about him after Harvey and Charlie were born; she first said something about a boy being born in—about a colored place, and changed this quickly and said that the boy was born—she was in the Sister's Hospital when the son was that and that that was a slip. She said she was in the Hospital one month afterwards and that she went right from Stafford's to the Hospital. Now, her reference to the boy being born some place other than the Hospital, I didn't write down here, because she said that was wrong.

Q. Said what?

A. Said that the boy was born some place else other than the Hospital. I didn't write that in here, but I do have a distinct recollection of it, because it came back to me afterwards; said she was in a hospital one month after the boy was born; that she went right from Stafford's to the Hospital; then she said after she got out of the Hospital, she worked for some rich Jews who lived on a high hill outside of the Post, taking the boy with her; that she worked there three months; at this time in the conversation she said that Mary Hamilton knew her in Leavenworth; that was the first reference to Mary Hamilton; she said that she named Thomas after her father; that he was illigitimate and couldn't carry his own father's name and she called him Thomas Atkins; she stated that she couldn't get any wages with the boy on her hands, she couldn't make a living, so she had to give him to some one to take care of, and she gave him to a woman in Leavenworth; that Thomas was weaned and able to take care of himself; able to walk or something to that effect; she told us that Mary Hamilton and Claude Hamilton at Fort Logan would remember who she left the boy with; that she didn't expect to leave him permanently and expected to go back and get him, and that the woman she left him with was part colored——

The Court: Does that appear on your note?

A. Yes, sir. She then said that she went to Fort Logan with the 18th Infantry and stayed in Fort Logan for eight years; that while she was in Fort Logan she received a letter to send money to the boy and she sent this money; this was 1888 or 1889; she stayed first at Fort Logan for four years until 1893; she met Biff Harrison there and two boys were born there, and Alice, all having the same father; that Alice, the older, died when she was one year old; that Biff Harrison was the beef contractor; she said that Lee, her brother, in Oklahoma, had sent for her to come back here; she was in Muskogee, and she went back and took the two boys with her; at that time, Charlie could walk but Harvey had to be carried in her arms but was not nursing, so he must have been about two years old. I have figured and put down the geometrical marks there—that therefore that was about 1894. She said that she went to Lee's house here in Muskogee, and Lee was not married and she stayed several months with him, and then visited other relatives around over the state; she estimated at that time that she was here for two years and that she returned from Lee's house in Muskogee to Fort Logan; she said Lee met the train in Muskogee one afternoon and Kate Holden came in and she had Kate Holden take the two boys with her; she explained that Kate Holden was her half sister; Kate and I had the same father but not the same mother; and that Kate Holden took the boys home with her. The next sheet numbered but is my deductions in figuring the years and I show here—

The Court: Well, you needn't read that.

A. No. In 1895, she told us about going to the payment at Okmulgee and Thomas was alive then. She again repeated about visiting Lee and Kate Holden; that she visited Will Robinson and Cherokee Robinson; she said she was in Checotah when she heard Lee was shot; she was visiting her aunt Susie there. This was after she had drawn the money; she went back to Eufaula, and from there to Checotah; she said Lee was shot in the summer; her recollection was that the payment was in May and that Lee was shot in the summer. She said she stayed with him six days and she nursed him and they buried him in Eufaula; then after that she said that she came to Muskogee and stayed here a week and then went over and visited Nancy in Wagoner for two days and that Nancy about this time had a baby girl that was still born and that Lee had given Nancy some money; she said that Nancy's baby was born before Lee was killed, when he was running a billiard hall in Muskogee; that this was when she was in Fort Logan and Lee told her about the still born child when she came out here; she said that she went to the payment on horse back from Muskogee; she hired a horse in Muskogee; that she remembered that Sam Brown handed her the money; she didn't get it direct; she remembered that Cornelius Carr was there.

Q. Cornelius Carr what?

A. Cornelius Carr was there. She said that it must have been about 1896 when she started to Denver with John Couch; finally landed in Fort Logan the latter part of 1896 or the first part of 1897; the 7th Infantry was there at that time; she said that she was in Logan while the 7th Infantry was in Cuba;

this was in 1898 and that the 7th went to Fort Wayne, Michigan, and we joined them there—that this was in Detroit. There is another page of just memorandum. She went on, and repeating—very likely now, this was the next day—that we went back and went over this again—I can't tell. She said one month after Lee was killed in July, or August, 1895, that she went back to Fort Logan. The day before she had made it a year after. She said she went from Muskogee to Fort Logan with John Couch in July or August 1895; that she spent a year in Logan and then went to Detroit, Michigan with the 7th Infantry; Harrison in the meantime had gone to Arizona; she said that she stayed in Detroit with the 7th Infantry after it returned from Cuba for two years; she said that when she was in Logan the second time after having gone back, she heard from Thomas who was still in Leavenworth; she said that in Fort Logan, she was working for Mrs. Lieutenant Wallace. While the 7th was in Cuba I heard from Thomas by letter and he was sick; I put down there that this was in the latter part of 1899—— she didn't know just when it was. She said that she wrote a letter from Detroit to Mitchell Wadsworth. The rest of this down are all my own figures trying to add up the years and make them come out right. Shall I go into that?

Q. No, I guess not.

The Court: All the Court understood that this witness was going to relate from this data was statements made to him by Minnie at this time. What his conclusions were is another matter.

Mr. Cruce: Yes, sir.

Q. She also stated—I don't have this down here but I think Mr. Hanford took this down—when she was at Fort Logan, no, at Fort Wayne, Detroit, that she received a letter telling of Thomas' death; at that time we were particularly interested in whether he died before or after April 1st, 1899. She said she received this letter after the regiment came back from Cuba. Mr. Hanford had posted himself on the April 1st, 1899 matter and of course he was interested. We went over that matter of that letter, two or three times.

Mr. Cobb: We desire to object to this testimony.

The Court: Your objection will be noted as to this testimony. The Court has already announced the limited extent in which it is received.

A. She said—we went over that with her two or three times and she said that she received that letter after the regiment had returned from Cuba. We then wired the War Department, or Mr. Hanford did, to find out just when that regiment did return so as to fix that date.

Q. Now, had you up until that time received any information from any source that indicated to you that there never was any child named Thomas Atkins? A. No, sir.

Q. Had doubt on that matter arisen in your mind?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, what did you ascertain that was the time when this——

A. I have forgotten that, Mr. Cruce. Mr. Hanford has that telegram.

Q. Now, have you any letters or telegrams—erase that question. I don't notice any letters or telegrams here to Mr. Page. How did that happen, your communications were all sent to Josey?

A. Well, Mr. Page was not active in the Gem Oil Company; Mr. Josey was the active head of the Company and naturally all communications were to the Gem Oil Company or to Mr. Josey.

Q. Now, have you any more letters or telegrams that you sent to Josey or the Gem Oil Company during this second trip out there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let's have them here, please.

A. The first one here was a message in code, a translation is attached to it.

Q. Have you the date of that?

A. Yes, sir, the date is on the message.

Mr. Cruce: The first is a letter written to Mr. Josey on July 7th. I will just read that to the Court.

Mr. German: We object to that letter.

The Court: Yes, your objection goes to this.

Mr. Cruce: July 7th, 1914. Dear Mr. Josey; You will recollect that at the station Saturday evening you remarked upon the matter in which——

The Court: Maybe you had better let Mr. Long read it.

A. "July 7th, 1914. Dear Mr. Josey: You will recollect that at the station Saturday evening you remarked upon the manner in which Shirk, lessee from Harvey Harrison, was stiffening in his position. That remark was occasion by Kenn[illegible]'s statement as to a talk he had had with Shirk. It has since occurred to me that Shirk and his attorneys may be preparing to assert that Minnie Atkins is a non-citizen of the Creek Nation, on account of the fact that she is not on the final rolls. I mentioned this to you once before and also discussed the same question with Rice and Lyons. The supplemental Creek Agreement provides, you know, that where there are citizen heirs, non-citizens can not inherit. Harvey and Charles Harrison are on the final rolls and Minnie is not. Is Minnie a citizen? She is a Creek Indian by blood but not on the final approved rolls. However, with reference to the census card, which should have arrived by this time, will show that she made an effort to be enrolled, but was found to have been out of the state on April 1st, 1899. In 1900 she filed a power of attorney for Thomas Holder, who enrolled her two sons. She was alive on that date, and only had to go to Oklahoma to cinch her rights. I hope this matter has already been thoroughly gone into, but it strikes me that this one question is the only hope which Shirk, Ball, et al., can have. You remarked at one time that Judge Biggs' opinion that if Minnie lived she is the sole heir. It may have been that Bartlett was working on the non-citizen theory when he bought the quitclaim deed from Harvey Harrison. Hanford is still talking right. We arrive in Spokane tomorrow morning at eight. You will have received wire message from me before this letter reaches you. Trusting there is nothing to this non-citizen fear, I am, Sincerely, Long."

Q. Now, get the next communication there in the order, so we can get through with them as quickly as we can.

Q. Here is a telegram of July 8th, from Seattle, Washington, to Gem Oil Company. Did you send that telegram?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. "Seattle, Washington, July 8, 1914, Gem Oil Company, 472 First National Bank Building, Tulsa, Oklahoma. Captain MacNab out of City. Will return tomorrow—— Nothing accomplished today as Hanford desires to see him before going ahead with work—— Long."

Mr. Cruce: Telegram of July 9th, 1914. "Frank B. Long, Care of E. C. Hanford, Seattle. Secure all facts possible about Thomas they are framing to produce one and are going to do everything possible to accomplish it, wire me anything about him which you think needs immediate attention. R. A. Josey."

Telegram Seattle, Washington, July 9, 1914, to the Gem Oil Company, First National Bank Building, Tulsa, Oklahoma. "Woman story clear as to life history and birth of child, but so far she is unable to remember name of people with whom she left him in Leavenworth may recall name by tomorrow—she gives [] can be verified by War Department Records as to location of regiment—

we are doing this by wire will have affidavits executed tomorrow everything looks good. Long."

Q. Did you send that telegram?

A. Yes, sir. This telegram was in code; the translation is attached to it.

Mr. Cruce: (Reading). "Minnie last heard of boy in summer 1899 was alive then but sick thinks he died soon after. Boy born 1886 or '7 Sister's Catholic Hospital, Leavenworth, records there should show."

Q. Did you send that telegram?

A. Yes, sir. This is another message in code with the translation attached to it.

Mr. Cruce: This is July 14, 1914. "Gem Oil Company, First National Bank Building, Tulsa, Oklahoma. After conference today am convinced Minnie does not remember name of people with whom she left child. Will keep after her. Long."

The Court: Is that another code message?

Mr. Cruce: Yes, sir, the code is attached to it.

The Court: What was the occasion of changing to the code at the time?

A. Mr. Eberly, the book keeper in the office, and I had a code which we frequently used. It was not our purpose to have our visit out there generally known.

The Court: I notice at a particular time the change to have been made from sending your messages open.

A. And then returned and sent them the next day open.

Q. How many days did you have code messages?

A. I think only one day and perhaps two.

Q. The first July 9th and the next July 14th?

A. Perhaps two days.

Q. Were there any intervening messages?

A. No, sir. I think you have the original of that, that is the carbon. I think you have the original of that Mr. Cruce, that is the carbon.

Q. Where is it?

A. You have read it, that is July 10th.

Q. Here is one July 10th, 1914, to the Gem Oil Company from Seattle, Washington. "Man named Dr. Thomas representing Williams Robinson of Muskogee tried to see woman today but didn't get to talk to her affidavit executed today am mailing copy to you tonight Minnie gives name of woman on Denver who will remember name of Thomas custodians will see her on my way back Minnie's information is that he died 1900 or 1901 she received letter telling of his death but does not remember who wrote letter will see her again in morning she is trying to recall names needed. Long." Did you send that telegram? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Telegram from Tulsa, Oklahoma, July 11, 1914. "F. B. Long Ranier Grand Hotel, Seattle. Do not leave there until advised by us. Be sure you have right party. R. A. Josey." Did you receive that telegram? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Telegram, July 11, 1914, Gem Oil Company, Tulsa, Oklahoma. "Affidavit which will reach Tulsa Monday gives dates and names for identification. Had woman's photograph taken today. Will mail finished copy Monday. Woman declares she will yet recall name of person who wrote her that boy died says she is sure name will come to her in time. Long." Did you send that telegram? A. Yes, sir.

Q. "Seven-thirteen-fourteen. Am sending photos by first class mail special delivery. They are important. Letter is enclosed with photos. This letter to let you know they are on the way and to look for them. Long." Was that a telegram? A. That is a letter.

Q. Well, now, you say: "Letter inclosed with photos"?

A. That was the letter transmitting the photos.

Q. This was the letter?

A. Yes, sir, that letter was mailed to the Gem Oil Company but was not addressed to any particular individual. Mr. Eberly always opened the mail and saw that it got to the right place.

Q. It is not signed?

A. I think it is signed. It should have been. I wrote it.

Q. You wrote this letter at the time indicated?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 7/10/14? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you mail it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you get it, Mr. Long?

A. Out of the office file.

Q. "Minnie's affidavit herewith inclosed. I believe it covers her history. Two important points she is shy on memory, she swears she cannot remember the name of the woman in Leavenworth with whom she left the boy. Neither can she remember the name of the person who wrote her that the boy died. However, she stated this evening she would do her level best to remember these names. The most important date in her narrative, when she went to Fort Wayne, which (Fort was after she had been there quite a while, after April 1, 1899—that she heard the boy was dead) is sustained by telegram from Washington, giving date when Seventh Infantry reached Fort Wayne from Cuba. I did not put in years in every place in affidavit, because she could not be definite. However, I am, on next page, showing a table with all dates, which can be verified."

A. That page is gone. It may have been left in the file, but it is lost some place.

Q. "I would suggest that facts in affidavit be kept secret. I hope to get out of her tomorrow the names of the custodians of the child. Captain MacNab was to have been here yesterday, he will not arrive until next Tuesday, is out on a "hike" with his regiment."

A. This is a letter dated July 13, 1914. "In a recent telegram Mr. Josey admonished me to be sure I had the right party. While I am perfectly satisfied our Minnie is the right Minnie, still I know there have been, in the past, many clever frame ups pulled off in identification. I am therefore transmitting two photographs of Minnie—— One alone on her front porch and the other by the side of her soldier husband, in civilian clothes.

The Court: Now, just let me find out about this letter, will you?

A. The 13th.

The Court: Is that one of your letters?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: July 13, 1914.?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Is that the letter that was written accompanying the photograph?

A. That and the little memorandum; I think I put the photographs under separate cover.

The Court: All right. Proceed.

A. "Both likenesses are good of the woman. I instructed the photographer not to "touch up" the photos, so that they would be natural. Would suggest that, in order to reassure all of us and make identification complete, you have Sam Brown, Mitchell Wadsworth (lives five miles west of Coweta) William Robinson, of Muskogee, or Barney Robinson, of Carson, examine the photos and say whether the woman is Minnie Atkins. Or John Couch of Muskogee. Couch is the man who went from Muskogee to Denver with Minnie in 1896. His brother Frank Couch in Muskogee would also know her. Reference to John Couch is made in the affidavit which you have. And, by the way, he might know something in re Thomas. Will be glad to have you wire me results of identification of photos.

None of these people have seen the woman since 1896—eighteen years. Minnie says she has not changed much in eighteen years, except as to weight. She says she always was large, but that she has gained considerably in the last ten years. There are yet, as stated in previous letters and telegrams, two things which she must come through with—the name of the colored woman with whom she left Thomas in Leavenworth, and the name of the person who wrote her that he was dead. I believe she remembers these names and is withholding them for a reason. MacNab will be home tomorrow and I feel that he will make her come across. My only fear is that she lied as to in telling of his death and that it occurred much earlier than is shown in the affidavit. Am to see her this afternoon and will wire you tonight. I trust the photographs herewith will be of help. As additional means of identification, here are two camera views of our friend Minnie. These, with the three photos I mailed today should be sufficient."

Q. Here is a telegram, dated Seattle, Washington, July 13th, Gem Oil Company, 412 First National Bank Building, Tulsa, Oklahoma. Q. You sent that telegram did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the date indicated? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, after you got back from your second trip from the west, did you make a trip to Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many trips have you made there?

A. In this case?

Q. Yes?

A. It would be very hard to tell. I suspect I have been up there fifteen or twenty times in the last two years.

Q. What have you been going there for?

A. To look up facts about the birth and existence of Thomas Atkins and Minnie's life while she was there.

Q. How many people do you think you have interviewed in Leavenworth in your efforts to find out?

A. A very great number.

Q. Did you see as many as a hundred?

A. Oh, several hundred.

Q. What has been your purpose since you began the investigation of this case with reference to finding out about Thomas Atkins?

A. Our purpose was to find out everything that it was possible to know. We ran down every source of information I have been almost from coast to coast. Sometimes we would have some information that amounted to nothing. We did everything that any one could possibly do to find out all about it. We didn't leave any stone unturned, if we did we don't know it.

Q. Well, was it your effort to find out the facts as they actually existed or to color the facts?

A. We tried to find the facts, the naked facts as they existed.

Q. Have you ever sought to procure anyone to testify falsely in this case? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever entered into any agreement with anyone to pay him to get false testimony in the case?

A. No, sir.

Q. When did you first hear about Mr. Long—or Carter, Henry Carter? A. Sometime in the fall of 1914.

Q. You took a lease from him? A. Yes, sir, and a deed.

Q. And a deed? A. Yes, sir, the deed was to Minnie.

Q. The deed was to Minnie?

A. Yes, sir, and the lease was to the Gem Oil Company.

Mr. Cruce: Has that lease been introduced?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what effort, if any, did you make to find out about Henry Carter?

A. Made some inquiry around Leavenworth, and on one night Mr. Josey, Dennis Jones, and I, and Henry Carter in a car went to the home of Mrs. Eddie Wright, whom we had heard was the mother of Henry Carter; and we had quite a long talk with her. Then I made a trip to McLouth, Kansas, and Oscaloosa, Kansas, and interviewed quite a few people who had known Henry. And finally came to the conclusion that he was not Thomas Atkins, Minnie's son.

Q. What was your purpose in making those inquiries, were you trying to hunt testimony to defeat Henry Carter's case or find out the facts?

A. At that time I was trying to find the facts. We had taken a lease from him. He had signed a deed to Minnie for a consideration, and I was then looking him up.

Q. What was your purpose in taking that lease?

A. Well, at that particular time the claim of Nancy Atkins was being advanced; we had a fight on our hands. It was commonly reported to us that Bartlett and the Gypsy Oil Company and Sadie James were trying mighty hard to find Tommy Atkins and were about to find him and he was alive. And this young man came along and I had a talk and he told me a plausible story, which I still believe he believed himself; and he had some indications that he might be the Thomas. There were some things in his story which were reasonable. He was very frank and honest about everything; gave the names of everybody that ought to know him; told me about things in Muskogee down there; told me he came to Mr. Shoenfeldt's office, the German speaking man he said, trying to establish himself. And that looked to me like he was telling the truth. And then he very frankly and openly gave me the names of all the old Carter neighbors over around McLouth, and told me to go there and see them; and I did go to see them.

Q. But before going you took a lease?

A. Yes, sir, took a commercial lease on the surplus and then I wired Rice & Lyons at Muskogee to send me up a departmental form for the homestead, inasmuch as Thomas was enrolled as a half-blood. I even went so far as to file the notice required by the Indian agent at Muskogee that the departmental lease was taken.

Q. Now, I hand you a letter on the letter head of the Gem Oil Company, Tulsa, dated December 15, 1914, and ask you what that is?

A. That is a letter that I wrote to Mr. Hanford.

Q. With reference to Henry Carter?

A. And some other matters.

Q. "December 15, 1914. Dear Ned: Just came back from a three weeks' absence." Where was this letter written from? A. The letter was written from Tulsa.

Q. "Just came back from a three weeks absence. Spent Thanksgiving back with the homefolks in Indiana, immediately afterwards went to Leavenworth, where White and his bunch were taking depositions. They tried to show that the boy was drawn in 1896, but 'fell down,' as we beat them at every turn. We thought we had located Tommy last week, but he was not, although he had a lot of earmarks. Will write you a long letter in a day or two and give you all the 'dope.' Wrote to Minnie this P. M. Long. Mr. E. C. Hanford, No. 212 Coleman Building, Seattle, Washington." Was that letter written before or after you had made that trip out in the country to investigate the witnesses? A. Afterwards.

Mr. Cruce: I think that is all, your Honor. There is some more correspondence of a later day, I haven't had time to look it over.

Q. Mr. Long, is there anything else you think of now immediately connected with your connection or that will throw any light on your connection with this case, if there is state it?

A. Well, if you wanted me to state, I think that our connection with Sadie James should be gone into.

Q. Yes, I had overlooked that. Tell me your first connection with Sadie James and what you did?

A. That was in the month of August, 1914, I believe it was the 20th. I can get the exact date. Sadie James came to our office and told me that she had quit working for Bartlett; that they had been all over the United States looking for Tommy Atkins and that they had five or six located but that they didn't prove out and that Bartlett was finally through. She says, now, I have got a lot of information that will be valuable to you. This conversation was in the Gem Oil Company's office. Mr. Josey was then out of the city. And I said, well, now Sadie, we had better go in and talk this over with Mr. Page. So we went out around through the hall to Mr. Page's office and I introduced her. She then repeated the same conversation.

Q. Was Mr. Page acquainted with her at the time?

A. No, sir, I told him who she was. She recited the same statements. Mr. Page says, well I am busy this afternoon; and he was. Our conversation was at a little railing just as you go in. He told me to bring her out to the park tonight and I will meet you out there about eight o'clock. He frequently transacted business out at the park; I was out there often and Mr. Page was there every night.

Q. What park?

A. The park at Sand Springs, the park that Mr. Page owns and maintains. I told Sadie to leave town about the seven-thirty car. I went out early and I met the eight o'clock car and Sadie came with her husband. It was necessary for me to meet the car; she wouldn't have been allowed in the park; the negroes are not allowed in the park. I knew Mr. Page was up by the dance pavilion or the lunch stand and we walked up there, and three of us, and found him there and sat down. And Sadie says, now you folks are mixed up about Thomas Atkins; says I know all about him; says I know where he was born and where he lived and I know all his life history and where he died and I can prove it for you; I can get the witnesses. Mr. Page says Sadie that is just what we want—I will say, prior to the time that Minnie had testified at Sapulpa, that in accordance with the statement she made to us in Washington that Thomas Atkins had been born in Leavenworth. I didn't find anything and Mr. Hanford did find where she had been there as Minnie Peterkin. And we at that particular time was just preparing to go to Leavenworth and make a very thorough investigation, when Sadie James came in with this information. And talking over with her our conversation she said I know the people and I know all about him; and she talked as she does, talked a streak. And says I know them better than anybody. Mr. Bartlett has given it up, I can't find him and I know he is dead now and I can prove it. That thing interested us very much, and she said I must be paid for it; Mr. Bratlett was to give me a thousand dollars on my first trip and he has been giving me money right along. Mr. Page says Sadie if you can find this evidence, these witnesses that will prove what you tell us, we will give you a thousand dollars for it. She said, Mr. Page, I want a contract. He said well that is all right, you come to the office tomorrow morning and we will have the contract. That finished the conversation and it began raining and rained pretty hard for a while and we all walked up to the figure eight where there was shelter. Mr. Page and Sadie walked on ahead of her husband and I and they sat down there on the only two chairs; and I sat over some distance from them, not to exceed five minutes; it was just a little shower and it quit raining and they went on down and went to town. The next morning Sadie came to the office about ten o'clock, and I prepared a little agreement on the back of an envelope. Wrote a check for a thousand dollars and put it in——

Q. You wrote the agreement yourself?

A. Yes, sir, I took it up and had it O. K'd. by Mr. Rice, who was our attorney in the same building, and brought it down, and at her suggestion it was placed in the First National Bank with Mr. Bradshaw, the Cashier.

Q. That is the envelope that has been introduced?

A. Yes, sir, the check for a thousand dollars was sealed in the envelope. The check was to be delivered to her when she carried out her contract. We left Tulsa that night. I went on the Frisco and I believe she went on the Santa Fe, got in Leavenworth the next day. I saw her—— No, I got over there sometime a little before noon and couldn't locate her. She was to call me at the hotel. Along in the afternoon sometime I did locate her and she was drinking pretty hard. And she said come down to Martha somebody and she told me where it was; and I went down there and found it was a little one room brick shack in an alley, and I stood in the door and talked to her and she says I will be all right in the morning, she had been drinking. So, the next morning she called me up at the hotel and I went back down where she was and she was there. We stood in the door, I didn't go inside. And she introduced me to Rube Smith as a man who would know all about Thomas Atkins. She had previously told me that Rube Smith was the father of Thomas Atkins. Well, Rube Smith and I went back to the National Hotel to my room and had a talk. Rube never said he was the father of Thomas; Sadie told me that he was; he told me I might be I don't know. He never said he was. The fact is, I questioned him pretty considerably if he was, I wanted him to admit it. Then he went on and told me what he knew about Minnie. That when he first knew Minnie he was running a grocery store and Minnie came by the store, and told me about where she worked and about her having worked at the Post and about the birth of Thomas, he fixed the year as 1885 or '6, he wasn't sure which year it was.

Mr. German: Who is this you are talking about now?

A. Rube Smith. That finished that conversation, and later on in the evening I met he and Sadie, and they told me tomorrow we will see a woman who knows more about Minnie than anybody. The next morning I met them and they took me to Kate Logan. She was a very old negro woman. She was ill at the time. Dr. Jackson was there and Dr. Jackson, her physician, said we shouldn't talk very much to her on account of her condition.

Q. Dr. Jackson, where does he live?

A. In Leavenworth. We talked to Kate Logan, however, a little while and she told me when Minnie first came to work for George H. Hyde that she was the laundress, that she did the family washing. That was getting pretty close to Minnie's arrival in Leavenworth. And told me she knew all about Minnie; told me about the birth of the child and how long it lived and that she knew the child for some years around Granny Letcher's house——

Mr. German: The Court understands that we are objecting to all conversations with others as well as with Minnie.

The Court: Yes.

A. She told me she didn't know what became of Minnie, that Minnie left there some year and a half or two years after the baby was born; and she never heard from her any more. Told me where the baby was born and told me that Dr. John McCormick waited on her. Smith was present at this conversation and said that that was right, that Dr. John McCormick was there. That conversation lasted perhaps thirty minutes or more, and the old lady commenced to get pretty weak. But I went back down town and got a stenographer and reduced what she had told me into writing in the form of an affidavit and arranged to go back the next morning. I called Dr. Jackson and told him that Kate had told me everything that was necessary. I went back the next morning and then she told me she was afraid she was going to die. She was a Catholic and the fear of death was hanging pretty heavily on her. But she signed the affidavit by mark, witnessed by Rube Smith and the young lady I had there as a Notary, and by Rube Smith's son. She afterwards died, two or three months afterwards. Then the next person Sadie James told me about, but didn't take me to see, she told me about Sam Nash and where to find him. Prior to this, however—— I am a little ahead of my story. I then, independent of Sadie James went down to look up the Seneca Street location. I walked all around the block and in and around the lumber yard and across the street to Crilly's barn and inquired from Crilly how long he had been there. Crilly told me he had lived in Leavenworth—— Well, without going into his full conversation.

The Court: Well, we will take a recess until two o'clock this afternoon.

And thereupon Court recessed until two o'clock P. M.

And thereafter and at 2 o'clock P. M., Court having convened pursuant to adjournment, further proceedings herein were had as follows:

FRANK B. LONG, being recalled further testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Cruce.

Q. Mr. Long, just before the noon recess, you were talking about your interview with Mr. Crilley. As briefly as you can, state what that was.

A. Well, I went to Mr. Crilley because he was in the neighborhood of 217 Seneca street where I had been told Thomas Atkins was born to Minnie. I found from Mr. Crilley that he had lived there a great many years and was well acquainted with the neighborhood. I asked him if he ever knew an Indian woman around there that they called Indian Minnie; he replied that he did; that he did know an Indian woman that they called Indian Minnie, about 28 or 30 years ago; that she made her headquarters at Granny Letcher's place across the street from his livery barn; I asked him what he knew about a son she had there and he replied that he knew something about it; it was generally reported that she had a boy—that he didn't know about the birth absolutely but that it was reported that she had a son there along about that time, and that his name was Tommy. We went over—then I said, now, Mr. Crilley, you have lived here a great number of years—you are in the livery business and you know the people have lived in this community and I would like to have you take me around to them. We sat down there and I wrote down some forty or fifty names that he gave me. Then I told him—then I said, that Sadie James had told me about a one-armed boy who used to live there and a relative of Granny Letcher's who would probably know more about Indian Minnie and her son than anyone else, named Sam Nash; and I asked him if he knew him and he said that he did and that he worked for Ed. Blockberger. We got in his car and drove to Blockberger's Meat Market, some six or eight blocks away; and I saw Sam Nash and had the same conversation with him that I had with Mr. Crilley and he made the same statement about Indian Minnie having been at his grandmother's house and about the boy; he also gave me a number of other names.

Q. Who was that—Nash?

A. Sam Nash, to look up; that long late in the evening. That evening or the next morning, I saw a fellow named William Parker who gave me the same information. I can't just remember who took me to William Parker but I talked with him that night—I know it was after dinner in the evening. The next morning then, I engaged Mr. Crilley and his automobile for the entire day and we saw that day, I suspect twenty-five or thirty people. We saw any number of people who lived, both colored and white, who lived in the Granny Letcher neighborhood in 1885, who never heard of Indian Minnie nor of a Tommy; never heard of a boy around there—didn't remember it; we spent that whole day. In the meantime I had been in communication with—talking with Sadie James over the telephone—she called me up a couple of times, and I told her I was working and getting information and she said she was doing the same thing. I had affidavits from Kate Logan and Sam Nash, and William Parker; I then,—that day, then, I employed Rube Smith. I was a stranger in Leavenworth and didn't know around, and I wanted to get this information as quickly as possible. I employed Rube Smith to look up information for me; told him that I was going back to Tulsa and to have as many people located as possible, who were familiar with the Granny Letcher house.

Q. What did you agree to pay him?

A. Five dollars a day; agreed to give him five dollars a day and I also agreed verbally, this was not in a written contract, that if we won the law suit in question, I would pay him five hundred dollars and five dollars a day for each day that he worked. I went to Tulsa that night with the affidavits to consult with Rice and Lyons and Mr. Page and Mr. Josey. I spent probably two or three days in Tulsa; some other business had to be attended to before I could go back; and in the meantime Mr. Hanford, was looking up also some information in Leavenworth and had gone east to Boston to see Peterkin. I went back to Leavenworth and again met Sadie James; she told me that she was working on a place where Thomas Atkins had died; at no time did we had even the slightest suspicion that he had not existed because I had seen people who I considered reputable who told me, but we were very much concerned about whether he was dead. The Gypsy Oil Company and Bartlett were still working on the theory that he was alive. After about the second day, Sadie James called me up and said—asked me to come over to where she was rooming. I went over—in the meantime, however, she had made a trip out to Weldon, Missouri, and another trip she had made to Pilot Knob claiming to have had information that that is where Thomas died, and was buried, and she was not getting any place. She called me over—I went over to Ben Samuel's rooming house where she was staying and went up stairs and saw her. I told her that she was not getting any information; I didn't think she was doing anything that amounted to much —she was there on expense; she then made me this proposition; she said, now, I will tell you what I will do—and I can't quote her literally because she talked too fast and said too much; but the substance of her assertion was this—that if I would give her five hundred dollars, she said she fallen down on finding death or indications or proof of death at Weldon or Pilot Knob but she said if I would give her five hundred dollars, she would go over to Kansas City among some people that she knew over there, and she would find the grave and have it all fixed up for me when I got there. That was the first false move she made and I told her no, that I didn't want her to do that.

Q. What did you do in reference in communicating that matter——

A. I immediately went back to the National hotel and telephoned the office; I don't remember who I talked to. I either talked to Mr. Eberle or Mr. Page, and I telephoned the office Sadie James wasn't acting right and I wanted her sent for. I said I don't want to fire her and get her out of town because she is dangerous and I don't want her ill-will up here until I get all this information looked up but I want her out of town and you send her a telegram to come home.

Q. Was that the same day she made this proposition?

A. That was the same evening, that was the night. I says I wish you folks down there would send her a telegram to come to Tulsa, and that would relieve me of having her go.

Q. Did you get any response to that?

A. They said they would wire her and they sent some telegrams.

Q. See if you have a copy of the telegrams?

A. I had them here this morning, they have been misplaced. There is the first message that was sent to her.

Q. This is the telegram, "September 18, 1914, Mrs. Sadie James, 221 Shawnee Street, Leavenworth, Kansas. Unless you have something of importance on would like to see you in Tulsa tomorrow morning, wire answer immediately. Gem Oil Company." Have you any recollection now as to how long after you had talked with your people over the telephone before that was sent?

A. I think that was sent the next morning, the hour will probably be on there.

The Court: That is a carbon copy of the file?

A. Yes, sir, that is a carbon copy from our office files.

Q. You mean from the office of the Gem Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you see anything on there about the time?

A. No, not on that carbon.

Q. What other telegrams were sent?

A. She went away the next morning some place, I don't know where she went, because here is the answer to it. I didn't see her any more, I don't know what became of her.

Q. "Leavenworth, Kansas, September 19, 1914, Gem Oil Company. I just got back from the country. Will be there in the morning. Sadie James." Where did that telegram come from?

A. That telegram came from Leavenworth.

Q. Where did you get it? A. Out of the files.

The Court: What is that? Is that the original message?

Mr. Cruce: Yes, sir.

The Court: This seems to be a copy. This isn't a message which came through the telegraph office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. This first one was a carbon.

The Court: What is the date of the last one?

Mr. Cruce: This is September 19, 1914.

Q. Is there any way you can tell when that telegram was received?

A. Well, that telegram is marked collect 1:15 P. M. at Leavenworth.

Q. Now, what other telegrams have you?

A. Now, that telegram, that is Mr. Eberle's handwriting, that was sent with reference to her seeing Mr. Josey, but apparently she had left, because Mr. Eberly has written on there that they were not able to locate her, that she had gone.

Q. This is a carbon copy is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is taken from the files of the Gem Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. "September 19, 1914. Mrs. Sadie James, 221 Shawnee Street, Leavenworth, Kansas. Postpone coming down until tomorrow night and tomorrow morning at nine o'clock call R. A. Josey, Baltimore Hotel, Kansas City. Gem Oil Company." This notation on there "Not able to deliver, party left town", whose handwriting is that? A. Mr. Eberle's.

Q. Who is he?

A. Office manager for the Gem Oil Company.

Q. What connection if any did you have with Sadie James after she made the proposition to go over to the Missouri Cemetery?

A. Not any more connection. I never talked to her after that.

Q. Do you know whether she was ever sent back to Leavenworth by the Company to perform any further services?

A. Prior to that time, no she wasn't. Now, I can't recall without refreshing my memeory from the records whether she went back again to see Dennis Jones or not, whether that was after this or before. I think, however, that the arrangements for Dennis Jones were made prior to this. The date of his contract would show. I was with her for a very short time in Dennis Jones' office, but I would have to refresh my memory by the day of the contract made by Dennis Jones.

The Court: Wasn't that September 23rd?

A. Well, then, she made another trip to Leavenworth.

Q. That was after this? A. Yes.

Q. Your telephone was apparently the 17th or 18th of September?

A. 19th I think. I didn't go back to Tulsa but I didn't see any more of her. If that contract was dated September 23rd, then she came back to Leavenworth and saw Dennis Jones.

Q. Before you had left? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Repeat again the substance of what you told your office when you called them over the 'phone?

A. I told them when I called them over the 'phone that Sadie James was not acting just right that she had made a proposition to manufacture some evidence and that I wanted her out of town, but I didn't want to tell her to go myself. I didn't want her ill will but I wanted her away from there.

Q. Now, what was the next step you took with reference to this matter?

A. I then stayed in Leavenworth for the next two or three days and saw other witnesses, other people rather. I spent one day in Kansas City at the time to see Elof Crilley.

Q. Who was he?

A. He was a son of George Crilley. I saw a great number of people in the next two or three days. I know I used Mr. Crilley's automobile almost continuously going from one place to another. I went with Rube Smith to see some people. I was very anxious then; I had heard of Dennis Jones' activity toward locating Thomas Atkins for the Gypsy and I was very anxious to get in touch with Dennis Jones. That is when—— I was mistaken when I said I didn't see her any more. That is when Sadie James returned to Leavenworth and Sadie James came back and told me that Dennis Jones was through with the Gypsy Oil Company and to go down to his office and see him. I went down to the office with Sadie and had a very brief conversation with Dennis in which he told me that the Gypsy had written him a letter which he had received that day or the day before that they didn't want him to work for them any longer, that they were dissatisfied with his work or something; and he said I am free to help you folks all I can, but I would rather make my arrangements with your employer than your attorney. And I was willing for that and told Dennis that I would pay his expenses down to Tulsa. I left Leavenworth then that day or the next day and we received a telegram from Dennis Jones that he couldn't come on account of some business in Court. And I think about the third or fourth day afterwards he wired that he was coming down. I know that Sadie James met him at the station, at least I was so told—and took him over into the negro part of town for his breakfast, and they came up to our office between nine-thirty and ten thirty. They came into my office and Dennis and I talked very briefly. He said that he wanted to see our attorney. I took him up stairs to Rice & Lyons and wasn't present during their conversation. I went back down stairs. Sadie James was up there with him part of the time and afterwards went away. Along in the course of an hour or so, Dennis Jones came down and said he had made a contract with Rice & Lyons and Mr. Page, who had been called up there in the meantime. And I read the contract over before it was signed. It was prepared by Mr. Rice. Dennis went back to Leavenworth that night and I went back the next day or so. In the meantime Mr. Hanford had come to Leavenworth, and I told Mr. Hanford that I had found a very valuable line of information. I took Mr. Hanford to see Mr. Crilly and I think perhaps one or two others and he talked with them. He had talked to some other people that I hadn't seen, some names that I had given him. We then agreed after another conference at Tulsa that Mr. Hanford should go out to Seattle and discuss this line of evidence with Minnie. Minnie having previously testified as I stated at Sapulpa.

A. Mr. Hanford left here for Seattle and in about a week or ten days we then determined upon taking some depositions. We had in the meanwhile—the suit had been filed in the Creek County Court in which Minnie Atkins was the plaintiff against the Nancy Atkins' interests, and these different Tommy Atkins who were claiming——

Q. Suit to quiet title?

A. Yes, sir, for Minnie. Mr. Hanford was gone out there—I don't know how long, perhaps a week or two weeks and came back with Minnie. I met them in Kansas City, and Minnie was very much surprised to learn that we had learned the truth about her——

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. The truth about the place of the birth of her son. She had told Mr. Hanford on the way why she had testified at Sapulpa as she did. She didn't want it known and didn't think it was anybody's business where Thomas Atkins was born just so long as he was born and she made that statement down there, thinking that it was perfectly alright that he was born in the Sisters' Hospital and that now that we had discovered the truth, that that was the truth; that Thomas Atkins was born to her at Granny Letcher's house; and she said I will know all those people; let's go to Leavenworth to see them. She immediately wanted to go to Leavenworth.

Q. Now, when was that?

A. That was in the fall of 1914.

Q. What month?

A. Probably September—no, October; it had gotten along pretty well into October.

Q. Go ahead.

A. So Minnie and I went over to Leavenworth. The first person we went to see was Crilley. She and Crilley knew each other and had a talk. We got in Crilley's automobile and we saw——

Q. Wait a moment; did either one of them recognize the other when they met there? A. They did.

The Court: You say she and Crilley knew each other; it would be very much more enlightening to me if you would detail what occurred.

Q. What evidence of recognition was there?

The Court: What happened? Just detail the circumstances of you taking her to Crilley—where you took her, and where you found him.

A. We went over in the morning on the interurban and went to the National Hotel, and I called Crilley over the telephone and told him to come up in his car to the hotel; he drove up——

The Court: Did you tell him anything else?

A. I told him Indian Minnie was with me, yes, sir. He drove up to the side of the hotel and Minnie and I went out. Immediately when she saw him she said, hello, Crilley, and he said Minnie, hello, I haven't seen you for a number of years; and she said you look just like you used to; they used to call you the parson, didn't they? And he laughed and said yes, and that was just about the conversation; and I said we want to take Minnie to two or three other people. Then we turned around and drove down by Dennis Jones' office; I called Dennis Jones down from up stairs and Dennis said, hello Minnie, and came down; I had told Minnie that we were going to see Dennis Jones but Minnie didn't recognize him or remember him until after they had talked for some time.

Q. Wait a moment. Do you know whether Jones knew that you were coming there with Minnie? A. He did not.

Q. As far as you know?

A. As far as I know, he did not.

Q. Well, no, go ahead. A. A I told Jones then——

Q. You say Minnie didn't recognize him?

A. No, not at first but they talked a while, and I don't remember the conversation and they finally did recognize each other.

Q. Go ahead.

A. Then we next drove in Crilley's car—if I remember drove around to Mary Smith—Mary Smith was a white woman; and Mary Smith—— Minnie recognized Mary Smith but Mary Smith didn't reconize Minnie; she said that she was not sure that that was the Minnie that she knew; and so I said, well, perhaps you two can talk together a while and recognize each other; and I had Mary Smith get in the automobile—I got in the front seat with Crilley, and we drove around for perhaps an hour and in the meantime, Minnie was recalling the different places and locations. I didn't hear the conversation between she and Mary—couldn't get all of it—the car was pretty noisy and the streets were rough. We drove back and finally Mary Smith said when we got to her house, that she was confident that she was Minnie. We next went out and saw a woman named Annie Wills, and Minnie and Annie recognized each other.

Q. You say recognized each other; what did they do and say as near as you can remember?

A. Well, as near as I can remember, Mr. Cruce, I followed this practice; Mrs. Wills came out to the automobile——

Q. Had you notified her that you were coming?

A. No, sir, I had told Minnie, however, where we were going. Mrs. Wills came out to the automobile, and I said, Mrs. Willis this is Mrs. Folk, who was formerly Indian Minnie here at Leavenworth, do you know her—do you remember her; Mrs. Willis said yes, I do, Minnie and they talked about different things. We then went back to the hotel and Rube Smith came to the hotel to see Minnie; came to Minnie's room. Rube recognized Minnie and Minnie recognized Rube immediately. There wasn't any introduction necessary there as there had been with Mrs. Wills and a sort of an introduction with Dennis Jones. That afternoon, then, we were going up to see some old lady in the north part of town—I don't remember who she was—but Dennis Jones was taking us up there; nevertheless, she did not know Minnie.

Q. How is that?

A. She didn't know Minnie and I have forgotten her name. But on the way up, we saw an old fellow sitting over on a porch, and Dennis said there is Ed Murphy, he ought to know Minnie; and Dennis called him out. Minnie and Dennis were in the back seat of the car and I was in the front seat, and Minnie said, oh, there is policeman Murphy, I know him and he knew her; we came back and met Dennis and drove out that same day to William Grape's.

Q. Has Murphy testified in this case by deposition?

A. In the Receivership hearing he testified but not by deposition.

Q. Well, go ahead.

A. We went out to see William Grape at his place of business way out by the Post, and we stopped the car in front of his house and I called to him; I had previously talked to him. I told Minnie where we were going, then, and Minnie saw him coming and when he was about thirty or forty feet away, now look here Bill Grape; don't you tell all you know—the recognition was instantaneous there; Minnie and I went back to Kansas City that evening and met Mr. Hanford again, and Minnie told Mr. Hanford about the different people she had seen. Mr. Rice—the next day, Mr. Rice and Mr. Page, and Mr. Josey came to Kansas City, and then went over all of this different information with Minnie. Then, soon after that the day was set for the taking of depositions, and those witnesses all testified in the State case at that time.

Q. The case in the State court, you mean? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That suit is still pending, I believe you said?

A. I think so.

Q. What kind of a contract did you have with Dennis Jones?

A. A contract by the terms of which he was to receive ten dollars a day for each day he worked for us——

The Court: Well now, that is a written contract, isn't it? The contract was in writing? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: That was introduced.

Q. Was there any agreement to pay any compensation outside of the written contract? A. No, sir.

Q. What did you hire him to do? What was your purpose in hiring him?

A. Our purpose in hiring him was to look up these witnesses as to the existence and death of Thomas Atkins.

Q. Had you at that time received information from any source that led you to believe that there never was any Tommy Atkins? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, have you at any time suggested to Dennis Jones that he should get testimony to sustain the case whether true or false? A. No, sir.

Q. I believe that you stated that you had never made—I am not sure whether I asked you so I will ask you: did you at any time in any conversation with Mr. Mann, or with Sadie James, suggest to both of them or to either one of them that you wanted them to get testimony to establish the death of Tommy Atkins, regardless to whether it was true or false?

A. No, sir.

Q. When was the first time, Mr. Long, that you heard the suggestion that Tommy Atkins was a myth—that is had never existed?

A. It was after—very late in the fall, perhaps in the latter part of November or December 1914.

Q. What expenditures if any had the Gem Oil Company made with reference to this lease at that time?

A. The Gem Oil Company had several wells on the lease at that time; I would have to look up the books and records to give you that information but we had spent quite a little money; rather, Page and Josey had—the Gem Oil Company had assigned the lease to Page and Josey.

Q. Will you try to get that up so that we can call you back? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many wells did you have?

A. Well, I will have to go to the books for that, Mr. Cruce; I can't tell you. I know we had some production and some wells.

Q. You don't know the number of the wells or the cost?

A. No, we had so much of that, I can't tell you.

Q. I have a letter here, dated September 12th, what year was that? A. That was 1914.

Q. In whose handwriting is that?

A. That is my handwriting.

Q. Where did you get this letter?

A. Out of the files.

Q. Is this a copy? A. This is the original.

The Court: Whose handwriting is that?

Mr. Cruce: Mr. Long.

Q. To whom was that letter written?

A. The letter was addressed to the Gem Oil Company on the envelope there was no address on it. Mr. Eberle would open it and give it to Mr. Page or Josey, which ever happened to be there.

The Court: What is the date of this?

Mr. Cruce: September 12, 1914, he says, the year isn't on it.

Q. Do you know whether you have that envelope?

A. No, sir.

Q. "I talked to Sam Nash this evening and spent two hours with Walter Banks (these two boys reared by old lady Letcher called each brothers). They have not been together for more than two years. After refreshing the others memory about many incidents when Tommy was a kid, the result of the conversation was the fixing of the time when Tommy was taken away in the spring or summer of 1897; that a mixed blood woman came to the Letcher's, gave the old lady twenty dollars and said she was going to take Tommy to his mother. 1. Tommy would have been eleven or twelve years of age in 1897. 2. Hamilton told Page's attorney the boy was thirteen years old when he saw him in Denver. 3. Collins said he saw him in Denver in 1897. 4. And Mollie and Sam said he was taken from Letcher's in 1897. Unless Sadie locates this information, and I will see her early in the morning, it looks like Denver was the next move. I found a good white man witness this P. M. who knows all about the birth and rearing of the boy. Long." Do you remember who that white man is you refer to in that letter?

A. No, I don't remember that.

Q. Is there any other telegram or letter? A. No.

Q. Did I ask you this this morning, I think I did, Judge Stuart doesn't remember, whether or not Sadie James or Betty Mann told you or told either Page or Josey in your presence that Tommy Atkins was a myth?

A. No, sir, they never did.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Long, you say you used to represent the Government? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what capacity?

A. I was appointed first as District Indian Agent at Nowata.

Q. At that time you had resided at Nowata for sometime? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you stationed at Nowata as District Indian Agent? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When were you appointed?

A. I think in July, 1909|

Q. You served until sometime in 1912, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At Nowata?

A. No, I was transferred in 1911 to Sapulpa.

Q. And you served at Sapulpa? A. About a year.

Q. And then you were employed by Mr. Page?

A. Yes, sir, Mr. Page—— No, I was employed by the Gem Oil Company.

Q. By the Gem Oil Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time of your employment, did you become an officer in the Gem Oil Company? A. I did.

Q. What office? A. Secretary.

Q. Now, you held that position of Secretary of the Gem Oil Company for a large number of years?

A. I still am Secretary.

Q. You still hold that position. Who was the president of that company? A. R. A. Josey.

Q. Is he still the president? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What position did Mr. Page hold?

A. Mr. Page was Vice-President.

Q. He has been Vice-President all the time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As Secretary of the Gem Oil Company, during the time that you had held that position, you have been as active officer for the company, have you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have represented the company in practically all of its business transactions?

A. Well, not all of its business transactions. I have represented it in some transactions.

Q. In several? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It hasn't been an idle company, has it?

A. It has been for the last year and a half.

Q. It has been since about the time—well, it was active until after the Gem Oil Company assigned the lease which it had covering this Atkins allotment to Page & Josey?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the time that you have been an active officer of the Gem Oil Company, have you also been representing Page & Josey? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So far as this Atkins matter is concerned you have represented Page & Josey and the Gem Oil Company continuously have you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whatever you have done, you have done as the agent of either the Gem Oil Company or Page & Josey?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have had considerable experience in the matter of searching for evidence haven't you in cases?

A. This was just about my first one.

Q. Didn't you have an experience prior to this in the matter of the Jeffries trial at Nowata?

A. I had nothing to do with searching for the evidence.

Q. Didn't you have something to do with the evidence?

A. No, sir.

Q. Which was produced there in his behalf? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, while you were field agent, is that what they called you?

A. I was District Agent until they changed the title and made it Field Clerk.

Q. During that time did you have occasion to become acquainted with the records in the office of the Dawes Commission, did you become familiar with the records in the office of the Dawes Commission? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the matters of allotment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Enrollment and allotment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you understood those records pretty well?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first hear of Sadie James in your life?

A. From newspaper reports of her in Tulsa.

Q. How long ago, about what year?

A. That was when I first came to Tulsa in 1911 or 1912.

Q. She was quite a notorious woman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tried for murder a few times? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she operated what was known as the Bucket of Blood, didn't she? A. That was the newspaper reports.

Q. Yes, sir. Notorious road house outside of Tulsa or in the edge of Tulsa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that road house located?

A. I don't know exactly.

Q. Did you learn how it obtained the name "Bucket of Blood?" A. No, sir.

Q. Wasn't it on account of the character of the place?

A. I presume so.

Q. Murders that occurred there?

A. I presume so, but I didn't know.

Q. That was a kind of—— What was your information as to the kind of place she ran there?

A. My recollection is that my information was that it was a negro road house.

Q. Where white people resorted to?

A. Well, I didn't know.

Q. Now, you knew Sadie when you saw her?

A. No, sir.

Q. What information—— When did you first hear of Betty Mann?

A. I first knew Betty Mann when I was in the Indian Agent's Office at Sapulpa, she came into the office on several occasions with regard to the land of her children.

Q. Now, she was living in Sapulpa part of the time and in Tulsa part of the time?

A. I never knew at that time that she lived in Tulsa.

Q. She lived in Sapulpa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew her well?

A. Not intimately. I knew her only as she came into my office down there.

Q. You obtained information as to the character and her reputation along in 1911, '12, '13, and '14, didn't you?

A. I knew something about it.

Q. You learned of the fact that she had been tried and convicted for forgery in Tulsa? A. I knew of that.

Q. In 1913? A. I didn't know just when.

Q. Anyhow it was prior to 1914? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Along with Don MacDonald? A. Yes.

Q. You knew this fellow called Rogers, Charlie Rogers?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of Skyatook? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was a Cherokee Indian? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he and Betty were associates, you knew that?

A. I didn't know it until after, sometime after Rogers had been talking to me about this particular lease.

Q. You knew the character of that fellow, didn't you?

A. I always thought his character was fairly good.

Q. Until after you got into this matter?

A. Until after we were into this matter. I had been of some assistance to him while I was in the Indian Service in procuring some money that was due his son, Jim Huckleberry Rogers. As far as I knew he was a pretty decent sort of fellow.

Q. Well, you knew shortly after you began talking to Rogers that he and Betty Mann were associates?

A. He told me.

Q. And living together? A. No, sir.

Q. He didn't tell you they were living together?

A. No, sir. I assumed he lived in Tulsa, because that is where I saw him.

Q. You say your first attention to this Atkins Allotment was in the early part of the year 1914? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it not in January?

A. It may have been, Mr. German.

Q. You at that time desired to obtain a lease on this allotment for your company, did you not? A. We did.

Q. You talked that matter over with Mr. Page and Mr. Josey?

A. Yes, sir. I believe it was not quite as early as January.

Q. It was in the spring?

A. Yes, in the spring of that year.

Q. Not later than the spring? A. Not later than March.

Q. You at that time had ascertained that the land was allotted in the name of Thomas Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have a copy of the census card?

A. Not at that time.

Q. You were looking for Thomas Atkins, weren't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When and where did you make your first movement in that direction?

A. The first movement in that direction was made by Mr. Kistler.

Q. What did he do?

A. He wired—— He claimed to have some information that Thomas Atkins, the allottee of this land was alive and in the army. Mr. Kistler sent this message himself to Senator Gore to have the War Department records examined and ascertain if there was a Thomas Atkins in the army.

Q. Now, when was that?

A. That was just about the time that we are relating, along in the spring, early spring.

Q. Possibly in the early part of March?

A. Yes, I have that telegram.

Q. Had you at that time talked with Rogers?

A. I think not.

Q. You did talk with him though immediately, didn't you? A. Sometime afterwards.

Q. Well, in March? A. Well, it may have been April.

Q. May have been April? A. Yes, sir, by that time.

Q. Did you go anywhere about that time in March or April working in this matter of this title, or with a view of obtaining a lease, or information as to where you might obtain a lease?

A. No, sir, except that on one occasion when I was down at Muskogee on some other business, I spent an hour or so, looking up the records in the Agency of the Commission, and along about that time I talked to Mitchell Wadsworth.

Q. Now, in the office of the Agency, you examined the census card, and all the papers there relating to Thomas Atkins?

A. Well, I didn't get deeply into it at that time; on that first trip I only examined the census card and I believe that they told me that there was not any—there was no enrollment paper; I think the original census card is as far as I went on that first trip.

Q. Did you look into the Nancy feature of it at that time?

A. Yes, sir, looked at her census card.

Q. At that time you knew there was litigation pending in the District Court of Creek County? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What suit was you then advised was pending over there?

A. I was advised that there was a suit over there between Nancy and her lessees and the Gypsy Oil Company and Bartlett; and I will say that I also looked up, at that time in connection with Nancy, the restriction papers in the restriction division of the Agency. I recall that Nancy had made an application before me for the removel of restrictions and that it was customary and the rule that each applicant for the removal of restrictions should be asked whether they had any interest in any land of any deceased relatives, and I recalled that Nancy had not made any representations about any deceased relatives and I looked up my report in this office at that time.

Q. You were at that time trying to ascertain where the allottee of this land was, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who owned this land? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is what you were after? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You searched to see if there was anything indicating that Nancy owned it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then, who else did you attempt to get any line on as a possible owner at that time?

A. At that time, I was down at Jenks one day; I went out and saw Margaret Parks.

Q. What was she supposed to know?

A. She was a daughter of Richard Atkins, a negro who was enrolled as part Indian, and was a sister of Chaney Trent and of a Thomas Atkins.

Q. A Thomas Atkins?

A. Yes, sir, for whom an attempt was made for enrollment.

The Court: Let me see if I understand that. You said a Thomas Atkins?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: The name is not A. Thomas Atkins but Thomas Atkins; you refer to a Thomas Atkins?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You talked to her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you get any line then, on the owner of this land?

A. She told me that she had a brother Thomas Atkins who she claimed then was entitled to enrollment but who had been stricken from the roll. I knew then that that could not be the Thomas Atkins, the allottee of this land.

Q. Well, that ended your efforts there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you inquire of her about who Minnie Atkins was?

A. I don't recollect that I did.

Q. Did you inquire of anyone at that time about who Minnie Atkins was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who? A. Mitchell Wadsworth.

Q. Mitchell Wadsworth, and Mitchell told you something about Minnie?

A. Mitchell told me—gave me a pretty thorough life history of Minnie and her children.

Q. Told you what kinship he bore to Minnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What?

A. He told me that he was the son of Minnie's half sister.

Q. A son of Kate Holden? A. Kate Holden.

Q. Who had been Kate Atkins?

A. Yes, sir, and a half sister of Minnie Atkins.

Q. And Kate Holden was a son of old, deceased Thomas Atkins was Minnie was? A. A daughter.

Q. I mean a daughter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what else did he tell you about Minnie?

A. He told me that Minnie had gone to school in Carlisle and had gone from Carlisle to Leavenworth; he told me that she was supposed to be with the Army someplace; that the last time he had heard from her was when she was stationed at Detroit, and when she was at Detroit that he had a letter from her asking him to enroll her children, and that he came from Wagoner to Muskogee on his way with that letter and that somebody stole his coat and that he never got here with the letter.

Q. Then, he didn't know where she was? A. No, sir.

Q. Or whether she was living?

A. My remembrance is that he was under the impression that she was dead.

Q. He thought probably that she was dead?

A. Yes, sir, at least he had not heard from her until about the time of the allotment.

Q. Did that give you a lead to anybody else?

A. No, sir.

Q. Who did you next see in the spring of 1914 about this?

A. Charlie Rogers.

Q. Charlie Rogers, where? At Tulsa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That, then, was either the last of March or sometime early in April?

A. Well, by that time I think it was perhaps the latter part of April.

Q. The latter part of April? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what did you talk to Charlie about?

A. Rogers came into our office and told me that he—no, he came in the office and inquired if we were interested in any leases in the north extension of the Cushing field and I told him that we were interested in leases in any place that looked good, and he said well, I have got some information about this Thomas Atkins lease over there and I told him that we had already done some work on that; that we knew something about it, and I said what do you know; and he said, well I think I can find him. The result of that conversation was, I told him that if he could find him and if he was the correct allottee of the land that we would carry him an eighth interest in the lease, if we could buy it reasonably and did buy it.

Q. Now, Rogers told you, didn't he, about his investigation of that matter?

A. No, I didn't attach enough importance to his visit to go into it, as I remember.

Q. He didn't tell you about what he had been doing?

A. Only that he had been looking it up.

Q. Did he tell you where he had been looking it up?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did he say with whom he had been looking it up?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you send him anywhere, then?

A. No, I don't think so, not at that time. He did go to Kansas City at our expense, and Leavenworth.

Q. About how long after that first conversation?

A. I can't say; I know that we gave him a check for his expenses and I can find the check.

Q. Well, it was in April?

A. No, I think it was sometime later, Mr. German.

Q. Possibly in May?

A. It may have been June, but I don't want to say because I can get the day exactly.

Q. Well, did you not send him up to Kansas City in April or May? A. Well, now——

Q. To see if he couldn't locate a Thomas Atkins?

A. I won't say because I can get the date exactly from the check which we gave him for expenses.

Q. After the first conversation you had with him what did he tell you at the next conversation about what he knew?

A. Well, we had two or three conversations; it ran along there for a couple of weeks; he would come in to the office and said he would get more information. He said, I believe I will be able to locate that Thomas Atkins and I didn't attach a great deal of importance to him because he didn't talk like he was going to have success and I didn't think much of him; I let him do most of the talking.

Q. Now, who else did you see or where else did you go in this matter during that time that Rogers was coming to your office?

A. Nothing; I had nothing at all to do with it until he came and told me about Bettie Mann.

Q. Prior to time, now, that he came and told you about Bettie Mann, he told you that he thought he could find Thomas Atkins, the allottee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was interesting to you? A. Very.

Q. Didn't you follow it up? A. No, sir.

Q. Why?

A. Because I had very little confidence in the reports that he was making.

Q. Why did you have little confidence?

A. He didn't give any definite information.

Q. You stated a while ago that you had no reason to regard him as not a good man? A. No, sir.

Q. What did he say that prompted you not to have confidence in him?

A. It would be very difficult for me to answer that. That was just my conclusion from reading the man myself.

Q. He is a pretty bright fellow? A. Yes, sir.

A. Intelligent man?

A. Yes, but I didn't have confidence enough in him to go out with him and look up any one or anybody.

Q. That lease was looking pretty good at that time?

A. Yes, and so were a great many others that we were dealing for.

Q. How? A. So were a great many others.

Q. There was at that time a producing well on the land?

A. A small well in the Wheeler sand.

Q. Did you ask him where he thought this Thomas Atkins was?

A. No, I didn't but I recollect that we talked about Kansas City at that time.

Q. Did he tell you about Bartlett having signed a man in Kansas City and having brought him to Muskogee and attempting to have him identified as Tommy? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't tell you about that? A. No, sir.

Q. You learned about that later?

A. When I heard Sadie James on the witness stand tell it.

Q. That was the first you heard of it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you tell Rogers that you understood Minnie lived in Leavenworth some time?

A. I think we talked about Leavenworth because I think I obtained that information from Mitchell's wife.

Q. Didn't he tell you about having been to Leavenworth in this investigation? A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Well, you knew he had?

A. No, I didn't know he had at that time.

Q. How soon after that did you find out that he had?

A. I didn't believe I ever knew that he had been up there except possibly the trip he made for us, because he didn't tell me about it.

Q. You found out from him, then, about Bettie Mann, shortly after that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Up to the time that you found out from him about Bettie Mann, you had not taken any trip in this matter or sent anybody any place except the trips that you have already mentioned that you took yourself?

A. Unless we had sent Rogers to Kansas City; I will get that check and answer as to that. Mr. Josey, I think, was with him.

Q. Mr. Josey, when he did go, was with him, you think?

A. Yes, sir, I can give you that information.

Q. Tell us your first conversation with Rogers relating to Bettie Mann.

A. That conversation was in the last week in May or the first week in June.

Q. 1914? A. Yes.

Q. He came in the office and said that he was just about through with any investigations that he might be making as to locating this allottee, but that he was working with Bettie Mann.

Q. Did he tell you who she was working for?

A. No, not then.

Q. Alright?

A. But that he was working for Bettie Mann who had some information about Minnie, and that their information then was that this Thomas Atkins was dead, and of course Minnie would be his heir.

Q. What did he tell you about their information, that Thomas was dead?

A. That is all he told me; just the assertion; didn't go into the details.

Q. You didn't ask him the details? A. No, sir.

Q. Go ahead.

A. Well, I thought you had another question.

Q. With the conversation.

A. Yes. He told me that Bettie had this information and that if I would see Bettie that we could possibly make some arrangements to locate Minnie Atkins; that Bettie had some information as to where she was. I didn't want to make a special trip down to see her and I was pretty busy but I did tell him that I would go down to see her the next day if he would get her to the Frisco station in Sapulpa; that I didn't want to have to go to her house or lose any time on it; Now, I think he told me then, at the conclusion of that conversation that Bettie had been doing some work for H. U. Bartlett who was holding the fee to the land, and had leased to the Gypsy.

Q. Yes. That is they held this forged deed.

A. Well, we didn't know then that it was forged. We assumed that it was but they had had the trial at Sapulpa and the evidence had been pretty strong—I knew of that trial.

Q. Had you attended that trial? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, let's see, Mr. Long. Did you go to see Mr. Page and Mr. Josey then about this matter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of interviewing Bettie? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What conversation did you have with them about it?

A. I repeated the conversation to them that Rogers had had—I think that was with Mr. Josey, not Mr. Page; I am sure of that. I repeated the conversation and told him I was going down to Sapulpa the next day to see Bettie Mann; we discussed what kind of offer I would make her—Rogers had told me we would have to make her a financial offer for locating Minnie—and as we always do in such cases, we fixed a limit and if I could have gotten it any less than that, I would have.

Q. You explained to him that she was working for Bartlett at the time?

A. I explained to him that Rogers had told me that.

Q. That she was?

A. That she had been working for Bartlett. I didn't know right at that time——

Q. Alright.

A. But that she had been working for Bartlett.

Q. Now, you spoke of seeing her and making her a proposition? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you say you didn't talk that over with Mr. Page or advise him of that?

A. No, I am sure all of the conversation was with Mr. Josey. Our office was separate at the time and Mr. Page was very busy with his private affairs.

Q. You testified at the Receivership hearing that you did see Mr. Page?

A. Well, I may have, but if I did it was very brief; I can't be positive because we talked about our business there very generally and at different times.

Q. Tell me this: Did you have any information about Thomas Atkins or the title to this land at that time or where the title rested other than the information which you have related?

A. No, sir. And I had bought a pencil report from the abstract office and knew all of the instruments that were on record.

Q. Let me see, didn't you testify this way at the Receivership hearing: "Just a minute, let me ask the question. What was the conversation between you and Betty Mann at that time? A. That conversation was very brief she stated that she could locate Minnie Atkins and wanted to know if we would pay her for her trouble. I had previously discussed the matter with Page and Josey." Did you answer that that way at the Receivership hearing?

A. Yes, sir, and I may have discussed it with him.

Q. "I have discussed the matter with Page & Josey and we had agreed what we would pay her?" A. Yes.

Q. That was your testimony there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So, when you went to see Betty Mann, your information was that Thomas—your information then when you went to see Betty Mann was that they couldn't find Thomas Atkins anywhere and that Huck Rogers—you mean Charlie Rogers?

A. Charlie.

Q. You knew him as Huck Rogers; that Huck thought he was dead, thought he had some information that he was dead, is that right?

A. No, not that he had any information that he was dead, but that he hadn't found him alive and he must be dead.

Q. That is the information you had?

A. Yes, sir, he had no information of any kind.

Q. What did you do after talking with Page & Josey about seeing Betty Mann and how much you would offer her in this matter prior to the time you saw Betty? A. Nothing.

Q. Where did you see Betty?

A. At the Frisco Station in Sapulpa.

Q. In Sapulpa. Well, let me ask you this: Before you went to see Betty at the Frisco Station, Sapulpa, had not Huck Rogers told you that she was about to start on a trip to find Minnie?

A. Rogers told me that he and Betty had been working on the case and had some information as to where Minnie was and that he thought she would locate Minnie.

Q. You understood that Betty was intending to go on a trip after Minnie?

A. Well, I didn't exactly understand it. I didn't know just exactly what was in the air or doing until I saw Betty.

Q. Until you saw Betty? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You saw her at the station at Sapulpa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you talked with her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you find out there what her plans were?

A. Yes, sir, very indefinitely.

Q. What did she tell you?

A. She told me she had been doing considerable work for H. U. Bartlett; that Thomas Atkins must be dead, because they hadn't been able to find him; and she told me that she and Rogers were in partnership and that what one knew the other knew. Rogers had never told me. She told me that she thought she knew where Minnie Atkins was and that she could locate her but she didn't tell me where. Now, she said what will you give me if I locate Minnie?

Q. Yes?

A. I told her if she did locate Minnie and put me in touch with her so that I could get a lease from her, and that lease was a valid lease and Minnie was proven to be the owner of the land, we would pay her two thousand dollars.

Q. Did she agree to take it?

A. She said I will take you. She accepted that proposition and says now you look out for a telegram from me in the next four or five days and when you get that telegram you can make your deal with Minnie.

Q. How long were you in conversation with her?

A. A very short time.

Q. Did you not ask her what effort she had made to find Thomas?

A. Only she told me efforts had been made to find Thomas and they had found no Thomas.

Q. Did you ask her if she had searched at Leavenworth?

A. No, sir.

Q. Had you up to that time seen Charlie Harrison about this matter prior to that time?

A. I think not, I think I saw Charlie Harrison between the time of Betty Mann's conversation and when I received the telegram from her in Seattle. I know that I saw Charlie Harrison.

Q. Had you seen Harvey Harrison about this time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Had you seen this man Bailey the guardian?

A. No, sir. I saw Claude Weldon at the same time that I saw Charlie Harrison.

Q. Who resides at Wagoner?

A. And who at that time Charlie was making his home with.

Q. What did Betty say to you in that conversation at Sapulpa about Sadie? A. She didn't mention Sadie.

Q. When did you next see Betty?

A. I saw Betty when she went through Tulsa that night at the station.

Q. That same night?

A. That same night. I went back on that train; I was just at Sapulpa between trains and I saw her at the station that same night as she was going through. She told me she was going to be on that train and I wanted to be sure she was. I saw her at the station but had no conversation.

Q. You had a little? A. Very little.

Q. She told you she would use the name Bill Jones in telegraphing you?

A. My recollection is that she didn't tell what name but she wouldn't use her own name.

Q. Didn't you testify at the Receivership that she then told you in communicating with you that she would use the name Bill Jones?

A. I may have, I know this, that she told me that she wouldn't use her own name; but whether she told me she would use the name Bill Jones I couldn't remember definitely. Immaterial matter anyway.

Q. Did you give her any expense money then?

A. No, sir.

Q. Had you given her any money the day before?

A. No, sir.

Q. You knew she was going on a long trip?

A. I didn't know whether it was long or short.

Q. Did you advance her any fees? A. No, sir.

Q. Salary? A. No, sir.

Q. Paid her nothing? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't buy her a ticket? A. No, sir.

Q. All right. She went away then and before you heard from her you saw Charlie Harrison, Harvey Harrison?

A. I think not.

Q. Charlie or Harvey? A. Charlie.

Q. And did you have a conversation with him about Thomas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was that conversation?

A. He told me he didn't know anything about a brother named Thomas Atkins if he had one. He told me that there had been a lot of people over talking to him about it; and so did Mrs. Weldon—— Mrs. Weldon told me she knew Thomas Atkins—— I didn't see Claude Weldon, I saw Mrs. Weldon. Mrs. Weldon told me there had been a lot of people over bothering Charlie about it, but she didn't know anything about Minnie having a son Thomas. And Charlie said he didn't know anything about a brother of that name except what people had told him recently.

Q. All right. Now, you heard from Betty then, didn't you, a little later? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how long after Betty left was it until you received your first telegram?

A. In the neighborhood of a week or ten days, some days afterwards.

Q. Now, you say this was the first one that you received: "Seattle, Washington, June 5th, Frank B. Long, Little Gem Oil Company, First National Bank Building, Tulsa, Oklahoma. Are you ready to come? Say nothing to Charlie? Answer in care Western Union. Bill Jones." You say that is the first one you received?

A. If they are arranged as they were. I would have to have them all.

Q. That is the first one in date?

A. I assume that you are reading the dates correctly and if you are that is the first one.

Q. You look at them will you and tell us whether that is the first one? A. That is the first one, yes, sir.

Q. Had you said anything to Betty about going any where? This message says are you ready to come, say nothing to Charlie?

A. Betty had agreed she was to wire me when she located Minnie and I was then to come. I didn't understand her motive in saying nothing to Charlie.

Q. Charlie was evidently Huck Rogers?

A. I assume it was.

Q. Hadn't she wired you before this stating that she had found Minnie?

A. No, sir. That is the first telegram that came to the office.

Q. And that was signed Bill Jones? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew who it was from the minute you saw it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So you telegraphed her? Did you send her any money? A. No, sir.

Q. And she had gotten to Seattle, you knew this was from Seattle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew whose expense she had gone on, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir, I didn't know——

Q. First? A. I assumed.

Q. I understand that, you assumed that she had gone on Bartlett's expense? A. I assumed that she had.

Q. And as Bartlett's agent? A. I assumed that she had.

Q. And isn't that the reason that you used the name Bill Jones? A. I can't give you the reason.

Q. You can't?

A. No, sir, it was her statement that she would not use her own name.

Q. Mr. Long, the next day, June 6th, 1914, you advised her as follows by telegram "Bill Jones, Seattle, Washington. Am ready to come provided you are positive you have right party. Am busy, time is valuable and don't want to make a long trip unless you assure me absolutely you have right party. Answer immediately giving your street address and stating where you are satisfied yourself that you have located party we want. Frank B. Long." That is right, isn't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Long, you said that prior to this you had learned that she had been in Carlisle in school? A. Yes.

Q. And you also learned that Bettie had been in Carlisle with her? A. Yes.

Q. And you also knew that Sadie James had been with Minnie at Leavenworth when Minnie lived there?

A. No, sir.

Q. You hadn't learned that? A. No, sir.

Q. When you talked with Bettie at Sapulpa, she told you that she knew Minnie personally? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And could identify her?

A. Yes. She told me that she went from Tallahassee to Carlisle with her and was in school with her two or three years.

Q. Was in school with her for two or three years?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, referring again to these telegrams, you sent—signed that one you sent Frank B. Long? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, on June 9th, three days later—no, June 8th, two days later, you received this telegram from Seattle: "Seattle, Washington, June 8th, 1904, Frank B. Long, First National Bank Building, Tulsa, Oklahoma. Things—" Well, it reads this way—t-h-i-n-g-s—"Things perfectly identified, come at once, answer room 425 Wright hotel, signed Bill Jones." You received that message? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So Bill Jones sent that and received it so far as the face of the message is concerned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say that you didn't frame or draft that telegram?

A. I don't remember that I did, Mr. German, and I feel that I did not, because I know that I am pretty sure that I wouldn't have signed Bill Jones to it; but it is there and it was in our files.

Q. You must have instructed the sending of that?

A. I presume I instructed Mr. Eberle to send it and I wouldn't say that I didn't send it; at any rate—at any rate it was sent and it was in our files.

Q. That same night—day, rather, June 9th, and after the message I just read, you sent this telegram: "June 9th, 1904, Bill Jones, room 425 Wright hotel, Seattle, Washington, Leaving tonight, arrive Saturday Frank B. Long."

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, before you started for Seattle, you obtained the full history of Minnie?

A. I had procured that before in my different conversations with Sam Brown and Mitchell Wadsworth.

Q. You had learned who her brothers and sisters were? A. Yes.

Q. Who her father and mother was? A. Yes.

A. And that she had two children, one named Harvey and one named Charlie? A. Yes, living in Oklahoma.

Q. Living in Oklahoma. You had learned that her brother was Lee and that he was dead; that she had a sister named Nancy, living at Wagoner, or Nowata, rather? A. Yes.

Q. That her father was Thomas; her mother Mary; and that they were both dead? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what else had you learned about her? I believe you did state about her being in Tallahassee school, and Carlisle, and in Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at Fort Logan, had you not?

A. No, I had not learned of her being at Fort Logan at that time. I had learned at her being at Detroit, Michigan.

Q. Hadn't you learn*ed* that Charlie and Harvey were born at Fort Logan?

A. Yes, I believe I had; that they were born there, yes, sir.

Q. And hadn't you learned about Alice at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Then, before you started, you prepared a lease and a contract? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you have exhibited here as defendants' bill, a copy of the lease—a carbon copy of the lease?

A. No, I beg your pardon, of the contract.

Q. Alright—oh, that is a copy of the contract? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, let's take a little notice of this contract. You prepared it in your office there at Tulsa? A. No, sir.

Q. Where?

A. The contract was drawn by Mr. Rice and Mr. Lyons in their office.

Q. One of the other? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At your suggestion?

A. Perhaps so, I can't say; I haven't read the contract, Mr. German, recently; I didn't read it this morning.

Q. You didn't read it this morning? A. No, sir.

Q. At that time you were going to obtain a lease and a contract from Minnie if you could? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On what theory were you going to obtain a lease for Minnie?

A. On the theory that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins, deceased, and his heir.

Q. And his heir? A. Yes.

Q. And your contract contained this provision: "Witnesseth that whereas hereinafter described premises constituted the allotment of Thomas Atkins, a citizen of the Creek Nation, Creek roll number 7913, one-half blood; and whereas said Thomas Atkins was the illegitimate child of the first party"—let me ask you where you got that information that he was an illegitimate child of hers?

A. The only place that we could have obtained that information was by assuming that he was illegitimate, was on account of the fact that he bore the name of Atkins.

Q. And that was her name? A. That was her name.

Q. You had the census card at that time, evidently?

A. I hadn't bought one; I had examined the census card down here.

Q. And you knew it showed Minnie to be the mother?

A. And a white man to be the father and that is probably where the information came from.

Q. Then, you said—the contract provides: "And whereas said Atkins died at ...."—that is two blanks there—— A. Yes, sir.

Q. "on or about the ...... day of ...., ..., leaving surviving him no father and leaving surviving as his sole heir party of the first part, his mother, who is the owner of hereinafter described said premises"—now, in the original were those blanks filled out?

A. Not that I know of; they were not by me.

Q. They were not but you? A. No, sir.

Q. You took those with you, this and the lease, when you went to Seattle?

A. Yes, sir, they were in duplicate; there were two copies of the lease and two copies of the contract.

Q. Then you also had in this contract that the Gem Oil Company should advance necessary court costs and employ attorneys at its own expense to carry on litigation or other proceedings necessary to vest the said title of record in the first party? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The first party being Minnie Atkins? A. Yes.

Q. And that the first party specifically represents that the foregoing facts are true as to heirship? A. Yes.

Q. You knew, in order words, at that time before you even started to Seattle, that you were buying a law suit?

A. Yes, we however, did not consider it a very serious law suit.

Q. You didn't consider it a very serious law suit?

A. No.

Q. Why?

A. Because I was very well satisfied in my own mind as to the claims of Nancy Atkins.

Q. You were satisfied, too, as to the claims of these living Tommy Atkins?

A. I didn't know very much about them; there happening to be two of them at the same time was a very strong indication that we should worry about them.

Q. You went to Seattle and on the road you didn't communicate with Bettie? A. No, sir.

Q. You finally reached Seattle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you got there was Saturday morning at seven o'clock? A. I think at eight o'clock.

Q. About eight o'clock? A. Yes.

Q. And you went immediately to room 425 Wright hotel?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where did you go? A. To the Rainier Grand hotel.

Q. To the Rainier Grand and registered yourself?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then went to the Wright hotel?

A. No, sir, I called the Wright hotel up and talked to Mrs. Mann.

Q. And she came to your hotel, or did you go to hers?

A. No, sir, she told me to come over there and I went to her hotel.

Q. How long did you talk to her?

A. Very, very few minutes.

Q. She told you about finding Minnie? A. Yes.

Q. She told you what Minnie had said?

A. She said she hadn't talked with Minnie.

Q. She hadn't talked with her? A. Yes.

Q. Now, she told you she had a friend who would take you out there, didn't she? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew who that friend was?

A. No, sir, not until I saw him.

Q. Not until you saw him. That friend of hers was a detective named Kohler? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who she had watching Minnie? A. Watching Sadie.

Q. Watching Sadie? A. So she told me.

Q. Kohler knew where Minnie lived? A. Apparently.

Q. Apparently, he took you to the place? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You talked to Bettie at the Wright hotel, how long after breakfast until you talked to Bettie there?

A. Almost immediately as soon as I could get my breakfast and call her up on the telephone.

Q. And how long did you talk to her?

A. A very few minutes.

Q. And then you went right out to Minnie's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Kohler took you to Minnie's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there was a chauffeur along? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was his name?

A. I can't say; I just picked the car up out in the front of the hotel. I made no inquiry.

Q. You wouldn't know his name now if I should call it?

A. No, sir, I didn't hear the name at the time.

Q. You went out to Minnie's and you stayed out until about 12 o'clock?

A. I think it was nearly eleven when we got there and I stayed there until a little before twelve, about forty minutes to an hour I was there.

Q. You went in and found Minnie alone? A. No, sir.

Q. But you went into the room and you and Minnie talked, then, and you found her a pretty affable, loving character.

A. Well, I wouldn't say so, nor sir. I found her very affable.

Q. Very affable, congenial? A. Yes.

Q. And you went into considerable conversation with her? A. Yes.

Q. And loved her up considerably, Mr. Long?

A. Indeed I did not.

Q. You say you did not? A. No.

Q. And don't you remember that this Kohler and this chauffeur were the only other persons around that house that morning while you were out there?

A. No, sir, Kohler and the chauffeur stopped in the car, three or four hundred feet from Minnie's house and didn't come any nearer.

Q. And didn't even come for a drink of water during the hour that you were there?

A. If they did, I didn't see them.

Q. You didn't see them?

A. No, sir, they waited for me down at the end of the walk.

Q. Yes, and then you went back in your car to the Wright hotel?

A. Yes, sir, but first Mr. German, Captain MacNab and Lieutenent McComb were there all the time.

Q. Now, you say they were? A. I do.

Q. That morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Don't you know that you then went back to the hotel and that when you got there, you passed Sadie in the hallway and went into Bettie's room, and that Sadie then came in and that you and Bettie and Sadie had quite an interesting conversation as to what Minnie had told you?

A. No, sir, that conversation was Sunday following.

Q. Was the next day? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And don't you know that Sadie found out then that you were in the city and were attempting to deal with Minnie and that she went out to Minnie's house and attempted to get Minnie then to change her story from stating that the boy was dead to the story that he was alive and that resulted in Bettie calling upon Mrs. McComb and Captain MacNab?

A. I don't know all about that.

Q. And that therefore when you got down to her house, in the afternoon of that day, you found that Captain MacNab and Lieutenent McComb were at the house? A. No, sir.

Q. You say that is not true? A. I do.

Q. Now, let's see, Mr. Long, you remember that you arranged with Minnie to go to Spokane in an automobile that same night, or immediately—possibly the next day, because her husband Mr. Folk was at Spokane and you needed the signature of both of them on your lease?

A. No, sir; that would have been absurd because in the afternoon she signed the trust deed to Mr. McComb.

Q. I know she did, but didn't you arrange in the morning of that day to take her to Spokane?

A. I made no arrangement but I told her if she signed the lease that day that it would be necessary to have her husband join in the lease but no arrangements were made to take her any place.

Q. And don't you know that at the noon hour of that same day, or shortly after noon, and prior to the time that you went to Minnie's house the second time, that you told Bettie Mann that on that automobile trip she ought to have a heavy coat?

A. No, sir.

Q. You say that is not true?

A. No what automobile trip?

Q. On that automobile trip, taking Minnie to Spokane where she and her husband could sign that lease? A. No, sir.

Q. You say that didn't occur? A. No, sir.

The Court: Isn't Spokane in Eastern Washington?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: And this was from Seattle to Spokane?

Mr. German: Yes, sir, quite a distance. I don't know how far.

A. And it is across the Cascade mountains.

Q. You didn't know there was a highway for automobiles between Spokane and Seattle? A. I don't know it now.

Q. You don't know it now? A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, let's see. You say that Captain MacNab and Lieutenant McComb were at Minnie's house that morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you had a conversation with them when you got out there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did they happen to be there?

A. I didn't know until they explained to me.

Q. All right, what explanation did they make?

A. They explained that this negro woman had been around there for some three or four days and that she had told Minnie the day before that a white man from Oklahoma was coming out to buy the land, would be there Saturday morning, and Minnie had called them and they were there waiting for him when I came.

Q. Now, did they tell you that Sadie had requested her—That Minnie had requested her to call these men?

A. No, they told me that Minnie had called them in.

Q. Minnie had called them? Yes, sir.

Q. They didn't tell you that Sadie had discovered your presence and had suggested to Minnie that she call them in?

A. No, sir.

Q. It was your understanding that that very day was the day they had been called in? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say you had a little conversation with Minnie on that morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had Captain MacNab and Lieutenant McComb left the place?

A. No, sir, I said the only conversation I had with Minnie alone was when I went into the house to take the lease and contract which I had out of my pocket; and go over it with her and they stood out on the porch for a few minutes talking and Minnie and I started to go over the matter and they followed us in, perhaps five minutes.

Q. They told you they were there for the purpose of helping Minnie protect herself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't they tell you—— What did they tell you about Sadie trying to get Minnie to say her boy was alive?

A. They didn't tell me that, they said Sadie was worrying Minnie quite a little.

Q. But they didn't say what about? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't even find out either? A. No, sir.

Q. But no one else was there, so far as you ever learned, concerning this land except Sadie and yourself at that time?

A. That was all I knew.

Q. Now, Minnie told you something in there when you went into the room with her about herself, didn't she?

A. Yes.

Q. You had her history? A. Yes.

Q. And you asked her about herself? A. Yes.

Q. Who she was? A. Yes.

Q. And from her history and your questioning, you satisfied yourself as to who she was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Perfectly? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, then, you went back to town and you saw the girls, didn't you?

A. No, sir, I saw Betty but I didn't see Sadie.

Q. Betty had a conversation with you?

A. Very brief. I saw her on the street in front of the Ranier Grand Hotel.

Q. What did you talk about?

A. I told her I had been out to see Minnie and I was satisfied she was Minnie Atkins and I was going back in the afternoon.

Q. Did you tell her what you were going back for?

A. Told her I hadn't gotten the lease signed up. It wasn't any of her affair. No, I didn't tell her.

Q. Mr. Hanford wasn't there in the morning? A. No.

Q. But in the afternoon when you went back out he was?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you met him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't talk to Minnie that afternoon?

A. No, sir.

Q. You started to her house and you saw Mr. Hanford and Captain MacNab and didn't go? A. No, sir.

Q. You met them and they stopped you and talked to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it was then that they told you that she was going to make a trust deed to Captain MacNab?

A. Yes, and it was then we agreed that I would not see her any more nor attempt to see her.

Q. Now, let's go back to the conversation with Minnie. What did Minnie tell you about her children?

A. She told me that she was the mother of three children.

Q. Name them?

A. Thomas, Charlie, and Harvey, and that Thomas was dead, but that as far as she knew Harvey and Charlie were living.

Q. Did she tell you about Alice? A. No, not at that time.

Q. Now, you then told her that if she was the mother of a boy named Thomas and if he was dead she was the owner of a very valuable estate? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you told her that twice in that conversation, did you not?

A. I may have told it to her three or four times.

Q. Three or four times?

A. Yes, sir, I don't think I did however.

Q. And then you told Captain MacNab and Lieutenant McComb that same thing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the outside? A. Yes, sir, and on the inside.

Q. And on the inside. They became very much interested in her?

A. Yes, sir, they were very much interested in her when I first got there.

Q. It was after that then you went back and talked to Betty? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you say you told Hanford and Captain MacNab that this land was very valuable?

A. No, I told them that it had a very great speculative or prospective value.

Q. Oh, that is what you told them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I thought you testified this morning that you told them it was of very great value?

A. Well, I did, but its principal value lay in its prospective value as to whether the Bartlesville sand would extend in that direction.

Q. You went up there to obtain a lease from Minnie for four thousand dollars?

A. No, we had agreed in my office that I would pay as much as five thousand dollars.

Q. As much as five thousand dollars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As a bonus? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you went up there for the purpose of making this lease? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But you didn't want to deceive those men about the value of the land did you? A. I tried not to.

Q. Tried not to. So, you told them it was of very great value? A. Yes.

Q. Worth as high as five thousand dollars, didn't you?

A. I don't think I used any figures exactly; I don't think I did put an estimate on the value; I am sure I didn't.

Q. And that if Minnie was the mother of a boy named Thomas and if he was dead she owned that valuable land?

A. Yes.

Q. And when you got back to town that evening you saw Betty again? A. No, I didn't see Betty.

Q. Until the next morning? A. Until the next morning.

Q. What did you do that evening?

A. I don't remember just what I did do.

Q. You communicated with Tulsa?

A. Yes, I sent a telegram to Mr. Josey.

Q. On June 12th you received a telegram from Mr. Josey stating that the property was looking better, use every effort to close the deal?

A. Yes, I received that telegram on the morning of the thirteenth.

Q. What day did you get there?

A. The 13th. That telegram was waiting for me.

Q. And on that same day you wrote this memorandum?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which is marked Defendant's Exhibit 12? A. Yes.

Q. Where is the rest of that memorandum?

A. That is a copy of a night letter.

Q. That is a copy of a night letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. "Copy of night letter to R. A. Josey"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. "Party looks to be right one but has been frightened by people already here and has called in advisers; been with them all day; absence of one adviser however may delay closing deal next week." Now, that advisor was her husband?

A. I assume that that was her husband.

Q. Well, you know who that was?

A. He was the only fellow that wasn't there.

Q. "Rogers at Aberdine Hotel, Kansas City. No proof here that boy is dead." Now, why did you make mention that there wasn't any proof there that the boy was dead?

A. Because the only proof was Minnie's statement.

Q. And she didn't know? A. She said he was dead.

Q. Yes, but to you that didn't constitute proof?

A. Well, the other people out there didn't know anything about it, they had never heard about it. And for that reason I put that in there.

Q. Now, you stayed in Seattle the 13th, 14th, and 15th?

A. No, I stayed at Seattle the 13th, Sunday the 14th, and Monday the 15th Mr. Hanford and I left.

Q. On the evening of Monday the 15th?

A. About three o'clock.

Q. Was your talk with Sadie and Betty the next day, on Sunday? A. On Sunday.

Q. In the Wright Hotel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About Minnie? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you interview Minnie on that Sunday?

A. No, sir.

Q. You never interviewed her except on the occasion on Saturday, I mean on that trip?

A. And the occasion I saw her at Captain MacNab's quarters on Monday morning.

Q. On Monday morning? A. Yes.

Q. Now, when you talked with Sadie, you had quite an exciting occasion there at the hotel, didn't you, Mr. Long?

A. Not particularly, Sadie was a little bit excited because I hadn't obtained a lease from Minnie and she hadn't gotten a deed. She was some excited.

Q. She was considerably excited? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, is that all she was excited about?

A. Apparently so.

Q. Did you sit on the bed in that room? A. No, sir.

Q. That day? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't? A. No, sir, I sat on a chair.

Q. Did you and Sadie and Betty talk about Minnie's children that day? A. No, sir, we didn't.

Q. You did not? A. No, sir, we talked about Minnie.

Q. Why didn't you talk about her children?

A. Because I wasn't particularly interested about her children; there was no question in my mind but what Thomas Atkins was her son. I wasn't looking to them for any information all they were to do was to find Minnie.

Q. Yes, I know that. They were to find Minnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. But there was some question as to whether Minnie owned that land? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And didn't you talk to them about it?

A. No, sir, I didn't.

Q. You knew they had been there a week? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you learned that Sadie had been talking with Minnie? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And had been annoying her for several days?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And yet you didn't talk about that question?

A. No, sir, not with her.

Q. But did you with Betty?

A. No, sir, not with Betty. Betty had not talked to Minnie so Betty told me. Frankly I was very anxious to get out of the Wright Hotel at that time, and didn't want to prolong the conversation, and I didn't stay there very long.

Q. Not very long? A. No, sir.

Q. All right. Did you talk to Betty or Sadie either one any more that day? A. No, sir.

Q. You talked to Betty about Hanford a little?

A. That day?

Q. You pointed Mr. Hanford out to Betty?

A. No, on Monday I think I pointed him out to her.

Q. You said to Betty, there goes that "Mutt" I can handle him? A. No, sir.

Q. Going to take him down to Oklahoma, I can handle him? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you say anything similar?

A. No, sir, and furthermore, I will go back and change— I didn't point Mr. Hanford out to Betty; neither Betty nor Sadie knew Mr. Hanford was going back with me. If I remember I went down in a taxicab and he came on the street car and Betty and Sadie were at the depot. I don't believe they saw him at the station.

Q. Don't you recall you told Betty that you and Mr. Hanford as a representative of Minnie were going down to Oklahoma to make a deal and you instructed Betty to stay there and interview Captain MacNab and try to hold him in line?

A. No, sir, but I believe that I did tell her that Mr. Hanford was going with me but I didn't tell her any more.

Q. And you instructed her to talk to Captain MacNab as trustee?

A. I told her if she wanted any information to go to Captain MacNab.

Q. Well, didn't you instruct her to attempt to negotiate with Captain MacNab? A. No, sir.

Q. And try to get him to make a lease to the Gem Oil Company? A. No, sir.

Q. What did you leave her up there for?

A. She was working for Bartlett so she told me.

Q. Oh, you were a little afraid Bartlett was coming too, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had Betty frame up the telegram she sent?

A. No, sir, I didn't have her frame it up but I saw her write it.

Q. You were present when she wrote it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that telegram requested Mr. Bartlett not to come for a while.

Q. I don't remember just what that telegram said. I believe it did. I can't remember definitely.

Q. Yes, I have it here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, so, you really left Betty there because Bartlett was coming but you took Hanford with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you say to Captain MacNab about wiring down here about you and Mr. Page?

A. I told Captain MacNab to wire, I gave some banks and individuals to wire to as to Mr. Page and Mr. Josey and myself for references.

Q. Mr. Kelsey, your former employer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So, that he might get references as to your standing and honor? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And financial responsibility? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you came on down and enroute you sent a telegram from Spokane to Mr. Josey, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Dated June 16th, in which you said: "Trust agreement executed to Army Officer, bringing one back with me"?

A. One army officer?

Q. That was Hanford? A. Yes, sir.

Q. "Here today to see husband." That was Harry?

A. Yes.

Q. "Leave tonight arrive Saturday. Army man trip not known here"? A. Yes.

Q. You kept that from Harry?

A. No, I meant not known in Seattle.

Q. This is sent from Seattle?

A. That was in Seattle because Harry knew we were coming and what for.

Q. Who was it you concealed from the fact that Hanford was with you?

A. That goes back to Sadie James and Betty Mann and my recollection that I didn't tell them.

Q. You told Betty but you didn't tell Sadie?

A. One of the two. I am a little indefinite in my own mind.

Q. You didn't want anybody in Tulsa to know that Hanford was coming? A. No, sir.

Q. You wanted to get the lease?

A. Yes, sir, and had it been known Mr. Hanford was coming representing Minnie, there would have been a flock of oil men.

Q. "Must keep quiet in Tulsa if you want to wire me address Hotel Spokane before five o'clock. Order abstract"?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got to Tulsa you went to see Mr. Page immediately?

A. I think Mr. Hanford and I went out to his house and Mr. Josey came out.

Q. And you had a long conference? A. I wasn't present.

Q. At that time you didn't have any lease? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you negotiated there with reference to buying the lease? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when did you finally agree on the terms?

A. There was considerable correspondence by wire between Mr. Hanford and Captain MacNab and Mr. Hanford's father on Sunday and Tuesday and Wednesday and I don't remember just the date. The date of the lease would show. Mr. Hanford and I reached Tulsa on Sunday morning following the 16th and the agreement was made as to the terms of the lease some two or three days after. The date of the lease would show.

Q. You kept a close eye on Mr. Hanford during those few days? A. Well, Mr. Hanford stayed at the Tulsa Hotel

Q. Stayed at your office principally?

A. Made his headquarters at our office during the daytime.

Q. And you agreed on ten thousand dollars?

A. Bonus, yes, sir.

Q. What was to be done with that ten thousand dollars according to the agreement?

A. Five thousand dollars was to be paid in cash and five thousand dollars at a subsequent date.

Q. How were those payments to be made, by what method? A. By check.

Q. And who was to take those checks? A. Mr. Hanford.

Q. What was he to do with them?

A. I know nothing about that.

Q. Well, don't you know that there was some understanding as to when they might be cashed?

A. No, the second check wasn't to be cashed—— I have that check and I think there was written across the face of it "Payable July 19th or August 19th," I can't say. I could get the exact date if you want it.

Q. And they were both made payable to Mr. Hanford?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What agreement did you have there as to who should get the money represented by those checks?

A. No agreement of any kind.

Q. None at all? A. No, sir.

Q. What was your understanding as to Hanford's continued connection with the matter?

A. We had no understanding.

Q. You knew there was litigation?

A. We had an understanding after the lease was executed.

Q. That was after? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You and Mr. Hanford went over to Sapulpa and checked up the records?

A. We checked up the records of that trial and the decree which had been entered.

Q. What did you check that up for?

A. To get all the possible information we could about the character of litigation we would be into, Mr. Hanford wanted to do that and I went with him.

Q. At that time you were not in possession of the land?

A. No, sir.

Q. The Gypsy Oil Company was? A. I think so.

Q. Then you came from Sapulpa to Muskogee, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Then you went back to Tulsa? A. Yes.

Q. And it was then that you prepared the lease and sent it forward to Seattle?

A. No, the original lease I left with Captain MacNab was out there and that was executed as it was originally drawn with some few alterations.

Q. How did you arrange those alterations?

A. The terms or alterations were agreed upon by wire.

Q. When, with reference to the date was it you went down to Sapulpa?

A. I couldn't tell you whether it was before or after the lease was executed.

Q. You don't remember? A. No, sir.

Q. You and he then came to Muskogee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where had he put those checks? A. I didn't know.

Q. What did you do at Muskogee?

A. We came down here and made a very thorough, some three or four hours' thorough examination of the Commission records here.

Q. Why did you do that?

A. To acquaint Mr. Hanford with the conditions in this country as to the allotment of land.

Q. Well, weren't you also investigating the matter of this allotment, the records as shown you there?

A. Well, that is what we were investigating.

Q. You were obtaining all the information you could on the subject? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at the same time showing them to Mr. Hanford?

A. I had been through them.

Q. When?

A. Along in the spring as I told you when I first made my investigation as to the lease; but I had only seen the census card and had learned there were no enrollment records for Thomas.

Q. But this time?

A. This time we went to the bottom as far as we could get.

Q. What day of the week were you here?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Where did you stop that day?

A. We came in in the morning and went out in the evening.

Q. Now, you got those telegrams concerning and relating to these alterations?

A. Mr. Hanford may have them, I do not.

Q. Well, you would have copies in your files?

A. No, they were all sent by Mr. Hanford and signed by Mr. Hanford.

Q. You would not have any copies? A. No.

Q. Let's see those checks; have you got them?

A. No, I would have to get them, Mr. German. I don't know that I have them in Muskogee, they may be in Tulsa, but I will get them.

Q. Well, were they prepared until after you received the lease from Captain MacNab?

A. Well, I can't tell you.

Q. Naturally you wouldn't prepare and deliver these checks until after that time?

A. They may have been prepared but they wouldn't be delivered until after we received the lease through the mail.

Q. Now, let's get down to this Muskogee investigation. You went to the bottom of the thing here?

A. As near as I knew how.

Q. In the interim you were waiting of the lease from Seattle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember what the census card showed, Mr. Long? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did it show anything about this allotment being suspended? A. No, sir.

Q. You say it did not?

A. There is a note on the census card; if you will let me have the card I can refresh my memory as to the letter in 1895 of E. B. Miller.

Q. That prompted you to look for the records on that subject?

A. I looked up the records and bought a certified copy.

Q. You also looked and saw all the records on that subject? A. No, sir, that is all I saw.

Q. All you saw? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Here is the card; read that and see what it brings back to your mind.

A. Yes, sir, this is the copy as I saw it.

Q. Read it, will you?

A. What do you want me to read?

Q. The notation relating to Miller.

A. E. B. Miller, letter of May 9th, 1905. Now, Mr. German, that E. B. Miller, chief clerk, Land Office, has been written on since I saw it. We got the letter of May 9th, 1905, to the Commissioner of the Five Civilized Tribes, Mr. Drew got it out of the vault; the letter of May 9th, 1905, to the Commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes directing that the matter be suspended as to the issuing of the deeds to the heirs of number 1.

Q. Now, you knew at that time that there had been an order entered in that matter on May 9th, 1905, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't know that there had been an order, only what that said.

Q. You saw that notation? A. Yes.

Q. You run it down? A. I saw that letter.

Q. What other letter did you get a copy of?

A. That is the only letter that I saw and I bought a certified copy of that letter.

Q. On that date? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you got it with you?

A. No, sir, but I can get it; that is the same letter that you introduced, Mr. German.

Q. Now, that invited your attention to the fact that this allotment had been ordered held up on account of the question being raised with relation to the citizenship of Thomas Atkins, didn't it?

A. That letter said a question having arisen affecting the citizenship of Thomas Atkins, you are directed to withhold issuing deeds to his heirs until further notified, or words to that effect.

Q. Yes, sir, words to that effect.

A. I had a copy of—took a copy of that letter to Mr. Hanford, and Rice & Lyons, and they considered that as splendid evidence that Thomas Atkins was dead. I knew nothing about the citizenship proposition; I assumed that that had all been closed in 1901. That didn't enter into my mind; I don't believe it entered into Mr. Hanford's either, but it did convince us that there was some evidence some place that Thomas Atkins was dead.

Q. That was your explanation?

A. That was my judgment of it, too.

Q. That is what you believed from it?

A. Yes, sir, I [] very gratified to find that letter; I thought it was valuable.

Q. You were not bothered because some question was raised as to the citizenship rights of Thomas Atkins?

A. No, sir, I didn't think it was possible at that time.

Q. You were pleased because you found something indicating that Thomas Atkins was dead? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you find out from the office of the Commission what that information was relating to his death?

A. No, sir, that is all I could find; I asked for any other letters or papers, and Charlie Drew told me that was all he knew anything about.

Q. Charlie is a clerk in the Commission?

A. And it took him an hour or two to find that letter; it was very deep in the vault.

Q. Then, you and Mr. Hanford left? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was educated as you were in that matter at that time? A. Yes, we went into those things together.

Q. You, went over to Tulsa and finally the lease came?

A. Now, whether the lease had come prior to this or not, I can't say.

Q. Will you get the records on that one?

A. The date of the lease and the date I bought the certified copy of that letter will show, Mr. German, because I have that.

Q. Now, you bought the certified copy the same day that you and Hanford were here? A. Yes, oh, yes.

Q. And you have that certified copy now?

A. I think it is in our files, I am very sure it is.

Q. Now, you said that Minnie did not tell you anything about Tommy not existing? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, what did you ask her for?

A. I ask- her the question if Thomas Atkins was her son, during the course of the conversation; I was pretty well satisfied that he was because the records showed that he was.

Q. Now, tell the court which you relied on, the records or Minnie['s] statement? A. Both.

Q. Both? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You relied upon the records when you bought, too, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Because you construed the records to show that Thomas was Minnie's son and that Thomas was dead? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then are you not prepared to tell this court that you saw this record before you bought?

A. Not the E. B. Miller letter; I saw the census card.

Q. Then what was there on the census card that showed he was dead?

A. This notation about issuing deeds to the heirs.

Q. That notation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That notation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was suggestive or issuing deeds to the heirs and that was the source of your information? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had seen that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So, that was the source of your information?

A. That was it.

Q. Now, didn't it occur to you, Mr. Long, when you read that, that there was some reason for suspending the issuance of the deeds to the heirs? That is what got Fred?

A. Yes, but the deeds had been recorded.

Q. Not to the heirs? A. Not to Thomas Atkins.

Q. To Thomas Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But I am asking you didn't it occur to you that there was some reason for the order suspending the issuance of deeds to the heirs?

A. No, it didn't occur to me at that time because I was very busy on some other matters and I hurriedly went through that file, that was before we got into this action——

Q. And the part valuable to you was the part that made an impression on your mind? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court.

Q. That was the first time you had examined that census card? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that? A. Early in the spring of 1914.

Q. After Rogers had talked to you?

A. I think that was before Rogers had talked to me; I know it was along during that time, and I was down here on some other business and incidentally examined this census card.

Q. Well, what interest had you in the census card at that time? What had come to you or the Gem Company which caused you to examine that?

A. Prior to that time, we had had the discussion with Mr. Kistler that I spoke about, about Tommy being in the army, and curiosity, I think, more than anything else caused me to look up the census card because I remember distinctly that I did so; so remember that notation on there.

By Mr. German.

Q. Then when you and Hanford were in there, you studied it with care?

A. We went into all that very thoroughly and looked up the letter, feeling that probably that letter would give us some information about where and when he died.

Q. But it was a letter directing to suspend action in regard to issuance to the deeds to the heirs, to number 1, who was Thomas Atkins, because there was a question as to the citizenship?

A. You have got the letter reversed but that is the substance.

Q. Put the question of citizenship first and the other last and we have the letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, who did you ask there about what the question relating to his citizenship was?

A. That question relating to citizenship did not enter into my mind. I asked no one at that time; I knew nothing about the citizenship—that question was never raised in the case and I paid no attention to the citizenship.

Q. You didn't go into the records further to see whether they had issued deeds to the heirs?

A. No, sir, because I had seen the recorded deeds to Thomas Atkins.

Q. Anti-dating the date of that order?

A. Well, I don't think I looked at the deeds either way. I examined the deeds recorded and I assumed the recordation of those deeds was proper.

Q. You examined that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had seen the record where it was recorded which you now assumed to be in 1903?

A. I don't know whether that is correct.

Q. But you didn't look to see whether the deed had been issued to the heirs?

A. No, because I didn't go any further in the commission showing the recording of the deeds. I didn't believe at that time that I looked at the deed itself, only I saw the notation where it had been recorded.

Q. You knew, Mr. Long, from your experience in the matter of the work of the Commission that they did not issue deeds to heirs after they had issued a deed in the name of the enrolled person unless they had in their possession the deed which had been previously issued in the name of the enrolled person, didn't you.

A. No, I never had any particular work in the Commission; I didn't know that.

Q. You didn't know that? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't it occur to you when you saw that to go to the deed delivery book? A. No, sir.

Q. That didn't occur to you? A. No, sir.

Q. And you didn't go and investigate it? A. No, sir.

Q. Alright; you will bring up those checks, won't you?

A. Yes, if I can find them, and I think I can, Mr. German. I believe one of those checks is in evidence now; put in evidence in the receivership hearing; I will look that up and see. I don't know.

Q. Now, you say that you and Mr. Hanford, after the lease came, went back to Seattle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Approximately how long after the lease arrived until you and he started? A. Some few days.

Q. Can you tell us how many?

A. No, sir, only by the date of the lease and I can't get down to the exact date on it but the date of the lease—we left, I think on the night of—I am very sure on the night of July 4th.

Q. You think it was July 4th?

A. Yes, sir, I don't remember the date of the lease.

Q. What was the purpose of that trip?

A. The purpose of that trip was to go back and get—go over very thoroughly and painstakingly with Minnie and her history, and for further proof on the question of identity; Mr. Josey was very skeptical and Mr. Josey was not convinced she was Minnie Atkins, and he wanted some more identification.

Q. You were contented? A. I was contented.

Q. Bettie was? A. Apparently so.

Q. Bettie had returned from Seattle in the interim?

A. Yes.

Q. And she told them that she was Minnie?

A. Yes, but still Mr. Josey was skeptical.

Q. What made him skeptical, do you know?

A. No, I can't tell you, Mr. German; that was one; there were two purposes; one was for further identification and the other was to get as near as possible an accurate statement from Minnie so as to be able——

Q. Who went with you on that——

Mr. Cruce: Wait until he gets through with that, please.

A. Well, so as to prepare for the suit in Creek County Court to procure title to the land that was contemplated.

Q. Yes, you knew that the Gypsy was in possession?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you wanted to prepare yourself for the trial of a lawsuit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which you contemplated instituting? A. Yes.

Q. Therefore you wanted to equip yourself in the matter of Minnie's ownership of the land? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is why you took that trip? A. Yes.

Q. Who went with you? A. Mr. Hanford.

Q. Anybody else?

A. Yes, my father went along on that trip.

Q. But he [] no connection with Minnie?

A. Just a pleasure trip for him; he was visiting me from Indiana at the time and I took him along—I didn't want to leave him.

Q. You didn't take anybody with you who had formerly known Minnie? A. No.

Q. You had no additional data in reference to her history except what you had gathered here at the Dawes Commission?

A. And additional conversations with Sam Brown and Mitchell Wadsworth that Mr. Hanford and I had.

Q. Then you went on up and found Minnie again?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you talk to Minnie the first day that you got there?

A. I don't believe so, I believe we waited a day. Mr. Hanford wanted to see Captain MacNab before we began talking to Minnie.

Q. He did? Where was Captain MacNab?

A. He was at American Lake with the regiment; there were up there on a hike as they call it.

Q. Where were you when you wrote this letter which is marked—which has been read but it is not marked—apparently to Mr. Josey dated July 7th?

A. That letter was written on the train.

Q. On the train.

Mr. German: Was this letter read into the record this morning?

Mr. Cruce: Yes.

A. Yes, it was.

Q. In this letter dated July 7th, you stated, after discussing the question of the non-citizenship of Minnie, with Mr. Josey, and a possible contention of Bartlett on that account, you said: "Hanford is still talking right"; what do you mean by that?

A. Well, that will require a brief explanation, Mr. German; Mr. Hanford, when he and I left Seattle was very distant; he held us at extreme arm's length; he demanded that he [] allowed to proceed in his own way without any interference from us, and that he not be under any obligations to us for the money that was advanced. After we got to Tulsa, he maintained a very cold, distant attitude; we couldn't get acquainted with him personally, and after the lease was signed up we made a written agreement—prepared and written agreement, prepared and written agreement providing that MacNab as trustee for Minnie, and Minnie were to furnish Hanford's services as attorney and we to pay the expenses and Mr. Hanford still maintained that very distant attitude, and we were trying very hard to—or I was, rather, to get personally close to him, and I had had a hard job doing it, and finally before we left, I thought I had gotten pretty close to him. Mr. Josey admonished me particularly to keep Hanford in the case, that he wanted his services on account of his connection at Seattle, and he had said before he left that he would stay with us; that he would continue as an attorney for Minnie, provided we paid his expenses, and a contract—memorandum which I presume Mr. Hanford has, was prepared and he signed it and it was to be signed by Minnie and MacNab when we got out there, and it was signed.

Q. And on the road he was talking alright?

A. Well, he became [] on the way to Seattle but on the way from Seattle to Tulsa, he was anything but friendly.

Q. He had been gotten into the matter by Captain MacNab? A. Yes.

Q. And Mrs. Folk you discovered was dependent upon the McComb's family and the MacNab family out there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And consequently you wanted Hanford kept in the case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You arrived at Seattle and on July 8th you sent a telegram to the Gem Oil Company—do you remember whether you had been out there a day or so or whether that was the day of your arrival?

A. Well, if we left the 4th of July, we got there about—well, if we left about the 3rd, we got there about the 7th or 8th. That telegram is dated the 8th; we got there probably the morning of the 7th or 8th, maybe.

Q. This is dated 7:22 A. M. A. A night letter then.

Q. You must have gotten there on the 7th?

A. Probably so.

Q. How many days were you out there that trip?

A. From the 7th to the 18th or 19th.

Q. About 12 or 13 days?

A. Yes, there and at Portland. My father was with me and I took several side trips from Portland.

Q. Seattle was headquarters?

A. Well, Seattle and Portland.

Q. July 8th, you advised the Gem Oil Company, according to this telegram, that Captain MacNab was out of the city but was expected back the next day; nothing accomplished because Hanford desired to see Captain MacNab before going ahead with the work? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what he wanted to see Captain MacNab about? A. No, sir.

Q. He didn't tell you?

A. He didn't tell me and I didn't ask him.

Q. Did you see Captain MacNab that day?

A. I think not.

Q. Captain MacNab was Minnie's trustee at that time?

A. Minnie's trustee at that time and I presume that Mr. Hanford didn't want to take any further steps without consulting Captain MacNab as a matter of courtesy because he was her trustee.

Q. And I suppose, too, that he wanted to take up with Captain MacNab the consideration for the lease and its payment? A. I assumed that; I hadn't seen Captain MacNab.

Q. Before you would be permitted to interview Minnie?

A. Well, I wasn't refused an interview with Minnie; I could have interviewed her if I had desired, but I wanted to work in perfect harmony with Mr. Hanford; that was my aim and desire, and it worked out that way.

Q. When did you first interview her on that occasion, the next day July 9th?

A. Well, I don't know, Mr. German, whether I went out the next day or the next; the memorandum I had here, I didn't write any date on it.

Q. You must have interviewed her on——

A. I could take these telegrams and refresh my memory; I couldn't do it without them.

Q. July 9th you sent this telegram, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And in that you said the ["] woman's story is clear as to the life's history and birth of child, but so far she is unable to remember the name of people with whom she left him in Leavenworth; may recall the name by tomorrow. Dates she gives can be verified by War Department records as to locations of regiments. We are doing this by wire. Will have affidavit executed tomorrow. Everything looks good." So you interviewed Minnie quite lengthily that day?

A. Apparently so, yes, sir; that was on the 9th.

Q. When did you make these notes that you produced here? A. During the interview.

Q. Interview on that day or later days?

A. Well, on both days apparently there were two days of notes, the way they run.

Q. Well, let's see how many days now: Here on July 9th, the same day you received a telegram from or a night letter from Mr. Josey—it is a night letter; evidently you received it on the morning of the 10th, as he did the one I just read. A. Yes.

Q. "Gather all facts possible about Thomas. They are framing to produce one and are going to do everything possible to accomplish it. Wire me anything about him that you think needs immediate attention." You received that message? A. Yes.

Q. Then on July 9th evidently you sent this code message before the night letter, which has just been read; or this was a night letter, too, wasn't it?

A. Well, now, this is written on a night-letter blank; I presume it was. No, because code messages go straight messages.

Q. Always go straight. A. Yes.

Q. But it was sent on the same day Josey sent one I just read, and you sent the one to him I just read. A. Yes.

Q. This being interpreted means this: "Minnie last heard of boy in summer 1899; was alive then, but sick. Thinks he died soon after. Boy born 1886 or '7, Sisters' Catholic Hospital, Leavenworth; records there should show."

A. Now, I think perhaps I sent that after I received this letter from Mr. Josey, so that he could look up——

Q. You mean after you received this telegram?

A. Yes, sir; so that he could make that investigation.

Q. Take a glance at that and see if you can figure that out; one from Josey was a night letter, sent the 9th, and evidently received by you on the 10th.

A. Yes, that would be true; both were sent on the same day.

Q. And you received his the next morning?

A. Well, that being the case, Mr. German, I take it for granted this was an answer to that, because I gave him some facts about Thomas.

Q. I see, and consequently you didn't answer that one?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you regarded it essential to code this message giving the details of it and did so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You suggest here the Sisters' Catholic Hospital records should so show. A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is a fact, isn't it, that you in your interview with Minnie found out she had been at the Sisters' Hospital?

A. Well, she said she gave birth to Thomas Atkins at the Sisters' Hospital.

Q. She said that to you?

A. Yes, she said that to us, and that telegram was sent so that he could check that up if he so desired.

Q. Now, how long were you and she and Mr. Hanford together that day?

A. Well, I could hardly answer that; we went out there I think possibly in the afternoon; I don't think we were out there at all in the morning; yes, one morning we were, because she cooked us a dinner; one day we were there, and we were never there more than two or three hours at a time.

Q. How many different days were you out there?

A. Perhaps four or five days maybe three or four; I can't say definitely because I have no way of remembering, no data on it. But we were out there sufficient length of time altogether to get the information, and after we procured what information we had, we went back and tried every way to get her to tell us the names of the colored people in Leavenworth where she left the boy, and she never did do that.

Q. July 8th, you adduce from these messages, you first talked to her?

A. Well, I assume that, because I said I did talk to her.

Q. July 9th you talked to her. A. Yes.

Q. And July 10th you talked with her?

A. I may not have talked with her on the 10th; I am not sure. I talked with her three or four or five days; then I had her picture taken.

Q. On the 10th you wrote a letter about her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which commences, isn't addressed to anybody; just a memorandum. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which you mailed to Mr. Josey.

A. No, I mailed it to the Gem Oil Company; at that time I wrote letters without addressing them at the top.

Q. You say here, Minnie's affidavit enclosed.

A. Well, she had signed the affidavit then.

Q. I believe it covers her history thoroughly. Now, let us have that affidavit, Mr. Long. A. I don't have it.

Q. Where is it?

A. The affidavit was mailed to the office and was in the possession of Rice & Lyons, and is now in Mr. Hanford's possession.

Q. Now, in Mr. Hanford's possession?

A. I presume it is; I don't have it myself.

Q. Well, these other telegrams and things that went to the Gem Oil Company have also been in the possession of Rice & Lyons.

A. No, we kept separate files, Mr. German; we kept our office file, regular office business file, and Rice & Lyons kept a file themselves.

Q. You think Mr. Hanford has it now?

A. Yes, sir; I think so.

Mr. German: We ask that counsel produce it.

Mr. Hanford: I don't remember seeing it; if I have got it, I will produce it.

Mr. German: I would like to have it before I cross any further.

The Court: What do you remember about it, Mr. Hanford?

Mr. Hanford: I have been through my files recently, your honor, preparing for this case; and I haven't got that affidavit, I am pretty sure. I know it is not amongst my files.

The Court: Do you remember ever having had it?

Mr. Hanford: Yes, sir, I have.

The Court: Well, if you have it in any of your files, where would it be?

Mr. Hanford: It would be in my file of affidavits.

The Court: Have you that file here in the city?

Mr. Hanford: Yes, sir.

The Court: Over at the hotel?

Mr. Hanford: Yes, sir.

The Court: Then if you have it here in the city in your files, you will be able to produce it in the morning?

Mr. Hanford: Yes, sir. I think the only affidavit that I have of Minnie's is an affidavit that was filed in the receivership hearing.

Mr. German: No, this is——

The Court: This affidavit is the one Mr. Long testified about, taken at the time——

Mr. Hanford: I remember the affidavit, and it is practically the same as his notes that are in evidence.

The Court: If the affidavit is among your files, it may be produced in the morning.

Q. Mr. Long, this letter goes on then, this memorandum of July 10th, to state two important points: ["]She is shy on memory; she swears she cannot remember the name of the woman in Leavenworth with whom she left the baby; neither can she remember the name of the person who wrote her that the baby died. However, she stated this evening she would do her level best to remember these names. The most important date in her narrative, when she went to Fort. Wayne, Michigan (for it was after she had been there quite a while after April 1, 1899, that she heard the boy was dead) is substantiated by a telegram from Washington giving the date when the 7th Infantry reached Fort Wayne from Cuba. I didn't put in the years in every place in the affidavit, because she couldn't be definite. However, I am on the next page showing a table with all dates which can be verified." Where is that table, Mr. Long?

A. That table is not there, Mr. German, and I have on my notes what I copied from the table, but I don't know where the sheet it; it was not in the file; I looked through thoroughly three or four times after I read that letter myself, and couldn't locate it.

Q. Don't know where it is now? A. No, sir.

Q. Has Mr. Hanford got it, you think?

A. No, sir; that has been misplaced or torn off; it is on my notes there, the notes I made the table from, and exactly the same thing that I made my table from.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, what was it Minnie told you about Charlie, Charlie Harrison?

A. That he was born at Fort Logan about the early 90's; that he was about twenty-one or two years old at that time.

Q. She told you who she was living with?

A. Yes, sir, Biff Harrison.

Q. And she told you about when Charlie was born?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who she was living with then? A. Yes.

Q. And she told you about Lieutenant Wallace there at Fort Logan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she told you about Alice being born there at Fort Logan? A. Yes.

Q. And that she died when about a year old something like that shortly after she had gone to Fort Logan? A. Yes.

Q. Then she told you about working for Mr. Hyde didn't she in Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And about Mrs. Hamilton? A. Yes.

Q. And that Mrs. Hamilton could give you some information? A. About Thomas.

Q. About Thomas? A. Yes.

Q. And she told you about the Grodevants? A. Yes.

Q. And she told you about the Staffords? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And about the rich Jew she had worked for? A. Yes.

Q. And she couldn't think where Thomas was left?

A. Yes, she could think where and she says, I know about where it was in town, but I don't remember the woman's name. She was a colored woman part colored and part white.

Q. She remembered very well leaving him there when he was two years old? A. Well, little less.

Q. And how she was in correspondence with this woman?

A. Some person.

Q. In later years but she just couldn't remember the name? A. No, or wouldn't.

Q. Or wouldn't one or the other? A. Yes.

Q. And she told you about the child being born at the Sisters' Hospital and how long she had been there?

A. Prior to that she told us the child was born in some house and then she switched.

Q. You kind of jumped her didn't you?

A. Well, I wouldn't say that exactly.

Q. Mr. Hanford did? A. Well, she switched anyhow.

Q. And went over to the Sisters' Hospital? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she was oscillating between some place and the hospital?

A. Well, for a brief time yes, sir, and finally she settled on the hospital.

Q. Well, this woman's place was not a white place?

A. Well, now I can't remember whether she said it was or not, but the place where she left the boy was a colored place that she was positive; left him with a colored woman.

Q. Well, didn't she say he was born at some colored woman's house?

A. No, she didn't say that that I recall. Mr. Hanford thought she did afterwards when we discussed it, but I never could get that that she said it that way; but he get's it that she did and we differed on it.

Q. But whatever now was in that affidavit she had told you?

A. That affidavit has the exact facts that were in my written notes because it was written from them.

Q. And you didn't want anybody to know what was in that affidavit?

A. We didn't care particularly about it being known, no, sir.

Q. Well, not even for Mr. Eberly to know it?

A. Why it was mailed to Mr. Eberly.

Q. It was mailed to Mr. Eberly?

A. I am sure it was mailed to the Gem Oil Company and Mr. Eberly opened all the mail and if the letter went to Mr. Josey or Mr. Page he saw it got to the right person.

Q. Now you put in this letter: "I would suggest that facts in affidavit be kept secret." What was your object in that?

A. My idea in that was to not make it public. You know there was a great interest in Minnie Atkins at the time; she had been lost for a number of years and everybody was talking about it. We had some people around our office that liked to get out and talk. My idea was that the fact be not made known until we checked up the dates, until we had checked up the Tullahassee date and the Carlisle date, the arrival at Leavenworth, and so forth, which we could do because she gave us the name of the regiment she was with. The only date we had checked up was the date the regiment with which Lieutenant Wallace was attached went to Fort Wayne.

Q. Now, you went on then to say: "I hope you get out of her tomorrow the admission of the custodian——" No, "the names of the custodians of the child. McNabb was to have been here yesterday but will not arrive until next Tuesday, is out on a hike with his regiment." A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: Does your honor desire to suspend it is now five o'clock?

The Court: I was waiting until you got through with that letter.

Mr. German: Well, I am through with the letter.

The Court: We will take a recess until nine-thirty tomorrow morning.

And thereupon court recessed until nine-thirty o'clock Friday morning, May 25, 1917.

And thereafter, and on May 25th, 1917, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., court convened pursuant to adjournment and further proceedings herein were had as follows:

FRANK B. LONG, being recalled further testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

A. Mr. Long, did you find that affidavit of Minnie's?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you search for it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Among the papers that are in Muskogee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have not had a search made in Tulsa for it?

A. Well, that would [] be necessary for all of our office files are here.

Q. Where is the affidavit?

A. I don't know; those affidavits and everything connected with the legal, or with the lawyers' side of the case, where in Rice & Lyons' office.

Q. Well, weren't they turned either over to Mr. Hanford or Judge Stuart?

A. At the time Rice & Lyons ceased to be attorneys, why, those files were turned over to Mr. Hanford; after that, I don't know anything about them.

Q. When was it that Rice & Lyons ceased to be attorneys for Mr. Page? A. Well——

Q. Sometime along in the summer of 1915?

A. Some months after the Receivership hearing.

Q. Sometime along in the summer months of 1915?

A. Well, I am sure about that; maybe it was in the fall—I am not sure about that.

Q. It was then that Stuart & Cruce were employed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Judge Stuart had not had anything to do with the case before that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Or any of his firm? A. No, sir.

The Court: Is it your recollection and information that this affidavit was with the files in Rice & Lyons' office prior to their giving up their work in the case?

A. I have no independent recollection of that particular affidavit; I simply know it was executed and all those matters—affidavits and everything of that character were in their file.

The Court: I assume, Mr. Hanford, that you failed to find it among any of your files here?

Mr. Hanford: Yes, Your Honor, I am pretty sure. I know, in fact, that that was destroyed; the affidavit that she made at that time was destroyed because it was not true and I am sure that I destroyed it myself. I will say though, that the affidavit was written from Mr. Long's notes—I wrote it myself at the typewriter—he read his notes and I wrote it on the typewriter.

Mr. German: Your Honor, as to the details of that I would rather for Mr. Hanford to testify to it.

The Court: Yes. It is clear now, that the affidavit is not in existence. You are sure that it has been destroyed?

Mr. Hanford: I am sure that I destroyed it.

The Court: Alright.

A. I will say, Mr. German, after these notes were written we went to Mr. Hanford's office; Mr. Hanford went to the typewriter and I used the notes which I gave you yesterday in writing the affidavit; he wrote it as I dictated some of the facts to him—I didn't dictate the language, but the facts just as they are in those notes.

Q. Mr. Long, you went down to Portland while you were at Seattle, didn't you, on this trip this second trip?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I read you yesterday evening the code message dated July 9th, which you sent from Seattle to the Gem Oil Company, which states that Minnie last heard of the boy in the summer 1899, was alive then but sick, thinks he died soon after. Boy born 1886 or '7. Then you conclude by saying, Sisters' Hospital, Leavenworth. Record there should show. She told you that the boy was born in 1886 or '7? A. No, sir.

Q. You deduced that from her narrative? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You figured from the time that she—— You considered the length of time that she worked for the Hyde's and the length of time that she worked for the Grodevant's and the length of time she worked for the Stafford's, and the fact she told you the child was born just after she left the Stafford's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you figured that would make it 1886 or '7?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, your note of July 10th, which is not addressed to anybody nor signed by anybody, but which was mailed to the Company—— You remember it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You again stated that you hoped to get out of her, that is Minnie, tomorrow the names of the custodians of the child? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She was still unable to give them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you also stated that Captain MacNab was to have been "here yesterday but will not arrive until next Tuesday, is out on a hike with his regiment." You were desirous, or Mr. Hanford was, I believe you stated, to have Captain MacNab there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. With the hope he would be of assistance in enabling her to remember the names? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of the custodians of the child? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, on the 10th, the same day that you wrote the note we have just been talking about, you sent a telegram to the Gem Oil Company in which you stated that a man named Dr. Thomas, representing William Robinson, of Muskogee, tried to see the woman today but didn't get to talk to her. Tell the Court if you know how it happened that he didn't get to talk to her?

A. Isn't that telegram dated from Portland?

Q. No, sir, that is from Seattle, Mr. Long.

A. Well, then, I couldn't say except as information came to me from either Mr. Hanford or Mrs. McComb. I didn't see the man and wasn't present.

Q. That was your information?

A. That was my information, yes, sir. I sent that.

Q. And he didn't get to talk to her? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Minnie gave the name, you state in this telegram, of a woman on Denver—it is on Denver but it must be in Denver? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who will remember the name of Thomas' custodian, will see her on way back. That woman was Mrs. Claudius Hamilton, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She has been here as a witness.

Q. Let me divert a little to ask you if you stopped in Denver on your way back to Tulsa? A. I did not.

Q. You went right on through? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you stop in Denver on your way to Seattle? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you stop at Fort Logan? A. No, sir.

Q. On either one of those trips? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever been to Fort Logan to investigate this matter? A. Not personally.

Q. Who has? A. Mr. Hanford.

Q. Did he stop at Denver, or Fort Logan enroute to Seattle on that second trip of yours? A. No, sir.

Q. Then you state, that Minnie's information is that he, Thomas, died in 1900 and 1901. She received a letter telling of his death, but does not remember who wrote the letter. Will see her again in the morning. She is trying to recall the names—Mr. Long, where was it she said she got that letter from telling her of Thomas' death?

A. From Leavenworth.

Q. Did she say who wrote it—this same person who was custodian?

A. That is what we were trying very hard to find out; she didn't say, and said she didn't remember who wrote it.

Q. Didn't remember? A. No, sir.

Q. And we questioned her very closely along that line. We had two things to find out; the name of the colored woman with whom she left the boy and the name of the person who wrote that letter.

Q. Who wrote that letter.

A. I remember that she explained to us that she had a lot of old letters in a trunk, and some weeks or months before that her husband and she had cleaned house.

Q. And burned them? A. Burned a lot of old letters.

Q. On July 11th, which is the next day now, you wired the Gem Oil Company again, from Seattle, and you stated this: "Affidavit which will reach Tulsa Monday gives dates and names for identification. Had the woman's photograph taken today. Will mail finished copy Monday. Woman declares she will yet recall names of persons who wrote her that boy died. Says she is sure name will come to her in time." It hadn't come to her on the 11th yet? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, on the day you received a telegram from Mr. Josey sent from Tulsa in which he said: "Don't leave there until advised by us. Be sure you have the right party." Didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, that party was the same party that couldn't remember the name of custodian of the child, or of the person who had written her that he was dead; isn't she?

A. That party was Minnie Atkins.

Q. That party was Minnie Atkins? A. Yes.

Q. You had been advising Mr. Josey and the Gem Oil Company, rather the Gem Oil Company, that that woman you were talking to could not remember the name of the person with whom she had left her first born, hadn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Josey sent you this telegram that I have just read to you, didn't he?

A. Yes, sir, for this reason: that Mr. Josey was still skeptical as to whether——

Q. It was Minnie?

A. This was Minnie Atkins, and for that reason, I had taken these photographs and in the letter transmitting them I had asked him to have some of her old acquaintances in Muskogee see the photograph.

Q. See the pictures. You knew it was Minnie?

A. I felt in my own mind it was.

Q. But you kept sending Mr. Josey or the Gem Oil Company, I mean, information about this woman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Not being able to tell the name of the woman with whom she left her first born?

A. Yes, indeed; the telegrams speak for themselves.

The Court: Did she ever give you approximately the place in Leavenworth where she left him?

A. She didn't know the names of any of the streets, she couldn't place herself at all in Leavenworth; she didn't even know where Hyde lived; she was absolutely at sea as to those locations and names.

Q. Now, on the 13th, you wrote a little note sending the photograph, and you regarded them as very important and sent them by special delivery. That is true, isn't it?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Now, on the same day, the 13th, you sent a telegram to the Gem Oil Company from Seattle—now, this was the fifth day you had been up there, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. In which you said: "MacNab has been delayed; returns tonight. With his help, hope to get names from woman tomorrow. Can't do much more good here. Want to see Portland man and Denver woman enroute home. Shall I follow instructions in your telegram of 7th to remain here until you advise me to leave. Long." Now, let me see; what good did you think Captain MacNab could do, or did Mr. Hanford state that he thought that Captain MacNab could do?

A. Well, Minnie was very reluctant to talk, that is to be definite; she couldn't remember dates, she couldn't remember names, and I was a stranger to her; Mr. Hanford was a stranger to her. She had never known Mr. Hanford prior to his connection with this case. We felt that she was holding back facts and I think I said so in one letter there, that I believe she knows and won't tell.

Q. Well, we will get to that, what you told your superior.

A. And we felt that Captain MacNab, who she had known a great number of years and in whom we felt she had confidence because she had turned over her business to him in these trust deeds, would probably be able to induce her to give us these names provided she remembered them; there were two things, whether she remembered them or whether she didn't, and we thought if Captain MacNab could explain to her the importance of our having this information she might tell him the things, apparently that she was refusing to tell us. That was our purpose in wanting Captain MacNab to see her.

Q. Now, of course——

A. That was our purpose in wanting Captain MacNab to see her.

Q. Of course, at that time she didn't understand the value of the land nor the importance of her being the mother of Thomas, did she? A. I couldn't say as to that.

Q. She didn't understand that it was necessary for her attorney and her lessee, view of the litigation, to have detailed information? A. We tried to make her understand.

Q. Tried to make her understand that. Did you succeed in making her understand that?

A. I don't think we did because I was never able to get those names from her while I was there.

Q. Captain MacNab, according to this letter—this telegram of the 13th. Now, on that same day, the 13th, you wrote another note, a long one, which must have gone with the photographs, didn't it?

A. Well, now, I think that letter, Mr. German, was written to be inclosed with the photographs and the photographs were very large; they were sixteen or eighteen inches square; and I may not have put that in, but anyway the photograph and that letter went in the same mail.

Q. Now, you in this note state that in a recent telegram Mr. Josey admonished you to be sure you had the right party. Then, while I am perfectly satisfied our Minnie is the right Minnie, still I know there has been in the past many clever frame ups pulled off in identification. I am therefore transmitting the photographs, and so forth. Both likenesses are good, and so forth. And then you suggest that they see Sam Brown, Mitchel Wadsworth and others and have them examine the photographs, or John Couch, of Muskogee. Couch is the man who went from Muskogee to Denver with Minnie in 1896. His brother, Frank Couch, is in Muskogee, and so on. And by the way he might know something in re Thomas. That is Couch? A. Yes.

Q. None of these people have seen the woman since 1896, eighteen years; Minnie says she has not changed much in eighteen years except as to weight. She says she always was large but that she has gained considerable in the last ten years. Now, Minnie told you that, didn't she?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. There are yet, as stated in previous letters and telegrams, two things which she must come through with, the name of the colored woman with whom she left Thomas in Leavenworth, and the name of the person who wrote her that he was dead. I believe she remembers these things and is withholding them for a reason. MacNab will be home tomorrow and I feel that he will make her come across. My only fear is that she lied as to not telling of his death and that it occurred much earlier than is shown in the affidavit. The affidavit I suppose showed the death at the time your note indicated?

A. Yes, when she was at Fort Wayne.

Q. What made you fear that she was lying on that subject?

A. As to just what time, I was afraid that she might have received that letter when she first reached Fort Wayne, on account of the fact that she at no time was definite as to when she received the letter. We questioned her as to the time of year, whether it was spring, summer, fall or winter; as to just where she was; and as to whether the regiment had gotten there, or whether she was still with Mrs. Lieutenant Wallace and her children, and she was indefinite about it. I know that my deductions from the way she talked and so forth led me to believe that maybe she misrepresented a little. Anyway, That is the way I felt about it, because I wrote my own feelings in that letter.

Q. You had received Mr. Josey's message about being sure it was the right person? A. Yes.

Q. And the tenor of that letter, the burden of the song is the question of identification?

A. That and the question of the date of death, when she received that letter.

Q. Now, on July the 14th you sent another code message in which you stated, sent this to the Gem Oil Company, after conference today I am convinced Minnie does not remember any of the people with whom she left the child, will keep after her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was on the 14th?

A. Yes, sir, but I don't want you to understand that I was at her house every day. We took quite a few sight seeing trips out at Seattle.

Q. You were up there and not going to leave until you were ordered back? A. No.

Q. You were requested by Mr. Josey not to return until you made sure of the identification? A. Yes.

Q. You had intended to return sooner than you did?

A. Well, I thought I was through; saw no necessity for staying there.

Q. Now, let's see about Captain MacNab just a minute. You learned that Captain MacNab, and Mr. Hanford learned this to your knowledge, that Captain MacNab had come in contact with Sadie James?

A. No, I don't—— Yes, I do. I knew that Sadie James was out there, but I can't say that Captain MacNab had come in contact with her.

Q. It was Captain MacNab who gave you the information that there was a colored woman there bothering Minnie?

A. Oh, that was in the month of June.

Q. Yes, sir, and you and Hanford thought possibly the Captain would be of some assistance to you in getting Minnie to remember the names? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of the old colored woman? A. That was natural.

Q. Natural, yes, sir. Now, you went to Portland on the 16th, or at least you were in Portland, and you sent a telegram from there to the Gem Oil Company, I believe you stated, and produced it and I have it here in my hand. Now, in this telegram you stated: "Bartlett in Portland, understand Alice Robertson of Muskogee expected here Saturday to go to Seattle to identify Minnie. Also that Bartlett is looking for Thomas. Have not seen Bartlett, will stay away from him." You sent that message? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the 16th of July, 1914. Then on that same day you sent a night letter, dated July 16th in which you stated this: "Wired you this afternoon Bartlett is here. Sadie has been here for several days, she went to Seattle this morning with a friend of Minnie's." Let me stop reading to suggest that that was Clara Kirk? A. Well, I didn't know.

Q. You didn't know? A. No, sir.

Q. "And tried to see her but failed." You know why she failed?

A. Mr. Hanford called me up and told me over the telephone neither Sadie nor this friend had gotten to see Minnie.

Q. And he told you why too? A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Long, didn't he tell you he took care of Minnie on that occasion? A. No, sir.

Q. Wouldn't let them see her? A. No, sir, he didn't.

Q. He didn't. "Looks to me like frame up for fake Thomas or effort to win Minnie away from Hanford. Hanford talked with Minnie's friend and her conversation indicated effort tending to convince Minnie Thomas is alive. I will stay here until Bartlett leaves and keep in touch with Seattle by 'phone. Arrangements made for holding check as requested. Am at Oregon Hotel." You had some instructions not to deliver some check did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What check is that?

A. That is the check you were inquiring for yesterday.

Q. Did you bring it here this morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let's see it?

A. I will explain, Mr. German, that the first five thousand dollars was paid at the delivery of the lease. The second five thousand was to be paid sometime afterwards and I testified yesterday I thought it was August 19th or July 19th, it seems to be July 29th. And we withheld payment of this check until Minnie was positively identified as Minnie Atkins. Then prior to my going out there, Mr. Josey had directed me not to deliver that check until we were sure that Minnie was Minnie and until she had given us full and complete facts as to the birth of Thomas.

Q. Yes?

A. And she hadn't given those facts, and I felt that we shouldn't deliver that check until she had given those facts. There was the additional five thousand dollars and we wanted to be positive that everything was all right and that accounts for my statement in that letter. July 29th was approaching and I didn't know how long I would be there.

Q. Yes, sir, this is on July 16th?

A. Just a minute. I took up with Mr. Hanford the matter of holding this check. He wouldn't agree to it at first. Finally when he saw the condition we were in and our inability to have Minnie tell us the facts, he tentatively agreed that he would not demand the check; and then I think he consulted afterwards with Captain MacNab, as to their conversation I can't say. Nevertheless, Mr. Hanford did agree that the check would not be demanded at that time.

Q. July 29th, you say was approaching and this was July 16th that you sent the telegram I have just read from?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. We will get to that check and the payment of it later on in your testimony. I want to refer to the other five thousand dollars. There were two five thousand dollar checks?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Both payable to E. C. Hanford? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say the first was paid at the time of the execution of the lease? A. As I remember.

Q. That went to Hanford and MacNab?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. You don't know about that? A. No, sir.

Q. But this one was not paid until the 29th?

A. And wasn't paid then.

Q. Wasn't paid then. All right. Stamped paid September 15th, I notice? A. Yes.

Q. But it has prior to that an endorsement "Seattle September 10th." had you noticed that?

A. Well, I hadn't noticed the check.

Q. Now, on July 17th from Portland, you wired the Gem Oil Company again, in which you stated "If you are giving notice of taking of depositions include as witness Mrs. A. M. Mashack of Portland; she was with Nancy when her baby was born; says it was a boy but died day after birth. Was buried in Wagoner. I have affidavit. Will remain here until something develops in matters. Wired you again yesterday." What were you expecting to develop there that was prompting you to stay there?

A. The only—just let me have that telegram, Mr. German, I will explain it more definitely. I think that referred to the activity of Bartlett and Sadie James. Now, I am not sure; that is my opinion at this time after all that time.

Q. You didn't personally come in contact with Sadie or Mr. Bartlett there, did you? A. No, sir, no, sir.

Q. But you had detectives watching? A. I did not.

Q. Now did you keep up with their movements there, Mr. Long? A. Through Mr. Hanford.

Q. Was he there? A. He was in Seattle.

Q. But they were in Portland.

A. As I understood, a moment ago, Sadie had gone to Seattle.

Q. She went on the morning of the 16th and returned on the evening of the 16th?

A. I am not sure of that; and Harjo knew of Bartlett's activity and Harjo was telling me.

Q. Harjo was telling you?

A. Yes, sir, I recall that now.

Q. Don't you recall having two detectives there on Sadie in Seattle and in Portland? A. No, sir.

Q. And that you had them to interview her?

A. I did not.

Q. And didn't you find out about that photograph she had of a supposed living Thomas?

A. I did not. I hired no detectives in Portland.

Q. Alright. Now, on July 18th, the next day, you telegraphed from Portland to the Gem Oil Company as follows: "Phone Muskogee. Ascertain if Alice Robertson left and when. Answer" Signed Long. A. Yes.

Q. What did you want to know about Alice Robertson's movements for?

A. Why, Mr. German, I wanted to know every thing that was going on. I didn't know what she was coming out there for; I didn't know the purpose of her visit.

Q. You knew Miss Alice Robertson well?

A. Knew her well and had a very high opinion of her.

Q. And you also knew that Miss Alice Robertson had been in the school that Minnie had—had taught in the school where Minnie attended? A. Been Minnie's teacher.

Q. Now, you wanted to know when Miss Robertson and Minnie had a conversation if they had one? A. Naturally.

Q. Then, you received a telegram on the 18th from Tulsa, signed Eberle, sent to you at Seattle by way of Portland, which said: "Alice Robertson left Muskogee Tuesday night for Seattle." Now you know about Miss Alice being in Seattle when she got there?

A. Only through information from Mr. Hanford. I didn't see her and didn't talk to her.

Q. You didn't see her; yes sir. You kept track of her enroute, didn't you? A. No.

Q. You figured what time she would reach there?
A. Oh, yes.

Q. Now, on July 18th, the same day of the last message, Charles Page wired you at Portland as follows: "Unless absolutely necessary for you to be there, come with Hanford and Minnie who are leaving for Tulsa." You received that message? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, on the 19th instant—on the 19th of July, you wired to the Gem Oil Company from Portland as follows: "Hanford leaves this afternoon. I am leaving this morning. Meet him in Kansas City. B.—"—standing for Bartlett—"still in Portland. You can wire me care of Oregon, Washington train, number 18." So you didn't return from Seattle on that trip by way of Denver?

A. No, sir, I had a round trip ticket.

Q. Down through San Francisco? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, you came back to Kansas City without going through Denver?

A. Yes, sir; by Union Pacific down through Pocatello and Cheyenne, and that way, and I came straight through.

Q. Have you got some more telegrams that passed between yourself and the Gem Oil Company?

A. No, sir, that is——

Q. While you were up there on that second trip?

A. No, not that I know of.

Q. You don't know of them?

A. No, sir—yes, there was a telegram that came up there with reference to filing suit on behalf of Minnie in the Federal Court rather than in the Creek County court; I have that telegram. I remember it but I didn't consider it material in this—I can furnish it to you if you want it.

Q. There are not any other letters or telegrams?

A. That is all.

Q. That you know about?

A. That is all. No, sir. That telegram—I think probably that telegram—I think probably there were two or three of those messages in reference to having our attorneys in Oklahoma authorized to file suit in behalf of Minnie in the Federal court rather than the Creek County court.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford—Mr. Long, can you tell what day you took this memorandum of what Minnie said while you were up at Seattle at the second trip, or did you take it at different times?

A. Took it on different days, Mr. German, but all prior to the execution of the affidavit and I think we can find from these telegrams the date of the affidavit because I say there in one message affidavit executed today. And those notes were all made prior to the——

Q. To the date of that affidavit?

A. To the date of that affidavit, yes, sir.

Q. Well, I will help you out a little on the date of the affidavit—Mr. Long, did you look for that little table of facts that is referred to in one letter? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you find that?

A. No, I didn't but it is an exact duplicate of the table that is on there.

Q. Now, these are the only two papers you couldn't find; that table and that affidavit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I notice, referring to that affidavit, that your telegram of July 10th, states that her affidavit—this is a night letter—"her affidavit executed today; am mailing copy to you tonight." That must have been in triplicate then, or in duplicate?

A. I think so; I think I sent both copies—sent two copies.

Q. You state there you are sending copy?

A. Well, I can't be sure, I have no independent recollection.

Q. Well, did Mr. Hanford keep one?

A. Well, if he did, I don't know; he wrote the affidavit on the typewriter; wrote it himself.

Q. I understand; naturally you would send one to the Company because they were supposed to be investigating a little bit.

A. They were very much interested in knowing these facts.

Q. You and Mr. Hanford were doing the investigating and you think you didn't keep one?

A. Not that I remember—not in my file.

Q. Let's see. During the several days that you were there; in fact you got there on the 8th or the 7th?

A. 7th or the 8th.

Q. And this affidavit was made on the 10th, evidently?

A. According to the telegram, yes, sir.

Q. The second day after you had arrived? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you had gathered the information contained in it during those two or possibly a third day? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, during that time, Minnie told you the name of her father; told you that her father was Thomas Atkins?

A. Yes.

Q. That her mother was Mary Jane Atkins, formerly Davis, didn't she? A. Now, it is all right there.

Q. That is what she told you? A. Yes.

Q. She told you about Kate somebody—Holden?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. A half sister? A. Yes, and Ellen.

Q. Ellen, another half sister? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She recalled the name of her brother Lee who had died in '96, and of Nancy, still living? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, she told you that her father was—that she was about 13 years old when her father died and about 12 years old when her mother died? A. Yes.

Q. She recalled being at Tallahassee when she was about 15 and that she was living with John Davis for one year—1879, and back to Muskogee with John Davis and then went to Carlisle? She remember all of that? A. Yes.

Q. And with a man named Almarine McKellop; that was at school, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. She remembered him; twenty-five of them she mentioned, Betty Crowell—who was Betty Crowell?

A. Betty Crowell was Betty Mann.

Q. Betty Mann. She mentioned Miss Alice Robertson?

A. Now, Mr. German, out of the twenty-five that went with her to Carlisle, she could only remember two names.

Q. Two names? Alright; this Almarine McKellop?

A. And Betty Crowell are the only two names she could remember, and there were twenty-five of them, so she said.

Q. Then she told you she was in Carlisle for two years and she left Carlisle alone and went to George Hyde's—was sent to George Hyde's to——

Q. No, you are reading that wrong, Mr. German.

Q. Am I reading that wrong? George Hyde sent to his sister Mary Hyde, that is what she told you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mary Hyde was the overseer of the girls?

A. Yes.

Q. For an experienced cook from the girls?

A. That means from among the girls.

Q. And Leavenworth—that means he wanted her to be sent to Leavenworth? A. To Leavenworth.

Q. And Miss Hyde picked Minnie out and sent her—what is that word? A. Paid.

Q. Paid her own fare to George Hyde's at Leavenworth?

A. Yes.

Q. She said that she worked two months for Hyde's and quit and went to Fort Leavenworth and was there for four years? A. Yes.

Q. That she worked for Mr. Grodevant for three years?

A. Yes.

Q. He was an overseer of the Military Prison she told you? A. Yes.

Q. Then she told you that she worked for Mr. Lieutenant Stafford for one year? A. Yes.

Q. That he was in the Army? A. Yes.

Q. She told you that her boy was born right after she left Mrs. Stafford's? A. Yes.

Q. Then you figured that it was in '86 or '87. She told you that it was born during the summer and that its father was dead as far as she knew; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That she never after Harvey and Charlie were born about her father—about his father? A. About his father.

Q. Then she told you that it was in the Sisters Hospital where the child was born, didn't she? A. Yes.

Q. That she was in the Hospital one one month?

A. Yes.

Q. And that she went right from the Stafford's to the Hospital?

A. Yes, she also said now—we talked about that yesterday——

Q. Yes, sir?

A. She also made the remark about the boy being born in some house——

Q. Yes? A. And then she changed that.

Q. And went to the Hospital?

A. And went to the Hospital.

Q. Now, that is where you and Mr. Hanford had your little difference in recollection?

A. In recollection in to just how she switched it, Mr. German.

Q. Switched it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your memory was that she said a white house that he was born at and Hanford's was that she said a colored house?

A. No, I don't remember that she said any house, as I remember it now. I have tried very hard to remember just the circumstances and how she said that.

Q. I understood you to testify yesterday——

A. I thought of it since.

Q. That that was your recollection while you and Mr. Hanford differed on it, your impression was that she said that he was born at a white house and Mr. Hanford insisted that it was born at a negro house.

A. Well, I depended absolutely on my notes as put down and things said outside of those notes, I don't remember and I am still hazy on it. I have tried to make myself believe it both ways and argued with myself and can't do it.

Q. Can't succeed? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't write down here anything about her having stated about its being born in a house and then switched?

A. No, because she was very positive about the hospital afterwards.

Q. Then she told you about working for a rich Jew outside of the Post, on a high hill, and that the boy was with her and that she worked there three months?

A. Yes. She couldn't remember the name of the Jew.

Q. No? And then she told you about Mary Hamilton, that Mary had known her at school and at Leavenworth, didn't she?

A. No, I don't recall that she said that Mary had known her in school; she did recall that Mary had known her in Leavenworth and that Mary Hamilton, should know the name of the people with whom this boy was left.

Q. And that Mary Hamilton lived in Denver?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. She told you that she had named Thomas after her father? A. Yes.

Q. And that she couldn't get any wages with the boy on her hands and that Thomas was weaned when she left Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. That she gave the boy away in Leavenworth to a woman; she also mentioned Claude Hamilton's name, and told you that he lived at Fort Logan, and told you that he would remember who received the boy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That she didn't give the boy away but that she simply left him, expecting to go back and get him? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what does part colored mean right there?

A. That means that the person with whom she left the boy was a part colored woman.

Q. Part colored? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That she then went to Fort Logan with the 18th Infantry, 8 years; that is she was there 8 years, and while there one year received a letter to send money to the boy. Did she say whether she sent the money?

A. She said she sent money at one time.

Q. And sent money?

A. Yes. I think that is down there.

Q. And could she remember who it was requested her to send that money? A. No.

Q. Did she say whether that letter contained any statement about the health of her boy?

A. Not at that—not the first letter.

Q. She told you about staying [] Logan from '88 to—or '89 for four years until '93? A. Yes.

Q. She told you about meeting Biff Harrison there?

A. Yes.

Q. And that the two boys that were born there, and Alice, all had the same father, and she told you that Alice died when she was a year old, and she told you that Alice was born at Logan, did she? A. Yes.

Q. Did she tell you where in Logan, Alice was born?

A. If I don't have it down there, she didn't.

Q. Well, you don't have it down here.

Q. Then she told you that Harrison was the father of Harvey and Charlie? A. Yes.

Q. Did she tell you who was the father of Alice?

A. Not that I remember. Don't I say there——

Q. Well, you do put it this way; that she said Harvey—no; two boys born there, and Alice—all same father.

A. Well, then, that is what she said then.

Q. Then, she told you about Lee sending for her to come back; that he was in Muskogee, and that she went back and took the boys with her, and that at that time, Charlie could walk, she recalled that, and that Harvey had to be carried; she told you that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That he was not nursing. Then you noted: "So, about two years old, 1894;" that you went to Lee's in Muskogee but he was not married; she told you that, didn't she?

A. Yes.

Q. And stayed months? A. Yes.

Q. Didn't say how many? A. No.

Q. Visited relatives; to Lee's from Fort Logan?

A. That is Lee.

Q. Lee met me at the train at Muskogee? A. Yes.

Q. She told you that?

A. No, I think that refers to this, that Lee met the train in Muskogee one afternoon.

Q. Oh, yes, Lee met the train.

A. Kate Holder came in and took the boy.

Q. Isn't this in—— Lee met the train at Muskogee, isn't that it? A. Yes.

Q. And that in Muskogee one afternoon, Kate took the boys? A. Yes.

Q. Kate was her half sister; Kate and I had the same father? A. Same father but not the same mother.

Q. She took them home; then——

A. Now, there is a part of that—my deductions, Mr. German, from which the table was made.

Q. Then, you deducted this—you deduced from the various facts that you had? A. Yes.

Q. That he was born in the summer of '87? A. Yes.

Q. That he was weaned in '88 when Minnie left Leavenworth; that she went to Fort Logan, and one year after Alice was born in '89? A. Yes.

Q. Eighteen months after, made Charlie about the first of '91 or the last of '90? A. Yes.

Q. And two years after came Harvey in 1892 or '93? A. Yes.

Q. Then, you substracted here, 1888 from 1893, leaving 5? A. Yes.

Q. So that, you figured from that that Harvey was 5 years younger than Alice? A. Yes, apparently so.

Q. Apparently so? A. Yes.

Q. Now, she told you about being at the 1895 Okmulgee payment and that Thomas was then alive? A. Yes.

Q. The only information, though, that she had had about Thomas prior to that, so far as she told, was the letter in 1889 or '90? A. Yes.

Q. Asking for some money which she sent? A. Yes.

Q. Now, she stated that she visited Lee and Kate and Will Robinson and Cherokee Robinson, didn't she?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in Checotah when—— A. Heard.

Q. Heard that Lee was shot, visiting; she was visiting Annie? A. Aunt Susie.

Q. Susie? Who was that?

A. She couldn't remember her last name; just Aunt Susie.

Q. A distant relative? A. A distant relative.

Q. And after she drew the money it was that she heard about Lee being shot? A. Yes.

Q. And she went back then to Eufaula, and from there she went to Checotah? A. Yes.

Q. Told you all about that. She said Lee was shot in the summer; the payment was in May?

A. She was mistaken about the month.

Q. Yes, because you know the payment was in September? A. Yes.

Q. Lee was shot in the summer; stayed with him six days and nursed him; buried in Eufaula? A. Yes.

Q. Then went to Muskogee one week and visited with Nancy two days and Nancy about this time had the baby girl still born; Nancy's baby——

A. This next notation I believe corrects that. I understood her to say then Nancy had this baby while she was there visiting.

Q. Nancy's baby born before Lee died, when he run billiard hall in Muskogee. This when I was in Logan and Lee told me when I came of the still born child? A. Yes.

Q. She told you that. Then, you wrote down here, payment, May 1895, Lee killed three months, August 1895?

A. Yes.

Q. Those were your deductions? A. Yes.

Q. Then, Minnie told you, went to payment on horseback from Muskogee, hired horse there. Remembers Sam Brown handed me the money. Cornelius Carr—— Now, Cornelius Carr I believe she stated to you was the Clerk at the payment?

A. She said Cornelius Carr had something to do with it, she didn't know what.

Q. I did not get the money direct. She recalled that perfectly? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I find on the back of one sheet, one of these various sheets, I find that on the back of just one of them there is something written? Oh, that is this John Couch matter. Payment 1895; one year in Indian Territory; 1896 started for Denver with John Couch? A. Yes.

Q. One month, finally landed in Fort Logan in latter part 1896 or first part 1897, Seventh Infantry. In Logan with seventh. Was in Cuba fighting fall 1898. Seventh went to Fort Wayne, Michigan, and we joined them there at Detroit?

A. Yes.

Q. Then, here is some more of your deductions?

A. Yes.

Q. This is practically the same as the other. Then, she told you some more, that one month after Lee was killed, July or August '95 she went back to Logan?

A. One months after payment.

Q. Then she told you that from Muskogee to Logan she went with John Couch July or August, '95. One year in Logan; Logan to Detroit with Seventh; Harrison had gone to Arizona; he was a beef contractor of the Post at Fort Logan?

A. Yes.

Q. That then she went to Detroit in 1896; that she cooked there and stayed at Detroit two years, and then to Van Couver Barracks? A. Yes.

Q. That when at Logan the second time she heard from Thomas who was still in Leavenworth. Did she say who gave her the communication?

A. That was another thing she couldn't remember.

Q. Now, she said then that she was in Fort Logan——

A. That is the regiment she was with at the different times. We expected to look up the whereabouts of those regiments.

Q. Then, we will just pass them and go down to the next. That in Fort Logan she was with Mrs. Lieutenant Stafford while the Seventh was in Cuba?

A. No, Lieutenant Wallace. You had the wrong name.

Q. What name did I call? A. You called it Stafford.

Q. I meant Wallace. Heard from Thomas by letter, he was sick. This was in the latter part of '99. Now, I believe you have already explained she couldn't remember who it was wrote her about it? A. Yes.

Q. Wrote letter from Detroit to Wadsworth. What did she write Wadsworth, did she tell you?

A. Yes, sir, she said she wrote Wadsworth as to the enrollment of her children and her own enrollment. She had heard from some one that they were enrolling the Indians.

Q. Did she tell you about authorizing John Holden to enroll them?

A. Not at that time, she didn't mention him to me as I remember.

Q. Then she went from Cuba to Detroit. She told you about being married in 1907, March 13th, to Harry? A. Yes.

Q. Harry Folk? A. Yes.

Q. And in 1908 she was at what island?

A. Philippine Islands.

Q. And that she stayed there five months?

A. Now, those figures there we were very particular about this 1912 date on account of that forged deed which was dated October 1913.

Q. She said then that she was where?

A. Fort Harrison.

Q. Where is that? A. That is at Helena, Montana.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, then she remembered that she worked for Hyde's at Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She remembered that she went out to the Fort from the Hyde's? A. Yes.

Q. And stayed four years? A. Yes.

Q. She remembered that she worked for Stafford, the carpenter? A. Yes.

Q. She remembered—— No, I meant Grodevant, the carpenter? A. Yes.

Q. And she worked for Stafford the Lieutenant?

A. Yes.

Q. And she remembered that she went from the Stafford's to the Hospital and gave birth to the child? A. Yes.

Q. Then, she remembered that she worked for the rich Jew? A. Yes, but not the name.

Q. But not the name. And she remembered that she went to Fort Logan and that she had Alice over there and that Alice died within a year? A. Yes.

Q. And she remembered about this man Mike Harrison?

A. Biff Harrison.

Q. And she remembered about the birth of Charlie and the birth of Harvey? A. Yes.

Q. And their approximate ages? A. Yes.

Q. And about coming to Muskogee to the payment? A. Yes.

Q. But she couldn't recollect the name of the woman with whom she left the child and she oscillated a little bit in where he was born? A. Yes.

Q. She didn't tell you about but one child in Leavenworth?

A. Let me correct you. I used the expression she couldn't or wouldn't?

Q. Couldn't or wouldn't? All right, one or the other. Did she tell you about Mr. Rice who associated with her at the place she went to after she left Fort Logan?

A. Not at that time.

Q. She did later on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were not much interested?

A. Well, I was interested in everything that she did at Fort Logan, but she didn't mention Rice; that came through another party.

Q. She attempted to give you the name of every person with whom she had associated in her life to a sufficient extent to make an impression on her mind?

A. We attempted to get those things from her.

Q. From her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You attempted to do so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Long, don't you know that she gave you the name of Robert Lee Peterkin?

A. I do not, she did not.

Q. She did not? A. No, sir.

Q. And told you that he was the child born to her just after she left the Staffords in the home of a white woman?

A. That is a misstatement on your part, Mr. German, she did not.

Q. She did not? A. Absolutely she did not.

Q. And don't you know that she told you the name of the man who associated with her as her common law husband from Christmas eighty five until in the year 1899?

A. She did not.

Q. His name being Charles Peterkin?

A. She did not. I never heard the name Peterkin until a year or so afterwards.

Q. Don't you know that she told you that Alice was the child of Charles Peterkin, and that Charles Peterkin was living with her when Alice was born? A. She did not.

Q. Don't you know, sir, that she told you that she went under the name Peterkin? A. She did not.

Q. For several years? A. She did not.

Q. And that this child of hers that was born after she left Staffords was born as a child of Peterkin?

A. She did not.

Q. And that it died when it was a few weeks old?

A. She did not.

Q. You say those things——

A. I say I never heard the name of Peterkin until Mr. Hanford went to see him sometime afterward.

Q. She did tell you the name of John Couch?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was with her just a month?

A. And Biff Harrison.

Q. And Biff Harrisom, who was her common law husband at Fort Logan for a few years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She gave you the name of Mary Hamilton? A. Yes.

Q. And she said Mary would know who took the child at Fort Leavenworth? A. Yes, and Claude Hamilton.

Q. She gave you the name of the Hyde's, for whom she worked three months?

A. Yes, and the name of Grodevant, and the name of Stafford, but she did not mention the name of Peterkin. Had she done so it would have been written down.

Q. You wrote down everything she told you?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Yes, sir. Now, you came back then from there to Kansas City? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And met Hanford and Minnie in Kansas City?

A. Yes, they came in on the Burlington and I came in on the Union Pacific.

Q. Where did you stop in Kansas City?

A. We didn't stop. We came right through, through to Tulsa.

Q. Took Minnie to Tulsa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What day did you get there?

A. I couldn't tell you what time, during the month of July, 1914.

Q. Where did you take Minnie when you got there?

A. I think that the first day Minnie and Mr. Hanford went to the Oklahoma Hotel.

Q. What hotel? A. The Oklahoma Hotel.

Q. And registered? A. I presume so.

Q. Now, how long after that was it until Minnie testified at Sapulpa? A. A day or so, or two or three days.

Q. She testified on about the 21st of July at Sapulpa?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you talk with Minnie any between the time she came to Tulsa and the time she testified at Sapulpa?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you go down to Sapulpa when she testified?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You heard her testify? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, let's see a minute. When you got to Kansas City you or Hanford, or both of you, went over to Leavenworth, didn't you?

A. Not at that time. We got in Kansas City in the evening and went down on the Frisco.

Q. You found out there in Tulsa before Minnie testified that Mr. Josey and Rogers had gone to Kansas City and checked up those records of the hospital?

A. No, they hadn't been to the hospital at the time.

Q. They hadn't?

A. No, sir, Mr. Josey and Rogers had been in Kansas City, I stated yesterday I thought they went up before I went east, but I looked up the payment of expenses to Rogers and the first trip he made was in July.

Q. Tell the Court what investigation you made between the time you reached home from that second Seattle trip and the time that Minnie testified?

A. Personally I made none.

Q. Did you have anybody else make any?

A. No, sir.

Q. And Minnie went on the stand at Sapulpa and testified, how many times did she break down?

A. Well, I think perhaps once; I don't remember, once or twice, I believe only once.

Q. She testified there that she came from Carlisle school to Leavenworth and worked for Hyde's about five or six months; then went to Stafford's house at the fort and worked about a year?

A. I believe she testified there substantially along the line of these notes.

Q. And that she was carrying Robert Lee at the Staffords and went to the Sister's hospital and gave birth?

A. Very likely that is true.

Q. You mean carried Thomas?

A. Yes, I hadn't heard of Robert Lee Peterkin at that time.

Q. And she said she just had one child born to her in Leavenworth in that testimony substantially? A. Yes.

Q. Now, she told there about Alice, and Harvey and

Charlie having been born to her, and she told about Harrison I believe?

A. I can't answer questions as to what she testified to.

Q. She told her story?

A. My impression it was what was in that affidavit.

Q. The check was paid I believe about the 15th, it seems to have been presented on the 10th?

A. No, Mr. German, if you are going into that check, you are all wrong about that and I will explain that to you.

Q. All right. I will give you an opportunity directly. Now Mr. Long after Minnie testified what work did you do on this case?

A. If I remember rightly, the testimony was on Saturday, I believe it was. Anyway, we went to Leavenworth that night.

Q. Yes, sir. A. With a letter to Father Heiring.

Q. You had had a little talk before you left for Leavenworth with Rogers, hadn't you?

A. No, sir, not that I remember.

Q. Don't you remember about Rogers saying something to you about letting Minnie tell that lie on the witness stand?

A. No, I didn't talk to Rogers. Rogers and Mr. Josey made the trip up there. I went to Leavenworth on Sunday, the Sunday following her testimony, and I believe her testimony was on Saturday, and went to the Sister's Hospital and looked over the—— Well, the first thing I discovered at the hospital was that maternity cases were not taken at the hospital until sometime after 1890. I thought that was rather queer, and then I asked to see all the records for 1885, 1886, '87 and '88. I went through those records very thoroughly and I couldn't find that Minnie Atkins had ever been there. And I came back and so reported to Mr. Hanford and Mr. Rice and Mr. Lyons and Page and Josey, that I couldn't find any Minnie Atkins at the Hospital at all. And I went over to the Cushing Hospital and there was no Minnie Atkins there. That was the extent of my investigation.

Q. Then, how long after that until Mr. Hanford went up there?

A. Well, Mr. Hanford and Minnie went up there the next day or so.

Q. Did you go with them? A. No, sir.

Q. Where were you while they went up there?

A. I was working at the office at home.

Q. Then, did Mr. Hanford and Minnie return from there?

A. No, I don't think that they did. I think that Minnie went directly back to Seattle and Mr. Hanford went East to see Peterkin.

Q. Went to Boston? A. Well, yes.

Q. To see Peterkin?

A. Because they discovered the name Peterkin, possibly that I didn't know anything about. I never heard the name.

Q. Did Hanford tell you about that name flying up and hitting him in the face?

A. Well, he called us up over the telephone I believe. He may have come down to Tulsa before he went east.

Q. Then he went east and while he was gone what did you do? A. I was at the office at home.

Q. What investigation were you making while he was gone east? A. None whatever.

Q. About when did he get back?

A. He was gone perhaps a week. I wouldn't say.

Q. He come back then sometime the early part of August?

A. I presume it would be.

Q. Then, what did you next do on the case?

A. The next step on the case was when Sadie James came into our office. Mr. Hanford, I think, was in Leavenworth in the meantime.

Q. And he was reporting what he had found?

A. He was reporting to Rice and Lyons what he had found. At that time I was pretty busy on some other matters. We had quite a few leases pending and was drilling this lease, and I was very busy. And Mr. Hanford, we left all of that to him at that time.

Q. And was Minnie a witness, what other witnesses did you have at that time?

A. Witnesses as to what, Mr. German?

Q. Anything relating to that case?

A. We had no witnesses. Do you refer to that?

Q. Up to the time Sadie came in?

A. The only witnesses that we had were those that testified at Sapulpa.

Q. That was Sam Brown and Ben Marshal? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They lived here in Oklahoma? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They were Indians and were on the question as to identification? A. Yes, sir, as to identification.

Q. So, Sadie then came in one day?

A. Yes, that was in the month of August.

Q. Yes, sir, and you were not looking for her? A. No.

Q. During the—— Do you know, between the time you had found Minnie and the time Sadie came in, Betty was still around?

A. Yes, Betty was going in and out and talking with everybody that would talk to her. But I am not real sure that Betty didn't go to Leavenworth with Mr. Hanford, I can't say positive as to that.

Q. Anyhow, they hadn't reported any witnesses?

A. Oh, no.

Q. That you recall? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you also knew that Bartlett had been hunting for a living Thomas?

A. Yes, we had reports of that continuously that Bartlett was scouring the country for this allottee.

Q. And you knew that others were looking for a living Thomas, didn't you?

A. No, I don't believe so, I don't know of any others at that time that we knew was looking for this allottee other than Mr. Bartlett.

Q. When Hanford returned from Boston, where he had been to see Peterkin, he reported I suppose what Peterkin said? A. Yes.

Q. And you learned about Robert Lee?

A. No, Mr. Hanford reported that Peterkin had told, as I remember, that Minnie had a girl in Leavenworth, but didn't make any report about Robert Lee Peterkin. The first intimation I had of that name was just prior to the Receivership.

Q. Well, don't you remember Mr. Page got after Hanford considerable over the result of his work with Peterkin?

A. No.

Q. You didn't know it happened? A. No.

Q. Well, Sadie came in?

A. I do remember Mr. Josey was in the east at the time and we wired him we thought he ought to go to see Peterkin. But Mr. Hanford went down. Mr. Josey was in New York City. I think probably he saw Mr. Josey in New York on his way back.

Q. Now, Sadie came in the office and you were not looking for her—— Well, what was the conversation?

A. Well, that conversation is pretty hard to relate a conversation, Mr. German.

Q. Well, in substance?

A. The substance of it was this: She said that she had been all over the country with Bartlett and in his employ looking for this allottee; that they had made thorough investigation and hadn't been able to find him and they were through; Bartlett and she had quit.

Q. Go ahead.

A. And that she was no longer in Bartlett's employ and that while working for him she had discovered a great many facts about Thomas; that she knew where he was born; that she knew all about his life and when he died and where he died and where he was buried. Well, I hadn't had very much to do on the matter for sometime and that was very interesting information. And I took her around through the hall to Mr. Page's office. Called Mr. Page to the railing and told Mr. Page who that was—— By the way, that is the first time I had ever talked to her since that Sunday in Seattle. Told Mr. Page who she was and related to Mr. Page what she told me.

Q. She had told you of her trip?

A. No, except she had been all over the country, she didn't give me any details.

Q. Did she give you any definite information about Thomas? A. Not at that time, no.

Q. All right?

A. And then the agreement was made that we would talk the matter over with her out at the park that night.

Q. You introduced her you say, you had Mr. Page become acquainted with her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how long did you talk with her?

A. Oh, just long enough for me to repeat what she had said to me and the arrangements that she was to come out to the park that evening about eight o'clock.

Q. All right, she went to the park that night?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As you related yesterday on the witness stand?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And met her out there, and at the park who talked with her first at the park, you or Mr. Page? A. I did.

Q. Very long?

A. Just long enough to meet the car that she stepped off of and on through the park with her up to where Mr. Page was, where I had left him.

Q. You didn't talk with her about the case though?

A. Not after we met Mr. Page.

Q. And then you talked about the case? A. Yes.

Q. What did she say in the conversation?

A. She repeated——

Q. Substantially?

A. She repeated what Sadie said in the office that morning.

Q. Well, relate that conversation, will you, as best you can.

The Court: Well, now, will any good purpose be accomplished——

Mr. German: Well, I will leave that off, then.

The Court: I am willing, Mr. German, now—you are going over the whole matter yesterday; I am permitting that, because I believe you conceive that some good purpose will be served, but if a good deal of that can be * * *

Mr. German: Yes, sir, I will. * * * *

Q. Well, did she tell you what information she had about the boy? A. No, sir, only that she had information.

Q. That is as far as she went?

A. Yes, I think she knew the people who knew all about it; she had seen them and talked to them.

Q. She called their names?

A. Not in that conversation; no names were mentioned.

Q. Did she mention Rube as being the father, didn't she?

A. Not in that conversation.

Q. Well, was that, the next morning or in the office?

A. No, sir, not until we were in Leavenworth. Yes, I believe she did. That was the next morning in the office at the time that the contract was signed.

Q. About Rube Smith being the father?

A. Yes, I refreshed my memory about that because I wrote a letter to Mr. Josey about it at that time.

Q. Have you that letter? A. I think so.

Q. Let me see it. A. I haven't it with me.

Q. If you are still on the stand at noon, will you try to get it? A. I will try to get it.

The Court: He will be required to get it whether he remains on the stand or not; so it will not be necessary to keep him on the stand for that purpose.

Mr. German: Yes, your Honor.

A. I have it, I am very sure, and I will bring it over for you to see.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, the contract is the contract introduced in evidence here, which contains the check for a thousand dollars in an envelope? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You typewrote that on the typewriter, yourself, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Out there in the park, let's recur to that, quite a little shower came up, didn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And Will James, Sadie's husband was out there?

A. Well, I didn't know him by name but Sadie's husband was there.

Q. A large black negro? A. Yes.

A. In the office, Hanford showed up in the office, didn't he, on the day the contract was signed? A. Yes.

Q. And Sadie met him? A. Yes.

Q. And they were not feeling very kindly toward each other?

A. Well, now, just a moment—yes, I believe Mr. Hanford came into the office while the contract was being written, while I was writing it on the machine.

Q. Did you bring Sadie and Hanford together on that occasion? A. Yes.

Q. Did you encounter any difficulty? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, Sadie expressed some displeasure?

A. Not that I saw.

Q. In coming in contact with him? A. Not that I saw.

Q. Didn't hear it? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't somebody speak about their differences?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. They held a conversation there?

A. They did. Sadie was in there, sitting in one room, while I wrote that contract, or rather that little agreement on the envelope and while I took it upstairs to Mr. Rice to get his approval on it. That probably took thirty or forty minutes.

Q. You learned the name of the woman with whom Minnie had left the boy from Sadie, didn't you?

A. Yes—no, I don't believe I learned it from Sadie Mr. German; I believe I learned that first from Rube Smith.

Q. From Rube?

A. Yes. Now, I won't answer your question positively there because I don't remember but I learned it from either one of the other.

Q. Either one or the other and about that time?

A. Yes, sir; well, that day in Leavenworth.

Q. Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you also learned from Sadie or Rube, one or the other where the child was born? A. Yes.

Q. That it was born at Molly Letcher's? A. Yes.

Q. On Seneca Street? A. Yes.

Q. Did you telegraph Minnie or not? A. No.

Q. You didn't wire her? She at that time was back at Seattle? A. Back at Seattle.

Q. Now, as soon as you closed up this contract with Sadie, you became active in searching for proof? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to that you had been very busy?

A. No, I became active in seeing the people she was telling me about—well, yes; active, yes.

Q. That is correct?

A. Yes, I was in search of proof.

Q. You went with Sadie—no, you didn't go with her to Leavenworth, but you and she both went to Leavenworth?

A. Yes.

Q. She went by Coffeyville, didn't she?

A. I don't know how she went.

Q. Did you go to Coffeyville?

A. No, she went direct—straight through, because we left that night and I saw her in Leavenworth the next day; she couldn't have gone by Coffeyville.

Q. You saw her in Leavenworth the next day? A. Yes.

Q. This Coffeyville trip was on another occasion?

A. I don't recall—yes, yes.

Q. Where was Mr. Hanford while you and Sadie were on this trip to Leavenworth?

A. I don't remember just where Mr. Hanford was on that trip. It seems to me that he came up there with Betty Mann, I am very sure he did the next day or so.

Q. The next day or so? A. Yes.

Q. Wasn't it planned that he was to go with Betty and you with Sadie?

A. He was to go with Betty and I was to be with Sadie and we were to check one against the other for fear of misrepresentation or something of that kind.

Q. You didn't trust them? A. We did not.

Q. You didn't trust them?

A. No, sir, neither one of them.

Q. You didn't trust Sadie nor Betty and neither did he?

A. No, sir.

Q. And you wanted to know that their representations would jibe?

A. We wanted to see whether there was any collusion.

Q. Yes? Betty claimed that she could produce some witnesses there too?

A. Well, I didn't talk to Betty, I don't know what she——

Q. You didn't talk to Betty? A. No.

Q. You wanted to see if their work would be in unison?

A. Yes; well we wanted to check one against the other—that is the way we expressed it.

Q. Hanford went to Kansas City with Betty, and in a day or so—now, Sadie had gone to Leavenworth, and he and Betty came over to Leavenworth from Kansas City?

A. Well, I didn't see him over there at all; I think he came over after I left—yes, I saw him at Leavenworth.

Q. Now, prior to the time that you saw Hanford at Leavenworth and prior to the time that you saw Betty there, and on the day that [] and Betty got there, you went with Sadie to Martha Smith's, didn't you first?

A. I went down to Martha Smith's to see her that day.

Q. That day? A. Yes.

Q. How came you to go to Martha's?

A. I was telephoned from the National hotel where I was waiting to hear from her.

Q. Waiting to hear from Sadie?

A. Yes. And then I saw Sadie and some other colored girl on the street there and they told me, that is where I got my information—they told me where to go—where I could see Sadie, and subsequently there was a telephone message—I was in a hurry to get through with it—that she had seen certain people and for me to come down there and that was in the evening.

Q. And when you went down to Martha's, you saw Rube?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. No, you didn't see Rube then; you didn't see Rube until after you came over to Kate Logans, did you?

A. I don't believe so, Mr. German.

Q. And you talked to Martha?

A. No, I didn't talk to Martha; I talked to Sadie. Sadie had been drinking and Sadie wasn't in any condition to talk, and I told her that I would see her the next day.

Q. Wasn't it in the evening that she did the drinking?

A. No, Sadie was drinking right then and I didn't go in to the house; I didn't like to looks of the place very much—it is back there in an alley and I got away from there as quick as I could.

Q. You went over to the Letcher place and looked around, and met Crilley?

A. No, I didn't go around there until after I had seen Rube Smith.

Q. It must have been that you saw Rube at Martha Smith's?

A. No, I believe this—yes, Rube came up to the hotel that afternoon, after I had been down to see Sadie. I don't believe Sadie was present when I first saw him but he told me who he was and she had told me about him, and he and I had quite a long conversation, and it was after that conversation—that conversation was pretty late in the evening. I didn't do any more that evening. It was the next morning after I talked with Rube Smith and found Seneca street.

Q. You looked at the locality where it used to be—where the lumber yard was——

A. He explained all that to me.

Q. And it was then that you met Crilley at his barn?

A. Yes.

Q. Found out that he and your mother were old schoolmates?

A. No, not Crilley and my mother; Crilley and my family were old friends. Crilley left my home years and years ago but I recognized Crilley by his brother James Crilley, who I had known very well as a boy, and they looked very much alike.

Q. Then you went pursuant to an engagement, down to Kate Logan's? A. Yes.

Q. Sadie had been down there and came back and told you that Kate was there? A. Yes.

Q. And at Kate's—Sadie was at Kate's? A. Yes.

Q. And you talked to Kate, and while you were there Albert Smith came in, didn't he—the son of Rube?

A. Well, now, I don't know what his name is, but Rube's son and Doctor Jackson also came in; Doctor Jackson was there during the entire conversation and admonished me several times not to worry the old lady too much as she was very sick.

Q. Now, this is a different Kate Logan from the one down in Indian Territory, the half sister of Minnie's?

A. There wasn't any Kate Logan the half sister of Minnie's in Indian Territory, that was Kate Holden.

A. Kate Holden? A. Yes.

Q. Oh yes. Now, while you were at Kate's, Rube came in, I think you stated yesterday?

A. Yes, either came in or was there when I got there.

Q. And you talked with him a little? A. Yes.

Q. Now, when was it you made your contract with Rube?

A. The evening before.

Q. And you were to pay him five dollars a day when he worked? A. Yes.

Q. And his expenses? A. Yes.

Q. And five hundred if you won the case?

A. Yes, sir, that was a verbal agreement; never was in writing.

A. Did Sadie take you to anyone else on that trip?

A. I am unable to remember whether Sadie took me to William Parker or not; I procured an affidavit from William Parker on that trip.

Q. He is a colored man?

A. Yes, and I am unable to remember whether Sadie took me to him or whether Rube Smith did.

Q. But you did not meet Dennis Jones on that trip?

A No, sir, Dennis Jones at that time was away in the employ of the Gypsy Oil Company, looking for Thomas Atkins.

Q. Looking for a live Thomas; he was hunting for a Thomas on the theory that Thomas was alive?

A. Well, I don't like to put it in your way, Mr. German—

The Court: Well, this man only knows what the Court knows; let's not go into that.

Mr. German: Alright, sir.

Q. Along the third day after you were there, Betty came?

A. Well, now she came.

A. And Hanford?

A. Yes. It may have been the second day.

Q. What did Betty do?

A. I don't know; I had nothing to do with Betty at all; I didn't talk to her.

Q. How long were you there on that trip?

A. Not to exceed three or four days; two or three days.

Q. Hanford and you returned together back to Tulsa?

A. Hanford and I then sat down after—when I first saw him, I told him what I had learned, and we congratulated ourselves that we had at last learned the place where this boy was born and the colored woman that Minnie had left it with and we both suggested that Hanford should immediately go to seattle to see Minnie.

Q. To see Minnie?

A. And to put these facts up to her.

A. And he went?

A. Yes, sir; now, I don't know how soon after he went but I remember—I know he went.

Q. What did you do next thing in the case?

A. I don't think I did anything until we heard from Hanford.

Q. You went back to Tulsa? A. Yes, I believe so.

Q. Where did Sadie go? A. I can't tell you.

Q. Did she make reports to you of her work? A. No, sir.

Q. What was Sadie employed to []?

A. Sadie was employed to locate these witnesses and put us in touch with them and give us all this information and we had hopes that she would be of great value to us but when I learned—I learned what she intended to do at one time, I quit Sadie.

Q. I understand; that is later on? A. Yes.

Q. Let's stay back here in August for the present.

A. That, I think, was in September.

Q. That was in September that this other occurred?

A. Yes.

Q. About when was it and by what means did you hear from Hanford when he went back to Seattle? A. By letter.

Q. Have you the letter?

A. I don't know; I haven't looked for that letter.

Q. Will you look for it?

A. Yes, sir. Now, that correspondence, Mr. German, again was between Mr. Hanford and our people—was between Mr. Hanford and Rice & Lyons, the attorneys and I don't believe that I have that letter. Now, it may be in the files; I will make a search for it; I haven't seen it but nevertheless I can tell you, that Mr. Hanford said that Minnie admitted that these were the facts and true facts, but all that correspondence was as between, I think, Mr. Hanford and Rice & Lyons.

Q. Did Mr. Hanford in that communication—you say he had been to see Peterkin? A. Yes.

Q. Did he give you any explanation after he talked with Minnie, about what Minnie said about Peterkin's story?

A. No, that letter, that correspondence then was very brief for the reason that Hanford immediately stated back with Minnie.

Q. Started back this way? A. Yes.

Q. Where did he bring her to? A. Kansas City?

Q. You met him there? A. I did.

Q. Had you interviewed any witnesses in the interim?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who? A. I interviewed Sam Nash and——

Q. Now, will go to the other correspondence that you offered yesterday——

Mr. Stuart: Let him tell that.

A. Interviewed Mr. Crilley, the first man that I talked to and he and I then interviewed probably a hundred people. Then with Mr. Crilley I saw Sam Nash, Sam Parker, and Louis Brown at that time, and I saw, I remember one other fellow named Collins, and I believe that I saw Annie Wills and William Grape at that time; but I had seen them and then I went to Kansas City and after two or three days' search, found Walter Banks and saw him.

Q. That is when you took Sam over there with you?

A. That is when I took Sam over there with me because Sam's recollection and Walter's were very close together at that time and I was particularly interested in when they last heard of Tommy Atkins, or Tommy they called him.

Q. You learned this too, didn't you, that Sam and Walter were the only two persons living who grew up in that Letcher family?

A. Yes, in that house, that the other members of the family were all dead. Then when I had the statement of Sam, I took Sam's statement and Walter's statement, and as I said in that letter, I wanted to get them together and see how they would check up with the conversation.

Q. Now, in this letter of September 12th, written at Leavenworth, not addressed to anybody but signed by you?

A. That is the same practice followed in that letter as all the correspondence.

Q. You stated that you took Sam Nash to Kansas City this evening and spent with Walter Banks; that is the two boys reared by old lady Letcher, who called each other brothers, you mean? A. Yes.

Q. They had not been together for more than two years; each refreshed the other's memory about many instances when Tommy was a kid. The result of the conversation was the fixing of the time when Tommy was taken away in the spring or summer of '97; that a mixed-blood woman came to the Letcher's and gave the old lady twenty dollars and said she was going to take Tommy to his mother. First, Tommy would have [] 11 years of age in 1897. Second, Hamilton told Mr. Page's attorneys the boy was 13 years old when he saw him in Denver. What was your information about Hamilton seeing the boy in Denver?

A. Now, you are opening up a new avenue now, and I will tell you about it.

Q. Alright.

A. You remember I didn't stop in Denver on my way home because they wanted to come straight through with Mr. Hanford and Minnie. After we got back to Tulsa, we wired Mr. Mannox who represented Mr. Page in Denver to see Hamilton and find out from Hamilton all he could about a Thomas Atkins who was the son of Minnie, and Hamilton was supposed to know something about it. Mr. Mannox saw Mr. Hamilton and wired us that Hamilton said he knew all about Thomas Atkins and that he saw him in Denver when he was 13 or 14 years old and that he was going west; that was the substance of that message.

Q. Now, third, Collins said he saw him in Denver in 1897; who was Collins?

A. Collins was the man that Smith took me to up there, a negro, that I afterwards learned—that was kind of half-witted, or demented; he sold hot weinies, or as they called them, hot dogs on the street, and he had a long dream about this boy; he knew all about his birth and his existence in Leavenworth and he told me all about having seen him in Denver, and related certain instances of having seen him there and so forth.

Q. Now, that boy—isn't that boy—that is the boy called Arty Price?

A. Well, I never heard of Arty Price at that time.

Q. You did later?

A. Yes, I don't know now that that was the boy because Collins was so irresponsible and I didn't return to him and I never saw him—saw Hamilton myself.

Q. You learned afterwards that Artie Price was raised partly by Granny?

A. Yes, we tried to find Arty Price and learned he was dead.

Q. And also learned that he had gone to Denver?

A. That is where he died; he would have been a valuable witness—and we tried to find him.

Q. You learned that he went out to Denver and died there?

A. That is our information, that he died in Denver.

Q. Fourth, Walter and Sam say he was taken from Letcher's in 1897; then you presumed unless Sadie locates new information, I will see her early in the morning, it looks like Denver was our next move, going after this boy.

A. Yes, at that time—you remember Mr. German, the Gypsy Oil Company and Bartlett and Dennis Jones were combing the world for Thomas Atkins and if he were alive we wanted to find him too.

Q. Then, you say you found a good white man witness who knows all about the birth and rearing of the boy. Who was that?

A. I don't remember; I think that was William Grape.

Q. Is he a white man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. William Grape is?

A. Yes, sir, I can't remember that it was him; it might be and it might not.

Q. The expression good white man witness, you mean——

A. Mean of good character.

Q. Mean of good character? A. Yes.

Q. How come you to think that about William Grape?

A. Well, I didn't know anything about his character.

Q. Didn't know he was a pretty tough character?

A. No, sir. I had no way of knowing. I was a stranger in Leavenworth.

Q. Then, the only source as to his character was the witness himself? A. That was all.

Q. Now, regarding this telegram, sent you there in the early part of September—September 12th—I mean recurring to this check, I call your attention to the fact that it is stamped on the back—there is a stamp of the National Bank of Commerce——

A. Mr. German, I beg your pardon, you don't know anything about this at all; I will be very glad to explain it.

Q. No, I will be glad for you to explain it.

A. About the date of this check, Mr. Hanford and Mr. Josey and probably Mr. Page can tell more about this than I can, and you should ask them.

Q. Your knowledge is not first-hand?

A. No, my knowledge is not first-hand. That check was not paid, I know that, and another payment was subsequently made. I don't know a great deal about that check except what I was told.

Q. That is you do know the cash was not had on that check prior to the time Minnie Atkins testified at Sapulpa?

A. Yes.

Q. You know that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, on September 15th, this other note, this note of September 12th, and it was written from Leavenworth along about that time, and prior to that time that Minnie reached Kansas City with Hanford from Seattle, you had met Dennis Jones?

A. No, I don't think so—— Oh, yes, yes. I had met Dennis Jones.

Q. Sadie had introduced you?

A. And the Dennis Jones contract had been made.

Q. How did you meet Dennis?

A. I think I went down to his office, I don't remember the exact circumstances; I know I met him and I know I met him through Sadie James, but whether it was on the street or at his office or how, I couldn't tell you.

Q. At that time he told you he wanted to see Mr. Page?

A. No, he didn't mention Mr. Page.

Q. Well, to see the company?

A. He wanted to see the Company and our attorneys.

Q. Before he would contract? A. Yes.

Q. Did he show you the letter he had from the Gypsy?

A. No, he told me he had a letter from the Gypsy telling him his services had been satisfactory but that they didn't want to pursue the inquiry any further. I never have seen those letters.

Q. Did he tell you what his information was about Thomas?

A. Yes, he said he had traced him around different places in Washington and some place else, New York perhaps, and he believed he was dead and he believed if he was permitted to go on further with the inquiry, take it up where the Gypsy left off, that he could run it down and find him.

Q. Well, you returned to Tulsa of course, because on September 15th Dennis telegraphed you from Leavenworth to Tulsa? A. Yes.

Q. And he stated to you that he had a divorce case to try and that he had the motion docket coming on and that he couldn't come down until Monday? A. Yes.

Q. And on the 16th you telegraphed you would expect him Tuesday morning? A. Yes.

Q. Then, on the 18th the Gem Oil Company sent the telegram to Sadie at Leavenworth, stating to her that unless you have something of importance on would like to see you in Tulsa tomorrow morning. Wire answer immediately. You recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what day of the week would the next day be?

A. Well, I don't remember the days, Mr. German, but here is Jones telegram September 16th. I would have to figure that out, I don't know what that would be. I know I went back to Leavenworth the same night that Jones went back and Sadie James went back.

Q. September 18th was Friday, wasn't it (handing calendar to witness)? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you desired then to see Sadie James Saturday morning? A. Yes.

Q. And Dennis was to come the next Tuesday morning?

A. No, let's get the dates right. I don't remember those dates. September 16th was Friday. Dennis was to come on the next Tuesday morning which would be the 18th.

Q. September 16th was Wednesday, wasn't it? Look at the calendar again and see.

A. Yes, September 15th was Tuesday and the 16th was Wednesday. Then the following day, September 16th, was Wednesday. Then, I wired him "we will expect you in Tulsa tomorrow morning" September 22nd, that was later on.

Q. But on Friday, the 18th, you wanted Sadie to come the next morning unless she had something of importance on?

A. Yes, I was back in Leavenworth at that time.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, the trip that Sadie took over to Pilot Knob and the trip that she took to Mattern?

A. Weldon, Missouri.

Q. Was taken by her before the occasion we are now talking about, wasn't it?

A. Well, now, the dates, you had Mr. Cranston's livery bill that I paid, that date will show.

Q. On the 19th, Saturday, you wired Sadie again to postpone coming? A. Those telegrams were sent by the Company.

Q. Oh, I thought you knew about them?

A. I knew about them, I asked that they send them.

Q. Then, on the same day, the 19th, you received a telegram from Sadie James, "Got back from the country. Will be there in the morning"? A. Yes.

Q. That 19th was Saturday? A. Yes.

Q. Then, on the 21st, which was Monday, you had a telegram from Dennis Jones saying, "Will be there Tuesday morning by Sante Fe"? A. Yes.

Q. And on the same day, the 21st, you wired Jones, "Expect you tomorrow. Answer immediately." So, evidently the last one was sent before the one he sent? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Dennis came and who all came to your office on that occasion? A. Sadie.

Q. Sadie and Dennis? A. Yes.

Q. And you talked with Dennis?

A. Well, I talked with Dennis only briefly. I took them in Mr. Rice's office, and then he and Mr. Rice had an extended conversation.

Q. Dennis understood the nature of the case. He was a lawyer and was being employed because he was a lawyer?

A. Yes, but as to what he understood I couldn't say.

Q. Wasn't it explained to him?

A. I presume so, but not in my presence.

Q. Didn't he look over the transcript taken at Sapulpa in July? A. Not that I know of.

Q. What representations did he make there that you know about?

A. Practically the same representations that had been made to me in our short conversation at Leavenworth. That he had a line of information that could be run down as to the death of Thomas Atkins. We were perfectly satisfied as to his birth and to his existence.

Q. Why did you contract with him then to furnish evidence on the birth, life, and death?

A. Because we expected to at that time prove in the state case all those facts. We hadn't taken any depositions.

Q. You didn't employ him to find evidence on the birth, life and death merely because you were going to take depositions?

A. We wanted all the witnesses we could get as to the birth, life, and death.

Q. So he was employed to find evidence on all three of those subjects? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you present when his contract was drawn?

A. No, I don't believe I was. I think I went back down stairs to our own office.

Q. After he was employed he went on back to Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I call your attention, since Judge Allen has produced it, that this testimony, that in his testimony Mr. Cranston mentions, "Under date of September 12th, 1914, Frank B. Long of Tulsa, Oklahoma." He is reading from his statement, "Time out 2:30, time returned 6:30. Name of horse Madge, buggy." And then remarks, "Gem Oil Company, amount $2.00." That Gem Oil Company is in that—probably.

The Court: What is the date?

A. September 12th. If that is his testimony that is the date, but I have no independent recollection of it.

Q. It was a day or two after that that Sadie wanted to go to Kansas City to prove the death there?

A. Sometime after.

Q. And stated if you would give her money enough she could prove it? A. Yes.

Q. At Kansas City? A. Yes.

Q. And that didn't suit you? A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Long, isn't it a fact that at that time you believed that you had a line on Tommy in Denver and therefore that you didn't want him proven dead at Kansas City?

A. Why, no, Mr. German, if we had had a line on him in Denver we would have gone after him. It was about that time she said she could prove him dead in Kansas City and I commenced to get afraid of her.

Q. That was just a little bold?

A. That was a little too bold and I didn't want any work of that character done and I told her. I tried very hard to keep away from that. I ran into a great many snags in this investigation, a great many offers and I tried to steer clear of them; and for that reason I wanted to get rid of her and I did; I had no more dealings with her after that personally.

Q. When you found out the name of the house where Tommy was born and where he was reared, you and Mr. Hanford introduced several witnesses without communicating with Minnie to verify?

A. Well, we interviewed these witnesses so Mr. Hanford could familiarize himself.

Q. And then go back and talk to Minnie? A. Yes.

Q. After Dennis was employed, what was the next thing you did?

A. I went back to Kansas City with Dennis, or rather to Leavenworth.

Q. And about how long after that was it until Hanford came with Minnie? A. Oh, very shortly.

Q. Did you advise Hanford that you had employed Dennis?

A. Well, I couldn't say, I am pretty sure I did, naturally that would be done, I can't remember that I did or did not; I know that would have been a natural thing for me to have done.

Q. At that time, were you planning to take depositions?

A. That was our intention.

Q. And you went back to Leavenworth and you did some more work?

A. I went back to Leavenworth one day with Minnie and we drove around and saw several people.

Q. Do you remember the date when you made that drive?

A. No, but it was the day after Mr. Hanford and Minnie arrived in Kansas City. They left Kansas City on the Burlington in the evening and we went over the next morning.

Q. You say when you took Minnie there to Leavenworth, you took her to several persons? A. Yes.

Q. And you took her to Crilly and she recognized Crilly and Crilly recognized her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Crilly say you have grown considerably in height, Minnie?

A. Well, now, I don't remember, he may have and he may not. The one point I remember about their conversation was, she said: "Why, they used to call you the parson, didn't they?" That is distinct in my mind; those other things I can't attempt to recall.

Q. Did Minnie say, "Crilly how long since you have seen my boy?" A. No.

Q. She didn't ask that question?

A. No. She said: "Hello, Crilly"; I remember she must have known him because she dropped the mister. No, the boy wasn't mentioned.

Q. Dennis you think was the next person?

A. That is my best recollection, Mr. German.

Q. And he recognized her but she didn't recognize him?

A. Yes.

Q. Where was it that you had Dennis and Minnie to meet?

A. We drove down in front of Dennis' office and Dennis came down stairs and Minnie sat in the car. Minnie didn't get out of the car at any of those places we went around to.

Q. Crilly was driving you around? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, you say you took her to Mary Smith?

A. Yes, that day, but whether that is the next one coming in the order.

Q. And Mary didn't know Minnie?

A. Well, she wasn't positive; she knew her and she didn't know her.

Q. But Minnie recognized Mary? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you told her that you were then going to take her to Annie Wills? A. Yes.

Q. And you did and she recognized Minnie? A. Yes.

Q. And Minnie recognized her? A. Yes.

Q. Then, you told her, I am going to take you to Rube Smith, and that she recognized Rube promptly?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Very promptly? A. Yes.

Q. And she and Rube talked about when Tommy was begotten in your presence? A. No.

Q. I suppose Rube wasn't the father then?

A. Well, Rube never claimed to me to be the father. He claimed he might have been; now, that was the assertion made to me. Sadie James claimed that he was, but he never did say that he was. He said that he might have been and I dropped that because I didn't think he was the father, so I didn't care much.

Q. So, you took her to Ed Murphy that day? A. Yes.

Q. And she recognized him and he recognized her?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The time you were going to William Grape out at the Soldier's Home—— A. No, out toward the Post.

Q. She said: "Now, Bill Grape, don't you tell all you know"? A. Yes, she shouted that at him.

Q. Minnie had gotten to feeling pretty good?

A. Well, I don't know.

Q. All of these people recognizing her?

A. She made that remark.

Q. Things were clearing up? A. She made that remark.

Q. What else did she say?

A. That was about all that conversation I remember, that was about three years ago. I was in quite a big hurry that day and we didn't go into details.

Q. What day were you to take depositions after that?

A. The records will show.

Q. You began taking depositions on the 13th day of October?

A. Well, now, it was sometime after this before we took the depositions.

Q. Yes, you found some more witnesses?

A. Well, I don't know, I think perhaps we did.

Q. Did you take any trip anywhere other than to Leavenworth and close around there before you took depositions?

A. No, I think not; no, I didn't unless it was back to Tulsa.

Q. When was it you came in contact first with Henry Carter? A. The date of the lease will show.

Q. Was that the very day?

A. It was perhaps the day before but I know I took that lease as soon as possible after I met him.

Q. Now, where did Minnie stay between the time that she came to Leavenworth on that trip that we have been talking about and the time you took the depositions?

A. She stayed part of the time at the National Hotel and part of the time at Captain Ferguson's house, and the remainder of the time at the Cushing Hospital.

Q. You took many persons to see her or took her to see many persons? A. Both ways.

Q. During that time?

A. Both ways. Mr. Hanford and I both.

Q. And numerous people recognized her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was advertised in the paper that she was in the city? A. I don't recall.

Q. It was mentioned in the news items?

A. I don't recall, it may have been, I don't know.

Q. What did Dennis do during all that time?

A. Dennis was very busy.

Q. What did he do?

A. Dennis furnished us the names of some witnesses that I went to see.

Q. Well, he interviewed witnesses too?

A. I presume so, I didn't go with him very much. Dennis stayed at his office and most of the outside work was done by Rube Smith.

Q. Dennis was working on the case? A. Yes.

Q. He was very active?

A. Yes, we were all active. We were getting ready for these depositions.

Q. Then, where was Minnie staying at the time you began taking the depositions?

A. I think that the day we began taking depositions, Minnie was at the hotel in bed sick. She had gone out to Captain Fergusons and she was taken sick while she was out there and came back and was in bed sick at the hotel.

Q. Why did you have her in Leavenworth at the time?

A. We expected to take her deposition along with the rest of the witnesses.

Q. You also had her there in order that the witnesses should see her and identify her? A. That was proper.

Q. That was one of the reasons?

A. That and to take her depositions. She wasn't able to be present.

Q. She was taken sick?

A. She was taken sick some two or three days before.

Q. The testimony was to begin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she was sick in the hotel—— How many days were you taking testimony? A. I think two or three.

Q. During the taking of the testimony, was Minnie taken to the hospital?

A. Now, just when she was taken to the hospital I couldn't tell you.

Q. It was either then or shortly afterwards? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, you were unable to take her testimony then?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall who your first witness was there?

A. I will have to have the transcript; I think perhaps Mr. Crilly was, but I don't go on record of saying that positively. The transcript will show.

Q. And don't you remember Dennis Jones was the second?

A. No. You can refresh my recollection if you want that in the record. You have looked it up.

Q. That is the situation according to that record. Jones is the second? A. I will take your word for it.

Q. And Rube was the last of twenty-one witnesses in all?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You remember this, do you not, that those witnesses attempted to fix the time of birth first as being in 1884, '5, or '6?

A. Well, most of them did, but if you will notice on cross examination they nearly always pinned them down and it became 1885. We didn't know definitely ourselves, because Minnie hadn't been able to enlighten us. On cross examination those witnesses nearly all fixed it in 1885.

Q. And all of those who pretended to know fixed it at Molly Letcher's? A. Oh, yes.

Q. On Seneca street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after these depositions were taken, you came back to Tulsa, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And did Mr. Page do back to Tulsa?

A. No, Mr. Page wasn't present at the taking of the depositions.

A. No, but he was in Kansas City?

A. No, sir, he was not.

Q. Where was Sadie? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, when was it that Mr. Page was in Kansas City with relation to the time the depositions were taken?

A. Some three or four days before hand, Mr. Page and Mr. Josey and Mr. Rice, all came up and we had Minnie before them there, and Mr. Rice went over her——

Q. Story?

A. Story with her, and Mr. Page, and Mr. Josey, in Mr. Hanford's presence. I know that they spent practically the entire day in Kansas City.

Q. How many days did Mr. Page stay there?

A. Just the one day.

Q. Just the one day. Where was Sadie at that time?

A. I don't know.

Q. Where was Betty? A. I don't know.

Q. During the time you were taking depositions, where was Sadie? A. I answered that twice, Mr. German——

Q. I know I was speaking of the last time that Minnie was——

A. I don't know, I beg your pardon, I knew nothing about Sadie.

Q. Well, do you know about that deed Sadie had that she was suppose to try to get from Minnie? A. No, sir.

Q. During that time? A. No, sir.

Q. For Mr. Page? A. No, sir.

Q. How long after the depositions were taken at Leavenworth was it until Minnie was able to go out of the Hospital?

A. Well, I don't remember; perhaps three or four days.

Q. You didn't know what caused that sickness?

A. Something that she ate out at Captain Ferguson's I believe. She ate some peaches as I remember from what Mrs. Ferguson said—that Minnie ate two or three dishes of peaches and drank some buttermilk, or something, on top of the peaches—something of that kind. I know Mrs. Ferguson had a distinct recollection about it and she was talking to me about it last spring.

Q. Was Harry Folk there? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, he had been there?

A. No, he hadn't been east at that time.

Q. Wasn't he in Leavenworth some time before this time when Minnie was there?

A. No, he was not in Leavenworth with Minnie until the Receivership—just prior to the Receivership hearing.

Q. Now, why was Minnie taken down to the hotel instead of being left out at Ferguson's?

A. Mrs. Ferguson had no accommodation for her. Prior to her going to the hotel, the Post Surgeon had prescribed for her and it was thought she was alright and after she got back to the hotel she became sicker and we had a local physician come up.

Q. You remember, don't you, that some of the witnesses there at Leavenworth who gave their depositions there on that occasion, testified that this boy of Minnie's was a mulatto?

A. Well, they testified that he was of mulatto appearance.

Q. Yes?

A. As I remember, Mr. German; I don't want to say just what they testified to, I can't tell you. I could read it over and I know that is right, if you want me to do so.

Q. But that bother Minnie?

A. Why, Minnie didn't know anything about that at that time, I don't believe.

Q. You don't think she did? A. No, sir.

Q. Was that statement that Minnie made at Kansas City in the presence of Mr. Page, and Mr. Josey, and Mr. Hanford, and Mr. Rice—were you there?

A. I was there a portion of the time.

Q. And yourself and others,, was it typewritten?

A. I think so.

Q. Where is it?

A. I don't know; Mr. Rice had all of those papers.

Q. It must have been turned over to Mr. Hanford, then, when Rice went out of the case?

A. Well, that I know nothing about.

Q. Have you seen it since? A. No, I never did see it.

A. After Minnie came down to Tulsa, from Leavenworth, where [] she stay?

A. She stayed a portion of the time at Mr. Page's home and a portion of the time at the Oklahoma hotel. She was —I think, well—no, the Brady hotel; she had a nurse with her, the nurse who was in attendance with her at the Cushing hospital came down with her—she was more of a companion to her, and she and this old lady stayed at the Brady hotel until Minnie was pretty strong and after the nurse went away, I think Minnie went over to Mr. Page's house and she was there a few days.

Q. Where were you in the meantime?

A. I was attending to my business.

Q. At Tulsa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, out to Mr. Page's house, was Minnie ill, or not; do you remember?

A. I think she was convalescing; she was getting better and getting stronger.

Q. You took her testimony shortly afterwards?

A. Yes, that was taken in Rice and Lyons' office.

Q. In that case case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All these depositions we are talking about were for use in the state court case? A. Yes.

Q. The Government case hadn't been filed then? A. No.

Q. Now, did you talk with Minnie any before she went on the witness stand? After she had come to Tulsa?

A. No, I didn't have any conversation with Minnie during that period about any testimony.

Q. But Mr. Page did?

A. Well, I presume so, and so did Mr. Rice and Mr. Hanford.

Q. And Mr. Hanford? A. Yes.

Q. You were present when she testified?

A. A part of the time; I was called out on the telephone two or three times during her testimony.

Q. You know what she testified to in a general way?

A. Well, I read it over afterwards, yes, sir.

Q. And you know that she testified that she worked for Hyde's in Leavenworth and then stayed for about a year around Mollie Letcher's?

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, in the interest of time, I am going to object to this further testimony as to what she testified to, as not——

The Court: Mr. German, what purpose will that serve in this cross examination?

Mr. German: Well——

The Court: Now, let me see. It occurs to me and occurred to me all morning that you are bringing out matters here, or seeking to bring out matters of this witness that are already in the record to impress upon the Court that when the record is considered together with this man's testimony it will in a measure sustain your contention. Now, I will get that all from the record; what this man knows will go in the record; what is in the record already I don't consider and you will be permitted to call my attention to those things at the argument or in the brief, as the case may be.

Mr. German: Well, I will frankly say to the Court this; I am attempting to show what this witness learned from time to time and the way in which events occurred; that is my object.

The Court: Now, so far as is necessary, to interrogate him, do that.

Mr. German: I will not ask that question.

The Court: Alright.

Q. Do you know what she testified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you do know that she didn't tell about Robert Lee Peterkin? A. I don't think so.

Q. Now, after that, what [] your next work in the case?

A. I don't think that I did anything about that until that was in—I think her testimony was in November perhaps.

Q. The early part.

A. Of November. I don't think I did any more work on the lease until the—yes, I made a trip to Omaha, but in the meantime, Mr. German, the Nancy Atkins interests had gone to Leavenworth; you have failed to cover that. The Nancy

Atkins interest had gone to Leavenworth—had gone up there and had taken some——

Q. Drowning depositions?

A. Now, let me tell you: they had taken depositions from 10 or 15 people who absolutely proved the birth and existence of Tommy Atkins and then said he was drowned, the witnesses that we knew nothing about.

Q. You haven't used them since?

A. Well, we took some other testimony soon afterwards to establish the boy that was drowned at the time they claimed Thomas Atkins was drowned was another boy. Now, that was done after Minnie's testimony—I had almost forgotten that.

Q. Now, let's see, Mr. Long. You did know that Minnie changed her story in her testimony at Tulsa from the story she told at Sapulpa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew that she had changed from the Sisters' Hospital to Granny Letcher's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In fixing the place of the birth, and you knew she changed the time of birth from the time following the Stafford's, to a time intervening her work at Hyde's and her work at Grodevant's?

A. Well, that is a rather long question, Mr. German. I knew this—let me state what I knew instead of answering the question.

Q. Alright.

A. I knew she testified at Sapulpa that the baby was born at the Sisters' Hospital and I knew that she testified at Tulsa that the baby was born at Granny Letcher's.

Q. And you also knew that she testified at Sapulpa that the child was born after she worked at Stafford's and she testified at Tulsa that it was born between the time she worked for Hyde's and the time she worked for Grodevant's?

A. Well, I wouldn't be positive about that: I would have to refresh my memory on the unimportant points; I am positive——

Q. I think that is an important point——

The Court: He testified he didn't remember that.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, did you know how she came to change that testimony? A. I do not.

Q. Did you have anything to do with her changing it?

A. I did not.

Q. Who did?

A. Well, I think it was probably all toegther; you are getting back over the same thing again.

Q. No.

A. I told you that Mr. Hanford went to Seattle and put these facts to her, and she admitted that that was the truth; that she came back—she and Mr. Hanford came back to Kansas City, and then she told me the new facts were the truth and I took her over to Leavenworth and she met people known to her at Granny Letcher's and that we had a conversation at Kansas City in which Mr. Page and Mr. Josey and Mr. Rice were present and we covered them all, that is all I know.

Q. You don't know whether it was voluntary on her part or whether—— A. Well, I know it was voluntary.

Q. You know that? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Hanford: If the Court please, I want to move to strike from Mr. Long's answer there what Minnie told me at Seattle, I want to testify to that myself.

A. Well, I only testified——

Mr. Hanford: He said I know that Minnie told Mr. Hanford at Seattle——

The Court: I concluded that the witness was stating that he was merely stating what he heard, to be given no consideration as substantive proof in the case, except what information he had and as bearing upon his activity.

A. That is all I had.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, you went to Omaha, what—when was it you made that trip?

A. Well, now, I would have to refresh my memory as to that.

Q. Did you introduce somebody there?

A. Yes, made two trips to Omaha.

Q. Who did you see there?

A. The first trip there I saw a man named Bowdry; that was along about that time.

Q. Had he known Minnie?

A. He told me about Minnie and about the birth of the child and that he had seen the boy in Chicago and he thought he had been killed by a street car. I subsequently went to Chicago and spent a week running that down, if you want that.

And thereupon, court recessed until 2 o'clock P. M.

And thereafter, and at 2 o'clock, court having convened pursuant to adjournment further proceedings herein were had as follows:

FRANK B. LONG, being recalled further testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

A. Mr. Long, during the noon hour, did you find a statement which Minnie had made in Kansas City? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you find out where that statement is? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you find that letter that we talked about?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let's see that, will you?

A. Now, this is the letter, Mr. German, as I understand that I said I refreshed my memory from; the letter that I had written to Mr. Josey.

Q. Written, at Tulsa, dated August 20th, 1914?

A. Yes, sir. That is a carbon; the original of course was mailed to him.

Q. Where was Mr. Josey at that time?

A. On the reverse sheet here, I think at the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York City. It doesn't state on that letter, but I am very sure that is where he was.

Q. Now, have you read it over, since you signed it at the noon hour? A. Yes.

Q. Refreshing your memory from it, would you not now say that it was Sadie who gave you the name of the woman with [] Minnie left the Fort?

A. That may have been the case; I said, you know, she might have, or it might have been Rube Smith; I can't remember.

Q. Now, after refreshing your memory from this letter, will you not say that in the park, Sadie went into considerable detail?

A. No, I don't think she went into any more detail than I testified about, Mr. German, except the statements that I made that she told us that she knew.

Q. Now, she proposed to you and for this consideration of a thousand dollars in case you won, to produce witnesses, reputable people who would swear [] was born and lived until 1899, and that his father was a negro? A. Yes.

Q. And you agreed to give her a thousand dollars if her dope won out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she wasn't to get anything if it did not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, you testified yesterday about a deed which you said Henery Carter executed to Minnie at the time you had the last—— A. Yes?

Q. What became of that deed? A. I have that deed.

Q. It was not recorded? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you deliver that to Minnie? A. I did not.

Q. You just took it and kept it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was before Minnie gave her deposition at Tulsa, wasn't it?

A. No, I think that was subsequent to her deposition at Tulsa.

Q. You think it was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, on the date that she gave her deposition at Tulsa you had the deed—took a deed from her to Mr. Page?

A. Well, that may not have been that date, Mr. German, I can't tell you about the date; the date of the deed and the day she gave her deposition will show that.

A. Well, she gave her deposition the 22nd of October, and that is the date of her deed, isn't it?

A. Well, that done the same time; I don't have any recollection of the date but I know she signed a deed. That was a deed which at that time was taken for her protection.

Q. Well, the deed speaks for itself.

A. It speaks for itself.

Q. As to the terms of the payment?

A. Yes, sir. It is recorded.

Q. And the conditions under which she is to continue to receive payment from Mr. Page? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Conveyed him the fee to the land? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That has been introduced in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, while Minnie was there at Leavenworth at the time you took these depositions, you gave her a check, didn't you—someone did? A. Not that I remember.

Q. Don't you remember about a five thousand dollar check she was to receive there which she did not get the cash on? A. That was the check you had this morning.

Q. Oh, it was merely handed to her?

A. No, it was not. Subsequently five hundred dollars was given to her in cash, and she wanted to save the rest of the money and it was placed on six months' time deposit in the Central National Bank.

Q. At Tulsa?

A. At Tulsa. I told you this morning that the other gentlemen had a clearer recollection of that than I do, but I remember that much.

Q. I am speaking of Minnie getting a check in Leavenworth at the time she was up there and sick. A. She did not.

Q. Well, what was it she received? You said that was the check I had this morning.

A. I said the deposit was represented by that check; that check was not paid.

Q. Was not paid? A. No, sir.

Q. The check I had this morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That had the September endorsements on it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The stamp—bank stamp dated in September?

A. Well, it shows September.

Q. Yes, sir. That was not paid?

A. That was not paid; that is my recollection.

Q. She got this money, this five hundred dollars, about the time of the depositions at Leavenworth, didn't she?

A. She did not. She didn't get that money—I think she probably had it before hand; before she came to Leavenworth.

Q. Well, he got the forty-five hundred dollars placed to her credit in Tulsa about the time she testified?

A. That was after she testified; the date of that deposit will show and we can get it for you.

Q. When was Lee Bond employed in this case?

A. Mr. Bond was employed in the case after you got into it.

Q. After the Government filed suit?

A. After the Government and Pinkerton Detective Agency and the rest of you got into it, Mr. Bond was employed.

Q. I see. Now, you knew about the time Sadie made her so-called confession to the Government?

A. I don't think of that until we heard from Mr. Hanford about Mr. Montgomery.

Q. Being in Seattle?

A. Yes, being in Seattle. That was our first intimation.

Q. Now, Sam Nash and Walter Banks were witnesses on your side of the case in the depositions taken in October, 1915?

A. They were.

Q. At Leavenworth. When was it that Sam came to Tulsa to get a job? A. That was later on in the fall.

Q. Alright. What time?

A. I can't tell you; perhaps November.

Q. When did he get a job?

A. Well, he came down there to take a job with Mr. Page and there wasn't any work for him at the time he first came there, and he stayed around Tulsa for perhaps a week before he went to work.

Q. He reported daily to your office?

A. Well, I wouldn't say daily; I didn't see him every day.

Q. He reported to your office?

A. Well, I wouldn't say reported; he came there.

Q. He was up there? A. Yes.

Q. And you paid his expenses to Tulsa, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. And he received $15 a week before he got work to do?

A. No, I don't think he received so much per week; we paid his expenses and paid him probably some spending money.

Q. And finally he got a restaurant, didn't he?

A. Finally he located a place he could buy and we furnished him the money, I think a hundred and fifty dollars to buy the restaurant and took a chattel mortgage from him. We have the mortgage.

Q. You have the mortgage. Then he ran that restaurant?

A. He did.

Q. Now, when did you go to Sheridan, Wyoming, to see the Grodevant's expense account?

A. I believe that was along in January or February, perhaps March, 1915.

Q. Prior to the receivership hearing?

A. Yes, it was prior to the receivership hearing.

Q. The receivership hearing, you recall, to have been the last days of February and the first days of March?

A. No, I didn't go to—yes, Sheridan, Wyoming, I went to Mr. Foy's prior to that time. Will you permit me to explain?

Q. Alright.

A. I had been to see Mr. Frank Grodevant himself at Chattanooga, Tennessee, and Mr. Grodevant was unable to give me any definite information upon that first occasion and sent me to see——

Q. Mrs. Foy?

A. No, let me go ahead and finish; sent me to see Mrs. Herbert Grodevant's mother-in-law, Mrs. Julia West and Mrs. McClain, a sister of Mrs. Harry Carr, formerly Mrs. Nellie Blunt, who lived at St. Johnsberry, Vermont, and also sent me to see Mrs. Grodevant, his step-mother in Detroit, Michigan. I was unable to get any definite information from any of these people and returned to Chatanooga, and saw Mr. Grodevant the second time, and it was upon that occasion that he told me that his brother had always kept a book and subsequently he wrote me that he had corresponded with Mrs. Foy, and she had the book, and I went out to see it.

Q. Mrs. Foy was Herbert Grodevant's daughter?

A. Yes, sir. That gets that clear, as I remember.

Q. So it was sometime probably in February, 1915, that you went to see Mrs. Foy? A. Yes.

Q. And saw this——

A. It may have been in January, Mr. German.

Q. Along there sometime? A. Yes.

Q. Then, when was it you went to Harrisburg, Pa., that you went to the Carlisle school?

A. I went to Harrisburg on that same trip; went to Harrisburg and Pittsfield, and Danville, and St. Johnsburg, Vermont, and also to Philadelphia.

Q. So, you went to Harrisburg, to the Carlisle school before you saw Mrs. Foy? A. Yes.

Q. At Sheridan, Wyoming? A. Yes.

Q. So, it was sometime in January or February that you were at Pittsfield or Harrisburg?

A. Yes, it strikes me I can refresh my memory that it was warmer weather. I believe that trip was made after the receivership hearing.

Q. At any rate, you went there?

A. At any rate, I went up.

Q. Then if you think it was afterwards, we will recur to it again in a moment. A. Yes?

Q. Now, you remember the fact that the receivership hearing was in the last days of February or the early days of March, 1915? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Here in this court in this case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you find out, Mr. Long, that the Government was going to produce Charles Peterkin as a witness at that trial?

A. I don't remember when I found that out, Mr. German.

Q. You found it out prior to the Receivership hearing?

A. Well, I believe my information came from Mr. Josey, he heard down here somewhere about it.

Q. Now, you also learned, did you not, that the Government had obtained the record relating to the birth and death of Robert Lee Peterkin?

A. At that time, yes, sir, I remember that information came from Mr. Josey, at Kansas City.

Q. Yes, sir? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You learned too, did you not, that Mrs. Allen, a daughter of Mrs. Woods, and that Mrs. Morton, a daughter of Mrs. Woods, would be witnesses?

A. Well, I didn't know that they would be witnesses, but I learned at that time that the Peterkin baby was born at their house.

Q. Did you not, about a week before the receivership hearing, go to see Mrs. Morton?

A. I don't believe I saw Mrs. Morton. I remember clearly of seeing Mrs. Allen.

Q. You saw Mr. Morton, the husband of the witness?

A. I believe I did at their hotel in Kansas City.

Q. And did you not suggest to them that the child born at the Woods house was a child of Mrs. Allen?

A. Yes, sir—no, I didn't suggest that.

Q. You asked him?

A. No, was the child of some other woman other than Minnie, for this reason: When we heard of this information as to the Peterkin baby, Mr. Rice and I don't know who else talked to Minnie about it, and she denied it; she first denied the birth of the baby; and she denied she was ever at the Woods house; and denied it very strongly, so strongly that it made us believe that that must be a mistake. And for that reason I worked out that theory. I also went to see Father Hill and got the same record that you have, and that convinced me that Minnie had again misrepresented to us. That was after I had seen Mrs. Allen and after I had seen Mrs. Morton and her brother.

Q. Minnie never did deny the birth of Charlie, Alice, and Harvey? A. No, sir.

Q. She did, as you say, the reports of the birth of the Peterkin baby? A. Yes, sir, she finally did admit it.

Q. At the receivership hearing?

A. Well, it was sometime prior to the receivership.

Q. After it was learned we were going to prove it?

A. No, after I learned it myself by my own investigation.

Q. She, at the receivership hearing, did testify about the child? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Robert Lee Peterkin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who talked with her about that before she gave that testimony? A. I couldn't tell you.

Q. Did you? A. I did not.

Q. Do you know who went over that with her?

A. I do not, I presume that Mr. Rice did or Mr. Lyons. I didn't and I was not present.

Q. You were not present when her affidavit was prepared that was filed in the receivership hearing?

A. No, sir, I was not.

Q. Well, let me ask you whether Sam Nash and Walter Banks were at the receivership hearing? A. I think so.

Q. They didn't testify? A. I don't believe so.

Q. What became of Sam after that?

A. Sam stayed in Tulsa for sometime after that and then went back to Leavenworth.

Q. He ran the restaurant from the time you have mentioned until after the receivership hearing?

A. Up until he returned to Leavenworth, yes, sir.

Q. You went to Harrisburg Pa., just after the receivership hearing? A. Before or after.

Q. One or the other, I don't care which one. Now, you looked at the records there at Harrisburg? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the office of the superintendent of the school keeping those records? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Relating to pupils in the school there in the eighties? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you found the record relating to Minnie?

A. Yes, sir, and all the other pupils that went there with her.

Q. You also found this post card or postal card from George H. Hyde? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Dated July 11, 1884? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At Leavenworth to his sister Mary? A. I did.

Q. At the school? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You borrowed that, didn't you?

A. I think I kept that for sometime and then returned it to Mrs. Denny.

Q. You also looked at the books or records kept by the school there relating to the menstration period of the girls? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't?

A. No, sir, I didn't know there was any book of that kind there.

Q. You didn't find those books, you didn't know there were such books?

A. No, sir, I looked at the book there showing girls being farmed out at different places and found out Minnie had only been in the school a portion of the time. And I went to see one of the men she had been farmed out to, Mr. Penrose near Philadelphia.

Q. But you didn't see the menstration book? A. No, sir.

Q. And you didn't get such a book? A. No, sir.

Q. And take it away from there?

A. No, sir, I didn't know of such a book.

Q. You later returned this post card by giving it to Mr. Hanford to produce it when the depositions were being taken in the spring of 1916?

A. My recollection is I returned that post card to Mrs. Denny. I don't remember, I may have given it to Mr. Hanford.

Q. You took that and went to see a Mrs. Collins about it, didn't you?

A. Yes, and there was another letter from Miss Mary Hyde, written from up in Massachusetts, to Captain Pratt, and I went to see Captain Pratt in Washington and had a long conversation with him.

Q. You went to see Mrs. Collins at Pittsfield, Massachusetts? A. Yes.

Q. She was a daughter of George H. Hyde? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The family in Leavenworth for whom Minnie had worked? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are aware that her deposition has been taken in this case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you tell Mrs. Collins when you went to see her—— You showed her the post card, didn't you?

A. I don't know that I did. I told her the date that I had learned at Carlisle some distance from Harrisburg.

Q. You told her there that Minnie Atkins gave birth to a child at a negro woman's home between the time she worked for her father, Mr. Hyde, and the time that she worked for the Grodevant's, didn't you?

A. Well, I may have told her that, that was perhaps our theory at the time.

Q. And you explained to her that Minnie had a big estate which was at stake and that Minnie's suit depended on her ability to prove the birth of this child at the negro woman's house at that time?

A. I don't remember saying that, but I probably did, that would have been the natural thing for me to have said.

Q. Now, you knew that the Government served notice and that depositions were going to be taken for use in this case. You knew that the plans were being laid for taking depositions in the fall of 1916?

A. Well, I didn't know—— If you are asking me about the plan of the Government to take depositions, when I saw Mrs. Collins I don't think I did at the time.

Q. No, I don't mean at the time you saw Mrs. Collins. I am passing over to the fall of 1915?

A. Yes, I knew depositions were to be taken.

Q. At the time we were planning to take depositions?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was Walter Banks at that time?

A. Walter Banks, as I remember, was in Kansas City.

Q. Yes, did he come to Tulsa?

A. After the depositions were taken I believe or while they were in progress.

Q. He did?

A. He came to Tulsa sometime in the spring or summer of 1916.

Q. Did he get employment there? A. He did.

Q. Where?

A. He first worked on the section for the Sand Springs Railroad and then was employed at the Third Street Station where he is still employed.

Q. He is a colored man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are his duties there in connection with the operation of that railroad?

A. His duties are to load and unload freight, check the freight loaded into cars, and he has charge of the switch lights or system; he cleans them and changes them and lights them at night and takes them down in the morning.

Q. He has charge of the freight that goes back and forth on the railroad?

A. He doesn't have entire charge, there is an agent.

The Court: He checks it in and out, I understand.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, he has held that position there now for about a year and a half, hasn't he?

A. Well, not hardly a year and a half.

Q. That is Mr. Page's railroad, isn't it?

A. Yes, sir. The records will show that.

Q. Where is Sam Nash working now?

A. Sam Nash is janitor in the bank and the office and at the hospital.

Q. Mr. Page is stockholder in the bank?

A. Yes, sir, and also Sam has charge of the up stairs offices.

Q. How long has Sam held that position?

A. Sam came down there sometime before Walter came.

Q. He has been in that business ever since?

A. Yes, and he is a very good man.

Q. You didn't go on this trip when we were taking depositions for use in this case? A. No, sir.

Q. Beginning in December, 1915? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't go on our western trip, I mean?

A. No, nor your eastern trip.

Q. No, but you were present at Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You did learn that on our western trip we went through Sherridan, Wyoming, where we took the deposition of Mrs. Foy, where we offered the Grodevant's expense book?

A. Yes, sir.

[Q.] Following that and in the spring of 1916, you were present at Leavenworth when we were taking depositions?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know the witness, Mrs. Cobb, formerly Mrs. Edwards? A. Yes.

Q. How long before she testified there at Leavenworth, before Mr. Penick, was it that you went to see her?

A. Oh, two or three weeks.

Q. Who went with you?

A. The first trip I think—— Now, I made two or three trips to see her, Mr. German. I don't remember whether I went to see her alone first with Mr. Crilley or whether Mr. Page was present. I believe Mr. Page and I were up there one trip and Mr. Page and Mr. Crilley and I went out together. Subsequently I went out with Mr. Bond. Mr. Bond and I made the trip first—— Mr. Bond had been to see her alone; that is the first trip I made, was in company with Mr. Page and Mr. Crilley in a car. Mr. Bond had been to see her and had taken an affidavit from her.

Q. She fixed the exact time of the birth of Thomas, didn't she? A. She did, yes, sir.

Q. And is the only witness who has fixed it almost to a day? A. Well, she came nearer than most anyone else.

Q. The other witnesses that you produced at Leavenworth before Mr. Penick also fixed this birth as in the spring of '85?

A. Yes, sir, I think Mr. Allen fixed the date very close.

Q. Now, at that time, Mr. Long—— What I should say is this, it was following that that the Government introduced its testimony relating to Lilly White, wasn't it?

A. Well, now, whether your testimony was introduced before or after I can't remember, Mr. German.

Q. Don't you recall it was?

A. It may have been, it may not, I don't remember that. It may have been and may not have been. We were very busy and I couldn't tell you without referring to the record and that will show.

Q. At any rate, you didn't know about the Lilly White proof when those witnesses for you were placed on the stand?

A. We knew something about the Lilly White. We knew about the Dassler books; I had seen them before you did. The only thing we didn't know about at that time was the petition and we didn't know about John Rohr's testimony.

Q. Joe Malone and those fellows? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you knew Ella Witt? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Formerly Ella Abbott? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have had her down here, down to this trial?

A. Yes, sir, she is here now.

Q. She is here yet?

A. As far as I know, I haven't seen her.

Q. You have talked with her many times? A. Yes, sir

Q. Isn't it a fact that by her and some others you have contemplated proving that Thomas was in her house of ill repute in the early nineties at Leavenworth, and that she, Ella Witt, was going to produce Thomas' clothing in this Court and a slate on which his name was written?

A. No, Mr. German, I can't say we expected to do that.

You will have to ask the attorneys. I know what she told me.

Q. Let me ask you where it was that you got this Betty Mann, Kirkbride contract?

A. I don't know anything about that.

Q. You don't know where that came from? A. No, sir.

Q. When did you first see that?

A. I first saw it yesterday.

Mr. German: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. When you first started to investigating this Atkins matter, you got all the information you could from the Dawes Commission and the members of the family and those who knew them, did you?

A. I worked out every possible source of information, Mr. Cobb.

Q. Your object and purpose in getting that information, I believe, was to be sure that you were dealing with the right person? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you made any deals? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You would not, if you knew it, make any deals with spurious persons about the matter? A. No, sir.

Q. And when you dealt with Minnie Atkins at Seattle, you felt sure in your own mind that you were dealing with the real Minnie? A. I did.

Q. That is true. When you dealt with H. Carter at Leavenworth, Kansas, at that time you felt sure that you were dealing with the real Thomas Atkins, didn't you?

A. No, I wasn't positive, Mr. Cobb; I was partially convinced and there were so many angles to the matter and so many different claimants—persons who claimed to be Thomas Atkins and Henry Carter told me such a plausible story that I just felt that I had better cinch that, if you will pardon that expression and take a lease from him.

Q. You felt at that time, of course you were not positive—— A. No, sir.

Q. But you felt that you were dealing with the right Tommy Atkins there?

A. Well, there was a period of two or three days there that I was almost convinced but not entirely.

Q. Now, you had seen Carter before you made that deal, hadn't you? A. Once or twice.

Q. Where did you first see him?

A. I think the first place I ever saw him, he was working down in the south part of Leavenworth some place on a roof, and I went out there, and called him off the job and talked with him in the yard where he was working. That is the first time I ever saw him.

Q. Do you know whether anybody had seen him in regard to the matter prior to that time?

A. I understood Mr. Crawley had seen him about the matter for the Gypsy Oil Company.

Q. You didn't know?

A. I inquired from our office, for them to ask Crawley if he didn't believe that he was Tommy Atkins.

Q. You had a conversation with him at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And went over the whole matter with him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. He told you all he knew about his childhood and where he lived and people that could tell you all about him?

A. Yes, sir, gave me a number of names.

Q. Gave you a number of names out at McLouth and where he was raised? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You made a trip to McLouth in this—to investigate this matter, didn't you?

A. I made one trip to McLouth and one trip to Oskaloosa.

Q. And you made inquiry there at Leavenworth about him of several witnesses?

A. Yes, I think I went to see the Yokums about him.

Q. Of whom did you inquire near McLouth about him?

A. Well, these names I don't recall; I have a memorandum about it but I inquired of some man by the name of Harding. If you can give me the names of those persons whose depositions were taken I can remember.

> The Court: Judge, just let me understand what light now, by way of cross examination of this witness, so far as the Henry Carter contention is concerned, will be thrown on the case by going over again what Mr. Long discovered, what people told him, which, of course, as substantive proof, must be first-hand evidence, in relation to Carter?
>
> Mr. Cobb: I understand but he has testified about this matter in an unfavorable light as to the Carter interests. I think I have the right to cross examine him and bring out the real fact of the matter without letting it go in in that shape.
>
> The Court: Well, of course, the facts as to the title of the defendant Henry Carter must be established so far as this case is concerned, by competent proof, and cannot be established by hearsay by this witness as to what somebody told him; presumably that somebody will be here.

Mr. Cobb: I understand so far as the Carter interests are concerned we are in the same position as the Government on that matter. Now, here he has taken a lease and deed from this man which he has retained——

The Court: Yes, that is all true but the question here is the title of this defendant Henry Carter.

Mr. Cobb: Of course we will undertake to show that by substantive evidence when we get to that.

The Court: On that phase of the case, the Court is not considering any statement which this witness makes with regard to what some witness of yours, that you may produce, told him. The Court must get that proof first hand. I just want to confine this matter as far as the cross examination is concerned to its legitimate scope.

Mr. Cobb: We don't intend to take but a short time.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, we object to it as to any opinion of Long in regard to this matter of what he found out on that——

The Court: It has no bearing on this phase of the case whether or not he believes Carter was Tommy Atkins when he took the deed, and it would be a matter of no interest to this Court so far as to the question of whether or not Carter was that party in my judgment. Now a long cross examination has been permitted here by the Government on the theory, the Government theory and contention——

Mr. Cobb: The Government did not cross examine on this phase of the case, however.

The Court: Well, go on; I will see where you are drifting.

Q. Now, you made inquiry of a number of witnesses that he gave you out there at McLouth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was the second time you saw Carter, Mr. Long?

A. Well, I saw Carter frequently along during the month of December.

Q. I mean when you talked to him about it?

A. Well, I talked to him perhaps every two or three days, or maybe every day for a period of a week or two.

Q. Where did you find him?

A. I found him at work.

Q. You went to see him at work?

A. Yes, sir, he was working in a tin shop or a roofing shop, or something of that character.

Q. Now, when you made that deal with him at the National hotel who was present?

A. Dennis Jones and Romeo Giscomini.

Q. Anybody else?

A. When the first lease was taken, I think the first lease was taken—was signed in Dennis Jones' office. The second lease covering his homestead allotment was signed in the National hotel and Romeo Goacomini was present. That department lease required two witnesses and I think someone else was present—I don't remember who it was. I know two witnesses were there to the signature.

Q. Wasn't Sam Nash there?

A. Sam Nash was there on one occasion.

Q. And Mr. Josey?

A. Mr. Josey was there upon one occasion.

Q. Now, at that time, Mr. Long, did you take any steps to identify Carter? A. I did.

Q. What did you do then?

A. Well, I took every possible, step, Mr. Cobb. I think the first person——

Q. I know but what did you do there at that time?

A. No, I am trying to tell you——

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, in the interest of time, I object to this as utterly immaterial as to what he did there.

The Court: It occurs to me, Judge Cobb, that you and the Government are not at one on this proposition, so far as Henry Carter's identity is concerned. The Government says there is not any Tommy Atkins, therefore Henry Carter could not possibly be Tommy Atkins and never was. Now, you of course, do not agree with them on that proposition. You agree with the Page, Hanford interests that there was a Tommy Atkins; you insist as I understand it, that his history was very much what the Page, Hanford interests contend he was, from Granny Letcher on up, but you insist that instead of being now dead, he is still alive in Henry Carter, who is now a defendant in this case.

Mr. Cobb: That is it exactly.

The Court: Now, however, of what interest is it to the Court here, or of what competent value is it as to what Mr. Long—what conclusion he may have reached in investigations he may have made in regard to the identity of Carter?

Mr. Cobb: Now, if it please the Court, now, we don't agree with the Government as the Court stated to the extent of saying that Henry Carter was a myth, or that Mr. Long together with others had fabricated a case in its entirety, but the indications from the testimony is Carter may have been eliminated at this point after he had taken the deed and the lease, for some reason.

The Court: Well, suppose he was eliminated? Here you agree with them to the point that there was a Thomas Atkins?

Mr. Cobb: Yes, sir. And up to this point this is a hostile witness so far as we are concerned.

The Court: Yes, but all Mr. Long knows now with regard to the identity of Henry Carter with Thomas Atkins is what somebody told him. His testimony on that point would not be competent because it is hearsay; those somebodies that told him you can have here as witnesses and presumably you will.

Mr. Cobb: It occurs to me, if the Court please——

The Court: I just want to get at your view.

Mr. Cobb: It seems to me the details of this transaction when the deeds were executed and the extent of the identification of Henry Carter should be shown as a matter of cross examination on the matter.

The Court: On what phase?

Mr. Cobb: If for no other purpose than to test his credibility and his memory on the matter.

The Court: He has not testified to a thing that the Court considers competent on the question as to whether Henry Carter was Tommy Atkins and the Court must have first-hand information on that point.

Mr. Cobb: Alright then; give us an exception, please.

The Court: Exception noted because I don't believe the cross examination is bringing out anything that is throwing any light on your interest in this case.

Mr. Cobb: Now, may it please the Court, it appears to me like this; this is the position I take; they have Dennis Jones and Sam Nash and Mr. Josey, and Mr. Long, present when this matter is there executed; they had a lease from Carter and there at that time the identification of Carter is made such, that they take his lease, upon which they rely, and place it of record, and they take a deed that retain.

The Court: Now, that is in evidence that they did do that.

Mr. Cobb: Yes, sir.

The Court: Now, that is a separate circumstance in the case, that is in evidence; the Court has that to consider. Now, what further may the Court legitimately consider on the question?

Mr. Cobb: Well, it looks like that ought to cover the matter.

The Court: What Mr. Long thought would not——

Mr. Cobb: Just one more question.

The Court: Alright.

Q. How long, Mr. Long, was it after the commercial lease was taken on the surplus until you took the departmental lease on the homestead? A. Two or three weeks.

Q. Two or three weeks afterwards? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You still had faith in the claims of Carter when you took the commercial lease? A. Some faith, yes, Mr. Cobb.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Long, you were asked on cross examination by Mr. German, if Walter Banks was in Tulsa at the time the depositions were taken at Leavenworth in this case.

Mr. German: In October 1914, you mean in October 1914? Or in this case?

Mr. Hanford: In this case.

Mr. German: 1916.

Q. I will ask you if it is not a fact that at the request of the Government you had Walter Banks had summoned from Kansas City where he then lived, to Leavenworth to testify or be examined by them?

A. Yes, sir, yes; he was in Kansas City at the time.

Q. And he had not—— A. Gone to Tulsa yet.

Q. At that time?

A. That is true and he did come over to Leavenworth and was over there two or three days at Mr. German's request.

Q. And he was notified by Government attorneys that he was not wanted and allowed to return?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it was sometime after that that he went down to Tulsa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And went to work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In regard to Miss Robinson being at Seattle, you were asked whether or not you learned that she was going to Seattle; isn't it a fact that you telephoned over the long distance telephone from Portland to Mr. Hanford at Seattle and told him that Miss Robinson was coming, that she was a very estimable lady, to see that she had every opportunity to see Minnie and identify her, and show her every courtesy possible? A. Yes, I had that conversation.

Recross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. How was it I asked you to bring Walter?

A. Well, I didn't say you asked me to bring Walter Banks; I said it was at your request, maybe made perhaps to Judge Stuart or Mr. Hanford, I don't know which. It might have not have been your personal request Mr. German. It might have been Judge Allen or someone else but the request was made that he be brought over to Leavenworth.

Q. And he was brought? A. And he was brought, yes, sir.

Mr. German: As a part of the cross examination of this witness, I would like to offer the carbon of the letter the witness produced, dated August 20th, 1914——

Mr. Stuart: I am going to offer it, Mr. German.

Mr. German: Alright, then.

Mr. Stuart: I wish you would mark this, please. (Marked defendant's exhibit B-13). I want to read this into the record: "Tulsa, Oklahoma, August 20th, 1914. Mr. Dear Mr. Josey: I just wired you to disregard long letter of yesterday which will reach you in the morning, and advising you that we are working on a new line of information. Yesterday afternoon, Sadie James, the nigger woman who has been working for Bartlett and the Gypsy came up to see us. I had a talk with her and took her in to see Mr. Page. We met last evening at the park and went over the ground in detail. This afternoon I have had Sadie with Rice and Mr. Page. She may be setting a trap; she may be double-crossing us and still working for the other people, but we are going to give her a trial, cautiously. Her story is this: That the Gypsy and Bartlett have had her looking for a Thomas; that they found several but none of them would do; that a deed was signed by one of them but, that they finally decided not to use any of the fake boys; and now that we have Minnie and they can't find a Tommy to use, she is out of the running and she has no chance to make money. Had they had Minnie, they could have had her identify a Tommy and then put it over, but without her, they are powerless. She therefore proposed to us that, for a consideration, she would produce witness, reputable people who would swear that Tommy was born and lived until 1899, that his father was a negro. Her story is plausible. We agreed in writing to pay her one thousand dollars if her dope wins the case for us and gets us a valid lease. She is not to get a cent except a limited amount of expense money until we are finally declared the valid lessees. All of her witnesses except two are at Leavenworth, I am going up there tonight with her, and will have them brought before me one at a time. Will tie them up in every way possible and then we will see what there is to her dope. Gave us the names of the people to whom Minnie gave Tommy; how long they kept him; the names of people who knew him in Leavenworth, and the names of people who know that he is dead. It is the best sounding story I have heard yet. Now, we are ging to play out Betty's string also, and let Hanford work with her. I am going to stay in the background in Leavenworth and not let Sadie know Minnie is working for us and vice versa. In this way we can ascertain who is lying. Will write you from Leavenworth the developments. With best wishes, I am sincerely yours."

The Court: Now, let's see, that was written to whom?

Mr. Stuart: To Mr. Josey, August 20th, 1914.

The Court: Where were you at that time?

A. I was in Tulsa.

The Court: And Mr. Josey was——

A. In New York.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Now, Mr. Long, you have stated to the Court that you traveled practically from Maine to California in this law suit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sir? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I will ask you to state to the Court what your purpose was in making those trips?

Mr. Hanford: Look at that, please.

A. That letter was not dictated; I wrote it myself and made a mistake in the name.

Mr. Stuart: Well, change that to Betty. (Referring to sentence of letter above quoted, which sentence reads "I am going to stay in the back-ground at Leavenworth, and not let Sadie know Minnie is working for us, and vice versa;" and asking that the word Minnie be changed to Betty.)

Q. What was your purpose in going all over the country?

A. Well, our purpose was, Judge, to run down every source of information to get the truth. We went to see every one possible; we would see one person and that person wouldn't know anything but would give us the names of some people who would know, they thought; then we would go to those people, and our hope was to get the truth of the matter.

Q. That is all?

A. We had several stories told us——

The Court: I think that is all in.

Mr. Stuart: I understand that; I just wanted to ask him that one question.

Q. This card, this census card that you got; let me have that. I want to use that on another witness, the one that was sent to you, the one you had the controversy about. This was the certified copy of the card that was sent to you, the enrollment card? A. Census card.

Q. Sent to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who sent it to you?

A. I order- that through Mr. Bynum.

Q. Who did you get it from, Mr. Long, the office here or—

A. It came from the office here.

Q. In the mail? A. In the mail.

The Court: Has that been identified?

Mr. Stuart: I think it was used——

Q. Look at the date of that? A. July 6th, 1914.

Mr. Stuart: Identify that, I will use it later. (Identified as defendant's exhibit B-14).

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, EDWARD C. FUNK, was called and sworn as a witness for an on behalf of the defendant, Minnie Atkins, et al., and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. What is your name? A. Edward C. Funk.

Q. What is your business, Mr. Funk?

A. Government Clerk, Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes.

Q. Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes. In whose office are you? A. Mr. Parker's.

Q. Park's? A. Superintendent Parker.

Q. What is that document that you have in your hand there? A. Census card, Creek Census Card.

Q. Whose Creek Census Card? A. Tommy Atkins.

Mr. German: Is that the one that has been offered in evidence here, about which testimony has been given?

Mr. German: I will agree that it is.

Mr. Stuart: Is it agreed that it is?

Q. How long have you been in that office, Mr. Funk?

A. Sixteen years.

Q. Sixteen years. I notice on this card, written in lead pencil these words: "E. B. Miller, Chief Clerk Land Office, letter May 9, 1905, from the Commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes directing action to be suspended the matter of issuing deeds to heirs of No. 1." Who wrote that on that card?

A. I wrote this top notation.

Q. Which top notation?

A. "E. B. Miller, Chief Clerk."

Q. When did you put that on there?

A. Well, I put that on there when Mr. Kennedy was chief clerk; that has been two years and some months.

Q. Who directed you to put that on the card?

A. Mr. Kennedy the Chief Clerk.

Q. Who told Mr. Kennedy to put that on there?

A. I couldn't answer that.

Q. You put that on there at Mr. Kennedy's instance about two years ago? A. A little over two years ago.

Q. And nine years after that card was made out, didn't you? A. I don't know how many years, no nine years.

Q. How many—— Nine years after the date of the letter?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Kennedy told you to put that on there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you put that on that, "Letter of May 9, 1905, from Commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes directing action to be suspended" and so forth? A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know that handwriting? A. No, sir.

Q. Does anybody in your office know?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. You have made inquiry as to who put that on there and you can't say now who did?

A. I personally myself don't know.

Q. When you sent this census card out you put that in pencil also, didn't you, instead of ink?

Mr. German: What card?

Mr. Stuart: The one I have identified.

The Court: What is the identification, Judge?

Mr. Stuart: Defendant's B-14.

Q. You sent that out, didn't you, that is your handwriting there?

A. No, that is the man that at that time copied those names. No, I didn't make this myself, I worked there at the time.

Q. On this card, which speaks for itself of course, the same notation on here is in pencil?

A. That shows the same notation.

Q. I say it is in pencil? A. Yes, this is in pencil.

Mr. Stuart: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Kennedy, this defendant's Exhibit B-14, whose handwriting is that pencil work in?

A. I suggest that is Mr. Drew's.

Q. That is your judgment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, take the original census card—— Let me ask you when was this certification made on Defendant's Exhibit B-14? A. July 6th, 1914.

Q. 1914, and the pencil work that appears on that certified copy included the words "E. B. Miller, Chief Clerk Land Office?" A. Yes, sir.

Q. So, that on the original census card of which Defendant's Exhibit B-14 is a certified copy, the words "E. B. Miller, Chief Clerk Land Office" were on there before this certified copy was made?

A. Must have been.

Q. Must have been; then, you must have written those words on the original census card July 6th, 1914?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, the other writing, lead pencil writing, "Letters May 9, 1905, from the Commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes directing action to be suspended in matter of issuing deed to heirs of No. 1" was on that original census card before you inserted the words above it "E. B. Miller, Chief Land Office"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They were. That is all. Who is Mr. Drew?

A. Mr. Drew is the man who made the certificate of the work at that time.

Q. He was a clerk in the land office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of the Superintendent to the Five Civilized Tribes?

A. Certified Copy Department.

Q. According to the practice of the office, would not the notation "Letter of May 9, 1905, from the Commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes direction action be suspended in matter of issuing deed to heirs of No. 1" have been entered on that original census card shortly after or on May 9, 1905, according to the practice of the office?

A. I would judge so, yes, sir.

Mr. German: That is all.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Tell me that again. How is that? I didn't understand? A. You will have to have him repeat the question.

(Record read).

Q. Why, Mr. Funk, you know that that was entered down there in the last two years, the whole thing?

A. No, sir, only as to the top notation. I don't know anything about this.

Q. The top notation was made when?

A. I said about two years and a little over.

Q. And this other is under the top notation?

A. That was put on there before I put mine on.

Q. How long before, do you know?

A. As I said, the practice of the office probably in that year, the same month.

Q. Of that same year, 1905?

A. That notation probably.

Q. What did you put this on there in pencil for?

A. To identify this letter here.

Q. Why wasn't that "E. B. Miller," if it was put on there away back there put on like the other? A. I couldn't answer.

Mr. German: Your Honor, I object to Counsel cross examining his own witness.

The Court: We are trying to get at it.

Q. I suppose according to the practice of your office, they generally put everything on in ink in those days, didn't they?

A. No, sir.

Q. They didn't? A. No, sir, not always.

Q. Now, you say that in your judgment that "E. B. Miller, Chief Clerk Land Office" was put on there at the same time that right above it was put on there?

A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. The writing below it?

A. No, I say this was put on two years and a little over, and this probably about 1905, I couldn't say.

Q. Well, take the original card, does that pencil notation "Letter of May 9, 1905," was that put on there in 1905?

A. I said probably.

Q. If you send out a census card before this without that on there, then you know that wasn't put on there in 1905, don't you? A. Might have been an exception.

The Court: That is if a certified copy of a census card was sent out since 1905 without that notation.

Q. Then, you are quite satisfied that wouldn't have been on there. In other words, you are generally correct in your certification? A. Yes, sir.

Recross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Let me ask you this: Wasn't it the practice of the Commission in issuing certified copies of census cards up to about the year 1910 or '11, not to put on the copies which they were issuing pencil notations?

A. Well, now, I couldn't say about the date. They did put the notations on and then they stopped, but I don't know just exactly when they did stop.

Q. And then later they commenced again?

A. I couldn't say as to that.

Q. Let me see if you understand me I think I understand myself; when you would prepare a copy, make up a copy of a census card, you would put on the copy that you were making all that was on the census card except pencil notations, and for a long time certify to the copy as a true copy; then later because of some trouble that had arisen about doing that you adopted the practice of putting on the certified copy not only the pen and ink work but the lead pencil work?

A. That was the practice, but I don't know when it was started or begun.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, J. C. KENNEDY was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendants, Minnie Atkins, et al., and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. What is the name? A. J. C. Kennedy.

Q. Where do you work, Mr. Kennedy?

A. In the office of the Superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes.

Q. Mr. Parker's office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you worked in that office?

A. Well, in the Commissioners office and in the Superintendent's office since 1905.

Q. You have been familiar with the records in there?

A. More or less, yes, sir.

Q. Familiar with census cards? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I exhibit to you what is admitted to be the Thomas Atkins census card. Will you look at it please? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, on that card, Mr. Kennedy, the words appear "No. 1, on '95 authenticated roll, No. 213, as Thomas Atkins." That is in writing, isn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Under that in pencil "E. B. Miller, Chief Clerk Land Office" in pencil, do you know when that was put on there?

A. No, sir. I do not.

Q. You don't know, Mr. Kennedy? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, under that in lead pencil— —Say, is that in a different handwriting in your judgment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is a different handwriting, is it—— Now, Mr. Kennedy, who put that on there "Letter of May 9, 1905, from the Commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes directing action be suspended in the matter of issuing deed to heirs of No. 1"? A. I don't recognize that writing.

Q. You don't recognize that writing. Do you recognize it as the writing of any one in your office?

A. I am not connected with that office now.

Q. Well, do you recognize the writing of any man that was in your office?

A. I recognize the writing just above.

Q. But you don't recognize that other as the writing of any man that was ever in your office? A. No, sir.

Q. And you don't know who put that on there?

A. No, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Kennedy, what time in 1905 did you enter that office? A. January 4.

Q. How many clerks were employed in the Land Office at that time where the census cards were kept?

A. I couldn't tell you that, Mr. German. I was first connected with the Choctaw Land Office.

Q. Where were you stationed?

A. At Muskogee; and then from November 21, 1906, I was connected with the Cherokee Land Office, and it was not until along in the first of April, 1914, that I had charge of the Creek Land Office.

Q. So, prior to 1914 you had no personal knowledge of who made entries on census cards in the Creek Land Office or enrollment office? A. No, sir.

Q. You don't know. Now, if the letter dated May 9, 1905, was written by the Commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes to E. B. Miller, Chief Clerk of the Land Office, and delivered to Mr. Miller or to his office, what, according to practice of the office, would have been done with reference to that if it related to suspending the issuance of patents to the heirs of Thomas Atkins, enrolled opposite No. 7913; would there or not have been any entry made on the census card?

A. Well, I couldn't say as to the practice at that time.

Q. You were not acquainted with the practice at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you don't know which one of the clerks in that office made that entry? A. No, sir.

Q. State whether from your experience and acquaintance with the work of the office such entries as appear upon census card similar to this one would be made at or near the time of the writing of the letter, the receipt of the letter?

A. Well, there would have been a pencil notation put on the card.

Mr. German: That is all.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. German: I would like to ask the Court to notice that writing, this notation, the age on the original census card. That is the original census card.

The Court: Made in 1897 or 1898?

Mr. German: No, sir, there was no old census card. That is the census card of Thomas Atkins.

And thereupon, W. H. ANGEL, was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendant, Minnie Atkins, et al., and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Beall.

Q. Your name is W. H. Angel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have heretofore testified in this case as a witness for the Government? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you identified the exhibits, Mr. Angel?

A. No, sir.

Q. I will hand you Government's Exhibit A-3 and ask you to state what that is?

A. That is a certified copy of pages 320, 324, and 339 of the letter press copy book No. 1, and transmitting Creek Roll of citizens by blood to the Secretary of the Interior for approval.

Q. That is not a photographic copy of the original letter? A. That is not, no, sir.

Q. I will ask you from what that photograph was made?

A. That is made from the letter press copy of the original letter of March 1, 1902, addressed to the Secretary of the Interior transmitting a partial roll of citizens by blood of the Creek Nation, No. 7825 to No. 8312, in so far as it relates to pages 320, 324, and 339.

Q. Mr. Angel, the letter press copy from which this photograph was made does not contain any impression of a signature of any person over the typewritten words "Acting Chairman" is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was the acting chairman of the Commission at the time that letter was press copied? A. Tams Bixby.

Q. Do you know what became of the original?

A. Transmitted to the Secretary of the Interior.

Q. Well, before it went to the Secretary of the Interior. after the press copy had been made?

A. Transmitted to Mr. Bixby direct who was in Washington at the time.

Q. I will read to you a letter from the letter press copy book, a letter dated March 1st, 1902. "Hon. Tams Bixby, Raleigh Hotel, Washington, D. C. Dear Sir: Enclosed you will find in duplicate schedule and decision letter of Creek Indians by blood as of March 1, 1902, No. 7343 to 7824 inclusive; March 1, 1902, No. 7825 to 9312 inclusive. These have been carefully compared by me and the decision letters have been signed by Commissioner Breckenridge and me. If you concur kindly affix your signature and deposit the same with the Commissioner of Indian affairs, advising this office in order that the impression copy book may be made to correspond. Yours very truly, T. B. Needles, Commissioner in charge." Is that the letter you referred to as transmitting the letter of March 1, 1902, to Mr. Bixby in Washington? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You don't know whether Mr. Bixby signed that in Washington or not? A. No, sir.

Mr. Beall: That is all.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, THOMAS E. KIRKBRIDE was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendant Minnie Atkins, et al., and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Have you been sworn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your name? A. Thomas E. Kirkbride.

Q. I wish you would look at that paper and tell me if you ever saw it before? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This paper purports to be a contract between you and a man by the name of Rogers and S. E. Mann. I will read to you a portion so as to direct your attention to the question which I shall ask. "Whereas, the west half of the northeast quarter of section five and the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section four, all in Township Eighteen, north range Seven east of Indian Base Meridian was allotted to one Thomas Atkins as a member of the Creek Tribe of Indians, said Thomas Atkins being enrolled opposite No. 7913 and being, at the time of his enrollment, ten years of age; and Whereas, there are numerous parties claiming title to said premises as heirs of said Thomas Atkins and as purchasers or lessees of said pretended heir of Thomas Atkins, it being charged by said pretended heirs and purchasers that said Thomas Atkins died many years ago, as a minor, intestate, without children or descendants of children; and whereas, said spurious heirs and their grantees and lessees have no right, title, or interest in and to said premises, though all of such rights are claimed adversely to the said Thomas Atkins, allottee; and Whereas, the Gypsy Oil Company, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, is now, and has been for more than one year past, in the open, notorious and actual possession of said premises; and whereas, said Thomas Atkins, allottee, is now living and his existence and whereabouts are known to said brokers"; I will ask you to state to the Court what Betty Mann and Rogers said to you when you made this contract about Thomas Atkins?

Mr. German: I object to that as hearsay, your Honor, he hasn't laid any predicate.

Mr. Stuart: Why, your Honor, Betty Mann swore that she had the frame up with this man and he knew it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. German: Exception.

The Court: He may ask him.

A. She told me that she knew that Tommy Atkins was living and where he was and could reach him.

Q. Did you believe her?

Mr. German: I object to that as calling for a conclusion.

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. German: Exceptions.

A. I did.

Q. Now, I ask you Mr. Kirkbride, whether or not you entered into any conspiracy or combination with Betty Mann, or Rogers to manufacture a Thomas Atkins? A. No, sir.

Mr. German: We object to that.

The Court: Let me see—this contact was brought out yesterday, I don't remember, probably on cross examination?

Mr. German: They produced it.

The Court: Just refresh my memory, Judge, as to how this contract came into the Long transactions that were gone into.

Mr. Stuart: You remember, your Honor, I called Betty Mann back on cross examination and asked her if in the summer of 1914, the summer, she didn't tell Long, and Josey, and Page, that there was no Thomas Atkins—that he was a myth; she said she did. Then I presented this cantract and asked her why it was that she made a contract in October in which she declared that she did know Thomas Atkins, and she said she did it because it was a frame up with this man, Kirkbride. It is a clear contradiction.

The Court: He may answer.

The Court: We except.

Q. Well, I will ask you to state to the Court whether or not you entered into any combination or conspiracy to frame up a Thomas Atkins with Betty Mann? A. No, sir.

Mr. German: We object to that as incompetent.

The Court: Overruled; exceptions noted.

Mr. German: Exception.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mr. Kirkbridge, how long have you lived in Tulsa?

A. Four years last March.

Q. You knew of the controversy involving this allotment when you entered into this contract with Betty Mann and Hook Rogers?

A. I knew it undecided who owned it; that it belonged to Thomas Atkins; that was my version of it.

Q. You knew at that time that Betty Mann had been sentenced to serve a term in the penitentiary?

A. No, I didn't know it at that time.

Q. You knew her, though? A. Yes.

Q. Knew her very well? A. Not very well at that time.

Q. You knew Hook Rogers, didn't you?

A. No, I had never seen her before the time that I——

Q. You had heard the character of man he was?

A. No, I didn't know a thing about him until he came to my office telling me that he and Betty knew——

Q. Rogers first came to your office?

A. No, Betty first came.

Q. You were present at the trial in July, 1914, wasn't you, at Sapulpa? A. Yes.

Q. You heard Minnie testify there, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew of her contention then, didn't you?

A. Yes; she said that she had a child at such and such a time.

Q. And you knew then that Betty Mann had been formerly working for Page? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew that she had also worked for Bartlett?

A. No, I didn't know that she had done anything for Bartlett.

Q. You knew that Hook Rogers had formerly worked for Page, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't know anything about Rogers.

Q. You found that out about the time of this contract?

A. Yes.

Q. And you knew that he had formerly worked with——

A. No, I didn't know anything about him until that time.

Q. You delivered this contract to Mr. Page?

A. Yes, I mailed it to him.

Q. You mailed it to Mr. Page? A. Yes.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, D. N. HODGE, a witness produced on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins, et al., sworn and under oath testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. What is your name? A. D. M. Hodge.

Q. How old are you, Mr. Hodge? A. 76.

Q. Of what race are you? A. Creek.

Q. Creek Indian? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where were you born, Mr. Hodge?

A. I was born at Choska.

Q. Choska? A. Creek Nation.

Q. In the Creek Nation? A. Yes.

Q. And have you lived here all your life? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you a member of the Creek Council? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What positions have you held in the Creek Council?

A. I was at one time a member of the House of Kings and another time the House of Warriors.

Q. How long have you served in one of those capacities for the Creek people? A. Several years.

Q. When did you commence, as near as you can remember? A. 1868.

Q. In 1868? A. I think it was about that time.

Q. Have you been either a Warrior or a King ever since that date? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Hodge, do you remember when the roll of '95 was made up by the Creek Council—you remember the fact that it was?

A. It was made up but just what date, I can't tell you.

Q. Yes, but you remember the fact that it was made up—the incident? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Were you present when they were making up that roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I ask you the different—taking into consideraiton the different towns in the Creek Nation, who would bring in the roll of citizens from each Town?

A. The members of the House of Kings and Warriors, both.

Q. Would bring in the last?

A. The list of the members of their Town.

Q. Now, when that list was brought in by the various Kings, and Warriors, those particular lists covering all the Towns, were those lists submitted to a committee out there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To investigate? A. Yes, sir.

Q And did the Council afterwards act on the report of the Committee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Hodge, I will ask you whether or not the Kings and Warriors in Council there, exercised great or little care in fixing up that roll? A. Very great care.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you for—where did you get your information from to make up this roll?

A. Why from the Dawes Commission.

Q. Well, but I mean the roll of '95?

A. Oh, the roll of '95. It occurs to my mind that we got that from——

Q. The roll of 1895 I am talking about—the Creek roll of 1895 that you Creek people made up. You have told me that the Kings and Warriors breught it in from the different Towns? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Hodge, when the Dawes Commission came out there to examine and correct and make up the final roll, were you there then? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you tell the Court whether or not the Dawes Commission consulted people about making up their roll?

A. They certainly did.

Q. Who did they consult in making up their roll?

A. The members of the Council.

Q. And who else?

A. The members of the Creek Council and then——

Q. Suppose they couldn't get any information from the Warriors or Kings, where would they go?

A. Well, then they sent out to get the members of these two Houses to come there to them with whom they consulted.

Q. Did you have any difficulty between clansmen out there, and people by blood?

A. We did for a while but it soon had to vanish away because there was no such a thing as making out a correct citizenship roll of these people, because the orders was to make out citizens by blood, not by families.

Q. In other words, do you mean, were there members of certain families who were not members by blood?

A. Not members by blood at all.

Q. Now, state to the Court whether or not in making up that roll, you attempted to confine it to members by blood?

A. We attempt to members by blood alone.

Q. Members by blood alone. Will you tell the Court whether—that is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. You don't know anything about Thomas Atkins, do you? A. Thomas Atkins?

Q. Yes. A. I knew the old man Thomas Atkins.

Q. The old man. He was the only one you knew?

A. I knew Wyley Atkins.

Q. I am speaking of Thomas? A. Well, I knew him.

Q. Old man Thomas?

A. He was not the only one, you know; I knew him.

Q. Yes. Now, you say that you exercised care in making those rolls in '95? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But regardless of the care you exercised, there were some fraudulent names got on, weren't there, Mr. Hodge?

A. Oh, sometimes, occasionally.

Q. Occasionally? A. Yes, sir.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, R. A. JOSEY, a witness produced on behalf of the defendants, Minnie Atkins, et al., being first duly sworn, under oath testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. What is your name? A. R. A. Josey.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Josey?

A. Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Q. How long have you lived there?

A. Seven or eight years.

Q. Sir? A. Seven or eight years.

Q. Seven or eight years? Were you ever a stockholder in the Gem Oil Company? A. I was, yes, sir.

Q. Was Mr. Page your associate in the Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Josey, do you remember acquiring a lease on what is known as the Thomas Atkins property? A. I do.

Q. Did Mr. Long work for your Company? A. He did.

Q. Who were your attorneys? A. Rice & Lyons.

Q. At that time. Now, Mr. Josey, I will ask you when was the first time after you acquired that lease that you ever heard anybody say or claim that Thomas Atkins was a myth, as near as you can remember?

A. Well, as near as I can remember, at the time of this confession that was made in Seattle.

Q. Of Sadie James' confession?

A. Of Minnie's confession.

Q. Of Minnie's confession? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In Seattle? A. In Seattle.

Q. And you say that is the first time you ever heard of any claim of that sort?

A. That is my best recollection.

Cross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Mr. Josey, the Gem Oil Company was a corporation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were the owners of its capital stock in June 1914?

A. I think Mr. Page and myself, and I think there was one share of the stock in the name of Mr. King, J. F. King.

Q. That was for formal purposes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You and Mr. Page at that time were the sole owners of the capital, owners of that Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That condition as to ownership continued how long?

A. Well, it continues up to date.

Q. Mr. Long, you are acquainted with him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew of his going to Seattle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know of the preparation of any papers before his going that he took with him? A. I did at the time.

Q. You knew of his returning from Seattle? A. I did.

Q. You knew someone was returning with him? A. I did.

Q. That was before you had secured any lease on this property?

A. My recollection is that the lease was up in escrow to be held subject to investigation.

Q. Who did you think was returning with Mr. Long?

A. Mr. Hanford.

Q. You didn't know that it was Mr. Hanford—you thought it was some Army man, didn't you?

A. My recollection is that it was Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Long sent you a telegram advising you that he was returning with an Army man, did he not?

A. Well, I can't remember as to that, Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Prior to his return, had you gotten acquainted with Mr. Hanford? A. Mr. Hanford returned with him.

Q. Well, before that time had you ever met Mr. Hanford?

A. No, sir.

Q. Up to that time did you know what Mr. Hanford's business was? A. I think so.

Q. How did you receive that information as to what his business was? A. By letters or telegrams from Mr. Long.

Q. That is your present memory, is it?

A. That is my present memory, yes, sir.

Q. Did you know anything about Mr. Hanford's legal attainments or ability at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. You knew nothing about his antecedents at all, knew nothing about the man, except the information that had communicated to you by Mr. Long? A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. Why, Mr. Josey, were you anxious that Mr. Hanford be retained and employed in the case?

A. Well, I didn't know Mr. Hanford and those details were left to Mr. Long.

Q. Just answer my question, please.

A. State the question, please.

Q. Just read the question. (Question read).

A. I wasn't anxious that he be retained or employed.

Q. You was not. Before the trip, Mr. Hanford and Mr. Long came down to Tulsa and stayed for a few days, did they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did they stay?

A. Several days; I don't remember, Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. And they returned together to Seattle, did they?

A. I don't remember.

Q. At that time, Mr. Josey, were you skeptical of the title?

A. I was skeptical as to the identification of Minnie Atkins, whether she was Minnie Atkins, the mother of Tommy Atkins.

Q. What made you skeptical?

A. Well, I had investigated this title just around before this; it was generally talked of in oil circles and I had heard that Minnie Atkins had not been heard of in a long time and that she lived here and had gone away, and had not returned, or something, for some number of years, I believe something like twenty years, and I didn't have much faith in finding her.

Q. But Mr. Long before that had been to Seattle and had communicated the information to you that he had found Minnie Atkins?

A. I thought you were talking about the first trip?

Q. No, I am talking about the second trip. Did you want Mr. Long to take that second trip because you were skeptical of the title or of that situation in Seattle?

A. I wanted to be sure that she was Minnie Atkins as appears on the rolls—the mother of Tommy Atkins.

Q. At the time of taking the second trip by Mr. Long to Seattle, accompanied by Mr. Hanford, were you skeptical of that Seattle situation?

A. In what respect skeptical, Mr. Linebaugh?

Q. Were you doubtful? A. In what respect?

Q. Well, that is the question I asked you?

A. I wanted to be sure that Minnie Atkins was the mother—that Mr. Long had Minnie Atkins who was the mother of Thomas Atkins; I had that in mind at that time.

Q. At the time of the second trip, then, you were not sure of that fact were you?

A. I can't say that I was sure, but I wanted to be as sure as possible to be by making as much examination as possible.

Q. You had communications with Mr. Long from Seattle during the first and also the second trip? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the 7th of July, did you receive from Mr. Long, a letter, and among other things it stated—there was stated in the letter: "Hanford is still talking right"; what did you understand by that statement? A. I don't remember.

Q. It was a matter of considerable interest to you, was it not, the acquiring of this title? A. It was at that time.

Q. You conceived the property to be large value?

A. Not at that time.

Q. You were in telegraphic communication with Mr. Long, almost daily along about that, weren't you?

A. Probably so.

Q. You had talked with Mr. Hanford when he was down here? A. I had.

Q. And your entire conversation with Mr. Hanford so far as this concerned business matters was with reference to this particular title? A. It was.

Q. You had no occasion to talk any other business matters with him?

A. I don't remember talking with him about others.

Q. Now, that expression "Hanford is still talking right" —can you state to the Court what you understood that to mean? A. I can not.

Q. That was in a person- letter from Mr. Long to you, wasn't it? A. I don't remember the letter at all.

Q. Examine this letter and see if you remember it. Have you read enough to determine you whether you——

A. No, sir, I don't remember it.

Mr. Linebaugh: May it be agreed that the letter the witness is reading is the same letter read by witness Long on examination?

Mr. Stuart: I don't know; I presume it is.

Mr. Linebaugh: Do you agree?

Mr. Hanford: I suppose it is.

Mr. Linebaugh: We offer the letter then, and ask that it be marked for identification.

The Court: There is no question in the Court's mind but what it is the same letter.

Mr. Hanford: It is agreed to, your Honor.

The Court: That letter has been read in evidence and is the letter to which you called the witness' attention.

Q. Mr. Josey, I show you a telegram dated June 16th from Long to you—June 16th, 1914; since refreshing your memory from that telegram, were you of opinion that Mr. Long was bringing back with him an Army officer?

A. I don't remember.

Q. The telegram says: "Trust agreement executed to Army Officers. Bringing one back with me"—now did you receive any letter or telegram from Mr. Long in which he stated that he was bringing with him Mr. Hanford, a lawyer?

A. I don't remember Mr. Linebaugh; I haven't seen these letters or telegrams since I sold out of this case a year and a half ago and I tried to forget it; tried to talk to no one about it. I have forgotten these matters, I have had a lot of business since and this is the first time I have seen it.

Q. July 9, 1916, you lived at Tulsa? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you ever been to Leavenworth, traveling there?

A. Since that time?

Q. Yes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On July 9th, 1914, I should have said? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was railroad communication between the two towns at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Telegraphic communication or connection?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And telephone connection? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How far is it from Tulsa to Leavenworth, Kansas?

A. I would guess about three hundred miles.

The Court: Probably the Court will take judicial notice of the distance and that there were telephones and railroads and so forth.

Mr. Linebaugh: I knew the Court would take judicial notice of the townsite but I didn't know about the telephone and telegraph, so I thought I would prove it.

The Court: I think so.

Q. You received, did you, a letter from Mr. Long from Seattle under date July 10th, 1914, a portion of which I hand you for your inspection?

A. I don't remember receiving it.

Q. Do you remember of having received an affidavit that Minnie Atkins was supposed to have executed at Seattle?

A. I don't remember having received it.

Q. You don't have any recollection of having received that? A. Not at this time.

Q. Do you know what became of the table, or did you ever see a table which accompanied the letter of July 10, 1914? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you in Kansas City, subsequent to the time at a time when Minnie Atkins made a written statement in the hotel in your presence of the presence of Mr. Page, Mr. Long, Mr. Hanford and Mr. Rice? A. Where was that?

Q. At Kansas City in the fall of that same year?

A. I made two or three trips up there.

Q. Were you ever present when Minnie Atkins made a written statement, a statement which was reduced to writing and signed?

The Court: Do you remember Mr. Josey being in Kansas City together with the other parties and Minnie Atkins was there and you had a conversation?

A. I do.

The Court: You remember that circumstance?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did Minnie Atkins at that time make a written statement? A. I don't remember.

Q. If she did you don't know what become of it?

A. I don't remember.

Q. When did you first know about Sadie James?

A. Well, I was in the east when Sadie James was employed in the case.

Q. I understand, but had you heard about her before you went to the east?

A. I think that I had in connection with her work for Mr. Bartlett or somebody else interested.

Q. In this case? A. I think so.

Q. Now, when did you receive that first information?

A. I think that Mr. Long wrote me a letter.

Q. Do you know where that letter is that he wrote you?

A. No.

Q. But your recollection is that he did write you a letter telling you about Sadie James?

A. I don't remember what was in it.

Q. Having been at Seattle? A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, before July 16, 1914, you had heard of Sadie James in connection with this case, hadn't you?

A. Wouldn't be positive that I had.

Q. Now, on July 16, 1914, Mr. Long wired you a night letter as follows: "Portland, Oregon. Wired you this afternoon Bartlett is here, Sadie has been here for several days." Now, did the use of merely the Christian or given name of Sadie in that telegram convey to your mind who he was talking about? A. It did.

Q. Then, prior to that time you had received some information from him with reference to Sadie James' activities in this case, hadn't you?

A. I must have had since you have that telegram.

Q. Now, can you tell the Court what that information was that you received? A. I cannot.

Q. It was by letter?

A. I couldn't just get that, you say information had been sent to me?

Q. No, what information had you received prior to the receipt of the July 16th telegram with reference to the activity of Sadie James in this matter?

A. I don't remember unless it was her connection with other parties in trying to secure this lease.

Q. Now, do you know how you received that information?

A. I do not.

Q. In that same telegram the following statement is made: "She went to Seattle this morning", referring to Sadie, "with a friend of Minnie's and tried to see her but failed, "looks to me either like frame up for fake Thomas or effort to win Minnie away from Hanford. Hanford talked with Minnie's friend and her conversation indicates efforts to convince Minnie Tommy is alive. I will stay here until Bartlett leaves and keep in touch with Seattle by phone. Arrangements made for holding check as requested. At Oregon Hotel. Long." Now, the employment of Sadie James by your company was after the receipt of that elegram, wasn't it?

A. Sir?

Q. Of your employment of her?

A. I never employed her, I didn't know she was employed until I received this letter; and when I returned from New York she had been discharged. I don't remember of ever talking to her.

Q. How long did you remain in New York?

A. About two months.

Q. Did you know of the employment of Dennis Jones?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why was he employed?

A. As I remember it he had been working for the Gypsy Oil Company and knew a good deal about this case.

Q. Knew a good deal about it in what way?

A. Well, the Gypsy Oil Company had made some investigation about him in Leavenworth.

Q. What did you employ him to do, do you know?

A. Well, I didn't employ him, I think Mr. Long attended to that.

Q. Were you present at the time of his employment?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Were you in Tulsa at that time?

A. I was in Tulsa at one time when he was there.

Q. Sadie James was with him, wasn't she?

A. Not that I remember. No, she wasn't there, no, sir.

Q. Do you know Betty Mann? A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. When did you first get acquainted with her?

A. After I returned from New York—— No, after she returned from Seattle.

Q. Yes. How long after her return?

A. I don't remember.

Q. About how long, your best judgment?

A. Probably a day or so.

Q. A day or so? A. I imagine.

Q. It was before Mr. Long and Mr. Hanford returned from Seattle? A. I don't know, I don't remember.

Q. Where did you see her?

A. According to my recollection, in my office.

Q. Who was there when she came in or when you came in? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Page was there or not?

A. I don't remember, I don't remember the first time I ever met her.

Q. Do you remember when the lease come from Seattle?

A. Well, I remember in a general way.

Q. You remember the incident? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long after that was it that this corporation assigned that lease to yourself and Mr. Page?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Why was the assignment made? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, it was being made to you and Mr. Page as individuals can't you tell us why you made it?

A. My recollection is that Rice & Lyons suggested it.

Q. Why? A. I don't know.

Q. Didn't you inquire? A. No, sir.

Q. You and Mr. Page were the sole owners of the capital stock of the corporation at that time?

A. They was Mr. Page's private attorneys and I thought probably they had done it at his suggestion, I never asked any questions.

Q. You didn't know very much about this yourself, you weren't looking after it very particularly yourself, you were depending on Mr. Page and his private attorneys?

A. Yes, sir. I couldn't see anything wrong with it if they wanted it done that way.

Q. Well, didn't you inquire why they wanted it done that way? A. No, sir.

Q. Why didn't you pay for the lease when it come in?

A. I think we did pay for it.

Q. You do? A. We paid ten thousand dollars for it.

Q. You drew two five thousand dollar checks, isn't that the way you paid for it? A. I think so.

Q. But the checks were not cashed, were they?

A. I think so.

Q. Your recollection is that both of those checks were cashed?

A. My recollection is that we paid ten thousand dollars for the lease.

Q. Do you know who drew the checks?

A. Probably I did.

Q. If they were drawn to E. C. Hanford, why were they delivered to him?

A. He was representing Minnie Atkins from whom we had secured the lease.

Q. You had understood before that, had you not, that Captain MacNab had received a trust conveyance conveying in trust this property? A. I think so.

Q. You didn't make this check to him? Why?

A. I don't remember, I haven't paid any attention.

Q. I show you that check. Do you remember the fact that that check was drawn now that you have seen it?

A. I remember in a general way.

Q. Was that check cashed?

A. Do you want me to examine it? I think so.

Q. You think it was? A. I don't remember about it.

Q. Were you at Leavenworth in October, 1914, when depositions were being taken?

A. I was there at one time when depositions were being taken.

Q. Was any payment made to Minnie Atkins at Leavenworth? A. I don't remember.

Q. Sir? A. I don't remember if there was.

Q. Do you remember her having been in the hospital there? A. I think she was.

Q. Do you remember of a payment having been made to her while she was in the hospital? A. I do not.

Q. Sir? A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember the employment of Rube Smith?

A. I do not.

Q. You saw him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew your company was paying him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know why they were paying him?

A. Because he was employed in the case.

Q. Do you know what he was to do?

A. Mr. Long attended to those details and I don't just remember, Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Did you know Betty Mann was employed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why was she employed? A. To locate Minnie Atkins.

Q. Did you know at the time of her employment she was also employed by Mr. Bartlett? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you informed about that?

A. I expect I was at the time.

Q. Do you know whether anybody was to use names other than their own in communicating?

A. I think Mr. Long was but I have forgotten.

Q. Do you remember the name? A. No, sir.

Q. Does Bill Jones sound familiar to you in that connection? A. I don't remember.

Q. Mr. Long was the secretary of your company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was looking after these matters for you and the company and for you and Mr. Page? A. He was.

Q. Do you remember what information you received from Mr. Long which made you doubtful, Mr. Long or any other source, which made you doubtful of that fact, situated as you say you were doubtful?

A. I do not except that I wanted to be sure that she was Minnie Atkins.

Q. You say, I believe, that you didn't express any desire to have Mr. Hanford particularly retained in the case?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. You didn't express that to Mr. Long?

A. I don't remember that I did.

Q. Were you in Tulsa at the time of Sadie James' discharge from employment?

A. Well, I was—— No, sir, I was not.

Q. How long before the Dennis Jones employment was it that you had returned from the east to Tulsa, about how long?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Don't remember. Can't you tell us approximately, were you there a week or two weeks, give us some idea?

A. No.

Q. I notice that this check is dated July 3rd, 1914, but written across its face in red ink are these words "Not to be paid until July 29, 1914." Do you know why payment was held up for that period of time?

A. I do not, I do not remember.

Q. Have no recollection about it. Were you present at the trial at Sapulpa in July, 1914? A. I was.

Q. You heard Minnie Atkins testify? A. I did.

Q. That suit was pending in the month of June and July of that year? A. I don't remember.

Q. That is a suit was pending there involving the title to this particular property? A. I think so.

Q. You knew of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the month of June and July, 1914, the Gypsy Oil Company were in possession of this property under a lease or some title that they claimed to hold? A. I think so.

Q. And the litigation at Sapulpa in the State Court was with reference to that possession by the Gypsy and involved the title to this property, is that right?

A. There was a suit in Sapulpa.

Q. That was your understanding?

A. I think people claiming Nancy was the mother of Tommy were also interested in that suit and the Gypsy Oil Company.

Q. Who sent Mr. Long to Seattle?

A. The Gem Oil Company.

Q. That is your company as its secretary and representative? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And during that period of time and all subsequent times he has represented either the Gem Oil Company or you and Mr. Page or Mr. Page?

A. Up to the time I sold out as I told you about a year and a half ago.

Q. About a year and a half ago? A. No, sir.

Q. At this time you have no interest?

A. No interest at all.

Q. You have sold that interest to Mr. Page? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know of the employment of Sam Nash at Tulsa in the fall of 1914?

A. I remember something about it.

Q. Why was he employed? A. I don't know, I think Mr. Page gave him a job.

Q. Do you know why he did? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know of the employment of Walter Banks by Mr. Page in the spring of 1915? A. I don't remember that.

Q. Do you know Walter Banks?

A. I may have met him, I don't remember of having met him, but probably I did.

Q. I believe you said you don't remember anything about an affidavit accompanying one of these letters?

A. I do not remember it.

Q. Would it refresh your memory to suggest to you that the letter transmitting the affidavit said that the facts in the affidavit should be kept secret? A. It would not.

Q. Do you ever remember of having disposed of any affidavit in this case? A. I do not.

Q. By giving it to any person? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember of having disposed of any other written statement or table in this case by giving it to any other person which related to Minnie Atkins, information concerning her alleged son Tommy? A. I do not.

Q. You have no information at all with reference to those matters? A. I do not remember it.

Q. You do have an interest in the result of this trial, don't you Mr. Josey?

A. I assigned my interest to Mr. Page.

Q. But in the event Mr. Page should lose this law suit, you would lose a considerable sum of money?

A. No, sir, Mr. Page paid me a hundred and forty thousand dollars for my interest, and it provided in the contract I am to pay him twenty thousand dollars back if he loses.

Q. Well, then, you have got twenty thousand dollars' worth of interest in it?

A. Well, in that light, yes, sir, but I have assigned all my interest in the land to Mr. Page.

Q. If Mr. Page loses this law suit you have got to pay Mr. Page back twenty thousand dollars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Page, Mr. Long—— Kill that, please—— Do you know who employed Sadie James? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know who employed Dennis Jones or arranged for his employment? A. I think Mr. Long did.

Q. Did you talk with Dennis yourself, or did Mr. Long and Mr. Page do that talking?

A. Now, the best of my recollection is that Dennis Jones came down there, was in the office of Rice & Lyons and the matter was taken up with him there.

Q. Who employed Betty Mann?

A. Mr. Long employed her.

Q. And Rube Smith, if he was employed, was employed by Mr. Long? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, you knew of those employments at the time they were made?

A. Yes, sir, but Mr. Long attended to all of the details.

Q. Who would he advise with when he came into the office?

A. After we secured that lease, Mr. Page and myself and Rice & Lyons were consulted about everything of importance.

Q. But I mean as to the employment of these people to hunt up evidence and things of that sort, you didn't have anything to do with that your self?

A. I don't remember about that, Mr. Linebaugh. Mr. Long was working on the details and he had authority to go ahead and do what he thought was necessary.

Q. Mr. Page was active in the matter at that time, as he was at all times, you and he were equally at interest?

A. We were.

Q. And equally active? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you say you sold out to Mr. Page?

A. I think it was September a year ago, about a year and a half ago.

Q. You are a practical oil man, aren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is your business?

A. Well, I never—— I know something about producing oil, but I never worked in the oil field.

Q. You are acquainted with this particular oil field where this land is located? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What, in your judgment, was the fair reasonable market value of that property at that time?

A. At the time I sold out?
Q. Yes?

Mr. Stuart: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

The Court: He may answer.

A. I don't remember just the improvements or what it was producing. I would have to refresh my memory.

Q. Just your best judgment?

A. What the production was I have forgotten, I don't remember what the production was.

Q. Well, now, you were selling at that time. Now, tell us what in your opinion was the fair reasonable market value of that property at the time you sold it, considering the improvement, the production and everything in connection?

A. I don't remember what production there was or what improvements there were.

Q. Can't you give us some idea as a practical oil man, I want your judgment?

A. I told you a while ago I made it a point not to talk with anyone about this case. I haven't talked to either Mr. Long or Mr. Page and I have tried to forget those things. I have had a lot of business.

Q. Why have you made it a point not to talk to anybody about this case?

A. I had a lot of business and just didn't want to know about it, and I was out of it.

Q. I will ask you this, Mr. Josey, in your opinion as an oil man, last September a year ago, wasn't this property worth at least a million and a half dollars?

A. To the best of my recollection, I should say yes, Mr. Linebaugh.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, BEN COUCH was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendant Minnie Atkins et al., and testified as follows:

Q. August of what year? Ninety-seven? A. 1897.

Mr. Linebaugh: There was one question I wanted to ask Mr. Josey that I overlooked, and he desires to get away on a train.

The Court: Tell Mr. Josey to step inside the door.

And thereupon, R. A. JOSEY was recalled for further cross examination and testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Mr. Josey, while you were in the east and during the month of August, you received a letter from Mr. Long, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you receive more than one letter?

A. I don't remember, I expect so.

Q. Look over the letter marked Defendant's Exhibit B-13 and state if you remember having received it?

A. I don't remember receiving it, I expect I did.

Q. The first paragraph of that letter reads: "I have just wired you to disregard long letter of yesterday." Now, did you receive the long letter of yesterday referred to in this letter? A. I expect I did but I don't remember it.

Q. Have you any recollection about it? A. No, sir.

Q. Did they want you to do anything while you were in the east or go to any place? A. I don't remember.

Q. When did you first hear the name of Peterkin?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did that long letter, which you were advised by wire to disregard, did they want you to go to Boston, Mass.?

A. Well, I remember that they wanted me to go to Boston, Mass.

Q. For what purpose, Mr. Josey?

A. I don't remember whether I was to go or Mr. Long was to go. I never went.

Q. In connection with Peterkin?

A. I don't know, I don't remember as to that.

Q. Do you have now the letter referred to in this letter? A. No, sir.

Q. Anywhere in your files do you know what you did with it?

A. Probably destroyed it. I never kept those letters.

Q. Do you now recall when you first heard the name Peterkin? A. I do not.

Q. Do you now remember when you first heard the name of the child Robert Lee Peterkin? A. I do not.

Mr. Stuart: Mr. Josey, you remember that you really did have an interest in this company?

A. Yes, sir.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, BEN COUCH was recalled for further direct examination and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Do you know who, if anybody, Minnie went away from Muskogee with?

A. I don't remember of her leaving Muskogee with anyone.

Q. Well, you do know that she was joined by someone; state who that was?

A. She was joined by my brother, John Couch.

Q. And how long after she left did he go?

A. The best that I remember was some two or three or four days.

Q. You don't know where he joined her?

A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. How long was he gone?

A. Well, he was gone something like five, six, seven or eight weeks, along close to that time.

Q. And do you know where he went?

A. He went to Denver, Colorado.

The Court: Well, he gets that all from hearsay, what his brother says I suppose.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Was that in 1895 or 1896? A. 1897.

Q. How do you know?

A. My mother went to Salt Lake City, Utah, to the reunion.

Q. She didn't go with these people did she? A. No, sir.

Q. She didn't come back with them? A. No, sir.

Mr. Hanford: I suggest he be permitted to answer.

The Court: If you have anything further to say in connection with your mother going to Utah, you may state it.

A. That is how I remember it was in 1897, she went to Utah and come back in August, 1897.

Q. She went there and came back in August, 1897?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. She didn't go with your brother—— Was it your brother John or Frank she went with? A. John.

Q. Sure of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they met each other in Kansas City?

A. I couldn't say where they met.

Q. But she was gone sometime and then your brother left?

A. She was gone I think the best I remember some two or three or four days.

Q. All you know at all about her going with your brother is what your brother told you? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Allen: We move to strike all of this witness' testimony if the court please on the ground that it is hearsay and incompetent.

The Court: It will be allowed to remain in the record. The court will consider all that is hearsay, the court will so consider it.

Q. Where were you when they left?

A. I was in Muskogee.

Q. You didn't see them together at any time on that trip?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where were you when someone came to see you to get you to testify in this case? A. Where was I?

Q. Why, someone came down to my house after me and I was up town and my little boy came and told me there was someone up at the Severs Hotel who wanted to see me up there and to go up there.

Q. Was that John Culver that came to see you?

A. I don't know who it was came down to the house.

Q. You know John Culver, don't you? A. Who?

Q. John Culver? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He has talked to you recently about this case?

Q. No, sir, he hasn't.

Q. You don't know who that young [] was? A. No, sir.

Q. According to your understanding, just how many days was it that Minnie left here before your brother left?

A. The best that I remember was some two, three or four days.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. You don't know whether it was Mr. Hanford that came down to your house to get you?

A. I don't know who it was.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, SAM W. BROWN, being recalled as a witness on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins et al., and under oath testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. What is your name? A. S. W. Brown.

Q. You the same Brown that testified in this case before?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Brown, when you were at the payment of '95 and the money was paid over to Minnie Atkins, and some children, and Nancy Atkins and Ed Skrimpsher, who got Nancy's and Ed Skrimpsher's money? A. I did.

Q. You did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Minnie got the balance? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Judge, I will ask you at the time you made up the Euchee roll and put these names did you—had you ever heard any member of Nancy's family mention that Nancy had a boy named Tommy? A. No, sir, I never did.

Q. Did you as a kinsman of Nancy, ever know or hear of her having a boy by the name of Tommy? A. Never did.

Cross Examination by Mr. Rosser.

Q. Mr. Brown, you testified at the hearing of the case at Sapulpa, in 1914, didn't you? A. Probably I did.

Q. Well, don't you remember that you did testify there?

A. I don't recollect.

Q. Don't you recollect testifying at the hearing on the application for a receiver and to dissolve the injunction before Judge Stanfield about 20th or 25th of July, 1914, at Sapulpa, in the District Court of Creek County, at Sapulpa?

A. I don't remember at all.

Q. Don't you remember that? A. No, sir.

Q. Don't you remember Mr. Rice and Mr. Lyons were there representing Mr. Page and that Mr. Hanford was there representing Minnie Folk, or Minnie Atkins and that Mr. McGraw was there representing the Gypsy Oil Company, and that I was there representing the Nancy Atkins interest; don't you remember your examination there and that Mr. Gresham was there also, and that Mr. Gresham cross examined you?

A. Probably he did; I don't recall.

Q. You have no recollection of it at all?

A. No, sir, been so long ago; since I have been sick, I have been a little absent-minded.

Q. And don't you remember that you testified in that hearing that you were paid all the money that was coming to Ed Skrimpsher, Minnie Atkins, Harvey and Charlie Harrison, Thomas Atkins and Nancy Atkins to Minnie Atkins herself?

A. No, I might have said something like that but I didn't.

Q. Well, you testified to that at that time?

A. I might have at that time but I know I didn't because she received for four.

Q. I will ask you now in reference to your testimony, don't you remember that you testified to that?

A. I don't recollect that at all.

Q. You don't recollect? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you say you didn't testify to that?

A. Well, I might; I don't recollect.

Mr. Rosser: Your Honor, we have sent for the record.

The Court: Now, you may do this; if you are satisfied, Judge, you have examined the record and it shows, and if you are correct in your questions that it does show that, then that portion of it may be introduced.

Mr. Rosser: I am sure, Your Honor, that it does do that.

Cross Examination by Mr. Maxey.

Q. Mr. Brown, you have stated that it was your impression that Thomas Atkins was Nancy's child, haven't you?

A. No, sir, I never did.

Q. Didn't you tell me that?

A. I might have told you that sometime—there have been so many talked about it but I never knew Nancy had any child——

Q. I know, but didn't you tell me here in the hall, since this trial has been going on when you were here before, that it was your impression that Thomas was Nancy's child?

A. No, if I did—if Nancy had a child, it was a little girl.

Q. Well, did you ever see it?

A. I understood it was a little girl and the girl died while it was small; that is the only thing I knew about Nancy's affair.

Q. I didn't ask you that.

Mr. Maxey: I move to strike it out.

The Court: It will not be considered as to what he understood and it will be stricken out. He asked you with regard to a statement which you made to him out here in the hall.

Mr. German: If it please the court on that statement of the witness, if he seeks to have it excluded because it is hearsay, or anything of that sort, he is a member of the family.

The Court: If he understood it from some member of the family and that appears, but if he as a member of the family understood it from some other source, that would not be excepted.

Q. You remember that conversation, don't you, Mr. Brown? A. I can't answer that question at all.

Q. You don't remember saying that to me?

A. No, I don't.

Mr. Rosser: Now, Your Honor, I have the copy here which has been in Judge Allen's possession. I understand it is in the case which is in the possession of the stenographer.

The Court: You may examine him from that assuming that is correct. You may interrogate this witness here as to how he testified in regard to certain things shown and if necessary to produce the record later, you may do so.

By Mr. Rosser.

Q. Mr. Brown, you say that you don't remember about—
A. No, I don't.

Q. Now, weren't you present in court at the time and place that I suggested to you awhile ago? And weren't you asked this question: "Who was that?" and didn't you answer "John Davis, he run across me there and I asked him about those people; he said there was part of them living and he would give me the list. So he give me the list and I took their names. The first one was Ed Skrimpsher?"—and then was the question asked——

The Court: Ask him if he made that answer.

Q. Do you remember making that statement?
A. I made that statement here; if I did, I done the same thing.

Q. Then wasn't the question asked you, "State what you did," and didn't you answer, "He gave me a list of other names; stood there, and named them, and he said—;" then there was an objection made to what he said and the objection was sustained. Do you remember that? A. I do not.

Q. And do you remember then the question was asked—that you went on and answered anyway, "Ed Schrimsher was the first one I put down; his mother was Rebecca; the next one was Minnie." You remember making that statement?
A. So I stated right here.

Q. And then you remember this question: "Who were the others?" and didn't you answer that question, "Ellis, Susie, Thomas, and Nancy." A. I am mistaken there.

Q. And do you remember this question asked, "Do you know what relation Nancy was to Minnie?" and didn't you answer "full sisters." A. If I did, they are full sisters.

Q. And wasn't this question asked, "Do you know what relation Thomas was to Minnie," and you answered, "I can't tell you that, because he never said anything to me about their kinship, except I knew Ed Schrimsher?" A. If I did, I was mistaken. I couldn't answer that question, because I knew him pretty well.

Q. Then wasn't a question asked you: "Do you know where and when the money was paid and payment was made for these Atkins people," and didn't you answer that "yes, sir, I was there,"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you remember that this question was asked you: "Do you know who received the money for Nancy Atkins?" and did you answer "Yes." You remember that question being asked and that answer being made?
A. I answered that same question here.

Q. And do you remember the question being asked "Who received it?" and did you answer "The money was paid over to Minnie Atkins,"? A. The money was.

Q. Do you remember that this question was asked——

The Court: Did you answer that way over at Sapulpa?

A. Well, he has got it wrong; he might misunderstood me, because I can't make two or three talks out of it.

Q. Do you remember that question was asked you and you answered it that way, or do you not?

A. I said Minnie Atkins got for her four, and two of them were turned over to—all were turned over to me.

Q. Do you deny then that this question was asked you and that you made that answer? A. I do.

Q. Was this question asked you "Who received the money for Nancy Atkins?" and didn't you answer "I did and it was paid over to her, every dollar"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You said that? A. Yes.

Q. And this question "paid over to Nancy?" and didn't you answer "Minnie, I think I have the receipt at home." Didn't you answer that?

A. Now, I recollect about the receipt; I think I have it.

Q. Then was this question asked you, "Is that your signature, receipting for Nancy Atkins' payment; I am asking you about Nancy, not Minnie?" and didn't you answer "let me see, that is it;" do you remember that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then the question was asked "Is it?" and you said "that is mine"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will ask you now at the time these questions were asked and these answers made that you admit, weren't you showed at that time the 1895 roll, showing these payments, in connection with this examination? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And wasn't this question asked "You received the money for Nancy Atkins?" and you answered "Yes"?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this question was asked "Did you pay it to Nancy Atkins?" and didn't you answer "Everything was paid over to Minnie"? A. No, that was a mistake.

Q. You deny that? A. I couldn't do that.

Q. And then was this question asked, "Do you know this signature of Minnie Atkins?" and didn't you answer "Yes"?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the question was then asked "This is her signature?" and you answered "Yes" to that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then the question was asked this is this woman sitting in the courtroom, and you answered that "Yes" didn't you? A. Yes, sir; I guess so.

Q. Then this question was asked, wasn't it, "Do you know that she received the money there that day for Charley, Alice, Thomas and Nancy Atkins?"?

A. That I think was mistaken, because the money was paid to me for all of them.

Q. You deny that that question was asked?

A. Well, might have been asked, but I want to correct it.

Q. Now, didn't you answer "She received all of them?" "Yes, all of them"; and wasn't the question then asked "Do you know whether or not she was there to receive the money and receipted for it at that payment, Minnie Atkins?" and didn't you answer that "Yes, sir, she was there and received the money for all of them"?

A. Before I got off from the pay-table.

Q. And then wasn't this question asked, "Did she receive the money for Thomas?" and didn't you answer that "Everyone you see on the list"?

A. I didn't say I received for Thomas; I said——

Q. Do you deny that these questions and these answers were propounded—these questions were propounded to you and those answers made as I read to you?

A. I deny in one sense.

Mr. Rosser: Now, Your Honor, we offer this evidence.

The Court: You better get the original; get that tomorrow.

Mr. Rosser: In connection with that, when we get the case made, this follows now the statement in the record from the attorney: "I now offer Exhibit D in evidence, if Your Honor please;" I want to offer in connection with this cross examination the record showing that Exhibit "D" of that case-made.

Mr. Stuart: I don't know what it is——

The Court: It is not being admitted now. When you get the original record, if this is correct, then you may offer such portions of the record as you desire, and I will consider it at that time.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. From the questions read here, you answered that you got Nancy's money, did you?

A. Yes, sir, I answered that I got Nancy's money.

Mr. Stuart: Where was this record taken?

The Court: In 1914 in the State District Court at Sapulpa.

Q. Now in that case that has been read to you, you said that you got Nancy's money? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, did you or did you not draw Nancy's money?

A. I did draw it; I drawed it for all, and I turned four of those $14.40 payments to Minnie Atkins and also I held Ed Schrimsher's money.

The Court: The statements made by the witness in that record indicate that Minnie got all the money; the witness so testified, if he made those answers. He now states that he didn't make the answers to that effect, and, as a matter of fact, has testified here that Minnie got the money for certain ones and he got it for Nancy and someone else.

Mr. Stuart: He did state that he drew Nancy's.

Mr. German: Your Honor, pardon me; I didn't so understand.

The Court: I understood from the answers incorporated in Judge Rosser's questions that that purports to show that Minnie drew for all of the Atkins in the list there, including Nancy.

Mr. Rosser: That is the purport of his examination, Your Honor, but read in connection with the exhibit, it will show that he drew for four, and drew for the other two and paid the money over.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon court adjourns until 9:30 a. m.

And thereafter, and on May 26, 1917, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., court convened pursuant to adjournment and further proceedings herein were had as follows:

The Court: Proceed gentlemen.

Mr. Rosser: Your Honor, before proceeding with the evidence, I have a case-made on this testimony concerning which I examined Mr. Brown yesterday; beginning at page—at pencil mark that I am making on page 85, and ending on page 88 at the pencil mark, is the testimony concerning which I examined Mr. Brown yesterday afternoon.

The Court: This is the case-made?

Mr. Rosser: This is the case-made, yes.

The Court: I announced that you might introduce that and that it would be admitted in connection with the witness Brown's cross examination.

Mr. Rosser: Yes, sir.

Mr. German: Your Honor, yesterday Mr. Beall introduced Judge Angell and proved some records relating to the transmission of the schedule of 1902, in March, to Mr. Bixby at Washington, for his signature. By telegraphic communication Judge Allen has learned that the original at Washington shows Mr. Bixby's signature, and Mr. Beall ask- that we agree that it did, and we will do so.

The Court: The record may show that agreement.

Mr. Beall: Government's Exhibit A-3.

Mr. German: Yes, we are willing to agree that it was signed by Mr. Bixby in Washington pursuant to letters which Mr. Beall introduced yesterday.

The Court: Alright.

And thereupon, EDWARD C. HANFORD being called as a witness on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins, et al., and having been heretofore sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. State your name. A. Edward C. Hanford.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Hanford?

A. I live at Seattle, Washington, that is my home.

Q. How long have you lived in that country?

A. I lived there all my life. It has been my home all my life; I was born there.

Q. Were you ever connected with the United States Army? A. I was.

Q. In what capacity?

A. Well, my first connection with the Army was in the volunteers at the time of the Spanish-American War in the Philippines, and then when I came back from the Philippines, I went to the military academy and graduated and served two years as an officer in the regular service in the cavalry.

Q. What military academy did you attend?

A. West Point, New York.

Q. Wait a minute. How long did you remain at West Point? A. Four years.

Q. And you graduated there? A. I did.

Q. And got your diploma? A. I did.

Q. And then what service did you take with the United States Army? A. The cavalry.

Q. Are you on the reserve list now? A. I am.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, when did you commence the practice of law in Seattle? A. In October, 1898.

Q. 1898; was your father a lawyer? A. Yes, he was.

Q. Formerly United States Judge there?

A. Yes, he was United States Judge for twenty-five years.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, when was it that you ever—when did you first meet Minnie Atkins?

A. I first met Minnie on Saturday June 13, I believe it was, 1914.

Q. 1914. Now, will you state to the Court, the circumstances of that meeting and what occurred as briefly and as concisely as you can.

A. I was called on the telephone I think shortly after noon of that day by Captain MacNab, Alexander J. MacNab, of the Fourteenth Infantry stationed at that time at Fort Lawton near Seattle. He asked me if I knew anything about oil matters, oil leases; and I told him that I had incorporated several oil companies and had drawn forms of leases, etc., and that was the extent of my knowledge. He told me there was a matter come up out at the Fort, that they were going to make a lease on some oil land and he wanted me to come right out. He first told me that he had some telegrams he wanted sent asking for references. He gave me the name of three or four banks and some individuals and asked me to wire them and inquire about Charles Page and R. A. Josey. He said that these references had been given him by some man that was out there. I sent the telegrams and directed that the answers be returned to Captain MacNab. I went to the Fort some time after one o'clock and I saw Captain MacNab at Lieutenant McComb's house and he joined me and we went right to his quarters just beyond Lieutenant McComb's. Went to his office and he had some papers. One was a form of lease and the other was a form of contract. He told me that there was an Indian woman who was quite an army character and had been for a great many years who had come into good fortune and it was all very amusing and they were all very much amused over it. He told me briefly about this woman whom they called Indian Minnie; that she was married to a musician in the band and that he was a very good man, etc.; and that now some people had come out there and offered her four thousand dollars for this land and she had gone to Lieutenant McComb in regard to it, and Lieutenant McComb had asked Captain MacNab to look after it. She said that there was a negro that was offering four thousand dollars for the land and Lieutenant McComb had arranged to look after the signing of the deed for this land when Mrs. McComb decided that her husband hadn't ought to tend to business matters as he had no experience and she called in Captain MacNab. And another man, or a man named Long had shown up from Oklahoma that day asking for a lease; and he left these forms with me to show to you, and had told them that it was oil land and that they wanted a lease on it to pay a royalty. I told Captain MacNab if it was oil land it was probably very valuable and that they couldn't enter into any arrangement to lease it without knowing the proper terms to lease it upon, and without knowing everything in regard to it. And that it might be possible to develop it themselves without leasing it. He told me this man was coming out there and was due out there now and he was coming to Minnie's house. I told the Captain that we must then hurry to Minnie's house, we didn't know anything about them and they might have her sign a lease or something and her interest would be sacrificed, but that until it was looked into there was one thing sure she couldnt' sign any papers. We went down to Minnie's house and found Minnie sitting on her porch. Captain MacNab introduced me to Minnie as his lawyer and that he had called me in to look out for her interest in the matter. Minnie said that she didn't want to have any interest looked out for, that she had been offered four thousand dollars for the land for a deed to it, and that that was more money than she had ever had in her life and that she was going to sell it and take that money. We told her that she shouldn't do that, that we would do everything we could to prevent her from doing that unless it wasn't worth any more than that, and we discussed several schemes for trying to keep her from selling the land, and tried to jolly her out of it, but she was determined that she wanted four thousand dollars and she could live on that for the rest of her life and wouldn't have to work any more. And while we were talking there, Minnie told us about this colored woman that she said knew her. She had never known she was coming out there and was bothering her, and said that she was afraid of her, she talked too fast and she talked too much, and she didn't want her around at all; said that she was going to drive her out of house and home. And while she was telling us about her, the car stopped out opposite Minnie's house and Minnie said there she is now, and got up and went in the house. And Sadie James got off of the car and started up towards Minnie's house. An automobile followed her up with two men in it and Minnie noticed that first. She stood on the inside of her house and watched through the screen; and Sadie

James didn't come to the house. She went on up the hill past about two hundred feet from the house the street is. So, we sent Minnie up to see what was the matter. We saw these people were following her. Minnie went up and brought Sadie down to the house. Sadie said that they were detectives that had been following her all that day, chasing her all around town; told us how she had given them the slip and that they had kept on following her, and one thing and another. And Captain MacNab told Sadie that I was his lawyer and he called me in to look after the matter and there was nothing further to be done in regard to it until it was looked into. And Sadie wanted to know who this man Long was. Minnie had told her about this man, Mr. Long, up the hill.

Mr. German: We move to strike what Minnie evidently told her as a conclusion.

The Court: Yes, I appreciate that. You move to strike that?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: It will be stricken and not be considered by the Court, as a conclusion.

A. She said that she didn't know this man Long and didn't know who he was. Captain MacNab asked her if she knew Page and Josey. She said she didn't know Mr. Josey but she knew Mr. Page. He said, well, Mr. Long is working for Mr. Page and wantes to get a lease on the property. And Sadie was excited anyway and she became more excited at that. She said something that she didn't want any lawyers in on this and told Minnie she wanted to see her in the house. She went in the house and Sadie was in command of the situation and she tried to shut me out. Captain MacNab threw the door open and said come in Hanford, and we went in the house. Then Sadie started telling about Mr. Page; she said she knew Mr. Page and that she knew all about him; that he had taken Betty Mann up to Lawrence, Kansas, and gotten a forged deed to this property. She said she was in court when he came in there and stood up before the court and said, I own this property, here is my deed signed by Minnie Atkins. She was very graphic in describing this court scene and how Mr. Page had got up before the court and exhibited this deed and gotten Minnie's property, and that they weren't to have anything to do with him. And she asked Minnie if she had signed any papers. Captain MacNab had the papers in his hand that Mr. Long had left. Sadie wanted to see them. He showed them to her. Sadie told Minnie that if she signed those papers that she would get seven years in the penitentiary, because they had decided that Minnie was the heir of Thomas Atkins deceased. And that was saying that Thomas was dead and Minnie didn't know that he was dead. And she tried to exercise an awful lot of influence over Minnie to make her say that she didn't know that Thomas was dead, and stood up and pointed her finger at her and said, he may be dead but you don't know that he is dead and you shouldn't say that he is dead and you don't know it. Minnie kept repeating that he was dead. So, Sadie turned to us and told us that she knew more about Thomas than Minnie herself; that she had seen him when he was five years old in 1899.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, I assume that all the statements of this witness, as to what anybody said as to the existence of Thomas, will be admitted for the limited purpose that Your Honor admitted some of the statements of Mr. Long?

The Court: That alone.

A. Well, Sadie, then, went on to say that she was the trusted and confidential representative of the Dawes Commission; that she had been working for them a great many years. I forget how many years she said, and they employed her on all their difficult and confidential work. She said that she had four members of the Dawes Commission and Mr. Fred Cook coming to town that afternoon, and that they were going to pay Minnie four thousand dollars for this land, and that she had been sent out by the Dawes Commission to get the land. She said that they arranged—they had telegraphed her to have the bank stay open, and keep out five thousand dollars and to have a blank deed ready; so she had gone to the First National Bank, she said, and had them keep that money out and have a blank deed there for Minnie to sign, and she was going to sign it that afternoon; and I had gotten word from Captain MacNab to let Sadie talk, he started to speak several times and I stopped him so as to let her go on, and so when she mentioned that she was a Government officer of the Dawes Commission and was going to buy this land, Captain MacNab wouldn't stop when I signaled him, and he asked Sadie when the Government had gone into the real estate business and was buying Indians' land for four thousand dollars; and that caused Sadie to fly into a terrific rage; she was almost insane, and made no answer but turned on Minnie again to say that she didn't know that Thomas was dead. So I got Captain MacNab out of the house—I told him we had better go up and see about those detectives, and we went up the hill and I told him that she was a dangerous woman and he agreed with me that Sadie was evidently after that land and it must be very valuable, and we had to get rid of her in some way. So, we went on up and spoke to the detectives and asked them who they were working for and they said that they couldn't tell, and we came back down to the house, and Captain MacNab told Sadie that she would have to leave, that nothing further was going to be done because we were going to look after the matter and told her that he wanted her to stay away from Minnie; Minnie had been bothered enough and he didn't want her bothered any more. So Sadie left, and went on down to the car, and we waited until she got away and then started to the Post, and on the way to the Post, I told Captain MacNab that something had to be done to keep Minnie from signing this property away for four thousand dollars, that she seemed determined to do it, and thought that was a lot of money; she was evidently ignorant of business matters, and that the only plan that I could conceive at that time, on the spur of the moment, was to have her deed it in trust to someone, and that he should be the one to take that property in trust. He objected to that on the ground that he was an officer in the army and he was apt to be called away at any time, and he didn't want to——

Mr. Pinson: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. But I continued to urge him and we walked across the bridge—across a little valley, and came across the bridge and met Mr. Long; he was standing there waiting for us, and told us that he had seen that there was something doing over at the house, something going on at the house, and for that reason he had stayed away. Captain MacNab introduced me to Mr. Long as his attorney, and he told me that he was glad that they had called an attorney into the case, and Captain MacNab told him that we were going to look into this matter, and that he didn't want him to go to see Minnie or to have anything to do with her, but to do everything through us; and Mr. Long asked him, "Well, how about the other people; there are other people here," and he said he ought to have an even chance to get this lease with anybody else, and Captain MacNab told him that he would deal through him and he assured him that he could have a fair chance. I told Mr. Long that my plan at that time was to have Minnie not only have Captain MacNab look after her affairs but to actually deed the property to him in trust and to keep anybody else from getting it, as well as himself; and he was very much pleased at that and told us that that arrangement was perfectly satisfactory, and he was glad that it had been brought about and that he would not attempt to see Minnie any further, and he started up the hill. Mr. Long called us back once or twice and asked us if we were sure the matter was in our hands and I told him that I would assure him of that. So, he went on—got on the car and went back to town, and we walked up the hill to the Post, me continuing to urge Captain MacNab to accept this trust. We got to the McComb's house and stopped on the porch and talked to Mrs. McComb and her husband Lieutenant McComb, and they joined me in urging Captain MacNab to accept this arrangement and act as Minnie's trustee.

Q. Mr. Hanford, let's illiminate a lot of that; did MacNab accept the trusteeship?

A. He did. We went to the house and he finally accepted it with Minnie's—after we got Minnie up to the house and she agreed to it.

Q. Alright; well, commence after that——

A. I wanted to relate briefly that I met at Captain MacNab's quarters——

Q. Alright, do that.

A. When Minnie came there and we were discussing this arrangement, Minnie still wanted four thousand dollars; she didn't seem to understand about the value of the land, thought that she could get four thousand and thought that was a great deal more important than a great many more later. So we finally told her that we would see—we would take a chance on the value of the lease, and see that she got forty-five hundred, five hundred dollars more for the lease, by waiting until I could go down to Oklahoma and investigate it; and upon that she agreed to the trust, and I drew up a short memorandum of a trust agreement and deed of trust, to Captain MacNab, and a defeasance by him, and had them execute it here; had a notary come out. I later drew up a complete trust agreement on Monday. But while we were there discussing this Minnie—Mrs. McComb told us that Minnie had other children and said that Minnie had——

Mr. Pinson: Objected to as hearsay.

Mr. Stuart: Just leave that hearsay out.

Q. You learned from some source that it was claimed that she had other children?

A. Yes, and Minnie was present and admitted that she had five children.

Mr. German: We object to that as hearsay statement of a third person.

By the Court.

Q. Now, what was that Mr. Hanford, I will have to hear you, I don't quite follow you. Where was this?

A. This was testified to by Mrs. McComb in her deposition.

Q. I mean——

A. In Captain MacNab's quarters.

Q. At the time the trust memorandum was entered into?

A. Yes, Your Honor.

Q. Who made the statement about the children?

A. Mrs. McComb made the statement that Minnie had told her and we asked Minnie if that was so and Minnie said it was.

Q. That she had five children?

A. That she had five children.

The Court: That statement as coming from Minnie is admitted for the limited purpose.

Mr. German: Yes, sir, I didn't understand that Minnie was there.

By Mr. Stuart.

Q. Go ahead.

A. And after the memorandum or trust agreement was entered into that night or Saturday, I returned to my home and I called up Mr. Long at his hotel. He had given me his address and I told him that the trust arrangement had been entered into and that from then on, he would have to deal with Captain MacNab through me. The next day, Sunday, Mr. Long called me up, or I called him, I don't know which, but an arrangement was made to meet at the Rainier-Grand hotel, and I went down to see Mr. Long and went to his room, and he started telling me about the delays that he would be put to on account of having to wait for this lease, and delays while I was investigating the property, and that that was very unsatisfactory to him; and I saw where he was drifting and I brought the matter to a head about my going to Oklahoma to investigate it personally, and we were both of the same opinion and agreed that that should be done to save time and for better service. So I agreed with him to go to Oklahoma on condition that I should have a free hand to make my investigation, without interference, and that I should not be approached by him or urged in any way to enter into a deal, and that I should be free to deal with whomsoever I saw fit, and make the best arrangement that I could. He agreed to pay my expenses of my trip in making this investigation, with the understanding that if the lease—if I entered into a lease with any other person except his Company, that I should pay back the expenses that he was put to in taking me to Oklahoma. So we made a memorandum of that, I don't know whether Mr. Long put it in evidence or not, but we entered into a short agreement to that effect. The next day—— No, that night I went to Captain MacNab's quarter and told him of this arrangement I had made and that was satisfactory to him. So, I went back to my office and worked all night that night drawing up the trust agreement and getting my other affairs in shape so I could start the next day. I met Mr. Long the next day at the bank and he gave me a ticket to Oklahoma, and a berth ticket and one hundred dollars to cover my expenses; and I gave him a receipt including it this agreement to pay it back. And we went to the Fort. Mr. Long wanted to be sure about this trust agreement, that this trust agreement was with Minnie's free will and that it was all understood and agreed to by everybody, so that he could report that to his company. We went on out to the Fort and he asked Captain MacNab some questions in regard to it, and then he asked Minnie—we had her at the house——He asked Minnie if she understood it and she told him she did, and he explained it to her, and she told him that was satisfactory and the best arrangement for herself yet. And then Mr. Long said he wanted to have one privilege, he wanted to ask Minnie to write her name, that is write Minnie Atkins on a piece of paper, and he didn't tell us what for at first. So we wouldn't let him do it. We heard about this forged deed business and were a little afraid, we had had Sadie James to stir up too. Finally he pulled out a photograph showing the signature of Minnie Atkins on a card. Said he wanted to compare it with that card. Then, we told Minnie to write Minnie Atkins on a piece of paper, and he compared it and was very much pleased about somethng. He didn't tell us what this card was. But we left the house then and went down town, took the train for Oklahoma. At the depot when we got down to the depot, Mr. Long met me and told me that there was somebody at the depot that he didn't want me to see, or didn't want to see me going to Oklahoma. And so I went around the outside through the train shed and went aboard the train. I didn't understand what it was all about. We started back. It was on the train that he told me about this signature—— I won't be sure about that, whether he told me what that signature he was comparing——

The Court: Well, I think that is probably immaterial.

Mr. Stuart: Yes.

Mr. German: We regard it as rather important.

The Court: All right. I don't see the bearing now.

A. I believe Mr. Long did tell us at the house that Minnie did sign this Indian roll and that that was the signature he was comparing it with, because that served to identify her, and connected her with this particular land. But I was not familiar with Indian affairs at that time and haven't much recollection of what he told us then. But on the way back, Mr. Long explained to me the probable value of this land for oil. He had told us that it was oil land and might turn out to be valuable, but he hadn't explained anything about the sand and Cushing Pool. And made a sketch for me as he related at that time. That was done on the train on the way back, and he explained to me how the Wheeler sand had curved off to the left and the Bartlesville sand might follow that and leave that sand out, but the present indications were the Bartlesville sand would take in about the south forty or the west eighty, cut the corner; the east eighty wasn't considered of any value at all, and neither was the northern part of the west eighty. On the way back that is about the only discussion we had except I allowed Mr. Long to read the trust agreement that we had drawn very fully. When we got to Tulsa on Sunday I went to the hotel and Mr. Long came up there before—it was very early in the morning—Mr. Long came up before I had myself cleaned up and had my breakfast, and told me he wanted me to see Mr. Page right away. And I went out to Mr. Page's house with him. Mr. Page came down and I met him and sat there and talked to him, and I believe had breakfast with him. He tried to get Mr. Rice, his attorney, but we couldn't get Mr. Rice until along about noon. And we sat there and talked about making a lease, and I told him of my agreement with Mr. Long that I shouldn't be under obligations to enter into negotiations until I saw fit. Mr. Long told Mr. Page that was the agreement that I had come under. We sat there and waited until Mr. Rice came. Mr. Page had made several offers for the lease. When Mr. Rice got there he talked it over with him and Mr. Rice said that the lease might turn out to be pretty valuable; that if they got the Bartlesville sand that they would get a heavy production and it would be very valuable. Mr. Page then spoke up and said: "I will tell you what I will do; I will give you ten thousand dollars for the lease with the usual twelve and one-half per cent royalty." I told him I didn't know anything about the royalties but I might be able to get a higher royalty. Mr. Rice told me that that was the usual royalty and that was the royalty that was paid in fullblood matters on Indian land under the supervision of the Government. But I told Mr. Page at that time that that price I thought would be satisfactory if I decided to make the lease to him he could consider it a tentative agreement as to the price that was to be paid as a bonus, but I would reserve further before deciding whether to make him the lease or somebody else. So that was agreeable to him and he sent us down town in his car; Mr. Rice went to his home and I went back to my hotel. The next day Mr. Long and I went to Sapulpa—— I don't know whether it was the next day or not, but the next thing that was done, Mr. Long and I went to Sapulpa. Mr. Rice had told me there was a suit involving Nancy Atkins' claim to this land down there and I told him I wanted to see that the first thing. We went down there and were looking through the records and I noticed that there was no journal entry of a judgment having been rendered, so I wrote out in longhand an appearance in behalf—not an appearance, but a request to the judge asking him not to take any action in that matter until I could appear and intervene on behalf of Minnie Atkins. And while I was working a man named Rutherford came up from down stairs and introduced himself and wanted to know what I was doing there; and I told him I was attorney for Minnie Atkins and was looking into this matter; and he wanted to know what I expected to do about it; and I told him I was making a request of the judge not to take any action until I could decide what to do and that that was all that could be done at the time. He told me he would speak to the judge and see that nothing was done in regard to the matter. Said the judge was in Okmulgee and I believe suggested that I call the judge up. So I did call the judge up over the telephone and told him that I was then looking in this matter and the judgment hadn't been rendered yet and I wanted him not to take any action until I could see him. So, he said I will come right up; I will meet you at the Frisco station. I met him at the Frisco station, and told him what I wanted to do. He asked me if Minnie Atkins was alive; and I told him that she was and I was her attorney. He threw up his hands and said: "Good night, I will never sign that judgment." I left him with that understanding. I think it was the next day he rendered judgment in that case. So, I didn't do anything further with it because Minnie Atkins was not a party to the suit and it was not binding on her and we had to quiet title against Nancy anyway. So, nothing further was done in regard to it. Then, in regard to the claim of Nancy Atkins, Mr. Long told me that he could satisfy me that Minnie Atkins—that Nancy Atkins was not the mother of Thomas and that Minnie was. So, we came over to Muskogee from Sapulpa and he took me up to the Indian Office and called for all the papers in the Atkins family. He showed me the census card of Minnie Atkins and then he showed me the census card of Nancy Atkins, Cherokee Robinson, and a lot of other members of the family and explained them to me. And satisfied me that Nancy Atkins was not the mother of Thomas. So, we gave no further attention to that. Then, we went back to Tulsa and I got some oil maps and got explanations from the mapping companies in regard to the Cushing oil pool, and opinions as to the probable extent of that sand and one thing and another. And I had several conferences with Mr. Page and Mr. Rice in regard to the terms of the lease, and I had a form of lease of my own that covered every possible thing that could possibly arise in the oil field and I insisted that that form of lease be made. They satisfied me that all those things were covered by statute or by custom or by regulation of the State Commission in some form or another, and that the usual Government form lease, commercial form of lease, took in all of those matters. So, we agreed on the form of lease and the terms of the lease, that is as to the consideration for the lease, except one thing; in the contract I provided that the lessee should pay all costs of quieting title in Minnie Atkins against the adverse claimants. And they insisted that I should cooperate with them and should render my services. And I didn't feel that that should be done, that the whole burden should fall upon them, I should simply have the privilege of supervising, see that they acted in good faith. I didn't want any connection with it at all. And it took us sometime to agree on that, and they insisted that that be put in the contract. So, it was put into the contract that Captain MacNab and Minnie should furnish my services free of cost except that they should pay all necessary expenses that I should be put to. And that contract was entered into. I received a telegram from Captain MacNab just after I got here in which he told me that Mr. Bartlett was in Seattle and wanted me to see the Gypsy Oil Company, that they wanted the lease. But, before I went to see the Gypsy Oil Company I went down to Sapulpa and I found the record of that suit there, and found that Mr. Bartlett had this forged deed of Minnie's and he was a claimant adverse to Minnie, and that the Gypsy Oil Company had a lease from Mr. Bartlett under that forged deed, so I never went near the Gypsy Oil Company. I felt that they were adverse claimants and I couldn't deal with people who were claiming under a forged deed, and I think that that one thing influenced me more than anything else in giving the lease to Mr. Page; as well as the fact that he was an individual and I was dealing with him rather than a corporation where I would have officers to deal with. So, finally I sent word to Captain MacNab, I believe I sent him a night letter or telegram, that I had made arrangements to have this lease executed; that it was necessary to begin drilling at once and that other people were in possession of the property and that we should act quickly to get possession; and I wanted him to execute the lease and send it on and I would wait there until it came. He sent the lease on and I waited. And when the lease got there I had requested them to pay the ten thousand dollars in two checks of five thousand dollars each. And they wouldn't do that until they knew what arrangement I had in mind why I wanted that. So, I finally told them that if I had to co-operate with them in the conduct of this suit, that until the property was producing there would be no income and no way of receiving any compensation to carry myself along while this litigation was going on, and while I would be in Oklahoma; so, that, the only way that I could arrange was to make a part of this bonus money go to cover those expenses and that what I intended to do was to turn over one check of five thousand dollars to Minnie and then I notified them that Captain MacNab and I had set a price of five thousand bonus for that lease up in Seattle and that I had succeeded in getting double that amount out of Mr. Page, and that we would have the five thousand dollars to turn over to Minnie and we would have this other five thousand dollars to carry us along on our end of this thing, due to these delays on account of litigation. So that was satisfactory to them and when I turned the lease over to them, they handed me the check and across the face of one of them was written not cashable or payable until July 30th, or something of that kind, and I objected to that.

Q. Do you know that it was July 30th or was it about that time?

A. Well, about that time; I know it was not to be paid right away, and not until the last of July; and we had some disagreement over that and I told them that I was going to turn the checks back and take back the lease, that the agreement was for five thousand cash, and that payment in thirty days was not cash, and furthermore that gave them the privilege of stopping payment on the check and depaying it, and I wouldn't take it. Finally they told me what the trouble was; they were not satisfied as to the identity of Minnie. I already knew that because I had heard them questioning Mr. Long very severely about now he knew it and if he were sure.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, we object to this witness stating his conclusion; he says they were not satisfied. He should tell what was said.

The Court: He followed that up by saying that he heard them questioning Mr. Long; I assumed that is what he—go on.

Q. Well, they told me, Mr. Page and Mr. Josey, both, told me that they were not satisfied that thi was the Minnie Atkins, at least that they were not sure, they had no proof, and they wanted Mr. Long to go back to Seattle with me, and talk to her and assure himself absolutely that she was Minnie Atkins; and they said that they would send him back with me and I could take the matter of this delayed check up with Captain MacNab, and if Captain MacNab did not agree to that arrangement that then they would pay the check at once if I sent it in. And so, I finally had that agreement. I went over to the bank and tried to get the bank to certify the check and they would of course wouldn't certify it because it was not payable and if they certified it, it would be the same as payable because they would hold the money up that long. I started back to Seattle with Mr. Long and his father. When I got back to Seattle I left Mr. Long there and I went over to American Lake where the regiment was encamped; they were in camp in summer maneuvers, and I turned these checks over to Captain MacNab and I explained to him why they had held up this payment of the check, but that Mr. Long was there with me and he would satisfy himself as to her identity, and then the check could be cashed. I went back to Seattle——

Q. Wait a minute; did Captain MacNab agree to that arrangement?

A. He said that he would take the matter up with Minnie and he would agree to it subject to her approval. So, I went back to Seattle and Captain MacNab had to march with his regiment from American Lake to Seattle, and we were going to wait for him over there——

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, if he is stating some arrangement Captain MacNab had while the witness was here in Tulsa and Captain MacNab was in Seattle, I think that is hearsay. If they have the correspondence on it——

The Court: I don't understand what it was, Mr. German.

Mr. German: He said, the witness stated that Captain MacNab said he would take up something with Minnie.

The Court: Yes, but he hasn't said what he did; he stated he would do it.

Mr. Stuart: That he would do it after he saw him that day.

The Court: He hasn't stated anything that resulted with that taking up with Minnie.

Mr. German: He made the statement that he would take it up with Minnie. The witness being in Tulsa and Captain MacNab at American Lake.

The Court: He had returned to Settale at the time.

A. I was at American Lake, Mr. German, and talking to Captain MacNab, and I went from American Lake to Seattle.

Mr. German: Oh, I beg your pardon.

A. And there I met Mr. Long and we went out to Minnie's house and Mr. Long had a little knowledge of Minnie's family or her history, and we went out to talk to her so that he could get a statement from her so as to check up against her relatives and ascertain whether or not she was the real Minnie Atkins; and he made arrangements to take photographs; I didn't attend to the taking of the photographs; but he had that done. So we sat down at the table in Minnie's house and asked her some questions, just to tell her story, and got her started and she told us. Mr. Long made notes, and she wrote and I made a few notations of dates——

The Court: You say as she wrote or as he wrote——

A. As she talked——

The Court: You said as she wrote.

Q. Mr. Long was making notes and she told us her history, how she was born down here and her father died—her father and mother died a year apart, I remember she was along 11 or 12 years old at that time, and at her father's death, her uncle, John Davis, looked out for her, and sent her to Tallahasse Mission that burned, and she went from there to Carlisle and from Carlisle she went to work for George H. Hyde.

Q. At Leavenworth?

A. At Leavenworth. And while she was there she had given birth to Thomas Atkins and stated that the boy was born at the home of an old colored woman. I had already asked her before what became of Thomas, where she last had seen him and where she had left him, and she had told us that she had left him at the home of this old woman at Leavenworth because she couldn't take care of him, and they were good to him. When she told us in her narative that the boy was born at the house of this old colored woman, Mr. Long asked her if that was the same woman that she had left the boy with, when she went away, and she said it was; he said, now, that is what we want, what is the name of that woman; he was very quick in asking for that, in his impetuous way, and Minnie said, oh, my God, do you have to know that, too, and Mr. Long said yes, don't you can that we can then go there and find Thomas and find out what became of him and trace him down and find out if he is really dead, and Minnie said well, wait a minute; she got up and left the table, and came back and sat down, and said no, I will tell you, I am wrong about that; she said he was not born at the home of this old colored woman, he was born at the Hospital.

Q. What Hospital?

A. And he asked her what Hospital, and she said the Sisters Hospital, and from then on, I took no further part in the conversation, because I felt that Minnie was telling something wrong——

Q. Never mind.

A. Deceiving us; she had never told Captain MacNab, the first day she told him her story, that this boy was born at the home——

Q. Told it in your presence?

A. No, he repeated it to me.

Q. Well, I don't think that that——

The Court: You needn't state that.

A. I have my notes that I made from Captain MacNab's conversation, made that night.

The Court: Well, that is hearsay.

A. So, she told us the story as related by Mr. Long, and we went back down and wrote up an affidavit; Mr. Long gave me the data and I wrote the affidavit on the typewriter. It was after nightfall; the next day——

Mr. Allen: If it please the court, I think it would be well for the witness himself to tell what she said instead of telling what someone else said she said.

The Court: I have ruled that out.

Mr. Allen: He said Minnie made the statement testified to by Mr. Long. I'd rather that this witness himself detail what was said.

The Court: That may be brought out on cross examination. You may proceed.

Q. Go ahead.

A. The next day we went out to Minnie's home and read the affidavit——

(Short recess.)

Whereupon, court took a short recess and thereafter, having resumed, the following proceedings were had:

Q. Mr. Hanford, resume your statement where you left off?

A. I think I left off before the recess, that the next day Mr. Long and I had Minnie sign this affidavit, and we waited for Captain MacNab to come back from American Lake Encampment. When he got back he went to see Minnie himself and took these two checks and talked to Minnie about them.

Mr. Pinson: Just a moment, Your Honor, unless the witness was present it wouldn't be material.

The Court: Well, he is not going to relate, I apprehend, what the conversation was.

A. And after he talked with Minnie he told me that the arrangement was satisfactory.

The Court: Well, you needn't to state that conversation with Minnie.

Mr. Stuart: He says that after he talked with Minnie, Captain MacNab told him it was satisfactory.

The Court: Yes.

A. And it was satisfactory for us to use this other five thousand dollars for the purpose of looking out for her interest. And Captain MacNab asked me to cash that check, that five thousand dollar check. So, I gave him I think twenty-eight hundred dollars. We agreed that the best arrangement was to take two thousand dollars of that to use now, to use from then on, and that the three thousand dollars should be held by him, turned over to him absolutely to use as he saw fit for anything that might come up in the future. I told him that I thought two thousand dollars would cover all of my expenses in connection with this litigation in Oklahoma. And Mr. Long then went back to Oklahoma—— I don't remember when he went, but I stayed out there. I got a message from Rice and Lyons later on in the month that a hearing had been set at Sapulpa for a certain day to have Minnie there to be identified. And I just had time to get there. I got this message on Saturday——

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, the message is the best evidence.

The Court: Well, it is merely the message asking him to bring Minnie there. Have you the message, Mr. Hanford?

A. I don't know whether I have that one or not, Your Honor, I will look for it. I will say that I have some messages that were exchanged, but I kept no file. I have been living in suitcases and a trunk for the last two years and I have never had files.

The Court: Well, you may proceed without stating the contents of the message. What did you do?

Mr. German: Your Honor, we make this objection: He said that the message contained not only some reference to the hearing, but also about bringing Minnie that she might be identified.

The Court: Well, that will not be considered by the court; the court will merely consider the circumstance of the message pursuant to which she was brought to Oklahoma.

A. I don't know whether the message states that she was to be identified, but stated that she was necessary to be there; I got a message to that effect. That was on a Saturday. I went to the safe deposit box to get this five thousand dollar check, which payment was held up on, but it was after twelve o'clock and it was closed. I had to leave that day in order to get to Sapulpa at the time set and I telephoned George Tilden and asked him to come down and let me into the vault to get that check out.

Q. Who is Mr. Tilden?

A. He is the owner of the Safe Deposit Company where the check was deposited. And he told me that it would be impossible, that the lock was set for Monday and that it would be impossible to get the check. So, I explained that to Minnie, and Captain MacNab was in Glacier Park at the time. I think I have the message that I sent to Captain MacNab telling him that I was leaving for Oklahoma and taking Minnie with me and asking him to meet me at a certain point, but I got no answer from him; he was out in the mountains. So, I went on back with Minnie. When we got to Sapulpa we attended that hearing there, and after the hearing I went with Minnie——

Q. Mr. Hanford, just pardon me, what hearing was that?

A. That was the hearing at which Minnie was to be identified; was to be produced and give her testimony so that our possession of the property would be confirmed by the court against the Gypsy Company and others.

Q. Well, was it a suit, or what was it?

A. It was I believe an injunction suit, it was brought by Rice & Lyons while I was away and it was an injunction suit I believe against the Gypsy Company and others to prevent them from interfering with our possession of the property.

The Court: Was it in that suit that Minnie gave the testimony about which reference has been made at various times in this hearing, the Sapulpa hearing?

A. Yes, your Honor.

The Court: All right.

A. After that hearing, I started back to Seattle with Minnie, and on the way I stopped at Leavenworth and went to the Sisters' Hospital, to see if I could find the record of the birth of Thomas Atkins at that hospital.

Q. Now, who was with you?

A. Minnie. I asked the Sister Superior for the book and explained to her what I wanted to find. She told me that she didn't believe that this boy was born in a hospital, because in those days the hospital didn't take confinement cases. And she was sure it wasn't at the hospital and there was no use looking. But she gave me the record book and I looked through the years 1884 and 1885. At that time we didn't know exactly the date of the birth of Thomas but we thought it was either 1884 or 1885, as well as we could gather from her story and the estimate of her age, and so forth. And I found no Minnie Atkins. And the Sister Superior told me that she thought that was right, that they didn't take confinement cases, and left the room. When she left the room, Minnie said to me, "Did she say I never was in this hospital?" I said, yes, that is what she said. Well, she said: "I was," and she was so positive that in the face of my not finding the record that I decided to look further. I told the Sister Superior to let me see the books and I would go through every year both before and after 1885. And I started going through those books. And while I was looking through the books I came across the name, Minnie Peterkin. Before we left Tulsa Mr. Page had tried very hard to find out from Minnie who the father of this child was.

Q. Now, wait Mr. Hanford, before you left Tulsa to go to Sapulpa, or before you left Tulsa to go to Seattle?

A. Before we left Tulsa to go to Seattle. We had no time to talk to Minnie before the Sapulpa hearing. When we got to Tulsa we got right in the automobile and went to Sapulpa and she gave her testimony that day. So, I found that name Peterkin, and I recognized that name of Peterkin.

Q. You started to say before that that Mr. Page had said something about Peterkin? A. Yes.

Q. Where did he get that name?

A. Well, Mr. Page was questioning Minnie; Mr. Page was trying to find out who the father of the child was and Minnie wouldn't tell him. She stuck to that, that she wouldn't tell who the father of the child was. But asking about different people that she had known and one or two names that she mentioned, she mentioned the name of Peterkin being the father of Charlie Harrison. So, we questioned her as to whether or not he was the father of Thomas. So denied that and said that Peterkin didn't know anything about

Thomas; that Thomas was born before she ever knew Peterkin. But when I found this name Minnie Peterkin, I think I also found the notation that it wasn't for childbirth, or didn't show it was for childbirth or something, so I knew that that wasn't the time that Thomas was born. So, I took Minnie back to the hotel and I think that I abused her pretty severely, that is, I talked to her pretty severely about telling us that the child was born in the hospital when he wasn't. And Minnie cried. And she told me that she had lied. Said she didn't want to tell where he was born and that she didn't think that made any difference. But that the child was born at the home of an old colored woman there in Leavenworth. So, I told her we would go and find that old colored woman. She couldn't tell me the name of the woman, or wouldn't tell me the name of the woman, one or the other, and we set out to see if we could find her. So I went down to the livery stable, Mr. Cranston's livery stable and got a rig and drove around town. She gave me the general direction to go and I drove around town. I found out since, since learning, that I drove all around that part of town where Granny Letcher was, up and down the same street, two and three times, but she couldn't find the house; sometimes she would see a house she thought looked like it, but when we were—would get up to it and she would look at it, it was not the house. But I will state, we have since learned that the house has been destroyed and swept away. We went up to where it was a good many times. That is the reason we couldn't find it. Minnie got tired; she recognized places that she had been; places that she had known and told me about them and instances that happened there; she recognized one old colored woman; she said that she had known her and I tried to talk with the old woman, and she seemed to be out of her mind, and her face was eaten with cancer, and Minnie said it had been even a good many years; but couldn't get anything out of her, she kept mumbling in an incoherent way; but Minnie wouldn't tell me anything, wouldn't tell me the name of any people, so I decided to give her up and send her back to Seattle. So, I took her to Kansas City, put her on the train and went back to Tulsa, and I told them what I found there at the hospital, and how Minnie had told me about the birth of this boy at this old colored woman's but that we couldn't find the place, and I wanted to go back there and start in and find it myself; find people that knew Minnie. In talking in the office of Mr. Rice or Mr. Page, I don't know where the conversation was now, but we decided to go and take a try and see if Peterkin had known about it. Minnie was very emphatic in telling us that Peterkin wouldn't know about it, wouldn't know a thing, but we decided to take a chance, that he might know something. So I sent a telegram to ome of my classmates who was on duty at the War Department, and asked him to wire me where this retired soldier could be located; and he gave me his address, that he had looked up, and I started at once for Boston, and I went to the address given me and it was Peterkin's sister that lived there, and I told her that I wanted to see him and she asked me what I wanted to see him about, and I didn't tell her, and I left word for him to come to see me at the Puritan hotel.

Q. Where was this now?

A. This was in Boston. But he didn't come and I waited two or three days, I think I went back to see this woman, and she told me that she would have him come and see me. After I had been there about a week, Peterkin came to see me. I introduced myself and told him that I was formerly connected with the Army, and he laughed and told me maybe I was somebody from Washington to check him up to see if he was still alive, because he was drawing his retired pay, and was going to put him on some duty, or something like that, and he hesitated to come. I took him up to my room and I told him that I wanted to find out if he knew anything about a boy that was born to Minnie in Leavenworth, and he said that she didn't have any boy in Leavenworth; it was a girl, and I had him sit down and asked him about it. He told me that he was a soldier there and that he met Minnie in the spring of 1886, he thought, about the month of March and that she was working for Lieutenent Stafford and that she had been going with a man named Oliver previous to that and that when Oliver—that Oliver had deserted; tha Minnie was in a family way and that Oliver skipped out and he said he took up with her the day that Oliver left; and a few months later she gave birth to a girl that lived a couple of weeks and was buried there in Leavenworth. He gave me the name of Doctor Carpenter and told me how he had gone and gotten Doctor Carpenter and told me that he had given Minnie twenty-five dollars to pay the Doctor the night the baby was born and when he went to get him, Minnie didn't have this twenty-five dollars, and some other deals; and he said that after the baby was born, Minnie stayed there in Leavenworth, and she became afflicted with some trouble, with excessive flowing or something relating to ovarian trouble, or menstruation.

Q. Mr. Hanford, right there, did he tell you the place where this child was born, or do you recall whether he did or not?

A. Yes, he told me that Maggie Woods would remember about the birth of the child and I afterwards tried to find Maggie Woods and couldn't find her, and he told me that it was at a house near some rich people and that the man was the father-in-law of Shaffer, the billiard expert, and I went to a billiard hall there in Leavenworth when I got back and tried [ ] find out the name of that party so I could find that house.

Q. Well, let's go back.

A. And he said that he gone with his regiment to Fort Logan in the fall of 1887, and left Minnie there in Leavenworth; that she had been going with other soldiers. I believe he mentioned the name of a man Burk, or some other name that I don't remember, and he left her there; but in the spring of '88, she showed up again at Fort Logan and she was pregnant again, and he said that somebody in Leavenworth was responsible for her condition at that time, because he had been away too long for him to be responsible. But that she had come to him because he had taken up with her when this Peterkin baby had been born. He said that they lived in a—the Post was not finished, and they lived in a tent for a while, for a few weeks, and then she went to work for a Doctor—I think Doctor Richardson, and later this girl Mabel, he called her, was born and she lived so that he got to enjoy her; he said she was a sweet little thing, and he was awfully sorry when she died. She was buried there in the Post Cemetery. Then, that went the regiment was ordered to Texas, he went with the Regiment and Minnie stayed in Fort Logan. He said that he had sent her some money to come to Texas on, and she never came and he had never forgiven her for that yet, and never would. He was very much incensed over that. He said that just nine months after he left, she had a boy named Charlie and he said there was some question, he learned about this later—he said there was some question as to whether he or Harrison was the father of Charlie because he ascertained that he was born just nine months after he left. So after my conversation with Mr. Peterkin I left Boston. I came back to Tulsa and I reported to them that I thought there was something that Peterkin was holding back; that he was not telling me the truth; that he feared some complication and I particularly avoided telling him that this was litigation over oil land or anything so as to get his unbiased story, but that I was satisfied that there was something that he was afraid of on account of that girl in Leavenworth, but I was satisfied that he did not know anything about Thomas and Minnie was right in assuring us on that. Then it was about that time I was—I don't know whether I was going to Leavenworth or not, but I think that it was agreed that they would have an investigation made at Leavenworth, to find out where Thomas was born, and find this woman that he was left with, and try to find out if he was dead. The Gypsy Oil Company at that time were very active in trying to find Thomas Atkins himself and we thought that we had proof of his death, and it was possible they might, so that we should trace him from the beginning and see if we would find where he had died and when. At about that time that I came back it was that Sadie James showed up. I was in Mr. Long's office, the adjoining entrance office, when Sadie James came in and asked the bookkeeper if Mr. Long was there. Mr. Long went out and shut the door, I didn't hear what was said but there was just a minute until Mr. Long came back and said that was Sadie James and I said yes, I recognized her voice; and he said that he had taken her in to let Mr. Page see her because he,—we had told him what a character she was and he wanted to see her; and I went into the office, into Mr. Page's office, next door, to see Sadie but she was gone. She was only there a minute; I asked Mr. Page if he saw her and he said that he had; he said that I told her to come out to the Park and I would talk to her out there. And I asked Mr. Page, you are not going to talk to her are you Mr. Page. and he said why, yes; He says I want to find out what she knows—she has been working for these other people, and he said I am going to find out. And I warned him against talking to her, either then or the next day, I don't know when, and the next day Mr. Page told me that Sadie James knew all about the death of Thomas Atkins and that she could prove where he was buried and every thing about it, and that while she was working for these other people, she had found the proof of his death and that they had quit; and so I think it was then I think that I warned him against having anything to do with her because she was a dangerous woman but he was sure that she could find it and he said I won't have to pay her a cent unless she finds the proof. he said, she won't get a cent, and she said is sure of it and she could prove it in a week. And then, either that day or shortly afterwards, Mr. Long came to me and said that he had arranged to go to Leavenworth with Betty Mann—that Mr. Josey thought that Betty Mann might be able to find something; had told him that she knew the whole thing and he wanted her to investigate and see what she did know about the birth and death of Thomas Atkins. So he had intended to go to Leavenworth with Betty, but now on account of Sadie James showing up and they thought that they would find out so much more from her, he was going up there to Leavenworth with Betty but he couldn't put Betty off but he wanted to know if I would go to Leavenworth with Betty and I told him I would and probably that would be a good scheme to catch Sadie up, and if Betty knew anything we could check one against the other. So it was agreed between us that we would not let either one know that the other one was there; either Sadie or Betty, that the other was there. So, he told me to go to Leavenworth and Betty would met me there. So I went to Leavenworth and when I got there Betty wasn't there but she came from Kansas City, and I told her that I wanted to go with her every place that she went and see everything that she did. So, I hired a rig, the same rig that I hired when Minnie was there, and had a driver and drove all over town. And Betty would pick out the places that were old; she would go in and talk to everybody and ask them if they knew about Thomas, and Indian boy or Minnie Atkins. And she would sit down and talk to them and they wouldn't know. She would see and old negro on the street and she would get out and talk to them and question them on the street. Tired me out. I got tired listening to tales of slavery days and details like that from these old negroes; they would all go off on something like that. But when I got there with Betty I went out to find Mr. Long, and I met Mr. Long on the street and he had just come from Crilley and he told me that he was on the right track at last; that he was sure that now he would find everything relating to Thomas. And he told me of one or two people that he had talked to, told me of Kate Logan and what she had told him; and told me how he had found Crilley who lived right across the street and knew Granny Letcher and knew Minnie and knew all about it. And from what he told me I was satisfied that he had found the right ones. I told him I would continue to follow Betty, but I didn't tell her anything Mr. Long had told me. I think after we had been there a couple of days Mr. Long had told me about Granny Letcher, when Betty came to me very much excited and wanted me to go and see an old lady Letcher that some one had told her about this boy being at Granny Letcher's; she had found this old colored woman and talked to her without my knowledge and I hadn't heard it. And she gave me the name Letcher, that was the first check I had of Mr. Long's statement, and Betty told me where this old lady Letcher lived. So, I got in an automobile and went right out there and found this Letcher woman; and she told me she thought it was old Granny Letcher who had lived in Leavenworth a number of years before that I was looking for; that they had only recently come to Leavenworth and knew nothing about this Indian boy. I came back and told Betty that.

Q. Told who?

A. Told Betty that the woman didn't know anything. And she continued to try and find them, and finally I got tired following her and I decided to go out and find something myself. And I had a number of names that she had given me that I thought might put me on something but they didn't know anything. One place she gave me was away out on the edge of town and I hired Mr. Crilley and his automobile to take me out there. We started out and as we were passing a little brick house on the street there Mr. Crilley pulled his car up in the middle of the street and said: "Here is a woman that ought to know something." He said: "I have seen her around Letcher's a great many times." I got out and went and talked to this woman; her name was Smith, Mary Smith. She said that she remembered Minnie, and said that she remembered the boy and didn't remember much about the boy, but she remembered Minnie and remembered Minnie had given birth to this boy at Letcher's place. And then I asked her to go in the house and talk to me further. We sat down in the house and she told me that she wanted to know why I wanted to know and everything, and I told her. She said somebody else had been there to see her about this, but that she had told them she didn't know anything about the matter for a reason. I told her that anything she told me would be confidential. She said that she had a boy of her own and that he was a good boy and that she didn't want to have anything come out regarding herself, and she thought people were trying to find out about her and what she knew and where she had been around this place and it would become known and she didn't want it known. So, I made a note of her name and went on. Mr. Long had come to me in the meantime, I don't know whether the day after I got there or the same day, and he told me that he was going to Kansas City. And he said that he had to get rid of Sadie James and said that she hadn't been able to find anything about the birth of Thomas and that now, she had made a proposition to him that she would get some Kansas City niggers [] that some deserted grave was Thomas Atkins if she could find one; and that he was afraid that she would do that and would get some niggers and talk to them and get them to do that and he had to get rid of her at once. I told him that he should do this, should get her out of there. And he suggested that I go to Sadie and tell her that she was wanted in Tulsa right away; and then he said I had better not, that she was down at a place in an alley, that I had better not go there; if she didn't go to Tulsa that she would know I was in Leavenworth and she might find out that we suspicioned her and that we had Betty there. So, he decided to go to Kansas City and talk to the office and have them send for her. So, I didn't see any more of Mr. Long. I didn't see Sadie at all. I didn't see any more of Mr. Long on that trip. And finally I went back to Tulsa and left Betty there so they could send for her in the same way they had Sadie. I don't know how she come back.

Q. Now, before you go any further, you were stating you and Mr. Crilley started out to find some woman and that Crilley pulled up for you to see Mary Smith?

A. I went on out to see some old man. He lived in a shack but I couldn't get him to come out and talk to me. And some other people that lived near him told me that he was non compus and that there was no use talking to him. So, I left him and he was lying in a corner in the shack.

Q. All right, you went back to Tulsa?

A. Yes, sir, I went back to Tulsa.

Q. Go ahead. What was the first thing you did when you got back to Tulsa with reference to this case?

A. After I got back to Tulsa I started at once, immediately for Seattle to talk—— I am not sure that I went back to Tulsa, Judge Stuart, but when I left Leavenworth the next thing that I did was to go right straight to Seattle to see Minnie and try and get from her her story and see if this information we had gathered in Leavenworth was correct. And I set out at once and when I got to Seattle I went right away to see Minnie and I told her that she had deceived us as to the Hospital and wouldn't deceive us any more, and that now we had information about her past and knew enough about it so that there was no use of her concealing it any further, and that she had to tell us the truth. And I told her we even knew the name of the place where this boy was born and the woman she left it with. And she wouldn't believe me and wanted me to tell her, but I wouldn't tell her. And I asked her about one or two—I asked her if she knew Rube Smith. That name had been given to me by Mr. Long. I asked her if she knew Mr. Crilley. I had met him myself.

Q. What did she say about them?

A. She knew them and I could see that the information that we had was correct but Minnie wouldn't tell me anything. She kept insisting that she wanted to go down to Leavenworth right away, she could tell what she knew down there. And I couldn't get Minnie to tell voluntarily. She insisted that she wanted to go to Leavenworth. I talked to her for two or three days and became more and more convinced that the information I had was correct and that she knew it. So while I was there on this trip seeing Minnie I deposited that five thousand dollar check for collection with the Bank of Commerce in Seattle, and they sent it for collection. And I went up there one day and they had a telegram that the check was not paid. So, I sent a wire to Tulsa to find out why it wasn't paid and got the telegram back that they felt, that Mr. Rice had advised Mr. Page not to pay the check until Minnie——

The Court: Now, Mr. Hanford are those telegrams available?

A. I think I have them, your Honor.

The Court: If you have the telegrams they should be here.

Mr. Stuart: Well, you can get them.

The Court: Yes, if counsel for the Government desires them you may furnish them to them for cross examination.

Mr. German: We object to his stating the contents of them if he has them.

The Court: Well, we will go on now. I apprehend you are getting away from the telegram on something else.

A. Yes, sir, I wont mention that. So, I started back to Leavenworth. They sent word to me that they were going to take depositions and to bring Minnie at once. And I started back with her. When we were on the train, I think it was when we were away from Seattle a day or two, Minnie one day told me on the car that she had something to tell me. So, I rented the drawing room between the stations and I sat down with Minnie and her conversation was very short. She said that the information we had was correct, but she said I didn't want to tell you out there in Seattle. She said that is why I wanted to go to Leavenworth. She said I will tell my story when we get down there; and you are on the right track and I know now I have to tell it; and told me again the reason she hadn't told it was she didn't want the people to know up there in Seattle. When we got to Kansas City I met Mr. Rice there and I think Mr. Page came up and I told them what Minnie had told me on the train. So, we questioned her, Mr. Rice and myself, and I believe Mr. Long talked to Minnie at the Coast House after arriving, and Minnie wouldn't tell them anything. And she finally indicated that she wanted me to leave the room. So, I left the room, stepped out in the hall, and one of them came to me, I don't know who it was, I think it was Mr. Rice, and told me that Minnie was afraid that if she told her story that I would repeat it to Captain MacNab and Mrs. McComb and that she wanted me to promise that when all of this Leavenworth business came out that I wouldn't tell anybody up there in Seattle, her friends. So, I went in and assured Minnie that I was her friend and everything I learned would be kept to myself and I wouldn't tell anybody up there in Seattle, and that I hoped that she would tell the truth. So, she told us that she had the baby there at Granny Letcher's and that this was where Thomas was born and that was the woman she had left him with; and she had known all of the colored people but that she associated mostly with soldiers but she had to have some place where she could go when this baby was born, and that was where she had gone and taken refuge. So, when she told us that then they decided to go ahead and take the depositions. And they took the depositions at Leavenworth on that trip. I think that was in the month of October. When we went over to take the depositions Minnie got sick. She went out to Captain Ferguson's house at the Post and was taken sick. And it looked like she was going to be very sick. So, we had her brought in to the National Hotel and got a doctor and she became more and more sick. So, we took her to the hospital and she was there——

Q. Who was the physician that was summoned do you know? A. I don't know.

Q. A Leavenworth physician?

A. Yes, I think he was called by the hotel people, and we took the deposition I think while she was still in the hotel, and after the depositions were taken, one or two days, maybe only one day, we took Minnie out to the hospital; and Frank Long and I stayed there in Leavenworth until Minnie could get well enough to travel and take her back to Tulsa. And we took her back to Tulsa and got a trained nurse to take on the train. When we got to Tulsa we took her to the Brady Hotel, but the very walls and rooms and ugliness of the place made her worse and worse; and the nurse told us we would have to get her out of there. So, we telephoned Mr. Page and asked where else to take her. And he told us the best thing to do was to bring her out to his house where she could get the air and be comfortable. So we took her out to the house and Minnie and the trained nurse stayed at Mr. Page's house until Minnie got better, and then she came down to a hotel, the Oklahoma I believe. We had missed taking Minnie's deposition at this time, but as soon as she was well enough we gave notice and took—I say we, I took no active part in giving notice at that time, I was not familiar with the statute—— Rice and Lyons gave notice and had her deposition taken in Rice & Lyons office. The different parties to the litigation in the State Court case I think were all represented there at that time. After that deposition was taken I went back to Seattle with Minnie. I think the next thing that happened was I got the bill of complaint on the part of Quinton Garrett suing for cancellation of these patents and for this allotment, asking to have this allotment allotted to him.

Q. About what time was that and in what year?

A. That was in October, 1914. I am not sure about the month but I think it was in October. That was the next thing that occurred in this so far as I was concerned. While I was in Seattle at this time I went on attending to my other business there and it was about that time that I received word from Rice & Lyons asking for auhority to dismiss the suit in the State Court and institute suit to quiet title in the Federal Court—— No, I should have related that before, that was when Mr. Long and I were out in Seattle together at the time we interviewed Minnie and he had the photographs taken, but nothing became of that. The next time I heard anything about that. They decided to go ahead with the suit in the State Court because they thought it would take a shorter time to get their suit tried, and in case of an appeal it would take less time by going to the Supreme Court of the State, and that they could get a quicker hearing at Sapulpa than they could in the Federal Court. So nothing was done.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor will permit me to sit down.

The Court: Yes, sir.

A. I heard nothing in regard to Quinton Garrett, except receiving a copy of the petition and I left that in the hands of Rice & Lyons. I continued to tend to my business and I don't think I went to see Minnie for sometime.

Mr. German: What time are you talking about now?

A. Well, I have come back, Mr. German, to the time I was in Seattle at the time I received notice of Quinton Garrett's suit after the taking of the depositions in Leavenworth. And I was very busy in Seattle and didn't get to see Minnie or do anything in regard to this matter at all. In fact I gave no attention to it during this time. The next thing that occurred was when I finished business I was working on and went to Olympia, the State Capital, and filed a petition before the legislature and came back on Tuesday morning, and then I went out to see Minnie. When I got to her house I found Mr. Montgomery there. Minnie introduced me to Mr. Montgomery and he told me he had been to my office the day before to see me but that I was in Olympia. He told me that he represented the Government and that he had come out to investigate Minnie's claim to this land; and that some question had arisen to her title and that he was investigating it to decide whether or not her title was good, or whether suit should be brought by the Government to quiet title against her, cancel the patents of Thomas Atkins. He said that he wanted to find out the true facts and whatever they were that was all that he wanted, but that he wanted to talk to Minnie and wanted to talk to her alone. Minnie said: "No, I have got nothing to say that I don't want Mr. Hanford to hear and he can stay." I asked her first if she wanted me to withdraw, said if she wanted to talk to Mr. Montgomery alone. She made that reply so I sat down. And Mr. Montgomery seemed to be at about the end of his interview. He had been out there for sometime and it was about noon when I got there. Minnie seemed very much excited about something and wanted to know if I knew that the people down in Sapulpa had had witnesses trying to prove that the father of her child was a negro. Said Mr. Montgomery had read something to her that said that. I told her that that wasn't so that I was present at the taking of those depositions and I heard them and I knew that that wasn't so. And I asked Mr. Montgomery what it was he had read to her and if he would let me see it. He said that he probably would later on but that he wouldn't let me see it now. He told me he had shown it to Captain MacNab but had requested Captain MacNab to treat it confidentially and not disclose it to me for the present. He told me that I had been very much deceived by those people down there and that he was satisfied that they would all be sent to the Penitentiary. And I told him that was not so, that I was present at the taking of those depositions and I had talked to those witnesses and I knew what they stated there was the truth, and we had checked them up in every way possible. Minnie was very much excited about this statement that he had read to her, and I think she told me it was what Sadie James had said. I got the idea that it was a statement of Sadie James. And Minnie went on about that matter of proving her child was a negro. So, we weren't there very long at that time and Mr. Montgomery said he had to go now and he would come back and see her the next day. So, the next day I went back again and I found Mr. Montgomery there at her house then. I think we arrived about the same time. And Minnie was further excited then. Mr. Montgomery asked me if I knew that Minnie had made a deed of her property to Mr. Page. I told him that I knew she had not. And he said well she had. He said, isn't that so, Minnie? And she said yes, that is another thing for you to look into Mr. Hanford. She said I told you I wouldn't sign anything, but she said when I got mad at you down there I did it, I signed something. And she said Mr. Montgomery said it was a deed and wanted to know what I thought about that. But I didn't believe her even then. I thought that was something Mr. Montgomery had been telling her the same way he told her they had been trying to prove the father of her child was a negro. She was very much disturbed, asked me if I knew that they had been trying to prove that Thomas was drowned when he was six years old. I asked Mr. Montgomery what that was.

He said that that was another thing that they had done, that they had gone up to Leavenworth and had taken the testimony of witnesses to prove that Tommy was drowned up there when he was six months old. I think that same day or the next day I got a letter from Mr. Long telling me that the Nancy Atkins interest had been taking depositions to prove that Thomas Atkins was drowned but that they hadn't succeeded in proving it, that it turned out to be another boy. And Mr. Montgomery showed me a letter that Minnie had handed him from Mr. Page in which he told her that they thought they had found Thomas Atkins for a while, but that it turned out it wasn't. But he said that it would have been all right because they had taken a lease from him as a precaution and had taken a deed from him to her, which she could pay him for out of her royalty, but that he turned out not to be the right one, although he said he had us believing it for a while. That second day, Mr. Montgomery asked Minnie several times if she was the mother of Thomas Atkins and she told him that she was; said, oh yes, she was the mother of Thomas Atkins but that his father was not a nigger and that she knew who his father was. But she wouldn't tell that, but that he wasn't any nigger. And Mr. Montgomery told her that they had proven that she never had a Thomas Atkins; that the whole thing was a frame up by the crowd down at Tulsa; that the Government had absolute proof of that fact. But Minnie insisted that that was not right, that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins. So, then, he asked her—— She asked me why it was that she hadn't heard those depositions, why they had taken those depositions at Leavenworth and hadn't allowed her to hear it, and I reminded her that she was sick at the time the depositions were taken, sick in the hotel and the hospital, but that didn't satisfy her they hadn't testified that the father of her child was a negro. She was greatly wrought up about it and very nervous. So, Mr. Montgomery had a transcript of those depositions with him and he asked her if she knew George Crilley. She said yes, she knew George Crilley, he was a little fellow. And he said, well I will just read you what he said, and he sat down and read Crilley's deposition to Minnie. And Minnie corrected him once or twice. I remember she corrected him as to her age. Crilley said she was twenty or a little over twenty and she said, no she wasn't that age. And in Crilley's deposition there was things that reminded her of something, she would say she remembered that and tell something regarding it. When he got through she said, well Crilley remembered it better than any of them. So, Mr. Montgomery didn't read any more depositions to her, closed the book and left. Said that he would come back and see her the next day. But Minnie told him that she didn't want him to come back the next day, that she had had too much; that she had been worried about those things and she was all nervous anyway and she had had too much excitement; that she didn't want to see him the next day, she wanted some rest; and that she couldn't get over what he had told her about the father of her child being a negro. Now, while we were leaving her husband came in and he also requested Mr. Montgomery not to come back the next day. I think that she wanted to go down to do some marketing. So, Mr. Montgomery said he wouldn't come back the next day, that he would wait until Friday. And I went in to town with him on the street car. The next day was Thursday. I hadn't seen Captain MacNab, Mr. Montgomery told me that Captain MacNab had arranged for him to see Minnie; that he had brought letters from the War Department directing Captain MacNab to give Mr. Montgomery what he wanted, what he wanted to do, and I went to see Captain MacNab at his house on Thursday. When I got there I found Mr. Montgomery there. And the first thing Captain MacNab asked me was if I knew that Minnie had made a deed to Mr. Page. I told him I knew she had not. So he handed me a telegram addressed to Mr. Montgomery from the abstract company at Sapulpa showing that deed was recorded there on a certain date from Minnie to Mr. Page; and I went to the telephone and telephoned a telegram into the office in Seattle asking Rice and Lyons if that was true and what it meant. Captain MacNab told me that Minnie was on her way to the house. He was called to the telephone and when he came back from the telephone he said that Minnie was on her way to the house and would be there shortly. There were some other officers in the room. Captain MacNab said that he had to attend a court of inquiry and that he had to leave at once but before he left Minnie came in. Captain MacNab told her that. Asked her about this deed and she told him that she had signed it; and Captain MacNab lectured her pretty severely; he told her that Mr. Montgomery was there to find out if she was the mother of Thomas Atkins; that he claimed to have proof that she had never had a son named Thomas Atkins and he told her, Minnie, if you have [] deceiving us, he said, you should tell it; he said that Mr. Montgomery came here to find out the true facts and wants to get a statement and he has to go away; he has to leave and if you have claimed this falsely, you should tell it now. Now is the time to do it, and we will have nothing further to do with it, pointing to myself, including me in his statement; and Minnie sat down on the settee and Mr. Montgomery stood up and I stood near the fireplace and Captain Mac-

Nab went out in his office. Minnie just stood there in one of her stoic moods and Mr. Montgomery—Captain MacNab told her that if she had claimed this land falsely, that Mr. Montgomery was a Government officer and he would give her full immunity but that she should tell him the truth and stop her deceit, if she was deceiving anybody, and Mr. Montgomery when Captain MacNab left, told me that he had not—couldn't promise to give Minnie immunity, that the only thing he could do was to agree to try to get her immunity; that he believed that she had been imposed upon by those people down in Tulsa, and that she was not responsible but that he was going to send all of them to the penitentiary. I told Mr. Montgomery that I thought he had no right to talk of immunity and sending people to the penitentiary, that I thought that was only done to influence Minnie and that he wanted to get a statement from her, Captain MacNab had told her to give him a statement and should ask her what he wanted to know, and he asked her if she was the mother of Thomas Atkins and she told him that she was, and said nothing can ever make me change that; I am the mother of Thomas Atkins; and Mr. Montgomery walked up and down the floor in front of her and he told her that he knew that she never had any children except those three children born at Fort Logan; she never had any child named Thomas Atkins, and he told her several times that he only wanted her to tell the truth and he wanted her to tell him here now, that he had to go away, that he couldn't stay any longer and that he had to get a statement from her here and now; that he was through and that if she didn't tell him now, that she could take the consequences. Mr. Montgomery and I had some altercations, that is arguments, about his talking about immunity and about his telling her that he knew that he only knew that she only had three children and knew that she never was the mother of Thomas Atkins. I know that he only represented that in that way to—by way of suggestion—to influence her, and I asked him why he didn't leave if he had to go, that he had her statement, she had told him she was the mother of Thomas Atkins, and that was all he seemed to want to know, and he said well, I am going to get the truth before I go, and then I told him again to ask her and he went to Minnie and pointed his finger at her and said, I know you never had any children except those three children born there at Fort Logan, the little one that was born, and Charlie and Harvey, and Minnie bobbed her head, and he said you never had any boy named Thomas Atkins, did you Minnie and Minnie bobbed her head; and just about that time Captain MacNab came in. Mr. Montgomery told Captain MacNab that Minnie had just made a statement to him and he said I want to get it in writing; and Captain MacNab looked at me and looked at Minnie, and he said alright, you can go right up to my office. So, Mr. Montgomery went up to Captain MacNab's office, Captain MacNab and I went with him, and he couldn't find any paper. He found a lot of scrap paper that had been torn off of a sheet there, and he sat down and wrote out a statement with pen and ink and Captain MacNab called Minnie to come up and she came up and sat down in the room and Captain MacNab went down—went down stairs, and Mr. Montgomery asked Minnie to sign it and she wouldn't say anything and she wouldn't sign it. She just sat there in the chair. She would look at it and she would look at Mr. Montgomery and she would laugh and he smiled and she asked him, she said you look at me so funny; he joked with her about it, made some remark—I don't remember, and I went to the head of the stairs and called Captain MacNab to come back; I told him I wanted him to see what Minnie was signing and I handed it to him and he read it and laid it back on the table. Minnie spoke up and said, do you want me to sign it, Captain—oh, I forgot one very important thing; in the room down stairs when Mr. Montgomery was talking to Minnie, I told her that Mr. Montgomery was representing the Creek Nation and that it was his purpose to try to get her to make a statement upon which he could bring suit to cancel these patents and the land would go back to the Creek Nation, and she asked if she said if she was not the mother of Thomas Atkins, if her boys who were down here would get some of it, and he told her yes, they would get their share; and another time she asked Mr. Montgomery what they would do to her if she said something that was not true, and he said that they would not do anything to her but all he wanted her to do was to tell the truth; that was all he wanted. Coming back to the room, when Captain MacNab was called up by me, Minnie asked Captain MacNab if he wanted her to sign it and he told her that she should not sign it, if it was not true but that if it was true she should sign it. She asked him well, do you want me to sign it, and he said I don't want you to do anything Minnie, I have washed my hands of the whole matter, but he said, if it is the truth, you should sign it and be done with it, and we stood there quite a while and waited. I didn't say anything to Minnie at all. I didn't think that she would sign it as a matter of fact, and finally Minnie said—well, she got up and took the pen, Mr. Montgomery dipped it in ink and showed her where to sign it, and she signed it. We had had some conversation before she signed it in which Mr. Montgomery repeated that he would try to get immunity for her if she did sign it and he said that what he would do if she signed the paper would be to leave it with Captain MacNab and if he didn't get the immunity, then the statement should not count against her and that Captain MacNab was to hold the statement as custodian to be turned over to Montgomery only in the event that he should get immunity for Minnie. The statement was to the effect that Minnie was not the mother of Thomas Atkins and that the only children that she was the mother of was Alice, and Harvey and Charlie; those three.

Mr. Allen: I suggest that the witness has the statement?

A. Well, I will tell about that, Judge.

The Court: Have you the statement?

A. I haven't the statement, your Honor.

The Court: Mr. Montgomery testified in regard to the contents of the statement. I don't remember that it was at serious varience with Mr. Hanford's statement?

A. Yes, I want to contradict Mr. Montgomery on one point; Mr. Montgomery said that the statement included a recital that Minnie had—that the grass money she had drawn was for her father Thomas Atkins——

The Court: As to that—if that so-called confession is available, it is the best evidence itself of what was really said; that is my judgment about this case.

Mr. Stuart: Well, it is a fact your Honor, that I have never seen it and don't know where it is. I assumed that Mr. Montgomery had it, I don't know a thing about it.

Mr. German: He gave it to Captain MacNab to keep until he should produce the immunity papers, he didn't produce the immunity papers and never saw it any more.

The Court: I understood from Mr. Montgomery's testimony, at least it didn't develop that he got this, so far as what she said is material in this case the best evidence of that is the statement itself, and if it is available, I want to see that rather than counsel's statement in regard to it.

A. Yes, sir, I only wanted to testify that because Mr. Montgomery had testified——

The Court: Let me ask you, is that available?

A. It is not available, your Honor. I know what was done with it, your Honor.

The Court: What was done with it?

A. Captain MacNab gave it back to Minnie the next day and she burned it. I was not present but I know that. Captain MacNab went to her house and gave it back to her—Minnie and her husband were there and Minnie burned it.

The Court: That was the result of your investigation as to what became of it?

A. They just told me, I didn't investigate.

The Court: You only learned that.

A. I learned it the next day.

The Court: Well, if that is the case, of course it is not available, and secondary evidence will be proper.

A. Well, the result of that was that Minnie signed the statement and she went out and Minnie went with her.

Q. Mr. Hanford, you didn't finish there. You started to tell the Court what your recollection was, that there was nothing in there about grass money.

A. The statement said nothing about grass money or nothing about Minnie's father.

The Court: I wish Mr. Hanford, that you would state now, just as nearly as you can the contents of that so-called confession as you remember it.

A. Your Honor, the statement was very short——

Mr. German: Your Honor understands that until proof is made that the instrument is not available, we object to this. I assume your Honor is admitting it upon the theory that that proof will be made. He had no personal knowledge.

The Court: He has no personal knowledge of it. I assume there is no one here but the defendant Minnie Atkins who knows about it?

Mr. Stuart: And her husband; he is here.

The Court: Will that proof be made, Judge?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir, it will be made.

The Court: On the statement of counsel this will be received subject to that proof.

A. You permit me to state?

The Court: Proceed.

A. The statement contained very few words and it said this: I Minnie Folk, nee Atkins, hereby state in presence of Frank L. Montgomery and E. C. Hanford, her attorney, that I am not the mother of Thomas Atkins, and that the only children that have been born to me are—I don't know where he used the word Alice or Mabel—I will say Mabel—Mabel and Harvey and Charlie; and then her signature. After Minnie left I went down stairs with Captain MacNab and I asked Captain MacNab what he thought of it and he told me that he knew that Minnie was not telling the truth.

Mr. Pinson: Objected to if the Court please as hearsay and incompetent.

The Court: What is that?

Mr. Pinson: The witness said that Captain MacNab said—a statement of Captain MacNab as to the truthfulness of Minnie's statement * * *

The Court: I think that would not be material, I will not consider that. You may proceed now, Mr. Hanford.

Q. I would like to ask this: has Captain MacNab testified in reference to that matter?

A. He has testified in reference to this transaction but I don't know whether he mentioned that—yes, he did mention that.

The Court: Let's see; the conclusion which Captain MacNab may have reached, I think is hardly of any theory of the case—would throw any light on it.

Mr. Stuart: I would try to sustain their objection if Captain MacNab had spoken of it, made it less——

The Court: Yes, I will not consider it.

A. So, after the short conversation with Captain MacNab I went back to Seattle. The next day, I think it was pretty close to noon, I went out to Minnie's house and when I went in Minnie jumped me; I didn't even get my hat off before she wanted to know where Mr. Montgomery was; wanted me to go and get Mr. Montgomery. She said he was a devil, that he had made her sign that paper and made her sign something that was not true; that she wanted me to go and get Mr. Montgomery and bring him there. I told Minnie that I didn't want her to tell me anything; I wanted to get Mr. Montgomery and Captain MacNab. I said don't tell me a thing, and I turned down the steps and I ran, and I ran all the way to Captain MacNab's quarters. When I got there I found Mr. Montgomery and Captain MacNab and I told them that I wanted them both to come with me at once, that Minnie had told me that that statement wasn't true and that she wanted Mr. Montgomery to come down there at once; so, he started out with me, Captain MacNab said that he would—could not go, that he would see her later. Mr. Montgomery and I walked—I think we walked—but we went down to her house, and when we got there Minnie was not there; Minnie's husband was there. I told Minnie's husband that we had to see her at once, that a mattter had come up and that we had to see her immediately; I asked him if Minnie had told him anything about what she had done; he said no, but he said that she did not sleep any all night——

Mr. Pinson: Objected to as hearsay.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. You say that Minnie said that?

A. No, Harry. Well, we waited there for Minnie and in the meantime, some woman, one of her neighbors, some visitor, came to call so Mr. Montgomery and I were introduced to her by Harry and we stepped out side and waited for Minnie, and Minnie came up—she just spoke to us and went on in the house and saw this woman and then she came out the back door and called Mr. Montgomery and I from in front of the house, and we went around and she leaned over the fence, she said Mr. Montgomery I just had to tell you that what I said yesterday was not true; that I have told a lie to the Government now, and if I have to go to jail for that, why I will just have to go, that is all; but that I can't let you go away without telling you that I have not told you the truth. I am not pretending to repeat verbatim, because I can't right at this time, but I will state that I have a memorandum that I wrote up immediately this time, at my office. I requested Mr. Montgomery to come with me while I wrote I——

The Court: State it as far as you remember it, Mr. Hanford.

A. And she said I am the mother of Thomas Atkins and nothing can ever make me change that; she said I wish they would take land and be gone with it, so that Harry and I could have some rest. She said I don't want it; she said this thing has bothered me until it will drive me crazy; and Mr. Montgomery told her that—well Minnie I am sorry that you told me that yesterday, he said she had made him a lot of trouble because he had sent some telegrams and one thing and another in regard to it, and now he would have to take that all back, and she went on and told him again that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins and she had lied to the Government and she would have to tell him that it was not so, and he said, well, Minnie, I am sorry that you told me that; he said that I guess the land is yours or I am satisfied that the land is yours. I don't know what it is, but I don't want to quote him too strongly; and he said I hope to see you get it; he said but you have deeded it away to Mr. Page; Mr. Hanford says that he can get that back but I doubt it. But he was sorry she had told him that and we turned and went away. Minnie's statement was very plain and simple—it is the first time that I seen her really speak freely and convincingly and open up and tell anything——

Mr. German: Your Honor, we move to exclude the witness'——

The Court: Yes, it will be excluded as to the witness' conclusion with regard to that being the first time that she had spoken openly and convincingly. Just proceed, Mr. Hanford, and state what occurred.

Q. So, we left the house and I asked Mr. Montgomery what he was going to do now, and he said that he didn't know; that he had to communicate with Washington.

Mr. Pinson: We object to that.

The Court: Who was this now?

A. Mr. Montgomery.

The Court: As to what Montgomery said he may answer.

Mr. Pinson: Exception.

A. Said that he didn't know; that he would have to communicate with Washington. We went in on a car together and I told Mr. Montgomery that I was going to my office and that I was going to write up at once while I could remember it, a statement of what transpired and I wished he would go to my office with me and we would make that up together; and he told me that he had to go to the hotel, that he had to send telegrams at once on account of the telegrams that he sent on the day before, and that he couldn't go but that he would see me later. He asked me to come to the hotel with him but I told him I wanted to do this immediately so that it would be done as quickly as possible after the occurrence. He got off the car to go to the hotel and I went to my office and sat down at the typewriter and wrote off a statement of what took place there which I have at this time, and I had just about finished it when Mr. Montgomery called me on the telephone and asked me to come to the hotel. I supposed he wanted to see me in regard to making up the statement and I told him I had just about finished this statement and I would be right up. So I took it off and went to the hotel and went to Mr. Montgomery's room. I knocked at the door and was told to come in; I came in and Mr. Montgomery met me and closed the door and there were two other men seated over by the windows of the room. He introduced them to me as Mr. Robinson, of the Secret Service, and Mr. Buell; he said that they were gentlemen who were cooperating with him in this case. I told Mr. Montgomery that I had come there to meet him in good faith and I felt that it was improper for him to ask me to come up there and to bring me into a room where there were two other men to ask me questions; I told him that I had no regard for members of the Secret Service and I would not make any statement in their presence. Mr. Buell spoke up and said that Mr. Montgomery is the only one here representing the Government and that we are simply cooperating with him. He said Mr. Montgomery—I asked Mr. Buell who he was, and he said that he was simply a private party who was interested in this case, and I asked him if he was interested in the Quinton Garrett claim and he said that he was, and I said that, that I see then is the purpose of this investigation, to Mr. Montgomery, to bring this suit and then have Quinton Garret get the land for these people; Mr. Buell said maybe; he said that will come later; that is for future litigation. And Mr. Montgomery; there is one question we want to ask you Mr. Hanford and that is this: we want to find if you have communicated with the Page people about our being out here. I told him that that was our business and I didn't intend to answer it, and I didn't intend to answer any question, especially there in front of these two men who gave them free to say anything that they wanted to about what I said; and I told him, now, I am going to do this: I said I haven't made any statement here to you about anything and I don't intend to and I am not going to leave until I have witnesses to bear me out on that. And they said well, can't you get somebody, and I told them yes, that I could call somebody up, and I went to the telephone and I called up Mr. Garvin; he was a young law clerk in the office of a firm that I had previously been connected with, and I asked him to come up there. While—before he got there, they had some consultation between themselves, I think Mr. Buell and Mr. Montgemory together and when I turned from the telephone, they said, just a minute, and they opened a door leading into an adjoining room and Sadie James stepped out into the middle of the room and faced me; said how do you do, Mr. Hanford; I said hello Sadie; she said where did you see me last; I said, Sadie, the last time I saw you was on the streets of Tulsa. And I don't know who it was, Mr. Buell or Mr. Montgomery said, Sadie—said Hanford won't talk, says he hasn't got anything to say; and Sadie said is that so; and she said well, we will then go right out and see Captain MacNab, and I said I think that is a good thing to do, and I want Captain MacNab to see this bunch, see what is up, see what is being done. We waited there until

Mr. Garvin came and I introduced Mr. Garvin around and told him—I had asked him to come up there as a witness and the only thing that I wanted him to witness was my statement, made in their presence to him, that I had not had anything to say regarding these matters or anything at all, and I wanted to tell him that in their presence, because he had not been there before and hadn't anything but my statement. I stated I am to go with you, we are going out to the Fort. So Sadie left and got herself wrapped up in a big veil and we went down stairs and Mr. Buell called a taxicab, he and Sadie and Mr. Montgomery got in that taxicab and I called another one and Mr. Garvin and I started to get in that one and I told the taxi driver to follow the one ahead. And Mr.Robinson came back and got in our taxicab with us. We went out to the Fort and on the way out I asked Mr. Robinson if he knew Tom Foster. Tom Foster is the Secret Service Agent at Seattle, told him he was a very good friend of mine. He said no he didn't know him. I asked him if he knew Tom Fisher, and he said that he didn't know him. I asked him if he knew the Agent of the Department of Justice.

The Court: I don't think that is material, Mr. Hanford.

A. Well, I just mentioned that because in the taxicab Mr. Montgomery stated to me that he didn't know Mr. Robinson; and that was the first time I learned that he was not a member of the United States Secret Service. When we got out to the Fort—— I would like to state in that connection your Honor, Mr. Robinson didn't state that that he was a member of the Secret Service, but he did not tell me he was a Pinkerton or anything about himself.

The Court: Your first impression was he was a member of the Government service?

A. Yes, your Honor, not from telling me so. I told Mr. Robinson I would make that correction because it was gathered from my testimony at the Receivership that he said he was a member of the secret service. When we got out to the Post, the taxicab ahead of us stopped at the place below Minnie's residence and we pulled up along aside of them and they were out of their taxicab. And I asked Mr. Montgomery what they were getting out for and he said that Captain MacNab had told him over the telephone that he was going to be at Minnie's house that evening and that he was going up to see if he was there. So, I told him that I would go with him and that the others should stay back. We walked up the path ahead and went into the house. When we got to the house they all crowded up, followed us up and followed us in the house. And Harry, Minnie's husband, got very mad and wanted to know what this meant. And Sadie when she came in rushed out to Minnie, said Minnie come out here I want to talk to you a minute. I said, no you don't, none of that. And Mr. Robinson or Mr. Montgomery grabbed Sadie and pulled her back into the other room where everybody was. We sat down there and I said nothing is to be said here. I said I don't want anybody to talk to Minnie or anything to be said, I want Captain MacNab to be here and hear everything that transpires. And Mr. Montgomery said he would go and see if he could find Captain MacNab, that maybe he was on his way. And he went out and came back shortly. And Minnie stayed in the kitchen. Minnie's husband came in and wanted to know what it meant, said he was going to fire the whole bunch out and called them a lot of epithets; and then Minnie broke into the room and gave them an awful tongue lashing; called them crooks and robbers; said they had come out there and made her tell a lie; say something that wasn't so. She said she was the mother of Thomas and they couldn't make her say she wasn't. That they had made [ ] tell a lie to the Government and now she had to go to the penitentiary. She said that she had a mind to get a gun and drive them all out. She was in a rage and nobody could stop her. Her husband tried to stop her and I tried to stop her. I told them there is nothing to do except to get out of here, and I asked Harry if he wanted them to leave, and he said he did. I told them there was nothing for us to do then except leave and go to Captain MacNab, he doesn't seem to be coming here anyway. Mr. Montgomery spoke to Minnie's husband, says just a minute Harry, I want to show you something. He had a port folio that he opened and took out a telegram and showed it to Harry. Said this is not for you Hanford, says I just want to show it to Harry. I never have learned what that telegram was. Harry told me afterwards he was so mad he couldn't read it himself he didn't know what it did say. But we left the house and as we left the house that is where I had my conflict with Sadie James. I don't know whether you want me to tell about that.

The Court: Don't go into that unless it is material.

Mr. Stuart: I don't care about it unless the Court wants it.

A. It was in the dark——

Mr. German: We don't care for that.

The Court: All right, if counsel don't want it the Court don't care for it, so you may pass over that.

A. When we left and got out to the taxi cab, Mr. Montgomery got in one taxi cab and started to the Post up the hill to the Post. When he started up, I think some of the others may have been in with him, but anyway the taxicab he was in went up to the Post and I started on foot, the other taxi cab had gotten away. I got out and started on foot and ran up to the Post and when I got there I saw a taxi cab stopped in front of Col. Wilson's quarters. And I ran across lots and came in across Col. Wilson's lawn and I got up to the door and rang the door bell. And somebody got out of the taxicab and came up the steps and struck a match looking at the door place. I says, yes, Mr. Montgomery, this is the place come on in. He says, hello, Hanford, are you here? I said yes I am here. And Col. Wilson came to the door himself. He said, the first thing he said: "What is the matter Ned?" my face was all covered with blood and my nose was swollen out and teeth were out and one thing and another, and I told him I would tell him about that later, that there was a gang out here and they were after Minnie and I didn't know what they were going to do, but it was a very desperate gang; and I said Mr. Montgomery is coming here to make some representations to you from the War Department and try and get Minnie away from me. And I said that the War Department has nothing to do with this and no authority at all. And I said now I am going to assert myself as Minnie's attorney. Captain MacNab is no longer Minnie's trustee; and while you people are Minnie's friends I am going to insist that you do not interfere with her any longer because I don't know what these people will do. I told him about Mr. Montgomery getting Minnie to sign this statement, and about her statement in the morning taking it back. And he said that I should be assured that he would not interfere in my province as Minnie's attorney. That he had every confidence in the world in me and that he would back me up in whatever I thought best; and he said now this man is here waiting to see me, do you want me to talk to him? And I said yes, but I just wanted to talk to you first and let you know what is going on. I explained to him about the Quinton Garrett suit and that this was all in connection with that suit to get Minnie's land. And I left Mr. Montgomery with him there. And I went next to Captain MacNab's quarters and Captain MacNab was very much surprised at my appearance, my physical condition from the fight, and he told me——

Mr. German: Now, we object to that as hearsay.

Mr. Pinson: Isn't all of this incompetent, if the Court please?

The Court: Oh, as to his being surprised, yes, but I thought he would get away from that.

Mr. Pinson: Well, as to the visit to Col. Wilson.

The Court: I don't see how that throws any light on the point.

Mr. Pinson: It is hard to object in this narrative form.

The Court: Now, go on Mr. Hanford with relation to going to Captain MacNab.

A. Well, Captain MacNab said that he found Mr. Montgomery had deceived him, that he had told him over the 'phone——

The Court: What Captain MacNab said will not be considered.

A. Well, he said he had learned over the telephone——

The Court: Well, never mind what he told him. Did they talk with you at Captain MacNab's there?

A. No.

The Court: Well, then, let's not go any further with that. Judge, I think you had better interrogate Mr. Hanford about what points you want brought out.

A. I will state, your Honor, it is very hard for me to come to the material matters when I have to follow the sequence in the narrative form this way and I have tried to cut it out as much as possible.

The Court: I have permitted a lot of this to go in because of the latitude that was given Mr. Montgomery in his statement with regard to this conversation. It is all woven around this so called confession of Minnie Atkins. Now, this witness has gone over a great deal of ground covered by Mr. Montgomery. He has gone past the point of the confession and he has gotten up to the place where Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Buell and Mr. Robinson and he had the meeting at the hotel, then they have gone to the quarters. Now, you know that situation, do you conceive that there is anything further out there that is material or proper?

Mr. Stuart: I don't recall anything more.

Mr. German: May I ask a question. Mr. Montgomery in his testimony didn't go beyond the meeting with Mr. Hanford in the hotel. Didn't go out to the house that evening.

The Court: His story as I remember it, covered the hotel incident with Sadie James, but past that I do not remember.

Mr. German: Well, I think the rest is immaterial.

The Court: Well, we will not go any further with that.

Mr. German: Unless we may have the privilege of bringing Mr. Montgomery on with reference to these other questions, we would like to move now to strike as immaterial.

The Court: I am free to say that I have failed to see how it would throw any light on this transaction afterwards, except that it would be in relation to Mr. Montgomery's activities out there and his good faith and so forth.

Mr. Stuart: I only asked to put it in in narrative form for two reasons: First, because we made no objection to anything covered by Mr. Montgomery but permitted him to follow his story, Mr. Hanford having been present at all of these meetings. Now, he has stated his story, of course if I had asked questions it would have taken me a day. I assume that whatever is immaterial in his statement your Honor will discard, as you will in the others, it is just simply to save time.

The Court: We will not go any further now with that excursion out at the Post.

Mr. German: The only reason I made the inquiry I did, if the Court is not going to exclude Mr. Hanford's testimony with relation to events following the hotel incident then we want to know it so we may have Mr. Montgomery on those matters.

The Court: I will not exclude it now, and perhaps you had better get Mr. Montgomery.

Mr. Stuart: I will say as far as I am personally representing the defendant in this case, I don't care anything about what happened after.

The Court: If there is any matter not covered by Mr. Montgomery that is conceived he should cover in rebuttal, that will be presented at the proper time.

Mr. Stuart: I think after conferring with Mr. Hanford, I will be able to conclude with him in thirty or forty minutes.

The Court: We will take a recess then.

And thereupon, Court recessed until ten o'clock Monday morning, May 28th, 1917.

And thereafter, and on Monday, May 28th, 1917, and at 10 o'clock A. M., court having convened pursuant to adjournment, further proceedings herein were had as follows:

J. H. WENDORFF, being produced as a witness on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins, et al., and being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, we just took the trouble to run down the authorities, so as to be prepared for this. We don't find any authorities that are to the contrary. * * *

The Court: Do you wish to be heard further gentlemen?

Mr. German: If Your Honor, has any doubt on this question, we would like to look it up.

The Court: I will receive this testimony at the present time, the objection will be overruled and exception noted, and I will receive the testimony and if you convince me later that it should not be considered, I will strike it out.

Mr. German: We make the same record on this.

The Court: The same objection may be noted, the same ruling and exception as to the witness Wendorff.

Q. Do you know his reputation for truth and veracity in that community? A. Yes, sir.

A. Is it good or bad? A. It is good.

The Court: This witness may be examined afternoon.

(Witness Excused.)

And thereupon, O. B. TAYLOR, Jr., was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendant Minnie Atkins et al., and testified as follows:

Q. Do you know his general reputation for truth and veracity in that community?

Mr. German: We make the same objection.

The Court: Same objection and same ruling and your exception noted.

Q. Do you know his general reputation for truth and veracity in the community? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it good or bad? A. Good.

The Court: You may stand aside Mr. Taylor, you will be cross examined after the noon hour.

(Witness excused.)

And thereupon, E. C. HANFORD was recalled for further direct examination and testified as follows:

The Witness: There are a number of errors in transcribing my testimony, I suppose they ought to be corrected. I can tell what they are, in the transcript made up so far. Probably it would be better to wait until afterwards. There are one or two things I want to add to my testimony. I didn't state that after I was in Boston and saw Mr. Peterkin on my way home I came by way of Pittsfield, Mass., and went to see George H. Hyde, for whom Minnie had worked in Leavenworth; and he told me what he knew regarding Minnie and the birth of this child, what he told me would be hearsay but I will say that what he did tell me was very important and led me to confirm our understanding of the facts.

The Court: I suppose the deposition of Mr. Hyde is in the record?

Mr. German: No, sir, he is dead and his deposition was never taken.

The Witness: Mrs. Hyde testified and his daughter, Mrs. Collins, and their depositions are in the record.

Mr. German: Mr. Hyde was not dead when we were taking depositions?

The Witness: No, sir, but Mr. Hyde failed very fast there.

Mr. Allen: If the Court please, we took the deposition of these people at Pittsfield, Mass., and an opportunity was there given the defendants in this case to take the deposition of Mr. Hyde.

The Court: The witness is not stating anything stated by Mr. Hyde.

Mr. Allen: He is stating his conclusion from that.

The Court: Well, his conclusion will have no bearing on this case except as it relates to his good faith in the transaction, so far as he is concerned.

The Witness: I will state, the complainant took the deposition of Mrs. Hyde and the defendants called Mrs. Collins, her daughter, and took her testimony; and we intended to call Mr. Hyde but Mrs. Collins informed us that he was failing very fast.

The Court: I think that is immaterial. Let's get to the real testimony in the case.

The Witness: On my way back I also stopped in Leavenworth and interviewed a number of old soldiers, or retired soldiers, not a number, but two or three whose names were given me by Mr. Peterkin; and it was then that I also made an effort to find Dr. Carpenter and was told he was an old man ninety years old and was in his doty, instead of the vigorous man that he was; and we made no further effort to find him or get his testimony.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, you have about finished your narrative up there, including the Montgomery visit to Seattle. Now, tell us what was said about the Peterkin child if anything? A. Well, I want to state another matter.

Q. All right, get through with it as soon as you can because time is material.

A. On my way back to Seattle after being at Leavenworth with Betty Mann, I went by way of Denver to see a Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, but they had gone to Los Angeles with Sadie James and I didn't get to see them; but I did see a Mr. Mannix, an attorney there, who had interviewed Mr. Hamilton and who had forwarded to us an affidavit as to what Mr. Hamilton had told him. I have that affidavit. I also said that it was at the Coats House when Minnie cried and didn't want me to hear her testimony in Kansas City when we brought her back from Seattle. I should have said that that was at the office of a public stenographer where we were interviewing her and having her statement transcribed by the stenographer.

Q. A public stenographer where? A. In Kansas City.

Q. Alright.

A. It was in some building there—about the Peterkin child, I didn't hear about that child until just before the receivership hearing when I brought Minnie down here to attend that hearing at Muskogee in February of 1915; and I heard about it then in this way: Mr. Rice and Mr. Josey came to me and asked me to tell them again what Mr. Peterkin had told me in Boston, and I told them about Mr. Peterkin telling me that it was a girl and my conversation, and they said that there was a rumor that that child was a boy, and they wanted to ask Minnie about it, so they went up to Minnie's room in the hotel and I went with them, and they asked Minnie about it and she told them that she did not have any child at all at that time, and they questioned her about it and she fought them on it and stuck to it, and insisted. So, I thought they still would be able to get more out of her if I withdrew, and I withdrew; but Minnie stuck to it and they didn't—couldn't learn any more. On the way down to Muskogee that night, we were talking about it on the train——

Mr. German: Who is we, Mr. Hanford?

A. The attorneys, Mr. Rice and Mr. Lyons, and myself, and I think Mr. Long was there; and it was suggested that I send a telegram to Major Stafford. Major Stafford had previously written me that he knew nothing regarding Minnie except that she had worked for him in 1885 and 1886; and suggested that we send another telegram to Major Stafford, so I got off the train at a little way-station up the road, and I sent a telegram to Major Stafford and asked him about—if he knew anything about this child, and he replied, I got the telegram at the Severs hotel the day the receivership hearing commenced I believe, and he told me that Minnie left their employ——

Q. Have you got the telegram? A. I think I have.

Mr. Allen: Also would like to see that letter, too.

A. I haven't the letter but I have a letter that I wrote to Mr. Rice in regard to it; I think I may find the letter amongst some other files.

The Court: What letter is it now?

Mr. Allen: From Major Stafford, about which he testified as to the contents of that letter.

The Court: Oh, yes; the first letter.

A. The telegram that I sent, I have no copy of, I got out and wrote it at a little railroad station.

Mr. German: Well, the original is in evidence, I think. You know we took it, Mr. Hanford, at San Diego, when he was on the stand, we had him produce that original.

Mr. Allen: Government's Exhibit 2.

A. I guess that is in evidence at his end of the line. There are two telegrams here from Major Stafford—I don't know which is the first—the one in answer to my telegram is addressed to me, care of the Severs hotel——

Q. Well, did you send that telegram Paoli, Kansas?

A. I don't know the name of the town, it was a little town where I got out and sent it.

The Court: What is the date of that telegram?

A. February 25th——

The Court: What is the date of the one you hold?

Mr. Stuart: This is February 24th—mys be——

Mr. Cruce: Read that one.

The Court: You may read the telegram to Stafford and then I will get the connection.

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir, this is the message: "Major John Stafford, U. S. A. Retired, 3592 Front Street, San Diego, California. Please wire me collect at Severs hotel, Muskogee, Oklahoma, your best recollection of date Indian girl Minnie Atkins came to work for you and left you, and especially whether she was with you July and August eighty-six, and I must know this today. Please oblige with this helpful information and sne me day message."

Q. So there is nothing in this telegram about Peterkin?

A. That is right; this is the telegram I sent them—the answer to that is dated February 25th, 1915, and addressed to me at the Severs hotel. He says: "Can't state positively, employed Minnie Atkins about nine months from October 1st, 1885," that is signed J. Stafford, Major United States Army.

Q. Now, have you got another one, Mr. Hanford?

A. I did send another telegram.

Q. You got another answer?

A. I got another answer at any rate.

Q. What date is it?

A. Febry. 25th, nine three P. M.

Mr. German: Well, Your Honor, another message comes in there.

The Court: That is identified as the one that he sent.

Mr. German: I beg your pardon, that is the one that he previously sent.

A. That says: "When Minnie Atkins left my employment in 1886, her physical condition indicated pregnancy. Cannot recall other injuries." I think that means inquiries.

Mr. Cruce: Incidents.

Q. Incidents?

A. Signed, Major Stafford; that was in answer to another telegram that I sent; I don't know whether that is in evidence or not.

Mr. Stuart: Well, they are read in, Your Honor.

A. My first letter to Major Stafford was written at the suggestion of Mr. Rice, of Rice and Lyon; I had suggested to him that I go to California and see Major Stafford; he wrote me November 21, 1914, saying: "Dear Sir: I have your letter relative to Major Stafford's testimony—" no, I should have read first: October 29th, 1914, in which he said: "Dear Sir: I am wiring you today pursuant to the enclosed copy. I think it would be a good idea to take up with Major Stafford by letter his recollection of Minnie's working for his people at Fort Leavenworth. If you can get him to write you fully, we will advise you as to the taking of his deposition. With best wishes, Sincerely, Rice & Lyon." That was in regard to taking depositions in the State Court case. On November 2nd, I wrote to Major Stafford as follows—I have the carbon copy here——

Q. Well, go ahead and read it, Mr. Hanford; we assume it is alright.

A. "Major John Stafford, United States Army, Retired, 3592 Front Street, San Diego, California. Dear Sir: I wired you sometime ago in regard to Minnie Atkins, a part Indian girl who worked for you at Fort Leavenworth a time in the middle eighties. At the time I telegraphed there were certain parties in this part of the country working adversely to her interests, and that I feared they would call upon you to your annoyance. As evidence of my good faith, I believe that I mentioned that I was Minnie's attorney and am myself a former office of the Army. It was through my Army connections that I became retained in this case. Members of the First Cavalry who were with the regiment in 1905-6 will identify me to you. Minnie is now the wife of a bandsman in the Fourteenth Infantry, stationed at Fort Lawton. As to the case I mention a brief statement as follows: Minnie was born of Indian parentage in Indian Territory. When a very young girl she was sent to Carlisle Indian School in Pa. Finishing her course there, she was sent to Leavenworth, Kansas as a domestic in the home of George H. Hyde, a banker of that place. She remained with Hyde a few months and then took up residence in the town of Leavenworth, working out by the day. During her stay in Leavenworth and due to maidenly indiscretion, she became the mother of a boy child. Some time after the birth of this child, she was engaged to work out at Fort Leavenworth. She worked first, we are informed, for Mr. Grodevant, an overseer in the Military prison; after leaving the Grodevant's she was employed by your wife and worked for you some months before leaving Leavenworth to go to Fort Logan, at Denver. By reason of his Indian blood, this boy of Minnie's was enrolled on the Creek Indian rolls and was allotted a parcel of land in Oklahoma. The boy has not been heard of for some twenty years and is supposed to be dead; in fact Minnie was notified of his death about the year 1901. His allotment of land is now supposed to be valuable for oil and Minnie as his sole heir had been sought and found to assert her title to it. She has given an oil lease to the land and we are now in litigation to dispossess the false claimants who have sought to obtain title through various fraudulent claims put forward in the belief that Minnie was also dead. In order to get a complete history of Minnie from the time she left Carlisle, I have interviewed all of the people that knew her that I could find. It has taken much time and labor and caused much expense. I intended to call upon you at San Diego, but desired to avoid the cost of such a trip by asking you to oblige with a letter informing me of all that you know regarding her. When she came to work for you, how long she remained, what her habits were so far as you knew; her affinities, that you know of; where she went from your house, and who with; what her condition of health was at the time; what she may have told you or Mrs. Stafford of her history and so forth and so on; everything in fact, that you can think of regarding the girl. The more intimate I can become as to her affairs, the surer I am of conducting her case safely and successfully and of eliminating the many frauds that have been imposed to defeat her rights. I have talked with Charles Peterkin, one of her affinities at the time she worked for you, and he gave me much information, but it is necessary to get additional, as well to check up his story. Minnie told her story on the witness stand but due to her Indian reticence or lack of memory, there is still a great deal to be learned. We have had Minnie down in Oklahoma and Leavenworth for two months since summer and people that have known her, especially Army people, have helped us greatly. I ask for your assistance in the matter because of its great importance and I do hope that your kindness will help us out. Respectfully Yours."

The answer to that was very short and said he had a remembrance of an Indian girl working for them at that time, but that he had no other recollection of her. On November 16, 1914, following the receipt of that letter, I wrote Rice & Lyons as follows: "I received a letter this morning from Major John Stafford, retired, San Diego, California, in which he says that he remembers that a Minnie Atkins worked for him at Leavenworth for several months in 1885 and '6, but that he has no recollection of any incident relating to her employment that would be evidence. I related the circumstances of the litigation, in my letter to him, and tried to offer suggestions that might refresh his memory. I did not tell him that I wanted his testimony, but simply that I was trying to put myself in full possession of her history, that, as her attorney, it was necessary for me to have her story continually from the time of her birth and that there was several months which I had knowledge of only in an indefinite way. I knew, however, that she worked for him during some of that time and now found it imperative to ascertain from him the exact time and length of time that she worked for him, also, any other facts regarding her, that he might know, as to her connection both in the Post and in the town of Leavenworth. The Major states that he merely recollects that a Minnie worked for him but cannot help me out otherwise. Please advise me as to whether or not you wish his testimony." Rice & Lyons replied November 21 as follows: "Dear Sir: I have your letter relative to Major Stafford's testimony. As his recollection is so indistinct I do not believe that his deposition would be of value to us. Sincerely, B. F. Rice." That is all I have relating to Major Stafford. After we got to Muskogee for the Receivership hearing, and received that telegram from Major Stafford, stating that Minnie had left his employ in a pregnant condition, we took that telegram to Minnie in her room over at the hotel and told her that she had been deceiving us. And she broke down and cried and admitted it. She sent for Mr. Josey and Mr. Rice and wanted to apologize to them for telling a lie there and did so. And she was very much afraid that her husband would never speak to her again. We went to her husband and told him what we had found out and asked him to go and tell Minnie that everything would be all right with him; and he did, and she got all right and she testified to the Peterkin child at the Receivership hearing. But that is the first time that we had learned that Minnie had had that Peterkin child. Betty Mann had told me at Leavenworth when I was up there working with her that she had heard that Minnie had had a child almost every year for the first five years after she left Carlisle; and told me that she believed Minnie had a child buried in the cemetery out at Leavenworth. But I paid no attention to that at the time, discredited Betty so much, and were working on the Tommy end, so that I never took any notice of it.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Hanford, relate whether the Peterkin grave was found?

A. I do not know whether it was ever found or not, Judge Stuart. The facts in regard to the Peterkin baby came out at the Receivership hearing and I do not think anything was ever done.

Q. Well, just for my own satisfaction, did the records show the burial?

A. The records were put in at the Receivership hearing showing the burial.

The Court: Is that record in this case now?

A. Early in August, 1886.

Mr. German: He was born July 30th, at the home of Mrs. Woods on Eighth Street in Leavenworth and died at the age of about three weeks.

The Court: In the summer of 1886?
Mr. Stuart: July, 1886.
The Court: That is Peterkin?
Mr. German: Robert Lee Peterkin.

A. When I went home to Seattle, from Leavenworth, after being up there with Betty Mann, I stated in my testimony given heretofore that I sent that five thousand dollar check for collection to Tulsa. I was able to get it out of the safe deposit box and send it in for collection. The Gem Oil Company had refused to give me another check and let me cash it while I was down here and then turn over to them the one I had previously gotten. I sent it in for collection and the bank got notice that the check was not paid.

Mr. German: Now, when was that, Mr. Hanford?

A. That was in September, 1914, Mr. German. You asked me about the telegrams in regard to that and I want to put those telegrams in. I don't know the first message that I sent but it was a very mean telegram to Rice & Lyons telling them that the check was unpaid. And I remember that after I got back to Oklahoma, Mr. Page wouldn't speak to me for ten days or two weeks on account of the telegram that I had sent them telling them about not paying this check. But I have the telegrams that were sent me in regard to that. The first I have is dated September 15, 1914. "Tulsa, Oklahoma, E. C. Hanford, Seattle, Washington. If MacNab insists on payment of forty-five hundred we must have truth out of Minnie before check you have deposited is paid. We advise that you leave with Minnie at once for Kansas City and Rice will meet you there. Draw on us for expenses and wire when you will reach Kansas City. Gem Oil Company."

The Court: What is the date of that?

A. September 15, 1914, just prior to the time they were taking depositions. And I think I told them that I would not allow Minnie to come down there or give her testimony or do anything further until that check was paid. The next one that I have is dated September 17, 1914: "E. C. Hanford, Coleman Building, Seattle, Washington. You know result of Sapulpa hearing and its cost to all of us. Absolute good faith on Minnie's part is essential to her right to payment. So far she is guilty of perjury. On good faith payment should not be made on that account. We will have deposition taken as soon as practicable after you arrive with Minnie in Kansas City, and will make part payment to you there. These matters must be plain to MacNab, and Minnie must keep faith. Draw for expenses and come as soon as possible. Gem Oil Company." The next is September 18, 1914: "E. C. Hanford, Seattle. Your message September 18th at hand. We are entitled to truth from Minnie before payment. If you will not bring Minnie to Kansas City, we will give notice to take deposition in Seattle. Minnie unquestionably in wrong and we think it your duty to have her tell truth. Much prefer taking deposition in Kansas City. Gem Oil Company." The next one I have is dated September 18, 1914: "E. C. Hanford, Coleman Building, Seattle. Your wire to Gem Oil Company is not consistent with our talk while here and we have advised Gem Oil Company not to pay until we get the truth. You understand we agreed on this when you were here and when five hundred was paid. Rice & Lyons." I remember now, they did send Minnie or give Minnie five hundred dollars on her check when he went down there. They wouldn't give me a new check but they advanced her five hundred dollars to be deducted from the check when I sent it for collection. I have a telegram written in long-hand that I sent to Captain MacNab after we got to Kansas City. It is marked "copy" but it is not a carbon copy. It says: "Captain A. J. MacNab, Salmon, Idaho. Minnie wants bank draft made out to you delivered to her personally. Is that agreeable to you? It will require your endorsement before cashable but I am sure she will want the amount put into the check account. May be necessary arrangement although not to her permanent advantage. We are getting straight dope apparently but many difficulties still trouble us. Glad you have nothing to worry about except me. Sherman Hotel here for few days but you can always get me Gem Oil Company, Tulsa. Shall I pay fifty dollars accumulated interest money to Minnie? Am writing but wire answer collect. E. C. Hanford." I will say that the Gem Oil Company, when they wouldn't pay that Five Thousand Dollars to me in another check, agreed that during the time payment was delayed that they would pay her interest on the money, and that up to this time fifty dollars had accumulated, which was paid to me.

Q. All right, just proceed now.

A. On September 10, 1914, I sent a letter to the Gem Oil Company, Tulsa, Oklahoma, as follows: "Gentlemen: This morning I deposited the five thousand dollar check with National Bank of Commerce, Seattle, and they accepted the same for collection. They will have this go directly to the Exchange National Bank of Tulsa, Oklahoma, instead of sending it through various clearing houses. This will require MacNab to give you his check for five hundred dollars by reason of the five hundred dollar draft which you have previously paid on account of this check. This was the most feasible way of putting through the transaction to eliminate as many complications as possible. I will have something further to write you in regard to Minnie this afternoon. Very truly yours." On September 21, 1914, I received a letter from Rice & Lyons as follows: "Dear Hanford: I received your night letter dated September 19, 1914, relative to the payment to Minnie Atkins. As I have stated to you frequently I am opposed to permitting Minnie to have the money due her until she has testified to the truth. I understand, as you do, that the lease was given by Minnie without guarantee or warranty of title, but I am of the opinion that the sale by her of her interest entitles the purchaser to fair dealing from her. In other words, I do not believe that it can be successfully contended that Minnie could take the purchasers' money and then by perjury defeat the very right for which she had been paid. I note you say Captain MacNab will hold the money in his possession. I cannot see why it is necessary that this money should be delivered to Captain MacNab and he bear the burden of withholding it from Minnie. I also note that you state that Minnie has now stated to you that the information obtained at Leavenworth is correct. There is therefore, no reason for a delay in the taking of her deposition. I think, therefore, that it would be best for you to bring her to Kansas City without delay. When she has given testimony in conformity with the truth, I see no objection to paying her a certain portion of the balance, but I do not think it advisable to pay all of the money until she has appeared at the trial and testified. You will understand it is not the fault of the purchasers that this procedure is necessary—Minnie's own acts have brought about the present condition. I note your statement that Captain MacNab and Minnie have threatened to repudiate the lease for failure of consideration and that they threaten to make a deal with the Gypsy. I do not fear this, as at the proceeding before Judge Poe at Sapulpa, in which you represented Minnie, judgment was taken against Minnie, and I think her right, if any she had, to contest the lease given by her, is defeated. I think that Mr. Page has acted fairly with you and Minnie in this matter, and as you know, he has expended large sums of money in ascertaining the truth, and much of this expense was rendered necessary by the false statements of Minnie. I will ask you to show this letter to Captain MacNab and explain to him the position of the purchasers as you understand I see it. I cannot advise my clients under the circumstances to release this money. I fear that if they do release it will be without Minnie's aid in the trial of the cause—I think we might win it without her but as you well know, it would be more difficult. I sincerely trust that you will wire me that you will bring Minnie to Kansas City. With best wishes and personal regards, I beg to remain, Sincerely, B. F. Rice."

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, when was the first time that you ever heard that the Government claimed that Tommy was a myth?

A. The first time I ever heard that was from Mr. Montgomery himself in Seattle, in December, 1914.

Q. Now, these various trips that you took over the country, in what capacity were you acting?

A. I was acting as one of the attorneys.

Q. Attorneys for whom? A. Minnie Folk.

Q. And you appeared at these various hearings in that capacity? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Examined the witnesses? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At those hearings who was present? For instance, at the California hearing?

A. Mr. German, Special Assistant to the United States Attorney; and Mr. Allen, Creek National Attorney; Mr. Blakeney as attorney for Henry Carter; Mr. Meserve, as one of the attorneys for Bartlett and Buell interest; J. Coody Johnson, I think he was one of the attorneys for Henry Carter.

Q. Attorneys for Henry Carter?

A. Attorneys for Henry Carter. Mr. Penick was Special Examiner and Mr. Robinson, a Pinkerton Detective working for Bartlett and Buell. There was a young man named Martin—Bill Martin—I think he was stenographer for Mr. Allen.

Q. That is about all, was it? A. And myself.

Q. Who was present when you took the Leavenworth depositions—the same people?

A. The same people when we took the Leavenworth depositions—there were Mr.——

Q. Well, just tell me who in addition to those you named?

A. Mr. Maxey and Mr. Rosser, attorneys; they were not present at the Leavenworth depositions, those that I have named.

Q. Weren't they?

A. That is the state court depositions?

Q. No, I am talking about the depositions in this case; this very case.

A. Well, there were no others except those that were at Leavenworth at different times.

Q. You mean not others besides those that you mentioned at California?

A. I don't know of any others; I can't remember.

Q. Was Mr. Buell ever there?

A. No, Mr. Buell was at Kansas City when we left for Denver but he wasn't at the taking of the depositions.

Mr. German: Wasn't Judge Stuart there, and Judge Cruce? And a whole lot of us?

A. They were at Leavenworth.

Mr. German: Yes, sir, and at Kansas City, too.

A. I guess I misunderstood your question.

The Court: I suppose the depositions would show the appearances.

A. At Kansas City and Leavenworth, Mr. Buell was there and Mr. Rosser was there I think once and twice a short time, and Judge Maxey was there.

Q. Was anybody there outside of the attorneys, Mr. Hanford? That is what I want to know.

A. Yes, Mr. Buell and Mr. Robinson.

Q. Alright.

A. Were there aside from the attorneys and there was a man from Kansas City—another Government detective, and Mr. Robertson, the United States Attorney for Kansas was there once or twice; Mr. Harvey, the Assistant United States Attorney, was at Leavenworth and Kansas City most of the time.

Q. I don't care a thing about that. Where did you take depositions, in New England?

A. Yes, we took depositions at Pittsfield and Boston.

Q. Was anybody there besides the attorneys——

Mr. German: Your Honor, I can't see the relevancy of this. We will agree that no attorneys were there for Mr. Page if that is what they want.

The Court: I don't see what bearing it will have on the case. You may state whether or not parties outside of the attorneys or anybody else was there representing the parties.

A. Mr. Robinson I think I mentioned before, the Pinkerton Detective was there——

Mr. German: Well, I move to strike that because he is not a party and he didn't represent a party.

The Court: He is indicating who was present outside of counsel. I said he may show what interests were represented there.

Mr. Stuart: I think we will show the materiality, Your Honor.

A. And Mr. Dawson was with us in New England; he went to assist Judge Allen.

Q. Well, I don't care anything about that; Mr. Robinson was there, was he?

A. Yes, and Mr. Dawson was there, the man who rendered the opinion cancelling the enrollment——

Mr. German: Your Honor permitted him to do it and Judge Stuart stopped him; who was Mr. Dawson?

The Court: He may state.

Q. Tell who he was.

A. Mr. Dawson is in the Commissioner of Indian Affairs Office, I don't know what he is—an attorney, and he is the same Mr. Dawson who came to Oklahoma and rendered the opinion upon which the Secretary has attempted to cancel the name of Thomas Atkins from the roll.

Q. Alright; did you go to Texas?

A. Yes, we went to Texas.

Q. Were the same people there?

A. The same people that were with us on the coast were with us in Texas.

Q. Now, you went to New York and went to El Paso, Texas, did you? A. Went to Sweetwater, Texas.

Q. You went to California? A. Went to California.

Q. And you went to Washington? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you went in the Senate? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So, you practically covered the United States, didn't you? A. Practically a figure 8 of the United States.

A. Is there anything else that you want to testify about? And then I am through unless there is something material.

A. There are some corrections in my testimony: there is one very important—oh, yes: I testified that when I was in Leavenworth with Betty Mann that it was then that Mr. Long told me about Sadie James making a proposition to him about finding a deserted grave. At the time I was in Leavenworth, Mr. Long came to me and told me about Sadie James being drunk down in this hovel, and wanted me to go down and send her back to Tulsa; and then I thought that I ought not to go down there because it was dangerous; and I suggested to him having her sent for from Tulsa, and getting rid of her. I also wanted to get rid of her so as not to have her find out that Betty Mann was there. Mr. Long was going to Kansas City and leave Sadie James there. When we got back shortly afterwards, I think in the next month, to take the depositions, Mr. Long, in almost the identical situation, the same circumstances, told me about Sadie James having made this proposition to him. In that way I testified that he told me about the grave business at the time we were talking the first time, and it was not then, and it is due to that suggestion that I told about that.

Q. Well, how long was it? A. Oh, it was a few weeks.

Q. Few weeks; that is all?

A. I will say that Mr. Long—I was talking this matter over with Mr. Long last night——

The Court: Well, I don't care to go into that. It was a mistake in regard to two or three weeks there?

A. It is due to the suggestion of the two instances occurring.

By the Court.

Q. Listen, Mr. Hanford, I understood you to suggest that the stenographer's transcript had some mistakes in it in regard to your testimony?

A. They are mostly typographical mistakes but the make a mistake in the sense——

Mr. Stuart: I suggest, to save time, that you suggest it to the stenographer.

The Court: If there is any mistake now of importance you may state what it is now for the benefit on counsel on cross examination, anything of importance. I don't care for typographical errors.

A. The first one is 2574: it says: "And while we were talking there Minnie told us about this colored woman that she said knew her; she had never known she was going out;" that should be: "But that she had never known."

Mr. German: In other words, insert the words "but" there?

A. Yes, he didn't punctuate correct.

Mr. German: Have I inserted it at the right place?

A. Yes. On page 2576, it says that: "She had seen him when he was five years old in 1899;" that should be, "'89." 2577, it says, "And I have gotten word from Captain MacNab to let Sadie talk;" that should be: "I had gotten word to Captain MacNab to let Sadie talk." I kicked him. 2585——

Mr. German: You say I kicked him?

A. I kicked Captain MacNab under the table, Mr. German, not to say anything.

The Court: Let's not go into——

Mr. Stuart: That is not in the record?

A. 2585—at the bottom——

Mr. German: There wasn't anything about I kicked him in the record.

A. It says "the Bartlesville sand might follow that leave that sand out;" it should be "That land out." 2589, it says, "I didn't want any connection with it all;" that should be, "I didn't want any connection with them at all." That is about the tenth line. 2591, it says, near the bottom, about the fourth line from the bottom, "that the agreement was for five thousand cash;" that should be, "ten thousand cash." 2592, it says, about the fourth line, "about now he knew it;" that should be, "about how he knew it." 2595, about the fifth line from the bottom it says: "Q. Never mind;" A. "Deceiving us; she had never told Captain MacNab;" that is probably the way I stated that, but that "never" should be crossed out, because there is dash after "never" to show that I started to say something and changed, to be correct. 2601, the context will show these corrections at 2601——

Mr. Allen: On that last, I understood it to show that you had told?

A. Yes, Judge, if you will read the balance of the answer, you will see the sense. On page 2601, it said: "when we came to Tulsa we came in the automobile and went to Sapulpa and she gave her testimony that day;" we didn't go to Sapulpa that day; we went the next day by automobile, and during that day we have a number of people go up to identify Minnie; Ella—Mr. Wadsworth——

Q. Mr. Hanford, let's wait there a minute; do you want to correct your testimony or change that?

A. I want to correct my testimony.

Q. Well, that is your own fault, not the stenographer's.

A. I want to make that additional to my testimony: We had Mitch Wadsworth and Ben Marshall, and a man named Robinson, a brother of Will Robinson, and I think some others come up there and identify Minnie. The hearing at Sapulpa had been originally set for that day, but I had wired Rice & Lyons that I couldn't get there by that time; I think we either made it a day ahead of time or they had it changed; at any rate we had that date laid over, so we didn't have to make the trip direct. Mr. Long held the train for us at Kansas City; he paid the cost of holding the train——

The Court: Well, let's not go into the details, Mr. Hanford, there was that delay?

A. Yes, there was that delay. 2607, about the 12th line from the bottom, it says, "and we thought we had proof of his death;" it should read: "we thought that since we had no proof of his death." 2608, it says, "he says that I told her to come out to the park and I would talk to her out there;" that should be that: "he would talk to her out there." 2609, about the fifth line reads: "would be a good scheme to catch Sadie up;" that should be, "to check Sadie up."

The Court: Well, if it is just that character of corrections, it is apparent and you needn't go into that.

A. They are all that.

The Court: Well, we will not take further time on that.

Mr. Stuart: All right, take the witness.

Cross Examination by Mr. Pinson.

Q. Mr. Hanford, you have made a careful perusal of your testimony given on Friday and Saturday, have you not?

A. Not a careful perusal.

Q. Are you able to say at this time that there are no matters that you desire to change in the substance of that evidence, except those changes which you have suggested this morning?

A. Why, no, Mr. Pinson, I have read my testimony over in part and I found those one or two mistakes, one which Mr. Long called my attention, and then I started to read my testimony through and I made corrections for typographical errors but I think that aside from those corrections that I made, that is all the errors that I found.

Q. Will you during the noon hour make further examination and be prepared to make the further corrections that you desire immediately after the recess?

A. I don't think it is necessary.

The Court: We will now assume that the transcript as now corrected, is correct.

Mr. Pinson: Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Hanford, you first met Minnie Atkins, I believe you say, at Fort Lawton, near Seattle, in the summer of 1914, or Minnie Folk? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you known Captain MacNab prior to that time?

A. I had.

Q. For how long?

A. Oh, I can't say; I had known him for some time. I met him when he first came to Seattle with the Fourteenth Infantry, whenever that was.

Q. Had you known Captain, or Lieutenant McCombs prior to that time?

A. Yes, I met him when he first came to Seattle.

Q. Now, are you familiar with the testimony of Minnie Folk in all of her various statements, including the one at Seattle, the one at Tulsa, the different affidavits and statements that she has made and the testimony at the receivership heraing, and her testimony in the depositions taken before Mr. Penick?

A. Why, Mr. Pinson, I can't say that I remember her testimony.

Q. But you heard each one of those particular statements and are familiar, were familiar at the time with the contents of those depositions? A. Yes.

Q. How many written——

A. Except the testimony that she gave at Tulsa. I was out of the room during a large part of her testimony there.

Q. Who examined her there?

A. Mr. Rice, and Mr. *B*iggs of the Gypsy Oil Company.

Q. Well, you read her testimony afterwards, didn't you, after it was reduced to writing?

A. I won't say that I have read it, Mr. Pinson, I don't remember of having read it.

Q. You don't remember that you ever read it. Did you ever talk to her before she gave that deposition at Tulsa?

A. I hadn't talked to her about her testimony; at that time Minnie believe- I was the cause of her not receiving her five thousand dollars.

Q. You and she had some little disagreement about that?

A. Yes, and I told her that I had agreed to have the money held up first until she was identified, but the*m* after that it was held up by the Gem people and I didn't tell her that it was her fault; she believe- that it was my fault and I let her believe that and I think that she still believe- it until this day.

Q. But you finally made up with her about that little disagreement, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You and she became friendly again?

A. Became friendly, yes.

Q. Now, before the Tulsa deposition was taken, you were together at a notary's office and she made a complete statement at that time, didn't she?

Q. Yes, they—Mr. Rice questioned her and her statements were taken down in shorthand.

Q. You saw that statement?

A. I never read that statement.

Q. You heard it made? A. No.

Q. You didn't?

A. No. Minnie, during the giving of that statement, whenever they got on subjects that she didn't want to discuss, would break down and cry and say they were disgracing her, and she didn't want all that stuff taken down so people would know it and she objected to my hearing it, so I left the room and waited out in the hall.

Q. Then, how was it determined that she should go on and give her deposition?

A. Why, she was brought down for that purpose, Mr. Pinson.

Q. But the statement so taken, was it not for the purpose of determining of whether her deposition should be taken at that time?

A. The statement was given for the purpose of getting her testimony, finding out what she knew and what she didn't know.

Q. And ascertaining whether or not it could be made to correspond with testimony which you had received outside of Minnie, isn't that true?

A. Well, it was perhaps to serve as a check on testimony.

Q. Well, isn't that true, Mr. Hanford, that you asked for the statement from Minnie, in order to find out whether she would testify according to the testimony you had already received?

A. Well, Mr. Pinson, that arrangement was entirely Mr. Rice's, and I had nothing to do with it. She came down to give her testimony and Mr. Rice had always insisted that in interviewing every witness that a court reporter be employed——

Q. Well, I understand, it is immaterial to go into that, Mr. Hanford. Before you reached Kansas City on that trip, Minnie had disclosed to you on the train that you were on the right track and that she would tell the story as you had learned it, didn't you?

A. That is what she told me but I knew that from her admissions. She remembered certain people, names that I mentioned to her, but she told me on the train on the way down, that we were on the right track, and had correct information as to her past.

Q. Now, did she tell any of the facts, or did she just intimate that you were on the right track?

A. No, she wouldn't tell me anything further than that we were on the right track and I wanted to question her and she said she would tell her story when she got on the stand; that she wanted to be put on the witness stand and tell her story there.

Q. And she told you that she would tell the facts at Tulsa?

A. Yes—at Leavenworth.

Q. At Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. Now, let's go back a moment to that statement that was taken before the notary public in Kansas City. Who took charge of that statement?

A. You mean who got the thing from the stenographer?

Q. Yes.

Q. Well, I don't know. I suppose that Rice & Lyons did.

Q. Did you ever see it?

A. I have never read it, Mr. Pinson, I don't know what the cover looks like. I suppose I have seen it amongst their files, must have seen it, but I don't——

Q. Do you know whether it is now?

A. No, I haven't seen it for a long time; it may be in the files.

Q. Do you think it can be produced?

A. I think so if it is there.

Q. Will you produce it?

A. If it is there I will produce it.

Q. Now, that statement is not the one you represented as having been destroyed because it was false, is it?

A. No. No, that was an affidavit, Mr. Pinson.

Q. Made at Fort Logan, wasn't it?

A. Made at Minnie's house, yes. There were two or three affidavits.

The Court: It is clear to me that the affidavit destroyed was the one taken at Seattle.

Mr. Pinson: Yes, sir, I wanted to distinguish between the two statements.

Q. Now, when was that affidavit taken at Seattle destroyed?

A. Well, that was destroyed some time ago, Mr. Pinson. I have destroyed bushels of papers and I don't know when that particular one was destroyed.

Q. Was it destroyed before or after the Sapulpa deposition? A. Oh, it was long after.

Q. Long after the Sapulpa deposition?

A. It must have been, I didn't have it at that time and it was long after that.

Q. Now, at the taking of the Sapulpa deposition, Minnie was questioned about that statement, was she not?

A. About that affidavit?

Q. Yes?

A. I don't think she was questioned about that affidavit, I think she was questioned along the same line.

Q. Now, to refresh your memory, Mr. Hanford, didn't you, upon a question being propounded to her as to the contents of that affidavit, object on the ground that it was a privileged communication, a matter that concerned only you and your client Minnie Folk?

A. I don't remember any question regarding the affidavit. I remember that she was asked as to the father of the child and I objected on the ground that that was privileged and she wasn't compelled to answer, but I don't think that was a question in regard to the affidavit.

Q. Will you ascertain whether or not that is true from your transcript of the evidence at Sapulpa, so you can advise us this afternoon?

A. If you have the transcript there, Mr. Pinson, I would be glad to tell you right now.

Q. I refer—— Well, these pages are not numbered properly—there is the page (handing transcript to witness)?

A. Yes, Mr. Pinson, it appears from the transcript she was asked if she had signed a written statement and I objected on the ground.

Q. Now, that was the written statement you had in mind when you objected, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And it was in your possession at that time?

A. Not in my possession, no.

Q. It was available?

A. Yes, I suppose it was in Rice & Lyons possession, whether they had it there or not I don't know.

Q. Now, you have consulted with Mr. Long before you testified and since in regard to your testimony?

A. Not before, but last night I consulted with Mr. Long.

Q. You were present in the court room when Mr. Long gave his evidence?

Q. Part of it, a large part I was absent.

Q. And a large part you were absent? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You heard his testimony in the Receivership hearing?

A. Yes, I think I heard his testimony.

Q. And you are familiar with all of the evidence in the Receivership hearing. are you not?

A. Oh, I don't remember it, I don't pretend to remember it

Q. Did you hear Captain MacNab's testimony when it was given in the deposition? A. Yes.

Q. You are familiar with Major Stafford's testimony?

A. You asked me if I am familiar; Mr. Pinson, I can't remember their testimony at this time; I heard it when it was given.

Q. And you have not read the evidence of these persons since it was given?

A. I have not—— Oh, yes, I have. I read it some time ago about the time the proceedings came up in Washington; I was engaged in making a digest of the testimony as it was transcribed and sent to me. And I think those first depositions, as fast as I got them before we became engaged in those proceedings—and I never had time to read any others. That was in August or September last year.

Q. Mr. Hanford, you have referred several times to the fact that you had memoranda concerning different phases of this case. Have you made at any time a complete written history of this case from which to refresh your memory?

A. No, nothing as complete except the brief.

Q. But of your connection with this case you have not made a complete written statement or story? A. No.

Q. From which you can refresh your memory?

A. No, never had time.

Q. When you reached the MacNab—reached Minnie's residence in response to the 'phone call from Captain MacNab, you found who at Minnie's house?

A. Well, I found Minnie there. Captain MacNab and myself and a little girl called Margie went down to Minnie's house.

Q. Now, what was Minnie's frame of mind at the time you reached there, Mr. Hanford?

A. Why, Minnie—— Well, I didn't know Minnie very well then and I can't describe what her frame of mind was. She was very quiet. She sat on the porch and didn't say much until Captain MacNab told her that I was a lawyer and was going to look out for her interest in the matter in making this lease.

Q. Now, Minnie had not known before that time that she was to have a lawyer, had she? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, you ascertained that fact while you were there, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Whether Minnie had expressed any desire for an attorney?

A. No, I never ascertained that fact. I don't believe she did because she objected to having her interest looked out for in regard to making a lease. She said that she didn't want to make a lease; that she could get four thousand dollars in cash for the land and that was more money than she had ever had in her life.

Q. Well, briefly, Mr. Hanford, she didn't want any interference, she was perfectly satisfied?

A. Well, I didn't say she didn't want any interference in the matter, Mr. Hanford; what she wanted to do was to sell her land for four thousand dollars.

Q. Yes, sir, and she didn't want anybody to prevent it in any way, is that right?

A. Well, I don't know about that. That is what she wanted to do.

Q. It appeared then from the conversation that she had had an offer of four thousand dollars for this land?

A. Yes, she had had an offer of four thousand dollars.

Q. She considered it a bona fide offer for this land and she was elated over the prospect of having so much money. Now, what was the first thing she said about this negress to whom you referred?

A. I don't know the first thing that she said, Mr. Pinson, she didn't say very much. She said this negress had been bothering the life out of her and was going to drive her out of house and home and she wanted her kept away from there.

Q. Now, that is the particular person with whom she was to make this deal for four thousand dollars, wasn't it?

A. Somebody that this negro was to bring that afternoon was the one that was going to pay her the money.

Q. And you understood that this negro woman was connected with the transaction and that Minnie wanted to deal with them?

A. Yes, she was going to bring the person there that was going to pay the four thousand dollars.

Q. I see. Now, Mr. Hanford, when did Minnie first agree to your employment as an attorney?

A. Well, she agreed right then.

Q. Was an arrangement entered into there between you and Minnie as to your contract of employment and your fee?

A. None at all.

Q. What was the arrangement that was entered into there and between whom?

A. There was no arrangement made at that time, Mr. Pinson.

Q. Well, when was it?

A. The arrangement was made that night at Captain MacNab's office.

Q. Arrangement was made between whom?

A. The arrangement was made between Minnie, Captain MacNab and myself and Lieutenant McCombs and Mrs. McCombs.

Q. All of you were there?

A. We all discussed it and talked it over there and there was another woman, Mrs. Savage.

Q. And Margie was there? A. And little Margie.

Q. Now, what was that contract, oral or written?

A. The contract was—it became written on Monday, we entered into a full and complete trust agreement and contract and it became written at that time.

Q. Pardon me——

A. I want to state that the Saturday night before we made a memorandum trust agreement that I wrote out there on Captain MacNab's tyuewriter, and I don't know whether that included the compensation that I was to receive or not.

Q. Now, where is that memorandum trust agreement?

A. I don't know, Mr. Pinson, I think that was destroyed when we made it full and complete.

Q. Now, the final trust agreement is the instrument that was recorded, is it not?

A. I say that Captain MacNab has a copy of that. There were only two copies made, one was given to Captain MacNab and the other to Minnie.

Q. Is there any written memorandum which defines your services and fixes your fee? A. Yes.

Q. Where is that? A. That trust agreement does that.

Q. The one which was recorded?

A. Yes, I don't know whether the trust agreement has ever been recorded.

Q. But if that is the only thing, the only contract of employment you had with Minnie is embodied in that trust agreement wherever it is?

A. No, I made a contract after I came back from Seattle—— Not a contract, but I gave her a stipulation to do all things necessary as her attorney in quieting title to this land, and I agreed in that contract that I was to get ten per cent——

Q. If the contract was written we would like to have it, that is why I am asking you?

A. Well, I haven't it, Mr. Pinson.

Q. Is it possible to obtain a copy of that agreement or the original?

A. If Minnie has a copy it is possible.

Q. Well, where is the copy which you had, you had two didn't you?

A. The copy that I had is in this safe deposit box in Seattle.

Q. Mr. Hanford, was the agreement you referred to separate from the trust deed which was executed?

A. Yes, it was made after I came back from Oklahoma at the time Captain MacNab was released by Minnie as her trustee.

Q. Well, now, let's go back to the time the trust deed was given; that was just a trust deed, a conveyance to Captain MacNab?

A. No, Minnie made a deed to Captain MacNab and I remember the only form I could lay my hands on was a bargain and sale form. And she gave him that deed and I had him execute a declaration of trust and agreement.

Q. Well, now, did that contain any stipulation as to the terms of your employment and compensation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the one you refer to? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was executed long before you came to Oklahoma?

A. Yes, but you asked me if in addition to that there was any contract, and I stated to you that I had given Minnie a stipulation in which I agreed to pay her——

The Court: That stipulation is in the record.

Q. Then, there are two papers?

A. A second supplements the first and is simply an agreement to pay back the two thousand dollars that she advanced to cover my expenses in connection with this litigation. If my compensation should ever go above ten thousand dollars.

Q. Mr. Hanford, will you make an effort to obtain for us either a copy or the original of either of those two instruments?

A. Yes, Mr. Pinson, if Minnie has a copy here I can get it, otherwise I couldn't get it without going to Seattle.

Q. Now, your understanding with Captain MacNab as to the trust ageement was all completed before you consulted Minnie about it, isn't that true?

A. It was agreed that he would assume the trust but as to any terms and conditions nothing was agreed upon until that evening at Captain MacNab's office.

Q. You had a general understanding with Captain MacNab as to what should be done before you consulted Minnie?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, at the time you went there and Minnie was excited and elated about the prospective sale of the land, you told her that you would take steps to prevent her selling the land, didn't you?

A. She was excited and elated she was determined.

Q. Well, at the time she was determined, did you tell her you would take steps?

A. No, we tried to jolly her out of it, and talked about their—— Yes, we told her in a joking way that we would load her on an express wagon and send her away to Canada where these people couldn't get at her, but that was only in a joking way.

Q. Mr. Hanford, you testified about that in the Receivership hearing, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I will ask you if you didn't testify in substance that you told Minnie at the time that you would take steps to prevent her selling that land, without explaining that it was in a jovial way? A. I think so, Mr. Pinson.

Q. What steps did you contemplate taking besides the trust agreement?

A. We suggested one scheme that I do not remember exactly, but it was in the nature of a trust arrangement, and that was to satisfy Minnie that she would receive at least four thousand dollars for the land, by putting up four thousand dollars in escrow to guarantee her that amount; that if through our investigation she should lose the four thousand dollars that we would make it good to her.

Q. You finally did agree, tell her you would guarantee her forty-five hundred dollars and then five thousand dollars, you and Captain MacNab?

A. Yes, after talking to Mr. Long at the station and his telling us that it was oil land, and that it was liable to turn out to be very valuable, we thought we could safely do that and we told her that we would give her instead of forty-five hundred dollars, we would guarantee to get five thousand dollars for her lease.

Q. Now, you had never seen Mr. Long before that day?

A. Never had.

Q. You hadn't received any answer to your telegrams with reference to him, had you? A. Yes.

Q. At the time you made these statements to Minnie?

A. Oh, I don't think the answers had come, but we did receive answers.

Q. Now, you mean to tell the Court you were willing on Mr. Long's statement personally to guarantee Minnie that she should receive five thousand dollars for this lease?

A. Well, we did do it.

Q. You did do it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In good faith? A. In good faith.

Q. Now, you had met Mr. Long down there and he had told you, hadn't he that this was merely prospective oil land and not oil land, isn't that true?

A. Yes, but he always stated to us that we had done exactly right in telling Minnie she shouldn't sell the land. He told us that he wouldn't even want to take a deed to it; that he wanted a lease, and that we under no consideration should sell it at any price.

Q. Well, you were very much impressed with Mr. Long and believed just what he said?

A. Yes, he looked to be just what Captain MacNab had told me, a very straightforward man.

Q. And so you were willing to rely upon his statement and to personally guarantee Minnie five thousand dollars, is that true? A. Yes.

Q. You had had some experience before that with oil land, so that you understood about fluctuating value?

A. Well, I understand so much more now. I thought all oil lands were absolutely of very great value.

Q. And you haven't had the experience you detailed in your testimony at the Receivership hearing?

A. I had had only experience in regard to making oil leases and things of that kind, and drawing up articles of incorporation for oil companies; and some friends of mine had become very wealthy in Southern California in the oil lands, and Mr. Poe had been down in Oklahoma.

Q. And he had talked to you about it?

A. He had told me about oil matters down in Oklahoma.

Q. Did Mr. Long ever fix any price in his first conversation with you that this land would probably bring for a lease or deed? A. He did not.

Q. The only person who mentioned any probable value of that land at that time was Sadie James, wasn't it?

A. I didn't hear that. That was the only price that was mentioned.

Q. Well, Minnie told you about the four thousand dollars that she was going to get for the lease?

A. Yes, Mr. Long told us it was worth very much more.

Q. After you got to Tulsa and as you were coming on the train to Tulsa, Mr. Long told you it was probable that the low sand wouldn't touch this land but they hoped it would?

A. No, he told me it was probable that the Bartlesville sand would cut the south forty of the west eighty, and he made an outline, a little sketch and drew a line there showing me how he expected it to extend.

Q. He told you how far production was from this property at the time?

A. Yes, there was production south of it and they thought it might go up that far, but he also thought it might take a turn and follow the Wheeler sand and go up along the river.

Q. Mr. Hanford, assuming that we will not be able to get a copy of those contracts, what was the contract with reference to the amount of fee that was to be paid you by Minnie Atkins? I understand you have no objection to testifying about that?

A. No. I was to get ten per cent of the royalty.

Q. Was that all? A. That was all.

Q. Was any mention made of the expenses in connection with that contract? A. None at all.

Q. It was not contemplated at that time that any expenses would be incurred, was it?

A. Yes, it was contemplated that expenses would be incurred, but we also contemplated that there would be an income right away from the royalty on this land, and that I would then be required to pay my expenses out of what I was to receive.

Q. Out of your fee? A. Yes.

Q. Yes, have you ever been employed by Mr. Page as attorney in this case or in any capacity?

A. No, I have never been employed by Mr. Page as an attorney.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, I don't care much about that, but I think that this is utterly immaterial.

The Court: Well, I am going into this thing to the limit, you may go on.

A. I will say I have attempted at times to assist Mr. Page in matters of advice and things like that, but just purely because I was available, but I was never available to do any services for him because I was so busy I couldn't do the things he asked me to do.

Q. Well, now, have your expenses and fees been paid by Mr. Page? A. I will tell you about that.

Q. Well, just answer yes or no and then make your explanation.

A. Mr. Page has advanced me my expenses that were of a personal nature, to a limited extent, after Rice & Lyons became disconnected with the suit. He has paid the expenses I was put to in connection with the suit. But I made an arrangement with him that during the pendency of the suit, while I was engaged on this and had no income, that he would advance me a hundred and twenty-five dollars a month and he has been doing that.

Q. Now, Mr. Page, of course, has paid all of the expenses of the suit and all the expenses of investigation and of the depositions?

A. All of those things have been taken care of by him.

Q. Have you any understanding with Mr. Page about a fee in the event Minnie should lose this law suit?

A. I know nothing about the fee that Mr. Page is paying at all.

Q. No understanding between you and Mr. Page?

A. None at all. I will state, Mr. Pinson, and I would like to have the privilege of stating, that after I used up that two thousand dollars, or just before we used it up, I wrote Captain MacNab and told him that I was about to go broke; and I asked him to allow me to draw on him from time to time on the three thousand dollars that he holds. And I told him that I thought the two thousand dollars would be sufficient and that was not what the three thousand dollars was held by him, but it became necessary if I was to continue my connection with the suit; and he wrote back and told me that he thought it over very carefully, but if that three thousand dollars was consumed, and anything came up in regard to Minnie's interest that was not covered by the agreement with Mr. Page to pay all expenses of this suit, we would have nothing to work on. I wrote back and told him that that was right, that I would have to go in the practice down here and do the best I could. And then I went flat broke. I was busy in taking up the appeal and the receivership. And Mr. Rice helped me borrow two hundred and fifty dollars at the First National Bank which I still owe. I paid up a small amount but my note is there and over due now. Then, I used that up and went broke again. Then, Rice & Lyons made an agreement that they would take me in there and let me help out in their office; and I went in there and wrote briefs for them. I briefed a large number of cases, and Rice & Lyons both went away and I ran their office for five or six months and they paid me a hundred dollars a month. Then, when they severed their connection with the case and discontinued as Mr. Page's attorney, then I was out and I was broke and in debt and I went to Mr. Page and told him I had to stay there and he agreed to advance me a hundred and twenty-five dollars a month.

Q. Now, at the time you and Mr. Long started away from Seattle, you had understood that he was to pay your expenses and that you were to repay them in the event you didn't make the lease to him or his company?

A. Yes, I went better than that agreement, although I made the lease to them, I insisted that we should pay back the money I had cost them and I paid back out of that five thousand dollars, four hundred dollars; and that is why Captain MacNab holds twenty-eight hundred instead of three thousand dollars, because it took two hundred dollars out of that three thousand dollars and I took two hundred dollars out of the two thousand dollars I got.

Q. You had that understanding before you left Seattle?

A. That I would pay back the money if I didn't make the lease to them.

Q. Was the incident ever explained to you about why you had to slip around the station to the train in Seattle?

A. Yes, Mr. Long told me after we got on the train that there was somebody there from Oklahoma that he didn't want to see me.

Q. He didn't tell you who that was, did he?

A. No, he didn't tell me who it was. I know though now.

Q. That of course aroused your suspicion, did it not, about that trip?

A. No, there had been so many strange things happening out there at the house and between Sadie James and these detectives and Mr. Long. And when I was talking to Mr.

Long Sunday morning down at the Ranier Grand Hotel, somebody called him up on the telephone, and I knew he was there alone, and that was very strange, so I was used to strange things at the time.

Q. The whole case had a peculiar atmosphere from the first time you were connected with it? A. Yes, it did.

Q. When Sadie came to the house that morning there were some detectives following her?

A. Yes, two detectives in an automobile, they were following her open.

Q. And she was excited about it when she went in the house? A. She was mad.

Q. And she told you those detectives had been trailing her all over town? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You made an effort to find who those detectives were employed by did you not?

A. Well, we didn't make an effort. We asked them, Captain MacNab and I.

Q. You did ask the detectives who they were employed by? A. Yes.

Q. And they refused to tell you?

A. They said they couldn't tell us.

Q. The next person who met you was a man named Frank Long? A. Yes.

Q. Sadie, you knew was from Oklahoma?

A. She said she was.

Q. Frank Long was from Oklahoma? A. Yes.

Q. Did it occur to you that those detectives were Frank Long's detectives?

A. Yes, I believe he told us that he knew about those detectives.

Q. Yes, so you understood that Frank had detectives following Sadie, didn't you?

A. Yes. Just when I learned that I don't know, but he did tell us that he had them following Sadie.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, you understood there, of course, that Sadie was probably representing some other person, didn't you?

A. No, Sadie told us she was representing the Dawes Commission and Government, and we didn't believe that she was representing anybody. The first I knew of who Sadie was representing was when I think I received a telegram from Captain MacNab about Bartlett.

Q. Well, you assumed that Sadie was there on business, didn't you? A. We assumed that she was.

Q. To get that land?

A. We thought she was just a thief.

Q. That was your understanding. Now, did you make any effort to find out who she represented at that time, did you ask her?

A. No, I may have asked Mr. Long. I suppose I made an effort.

Q. To find out who Sadie represented?

A. Yes, but I don't recollect of it.

Q. But you know she was offering four thousand dollars for this land?

A. She said somebody was coming there who was going to pay four thousand dollars for the land. I knew her wasn't offering it.

Q. And of course, you knew Minnie was a married woman living with her husband and that he was there to protect her against any theft?

A. Well, he wasn't there, he was in Spokane, but I knew that.

Whereupon, Court recessed until two o'clock P. M.

And thereafter, and at 2 o'clock P. M., court convened pursuant to adjournment and further proceedings herein were had as follows:

> The Court: Do you now desire to cross examine those witnesses?
>
> Mr. Linebaugh: I would like to suggest at this time that we desire to cross examine them.
>
> The Court: Let them be called; Mr. Wendorff, Mr. Meyers, and Mr. Taylor. Just let Judge Wendorff come in now.

And thereupon, J. H. WENDORFF being recalled, further testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. What is your name? A. J. H. Wendorff.

Q. You are the Judge Wendorff, you gave testimony in this case this morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have known Dennis Jones for a number of years?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. During all of which time he has lived at Leavenworth, Kansas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During that time he has been quite active, has he not, in Leavenworth?

A. Well, I would say yes; I don't know in what sense you mean active.

Q. Active for a negro citizen and lawyer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he formerly was on the police force? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Has been active in politics in Leavenworth?

A. To some extent, yes, sir.

Q. He is [] shrew, clever, negro lawyer, in your judgment? A. Well, he is a pretty fair, good lawyer.

Q. Yes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Judge, I assume you have never heard anything about his connection with the marriage of a negro woman named Sadie James to a negro soldier name Lane? A. No, sir.

Q. I assume you have never heard anything about a divorce suit pending in the court of proper jurisdiction at Leavenworth, where he represented Sadie James?

A. When was it?

Q. Sadie Lane? A. When was it?

Q. Well, I don't recall the date. Do you recall the incident?

A. Well, I can't recall it now; I might know of it if you would tell me the case and date.

Q. In 1913 or '14.

A. I was on the bench up there, I expect I ought to know something about, although I can't recall it to mind just now.

Q. Now, do you recall his having appeared in your court representing a negro woman named Sadie Lane in a divorce where the adverse party was an old negro soldier who was an inmate of the Soldiers' Home?

A. I can't call it to mind. There are a good many cases there and I can't call it to mind just now.

Q. I assume also, Judge, that you have not heard anything about his activity under his employment first with the Bartlett interests—with the Gypsy interests, Gypsy Oil Company's interests, and subsequently with the Page oil interests in connection with the Tommy Atkins allotment matter?

A. Well, I knew he was employed in the case but just who he represented or whose side he was for, I didn't know.

Q. You haven't heard the purpose of his employment nor what he was expected to do, or did do?

A. No, there are a number of Leavenworth lawyers employed and I don't know which side they represented or who they were for, or what they were expected to do, or anything.

Q. You don't know or never have heard anything about the detail of his activity with either the Gypsy interest or the Page interest? A. No, sir, not in detail, no, sir.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Judge, you know him as well now as you did a year ago? A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. And knew him as well a year ago as five years ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your testimony is that during all of that time, his reputation was good? A. Yes, sir, very good.

Q. If he had represented the sensational divorce case in favor oa negro woman against an old soldier, you probably would remember it?

A. If there was anything very sensational about it, I think I would.

Q. You don't remember it?

A. I don't recall it now, no, sir.

Recross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. You don't know whether that would have been in your court or not.

A. If it was 1913, I was on the bench; I had been on the bench since 1911.

Q. You can't recall it now?

A. I don't remember. If you tell me something about it, I might remember it. There are a good many cases against the members of the Home—it is a Military Home, there, a National branch, and we have a good many cases in which soldiers are parties, one side or the other.

Q. The details of these cases you do not recall?

A. I do not recall this one; some of them I do.

Q. If this was not a contest in court and one of the parties did not appear and it was not contested in court, probably you wouldn't recall it? A. That might be.

Q. You don't now recall any particular suit that he was interested in that year or the year before or the year after, do you? A. Who, Mr. Jones?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, he has been involved in a good many suits, I can't tell you exact time.

Q. You don't recall the date of the case or the year of the trial?

A. Of that particular case, no, I do not.

Q. Or any other particular case that he appeared in, do you? A. I will think a few minutes and see.

The Court: Well, that detail as to the trial—I believe you stated he had been engaged in a number of cases?

A. Oh, yes, he has had quite a number of divorce cases; he is an active practitioner, Judge; involving members of the Home and some not members.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, STANCE MEYERS was recalled for cross examination and testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. You are the identical person who gave testimony in this case this morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you said you were at present Treasurer of the Board of Comptrol of Kansas?

A. Yes, sir, member and Treasurer of the Board.

Q. You are a white man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you said you had known Dennis Jones for a long number of years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He is a negro lawyer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many years have you known him?

A. Oh, I should judge twenty-five or thirty years.

Q. During that time he has lived in Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. During a portion of that time he was on the police force, was he?

A. Yes, sir, I think at one time he was a city detective.

Q. And did detective work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He has been engaged in the practice of law for sometime? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As a colored lawyer, he is known as a clever, shrewd lawyer, is he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I assume that you have never heard anything about his connection, if he had any, with the marriage of a negro woman, named Sadie James, to an old negro soldier who was an inmate of the Soldiers' Home? A. No, sir.

Q. You heard nothing about it one way or another?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever heard anything about the detail of his activity or connection with the Gypsy Oil interest or the Page Oil interest with reference to the Tommy Atkins allotment?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Linebaugh: I believe that is all.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. The colored population of Leavenworth is about four or five thousand?

A. Well, I hardly think it is that large.
Q. Three or four?
A. Probably three thousand I should judge.
Q. Three thousand? A. Yes, sir, in that neighborhood.

Recross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. They are not your associates? A. No, sir.
Q. There is one other question I wanted to ask you. Dennis has been rather active in business affairs up there, that is politically, hasn't he? A. Yes.

(Witness excused.)

And thereupon, O. B. TAYLOR, Jr., was recalled for cross examination and testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. What are your initials? A. O. B.

A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did some detective work?
A. Well, I don't know. He was on the police force and connected with the police department.
Q. He is a negro man? A. Yes, sir.
Q. A lawyer now? A. Yes, sir.
Q. And has been practicing law for a number of years?
A. A number of years.
Q. As colored lawyers go he is a shrewd, clever lawyer, that is the way he is looked upon is it? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Mr. Taylor, I assume you never heard anything about his having any connection, if he did have, with the marriage of an old negro soldier, inmate of the soldier's home, to a negro woman who was at that time married?
A. I have no recollection of it, no knowledge of it.
Q. Never heard of that? A. Not that I remember.
Q. To refresh your memory, you have heard about that, haven't you? A. I don't recall it, no, sir.

Q. Didn't that old negro man have a deposit in your bank, and didn't Dennis Jones and Sadie James come to you at your bank for the purpose of drawing out that deposit?

A. I don't think so, I don't recall it if he did.

Q. That negro man's name was Lain, an old soldier, inmate of the Soldier's Home. To refresh your memory, there was some difference of opinion expressed between you and them as to the amount of deposit, they contending that the deposit was two hundred and seventy dollars, and you stating that it was only a hundred and eighty-five?

A. I don't recall it, if I had it with them I don't remember it.

Q. That was in 1913, and this negro woman who was a small negro woman got very much excited in your bank and said some rather sharp words with reference to the amount of the deposit, claiming to have the deposit slip or bankbook that this old soldier had given her, showing the amount of deposit in your bank to have been two hundred and seventy dollars?

A. No, I don't think I handled that if they had that.

Q. Do you remember an account with a negro soldier named Lain, who was an inmate of the Soldier's Home, in your bank? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have a recollection of that account being closed and how it was closed and why it was closed? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know anything, or have you heard anything about Dennis Jones' activity for the Page Oil interest or the Gypsy Oil interest with reference to the Tommy Atkins allotment in the Creek Nation?

A. Only that I saw his name was connected with it.

Q. Never heard anything about it in detail at all?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know what he was supposed to do, or what he did do? A. I don't know, no, sir.

Q. Mr. Taylor, did you ever hear that Dennis Jones had stated that he could prove by bankers, lawyers, doctors, and business men in Leavenworth that hell was an ice box?

A. Did I ever hear that he said that?

Q. Yes?

A. Well, I don't know just how to answer that; I heard that remark made by some one this morning in a joking way.

Q. This morning is the first time you ever heard that he said that?

A. That remark was made that they could prove hell was an ice box.

Q. Did you hear that he made that remark before you gave your testimony this morning? A. Yes.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. You didn't believe that Dennis had said it, did you?
A. No, sir, I didn't; didn't sound like Dennis at all.
Q. And Mr. Linebaugh asked you if he wasn't a shrewd, clever kind of lawyer, I will ask you if he wasn't regarded as an honest colored lawyer?

Mr. German: We object to that as leading.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. I will ask you if he wasn't regarded as an honest colored lawyer as well as a shrewd and clever lawyer?
A. Yes, sir.

Recross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Mr. Taylor, in giving your testimony are you expressing, and did you express this morning, your personal views of Dennis Jones, or were you seeking to express the views of him that you have heard other people express?
A. Well, my personal views.
Q. Then, your testimony was altogether—— You were expressing to Judge Stuart what you knew about him yourself?
A. What was the question from Judge Stuart this morning please?
Q. Don't you remember?
A. He asked me if he was considered an honest man.
Q. No, he asked you if you knew his general reputation for his truth and veracity in the community where he resided?
A. Well, he meant for me to answer what I knew myself.
Q. I don't want to argue with you. Were you answering it in giving your personal view? A. Yes, sir.
Q. And your answer was based upon your personal knowledge? A. Yes, sir.
Q. And that altogether? A. Well, yes.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. That is your personal view of it? A. Yes, sir.
Q. I also asked you if you know what the people thought about him generally? A. His reputation is good.
Q. Well, that you know what the people know about him, not what they said but what they thought about him, how he was considered in the community independent of your own view?
A. I think his reputation is good, considered so by the people.

Recross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. You know where he does his banking business?

A. I do not.

Q. Who have you heard discuss [] being a truthful man?

A. My father.

Q. When? A. Oh, a number of years ago.

Q. Who else?

A. Oh, I don't know that I could recall anybody else.

Q. How many years ago was it that your father discussed it?

A. It might have been within the last ten years, I can't tell you.

Q. Well, was it within the last ten years?

A. Well, I don't know.

Q. What is your recollection?

A. Well, I think it was the last ten years, maybe fifteen, when he was connected in politics a little bit.

Q. Dennis has been active in politics, hasn't he?

A. He has some few years ago.

Q. And that is the only person you ever heard discuss the question as to whether he was a truthful man?

A. Well, last night on the sleeper I heard Judge Wendorff say he considered him a very honest man.

Q. And heard this other gentleman—what is his name?

A. Mr. Meyers?

Q. Yes. A. Well, he probably said so too.

Q. Anybody else?

A. No, we hadn't discussed it with anybody.

Q. Those two gentlemen, are the gentlemen who preceded you on the witness stand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You don't know of anyone else who discussed it?

Q. I don't, no, sir.

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. Linebaugh: If the court will pardon me just a minute, in view of this last witness' testimony, I would like to call Meyers back for just one question.

The Court: Call Mr. Meyers.

And thereupon, STANCE MEYERS, being recalled further testified as follows:

Recross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Mr. Meyers, one question I wanted to ask you that I failed to ask you. In the answers to the questions that you have—that have been asked you, were those answers based upon your personal opinion of Dennis, or otherwise?

A. My personal opinion of him.

Q. You were then expressing, altogether, your own personal views of this man Dennis Jones? A. Well, yes.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. I ask you if you knew how people considered him up there; do you know that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How do people consider him in Kansas?

A. Well, good reputation, a man of good character.

Recross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Who did you ever hear discuss him?

A. Well, quite a number of people around Leavenworth there.

Q. Will you name them?

A. Well, I can name Mr. Thomas J. Brown who was the sheriff of our county.

Q. Now, they were discussing the fact that he was a truthful man, were they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what connection, now, did Mr. Thompson make that statement? A. How is that now?

Q. In what connection did Mr. Brown the sheriff make that statement?

A. Well, discussed it in a general way as to the character of Mr. Jones.

Q. How did the question arise?

A. Well, there in discussing his character at times.

Q. I understand, but why were you discussing his character?

A. Why, I suppose it came up during our time in the sheriff's office, Mr. Jones at times had cases in the court there, and he had a——

Q. Did you discuss whether or not he was a truthful man there? A. I think so, yes, sir.

Q. Now, anyone else that you know of?

A. Oh, I could—— Mr. Ed. Murphy.

Q. How did Mr. Ed Murphy—was he policeman Murphy?

A. No, sir.

Q. How did Mr. Murphy—how did that subject come up for discussion between you and Mr. Murphy?

A. Why, in talking about Mr. Jones on matters pertaining to matters in the court there, and in a business way.

Q. That was in the court work while you were sheriff?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, is that Mr. Ed Murphy?

A. Mr. E. E. Murphy.

Q. Known as Mr. Ed Murphy is he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He is one of the witnesses who has testified in this case by deposition?

A. Well, I don't know as to that.

Q. Do you know of any other E. E. Murphy in Leavenworth? A. No, sir.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. This man Murphy of whom you speak, is one of the general managers of the Woodmen of the World and America, isn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Gets about seventeen thousand dollars a year salary, doesn't he?

A. Well, I don't know what his salary is; it is very large.

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. Linebaugh: May we recall Mr. Taylor?

The Court: Call Mr. Taylor.

And thereupon, O. B. TAYLOR, Jr., being recalled further testified as follows:

Recross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Mr. Taylor, is Dennis Jones doing any business at your bank at this time? A. No, sir.

Q. Why, did you decline to state whether he was or not when you were off the witness stand?

A. Well, we never tell anybody who does business with us unless there is some special reason.

Q. Someone had told you not to?

A. I was stopped and they asked me whether Dennis Jones does any business with me and I said what is that for, do you want to know it for the Court or——

The Court: I think he was interrogated on the witness stand he testified that he did not. You may stand aside. The whole matter has been covered already.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon E. C. HANFORD, being recalled, further recalled, further testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. Pinson.

Q. Mr. Hanford, during your testimony this morning, you were requested to ascertain whether you could find certain documents; did you make search for those, make an effort to find those during the noon hour?

A. I only remembered one, Mr. Pinson; I only looked for one.

Q. What was that one?

A. That was the interrogations of Minnie by Mr. Rice at Kansas City.

Q. Did you find it? A. Yes.

Q. Will you produce it, please?

(Witness hands file of paper to attorney).

Mr. Stuart: Now, your Honor, I want to serve notice on the gentleman now, I don't want to appear to keep any of this evidence out, but all these communications here between attorney and client, I shall object to every statement between Minnie and her attorneys. I do it on principle. I have never seen these at all. I objct to every communication.

Mr. Pinson: I would like to make just one suggestion: it is true that these statements passing from client to attorney are privileged communications, but where an attorney himself is on the witness stand take, takes advantage of his client's communication to him, and testifies to that in order to sustain good faith of himself and his associates——

The Court: I will tell you gentlemen: In this case I am inclined to be very liberal and not to regard with any degree of consideration those matters of privilege, which in other cases control, and I [] disposed in this case, so far as transactions and statements made by Minnie Atkins to Mr. Hanford are concerned, to permit them to go into the record.

Mr. Stuart: Alright, your Honor, we will except to that, but of course we are not going to agree, and continue to except, that their entire private files be put in this case.

The Court: I am not prepared to say that they are all going in. If counsel exhibits what the Court seems to consider will encumber the record——

Mr. Pinson: A portion of the files have already been introduced and we may consider it material to ask as to those.

The Court: It will be unnecessary in my judgment to inject into the record anything that Minnie Atkins may have said to Mr. Hanford that does not pertain to the matters here. I shall depend upon you gentlemen to confine that.

Mr. Hanford: Your Honor, may I leave the witness stand to add my objection as Minnie's attorney? I have not read this and don't know what is in there, and I have not undertaken to testify what was in it. I object to furnishing counsel our private files and communications.

The Court: You may be noted as entering the same objections are Judge Stuart to the cross examination, the same objection, the same ruling on the objection and your exception noted.

Q. Mr. Hanford, you testified this morning that there were probably some copies of your contract of employment; did you make an effort to locate those? Did you find those or make an effort to?

A. Mr. Pinson, I didn't make an effort to find those because I haven't even a copy of the contract—of the trust agreement that was drawn at that time. I have it in Seattle but am not able to get it.

Judge Stuart: Your Honor, I am going to object to that, too. It is utterly immaterial what his contract was with Minnie. Whatever contract he had with Page, I don't object to. Minnie is not charged with fabricating any lawsuit here.

The Court: The only bearing it occurs to me that this may have, this line of cross examination, on this case, would be in determining the interest of Mr. Hanford as a witness in this case, and probably determining his good faith as a party charged with having fabricated this case.

Mr. Pinson: Why, if Your Honor, please, he is a defendant, and his interest in the lawsuit is one of the things to be determined by the court.

The Court: Now, he has testified in regard to his contract with Minnie Atkins; he made statements as to what portion was written and what portion was oral. If he is able to produce that contract, he may say so.

The Court: Is that contract in writing?

A. There is a contract in writing, Your Honor, and I would be very glad to produce it, but I am sure that there is no copy in Oklahoma.

The Court: Is that the one that you referred to as being in the safe deposit box?

A. Yes, Your Honor, all those files, those papers relating to my fee and that trust agreement are in the safe deposit box in Seattle. I have never made any effort to get them out.

The Court: You stated I believe that Minnie might have a copy of one of these papers?

A. Yes, Your Honor, I thought she might have, but I didn't ask her about it because I forgot it; I don't believe it would be any use because I don't believe she has it.

The Court: Well, we will not go into that any further.

Q. Your statement with reference to the payment made to Minnie and Captain MacNab is that Captain MacNab received from you two thousand dollars or three thousand dollars out of that five thousand dollar check?

A. I don't remember the exact amount, Mr. Pinson, but it was about twenty-eight hundred dollars, probably twenty-eight hundred and something.

Q. You mean to say that he was paid three thousand dollars and then he paid out two hundred dollars for expenses; is that what you want the court to believe?

A. Yes, that is the arrangement, first to take about four hundred dollars that I paid back to the Gem Oil Company, and then gave him a check for three thousand dollars less one-half.

Q. I refer you to page eighty-four of the transcript of deposition before Mr. Penick, and ask you to refresh your memory from Captain MacNab's statement and then state whether it is true that Captain MacNab received only two thousand dollars and that you received three thousand dollars from the first check?

A. That may be correct, Mr. Pinson.

Q. Well, is it correct, Mr. Hanford?

A. I guess it is.

Q. Then, you mean now to say that Captain MacNab received two thousand dollars and you three thousand dollars out of the first five thousand dollar check?

A. Well, I don't know whether Captain MacNab is right or I am right; but he has the money in the bank so he knows better than I do, so I will say that it is correct.

Q. Now, let's follow those checks just a minute. There was two checks given to you at first, weren't there? A. Yes.

Q. Both made payable to you?

A. Both made payable to me.

Q. Five thousand dollars each?

A. Five thousand dollars each.

Q. Now, one check was dated ahead about thirty or sixty days, wasn't it?

A. No, it was dated at the same time as the others.

Q. But made payable later?

A. But they wrote across the face of it not payable or cashable until about July 30th.

Q. Now, let's follow that check. That was immediately payable, when was it cashed?

A. It was cashed after I got back to Seattle.

Q. Who cashed it? A. I cashed it.

Q. Who endorsed it? A. I did, I endorsed both.

Q. What did you do with that first five thousand dollars?

A. I put it in my bank and gave Captain MacNab a check on my account.

Q. For two thousand dollars. Now, Mr. Hanford, did Minnie then, to your knowledge, receive any of that first five thousand dollar check?

A. I don't think she received a cent.

Q. Hasn't yet, has she? A. No.

Q. The second check stayed in the bank for quite a long while awaiting the period when it was due, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When it was due, you sent it down to Tulsa and it was returned unpaid, is that correct?

A. No, when it was due I couldn't get it. I left Seattle before July 30th and it was locked up in the safe deposit box and the time lock on, on Saturday afternoon, and I couldn't get it. It wasn't sent down until I got back to Seattle. Later on then it was unpaid.

Q. Then, when was the first time that Minnie received any money as a part of that consideration for this lease?

A. Well, she received five hundred dollars, Mr. Pinson, as an advance on when the check should be paid and I don't remember when she received that.

Q. Was that paid by a check?

A. Well, I don't recollect how that was paid. In fact, I had forgotten about it until this morning when I saw a reference to that in one of those letters or telegrams.

Q. Is there any record whereby we can ascertain definitely just what date that money was paid, that five hundred dollars? A. I don't know. That might be.

Q. Were you present when it was paid?

A. Some banking record or something like that.

Q. Were you present when it was paid? A. To her?

Q. Yes?

A. No, I don't remember of seeing her get that money.

I think—— No, I don't know when she got that. I was present and gave her the forty-five hundred dollar balance.

Q. At a later date? A. Yes, at a later date.

Q. Had she received any money up to the time she went to testify at Tulsa?

A. She had received it all at that time. She got the forty-five hundred dollars before that; five hundred dollars in a checking account and she asked to have the balance made in a certificate of deposit, something that she could carry back to Seattle herself.

Q. Then, she got the whole five thousand dollars at once?

A. She got the whole five thousand.

Q. But it was simply divided into a cash payment of five hundred and the forty-five hundred certificate of deposit?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did she receive that after she had made the statement in Kansas City? A. Yes.

Q. That is when she got it?

A. She got it when she was sick in the hospital in Leavenworth.

Q. At Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. She didn't get sick until she had made this statement, is that true? A. Yes.

Q. After she made her statement. Had she stayed in Leavenworth during all that time? A. Yes.

Q. Now, let's go back to the time when Sadie came in again just for a minute. Pardon me just a moment. The statement that was made in Kansas City bears date September 29th, that is correct, isn't it?

A. I don't remember the date, I think that is right. Because I think I started back from Seattle about the 25th.

Q. And the depositions were taken in October?

A. I believe they were about the first week in October.

Q. During the first week in October? A. Yes.

Q. Now, when Sadie and you and Minnie and Captain MacNab were together on this first trip when Sadie—or on the second trip when Sadie found out that Long had been there—you recall that meeting do you not and what happened there?

A. I don't know what you mean by the second trip.

Q. Well, that is the first trip?

A. That is the first time I ever saw Sadie.

Q. She was advised then that Long had been there, by some person? A. Yes, Minnie told her.

Q. Minnie told her. The burden of Sadie's story at that time was that Tommy Atkins was not dead?

A. She wanted Minnie to say that—she didn't know that Tommy Atkins was dead.

Q. Well, didn't she even threaten Minnie that Minnie would be put in the penitentiary if she said he was dead?

A. Yes, she said if she signed that contract in which it recited Thomas Atkins deceased, that she would get seven years in the penitentiary.

Q. Now, Minnie was not overjoyed at the news that her son was alive, was she?

Mr. Cruce: If the court please, we object. That is purely a conclusion.

The Court: Well, that would be a conclusion. What did Minnie say about it.

Q. Well, I will ask you that. What did Minnie say about the news that her child was not dead?

A. She simply said that she wouldn't say that. Sadie wanted her to say that she didn't know, and Sadie said she knew more amout him than Minnie herself. She had seen him when he was five years old and that Minnie didn't know he was dead. Minnie wouldn't say that she didn't know that Thomas was not dead.

Q. No, Sadie insisted, didn't she, strenuously that Thomas was living?

A. No. No, he said that he may be dead but you don't know it. She didn't insist that Thomas was living and didn't try to.

Q. She didn't attempt to lead Minnie or you in the belief that Thomas was living, is that true?

A. No, didn't make any claim to have any knowledge.

Q. You didn't understand that when she said Minnie would be put in the penitentiary that she ment to lead you to believe that Thomas was living?

A. Well, I wasn't influenced by anything that Sadie said, Mr. Pinson. I got the correct impression of Sadie at first.

Q. That she was a dangerous woman? A. Yes.

Q. And you found out subsequently that she was a very dangerous woman?

A. Absolutely. I didn't get her drift at that time as to why she wanted Minnie to say she didn't know that Thomas was dead, but I knew that she had some reason for it.

Q. Well, did you ever get it?

A. Yes, I got it very quickly after I learned of Sadie's movements for Mr. Bartlett.

Q. Well, let's just explain what that was, what you afterwards found, Mr. Hanford, as to Sadie's drift about Thomas being alive and not dead?

A. I didn't get it at that time. I say I subsequently saw what she was trying to do. She was trying to find Tommy Atkins himself; and afterwards testified that she tried to find some fake Thomas that she could put over on Mr. Bartlett.

The Court: Let's not get away—— You will get through with your cross examination quicker if you will follow the logical sequence. Now, let's not get off on Sadie James.

Mr. Pinson: The witness has testified Sadie was there making strenuous effort to get a deed from Minnie; and now he testifies she had no interest in Minnie because the child was not dead.

The Court: Let him explain the circumstances.

A. Sadie very quickly abandoned her idea of getting a deed, after she encountered Captain MacNab and I.

Q. What was her next step?

A. She was informed that she would have to deal through us and that nothing was going to be done at this time.

Q. You never gave her an opportunity to deal through you, did you? A. Certainly not.

Q. Now, Sadie, at that time. you testified at the Receivership made some reference to Rockefeller and said she had four members of the Commission behind her?

A. No, the stenographer made some typographical errors. I didn't say Rockefeller, and how that word Rockefeller got in there I don't know. I think I said this: That Sadie talked very graphically and I think that they wrote that up as Rockefeller.

Q. That is your explanation?

A. That is the only explanation I can give. She stood up and held a paper in the air and said that Mr. Page had gone before the court and says "Here I have a deed."

Q. Your recollection is that Sadie told you and Minnie together that Mr. Page had a forged deed?

A. Yes, she told us that Mr. Page had done exactly what Bartlett himself had done.

Q. Is that what led you to believe at first that Sadie was a dangerous woman?

A. No, Sadie's entire action, and especially her action in representing that she was a special agent of the Dawes Commission, and that the Government had sent her out to buy this land for four thousand dollars. and her evident attempt to try and get Minnie to say something she wanted her to say about not knowing that Thomas was dead.

Q. Sadie's story, neither Sadie's story nor the fact that she may have represented some other party never led you to look up that matter or take any steps in that direction?

A. In what direction?

Q. In what direction, Mr. Pinson?

A. In the direction of investigating her possible bid for the property or her employer's bid?

A. I made no investigation at that time and didn't intend to. After I got back to Oklahoma and began my investigation, I then learned of this Bartlett connection with the forged deed matter, and that was investigation enough for me to absolutely preclude any dealing with Mr. Bartlett or the Gypsy Oil Company.

Q. Alright. Now, how did you learn about the Bartlett forged deed transaction?

A. I learned a little about it at the time I looked up the record in the clerk's office and Judge Stanfield told me further about it at the Frisco station.

Q. Did you have a telegram from Captain MacNab while you were in Tulsa at the first trip, explaining to you about the Bartlett end of this transaction?

A. He told me that Mr. Bartlett——

Q. Well, did you have such a telegram, first.

A. Well, it didn't explain anything to me; I had a telegram.

Q. Well, what was in it?

A. He simply asked me—told me that Mr. Bartlett wanted me to see the Gypsy Oil Company; that they wanted a lease.

Q. And that they would pay as much as anybody?

A. No, didn't say that.

Q. That wasn't in it. Where is that telegram?

A. I don't know if I have got it, or not; I will see.

(Witness hands attorney paper.)

Q. Now, when you found out about the Bartlett forged deed transaction, you found out that Betty Mann had obtained that forged deed, didn't you?

A. I found that out from Judge Stanfield.

Q. Well, you did, then, find out when you found out about the Bartlett transaction? A. Yes.

Q. And had you met Betty Mann at that time?

A. No, I didn't know who Betty Mann was.

Q. Now, to refresh your memory, Mr. Hanford, didn't Mr. Long introduce you to Betty Mann in the hotel at Seattle?

A. I didn't see Betty Mann in the hotel at Seattle.

Q. You didn't meet her while you were up there at all, did you? A. No.

Q. When was the first time you met her?

A. The first—well, I saw her for a long time before I ever met her. She was around the office of the Gem Oil Company a number of times when I was in there and I didn't learn who she was until some time after I had seen her around there in the office. I believe that Betty spoke to me and I just talked to her there in the office some; didn't even know who she was or——

Q. Then the first time you really knew her personally was after she was employed and you met to go to Kansas City?

A. No, I knew her in the office. You said Kansas City, you mean Leavenworth?

Q. No, I mean Kansas City.

A. I met her at Leavenworth, that time that I went up there?

Q. Yes.

A. No, met her in Leavenworth, she came over to Leavenworth.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Hanford: isn't it a fact that you and Mr. Long, and Mrs. Mann, and her daughter met in a hotel in Kansas City and had a conversation before you and Mrs. Mann went over to Leavenworth?

A. I don't think so, Mr. Pinson; that may have been, but I went over to Leavenworth on that trip; I was to meet Betty in Leavenworth and when I got off the car in Leavenworth, I know I was by myself and I met Mr. Long coming down the street; he was coming from Crilley's then—he had just met Crilley.

Q. I just want to know whether you did meet her in Kansas City at a hotel, with her daughter and Mr. Long; whether the four of you had a conversation, in which you first came in the hotel and found Mrs. Mann when she was looking for Mr. Long? A. I don't remember about that.

Q. Don't recall that? When you and Mr. Long went down to Tulsa, going over to Sapulpa, you discussed the possibilities of the Tommy Atkins land, on the road didn't you?

A. Very little, because I was very finicky and I wouldn't let Mr. Long talk to me very much, but he told me—drew a little map and told me in a general way why he thought that it would be valuable and I allowed him at that time to read the trust agreement that was drawn between Minnie and Captain MacNab.

Q. You hadn't assured him that he should have an opportunity to buy this lease before you entered into the trust agreement? A. I had not.

Q. You didn't at any time lead him to believe that he was the person to be considered, and his company, did you?

A. I did not.

Q. Now, when you reached Tulsa, and I am going to ask you to refer to this calendar of 1913-14 and '15 combined and see if by tracing the calendar you can advise us just what day of the week and the month you and Mr. Long reached Tulsa together.

A. I think it was June 15th, Monday, that would be that we left Seattle.

Q. Well, let me reached your recollection; wasn't it Sunday when you reached Tulsa? Didn't you testify that it was Sunday? A. Yes, it was Sunday.

Q. Yes, because you couldn't get Mr. Rice at the office that morning?

A. Yes, it was Sunday that we got to Tulsa, that would be——

Q. June, what date?

A. Oh, just a minute, it was Monday the 15th that we left Seattle; I was looking at 1913. It was June 22nd on Monday—June 21st on Sunday that I reached Tulsa.

Q. Alright. Now, that was on Sunday morning and you went directly to the hotel of course? A. Yes.

Q. How long did you stay there before you had a call from Mr. Long?

A. Well, it wasn't very long, Mr. Pinson. I had started to get myself cleaned up and change my clothes.

Q. Well, you hadn't been out of the hotel, had you?

A. I hadn't been out of the hotel, no.

Q. Now, Mr. Long came to you and took you out to Mr. Page's home, didn't he? A. Yes.

Q. You had breakfast there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you tried to get Mr. Rice and couldn't get him until along about noon, is that true? A. Yes.

Q. You stayed at Mr. Page's house until noon and talked with him about this matter; this lease matter? A. Yes.

Q. He made you some offers, didn't he during that time?

A. Yes, he made me several offers during that time.

A. Yes, now, when Mr. Rice came, you talked with him about this lease matter, didn't you?

A. Yes, Mr. Rice didn't talk very much; he listened mostly.

Q. He gave you his idea about the value of it, didn't he?

A. No, he told Mr. Page that if they should get the Bartlesville sand up there that it would be very valuable.

Q. Well, you discussed among yourself about what the value of the property probably was, didn't you?

A. Not in amounts; not in sums of money; just in that general way, that it might be very valuable.

Q. Mr. Page offered you ten thousand dollars along about noon?

A. Yes, it was when—Mr. Rice, I think was the one that induced him; he came out with offer of ten thousand dollars on Mr. Rice's suggestion.

Q. Now, upon the making of that offer, you accepted it subject to the possibility that you might turn the lease to somebody else at the same figure, isn't that true?

A. I told Mr. Page that I would accept that amount as a bonus if I decided to give him the lease.

Q. That is it. You had agreed then, upon a bonus except that you hadn't agreed upon a lessee, is that right?

A. That is it; I know that Mr. Page was very well satisfied. He said that he had it then because nobody else would offer that much. I told him that I might advertise it——

Q. He suggested that you not advertise it, did he?

A. No, sir, he told me that he didn't believe that I would get more and that he was satisfied that he would get the lease on the offer of ten thousand dollars.

Q. Mr. Rice told you the same thing and Mr. Long told you the same thing did he?

A. No, Mr. Rice didn't tell me the same thing.

Q. Mr. Long? A. No.

Q. Now, what was done that afternoon, if anything?

A. Sunday afternoon?

Q. Well, if it wasn't a matter connected with this lease I don't care anything about it.

A. No, nothing was done in regard to the lease.

Q. In a business way?

Q. I don't know; I may have talked to Mr. Long but I didn't talk to Mr. Page.

Q. You had lunch there at Mr. Page's that Sunday?

A. No, after Mr. Rice had been there, Mr. Page sent Mr. Rice to his house in his machine and I went with him and went to the hotel.

Q. Went back to the hotel? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you talked to Mr. Long, you think, in the afternoon?

A. I think I must have; I can't say because I don't remember.

Q. No further business was transacted relative to this lease?

A. I may have looked over the maps—the oil maps in the office, or something like that but I don't want to——

Q. Well, did you go to Mr. Page's office that afternoon, or anyone else's office? A. Well, I don't remember.

Q. Now, the next morning was Monday. Where did you go Monday morning?

A. Monday morning, I believe it was we went to Sapulpa.

Q. Now, you went to Sapulpa to investigate the court records over there, didn't you, and see what kind of shape those suits were in, is that true?

A. Yes, to investigate this Nancy suit.

Q. Now, over there you found Nancy's side of the case presented in affidavits in a motion for a new trial, didn't you?

A. Well, I didn't—I didn't go into that, Mr. Pinson; I looked to see what had been done in the case, whether the judgment had been entered, and I think I hurriedly looked at some of the testimony in regard to Nancy being the mother of Thomas Atkins.

Q. Now, the condition of that case at that time was that Nancy had obtained a judgment, hadn't she?

A. It must have been affidavits that I looked at because I saw some of them there.

Q. They were in connection for a motion for a new trial, wasn't it, Mr. Hanford?

A. I don't know; I think they must have been from a knowledge of the trial obtained since then.

Q. Anyhow, you found numerous affidavits showing that Nancy was the mother of Thomas Atkins, didn't you?

A. I found some that showed me that they had testimony that Nancy Atkins was the mother of Thomas Atkins.

Q. You found that the court had rendered judgment to that effect, didn't you? A. No, the court hadn't.

Q. Well, why was the motion for new trial pending, Mr. Hanford?

A. I have no knowledge of that that I obtained at that time, but I can tell you from what I learned since.

Q. Alright, go ahead, tell us what you——

A. The case was tried I think in February, and there was some defendants whose case the court was not ready to pass upon and he deferred passing upon them and in the meantime a motion for a new trial had been interposed.

Q. Well, you know there was a motion for new trial that had been filed there, don't you?

A. I know from the state of the record now but I don't recall from anything that I saw at that time.

Q. Now, how long did you stay in Sapulpa?

A. Very short time; I had a conversation there with Mr. Rutherford, and I went over there across the street—oh, somebody came up, some clerk came out and told me that Mr. Lytle wanted to see me.

Q. One of the attorneys in that case?

A. One of the attorneys in that case.

Q. Alright.

A. And I went across the street and saw Mr. Lytle and he asked me if I had a telegram from Captain MacNab.

Q. Wait just a minute; I think that is all immaterial. How long did you stay in Sapulpa? A. A very short time.

Q. What time did you take a train out from there and where did you go?

A. I don't know what time I took a train, and I don't know whether I went from there to Muskogee, or back to Tulsa and then to Muskogee; but I think I went from there to Muskogee, because I know I went by way of Okmulgee.

Q. And you came back—came over to Muskogee and spent the day Tuesday in Muskogee, didn't you, looking over these records?

A. I looked over those records but whether it was Tuesday or not, I don't know. I believe that it was.

Q. Well, if you came to Muskogee direct or if you came back by Tulsa by Muskogee, that is what you came to Muskogee for, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Long came with you? A. Yes.

Q. And your idea was to come over here and satisfy you—Mr. Long, to satisfy you that Minnie was the mother of Thomas and not Nancy, isn't that true?

A. Well, he didn't come to satisfy me that Minnie was the mother of Thomas.

Q. Isn't that what you testified to on direct examination?

A. Well, I testified, I believe—if I didn't, I want to testify now——

Q. Alright, sir.

A. That he came to satisfy me that there wasn't anything in Nancy's claim of being the mother of Thomas.

Q. Alright, now, he did that by Minnie's census card and Thomas' census card, didn't he?

A. No, he showed that from a comparison of Minnie's census card and Nancy's census card.

Q. Now, then, Mr. Hanford, the reason that he advanced to you why Nancy couldn't be the mother of Thomas was because Thomas' census card showed the son of Minnie Atkins, isn't that true? A. Yes.

Q. Then he showed you Minnie's census card which contained a number corresponding with the number given to the mother, didn't he?

A. Well, I don't know anything about the number. He simply showed me that Nancy Atkins had no—that there was nothing in Thomas Atkins' census card showing him to be related to Nancy Atkins, and there was nothing in Nancy Atkins' card relating to Thomas Atkins; but that all through the Minnie Atkins and Thomas Atkins files, it did relate to Minnie Atkins as the mother.

Q. That is what you came over here to find out, wasn't it? To satisfy yourself about it? Now you did learn on Tuesday that judgment had been rendered over there, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't—I don't know when I learned that; I learned that sometime afterwards; I think it was when we had Minnie down at Sapulpa.

Q. You didn't learn that right away?

A. No, I don't know when I learned that.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, when the trip was made to Seattle, did you talk to anybody about this lease besides Mr. Long?

A. Yes, I talked to Mr. Lytle and Judge Brown. Judge Brown told me that he had an interest on the Nancy side and wanted to know if it was true that Minnie Atkins was alive.

Q. Well, did you talk to anybody about making a lease to them?

A. Only to Mr. Lytle, not to deal with—Mr. Lytle asked me to see the Gypsy Oil Company in compliance with their telegram. I told them I had received from Captain MacNab.

Q. Yes. Now on Tuesday while you were over in Muskogee, did you talk to anybody about the possibility of making a lease to them? A. No.

Q. Now, how long did you stay in Muskogee?

A. I think only one day or a part of one day?

Q. You went back to Tulsa, the trains left the same time they do now, didn't they, about five o'clock in the afternoon?

A. Well, I didn't know much about them then, and I don't know what train I went on.

Q. Well, do you remember what time you got back to Tulsa?

A. I don't remember how I got back to Tulsa.

Q. Well, after you got back to Tulsa, what was the next thing you did in relation to this affair?

A. I think the next thing I did was to go and see Eugene Lorton; he is the owner of the World.

Q. Did you offer the lease to him?

A. No, I didn't offer the lease to him. I went there to see him and talk with him and he took me out in his automobile.

Q. Newspaper man over there, is he? A. Yes.

Q. Did you talk with him about this lease?

A. Well, I told him I was down here in regard to an oil matter for a client of mine.

Q. Well, I don't care anything about that, Mr. Hanford.

A. And I told him that I contemplated making a lease to Mr. Page.

Q. That is all the conversation you had with him in regard to it?

A. Yes, in that way, I told him about it; I went to him to talk to him and to find out what he knew. I didn't sit down and ask his advice but I wanted to get in conversation with him and talk with him.

Q. Fnd out what he knew about what?

A. Just about people and matters.

Q. Just a friendly conversation you were going to have with him? A. Yes.

Q. Now, who did you next see with reference to selling this lease?

A. I want to say that Mr. Lorton advised me at that time not to make a lease to Mr. Page.

Q. Yes, sir. Did you know Mr. Lorton before?

A. Yes, sir, I knew Mr. Lorton before.

Q. Had known him before you came to Tulsa? A. Yes.

Q. Who did you next see in regard to this lease?

A. I don't know just when it was, Mr. Pinson, that I went to one of the mapping companies, the Oil Mapping Company there and went over a map, an oil map, of the territory in the Cushing District that was being developed at that time.

Q. To refresh your memory a moment, Mr. Hanford: you didn't do that Sunday afternoon, did you, because the mapping companies were closed Sunday, weren't they?

A. Well, I don't think it was Sunday afternoon but nothing closes in Tulsa on Sunday; it might have been.

Q. It wasn't Monday in Sapulpa was it? A. No.

Q. It wasn't Tuesday at Muskogee?

A. No, it wasn't at Muskogee.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, the lease was signed on Wednesday, June 24th, what time did you wire that that lease should be signed?

A. I suppose on Tuesday.

Q. Did you wire from Muskogee, or did you wire from Tulsa? A. I suppose from Tulsa.

Q. Now, the lease that was signed was the lease that was up there, or that Long had left?

A. Yes, no; that wasn't the lease, the lease that was signed was a copy of that.

Q. Well, it was a duplicate of it, it was the same lease that he had started up there to have signed, wasn't it?

A. With this exception: the lease that he lease that he left provided for a consideration of a dollar an acre and the lease that was signed I told them to put in a consideration, I think of a thousand dollars or a hundred dollars or something.

Q. Now, you had that lease signed by reason of a telegram that you sent, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you that telegram or a copy of it?

A. I don't know; I haven't seen it; no, I haven't that telegram, Mr. Pinson. I have here, though, those telegrams you asked for this morning, with regard to inquiries we made of the banks as to the Gem Oil Company.

Q. That telegram was probably, you say, sent on Tuesday?

A. I suppose so, because I told them to act quickly and get the letter in the mail.

Q. It was a long night letter, wasn't it? That telegram?

A. I don't know whether it was or not; I suppose it was a straight message though, because I know I was in a hurry.

Q. And what changes did you have made in Mr. Long's copy or lease? Only such changes as were made by the telegraphic message? A. I think that was all.

Q. Now, the result of your trip to Tulsa then——

A. I think there may have been other changes than that. It seems to me I remember a letter from my father in which he said——

The Court: Well, so far as any changes you indicated, that was all in the telegram?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Because you were only there three or four days.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was your father connected with this in any manner, Mr. Hanford?

A. No, he only had somebody copy the lease and forward it to me. I told Captain MacNab to go to his office and have it done.

Q. Are you prepared to say at this time your father did not receive a fee from either the Gem Oil Company or some other such person? A. He never has.

Q. As a result of your visit to Tulsa to negotiate this lease, did you offer the lease for sale to any person other than Page and Josey or their company? A. I did not.

Q. Why?

A. Because I wanted to lease it to Mr. Page.

Q. Any particular reason for that, Mr. Hanford?

A. Yes, this reason: I didn't want to lease it to a company.

Q. Who was this lease made to?

A. It was made to the Gem Oil Company.

Q. Is that a corporation? A. Yes.

Q. You wanted to lease it to Mr. Page? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't want to lease it to a corporation? A. No.

Q. But you did?

A. Well, I did. The Gem Oil Company was a private corporation between Mr. Page and Mr. Josey and I was dealing with individuals; and I explained that to Mr. Page, and I believe that it was largely to that that Mr. Page transferred the lease to himself and Mr. Josey.

Q. I see.

A. But I had the idea and ascertained that the Gem Oil Company was simply a partnership concern between Mr. Page and Mr. Josey, and that they managed it and didn't have officers.

Q. Well, Mr. Hanford, you knew as an attorney that a corporation had to be managed by officers, didn't you?

A. Yes, but Mr. Pinson, I mean this: That I didn't have to deal with a Pittsburg corporation or a pipe line company, or something of that kind, where the matter would be entirely in the hands of hired employees.

Q. You learned while you were in Tulsa that the Gypsy Oil Company was a strong and wealthy concern, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. You were down there to secure the most money possible for your client, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. You didn't want to deal with the Gypsy Oil Company?

A. Not only to secure the most money, I was down there to secure her interest in every possible way I could.

Q. You found that the Gypsy Company was entirely responsible and financially responsible?

A. Well, I didn't investigate that.

Q. Did you find any other corporation or partnership in Tulsa that you took the matter up with or any individuals?

A. No, I learned of lots of them, but I wasn't taking the time to go any further.

> The Court: Well, now, he stated that he didn't make any effort with other people. I know, as a matter of fact, and will take judicial knowledge that there were others there.

A. I was anxious to get possession of the property and get the Gypsy out of possession as quickly as possible and I had an idea——

Q. Let me go just one question further, if the court please. You have explained to the court that your reason for not dealing with Bartlett and the Gypsy was that they were adverse claimants; do I understand that you didn't want to sell the property into litigation?

A. Well, what I didn't want to do was turn the property over to adverse claimants and give them an opportunity to get possession and attend to the quieting of title against themselves. We had to quiet title against the Gypsy Oil Company and the Nancy Atkins' interest, and I wasn't going to turn the case over to either of those interests, especially the Gypsy Oil Company which was in possession under Bartlett under a forged deed

Q. I see?

A. I think in regard to my selling to Mr. Page, that Rice & Lyons had as much as anything to do with influencing me to sell to Mr. Page, because I was very favorably impressed with Mr. Rice and Mr. Lyons.

Q. Now, then, the Gypsy was an adversary of Nancy?

A. Yes.

Q. The Gypsy was claiming under a forged deed from a Minnie *Ad*kins? A. Yes.

Q. And what the Gypsy wanted was a title from the real Minnie Atkins, wasn't it? A. I suppose so.

Q. That was your understanding at that time? A. Yes.

Q. Now, before you and Mr. Long came down to Tulsa, had you had any written statement from Minnie or any written statement of any kind from Minnie?

A. Not in regard to the facts of the case.

Q. In regard to Tommy and her life history?

A. No, I only had what Captain MacNab told me and she told me, and the conversation we had at Captain MacNab's office at the time the temporary trust agreement was signed.

Q. That was simply the statement that she had had five children, is that it?

A. Yes, and the fact that she gave birth to Thomas in Leavenworth and had left him there.

Q. She told you that that night at Captain MacNab's office? A. Yes, she told us all there.

Q. Now, let's go on then, Mr. Hanford, you say she told you all. Tell us what else she told you all there in the office at that time?

A. I have no recollection, Mr. Pinson, there was no questiton in my mind as to the facts, and I didn't attempt to question her.

Q. Was there any question in Mr. Long's mind about the facts?

A. Mr. Long wasn't there, but there never did appear to be any question in Mr. Long's mind as far as I have known him.

Q. You learned that night where Tommy died and how long he lived? A. No.

Q. When was the first time that you learned from Minnie how long Tommy lived there and where he died?

A. The first time that I learned anything in regard to that was after Mr. Long and I came back to Seattle and we were interrogating her at her house. That was in July, and she said that she had a letter which she received at Fort Wayne in which she was told that Tommy Atkins was dead.

Q. Now, had you ever had that information before that from some one else aside from Minnie?

A. Minnie's husband told me sometime—— Well, it was after that, about that letter.

Q. But that was after that and he corrected Minnie as to where she had received it.

Q. Well, had you heard anything before that Mr. Hanford? A. No.

Q. You had not. Were you with Mr. Long pretty continuously during that time, the second trip to Seattle?

A. I don't think I was with him pretty continuously. I left him before we got to Seattle. I left him at the junction going to Tacoma, and went out to American Lake to see Captain MacNab, and then went over to Seattle and joined Mr. Long. I was only gone a part of that day. I think I joined Mr. Long about noon and went out to Minnie's house.

Q. And the second visit to Seattle, what was the effort that was being made, what did you go back out there for?

A. Well, I went back there to wait until suit was started and it was necessary to do anything further in regard to the litigation.

The Court: You mean when he went back out to Minnie's house?

Mr. Pinson: Mr. Long and he went back out to Seattle together.

Q. You and Mr. Long had understood about why he was going back out there with you?

A. Well, I understood why he was going back out there and I didn't think that it was necessary for him to go back out there because I thought——

The Court: Mr. Hanford, the question is why did Mr. Long go back?

A. Mr. Long went back to have some photographs taken to show to Minnie's relatives and to interrogate her in regard to her family, so that they could prove by her family that she was actually Minnie Atkins.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, as I understand, you testified in your direct examination that that was the reason why the second check was delayed, because Minnie hadn't been sufficiently identified, is that true?

A. That is true. That is the reason they gave me for not paying her.

Q. After they gave you that reason, they delayed paying the check because they couldn't get Minnie to tell the story you wanted to?

A. Well, they thought Minnie had been guilty of bad faith and they felt she was going to be in regard to this five thousand as she was to Sadie's four thousand, she would consider herself wealthy with five thousand dollars and wouldn't give her story so as to assist in quieting title to the land.

Q. And it wasn't at that time contemplated that her evidence could be taken in Seattle, anyhow, was it?

A. How is that?

Q. It wasn't at that time contemplated or understood that her evidence could be taken regardless of her desire, was it?

A. Oh, there was no discussion or contemplations in regard to that.

Q. Well, what was it they feared Minnie would do?

A. They thought Minnie would get five thousand dollars and go off to Japan or Alaska or something of that kind, and they wouldn't be able to get her to testify and have her identified and get title to the land.

Q. Then, the reference in one of these letters to the fact: "That you know what this Sapulpa trial cost us," after the testimony down there, means what?

A. Well, it simply means danger to the case I suppose.

Q. Well, she had testified then, hadn't she, Mr. Hanford?

A. Yes.

Q. And they had her testimony at that time?

A. Yes, and they also found out that her testimony was not true in regard to the child being born in the hospital.

Q. Then, they wanted her at the time you refer to now, they wanted her to tell a different story, is that right?

A. They wanted her to tell the truth.

Q. Now, Minnie was advised about the fact that they wanted her to tell a different story, wasn't she at that time?

A. At what time?

Q. At the time I am now referring to, prior to the taking of the Tulsa deposition?

A. Yes, she was advised, we knew she had told a lie and that she had to tell the truth.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, you never did suggest that to Minnie, during the course of your employment, what her testimony should be, did you? A. No.

Q. You just told her that you knew she had told a lie and that she must tell the truth? A. Yes.

Q. And then you told her what the other witnesses had sworn to and asked her if it was the truth?

A. No, I didn't tell her what the other witnesses had sworn to; I asked her many questions about things that I learned from other witnesses and had her tell me about them to see if the other witnesses were telling the truth and if Minnie recollected it.

Q. All right, now let's see. In the first conversation you had with Minnie in the presence of Mrs. McCombs, Minnie told you she had had five children, did she not?

A. Well, Mrs. McCombs told us that she had trapped

Minnie into a confession that she was the mother of five children.

Q. And Minnie admitted it?

A. And we asked Minnie if that was so and she said that it was, and we all had an understanding amongst ourselves that we wouldn't tell that on her.

Q. Well, that could all have been answered by yes. Then, Minnie at that time stated to you that she did have five children? A. Yes.

Q. At the Sapulpa hearing how many did she say she had?

A. She said she had four.

Q. All right, did you correct her? A. No.

Q. Call her attention to the discrepancy? A. No.

Q. How many did she say she had in that affidavit that you took that was false all the way through?

A. Said she had four.

Q. How many did she say she had when in Tulsa in her deposition? A. Said she had four.

Q. How many did she say when Mr. Montgomery took her confession? A. Said she had three.

Q. Did you correct her then? A. No.

Q. How many did she say she had when she testified in the Receivership hearing? A. Said she had five.

Q. And that is the first time she ever mentioned the Peterkin child, isn't it?

A. That is the first time, with the exception of telling us before the hearing.

Q. Then, when she told about Peterkin, she admitted the birth of five children? A. Yes.

Q. That is what she had admitted to Mrs. McCombs and you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, at the time that her deposition was taken when Mr. Penick was examiner, she then testified that she had four children and a miscarriage, didn't she?

A. Well, she said miscarriage but she went on in her testimony and explained that was the child that died. She said the Peterkin child was not healthy.

Q. And she explained it as being a sort of miscarriage?

A. I believe she used the word miscarriage in one part of her statement and explained it afterwards.

Q. And then in another place in her testimony she named over the other four children and didn't mention Robert Lee then, the miscarriage, isn't that true?

A. I don't remember that.

Q. You don't remember that. Now, let's go back just a minute and let's see how these different statements were made. In the testimony at Sapulpa, didn't you have knowledge of the dates when Minnie was at Carlisle? A. No.

Q. In the testimony at Tulsa, did you have that knowledge?

A. I don't know when that knowledge was obtained, I don't recollect.

Q. About the Carlisle records? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see that book from Carlisle in which accounts of the condition of the girls was kept?

A. No, I never have seen that.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Long had it or not?

A. No.

Q. Did you know about the Carlisle dates at the time that the deposition was taken—the affidavit made in the Receivership hearing?

A. Mr. Pinson, I don't know when that information was obtained.

Q. Well, now, let me ask you this, Mr. Hanford?

A. It wasn't obtained by me. I know that, and whether I was ever told I don't know now.

Q. Let me ask you this: Wasn't the fact that Minnie told you during your and Mr. Long's visit to her on the second trip that Mr. Long made to Seattle, that the child was born in '86 or 7?

A. No, Mr. Long I think figures out when the child was born, and I don't remember what year he figured it out at that time; but he guessed at it from what she said about her age.

Q. What is this which I hand you, and which I will ask the stenographer to identify as Government's Exhibit A-112?

A. I don't know. This is Mr. Long's handwriting and appears to be a schedule of dates relating to Minnie Atkins.

Q. Don't you recognize it, have you never seen it before?

A. I think this is the schedule that Mr. Long could not find. He told me he found it but didn't show it to me.

Q. You have never seen it before?

A. I don't think I have.

Q. Have you ever seen the notes which Mr. Long took and which were introduced in his testimony last week?

A. No, I never examined those outside of his possession, but I have seen them in his possession, and he read to me from those notes at the time I wrote up Minnie's affidavit.

Q. And you were present when he took the notes?

A. Yes.

Q. And your recollection when he read them to you was that he had taken them correctly?

A. I suppose he did.

Q. Isn't it true that in those notes and this table and your personal recollection that Minnie told that that boy was born in 1886 or 1887?

A. No, Mr. Long figured that out.

Q. Tell how it happened when you went to the hospital in Leavenworth you looked at the records for 1884 and 1885?

A. Mr. Pinson, we guessed up and down and all around at the time that that boy was born and at that time I suppose I thought it was 1884 and 1885; and I had stopped looking for the record of Minnie's being in the hospital, when she was so positive that she had been in the hospital that I started in again.

Q. And commenced looking at other years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, when you had looked in 1884 and 1885 you stopped? A. Yes.

Q. And asked Minnie and she was so positive that you went back and looked at the later years? A. Yes.

Q. And that is when you found it 1886? A. Yes.

Q. Can you state where you got the information that led you to look at the years 1884 and 1885 for that child?

A. No, I suppose—— Now, this is a guess, but I think that I probably got the information to look at 1884 and 1885 from Benny Marshal who had been to Carlisle with Minnie and had some recollection about when they left.

Q. When was the first time you now recall that you were advised of the Carlisle dates? A. In regard to Minnie?

Q. Yes?

A. Well, I suppose that that was the first time but I didn't keep track of the time from that.

Q. Now, that was from Betty Marshal?

A. I suppose, am just guessing.

Q. When did Mr. Long tell you about it?

A. I don't know whether he ever told me, Mr. Pinson. I think this: I think that Mr. Rice was the one that found out the date when Minnie was at Carlisle. Minnie and Benny Marshal disagreed as to whether they left before or after the other children. I don't think I ever got a clear idea of the date prior to the time I learned it in connection with the lawsuit. It was after I got interested in the lawsuit, after the Receivership hearing, that I began to take definite notice of dates and facts.

Q. Now, then, Mr. Hanford, the first testimony that Minnie gave put this child born immediately after leaving the Staffords, isn't that true?

A. Yes, that is what she told us.

Q. That was at Sapulpa. In other words, she described the child now known as the Peterkin child, didn't she?

A. Well, no.

Q. Why didn't she, in what particular was it different?

A. Because the Peterkin child died, Mr. Pinson, and she told us that Thomas Atkins was left with an old colored woman and stated to us that he had passed that period that the Peterkin child died at; he was a year or two old; I remember we asked her if he had been weaned, and she was sure he had been weaned when she went away.

Q. When did you first learn of the Peterkin child that she actually did have a baby at that time?

A. I learned that from Mr. Peterkin in Boston, I think, in August, 1914; but while I learned that from Peterkin, I also will say that I thought that I didn't believe him because I afterwards interviewed George H. Hyde and George H. Hyde gave me facts——

> The Court: Now Mr. Hanford, if you will just answer these questions and let your explanations be made later.

Q. You learned from Peterkin she had a girl baby?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is when you wired something about Thomas is a girl?

A. I don't know what I wired then; he told me she had a girl.

Q. That was the substance of your wire?

A. I don't say that was the substance of my wire, because I don't know what I wired.

Q. Well, have you a copy of that wire, or can you find the original?

A. No, I don't believe I have seen that telegram since it was sent. If I kept a copy I don't know. I went down and sent a telegram I know.

Q. You had found out about Peterkin before those depositions were taken in October, hadn't you? A. Yes.

Q. When the depositions were taken in October, hadn't you? A. Yes.

Q. When the depositions were taken in October, Minnie put Thomas' birth before the Stafford's didn't she? A. Yes.

Q. In that testimony Minnie said she was at Hyde's five months and that at Granny Letcher's two and a half years, and that she had Thomas in that length of time, didn't she?

A. She said that she was around town after she left Hyde's and that he was born at that time.

Q. Well, she mentioned Granny Letcher in the Tulsa testimony, didn't she? A. Yes, I believe she did.

Q. Well, was that Tulsa testimony after Sadie was brought into the case?

A. How do you mean brought into the case?

Q. I mean after she had become connected with Page and you and Mr. Long?

A. She never was connected with me.
Q. Who was she connected with?
A. She was working for Mr. Page.

The Court: We know that she was working Mr. Page.

Q. Was it then after Sadie was employed by some person connected with this case? A. Yes, employed by Mr. Page.

Q. The first time you ever heard of Granny Letcher was after Sadie was employed? A. Yes.

Q. That name had never before been suggested to you?
A. No.

Q. Now, then, do you want the court to believe at this time—I will ask you if it is true that the finding out about Robert Lee had nothing to do with the change of date as to the birth of this child that Minnie testified to at Tulsa?

A. Well, it probably did, Mr. Pinson.

Q. Well, you knew that unless these children was twins that one of them had to be born eleven or twelve months before the other one, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that probably you talked to Minnie about this Peterkin child at this time, hadn't you?

A. No, I hadn't talked—you mean at the time I found out about it?

Q. Yes. A. No, I hadn't talked to her about it.

Q. And Minnie never had been told that Peterkin said that she had a girl child, had she?

A. What time are you talking about?

Q. Before the Tulsa depositions, after you had seen Peterkin?

A. Yes, I told Minnie about that when I went back to Seattle, before she came down.

Q. And at that she time side put the birth of Robert Lee back prior to this girl? A. Yes.

Q. Did she tell you it was a boy?
A. Peterkin's child?
Q. Yes.
A. She denied that she had any child at all at that time.
Q. Yes, but she changed the date, didn't she?
A. Well, she never fixed the date, Mr. Pinson, as to the birth of Thomas.

Q. She changed the circumstances and place where he was born so that it would be before the Peterkin child, didn't she?

A. No, she didn't tell me any facts at all.

Q. Let me ask you this question. She has always testified that she went first to Hyde's, then to Grodevant's, and then to Stafford's—put them in that way?

A. Yes, when she testified about them at all.

Q. Then she put Tommy back before Stafford's, and at Hyde's?

A. At the time that she gave her testimony, she did, but the only thing that [] did personally was to deny having had any girl child while she was living with Peterkin, but didn't tell me that she had any child, and she didn't tell me any facts at all. She simply told me that she knew Rube Smith, and she knew Crilley and she would laugh when I would mention the name Granny Letcher, and then on the train on the way back, told me that we were on the right track.

Q. On the way back?

A. On the way back to Leavenworth.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford——

A. So she never did tell me any facts.

Q. Now, we have got that time changed, now, back, so that it does not conflict with Robert Lee or with the girl baby. Now, the next time she testified was at the Receivership hearing, wasn't it?

A. After Tulsa, yes.

Q. Yes; and the Receivership hearing was the first time that she mentioned Robert Lee, wasn't it?

A. The first that she testified to it, she mentioned it up at the hotel when she admitted, the first——

Q. She had mentioned it before that time? A. Yes.

Q. Now, her mention of Robert Lee was brought about by the telegrams you had sent to Major Stafford, weren't they?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you want the court to understand, I assume, that the telegrams to Major Stafford at that time were brought about by the fact that you had found out that Peterkin was going to testify in his case?

A. I didn't find out that Peterkin was going to testify in the case until I——I think until he testified.

Q. You will just state now, how you came to wire Stafford?

A. Why, Mr. Josey and Mr. Rice had been informed that Minnie had had this child and they had questioned her about it, and she still denied it, and on the way down here in talking that over, they decided to make a further effort and suggested sending a telegram to Major Stafford, and they asked me to send it because I had been in previous communication with Major Stafford.

Q. Now, that was in February, 1915, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what was the previous communication that you had had with Major Stafford?

A. That letter that I testified about this morning and a telegram—no, that was afterwards, I guess; I sent a telegram about Sadie James, and Buell and Robinson, but it was that letter that I had written him.

Q. Which was it, before or after you sent that telegram?

A. It was before I sent that telegram about Sadie, and Bartlett and Buell, and after I had written that letter.

Q. Now, when was the telegram about Sadie, Bartlett and Buell, that you refer to sent?

A. Well, that was sent when they were out in Seattle.

Q. When who was in Seattle?

A. Sadie, and Bartlett, and Buell, in December.

Q. And you had wired Stafford about them at that time?

A. I sent him a telegram about that time, Mr. Pinson; just when it was, I don't know.

Q. Well, had you ever sent him any telegrams before that time?

A. Hold on, I don't think I sent him a telegram about Buell and Robinson; I think that there was a telegram about Sadie and Bartlett when they were trying to find Thomas Atkins, or something of that kind. I don't remember. If you have the telegram there, I can explain it to you.

Q. Well, where were you on July 15th, 1914?

A. I was in Seattle.

Q. Who was there with you from this country? Frank Long?

A. He—That was when we returned to Seattle, I think, after being down here. I don't know that he was there July 15th, or not.

Q. That was the time? A. But he had been there.

Q. That was the time when you were making these constant trips to Minnie's house, and these various conversations between you and Long and Minnie about this case, wasn't it?

A. Well, I don't know what time that was, Mr. Pinson; whether Mr. Long was there that late or not.

Q. Have you any way of fixing the time?

A. I might fix it.

Q. Mr. Hanford, in July, 1914, at the time while you and Mr. Long were making your investigations in connection with Minnie Atkins and her relationship to Tommy, was there any reason in your mind why any information relative to Minnie should not be disclosed?

A. Yes, for the Gypsy Oil Company and Bartlett were trying to find Thomas Atkins, and if he was to be found we wanted to find him first.

Q. Then, you hadn't been advised——

A. I thought that Page and Josey were entitled to that information before anybody else.

Q. Then at that time you were not advised as to whether Thomas Atkins was living or dead?

A. No, only Minnie's statement and we had grown not to place much reliance upon her statement and that was so indefinite that we were not sure.

Q. Did you place any reliance upon her statements as to having had a Thomas?

A. Yes, we never had any reason to doubt that, Mr. Pinson. So many things confirmatory of that, besides that, we never had any reason to doubt it.

Q. Now, I hand you Government's Exhibit 3, as testified to by Major Stafford, and offered in evidence in the Receivership hearing—offered in the taking of the depositions, you will notice that the telegram is dated in typewriting 1915, and that the 5 has been marked over and changed to 4, which Major Stafford testified was done before he received the telegram, and was the correct date.

A. That was the correct date, 1914.

Q. You recollect sending that telegram in July, 1914, do you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you get that information as to Stafford and the child at that time?

A. In regard to an Indian going to you and working for you at Leavenworth in the eighties——

Q. Let me read you the telegram and ask you about portions of it: "Major John Stafford, United States Army, Retired, 3592 Front Street, San Diego, California. You may remember an Indian cook working for you at Leavenworth in the Eighties named Minnie Atkins, a Carlisle student. In event any one, especially a colored woman should approach you in regard to her, please disclose no information or make any affidavits. If you are approached, please wire me at once collect. Letter follows. E. C. Hanford, formerly, Lieutenant First Cavalry, attorney for Minnie Atkins." Now, you had been advised by Minnie that she had worked for the Stafford's, hadn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You had been advised by Minnie that she had left there in order to have a child, hadn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And this telegram was an effort to ascertain whether these facts were true?

A. No, that was a telegram for him to look out for Sadie James.

Q. This telegram was to prevent him from disclosing any information that he had?

A. Yes, to Sadie James or Bartlett; I didn't mention Bartlett——

Q. Any one, didn't you? A. Yes, anyone.

Q. And especially a colored woman? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, at this time, did you write the letter to the major?

A. No, it was sometime after that that I wrote the letter.

Q. Have you a copy of the letter that you then wrote him?

A. It is read into the record.

Q. During the morning? A. Yes.

Q. Now, have you a copy of your answer that you wrote —that you received from him?

A. No, I haven't a copy of that, Mr. Pinson. If that isn't in evidence—wasn't put in evidence at San Diego, I don't know where it is.

Q. Mr. Hanford, I think you are mistaken about the letter having been read into the record this morning, the letter read into the record this morning was dated considerably later in the year. Will you not make an effort to find the letter sent shortly after this telegram, pursuant to your suggestion that letter follows, to Major Stafford, and the answer which you received from him at that time?

A. I sent nothing further in regard to that letter.

Q. Well, how long after that did you write a letter to Major Stafford?

A. Well, I will have to find out what the date of that letter was.

Q. Approximately how long?

A. Oh, it was a long time.

Q. Six mouths?

A. Now, during the fall of that year.

Q. Before you ever interviewed Stafford or had any communication with him further than this telegram, is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, when you next had communication with him, you advised him again not to disclose any information, didn't you?

A. I don't think so.

Q. You don't think so?

A. I think I asked him for information only and gave him a brief outline of Minnie's history as we then understood it.

Q. You pursued that same policy with regard to Peterkin, did you not? A. No, I only talked to Peterkin.

Q. Well, you pursued the same policy with regard to suggestion that he not disclose any information?

A. Oh, I told Peterkin this: he had received a letter from Judge Rosser asking for information regarding Minnie, and I wrote Peterkin that what happened to Minnie after the birth of this child Thomas was not material and they had no right to inquire into her affairs not relating to the birth of Thomas Atkins, or subsequent to the birth of Thomas Atkins. That is the way that I felt at that time—at that time there was no connection in my mind between the Peterkin child and Thomas.

Q. Now, you didn't object to Peterkin talking to you about that child, did you?

A. Well, he told me about it and I questioned him to find out what he knew before he met up with her, and he told me that he knew nothing about her.

Q. About the child?

A. Nothing about Minnie prior to the time that he had met up with her.

Q. Oh, yes; but Mr. Hanford, it was necessary that the child's birth—that Thomas' birth should be placed at least 10 or 11 months prior to this child's birth here, wasn't it?

A. The Peterkin child?

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. Couldn't be born in less than that time, could it?

A. No.

Q. And therefore the change was made between Sapulpa and Tulsa, wasn't it? A Yes.

Q. Although Minnie didn't admit having the Peterkin child at that time? A. No.

Q. Now, then, you say that you in July 1914, had not had any information about this Peterkin child; then what was it that you didn't want Stafford to talk about?

A. Well, I just didn't want him to—I thought he might know something about the boy or the child, or his description, or something of that kind, and I dind't want them to get that ahead of us.

Q. You didn't want that information divulged? A. No.

Q. Now when you wrote to Peterkin——

A. We didn't want them to get any information at all.

Q. Did you make any effort then immediately to ascertain whether Stafford had any information or not? A. No.

Q. Now, that was in July, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. In October, Minnie gave her deposition; you hadn't been to see Stafford, then, had you? A. No.

Q. You hadn't written to Stafford, had you? A. No.

Q. Had made no effort to ascertain what he knew but only to conceal what he knew, isn't that true? A. That is all.

Q. Now, in the letter you wrote Peterkin you said this, did you not: ["]This man Rosser is attorney for some people who lay claim to Minnie's land in the belief that she was dead or at least that she would never be found. She set up a fictitious claim in behalf of Minnie's sister by asserting that she was the mother of Minnie's child." When you suggested to Peterkin that he not disclose any information to Rosser, that was not any matter with regard to the colored woman or Bartlett or Buell, was it? A. No.

Q. That is a different set entirely, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. You suggested to Peterkin—now, Mr. Peterkin didn't know anything about Thomas at all, did he? A. No.

Q. And yet you told Peterkin not to tell anything about what he knew, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And to let you know if any of those people down there, keep butting in? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Hanford after the Carlisle date was first fixed in your mind, what was the first public testimony that Minnie gave, or statement?

A. I don't know, I don't know when we learned the Carlisle date.

Q. Alright. Now, then, at the Tulsa deposition taken in Rice & Lyons office, Minnie put Thomas' birth anywhere within the two and a half years that she roamed about Leavenworth, didn't she, and fixed it at Granny Letcher's? A. Yes.

Q. And the next public testimony that she gave was here at the Receivership hearing, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, at the receivership hearing, there is no question but that you had the Carlisle information, is there?

A. I think that we must have but I don't know.

Q. And there is no question but what you had the Peterkin evidence about Robert Lee, is there?

A. No question about that.

Q. Because that is contained in her affidavit, isn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, the date of the birth of Robert Lee Peterkin was in July '86?

A. I don't remember; I know it was in July.

Q. 1886? A. Yes.

Q. You realize that at that time then, that Thomas if he was born before Robert Lee couldn't have been born earlier than say, August '85, could he? A. No.

Q. You realize that he could not have been born after Robert Lee because you knew Minnie's history out at Fort Logan? A. Yes.

Q. Within the years succeeding that time, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you realize furthermore that the child—that she went to Leavenworth in 1884, didn't you?

A. Well, I don't know when we learned that, Mr. Pinson.

Q. Well, doesn't her affidavit so state in the Receivership hearing, Mr. Hanford?

A. If it does, we had learned it previous to that time.

Q. To refer you to page 368 of the Receivership testimony, where Minnie was cross examined—I am not referring to the affidavit because I found this first and refreshing your memory, isn't it a fact that she testified that she went to Carlisle in 1884?

Mr. German: Left Carlisle.

Q. Left Carlisle in 1884? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now then, the birth of Robert Lee if fixed at Leavenworth at all must have been fixed between the middle of '84, and the middle of '86; there was only a period of three years, wasn't there?

The Court: Birth of Robert Lee?

Q. The birth of Thomas? A. Yes.

Q. So, that at the Receivership hearing Minnie testified that she had been at Hyde's for six or seven months and that Robert Lee was born there then, that she went to——

A You mean that Thoma.s was not born there?

Q. Thomas was not born there and then she went to Grodevant's about a year and Thomas was born within that year?

A. Yes.

Q. And she fixed the date of his birth in about a year did she not? A. Yes.

Q. Alright; at that time, had the Grodevant expense account been found either by Mr. Long, or the Government employes or anyone else that you know of?

A. I think not. I don't know when the Government employes found that Mr. Pinson, but I know that we didn't know about it.

Q. Well, my information is that you had it first; that Mr. Long had it first, but that is immaterial. The Grodevant was, however, found before the depositions were taken before Mr. Penick—before Minnie's deposition was taken before Mr. Penick, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. That was taken on the way out to Seattle when you went out to take Minnie's deposition, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, that in deposition of Minnie's, she placed Robert Lee as a sort of miscarriage, didn't she?

A. Mr. Pinson, I wish that you would read that testimony, because I submitted to that because I am sure that she went on to explain that and show that it was not a miscarriage, it was simply a misuse of the term by her.

Q. Alright, I will read it to you—we will just pass that for a moment, Mr. Hanford. Did there exist in your mind at the time Minnie's deposition was taken at Seattle before Mr. Penick, any reason for changing her testimony from the testimony she had given at the Receivership hearing?

A. Well, we knew the facts to be different. There was no reason in my mind for changing her testimony.

Q. Well, did you change it? Did you suggest to her that she change it? A. I did not.

Q. Did anybody in your knowledge?

A. Not to my knowledge. I will state that I had no opportunity to talk with Minnie until before she gave her testimony.

Q. Was Minnie present when the evidence was taken about the Grodevant expense account? A. No, she was not.

Q. Sure of that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, her age was changed at that time at the taking of the depositions before Mr. Penick, so that it could be corroborated by the Grodevant expense account, wasn't it?

A. I don't know.

Q. Regardless of who was wrong? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, you do know that the deposition can be made to fit that now, don't you?

A. I don't know whether it is in conformity to the facts as we know them from the Grodevant book or not.

Q. Let me read to you about Robert Lee?

A. I wish you would.

Q. "Q. Had you given birth to more than four children at that time? A. I had five but the other was not big, wasn't born, kind of a miscarriage. Q. You had had a premature birth? A. That was after Tommy. Q. Tom was the first child? A. Of all yes. A. And then you had had a miscarriage and a child had been born, what was the name of that child? A. Robert Lee."

A. Yes, that is her testimony. On the next page, Mr. Pinson, it was brought out that the child lived two or three weeks and other places in the deposition.

Q. Yes, lived ten days or two weeks?

A. I don't know sir how long he lived.

Q. "Q. About how long do you say he lived? A. I can't say. Q. Now, Minnie, think a minute and tell us just how long that child lived; you know about how long? A. Well, he didn't live very long, but I don't think it was a week, he didn't live very long." A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And she was using the term miscarriage and your idea it was indicating a premature birth?

A. Well, there are other places to show that the child was sickly.

Q. She was using the term and you put it to indicate that it wasn't a healthy child?

A. She didn't know what miscarriage meant.

Q. And didn't know what premature birth meant?

A. I don't know, but her testimony shows that she didn't.

Q. Going back for a moment to the matter of the contract that was entered into between you and Mr. Page and Mr. Long in connection with your services being rendered free by Minnie, what were the terms there in regard to that particular proposition?

A. Those were the only terms; the agreement was between Minnie and her trustee and Page and Josey and myself then to furnish my services free except all necessary expenses I should be put to should be deferred by Page and Josey.

Q. Now, you are clear on the proposition that Page & Josey were to defray all your expenses and that only your fee was to come from Minnie? A. Yes.

Q. Then, why did you hold up three thousand dollars of Minnie's money?

A. To pay my way as I went along. They were only to pay my necessary expenses incident to the suit, Mr. Pinson, and I had to have money to live on and to cover expenses that were not considered necessary expenses.

Q. Then, you treated the three thousand dollars as an advance on your fee from Minnie?

A. Yes, and gave her a stipulation to that effect.

Q. Then, why did you hold up two thousand dollars and put it in MacNab's hands?

A. That was simply an arrangement that Captain MacNab and I felt should be made; that we should have some money in case anything should turn up not incident to quieting title in her, in case it was necessary in case of other litigation or other expenses or matters relating to traveling expenses, looking out for the lease and things of that kind; and so that Minnie couldn't spend her five thousand dollars and then claim this money that Captain MacNab had—— I thought it was three thousand, but I guess it was only two thousand—when he relinquished his trusteeship, she agreed that that money should remain in his hands absolutely just as his own; that that was to be paid to him and turned over to him and put in his name and nobody should have anything to say in regard to it.

Q. He was to receive it, that was to be a gift to him?

A. If he wanted to. I think I suggested to Minnie that if that money was never used that that should belong to Captain MacNab as his compensation during the time he had acted as her trustee. And that was agreeable to her, but Captain MacNab only took it so as to hold it in that way. What he intends to do with it I don't know, unless it should be necessary to look out after Minnie's interest. I think that he is entitled to it and ought to have it. He doesn't feel that he ought to take any compensation at all.

Q. And you had Captain MacNab to hold up two thousand dollars to cover expenses and you held three thousand dollars to protect you on your fee, and the other five thousand which was to go to Minnie wasn't paid at all at that time?

A. No.

Q. So, Minnie didn't get a cent for some months?

A. No, we thought she was better off without it, and she was.

Q. And Page and Josey and Long understood that the money was to be paid out in that way?

A. They didn't know what arrangements we would make except that before they would pay Minnie the money in that way they asked me what the arrangement was, and I had contested the requirement on their part that they should have my services furnished in the law suit; I thought that they ought to have their attorneys attend to all of it, but I told them that since that requirement was put into the contract where they were to quiet title and my services be furnished, that that arrangement would have to be made. Because I felt it would take time until the property was producing and I could obtain any compensation out of a royalty.

Q. Then, in addition to that, I believe you have during a great part of the time drawn a salary from Mr. Page, so as to protect yourself in each one of those ways you have mentioned?

A. Yes, I will state that none of those people knew what arrangement Captain MacNab and I made about that. I think Mr. Page learned that over in the hotel the other day.

Q. Mr. Josey didn't know anything about that at all?

A. No.

Q. He wasn't even concerned in your negotiations?

A. Oh, yes, she was and I conferred with him, and he was at the meeting when we discussed the making of the lease and this contract.

Q. And he was very anxious to retain your services as an attorney in the case, was he? Was he the man that suggested that?

A. I don't know whether he suggested it or not, but I know he wanted the arrangement that way.

Q. He wanted it arranged that way?

A. Yes, I know he testified he knew nothing about it, but he did.

Q. Mr. Hanford, what is your explanation of the fact that they were willing to risk five thousand dollars to be turned over to you and Captain MacNab on Minnie's identity, but were not willing to risk ten thousand dollars?

A. Well, they were, Mr. Pinson. They were not to get the lease until I got ten thousand dollars, and when I got the ten thousand dollars that check had that written across the face of it. I delivered the deed to them and got the ten thousand dollars in the checks.

Q. It is a fact, isn't it that they complained about delivering the second five thousand dollars check, or paying it because they were not satisfied with the identity? A. Yes.

Q. What kind of an understanding did they have about risking the other five thousand?

A. They were risking ten thousand dollars because if that check hadn't been paid I certainly would have sued them.

Q. You didn't have any understanding?

A. And I would have cancelled the lease too.

Q. You didn't have any understanding that this five thousand dollar payment was to be held up until Minnie was identified to their satisfaction?

A. No, when I got the checks and then made the mistake of going to the bank to have it certified to make sure that it would be paid, at that time they asked me to do it, Mr. Rice and Mr. Page and Mr. Josey; and I went over to the bank to have it certified and they wouldn't certify it because it wasn't due. I came back and protested further, and then we had the understanding that that arrangement should be satisfactory to Captain MacNab and I would explain their views to him. They felt that they ought to have that protection, and if Captain MacNab did not consent that then the check should become immediately payable and they would pay it.

Q. Well, you don't know really why it is that they held up payment on that other check?

A. I understood——

Q. Well, what was it?

A. Simply because they wanted to be sure that she was Minnie Atkins and that they could be sure to have her identified.

Q. That is your explanation of why they were willing to risk five thousand dollars but not ten thousand. All right. Then, these letters that passed between you at a later date that the five thousand dollar check wouldn't be paid because Minnie wouldn't testify right, that is not the proper explanation in your opinion?

A. No, that came up afterwards, Mr. Pinson. They wanted to get a statement from Minnie in connection with her identity, and they wanted to get that statement before the five thousand dollars was paid, but that had nothing to do with her testimony; and after they found that she had testified falsely I still sent the check in to be paid, and they refused to pay it, and then they sent me the telegrams that I have shown here this morning.

Q. Then, the proposition was that they didn't want her testimony, but they wanted a certain statement?

A. Yes, they wanted that and they sent Mr. Long out to get it.

Q. Now, I want to ask you about one or two other matters, Mr. Hanford. I want to ask you whether before the testimony that was put on through the witness, Minnie Folk, at Sapulpa was substantially what you and Mr. Long had understood from Minnie up to that time?

A. I think it was.

Q. And yet these telegrams were sent after that testimony was taken, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. At the time you and Mr. Long left Minnie after making the trust agreement and came down to Tulsa together, had you known that Thomas was an illegitimate child, or been so advised?

A. Yes, Captain MacNab had told me that that was the statement she made to them; she didn't come out and say illegitimate but he said it was very amusing the way she explained the circumstances to him.

Q. Did you know the child was never recognized by its father?

A. Well, I didn't know it at that time; I probably supposed it, but Minnie told Mr. Long and I that when we took that statement from her. I think that they cross examined her in regard to that at Sapulpa, and I think she told that; I think Mr. Rice brought that out if I am not mistaken.

Q. Well, now, before she testified, I am talking about before she testified at Sapulpa, I am talking about when you and Mr. Long first came down after that first conversation with her? A. Yes.

Q. Did you know anything about the fact that he had never been recognized by his father?

A. When Mr. Long came down with me?

Q. Yes? A. No.

Q. Did you know at that time, or had you been told that in the year 1890 he was given by his mother to a woman residing in the vicinity of Leavenworth?

A. At that time?

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. Who had told you that?

A. Minnie and Captain MacNab.

Q. Before you left Seattle the first time? A. Yes.

Q. All right, had you been told that this woman had agreed with Minnie to communicate with her from time to time as to the condition of the child? A. I don't remember.

Q. Had you been told in 1901 or 1902 that Minnie was informed that the child died? A. No, sir.

Q. Had you been so informed at that time that Minnie had received information that Tommy died?

A. That Minnie had what?

Q. Received information that Thomas had died?

A. The only thing I knew, Minnie said he was dead.

Q. You didn't know anything about the time? A. No.

Q. Had you been advised then——

A. That may have been brought out, Mr. Pinson, at Minnie's house at the time Captain MacNab and I went down and interviewed her but I don't recollect that it was.

Q. The time Sadie was there was the only time you were there?

A. Yes, and we had a discussion about his being dead at that time, and that is why I say it may have been brought out at that time.

Q. She didn't say anything in Sadie's presence about having a letter from anybody telling that he was dead?

A. No, not that I remember, but I said we may have found out that Minnie didn't know.

Q. The only thing that occurred there with reference to his death, Minnie said that she knew he was dead and Sadie said no you don't? A. That is my recollection.

Q. Then, had you heard prior to the time you and Mr. Long went back to Tulsa together that about thirteen years had intervened since Minnie had heard of the boy? A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, I want to talk to you just a little while about the Montgomery trip, during the time when Mr. Montgomery was having these interviews with Minnie, you continually warned her, as your duty was, not to make any statement at all, didn't you? A. No.

Q. Did you ever warn her not to make any statement at all?

A. No—— Oh, I have done this: People have been out there——

The Court: He means when Mr. Montgomery was there?

A. No.

Q. During the time Mr. Montgomery was there, in regard to him? A. I never did.

Q. You never told her what the purpose of Mr. Montgomery's statement would be if secured, did you? A. Yes.

Q. You explained to her that it would be used against her in a civil suit?

A. No, I told her this: That Mr. Montgomery's object in interviewing her was to get a statement from her adverse to her interest so that he could cancel the patent and have the land revert to the Creek Nation.

Q. And she understood clearly that that would be the result of making such a statement?

A. I suppose she did, but I would never count on Minnie understanding anything.

Q. You explained it to her in English? A. Yes.

Q. She understands English? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Montgomery told her that he was going to have the truth and didn't want anything but the truth, didn't he? A. Yes.

Q. Now, the only pressure he brought to bear on her was that there had been an effort made to prove her child a negro, wasn't it?

A. Well, that and the fact that she had deeded her land to Mr. Page and had lost it anyway, and that they had tried to prove somebody that they had found to be her son Thomas, and then tried to prove that he died, all of those statements that he had told her.

Q. Then, the only thing that was disclosed was that proposition about the negro child?

A. Yes, that was the thing that rankled most.

Q. And you told her that that had not happened?

A. Yes.

Q. And you still say that, do you, Mr. Hanford?

A. Say what?

Q. That that was not the testimony of witnesses at Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. Did you hear Crilly's testimony here on the stand?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you hear it when he gave his deposition in Leavenworth?

A. I don't know whether I heard him in Leavenworth or not.

Q. Well, you heard him here? A. Yes.

Q. And you heard him testify here that that was a negro child? A. No, I didn't hear it.

Mr. Stuart: He didn't say that.

Mr. Pinson: If the Court please, he said that it was a mulatto.

The Court: Was that his testimony on the stand?

Mr. Pinson: Yes, sir, and I have his testimony also in the Leavenworth depositions.

The Court: All right. I remember whatever he may have said, and later in his testimony there was that which led me to doubt—I got the impression that his impression was that it was a negro child, but I didn't remember he specifically stated that.

Q. You heard Mr. Montgomery read Crilly's deposition that was taken at Sapulpa, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with this document and are you able to say—— That is a part of Mr. Crilly's testimony, page 18, of what is said to be a certified copy of transcript of deposition of Jones, Nash, and others, in Case No. 3772 in the District Court of Creek County, State of Oklahoma. I will ask you to examine page eighteen of that transcript and say if that is a part of Crilly's testimony? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Montgomery reading to Mrs. Folk the portion of hearing at page 18?

A. No, but I think he read the whole deposition, at least the whole direct examination.

Q. Well, follow me at page eighteen as I read and see if you recall that he read to Mrs. Folk: "This child you called Tommy, was it any part negro? A. Yes, I classified him with the rest of them; I thought so, yes. Q. Did he show any negro? A. Well, being with these marked I kind of figured them all together. Q. You didn't make close observation to see how black he was? A. No." That evidence appears in that deposition, does it not? A. Yes.

Mr. Stuart: There isn't anything there that says he was a negro.

The Court: I will get that from the record. That is the testimony Mr. Montgomery was using with Minnie Atkins at the time that this transpired at Seattle and when it is contended that it was brought to her notice?

Mr. Pinson: I haven't asked Mr. Montgomery what part he read to her.

Q. Now, you do know, Mr. Hanford, don't you, that the letter Mr. Page wrote Minnie saying, "I have taken a lease and a deed from a man I thought was Thomas Atkins," was the man referred to as Henry Carter? A. I do now.

Q. And he is a negro, isn't he?

A. So the testimony shows.

Q. And so your contention is in this case? A. Yes.

Q. Now, were you familiar with the letters which passed between Mr. Long and Mr. Josey in which Rube Smith was referred to as the uncle of Tommy?

A. I never heard of such a thing.

Q. Did you ever hear of Rube Smith referred to as his father? A. No.

Q. You never heard that?

A. No, except Mr. Montgomery.

Q. You saw the letter from Mr. Long to Mr. Josey, which referred to Rube Smith as the uncle?

A. I don't remember that letter.

The Court: If I understand the point is as to whether or not it was or was not true that it appeared from the depositions taken at Leavenworth that this was a negro child. Mr. Hanford, according to the testimony, told Minnie that that was not the truth.

Mr. Pinson: Mr. Montgomery told Minnie not only that the depositions so showed, but those people down there were trying to frame up a negro child on you; and then he offered the deposition and read a part of it and then read a part of Sadie James confession to prove it. Now, I want to show Mr. Hanford had knowledge of that and actually at that time considered that the father and uncle of this child was a negro.

The Court: I understand it all revolved around what Mr. Hanford had in mind when Mr. Montgomery was in Seattle, when Mr. Montgomery told Minnie that the depositions tended to show that it was a negro child.

Q. At the time you were with Betty Mann in Leavenworth and Sadie was over there with Mr. Long, or had just gone back, you then knew about the name Granny Letcher, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. And while you were there and Betty Mann came in and said something to you about a Letcher woman, didn't she?

A. Yes.

Q. That then confirmed your suspicion that Sadie and Betty had been working together, didn't it?

A. No, no, it tended to confirm in my mind the information that Mr. Long had and had repeated to me about this child being born at the home of Granny Letcher, and Betty had picked that up from somebody that she had interviewed and came to me and told me to go and look up that woman.

Q. That was the construction you put on it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You went up and saw the woman?

A. Yes, sir. Betty didn't know the name before. When I told her this woman didn't know anything about it, she dropped it.

Q. And this woman was not Granny Letcher nor any kin to her? A. I don't know whether she was any kin.

Q. She had only been there in Leavenworth a few months?

A. She had been there a number of years.

Q. Was she a white woman or a negro?

A. She was a negro and told me that she knew of Granny Letcher but that she knew nothing of the child and thought it must be Granny Letcher who had died, and stated I believe that they had only been there a few years.

Q. When, Mr. Montgomery was talking to Minnie about this negro child proposition, she naturally believed him because the story was that the child was born in a negro house——

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, we object to that.

A. I can't answer that question what she believed.

Q. And she discussed the matter of the child having been born in a negro house but not being a negro?

A. No, she didn't discuss it.

Q. Did she ever at any time display any reluctance in telling you that she had left this child with a negro woman to raise?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Now, the only time that you ever jumped her and made her change the story by asking suddenly what the name of the woman was, when you asked her for the name of the woman where the child was born?

A. I didn't do that. Mr. Long did.

Q. You were present? A. Yes.

Q. And that was the only time she changed her story during those conversations you had?

A. I think so. I remember that particularly, and I remembered it more after we found out the true facts, Mr. Pinson. And then I have a distinct recollection of it. It impressed me at the time, so much so that I had been anxious to stop off at Leavenworth on the way to Sapulpa, but we had to get there on a certain day and couldn't do it.

Q. Now, then, Mr. Hanford, isn't it a fact that what made Minnie sick and the reason she became ill in Leavenworth was the fact that you were there intending to have her identify a negro child as hers, a negro man?

A. That is not true, Mr. Pinson. The matter of the father of her child being a negro originated from some other source and I don't know where the story originated. The first time I heard it referred to definitely was Sadie James' testimony in the Receivership hearing.

Q. Well, now, at Leavenworth, you took the deposition of Dennis Jones, who testified she came to church with negroes and went to the theater? A. Yes.

Q. Was Minnie horrified about that did that have anything to do with her sickness?

A. I don't think Minnie knows about it unless she heard Dennis Jones giving his testimony while he was here.

Q. Mr. Montgomery didn't take advantage of that fact in talking to her out there?

A. No, not in my hearing. I don't know what he did the first day he was there.

Q. Mr. Montgomery told her the truth and read her these depositions truthfully and accurately, didn't he?

A. He read Mr. Crilly's deposition, at least the direct examination of Mr. Crilly, I don't say he read his whole deposition, but I suppose he read it correctly, I will say yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Montgomery—— Did Mr. Montgomery harrass and threaten her anyway?

A. No. He simply did this, Mr. Pinson, he would—— He had the appearance of trying to keep Minnie worked up when she would get worked up over the fact that they had tried to prove—or his statement that they had tried to prove that the father of her child was a negro, and at the time he interviewed her in Captain MacNab's office, he would couple the statement that he wanted her to give him a statement now and tell him the truth, that he knew there never was a Thomas Atkins and he referred quite often to the fact that he was going to send a whole bunch of them to the penitentiary and things of that kind.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, at that time you were there and at all times while he talked to her either you or Captain MacNab was present, isn't that true?

A. No, he talked to her at least one day, Monday.

Q. During the time he did talk to her while you were present or Captain MacNab or both, both interfered to make the facts plain to her so that she might not be unduly alarmed?

A. We tried to. Captain MacNab, the day Mr. Montgomery got the statement I believe influenced Minnie as much or probably more than Mr. Montgomery himself. He I think was the cause of putting Minnie into the state of mind she got into while Mr. Montgomery talked to her after Captain MacNab left.

Q. And then Minnie said to Captain MacNab, do you want me to sign it, and he said I don't want you to sign anything?

A. Captain MacNab?

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. He says: "I wash my hands of the whole business"?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, it was understood by Minnie clearly that what she was going to sign, if she signed it, would take this land away from her and make it revert to the Creek Nation?

A. Yes.

Q. That was clearly understood? A. Yes.

Q. And not two minutes before she signed it, she and Mr. Montgomery were laughing and joking with each other?

A. No.

Q. That isn't true? A. No.

Q. Well, now, in your testimony Friday and Saturday, didn't you say when Minnie went to take up the pen she was laughing and Mr. Montgomery was joking with her?

A. No; Minnie laughs, Mr. Pinson, in a very peculiar way; not because there is anything funny, but she did laugh and asked Mr. Montgomery why he looked at her so funny, and he made some remark, like, I always look that way, or something, and passed it off.

Q. Jokingly? A. Yes.

Q. There was no feeling at that time displayed by him toward Minnie, was there?

A. No, he was—he had let down then and was very pleasant to her at that time.

Q. I see; and that was the time when Minnie signed this statement? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what were you doing at her house the next day? It was over, wasn't it?

A. You mean this agreement had been signed, but I was satisfied, Mr. Pinson, that the statement was not the truth, and that it simply was an added difficulty on Minnie's account in the case.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, you were as much interested in Minnie's freedom from prosecution for perjury, if she had been guilty of perjury, and in her immunity, if she had been guilty, as in her financial interest, wasn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You wanted the facts? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie had made this statement voluntarily, hadn't she?

A. I didn't feel so, and I felt that she had made the statement under the influence of Mr. Montgomery and Captain MacNab, and I know that is the facts.

Q. Now, you went out there, then, to see if she wasn't ready to retract that statement and to assist her to retract it in any way you could? A. No, I did not.

Q. Well, what did you go for?

A. I went out there to see Captain MacNab and Minnie, and just talk the matter over, as to what was to be done on account of it, and tell them what I was going to do.

Q. You went to see Minnie, not Captain MacNab.

A. I was going to see Captain MacNab.

Q. Now, when you went in, you said Minnie I didn't think you would feel very good this morning, didn't you?

A. I asked for—I think I told her I came out to see how she felt; may have said I didn't think she would feel very good, or something.

Q. And then you told her not to tell you anything else?

A. Yes.

Q. And then you ran all the way up to Captain MacNab's quarters? A. Yes, I did.

Q. You were very much pleased to learn she had repudiated the statement, of course?

A. Well, I was not pleased; I felt it was a matter that should be attended to at once, and that I ought to get word to Captain MacNab as quickly as possible and to get Mr. Montgomery there, so that Minnie could tell him. I wanted to get Mr. Montgomery and the witnesses.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, you didn't sit down then and talk with Minnie quietly, as her attorney, and ask her whether she had told the truth or not?

A. I didn't; I wanted her to tell Mr. Montgomery the same as she told me.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, that statement she made in the presence of Captain MacNab, and, as you say, at the instance of Captain MacNab and Mr. Montgomery, cleared up what—would have cleared up all these peculiar discrepancies in her testimony in your mind? A. How is that, Mr. Pinson?

Q. If she never had a son, then you could understand why all those peculiar circumstances in her testimony occurred?

A. I don't know that I would have attributed them to that or not, but it might have been the logical conclusion.

Q. That would account for it, wouldn't it?

A. I don't know whether it would or not.

Q. Wouldn't it have accounted for all the various suspicions you had raised in your mind since the beginning of this suit? A. I suppose it would, Mr. Pinson.

Q. Yet you made no effort to ascertain kindly and confidentially from Minnie whether that was the truth?

A. No, I wanted her to tell Mr. Montgomery; to satisfy him and satisfy me at the same time.

And thereupon Court recessed until 9:30 o'clock A. M., May 29, 1917.

And thereafter, and on May 29th, 1917, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., Court convened pursuant to adjournment, and further proceedings herein were had as follows:

E. C. HANFORD, being recalled, further testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. Pinson.

Q. Mr. Hanford, after you had made the trip to Leavenworth, and then the trip to Boston, you went back to Tulsa, didn't you?

A. I came back from Boston by way of George H. Hyde's at Pittsfield, and then back to Leavenworth, and I think I was in Leavenworth one day.

Q. You had a conversation there with Mr. Page at that time about the result of the trip?

A. I don't know, I don't remember talking to Mr. Page; I remember talking to Mr. Rice.

Q. You don't remember talking to Mr. Page at that time?

A. No, I probably did, though.

Q. You remember whether you talked to him in the presence of any other persons or not? A. Mr. Rice?

Q. Yes, or Mr. Page?

A. I don't remember my conversation at that time. I remember telling Mr. Rice about my conversation with Mr. Hyde, which we considered very important, in fact it was important.

Q. Now, do you remember whether Mr. Page was satisfied with the result of your trip—whether he wanted you to make another trip to Boston?

A. No, he didn't want me to make another trip to Boston. I think that I was present at a conversation between Mr. Long and Mr. Rice, or Mr. Long and Mr. Page, in which it was suggested that Mr. Josey go up and see Mr. Peterkin. They were not satisfied with my interview with Mr. Peterkin, because about the only thing that was considered that I had gotten from him was that he knew nothing about Minnie before he met her, and I didn't tell him anything and didn't go into any details with him, and I know that they were very much dissatisfied and thought that Mr. Josey ought to go and talk to him further, and I really thought that Mr. Peterkin was deceiving me because he told me how he was married and had three children, and this matter coming up seemed to make him very ill at ease. And they discussed having Mr. Josey go up and see Mr. Peterkin; I know Mr. Long wrote Mr. Josey but I think that I have learned that since.

Q. Now, you testified once or twice about a telegram to Mr. Page in regard to this five thousand dollar check; a telegram which made Mr. Page very angry. Did you make a search for that telegram or a copy of it?

A. I didn't make a search, Mr. Pinson, but I know that I haven't that telegram because I think if I had it I would have seen it and recognized it.

Q. You are sure you haven't it yourself?

A. I am sure. I don't think I saved a copy of the telegram because I went direct from the bank to the telegraph office and wrote out my telegram and sent it. I didn't send it from my office, so I don't think that I had any copy.

Q. Now, you spoke of your trip to Leavenworth with Betty Mann, in which she drove from place to place all over the town with you to find every old house and every old citizen in an effort to produce some further evidence?

A. I don't say every one, she went to a great many.

Q. A great many?

A. She would pick out places where she would see old colored people and would go in and talk to them, but they always went off on a tale of war or something like that and wouldn't give her any information. They were all suspicious of her and suspicious of me.

The Court: Mr. Hanford, you have made that plain to me in your direct examination.

Q. You didn't get any information of value on that trip yourself, did you? A. None at all.

Q. You refered to a person by the name of Mary Smith, with whom you had an interview. Has she testified in this case? A. No, I think——

Q. Well, has she testified, Mr. Hanford, or not?

A. Mr. Pinson, I am not sure, but I want to say that I think she was one of the witnesses that testified in Leavenworth and gave her deposition but I didn't see her and hear her testify.

Q. And she admitted to you at the time you interviewed her that she had been interviewed by other persons before?

A. She told me somebody had been to see her before.

Q. All right. Now, then, in your discussion with Mr. Montgomery and Minnie in connection with the confession——

A. Mr. Pinson, on that trip I also did get other information of value on my way back from Kansas City, I stopped off at Kansas City, Kansas, and saw a man by the name of Woods——

Q. Just a minute. Now, you got information from him, did you? A. Yes, very good information.

Q. Well, has he testified?

A. No, he died before the deposition was taken.

Q. Now, you told Minnie in connection with Sadie's confession, that you had procured some of those Leavenworth witnesses and you knew their story was true, who were they?

A. I didn't tell her I procured any witnesses. I didn't procure any witnesses.

Q. That was not your testimony on direct examination?

A. No, I said that I had heard those witnesses.

Q. Before Minnie gave her deposition at Tulsa you and Mr. Long took her to Rice & Lyons' office, that is the day before, and had a conversation among you four, did you not?

A. Did not.

Q. That is not true? A. That is not true.

Q. Mr. Hanford, you have left the Court the impression that Sadie James had injured you in a conflict at the Post at Minnie's home after the confession was written and after the meeting between yourself, Mr. Buell, Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Robinson, and Mr. Garvin at the Hotel? A. Yes.

Q. That is true, isn't it? Now, that was a very slight injury, it wasn't a broken nose and broken out teeth as you have testified, was it? A. Yes, it was broken——

Q. Beg pardon? A. I say it was.

Q. Was what?

A. I say it was a serious injury, not to put me in bed but so that I have had to have pieces of bone removed from my nose and from the bridge of the teeth that was broken.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, in fairness to Sadie, you were not struck by her until after you had cursed her, assaulted her and threatened to kill her, that is true, isn't it?

A. That is true.

Q. Now, let's talk just a minute about the trip over to Col. Wilson's house?

A. I will say though, that I thought Sadie was getting behind me to do some damage to me, Mr. Pinson.

Q. But you didn't believe that Sadie was trying to get back to the house to Minnie?

A. Well, I might have believed that.

Q. Which did you believe?

A. I just had the impression that she was sneaking behind me and I was keeping them in front of me so they couldn't get back to the house.

Q. Going on now to the incident that occurred at Col. Wilson's house, I understand you to say that you ran from Minnie's house to the Post and was standing at Col. Wilson's door when Mr. Montgomery came up and struck the match to look at the door place?

A. No, he was there first but he didn't get out of the taxicab until I got up on the porch.

Q. The two of you were together when Col. Wilson came out of the house? A. That is true.

Q. Now, you made to Col. Wilson certain representations to the effect that a very dangerous gang were out there and that they were trying to get Minnie away from you, isn't that true?

A. I told him that, that I believed that was what they were trying to do.

Q. You told him you wanted his help didn't you?

A. No, I told him I didn't want his help but I didn't want any interference.

Q. Now, Mr. Montgomery was standing right by you when you made those representations to Col. Wilson?

A. No, he was not.

Q. Where was he?

A. Mr. Montgomery was out in the hall and I went back to Col. Wilson's office and talked with him, and after I got through he even asked me to wait and hear his interview with Mr. Montgomery; but I told him I was satisfied to leave that matter to him; that I just wanted him to be informed and to be on his guard against Mr. Montgomery, and I left. At that time I believe——

Q. Mrs. Wilson opened the door, didn't she, the Colonel's wife?

A. No, Mr. Pinson, I think Col. Wilson came to the door himself.

Q. Well, his wife and daughter were there, weren't they?

A. I didn't see them.

Q. Well, his wife and daughter were there, weren't they, during the interview? A. I didn't see them.

Q. Didn't see them at all? A. No, I didn't see them.

Q. Didn't Mr. Montgomery talk to them in the library while you and the Colonel talked to them in the adjoining room? A. That may have been.

Q. Didn't you see them there when you came out of the adjoining room?

A. I don't remember seeing them, Mr. Pinson.

Q. Then, you now say that you didn't make any statement derogatory of Mr. Montgomery in Mr. Montgomery's presence, is that true? A. I did not.

Q. Now, at the hotel, let me understand you about this one thing: Mr. Buell, and Robinson, and yourself, and Mr. Montgomery were in the room together when someone told you at the very beginning of that conversation that Mr. Montgomery was the only Government man present, isn't true?

A. Yes, not right at the beginning but after I had told them that I had nothing to say, or wouldn't say anything, and especially in the presence of——

Q. A Secret Service man?

A. A member of the Secret Service, yes.

Q. You said you had no regard for the Secret Service?

A. Yes, I said they would simply misconstrue any statement that I would make and that I wouldn't——

Q. And then you led the Court to believe that the first you learned that Robinson was not a Secret Service was when you interviewed him about certain friends of yours in the Secret Service, isn't that true?

A. Yes, that is true, in the taxi cab going out to the Post. He may have told me that he was not in the Secret Service. I learned it, however, at that time.

Q. You do not want to leave the impression with the Court that anyone tried to impress you with the fact that they were representing the Government or were in the Government Secret Service? A. I thought so at that time, yes.

Q. Who do you accuse of leaving that impression upon you?

A. Mr. Montgomery was the one who introduced Mr. Robinson to me as a member of the Secret Service.

Q. Yes, and made no exception?

A. No exception, except later I believe it was Mr.—— yes, it was Mr. Montgomery that explained to me that he was the only one that was there that was representing the Government but I didn't connect that so as to be relieved of the impression that Mr. Montgomery was a member—that Mr. Robinson was a member of the Secret Service at that time.

Q. Well, your understanding of the Secret Service as you used the term, was the Government Secret Service?

A. Yes, I will tell you, I afterwards discussed that——

> The Court: Well, let's not go into that any further. I can't see what difference it makes whether he was a private Secret Service or Government Secret Service; at any rate it is in the record sufficiently.
>
> Mr. Pinson: Your Honor, it is merely to correct the impression if it is an impression that Mr. Montgomery practiced any deception on him in making the statement.

Q. In the letter which you introduced in evidence during your testimony and which is dated September 10th, 1914, there is a statement that reads something like this: "I shall have something further to write you about Minnie this afternoon." The letter is addressed to the Gem Oil Company. Did you write something further about Minnie that afternoon?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall at this time what you had in mind?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Did you ascertain whether—could you ascertain whether there is a letter which is of the same date in which you did write them something further about Minnie?

A. This letter is addressed to the Gem Oil Company, I will look and see.

Q. You kept carbon copies of your letters, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't, Mr. Pinson; sometimes when I wrote when I dictated letters, I think I would have carbon copies but many times I wrote letters myself in the evenings. I always worked nights, and if I did, I never saved copies of those. I wouldn't make carbon copies.

Q. Alright. Mr. Pinson will you make an effort to secure that telegram which you sent to Mr. Page and that letter to the Gem Oil Company if there is one; and if there is one it may be necessary for me to further cross examine you on those matters. A. Yes, I will look for them.

Q. Mr. Hanford, letter to Peterkin referred to which has been offered in evidence as Government's exhibit A-84, this is a letter which you wrote, is it not? A. Yes, this is the letter.

Q. Now, at the time that you wrote this letter you had—November 23rd—you had made two trips to Leavenworth, had you not with Minnie?

A. Yes, the first time to look up the Hospital record and the second time when the depositions were taken, and Minnie was sick.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford, I want to ask you about certain matters contained in this letter; you say here "the child was born in the town of Leavenworth before she ever got acquainted with the Army Post;" you believed that at that time, did you? A. Yes, we believed that at that time.

Q. "She was quite a character about Leavenworth for a couple of years and after she came away from there she stayed away in so far as she allowed other people to find out;" you believed that, did you? A. Yes, believed that.

Q. You believed that from information and evidence which you received that she was a character about town a couple of years? A. Yes.

Q. And that was your understanding? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before she ever went out to the Post?

A. Yes, that was to some extent but we assumed it from the information we got from people in Leavenworth.

Q. "In the same way, while you were connected with her, she had a little son playing around in Leavenworth; he was about a year and a half old before Minnie ever went out to the Post;" you believed that at the time? A. Yes.

Q. And had that information?

A. Not that information; we assumed that because the witnesses we had at the depositions testified that the child was about a year and a half or two years old when Minnie disappeared and they didn't seem to know anything about her working out at the Post and we assumed she disappeared when she went out to the Army Post.

Q. Now, you did know that Oliver took her out to the Army Post, didn't you? A. No, he didn't.

Q. Let me read you this: "It seems that it was Oliver who got Minnie to go out to the Post;" that is in your letter, isn't it?

A. Yes, I don't know; I suppose I guessed at that. Minnie may have said that—she never would say who the man was who took her out to the Post.

Q. You understood when you wrote to Minnie that Oliver had been Minnie's common law husband, friend, or paramour? A. Before Peterkin.

Q. Before Peterkin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you understood Oliver was the man who took Minnie to the Post? A. Yes.

Q. Then you didn't understand that Minnie had disappeared when she went to the Post, did you?

A. That is what we thought, that she disappeared to the Leavenworth people; they said they didn't know her after the child was a year and a half or two years old, and we supposed when she went out to the Army Post, that is when she disappeared to them.

Q. Now, are those two places so isolated or the one from the other, that a person living in one place would have no communication with a person in the other?

A. Why, not at all, Mr. Pinson; but there is a very great distance between people living in an Army Post and a town adjoining it very closely, and probably never see each others—

Q. Now, of course, the means of conveyance you understand are different at this time from that, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. "We have taken the depositions of about forty people in the town of Leavenworth who knew Minnie, knew the child, and knew all about the time it was born." How many witnesses have you ever introduced who proved the time that this child was born?

A. Well, I don't know how many Mr. Pinson, but we have —besides the depositions we have taken affidavits of a great many people that we have never used as witnesses.

Q. Then, you have one witness at this time before the Court who has testified as to the time of the child's birth, haven't you?

A. I don't know how many we have just now. I will state that I was always under the impression that a great many more depositions were taken at Leavenworth than actually were taken.

Q. "Minnie's friends kept the child in Leavenworth until he was about twelve years old. He was known by the name of Thomas Atkins and every one knew that he was part Indian and that Minnie was his mother." That was your belief and understanding? A. Yes, sir.

Q. "Every one about the town of Leavenworth," is that about that section of the town?

A. No, I was talking about those depositions that we took there at Leavenworth.

Q. "We had Minnie in Leavenworth again since I saw you, dozens of people knew her there and know all about her and the child. People recognize her on the street. She was better known in the town than she was out at the Post." You believed that, did you?

A. I believed it. I couldn't find anybody out at the Post that knew her at all, but we were finding new people in the town all the time that knew her.

Q. Mr. Hanford, the first time you went to Leavenworth with Minnie, you drove all over town for two days until you thought you had completely covered the town?

A. Yes, I had completely covered a large part of it, the part that Minnie directed me to drive in and I stuck to that part of town.

Q. And you spent two days in that part of town, didn't you?

A. Yes, not two days, but probably had the rig out a couple of hours at a time on those two days.

Q. And you walked about some during the remaining portion of the time?

A. No, I don't think that Minnie walked at all. I may have walked——

Q. Was Minnie recognized by or did she recognize a single person during those two days?

A. Yes, she recognized a great many people and she recognized one person that I remember. That was an old woman.

Q. That is the old cancer eaten woman? A. Yes.

Q. Half wit? A. Yes.

Q. Did that woman recognize her?

A. No, that woman seemed to be out of her head and I don't think she got close enough to Minnie to recognize her, whether she did or not.

Q. Now, when you went back to Leavenworth on the second trip you found the situation as you have outlined it in this letter, that dozens of people would recognize her there, and people would recognize her on the street?

A. Yes, I found dozens of people that knew her. I didn't say they recognized her on the street through, but many people did recognize her on the street.

Q. Now, how long was she up there, about, in Leavenworth, at that time?

A. Well, she was over there I think a couple of days before she was taken sick.

Q. After that she was confined to her bed, wasn't she?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And during those two days people recognized her on the street?

A. Yes, I think that that was largely hearsay on my part, because Mr. Long had her recognized by people; I remember he told me about Policeman Murphy recognizing her, Crilley, and others that recognized her at once.

Q. Now, that situation became apparent after Sadie James, Dennis Jones, and Rube Smith, and Betty Mann were employed, isn't that true? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Hanford, what was the matter with Minnie up there at Leavenworth when you referred to her as being sick?

A. Well, I could never—I could never find out, Mr. Pinson, what was the matter. I think it was supposed to be from overeating, something of that kind. I think the nearest I ever got to it, that sounded most probable, was Mr. Ferguson telling us about her eating too many peaches.

Q. Now, why did you write Peterkin there, "We had her in the hospital for a week at Leavenworth suffering from nothing but nervousness"?

A. Well, that was what one doctor said was the matter with her, and she was highly nervous at that time.

Q. And you were as ready to believe that as the other theory of her sickness?

A. Well, probably a little bit more; I think that she was suffering from nervousness and probably was put down by overeating, something of that kind.

Q. Referring again to your explanation of the Stafford matter, you wired Major Stafford to conceal his knowledge of Minnie, because as you say you didn't want any person to find a living Thomas Atkins before you people found him?

A. Yes, I didn't want them to get any information at all regarding him.

Q. And the purpose was to find the living Thomas if he was living first?

A. Yes, we were afraid that he might turn up any time.

Q. Now, then, explain to the Court, please, why you wrote the following paragraph to Peterkin: "The details of Minnie's history after she went out to the Army Post in Leavenworth do not concern these people that wrote to you and they have no business inquiring into that part of Minnie's history. She is certainly entitled to keep private anything that is not involved in the case, but it is just like those people to try to nose into something that does not concern them. If you reply to their letters at all I wish you would just tell them that Minnie did not inform you of the instances of her life prior to the time you met her, and that you consider what took place afterwards a private matter which you do not intend to have them inquire into"?

A. I think that explains itself, Mr. Pinson. That is exactly the way I felt, that the only thing that they were entitled to was what he told me and that was that he knew nothing prior to the time that he met her, and that that related to Thomas Atkins, and that after that I didn't believe they had a right to know her secrets; and I felt those were secrets.

Q. You had investigated those secrets had you not?

A. Yes, and I had a right to.

Q. Why? A. I was her attorney.

Q. And if you couldn't find them out from Minnie, you got on the outside to find them out? A. Yes.

Q. The world was advised at the time by records prepared before a court that Minnie had three illegitimate children at Fort Logan? A. Yes.

Q. You never made any objection to that being disclosed?

A. No, I thought it was all unnecessary to go into that and bring it out.

Q. You had been advised by Peterkin that this was a girl, had you not, this child?

A. He told me that she had a girl at Leavenworth.

Q. While he was living with her? A. Yes.

Q. Then, the child that you refer to was a girl child, wasn't it?

A. No, I wasn't referring to that at all. He also told me—Mr. Peterkin told me a great many things about her that I wouldn't want anybody to know today about Minnie, things that he had no reason to tell me at all, and I felt that he would go into all those.

Q. You didn't mind at all about his telling them about the birth of this child, though?

A. Well, if it was true. I wasn't thinking about that so much as I was I thought he would tell them all about Minnie and I thought they were not entitled to know it.

Q. And therefore, you observed: "Don't forget to write me if these people down there keep butting in," and wound up "Yours for the Army and Navy forever." That is all.

A. I want to state that last little sentimental phrase was adopted from a piece of poetry that Mr. Peterkin sent me with the letter.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Hanford, the attorney who has just taken his seat asked you if it wasn't a fact that you didn't have but one witness that knew about the date of this child's birth.

Now, just a minute we will save a lot of time. Did Mr. Roderick testify about that child's birth? A. Yes.

Q. Did Jim Allen, the general agent for the Rock Island——

Mr. Pinson: We object to that as leading.

The Court: Overruled. We will clear that up right now. I thought at the time that a reference by the court to the records would clear that up.

Q. Did Jim Allen, the general agent for the Rock Island, testify to it? A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Fritchie testify to it? A. Yes.

Q. Did Mrs. Cobb testify to it? A. She did.

Q. Did Mr. Crilly testify to it? A. He did.

Q. Did Walter Banks? A. He did.

Q. Sam Nash? A. Yes.

Q. Mrs. Welsh? A. She did.

Q. And did Dennis Jones testify to it?

A. He did, and there may be others if I could run over the records.

The Court: Now, I will say, gentlemen, right now, with reference to the cross examination along that line that I shall determine from an examination of the testimony what those witnesses— as to what they testified and what will be the effect of that testimony; and I think it is only prolonging the record to inject anything of that kind into this cross examination or direct examination.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, I hope this is not intended as a criticism to me.

The Court: It was started on cross examination but I think it was entirely unnecessary.

Mr. Pinson: May I offer an explanation of this examination.

The Court: Gentlemen, I am going to assume that it was done in the utmost good faith. This is merely a suggestion on the part of the court in regard to it.

Mr. Stuart: That is all, Mr. Hanford.

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. Hanford: At this time, if the court please, I want to offer the deposition of Captain Alexander J. MacNab, Jr., commencing at page 198 of the depositions taken before Giles Penick.

Thereupon, ALEXANDER J. MacNAB, being recalled on behalf of the defendants, further testified herein as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Your name is Captain Alexander J. MacNab, Jr.?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You are a Captain in the United States Army?
A. Yes.
Q. Stationed at Fort Lawton, near Seattle, Washington?
A. Yes.
Q. You have previously been sworn in this case?
A. Yes.

Q. As a witness in this case, Captain MacNab, you acted for a time as trustee for Minnie Folk, in connection with the land involved in this case? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to your assuming responsibility as trustee, you advised her personally? A. Yes.

Q. This whole matter of this land and her interest in it was brought to your attention at the time the colored woman, Sadie James, came out and found Minnie here at Seattle?
A. Yes, at that time.
Q. Did you ever see Sadie James? A. Yes.
Q. Where did you see her?
A. I saw her in the house that Minnie Folk lived in at that time, and still lives in, near Fort Lawton.

Q. What was the occasion of your seeing her at that time, that is how did you——

A. I was at Mrs. Folk's house when Sadie James came there on the afternoon of this day when I first learned about this land.

Q. Who else was there at that time?
A. Mr. Hanford was there, and myself, and I believe Harry Folk; I am not sure whether Harry Folk was there at that time, I think he was.

Q. That was the occasion that you have testified to as a witness on behalf of the complainant, when Sadie James came out there with detectives following her? A. Yes.

Q. And you at that time persuaded Minnie Folk not to do anything in the way of signing away her land for any sum of money, and arranged to have Mr. Hanford act as her attorney? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see Sadie James after that?
A. No, I don't think I ever saw her.
Q. Did she ever come to your quarters at the Post?
A. No, not while I was there.
Q. Did she ever come to your quarters with a man named H. U. Bartlett? A. No.
Q. Did she ever have any conversation with you at your house in the presence of Mr. Bartlett after the time you first saw her? A. No.

Q. Or at any time in the course of which she told you that Minnie was not telling the truth? A. No.

Q. Did you ever tell her——

A. I never spoke to Sadie James after that one afternoon, and I don't remember ever seeing her again, if I ever saw her again it was passing on the street, she certainly never came to my house and I certainly never held any conversation with her except that one afternoon when you yourself were present.

Q. Did she ever state to you in words or substance that Minnie Folk was not the mother of Thomas Atkins?

> By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the reason that it is leading and suggestive and incompetent, and if it is laying a predicate for impeaching the witness, Sadie James, the time and place are not fixed.

A. No, the only statement she ever made about Thomas Atkins was that Minnie was the father of Thomas Atkins—the mother of Thomas Atkins, and that was made that afternoon, that first afternoon. That first afternoon was the only afternoon that I ever talked to Sadie James or that she ever talked to me, when you, Mr. Hanford, was present.

Q. Did she state to you that she had known Thomas Atkins?

A. Stated that she had known Thomas Atkins and that she knew him much better than Minnie did, that she had seen him long after Minnie had seen him.

Q. Did she say where?

A. She said she saw him in Leavenworth but just how long afterwards I don't remember whether she stated definitely, but she impressed on us by her definite statements to that effect that she knew Tommy and knew more about Tommy than Minnie did, and that Minnie was the mother of Tommy.

Q. Did she state to you that she had—at Minnie's house on that afternoon that you speak of—that she had known Minnie previous to that time?

A. Yes, she said that she had known Minnie previous to that time.

Q. Did Minnie, at her house that afternoon, tell you whether or not she had ever known Sadie James previous to that time?

> By Mr. Allen: We object to that as leading and suggestive, incompetent, and as hearsay, and a self-serving declaration.

A. I don't remember whether it was at her house that afternoon or not, but sometime, either that day or that evening, Minnie said: "That woman claims to know me, she says she knows me, but I don't remember her." She says: "I don't remember that woman," and she added——

Q. Did you ever take Minnie to the Post and keep her under guard, or put her in the guard house? A. No.

Q. Did any other woman, subsequent to that afternoon, come to your house in the Post to talk to you about Minnie?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was that?

A. There was two that I recall, one was——

Q. Well, I am asking you along about that time?

A. Along about that time was Bettie Mann, I believe her name was Bettie Mann.

Q. State in substance what, if any, conversation you had with her at that time?

A. My conversation with her was not very long. I think she come to see if Minnie had appointed me trustee for her, and I gave her to understand that the entire matter had been turned over to me to handle and I think that is about all, that is about as far as the conversation went.

Q. Did she tell you whether or not she had seen Minnie?

A. I think she said she had not seen Minnie.

Q. Did you have any conversation with her at all relative to the merits of this case, that is to whether or not Minnie Atkins—Minnie Folk was the mother of Thomas Atkins?

A. None whatever that I can remember of; I am quite sure I did not discuss the case with her at all.

Q. Did Mr. Bartlett come to your house to see you?

A. Yes.

Q. How long after you were appointed trustee?

A. Well, it was not more than a week or two, as I remember it, it was sometime immediately following that, within a week I should say.

Q. State the substance—state the conversation—your conversation with Mr. Bartlett at that time?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the reason that it is incompetent and hearsay.

A. Mr. Bartlett wanted to know if Minnie had made me trustee in the case, and I told him that she had; he wanted to know if we had tied up to anybody as to a deal—as to a deal for a lease, and I told him that we had not at that time, and he said that he was in a way representing the Gypsy Oil people in that they held a lease that he had given them; that he was then convinced had been given them on a forced deed that he had, or a deed given by a Minnie Atkins that he was then convinced was not the real Minnie Atkins, and I told him I thought from what I had seen that there was not any doubt about this Minnie Atkins being the Minnie Atkins borne on that roll, a photographic copy of which I had seen and had compared it with the signature on that roll with the signature on the marriage certificate and the identification in other ways had been complete so far as I was concerned, and I thought that the Minnie Atkins that was here was the Minnie Atkins that was on that roll; and he said—acquiesced in that. I don't know whether in so many words or not, but said, I think, he believed so too. At any rate, he wanted to be given a chance to have his company, or the company he was supposed to be representing, a chance to make a bid for the lease, and he asked me to wire Mr. Hanford to see the Gypsy Oil people and get their proposition before making any deal, and he said he would pay for that telegram; and I said: "If you will write out the telegram that you want to send to Mr. Hanford, I will sign it and let you take it down and send it." And he wrote out a telegram himself, or dictated it, I have forgotten which; at any rate, the telegram was personally satisfactory to him and it was what he wanted sent to Mr. Hanford, and I signed it and he took it away and I understand that he sent it and that Mr. Hanford received it. He also stated that he thought that we would do better to deal with him and the Gypsy Oil people, and that he felt that he could materially aid in clearing up the case in getting the title for Minnie, but that he would want to get something out of it if he did. That is all of the conversation that I recall at this time that applies to this case.

Q. What did you understand him to mean by clearing up the title of Minnie to this land?

By Mr. Allen: We object to the question for the reason that it is incompetent, hearsay, and calls for the conclusion of the witness.

A. Well, I understood it to mean dealing with the identification of Minnie Atkins as the mother of Thomas Atkins, because to my understanding, that was the only question involved at that time to acquire title to the land.

Q. Did he tell you whether or not there were any other claimants to the land?

A. Yes, he told me there were other claimants.

Q. Did he tell you that he was a claimant himself, or the claimant of an interest?

A. No, he stated that he had given the Gypsy Oil people a lease on that land, thinking it was his, because he had a deed from a Minnie Atkins, and that he was up there purely to try and make good the deal that he had made with the Gypsy people, but he admitted to me that he felt that that deed that he had was not given by the real Minnie Atkins, so I considered that he was not a claimant at that time for the land.

Q. Did he question you at all as to whether or not Minnie Atkins, the mother, had given birth to a son named Thomas Atkins?

A. No, he asked me no questions about that. It was taken for granted by—— At that time there was no questions of that. It was conceded by everybody concerned in the case at that time that there was a Thomas Atkins and that the Minnie Atkins that was borne on that roll was the mother of him; it was only a question of identifying Minnie Atkins as the Minnie Atkins of Oklahoma who was borne on that roll of 1895; at least that was the only phase of the case as I understood it at that time.

> By Mr. Allen: We move to strike the answer of this witness for the reason that it is not responsive to any question, and is leading, is a conclusion of the witness, and is testifying with reference to a conversation had with a party not a party to this suit.

Q. Did anyone else come to see you in regard to Minnie Folk subsequent to Mr. Bartlett's visit?

A. There was a woman whose name I believe was Robinson, a Miss Robinson of Oklahoma, a school teacher.

Q. That Miss Alice Robinson? A. Miss Alice Robinson.

Q. When did she come to see you?

A. Well, that was after Mr. Bartlett had been there, but just how long after, I don't know, it seems to me it was in—within a month, but as to that I am not sure, it was about that time.

Q. What did she come to see you about?

A. She came up to ask me if I would get Minnie up so that she could talk to her; she came, she said, to see if she could identify this Minnie Atkins as the Minnie Atkins who had gone to school to her in Oklahoma, and I asked her who she represented here and she said she was not at liberty to state, and I didn't know then and I don't know now, but she convinced me that she was a person of standing in her own community, and I sent for Minnie and Minnie came up there, sent for her down to her house, she was living down close to the Post. Minnie came up to my quarters and quite a conversation took place between Miss Alice Robinson and Minnie, and she identified her during this conversation as being the Minnie Atkins who had gone to school to her, and whom she knew in Oklahoma. I remember one thing, she asked Minnie if she remembered the words of the hymn they used to sing in the Indian language and I think she started the first line of it and Minnie took up the second and they sang it together, and Minnie described to her a fire that took place in the school house when she was a little girl, how she first [ ] to go to Carlisle school; and they talked about little things that happened when Minnie was a school child before she went to Carlisle; but the main thing that fixed in my mind the conversation was that Indian song that Miss Robinson started and Minnie took it up and they sang it together in the Indian language.

Q. Miss Robinson had luncheon at your house at that time, did she not?

A. Yes, she was at luncheon when Minnie came in, and I remember one statement that Minnie made that struck because Miss Robinson had told me before Minnie got there, she said: "If this is Minnie Atkins and she finds out who I am, she will say 'My how fat you are, how fat you have grown,' " and Minnie talked to her and she remembered Miss Robinson, but she said: "You are much fatter than when I knew you."

Q. Did Miss Robinson call your attention to the occurrence?

A. Yes, and Miss Robinson looked at me and said: "I told you," or words to that effect.

Q. Was there any discussion with Minnie by Miss Robinson, or at that time, in her presence, as to whether or not she was the mother of Thomas Atkins?

A. No, that question was not brought up at all.

Q. Then, it was purely——

A. Purely a question of identification of Minnie as being the Minnie Atkins.

Q. How soon after lunch did Miss Robinson leave?

A. I don't remember, she stayed a little while, however, just how long I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember who went with her when she did leave?

A. No, I don't remember that, I don't remember whether she and Minnie went away together or not, or whether she went alone.

Q. Was Mr. Hanford present at the time that Miss Robinson and Minnie were there together at your house?

A. Yes.

Q. That is the Miss Alice Robinson who was formerly Post Mistress at Muskogee, is it not?

A. I believe she told me that she had been appointed Post Mistress by President Roosevelt, and I think she had a letter from President Roosevelt, that is my remembrance of it.

Q. Captain MacNab, a lease was made to the Gem Oil Company of this land under your direction as trustee, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. What was the consideration for that lease?

A. Well, the consideration paid was ten thousand ($10,000.00) dollars; I don't remember what was stated in the lease, but there was ten thousand dollars paid.

Q. How much of that ten thousand dollars did Minnie Folk take over for herself?

A. Five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars.

Q. The other five thousand dollars, you previously testified, was devoted to the expenses incident to the case and the—including the two thousand dollars that was turned over to you as trustee? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Minnie receive the cash on the five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars that went to her immediately after it was paid, immediately after the check was received? A. No.

Q. That check was dated for a subsequent date, was it not?

A. That check was dated for the end of July. I have an idea that it was the 29th of July, but it might have been the 30th or 31st, but I think it was the 29th; it was dated the latter part of July, about the last of July.

Q. Do you remember about what date of the month of July Mr. Hanford returned to Seattle with that check?

A. No, I don't remember, but it was after I got back to Seattle from the Manœuvre Camp at Tacoma, and that was sometime after the month of July, because I was down there during the month of July, I should say somewhere about the 10th of July.

Q. Do you know why that check was dated ahead?

A. Well, as I have stated before, it was explained to me that the oil people wanted to get their evidence in shape before this money was paid.

Q. What do you mean by evidence in shape, Captain MacNab?

A. Well, at that time I didn't think that there were—well they were convinced that she was the Minnie Atkins that had been—that they had been looking for, but they apparently wanted to make the proof positive of that fact, they were convinced enough to make that payment but they requested that the money be held; it was my understanding, it was the object of making the identification more complete. At that time, the only evidence that we had any idea of being necessary was the establishing of this, the identity of this Minnie Atkins.

Q. Captain MacNab, you now understand that in this suit of the Government, in behalf of the Creek Nation, to cancel this allotment, it is sought to be establish- that the defendants are involved in a conspiracy, while that was not directly charged, but I can use the word, involved in a conspiracy or an attempt to manufacture a case and secure evidence that a child was born to Minnie Atkins and that he was named Thomas Atkins, and that this allotment was made to him and through him she obtains her title. Does your statement, that that money was to be delayed in payment to Minnie until they could get their evidence in shape, in any way relate any—did you agree to that for any such purpose?

By Mr. Allen: We object to the question for the reason that it is suggestive, leading, hearsay, and calling for a conclusion of this witness, and incompetent.

A. No, I didn't know that any such charge was made until you made the statement here, although I gathered as much from the line of questioning yesterday.

Q. Did you know of any such conspiracy, or attempt to manufacture a case or procure evidence? A. No.

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the same reason and ask that the answer be stricken. We also object to both of these questions, and ask that the answers be stricken, upon the further ground that it is self-serving.

Q. Did anything come to your information that would tend to in any way indicate that there was any such conspiracy or attempt to manufacture evidence?

A. None whatever.

By Mr. Allen: We ask that that answer be stricken for the same reason.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Captain, when Minnie first came to you regarding this interest that she claimed in the Tommy Atkins land, it was after Sadie James had been talking to her?

A. I understood that Sadie James had been there before, yes.

Q. You understood from Minnie that Sadie had been there?

A. From Minnie, yes, that Sadie had been there before.

Q. Could you see that she was merely claiming to be the mother of Tommy Atkins because it had been suggested to her by Sadie?

By Mr. Allen: We object to the question as leading and suggestive and improper, and calling for the conclusion of this witness.

A. No.

Q. Didn't she appear to be under the influence of Sadie when she was talking to you?

By Mr. German: We object to that as incompetent and irrelevant and immaterial, and calling for a conclusion.

A. She was not under the influence of Sadie when she first told me that she was the mother of Tommy Atkins, because Sadie was not present and I had no reason at that time or since to think that she made that statement to me because it had been suggested to her by Sadie James.

Q. During these negotiations up to the time that the lease was made, was it suggested to you that there was no Tommy Atkins, but that Minnie had been induced to claim that she had had a child which had borne that name? A. No.

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the reason that it is incompetent, hearsay, suggestive and leading, and for the further reasons that is calling for a conclusion of the witness and we ask that the answer be stricken for the same reason.

Q. Then you had no knowledge that any claim was being made that Minnie's assertion of the fact that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins had been subrogated?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the same reasons, the reasons last stated.

A. No. I knew that there were other claimants who might endeavor to dispute the identity of this Minnie Atkins, but I have no knowledge that it was ever disputed—that any endeavor was ever made to fabricate evidence that she was the mother of a Thomas Atkins.

Q. It was your understanding that there was, or had been a Thomas Atkins?

A. That there was a Thomas Atkins and that there was.

Q. That there was a Thomas Atkins?

A. That there was a Thomas Atkins, yes.

By Mr. Allen: We move to strike the questions and answers for the reasons last stated.

Q. It was your understanding that there was a Minnie Atkins——

By Mr. Allen: We object to that, for the reason that it calls for a conclusion of the witness, incompetent, and hearsay.

A. Yes.

Q. The question that seemed to be—that seemed at that time to be in doubt was whether this was the Minnie Atkins that was the mother of Thomas Atkins allotted——

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the reason that it is leading, suggestive, hearsay, and incompetent, and calling for a conclusion of the witness.

A. That was the only question in the case that I knew of.

Q. The agreement by Long that five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars would be deposited to be paid sometime later in July was in order to give Long an opportunity of establishing that fact, that this Minnie was the mother of Thomas Atkins allotted——

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the same reasons last stated.

A. That was my understanding of it, the establishing of the identity of this Minnie Atkins, and which, however, we were thoroughly convinced at the time and had no objection to allowing them time to satisfy themselves on that point.

By Mr. Allen: We move to strike the last part of the witness' answer as not responsive to the question and as stating a conclusion of the witness.

Q. Would you have gone into a conspiracy to establish a fact that Minnie Atkins had had a child, of which you had knowledge that she did not have?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent and immaterial, and calling for a conclusion of the witness.

A. Certainly not.

Q. Did you have any knowledge that this money was being deposited for the purpose of offering it as an inducement to Minnie to give her testimony claiming that she was the mother of a child, which as a matter of fact she was not the mother of?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, leading and suggestive and calling for the conclusion of the witness.

A. No.

Q. It was your intention and your understanding that this payment was deferred to allow the parties making the payment to establish to their satisfaction the identity of Minnie Folk as Minnie Atkins, the mother of the allottee Tommy Atkins?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, as leading and suggestive, as hearsay, and as calling for a conclusion of this witness.

A. That was my understanding.

Q. How many times did you say you talked to Sadie James? A. Once.

Q. Are you sure of that? A. Quite positive.

Q. That was the day which I understand you say that she claimed that she had a party coming who would pay two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars for this land?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as leading, suggestive, and incompetent, and irrelevant, and immaterial.

By Mr. Blakeney: I am crossing examining the witness.

A. Yes.

Q. And you never, to your recollection, had any other conversation with her? A. No.

Q. In that conversation with Sadie James was Minnie Folk there? A. Yes.

Q. In that conversation Sadie James and Minnie both took a part? A. Yes.

Q. Who was present?

A. Mr. Hanford and myself, and I don't remember whether Harry Folk was there or not.

Q. Where was it?

A. It was in Minnie Atkins' house—Minnie Folk's house.

Q. Minnie Folk's house in the City of Seattle?

A. In the City of Seattle.

Q. What county is this? A. King County.

Q. King County, State of Washington? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About what time? A. Of the year or——

Q. Yes, what time of the year?

A. Well, it was when this first came up, I think it was early in June.

Q. Of 1914? A. Of 1914.

Q. Did Sadie James state to you, to Minnie or Mr. Hanford, or in your presence, at the time and place now referred to, that the baby Tommy—Thomas Atkins, or referring to Thomas Atkins died when it was two months old, or words in substance to that effect? A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Hanford or yourself or anybody else state to Sadie in this conversation at the time and place referred to, "You don't know what you are talking about, Sadie," or words in substance to that effect?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that question and ask that the last question and answer be stricken for the reason that it is incompetent, leading, and suggestive, and calling for a conclusion of this witness, and hearsay.

A. No.

Q. Did you hear Sadie, in that conversation, say to Minnie, "You always swear that you had a Tommy now," or anything in substance to that effect? A. No.

By Mr. Allen: We move to strike the last question and answer for the reasons last stated.

Q. Did Sadie in this conversation tell you that Minnie didn't have any child named Tommy, but was merely claiming that she had such a child because she, Sadie, had suggested it to Minnie, or anything in substance to that effect?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that question for the reasons last stated.

A. No. On the contrary, she said Minnie had had a child named Tommy, and that she knew more about him than Minnie did and that she had seen him since Minnie had, a period of years, the period I don't remember, but she had known him for a number of years after Minnie had lost track of him.

Q. Did Minnie state in this conversation referred to, or make any statement contained in my last question in your presence and hearing?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the same reason.

A. The last question was——

Q. Read him the last question. A. No.

Q. Did Sadie ever make that statement to you at any time or place? A. No.

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the reasons last stated.

Q. Did she ever make any statement in substance to that effect at any time or place in your presence?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the reasons last stated.

A. No.

Q. In this conversation that you had with Minnie, did she tell you how old a child Tommy was the last time she had seen him?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as not proper cross examination, incompetent, and hearsay, and a self-serving declaration.

A. I don't remember exactly how old the child was. According to Minnie's statement when she, Minnie, had last seen him, but the child was only a baby when Minnie had last seen him, very young.

Q. Minnie was in the guardhouse there during the time that Sadie was out here, wasn't she?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent, leading, suggestive, and improper cross examination.

A. In the guard house, no.

Q. You had her under a guard, didn't you? A. Never.

Q. You say that you didn't have Minnie under guard to keep Sadie from getting to her? A. No.

Q. Did you have her under guard to keep anybody else from getting to her? A. No.

Q. Did you have her under guard for the purpose of influencing her in her action in this matter in any manner?

A. No.

Q. So far as you know then, Minnie was not in the guard house or under any guard during this transaction?

A. It would be impossible to put her in the guard house. That phase of it is ridiculous, and as far as I know she was never under any guard at any time.

Q. Did Sadie, ever in the presence of a man by the name of Bartlett, tell you that in substance that she had fabricated the theory that Minnie had a child named Thomas Atkins?

A. No.

Q. Captain, I think I asked you, but I want to be sure that it is in the record. You said that when Montgomery was here that the question whether or not Thomas Atkins was the father of Minnie—was the name of the father of Minnie, was never suggested in the conversations in your presence?

A. I don't believe I made that statement.

Q. What do you say about it then, now?

A. I don't remember it's being mentioned in any conversation when Mr. Montgomery was here.

Q. Can you tell us about how many detectives and would-be detectives, and self-claiming detectives have been to see you about this matter, and so far as you can tell us, who they claimed to represent?

A. I only remember one man who claimed to be a detective by profession, and that was a man I think his name was Koehler.

Q. Who did he claim to represent?

A. At that time he came to see me he claimed to be representing himself; that is, that——

Q. I will ask you that in this form: Did any representative of the boy or man named Henry Carter, one of the defendants in this case now claiming to be the Tommy Atkins, did any representative of him ever talk to you about this case before you took the witness stand?

> By Mr. German: I object, unless the witness knows knows whether any person who talked to him in reality represented Henry, or claimed to do so.

A. I don't remember anyone claiming to be a representative of Henry Carter talking to me about the case.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Captain MacNab, from the very inception of this claims, you have acted in the capacity at times of a friendly advisor and at others as a legal trustee of Minnie Atkins, haven't you? A. Yes.

Q. You brought Mr. Hanford in the case upon your own initiative, didn't you, feeling at the time a friendly interest in Minnie's welfare?

A. Yes, he was first called into the case by me and was—and the matter was given into his charge with Minnie Atkins' consent.

Q. And every stage and step of this case has been directed, so far as the operations of Minnie Atkins at the Fort are concerned, upon your advice, haven't they?

A. I don't know what you mean by the operations of Minnie Atkins.

Q. I mean the employment of counsel, the signing of all papers by Minnie Atkins?

A. All that she has signed in my presence have been with either my advice or consent or acquiescence. I don't know what other papers she has signed.

Q. You say you became convinced of Minnie's being the mother of Tommy Atkins who was allotted this land?

A. Yes.

Q. You had known Minnie for years before this thing came up—this controversy arose, had you not?

A. I knew her first in December of 1912, saw her first, have seen her around the Post off and on since.

Q. Where did you first see her?

A. I first saw her in Fort Harrison, Montana.

Q. And she came here with your regiment?

A. Came here with the regiment to which I belong.

Q. Captain, you never knew in your life, until Sadie James appeared on this scene that Minnie Atkins ever claimed to be the mother of Tommy Atkins, or ever claimed any interest in the lands in Oklahoma did you? A. No.

Q. But you became convinced during the stay of Sadie James here of the identity of Tommy Atkins and of the parentage of Tommy Atkins, didn't you?

A. There was no question brought up by anybody at that time as to the question as to whether there was a Tommy Atkins, of whom the Minnie Atkins who signed that roll in 1895 was the mother.

Q. Didn't you base your conclusion at that time upon the fact that Sadie James and Minnie Atkins said that Minnie was the mother of Thomas Atkins? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Captain, Minnie saw Sadie before you did, didn't she? A. I understood that she had seen her.

Q. Well, you were there in the room talking to Minnie the first time that you ever talked to her about this Tommy Atkins claim when Sadie came into the room, wasn't you?

A. I don't know that that was the first time that I had ever talked to her, it was certainly the first time I had ever talked to her about this case.

Q. It was the first time you had ever known of any claim—had ever known anything of the claim that Thomas Atkins existed, or that he was a child of Minnie, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. From the manner of their greeting, didn't you know that that was not the first meeting between Sadie James and Minnie Atkins?

A. As I stated before, I don't know of my own knowledge that she had ever seen Sadie before, but I understood from Minnie that she had.

Q. They knew each other there and spoke to each other when Sadie came there when you were present, didn't they?

A. Yes.

By Mr. Blakeney: I want to put into the record an objection that counsel is standing over the witness talking in a high tone of voice with some purpose of intimidating him, I feel, in justice to the witness and the court finally hearing the case, that that ought to be in the record.

By Mr. German: I desire the record to show that counsel's statement is erroneous, for the fact is that counsel is at least twelve feet from the witness and is talking in what is his ordinary conversational tone when he is examining a witness.

By the Examiner: The examiner here states to the witness that he will undertake to see that no witness here is intimidated by any attorney.

By Mr. Allen: I want the record to show the statement of the examiner, the examiner and table is between me and the witness.

By Mr. Blakeney: Counsel, in dictation of this objection to the Commissioner, talked in the tone of voice that was natural, and was in comparison in a whisper to the tone of voice that he was using in addressing the witness.

Q. Captain MacNab, you do know, as a matter of fact, that the person who put the suggestion that Thomas Atkins ever existed, that he was ever allotted, that he ever died, into the mind of Minnie Atkins, was Sadie James, don't you?

By Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is leading, argumentative, calls for a conclusion of the witness, and is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

By Mr. Blakeney: I insist that the witness be required to answer.

A. Read the question.

Q. Well, you may recall that question.

By Mr. Blakeney: I insist that it be answered.

By Mr. Hanford: I withdraw my objection.

By Mr. Allen: I withdraw the question.

A. I would like to answer that question.

Q. Until Sadie James came here, until she saw Minnie, you say that you had never heard of the Thomas Atkins claim?

A. Before I answer that, I would like to know if I have the privilege of answering that other question?

By Mr. Allen: No.

By Mr. Blakeney: You may make any statement into the record, the court may strike it out, but the court may not permit it to be read as evidence.

By Mr. Allen: Read the question I asked him.

By Mr. Hanford: Let him make his statement first.

By Mr. Blakeney: Any witness can make any statement that he desires.

By Mr. German: I have this suggestion: That if the witness insists upon answering the questions, you permit him to do so over our objection.

(Question read.)

A. The first time I ever heard of the claim of Minnie Atkins being the mother of Tommy Atkins was in that first interview, at which time, as I have stated before, I believe that Minnie had already seen Sadie James.

Q. Now, Captain MacNab, you didn't know at that time, did you, anything about the requirements of the laws of Oklahoma entitling a Creek Indian to an allotment of lands in the Creek Nation? A. No.

Q. You didn't know at that time whether it was material whether this child died at the age of one day or twenty years, did you, but you thought that the only question of death was fixing Minnie's right to inherit as against the living child, was that your impression? A. That was my impression.

Q. You did gather from what was said there that this child was dead, did you?

A. Yes, I gathered from what was said there that the child was dead.

By Mr. Hanford: I object to the question and move to strike the answer on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and does not involve—not involved in any of the issues of this case.

By Mr. Blakeney: I join with Minnie Atkins and move that that be stricken for the reasons obvious that the child was not dead, and the understanding does not make any difference.

Q. Did you ever have Minnie watched at all, at her request, or the request of anybody else, to guard her against the interviews of other people?

A. I never had Minnie watched at any time.

Q. Did you ever seek to protect her in any way at her request or at the request of anyone else?

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as indefinite. The testimony is that he was appointed trustee for that purpose, or accepted the trust for that purpose.

A. I never took any action at any time that didn't leave Minnie Atkins a perfectly free agent to see whoever she desired to see and without coming to me to see her.

Q. She stayed awhile at someone else's home didn't she to get away from people who were following her? A. Yes.

Q. That was upon your advice, was it?

A. That was at her own suggestion.

Q. But you concurred with her in the opinion that that was the proper thing to do, didn't you? A. I did.

Q. Where did she stay then?

A. She stayed at the house of Sergeant Everlynn.

Q. You say that Bettie Mann came to see you?

A. Yes, Bettie Mann came up there once, I think it was once.

Q. Where was Minnie staying at that time?

A. I don't remember.

Q. How long did she stay at Sergeant Everlynn's home?

A. I don't know just how long she stayed there. I didn't know when she moved back to her own house.

Q. When was it she went there with reference to the time that Sadie James was here?

A. Well, it was not very long after I had seen Sadie James at Minnie's house, not very long after this first came up, just how long I don't remember, possibly a week or something in that vicinity.

Q. But that was before Sadie left town, wasn't it?

A. I don't know when Sadie left town.

Q. But that was the reason she went there, to get away from Sadie, wasn't it?

A. I don't know, but it was to get—Minnie went there in order to get away from people who were annoying her, and I believe at the time that Sadie James was here, I am not sure, that is only a matter of belief.

Q. That occurred though, subsequent to the negotiations that you and Hanford and Long had had, that ultimately resulted in a lease being made to the Gem Oil Company?

A. Yes, but it was before any lease had been made or any arrangements of any kind that bound us to make a lease, or anything else, or any other deal with any one person.

Q. You had arranged at that time for Mr. Hanford to come to Oklahoma with Long? A. Yes.

Q. And to negotiate with the Page interest for the lease on the land? A. No.

Q. What did he go to Oklahoma for?

A. He went to Oklahoma to investigate the question of this land and to make the best bargain possible with the highest bidder for the lease.

Q. He went there as Long-Page's agent though, didn't he?

A. As far as I know Mr. Long went with him, but it was with the distinct understanding that he was under no obligation to deal with the Page interest or any other interest.

Q. But at that time there had been concluded the trustee—the executing of all papers making you the trustee of Minnie Atkins? A. Yes.

Q. You say Bettie talked to you some about this claim?

A. She came to the house once, I don't think she talked to me about the claim, as I remember it, the only thing that she asked me was about the trusteeship.

Q. Bettie was representing, as you understood at that time, the Page interest?

A. I didn't know who she was representing.

Q. You said the only question at that time, as you understood it, was the identity of Minnie? A. Yes.

Q. Don't you know at that time that Harvey and Charlie Harrison were claiming to be the owners of this allotment that Nancy Atkins claimed to be the mother Thomas Atkins, the owner of this allotment, and that litigation was waging in Oklahoma between these disputed claimants?

A. Why, I was given to understand that Charlie and Harvey had made some claim to it as being the heirs of Thomas.

Q. You understood Nancy had too, didn't you?

A. I understood that Nancy had, but I was informed that Nancy was an incompetent, that she was not mentally sound, and who had had a guardian appointed over her to take care of her.

Q. You had never heard the mental capacity of her guardian questioned had you? You understood she had leased it to oil interests who were waging the litigation?

A. No, I hadn't heard that. The claim that I had heard Charlie and Harvey made was on the ground that Minnie was dead and that they were heirs to the land.

Q. Miss Alice Robertson, you say, came to see you?

A. Yes.

Q. She went to your home and said that she wanted to see Minnie, didn't she? A. Yes.

Q. All of the conversation that she had with Minnie was in your presence, wasn't it? A. I don't know.

Q. Who else was present?

A. Mr. Hanford was there, and there was some other people there at lunch; this conversation occurred at lunch, there was some other officers of the regiment who took their meals in my quarters that were there at the time.

Q. She was not permitted to talk to Minnie alone, was she?

A. There was no objection to her talking to Minnie alone, I don't know whether she did or not. She came to my house and said she preferred to have her interview with Minnie in my presence.

Q. As she asked different questions, Captain MacNab, she was interrupted at times and Minnie was advised not to answer was she not, by either you or Mr. Hanford?

A. I never advised Minnie, and I don't remember of anybody else advising Minnie not to answer; as I remember it, she was given an absolute free hand with Minnie and there was not any endeavor to keep her from seeing Minnie either before that or afterwards, and she was not interfered with in any way.

Q. Minnie was not told that she must not ask this question or that question?

A. I don't remember her being interrupted at all.

Q. Minnie was not advised at any time in the conversation not to answer questions that were asked her by Miss Robertson?

A. I don't remember of her being interfered with at all.

Q. Miss Robertson told you at the time that her interests, and that her employment only involved the question of identifying Minnie? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And determining whether or not she was the mother of Thomas Atkins?

A. Well, I don't know that she stated whether she was the mother of Thomas Atkins, but it was taken for granted at that time that if she was the Minnie who was a member of the Creek Nation and the daughter of Thomas Atkins, she was the mother of Tommy. The question of whether she was the mother of Thomas Atkins was not brought up that I remember of.

By Mr. Allen: We move to strike the last part of the witness' answer as not responsive to the question, and as stating a conclusion of the witness.

Q. You are not able at this time, Captain, are you, to repeat in detail the conversation that occurred between Minnie Atkins and Sadie James, are you?

A. No, I am not able to repeat it in detail.

Q. She talked quite rapidly and excitedly, you say?

A. Yes.

Q. At that time, and the only thing that would have impressed itself upon your mind was the— would have been the statement that Sadie (Minnie) was the mother of Tommy and that Tommy was dead?

A. There was one other thing that impressed itself upon my mind, that she said that she was a representative of the Dawes Commission and that there was a Government man who was coming here to pay Minnie Two Thousand ($2,000.00) dollars for her claim, and I asked her what the Dawes Commission was and after she had explained it and I asked her how it was the Government was paying Minnie two thousand dollars for land that the Dawes Commission was apparently purchasing; then she, in a way, hedged, just what language she used I don't remember, but that is the only, besides what I have already repeated, that is the only thing that I remember of her conversation.

By the Examiner: Captain MacNab, I want to offer at this time an opportunity to you to make any statement into the record that you may desire.

A. I desire to hear that question read.

By Mr. Blakeney: Referring to the question as to one that was withdrawn, so as to make the record complete.

The Examiner: The question to which you refer is as follows: "Captain MacNab, you do know, as a matter of fact, that the person who put the suggestion, that Thomas Atkins ever existed, that he was ever allotted, that he ever died, into the mind of Minnie Atkins was Sadie James, don't you?" Is that the question you desired read?

A. That is the question. I wish to state in answer to that question which was withdrawn, that I knew no such thing, that the mere asking of that question is an insult and if asked out of court would be resented in the proper manner.

The Examiner: Is that all, Captain, that you desire to say?

A. That is all.

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. Hanford: Also the deposition of Mrs. Katherine Sisk McComb, commencing at page 173.

MRS. CATHERINE SISK McCOMB being called on behalf of the defendants, Folk and Hanford, and being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Will you state your name please?
A. Catherine Sisk McComb.

Q. You are the wife of Lieutenant McComb, of the United States Army? A. Yes.

Q. What are your husband's initials, please? A. J. G.

Q. Mrs. McComb, you are acquainted with Mrs. Folk, one of the defendants in this case, are you not? A. Yes.

Q. Did she tell you the facts about which this—her interest in this property arose, that is about her son or any son that she claimed to be hers? A. Yes.

Q. Mrs. McComb, did she ever tell you how many children she has had altogether? A. Yes.

Q. How many did she tell you?

By Mr. German: I object to that on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and a self-serving declaration and hearsay.

By Mr. Hanford: The relevancy of this question and the answer will be demonstrated in the course of the proceedings in this trial, the manner of taking testimony by depositions, and of the witnesses as they are found, require certain facts to be brought out in advance of the disclosure of their bearing.

A. Five.

Q. Do you remember the occasion when Minnie Folk signed a trust deed to Captain MacNab?

A. Do I remember the occasion?

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. State whether or not at that time you stated to those present that Minnie had told you that she was the mother of five children? A. You mean the first night?

Q. Yes? A. No.

Q. When was it?

A. When did she state that she was the mother of five children?

Q. No, when did you state to this person there in the room that she had told you that?

A. They were in the room that night from down town, you and Groton and Sandy and myself.

Q. Yes?

A. Well, I haven't stated to all of those people that she had as many as five children.

Q. But didn't you state here in the room that night that Minnie had told you that? Isn't that when you told me in the presence of all of those? A. I don't remember.

Q. When was it that Minnie told you that she had five children, with reference to the time when this case first came up?

A. I can't tell you when, Minnie has talked to me many times.

Q. Was it prior to the time that I was called into the case that she told you that or afterwards?

Q. Do you know how long after? A. No, I am not sure.

Q. Do you know how long? A. No, I am not sure.

Q. Will you state how long it was as near as you recall?

A. I don't have any memory as to how long ago it was, but we were up at Sam's that night.

Q. I mean how long after——

A. I don't know how long after it was that Minnie told me that she had five children, she told me things from time to time.

Q. Do you recall when Minnie first came to you and told you about this case? A. Yes.

Q. And told you about this child? A. Yes.

Q. You don't know how long after she told you that when she told you she had five children?

A. No, I don't know just how long.

Q. It was less than a year after though, was it not?

A. It was less than a year after.

Q. Less than a year after? A. Yes.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. You say Minnie worked for you, Mrs. McComb?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you tell us about when she worked for you?

A. Well, she never worked for me steadily, she came to help when at different times I dismissed servants, she has worked for me off and on for the last three years.

Q. For the last three years when you were without other assistance?

A. Yes, and sometimes she spent a longer time in the house than others, as she has always looked out for me and done my service.

Q. She has whenever you lost a servant you notified her and she always came? A. She always came?

Q. And procured you some other servant? A. Yes.

Q. She has been evidently talking with you, has she?

A. Yes.

Q. She ever tell you anything about her history during the time she was working for you?

A. She worked for me too after this started, she had never told me before.

Q. How long had she worked for you prior to the starting of this case? A. This started a year and a half ago.

Q. In June. Well, was this 1914?

A. I came here three years ago next month. Well, she worked for me almost since the time I came here at different times.

Q. About a year and a half?

A. I don't mean she worked steadily.

Q. I understand, during the period of a year and a half she worked occasionally for you? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to the commencing of this controversy, do you know why she came to you? A. Yes.

Q. Why?

A. Because I was ill and needed some one.

Q. I don't mean to work for you, why did she come to you to talk to you about her family affairs?

A. She first asked my husband and he told me.

Q. Asked your husband to render her some assistance?

A. Asked my husband to come down there.

Q. To come down and advise her?

A. No, not exactly to advise her.

Q. What did you understand that she wanted?

A. I understood that she wanted my husband to witness the signing of some paper.

Q. Merely to act as a witness? A. Yes.

Q. And your husband told you that he was going down to act as a witness? A. Yes, and I hoped——

Q. And what then?

A. I asked him to ask Captain MacNab, who had taken the army law course, and who was my good friend, to go with him.

Q. Do you know whether or not they went?

A. I know they went.

Q. They went? A. Yes.

Q. Then, how long after they went was it before you had this talk with Minnie?

A. It might have been the next day, it might have been that night. What talk that I mean, that I saw her?

Q. Yes, when you next saw Minnie?

A. Perhaps the next day.

Q. Where did you see her?

A. She came here or came to Captain MacNab's, I don't know which.

Q. Where does Captain MacNab live with reference to your home?

A. There is a double house next, and it is the next house.

Q. He lives in the next house to your home?

A. No, there is one set of quarters here and then the next house.

Q. Have you any idea of distances so you can tell us?

A. No.

Q. Two or three or four lots will you say, would you?

A. I really don't know.

Q. Now, if she came here, Captain MacNab came over and you had the conversation, whatever conversation you had with Minnie was in the presence of Captain MacNab?

A. Not necessarily, no. Perhaps I talked to Captain MacNab any time, I know I talked to him first after he came back with my husband.

Q. After he came home with your husband, did he stop here? A. He probably did.

Q. What is your recollection?

A. I don't know, because he is in the habit of coming here every day.

Q. You don't know whether he stopped that time or not?

A. No, I can't say.

Q. But your recollection is that you did talk to Captain MacNab before you saw Minnie?

A. I am not sure about that but I think I talked to him first.

Q. Then you saw Minnie soon after and you don't know whether it was in your home or Captain MacNab's residence?

A. I can't ask you any questions, may I?

Q. I just want your best recollection.

A. I think I saw Captain MacNab before I saw him.

Q. Now, after thinking it over, why do you think you first saw Minnie after your husband went down to witness the transaction?

A. I can't be sure, but I think I first saw her first at Sandy MacNab's.

Q. What was said by any of the parties there in reference to the controversy about the land?

A. Why, I don't remember, I was interested in other things.

Q. Do you recall any mention of Minnie's affairs there?

A. Yes, I know we talked it over, but I was interested in other things and only the things they asked me that I paid much attention to.

Q. The things—— A. Only the things.

Q. Only when a matter was referred to you, you mean?

A. Yes.

Q. You participated in the conversation?

A. Yes, other times I would be reading.

Q. Do you remember what particular matter, if any, was referred to you? A. It was all talked over with me.

Q. What do you recall now that was talked over in which you took a part?

A. Well, there was so much, I don't remember.

Q. I will call your attention to it. Did you make any suggestions about appointing a trustee there? A. I did.

Q. Who did you recommend? A. Captain MacNab.

Q. Did you advise Minnie in reference to that matter?

A. I did.

Q. I will ask you to state if it was agreed there that Captain MacNab would act? A. Yes, it was agreed.

Q. Who was there now during this conversation?

A. Well, I don't understand. I asked that Captain MacNab be brought into it first.

Q. You made that suggestion first? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Who was present at that time?

A. My husband and my mother.

Q. And who else?

A. And myself, when my husband came and told me about this.

Q. Wasn't Mr. Hanford present? A. No.

Q. Mr. Hanford wasn't present? A. No.

Q. You had made the suggestion to Captain MacNab before Mr. Hanford had ever—— A. Yes.

Q. Talked to you about the case?

A. Yes, before I saw Mr. Hanford.

Q. Now, just to feel that you are not mistaken, you are sure are you that Mr. Hanford and Captain MacNab didn't walk up together to Mr. MacNab's headquarters, or come up to your residence together, and that Minnie came up shortly afterwards?

By Mr. Blakeney: I withdraw the question.

A. What does trusteeship mean?

Q. The conversation you refer to, you were merely advising Minnie to act on Captain MacNab's advice? A. Yes.

Q. You didn't advise any legal proceeding? A. No.

Q. Or have any legal trustee appointed? A. Oh, no.

Q. Minnie is a married woman, isn't she?

A. I don't know.

Q. She assumes to be? A. Yes.

Q. She lives with a man that she claims to be her husband, does she? A. Yes.

Q. She associates with white people? A. She does.

Q. Are there any negro families about the Post?

A. None that I know of.

Q. You never knew of Minnie associating with negroes?

A. I never did.

Q. She has been reputed to some extent an Indian?

A. She has always been called "Indian Minnie" in the regiment.

Q. Indian Minnie at the regiment? A. Yes.

Q. I will ask you, Mrs. McComb, if there prevailed a bias or a raised prejudice among the soldiers that you have known about the camp against the man or woman who would associate—a white man or white woman who would associate with negroes?

By Mr. Hanford: The defendants, Hanford and Folk, object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and calls for a conclusion of the witness.

By Mr. Blakeney: It is improper cross examination. I make the witness my own to ask the question.

By Mr. Hanford: The further objection that it presupposes that the witness knows the custom of soldiers and is acquainted with soldiers that hasn't been stated.

A. Well, as far as I know in this Regiment, among the soldiers and soldiers' wives there would prevail a feeling against the person who is associated with negroes.

Q. How long have you been married?

A. I will have been married four years next April.

Q. Four years? A. Yes.

Q. During that time, have you lived with your husband at the Post?

A. Yes, and before that I lived near Army Posts.

Q. You have been acquainted with a large number of officers and privates connected with the United States Army?

A. Yes.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mrs. McComb, at the time that Minnie Atkins first talked with you about this claim, was there a negro woman with her by the name of Sadie James? A. No.

Q. Did you know or hear of Sadie being here at that time?

A. I heard of her, I didn't see her, I didn't know her.

Q. Did you see Sadie any of the time while she was here?

A. No.

Q. Did Minnie tell you about Sadie? A. Yes.

Q. And that Sadie had told her about this allotment and about this child?

A. I don't remember what Minnie said that Sadie told her.

Q. You understood that Minnie had brought glad tidings to her didn't you—that Sadie had? A. Yes, I——

By Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground it is irrelevant, incompetent, and immaterial and hearsay, and move to strike the answer.

Q. It was your understanding that Sadie brought the information to Minnie from what Minnie said to you?

A. No, not necessarily, I haven't any idea how the message came.

Q. What did you hear about Sadie?

A. I heard a number of things, most of them were amusing incidents.

Q. But Sadie was here, wasn't she?

A. I understood that she was here.

Q. Minnie told you that? A. Yes.

Q. And Minnie, you say, sometime within a year, as you remember now, after that occurred, Minnie told you that she was the mother of five children?

A. I don't say that it was within a year.

Q. It might have been longer than that?

A. It might have been longer.

Q. Within what time after you got that information was it that you told Mr. Hanford? A. That what?

Q. How long after Minnie told you about having five children that you told Mr. Hanford?

A. I don't know, I don't know that I told Mr. Hanford that Minnie had five children.

Q. Did you tell Captain MacNab, the trustee of Minnie?

A. I didn't say anything about Minnie, we discussed all the things that came up, all of us talked them over, I made no statement for——

Q. You never told Mr. Hanford that Minnie had five children?

A. I didn't say to Mr. Hanford that she had five children, no.

Q. Did you ever tell Mr. Hanford that Minnie said she had had five children? A. I don't know, I might have.

Q. Do you have any idea as to about when you told Mr. Hanford what Minnie had said with reference to the time that Minnie told you about having five children?

A. I never talked about the legal matter of this business to Mr. Hanford.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mrs. McComb, do you remember how it was that Minnie came to tell you that she had five children, did you ask her how many she had, or did she just volunteer the information?

A. I undoubtedly asked her.

Q. Do you remember the occasion where she was and where you were? A. No.

Q. Have you talked to Minnie to any great extent about the affairs in this case since the time when it first came up?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you fix the time by taxing your memory a little bit, so as to fix the time that she told you that, a little more definitely than less than six months?

A. I haven't been so interested and I have had so many things to take my time, and I have been in a hospital twice, and I don't remember. I have been thinking about other things.

Q. Well, isn't it a fact, Mrs. McComb, that she told you that within a day or two after you first heard about this matter?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent and leading and suggestive and improper redirect examination.

A. No.

(Witness dismissed.)

Thereupon, the same witness, Mrs. McCOMB, being recalled on request of Mr. Hanford, further testified as follows:

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mrs. McComb, I have just discussed this matter with you after the closing of your testimony and refreshed your memory. Can you state now, on being recalled for further direct examination, about when it was that Minnie told you that she had five children?

A. Directly after this had come up.

Q. But have you any recollection now as to how soon after she told you that that you told me? A. Yes.

Q. How long after?

A. Well, it might have been the same day.

Recross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Did she explain to you whether they were born, in what lots or otherwise?

A. She didn't explain in words no, she did later.

Q. Later? A. Yes.

Q. What do you mean?

A. Minnie has never absolutely told me she was married to anybody but Harry Folk, I presumed that she was.

Q. Did you inquire as to how often she had been married?

A. Why, I have gossipped about it as everybody did.

Q. With her? A. No.

Q. Did you have any conversations with her now?

A. No, I never asked her.

Q. Did she tell you who was the father of her son Tommy? A. She did not.

Q. Did she give you any information regarding the life birth—the life or death, if he died, of Tommy Atkins?

A. Did she what?

Q. Did Minnie, during any of the conversations she had with you, give you any history, or did she attempt to detail any of the incidents of the life or birth of Tommy Atkins?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she tell you where he was born? A. Yes.

Q. When did she tell you that? A. I don't know.

Q. In the conversations, did she tell you that in the conversation in which she told you that she had five children?

A. Did she tell me where he was born?

Q. Yes?

A. She probably did, I talked it over with Minnie many, many times.

Q. You talked it over with Minnie many times? A. Yes.

Q. When Minnie told you she had had five children, you probably asked her how many she had? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ask her where they were born? A. No.

Q. Did you ask her where they were? A. At that time?

Q. Yes?

A. I don't know, I know where the two sons are.

Q. You had learned previous to that that she had two sons?

A. Until this thing came up, I didn't know that she had any children.

Q. You didn't? A. No.

Q. You then learned that she had two that she admitted to be her children living?

A. No, she said she had had five children.

Q. Had had five, tell you how many were living?

A. She said Tommy was dead.

Q. She told you then that Tommy was dead? A. Yes.

Q. What did she tell you about the others?

A. Well, she told me that two boys, whose photographs I had seen, were down there in Oklahoma.

Q. Did you ask her why she had abandoned those boys? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ask her where Tommy had died? A. Yes.

Q. Where did she say Tommy died?

A. I am not sure that she told me exactly where Tommy died.

Q. To refresh your memory, did she not tell you that when Tommy was practically an infant that she had placed Tommy in the custody of some other person? A. Yes.

Q. And had abandoned Tommy?

A. She didn't say that she had abandoned him, she said she had helped towards his support as much as she could.

Q. Did she tell you what town that was in?

A. I think she said it was in Leavenworth.

Q. Didn't she also tell you she finally left——

A. Yes, she told me that she left Tommy with some one else.

Q. And left Tommy there when she left Leavenworth?

A. Yes.

By Mr. German: Let me have the same objection.

By Mr. Blakeney: I consent that you may have any objection. Since we are in the home you may introduce any objection, and the same for me.

By Mr. German: Yes.

Q. You recall that she told you that she left and went to Fort Logan, near Denver, and left Tommy with an old negro woman at Leavenworth, Kansas?

A. I recall that she said she left Tommy with the old negro woman, I don't recall that she told me she went to Fort Logan.

Q. You don't recall that she told you where she went to?

A. She did tell me I think, and I have forgotten.

Q. Did she tell you when Tommy had died?

A. No, but I assumed that it had been many many years ago.

Q. You didn't assume from anything she told you, but from her indifference toward the child?

A. No, I never considered Minnie indifferent toward the child.

Q. You did not? A. No.

Q. She had told you that she had taken care of the child after she had left it with this old negro woman, didn't she?

A. That she had to go, and contributed as much as she could toward the support of the child.

Q. Did she tell you she did that up to the death of the child?

A. No she didn't do it up to the death of the child.

Q. How long did she do that, did she tell you?

A. Minnie didn't tell me.

Q. Minnie didn't tell you that she had learned that the child had been given to a negro family by the old negro woman with whom she left it and that she never heard of the child since she left Fort Logan? A. No.

Q. She never told you anything about the incident or transaction of that child of that kind?

A. Yes, she told me something, but I have forgotten, I wasn't much interested.

Q. Did she tell you in any of your conversations that the negro woman with whom she left the child had made any disposition of the child? A. I don't remember.

Q. Did she explain to you why she had left it with a negro woman instead of a white woman?

A. She told me why, I think because this was a good old woman and was good to the child, and I believe she said that she herself was doing day work then.

Q. She told you that?

A. I think that was the reason I assumed she left the child with the negro.

Q. But I am trying to get Minnie's statement, rather than the conclusions you drew from her statements, Mrs. McComb? A. I can't give Minnie's exact statements.

Q. I know, but the substance, did she tell you that it was a good old negro woman? A. I think she did.

Q. And was good to her child? A. I think so.

Q. Did she tell you what the old negro woman was doing?

A. No, she did not.

Q. She did not? A. No.

Q. She never said anything to you about the means of support that the old negro woman had?

A. She might have told me the old negro woman worked, but she never told me anything about her means of support that would leave me to believe that it was not a beautiful means, if that is what you mean?

Q. She never told you that she was engaged in keeping a rooming house exclusively for girls? A. Never did.

Q. During her young life she was engaged in doing that?

A. Minnie never told me that.

Recross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mrs. McComb, you talked to Minnie a good many times during a year and a half about this case? A. Yes.

Q. Since the time that Sadie James was here? A. Yes.

Q. And you don't know at which one of those times that she told you about the child being left with a negro woman in Leavenworth, do you? A. No.

Q. It might have been recently, or it might have been sometime ago?

A. It was undoubtedly sometime ago, but she has told me many times.

Q. She didn't tell you that at the time she told you she had five children? A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, on direct examination and cross and re-direct examination, you testified positively that Minnie did not tell you until a long time after the time that Sadie was here, and fixed the time as within a year or probably longer, that she had had five children. After the adjournment, Mr. Hanford, is it a fact that Mr. Hanford stated to you in substance this: "I will tell you the truth about it; Minnie told you about those five children immediately after the deed of trust was signed and you told me about it that night," and that you then said· "Yes, I remember that is true?"

A. I can't say that he said it in exactly that words, but he said that to me.

Q. Then, you remembered that it was on that occasion that Minnie told you, and you told Mr. Hanford? A. Yes.

Q. Where did Minnie tell you that Tommy was born?

A. Leavenworth.

Q. Did she tell you that he was born in the Sister's Hospital, Catholic Hospital? A. I don't remember.

Q. Did she tell you that at the time he was born that she was working for Lieutenant Stafford? A. I don't remember.

Q. She told you that she was working at the Post when Tommy was born at Leavenworth, didn't she? A. No.

Q. Where did she tell she was?

A. She didn't tell me, I never asked Minnie the harrowing details of any of this.

Q. She told you that he was born at Leavenworth, but didn't tell you where, you say?

A. I don't think she told me where.

Q. Didn't tell you that he was born in the Sisters Hospital, to refresh your memory, see if that is not true?

A. I don't remember.

Q. All that she ever told you about it, you have told Mr. Hanford at different times, haven't you? A. No.

Q. Or Captain MacNab? A. No.

Q. You say you are a very good friend of Captain MacNab, and that he is your neighbor? A. Yes.

Q. And how long have you known him?

A. Three years since we came here.

Q. And Mr. Hanford?

A. I have known him—I don't know—since we have been here, perhaps at the beginning of this case, I don't remember.

Q. And Minnie has talked with you off and on during the last year and a half? A. Yes.

Q. But you don't remember when during that time that it was that she has told you any of the things that you have testified to? A. No.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mrs. McComb, when I spoke to you after the adjournment, isn't it a fact that I didn't mention the time that Minnie told you that she had five children with respect to the deed of trust, but that I merely stated to you, or started to state to you that it was when Minnie first told you about Thomas and you questioned her and she said something about her children, about abandoning then, and that then it refreshed your memory and at that time you recalled and said: "Oh, yes," and that I further said that you said but Minnie——

A. You said, "children, how many?"

Q. Did she have, and she said five. Isn't it a fact that the mere suggestion refreshed your recollection before I made any statement to you of the facts?

By Mr. Allen: Of course we object to that as leading and suggestive.

By Mr. Hanford: I am cross examining on your direct.

Q. Aren't those the facts, Mrs. McComb?
A. I will have to have that read to me.
Q. Mrs. McComb, you have not answered that question, have you?

By Mr. Allen: Just let her say what was said.

Q. Mrs. McComb, is your testimony as to the time when Minnie told you that she had five children influenced in the least by my refreshing your memory in conversation?
A. Yes, by your refreshing my memory.
Q. Now you mean to say, Mrs. McComb, by saying that your testimony was influenced, that you are in any way controlled by my statements to you?
A. I most distinctly am not controlled by your statements in any way.
Q. Is there any intention on your part to lend yourself to any purpose that might be served by your testimony given here this afternoon?
A. All I want to do is to tell the truth about what I remember, and if there was any purpose I would remember more clearly the dates, and it would have impressed itself more vividly upon my mind, the conversations at different times.
Q. Is there desire on your part to testify in any way that I might wish in regard to the truth?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that.

By Mr. Hanford: What did you put that in the record for. It was a beastly thing to do.

A. I suppose I cannot refuse to have any of this testimony appear at all, can I?

By Mr. Blakeney: The conversation that Mr. Hanford had with you was in the presence of Judge Allen, Mr. Hanford, Mr. German and the officer taking the evidence, wasn't it?

A. Yes.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, EUGENOLA HUNT, being produced as a witness on behalf of the witness Minnie Atkins, et al., being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. What is your name? A. Eugenola Hunt.

Q. Where do you live? A. Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. Stenographer for Dennis Jones.

Q. You are employed by him in his law office? A. I am.

Q. How long have you worked for Dennis Jones?

A. About eight or nine years.

Q. Were you employed by him in the spring of 1914?

A. I was.

Q. In March, and April, and May? A. I was.

Q. Were you present in his office in the spring of 1914 when Sadie James came to see him about some matters?

A. I was.

Q. Did you hear what was said between Dennis Jones and Sadie James? A. I did.

Q. I will ask you if you ever heard any conversation between Sadie James and Dennis Jones in regard to framing up a Thomas Atkins or about procuring proof of a Thomas Atkins to be imposed upon anybody? A. I did not.

Mr. Allen: We object.

The Court: Just a minute.

Mr. Allen: We object if the Court please, let her give the conversation if she heard one there.

The Court: I believe the best way is for this witness to testify what the conversation was as far as she remembers.

Q. Tell as near as you can what took place the first time that Sadie James came there.

A. Sadie James asked Mr. Jones and Mr. Smith about a boy by the name of Tommy Atkins being born at Granny Letcher's house, and many of the old residents there; asked them did they know the old residents there, and the location of different people that could remember when Granny Letcher lived on the street, where Granny Letcher was born, and she said she wanted to get these old people because she wanted to prove when Tommy was born, and all about him being born at Granny Letcher's house; that was about all. The first time she came there, she was hunting the old residents who lived around Granny's and had gone to Granny's.

Q. Was anybody with her that first time?

A. I think she came by herself the first time.

Q. And the next time, who did she come with?

A. She was with Betty Mann.

Q. What took place at that time?

A. She asked about Tommy Atkins—one time—let me see—no, that time she brought Betty Mann up when she didn't say anything about the Tommy Atkins case. She wanted Uncle Dennis—that is Mr. Jones—to sign some papers and he told her no he wouldn't sign those papers because they were made out in Jackson County, Missouri, and he was a notary in Leavenworth County, Kansas, and he wouldn't sign those papers; and she said if you was a negro lawyer down in Oklahoma, you would starve to death.

Q. Did Sadie James ever come back to Dennis Jones' office in regard to this matter?

A. Yes, Sadie James has been to the office many a time.

Q. How many times did she come about this time?

A. Well, I can't say altogether how many times because I never kept it in mind how many times; lots of times when I would be there by myself and she would run up and she would talk to me, and she has said to me many a time, your uncle Dennis is just a fool, that he could make money if he would, but she said I can't do anything with that old man.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. You say that Sadie, you think, first came up to the office by herself? A. Yes, I think she did.

Q. At that time she wanted Dennis to put his—to acknowledge a deed that had been signed somewhere else?

A. No, I don't know—I didn't say that.

Q. But there was some crooked transaction she was trying to get——

A. I didn't say that the first time she came there, no, I said the time that she brought Betty Mann there.

Q. Before this deed transaction she had talked to Dennis about this—— A. Tommy Atkins?

Q. Tommy Atkins? A. Yes.

Q. You were in the room all the time?

A. I certainly was.

Q. You don't remember much about the conversations do you?

A. I certainly do, I was right there listening at it.

Q. Sadie said that she wanted to prove that Tommy Atkins was born at Granny's?

A. She wanted to find the old residents there who had been around Granny's so that she would have easy proof of it.

Q. The thing that she wanted to prove was that Tommy Atkins was born at Granny's?

A. No, she wanted people around there that visited at Granny Letcher's and she knew that these old residents there would know all the facts.

Q. Where did she want to have the child born at?

A. The child was born at Granny's and she wanted to find the old people there.

Q. You don't know whether the child was born at Granny's or not?

A. No, I didn't—I don't, because I am not that old.

Q. You went down and talked to Eliza Lavallie?

A. No, I didn't talk to Eliza Lavallie, I talked to the Paire woman.

Q. You told her there was some money in it?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. You are a neice of Dennis?

A. I am by marriage.

Q. And you are a daughter of Bill Hunt?

A. No, I am a daughter of James Hunt.

Q. James Hunt. He has been working for Mr. Page, hasn't he?

A. I don't know whether he has or not been working for Mr. Page any more than you tried to get him to work for you.

Q. He has been working for Mr. Page?

A. You tried to get him to work for you, too.

The Court: Never mind; answer the question.

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever see me before today? A. I have.

Q. Where? A. Leavenworth.

Q. Where at? A. On the street.

Q. Did you ever talk to me? A. No, I haven't.

Q. Don't you know whether your father has been working for Mr. Page or not? A. If I had I would say it yes.

Q. Then you say later Betty Mann and Sadie came back there? A. They did.

Q. And that they had a conversation then about this child being born at Granny Letcher's? A. I didn't say that.

Q. What did they talk about?

A. I said that she wanted Uncle Dennis, Mr. Jones, to sign a paper.

Q. Betty did? A. I said that.

Q. Do you know what the paper was?

A. I said a document, I don't know what it contained.

Q. Well, you were there, weren't you?

A. I certainly was, but I didn't take the paper and read it.

Q. Those were the only two times Sadie was up there?

A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. How many times was she up there?

A. Many times, I don't know how many.

Q. How many times was Mrs. Mann up there?

A. Twice to my knowledge that I can remember now.

Q. How many times has Long been up there?

A. I don't know.

Q. He makes that office his headquarters in Leavenworth, didn't he?

A. He doesn't any more than the rest of the officers, I don't guess.

Q. Did you see anybody else up there at the time that Mrs. Mann and Sadie were up there?

A. I think if I am not mistaken that Rube Smith was in the office at the time; I am not sure, I won't say for sure.

Q. Well, Mr. Swift and Mr. Porter were there, too, weren't they? A. Not at the time, this first time I speak of, no.

Q. Well, they were there some other time, weren't they?

A. I don't know what their names were, two men.

Q. White men?

A. Yes, I guess they were white, or Indians—I don't know what.

Q. Now, from the time that Sadie went there the first time, did you ever hear her talk to Dennis about this Tommy Atkins and Granny Letcher until you last saw her at Dennis' office? How long a period of time was it, that she kept coming there?

A. Well, she came there before she talked about the Thomas Atkins matter and she came there, well, not such a long time afterwards because she seen that she couldn't handle Uncle Dennis the way that she wanted to and she quit coming and we didn't hear or see any more of her until after we received a card from her out in Washington, I think it was; in one of the cards she mentioned that we would be surprised to know that she was out there. She came several times afterwards and after she found out she couldn't handle him to suit herself she quit coming.

Q. She was continuously trying to handle Dennis wasn't she? A. No, she wasn't continuously trying to handle him.

Q. That is what she was doing up there, trying to handle Dennis?

A. No, not at the first, she came to see about the old people in the neighborhood where Tommy Atkins was born.

Q. She tried to get him to establish that?

A. She knew he had been around there all those years.

Q. What was she trying to handle Dennis about?

A. Toward the last I told you, when she had been west and came back, she had changed then to another side—I don't know whether it was your side or another side; she changed and wanted him to do crooked work.

Q. She hadn't handled him up to that time?

A. She couldn't. She only used him to get honest information.

Q. You know this Thomas Atkins, do you? Is——

A. No, I don't know anything about I because I wasn't born.

Q. What did you say that for?

A. Say what? I wasn't born.

Q. Tell me how many times she came there up to the time that she went west on that Seattle trip?

A. She came there in the spring and she went west in August, I think, when we received the letter.

Q. During that time from early spring to August she was frequently in Dennis' office?

A. No, she wasn't frequently, because she was down here in Oklahoma.

Q. When she would be in Leavenworth, she would come in Dennis' office?

A. Not frequently, she would come by, yes.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, GRANT FOREMAN, a witness produced on behalf of the defendant Minnie Atkins, et al., being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Beall.

Q. What is your name? A. Grant Foreman.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Foreman? A. Muskogee.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Attorney at law.

Q. How long have you been engaged in the practice of law in Muskogee? A. Since 1903.

Q. Who were you associated with in the practice of law in Muskogee in 1903-4-5? A. Judge John R. Thomas.

Q. Where were your offices?

A. At that time we were in the Turner Building.

Q. Do you know—I will ask you first is John R. Thomas living? A. He is dead.

Q. Did you know Pleasant Porter? A. I did.

Q. What official position did he occupy in 1903-4-5?

A. He was chief of the Creeks, Principal Chief of the Creek Nation.

Q. Is he living? A. He is dead, too.

Q. Do you know—did you know John Adams?

A. I knew him you?

Q. What official position did he occupy in 1903-4-5?

A. I believe his position was called chief clerk to the Principal Chief.

Q. Is he living? A. No, he is dead, too.

Q. Where was the offices of the Principal Chief of the Creek Nation, in 1903-4-5?

A. It was in the Turner Building.

Q. Where was the offices located with reference to the offices of your firm Thomas & Foreman? A. Next door to us.

Q. What was the relationship existing between your firm and Pleasant Porter and John Adams?

Q. Why, we were all very good friends.

Q. Did members of your firm ever have access to the records in the office of the Principal Chief of the Creek Nation during those years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I wish you would state to the Court, Mr. Foreman, the interchange of visits between the members of your firm and the Principal Chief and the clerks during those years.

A. Judge Thomas and I frequently were in the Chief's office and the Chief and Mr. Adams were often in our office; we had occasion to go into the Chief's office a good many times to examine his records for information concerning citizenship cases in which we were interested.

Q. In 1903-4-5 did the firm of Thomas and Foreman represent any members who were applicants for enrollment before the Dawes Commission?

A. Yes, we represented several.

Q. Was your firm was the attorneys for Chaney Trent and the members of her family? A. We were, yes.

Q. Who was Chaney Trent?

A. Chaney Trent was a woman who had been enrolled on the Creek Tribal Roll and transferred, and the Chief and the Dawes Commission questioned her right to enrollment and she was only enrolled after prolonged litigation.

Q. Do you know the name of her father?

A. Her father's name was Dick Atkins.

Q. Did you know the name of the father of Dick Atkins?

A. His father was reputed to be Thomas Atkins.

Q. Did you know of any other Thomas Atkins connected with any citizenship or enrollment case that the firm of Thomas & Foreman ever represented?

A. No, I don't recall any now.

Q. You stated the right to enrollment of Chaney Trent and the other members of his family was contested?

A. It was, yes.

Q. Was there a number of hearings before the Dawes Commission in that case?

A. Yes, there were several as I remember; I didn't take part in them.

Mr. German: Your Honor, we don't see the materiality of any of this and we desire to enter objections to all of it.

The Court: Alright; the objection is overruled; I am assuming counsel conceives it to be material and I am expecting it to develop.

Mr. German: Exception.

Q. The taking of testimony in that case occupied a number of years, didn't it, Mr. Foreman?

A. I think so, I didn't take part in the conduct of that case very much; Judge Thomas looked after it mostly.

Q. I place before you page 16 of the index and record of delivery of deeds of the allotted land in the Creek Nation, photographic copy of which is in evidence as Government's Exhibit A-16, and call your attention to the line where appears the entry Atkins, Thomas; notation H-13662, A-13663, under the column headed deed number, and I read a notation appearing opposite that name Thomas Atkins: "Hold for investigation; said to have died in 1878; is relative of Chaney Trent; reported by Judge J. R. Thomas." Do you know anything in reference to the notation that is placed upon that record?

A. I don't know a thing about it except what I stated, that we represented Chaney Trent.

Q. Did the record in the Chaney Trent case show that Thomas Atkins' grandfather Chaney Trent died in 1878?

A. As I remember the testimony it seems to me that that testimony showed that he died in the seventies sometime, but I am not sure about the year.

Q. Did the firm of Thomas & Foreman in 1903, '4 and '5 ever represent as an applicant for enrollment one Thomas Atkins, a Euchee Indian, who was born about 1885?

Mr. German: We object to that as incompetent, irrelvant, and immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. German: Exception.

A. I don't remember any such case.

Q. The only Thomas Atkins that your firm ever represented or had any knowledge of in reference to the enrollment cases that you had pending before the Dawes Commission was the grand father of Chaney Trent who died in 1878, is that correct? A. That is the only one I remember.

Q. Mr. Foreman can you identify the handwriting on this record? A. I don't think I can, no.

Mr. Beall: That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. You became very familiar with the family history of Dick Atkins, to whom you have referred?

A. Why, yes, I was familiar with it. It has been a good while. I am not so familiar now as I was at one time.

Q. You learned of the fact that Chaney Trent was the child of Dick Atkins? A. Yes, that is my recollection.

Q. And that Dick Atkins was reputed to be the son of Thomas Atkins and Mary Jane Atkins who died in the seventies?

A. That is the way I remember the testimony in the case, I don't recall about the father and mother.

Q. Didn't you also learn of the fact that there was also a Thomas Atkins, a son of Dick Atkins, the brother or a half brother of Chaney Trent?

A. It seems to me there was a Thomas Atkins, another Thomas Atkins who was said to be a son of Dick Atkins.

Q. Yes, who was born probably in 1885?

A. Well, I don't remember about that.

Q. Now, Dick Atkins was the reputed brother or half brother of Minnie Atkins and Nancy Atkins? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, you learned of Nancy Atkins in the course of that case? A. I don't recall in that connection.

Q. Then, Thomas Atkins and Mary Jane Atkins, the reputed parents of Dick Atkins were the parents of Nancy Atkins, you understood that? A. No, I don't recall that.

Q. Now, this Thomas Atkins, the son of Dick Atkins, didn't you attempt—didn't your firm attempt to obtain enrollment for him?

A. I think we did, Thomas Atkins as the son of Nat Atkins, his son.

Q. Thomas Atkins and Nat Atkins his son? A. Yes.

Q. You mean Nat, the son of Richard?

A. No, Thomas Atkins.

Q. Thomas was just a boy who died when he was about twelve years old and the question as to getting Dick Atkins on the roll was whether or not Thomas lived April 1, 1899?

A. No.

Q. Did you handle the case where he was denied on the ground that he died too soon? A. I don't remember.

Q. What tribal town or band was Dick Atkins a member of?

A. I don't remember that.

Q. It wasn't Euchee?

A. I don't recall. I haven't refreshed my memory about this whole case.

Q. What place in the Indian Territory did this Dick Atkins family live?

A. My recollection is that Chaney Trent was born in Missouri where Dick Atkins had removed from Indian Territory, but I don't recall now where he went from.

Q. Well, didn't he live up north of Wagoner when they were living in Indian Territory?

A. Well, I think quite likely, that is where Chaney Trent lives now.

Q. Didn't you learn in that litigation she had lived in that country practically all the time since she came to Indian Territory, since about 1890? A. I think that is true.

Q. Mr. Foreman, you say Judge Thomas is dead, when did he die? A. He died the 19th of January, 1914.

Q. When, with reference to 1905 was it that your office and the Chief of the Creek Office were separated, I mean became—— When did you move away from near his office or when did he move away from near your office?

A. I don't remember the year, I think it was after 1905, but I am not certain.

Q. Was it very long after?

A. I don't recall now just what year.

Q. Do you remember 1907, when Statehood came, the Creek Chief was officing in the Metropolitan Building, wasn't he?

A. I didn't think he moved in there that soon, possibly he did.

Q. Did he move in there shortly after?

A. Well, I don't know. I don't recall the year.

Q. What time in the year did Judge Thomas die?

A. January 19th.

Q. January 19th. Do you recognize any of this handwriting on these entries? Do you recognize any of it as John Adams? A. No, I am unable to identify it.

Q. Do you recognize the entry "Return to D Commission, right to citizenship pending?"

A. I suppose that is John Adams, because he generally made those entries there, but I don't know.

Q. When did Mr. Adams die, about when?

A. I think he died after P. Porter died, I think five, six, or seven years ago.

Q. Well, didn't Chief Porter die about 1908 or 1909?

A. I think quite likely about that time.

Q. And about how long after that was it until John Adams died?

A. Well, I don't know exactly. He survived him a few years I think.

Q. It has been more than—— It wasn't later than 1910 when John Adams died was it?

A. I don't know, it might have been.

Q. Well, it was along there somewhere? A. Yes, sir.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Foreman, when you were next to the Chief Office there—— Now, these red letter notations here, did you see the Chief in his office and his people making notations from time to time in this book?

A. I have seen Mr. Adams make notations.

Q. In Red Ink and black ink too? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From time to time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, this notation "Held for investigation, said to have died in '78, is relative of Chaney Trent, reported by Judge John R. Thomas," what date is that put on there—"5/10/05 messenger. Rights to enrollment pending." Now, this Chaney Trent that you people represented her matter was in litigation at that time was it, in 1905?

A. I am not sure, of course the records will show.

Q. Can't you tell when you concluded your matter up at Washington City, did you finally wind up that litigation?

A. I am unable to state.

Q. Didn't you have a record, Mr. Beall, in that matter? You did prosecute that matter to a final determination before the Secretary, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Some years after this? A. Yes.

Q. And succeeded in getting Chaney Trent on the roll?

A. Yes, got her on the roll.

Mr. Stuart: It may be admitted that the letter to E. B. Miller referred to on the census card was written as of the same date that this appears on here.

Mr. Beall: The day before I believe.

Mr. German: Some letters the day before and some the day after.

The Court: Well, it was about that time.

Mr. Stuart: About that time.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Now, Mr. Foreman, you don't mean to try to convey the idea to the Court that these entries were made with reference to citizenship pending, referring to Chaney Trent?

A. I am not expressing any opinion about that, Mr. German.

Q. Well, you know they don't, don't you?

A. I don't know.

Q. They are talking about Thomas' citizenship pending, that is a fact, isn't it?

A. I don't know; I didn't see that notation made.

Q. It is talking about the Thomas Atkins patent right there? A. Apparently.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. One thing I wanted to call your attention to, Mr. Foreman: You notice that these red notations are all in red printing instead of red writing, do you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that the way that Mr. Adams generally entered those things?

A. Well, I remember that I have seen him enter those things in printing.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Similarly the black ink notation is also in printing?

A. Yes, sir.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, CHARLES PAGE was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins, et al., and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. What is your name? A. Charles Page.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Page?

A. Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Q. How long have you lived in this country?

A. Around thirteen or fourteen years.

Q. What business are you in?

A. Well, I am in the railroad business and oil business.

Q. Mr. Page were you ever connected with the Gem Oil Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Stock holder in that company?

A. Yes, sir, owned half interest in it.

Q. Do you remember, Mr. Page, the circumstance of that company, I am not asking for the dates, the incident of that company getting a lease from Minnie Atkins of certain property? A. I do.

Q. Who was in your employ at that time who was looking after that matter if anybody? A. Frank Long.

Q. I will ask you whether you gave much personal attention to it yourself? A. I did not.

Q. Did you leave the matter almost entirely to Mr. Long?

A. Entirely to Mr. Long and my lawyers.

Q. And your lawyers?

A. Yes, sir, and Mr. Josey looked after it a little.

Q. Now, Mr. Page, when you got the lease from Minnie Atkins what amount of money were you to pay?

A. Ten thousand dollars.

Q. Do you remember how it was to be paid?

A. Well, we was to give him ten thousand dollars cash and then we put him off with five, because we wanted to have her identified a little better, and so Mr. Hanford finally agreed to it. We made it in two checks I remember that distinctly.

Q. Did you pay the second check when it was due?

A. No, sir, we did not.

Q. Why didn't you do it?

A. Because Minnie, in the meantime, had been there and had told us some stuff that on checking it up we found that it was not true, and we was considering very seriously of throwing it up and not going any further with it; so Mr. Hanford brought her out if I remember right, or maybe Mr. Long went and got her, I wont say which. We discovered in the meantime——

> Mr. German: Your Honor, I desire to move to strike the statement of the witness that we were considering seriously of throwing it up, as a conclusion.
>
> The Court: It will not be considered by the Court as evidence in this case.

Q. Go ahead?

A. She was brought from Seattle and we had her to stop off at Kansas City, and we had learned in the meantime that the child was born at Granny Letcher's, that is the best evidence that we had at the time; and we thought we would confront her then with some of the Leavenworth people. So, I went to Kansas City and Mr. Josey I think went along, I wouldn't say for sure; and we took her up in a lawyer's office, it was to get a statement and have her meet these people and see if it wouldn't refresh her, or bring it out of her; and we thought we got it at that time, although Mr. Rice said "There is something yet I believe she is holding back." From that time on, after we had taken her down there and got that statement out of her admitting that she had had a baby at Granny Letcher's, I didn't pay much attention to it after that, and we paid the five thousand dollars.

Q. Mr. Page, at the first stage of negotiations with reference to Minnie, what were you doing, what were you trying to do with reference to Minnie?

A. I was trying to find out if I had anything, trying to get the truth out of it.

Q. With reference to the identity of Minnie, were you trying to establish her identity?

A. We were trying to establish her identity, certainly yes.

Q. With reference to Tommy Atkins, her son, will you please state what you were trying to do with reference to Tommy Atkins?

A. Well I was afraid that Tommy was alive, and I knew if he was alive my lease from Minnie wouldn't amount to very much, and at least I was afraid it wouldn't; and I wanted to find out of course if possible as soon as anybody if he was alive or if he was dead.

Q. When did you hear for the first time that the Government or anybody else claimed that Tommy Atkins never existed at all?

A. Well, the first time I ever heard that was—— That confession of Minnie's I believe.

Q. Confession of Minnie's? A. Yes.

Q. Out at Seattle? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Page, did you get some sort of information that a suit was going to be brought to cancel this patent?

A. Yes, we heard they were going to start suit, and parties would come to us and tell us——

Q. Well, that they were going to bring a suit?

A. That they were making a tentative filing and so on, and getting ready to bring a suit. But we had no fear of that because we didn't think the Government would lend itself to anything of that kind with Mr. Buell and those people.

Q. Now you have some telegrams in your pocket. Did you send any telegrams to Mr. Sells at Washington City?

A. Yes, sir, we did.

Q. Just one minute until I get through. About the time that this Government suit was brought?

A. Yes, sir, we did, the office did.

Q. Is that a copy of that telegram?

A. Yes, I have looked over that.

Mr. Stuart: They are the telegrams, do you want to see them?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

Q. While they are looking at them, Mr. Page, I will ask you if Sadie James at any time ever told you that Thomas Atkins was a myth, that there wasn't any Thomas Atkins?

A. Never at no time Judge did she ever tell me that he was a myth, never that I remember of. Although, after we had let her go I don't know what she might have said to me, because she came in my office once or twice there——

Mr. German: We object to his speculation what she might have said, that is not proper.

A. Well, she never told me it was a myth.

The Court: The answer in my judgment was responsive to the qeustion.

Mr. German: Exception.

Q. Did Betty Mann ever tell you that Thomas Atkins never existed, that there was no Tommy?

A. Never in the world to my knowledge.

Mr. Stuart: I offer this telegram in evidence "January 18, 1915, Cato Sells, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Washington, D. C., we are advised Creek Attorney Allen has been authorized to bring suit to set aside Creek Deed issued to Thomas Atkins. Allen is working on false statements. He has been misinformed. We have not been permitted to submit facts. We are mailing you full and complete statement of facts and request that action be deferred until statement reaches you. We Court the fullest investigation. Charles Page. R. A. Josey."

A. We will mail.

Q. We are mailing you a full and complete statement of facts.

Mr. German: We object, your Honor, to those telegrams. They are all dated after the suit by the Government was filed. They are incompetent.

Mr. Stuart: We didn't know it was filed.

The Court: Overruled. I will hear this.

Mr. Stuart: The answer came back: "Charles Page and R. A. Josey, Tulsa, Oklahoma. Your telegram January 18th, suit instituted on January 18th against Minnie Atkins and others. Case in charge of Department of Justice and Creek Tribal Attorney. Cato Sells, Comissioner." I also read the letter of January 20th, 1914.

Mr. German: We object to the letter.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Stuart: "Honorable Cato Sells, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Washington, D. C. Dear Sir:—Please refer to our telegram of January 18, 1915, with reference to proposed suit in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Oklahoma, by the United States, for and on behalf of the Creek Nation of Indians, to cancel the deed issued to Thomas Atkins, in which telegram we stated we would submit to you a complete statement of facts. Our purpose in wiring you was to be given an opportunity to present our side of the case prior to the filing of the suit. Now, that the suit has been filed, we feel that it would be presumption for us to present any statement of facts, unless requested to do so by your office or the office of Creek Attorney Allen. We are ready and willing at any time to furnish you or Mr. Allen with any information desired. As stated in our telegram, we court the fullest and most complete investigation of our case. Yours truly."

Q. Mr. Page, I will ask you this, if prior to the time that Minnie Atkins made that confession you entertained any doubt of any kind that Thomas Atkins once existed? Did you have any doubt about it?

A. I never thought—I always believed that Tommy existed at all times after getting the record.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What age are you, Mr. Page?

A. 56 years old; I will be 57 years old the 2nd day of next June.

Q. How long have you lived in Tulsa?

A. I think I came here thirteen or fourteen years ago.

Q. To Tulsa?

A. Well, Tulsa—first I lived in Red Fork for about six months or such a matter until I could get a house in Tulsa.

Q. When did Frank Long first enter into your employ?

A. Well, now, I think around about 5 or 6 years, I can't say.

Q. Sometime the early part of 1912, wasn't it?

A. Well, I wouldn't say; Frank has been with me——

Q. Well, it was a couple of years before you got into—found Minnie? A. Found money?

Q. Found Minnie? A. Found Minnie?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, he was with me sometime before I found Minnie, yes.

Q. The Gem Oil Company, Mr. Long was secretary of it?

A. I think he is.

Q. And you are Vice President and Mr. Josey, President?

A. Now, I think that is right.

Q. Been that way ever since it was organized?

A. I wouldn't be surprised.

Q. That Company was organized about the time that you took Frank in, wasn't it? A. I can't say as to that.

Q. Wasn't it organized and Frank taken in with a view of his running it? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, when was your attention first called to this Atkins land?

A. The Atkins land—now, R. A. Josey, if I can explain this a little to you, is that what you want to know——

Q. I asked when your attention was first called to this Atkins land?

A. Well, I can't remember when it was unless it was when Long brought in the telegram to me and asked me about going in on it but I think my attention was called to it prior to that time; I think so, I can't say positively.

Q. You understood prior to that that Nancy Atkins was claiming title to this land?

A. I don't know now, I can't say positive.

Q. You knew about the Gypsy being out there in possession of it? And having a lease from Bartlett—Bartlett having a forged deed?

A. I learned of that afterward, I think.

Q. Afterward?

A. I learned of the forged deed and a lot of stuff.

Q. At the very time you became interested in Minnie Atkins didn't you know of the fact that there was a deed on record purporting to be from Minnie Atkins?

A. No doubt Mr. Long explained that to me but I was pretty busy and I didn't pay much attention to it; in fact I didn't want to go into it.

Q. You didn't want to have anything to do with it?

A. I didn't want to have anything to do with it.

Q. Because of the character of Betty Mann?

A. Because of the character of Betty Mann one reason.

Q. You knew her character was pretty bad?

A. I never had known Betty Mann to my own knowledge until Frank told me about her and I knew old man Crowell and one of the boys.

Q. Crowell was her father? A. Her father.

Q. A pretty tough outfit?

A. Bad, very bad, yes, sir.

Q. The first time you knew anything about it was when Frank brought you the telegram?

A. No, I don't say that was the first time.

Q. You think that was the first time?

A. No, I won't even think, but it was the first time I can positively remember of it, but Frank was hustling around, getting stuff around every pool that came in but no doubt we had hustled on this and spent money prior to that.

Q. And you don't remember what you knew about it?

A. No, I don't.

Q. At that time that Frank Long brought that telegram in, what did he say and what did you say?

A. Well, now, you know I can't tell you that because I——

Q. Don't remember?

A. Can't even repeat what you might have said in the half hour, because it would be nothing in it for me to remember.

Q. Didn't interest you?

A. No, it did interest me a little at first; he told me about her and so on—and I said I don't want nothing to do with it.

Q. Who was that message from, Mr. Page?

A. Well, now I can't say that; it is likely in evidence and that would be the best proof.

Q. Well, wasn't it from Bill Long—Bill Jones, I mean

A. I don't believe that he showed me the telegram.

Q. Just told me about it?

A. You see, the Gem Oil Company, we have seven rooms there in the First National Bank, and the Gem Oil Company —we didn't even have the door open between—if we wanted to go in, we would go around through the hall and when we started the Gem Oil Company, Josey agreed to look after it because I was busy on other affairs and I didn't pay much attention to the taking of leases in the Gem Oil Company.

Q. Alright. You said that you didn't know about Betty Mann until before this?

A. I have stated that to you; I have stated, just exactly what I stated to you is what it was; no need of repeating it.

Q. You say you didn't talk with Frank Long about Betty Mann before she went to Seattle?

A. I say I don't remember of ever talking, if you ask me that in that way, I don't know that I ever talked with Betty Mann or with Long about Betty Mann until he said that he had a telegram from her, or showed me the telegram and told me what the purpose of it was.

Q. Did you make any inquiries of him then about how expensive that trip was that she was on?

A. No, I don't think I did.

Q. So you gave Frank some instructions, though, didn't you about that matter?

A. About going——

Q. About the telegram, information contained in the telegram? A. I don't think so.

Q. You don't think you did? A. I don't think I did.

Q. Did you just drop it then?

A. I did until they brought a second telegram to me confirming it.

Q. How long after the first one?

A. Well, I think they sent one to Washington and then they got an answer, how long that was—the telegram is in evidence and would show.

Q. You meant to Washington State?

A. Yes, to Washington State; they are in evidence.

Q. You looked at that telegram?

A. I don't know whether I did or not, or they told me.

Q. That was about the next day; then what did you agree to do? A. I agreed to go in with them.

Q. That message was from Betty Mann, the same as the other, so you understood? A. I believe so.

Q. You agreed to go in with them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you agreed that the Gem Oil Company should attempt to get that lease, didn't you from Minnie? A. Yes.

Q. You learned there that Betty had gone to school with Minnie?

A. No, I don't have time to remember that stuff, I don't think; I don't think I even went into that stuff.

Q. That was looking pretty good. Didn't you make some inquiries about that? A. I don't think I did.

Q. What did you do then?

A. We sent Frank Long to Seattle.

Q. What for?

A. Now what for? Naturally for this lease, wasn't it?

Q. That is what I thought. A. Yes.

Q. But I wanted you to say so, Mr. Page. A. Yes.

Q. Did he bring it back?

A. He didn't bring it back at that time, he brought Mr. Hanford back as the evidence shows here.

Q. When Mr. Hanford came back—when he and Mr. Hanford got to Tulsa, they ate breakfast with you that morning, didn't they?

A. I hope they did, I don't know whether they did or not; if they did, they were welcome.

Q. Don't you remember that they did? And stayed all morning at your house that morning?

A. I don't remember that they did. I heard Mr. Hanford say so, and I suppose they did.

Q. Did you talk to Mr. Hanford at all during the time that he was here?

A. Mr. Hanford, when he came, I was out to get this lease from him.

Q. You talked to him but you don't remember where?

A. I am the man that made the trade with Mr. Hanford when he got here; when he landed here I——

Q. You don't know where you talked to him—at your house?

A. I talked to me at my house. I think I had him out to breakfast, I think I took him out to the Orphans Home possibly; I always eat dinner there every night—six o'clock dinner. We, no doubt I had him there eating with the kids that night.

Q. You were with him there practically all day?

A. I don't know; no doubt I was.

Q. What time that day did you make the trade with him?

A. I don't know that—I think I learned this since I been here, freshed my self up; I haven't even read my testimony that I had over here since I have been on the stand. I think we had Ben Rice to go out to the house to tell me—I have a faint recollection of that; I think I no doubt turned him over to them and everything but I made the trade.

Q. Did you make it that day?

A. I think I made the trade that day. I think we agreed on what we were to pay that day providing he accepted of it. I don't think possibly that he closed it but agreed to take ten thousand but I thought I was doing pretty well; I had it pretty well along that day.

Q. Well, you—at that time, you, Mr. Page, knew this title was in litigation? A. Yes, sir, yes, sir.

Q. At Sapulpa? A. Yes, sir, at Sapulpa.

Q. You then knew that Nancy Atkins and her lessees or grantees were suing Bartlett and the Gypsy? A. Yes, sir. I knew that.

Q. And that the Gypsy was in possession of the land?

A. I did.

Q. And were claiming the title?

A. And were claiming the title under a forged deed.

Q. You at that time knew that Nancy was claiming the title under the assertion that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that he was dead and that she was his heir?

A. What is that?

Q. Well, the last part I am not particular about. She was claiming that she was the mother of Thomas? A. Yes.

Q. And that she owned the land?

A. Well, she was the mother of Thomas?

Q. Yes. You at that know—did you at that time know that Bartlett's deed was forged?

A. Why, at that time—at that time, I think we knew that Bartlett's deed was forged—wouldn't say positively but I think we did.

Q. And that therefore——

A. Because I think that Betty Mann had told Frank Long about that. I think so, I don't know.

Q. Any how, Mr. Long—— Betty was not there when Hanford was there that first trip, in the early days of it, at least?

A. No, Betty came along afterwards, I believe.

Q. Frank, during the first days that Hanford was there, told you what Betty had told him? A. Possibly.

Q. Yes, possibly. Now, the next day—Monday, the second day that Hanford was here, what did you do about this matter?

A. Why, now, I can't tell you. I hustled to get that lease and I got it.

Q. You got it? A. Yes.

Q. Frank brought you sometime there, a signature of Minnie on a piece of paper?

A. Frank Long had the signature of Minnie on a piece of paper and we compared it with the enrollment card where she drew her grass money in '95 as I remember and I relied upon my attorneys and they claimed the signature was right.

Q. It was the signature of the same person?

A. The signature of the same person and we believed it was.

[Q.] Now, Frank also told you that he had made some inquiries of Minnie when he was in Seattle, didn't he?

A. No doubt he did.

Q. What did he tell you she said? A. I can't tell you.

Q. Did he tell you anything that she had said that you can now recall? A. No, I can't.

Q. Did he tell you that he had talked with her?

A. Oh, yes, no doubt.

Q. He told you that he talked with her?

A. He had to, yes.

Q. Then Tuesday, do you remember what you did on Tuesday following Hanford's arrival here with Long?

A. Why, I can't. Why should I remember what happened any certain day?

The Court: Just answer Mr. Page; if you don't, you don't.

A. No, I can't; no, I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember? A. No, I don't.

Q. Now, when was it— do you know about Frank and Hanford coming over to Muskogee at that particular time, either on Monday or Tuesday?

A. I know this: no—I don't, but I know this: that we wanted Frank Long to keep Hanford away, we were satisfied that we had the right party and I didn't want anybody to get to Hanford and run the price up on me or anything of that kind, and Frank Long's duty was to keep Hanford kiting around the country—that would be a business man's way of doing it.

Q. Because you wanted that lease?

A. I wanted the land, naturally Frank would keep him busy some way until we could get the lease here.

Q. Don't you remember that Frank and Hanford went down to Sapulpa on Monday to check the records on the Nancy part of it and see how a strong a case they had?

A. No, I don't remember.

Q. And didn't they come back and make a report to you on what they found?

A. If they did, I don't remember.

Q. Don't you remember that they came to Muskogee, and came back and made a report to you?

A. If they did I don't remember; have no recollection of it.

Q. Now, you get any telegrams from MacNab at Seattle about that time? A. I don't know that I did.

Q. Wasn't Betty up there trying to handle MacNab for you? A. They likely came to the Gem Oil Company.

Q. Do you remember anything about such a message?

A. I don't remember anything about any such a message, no.

Q. What day and by what method did you obtain the execution of that lease? A. What method?

Q. Yes.

A. That was left entirely to my lawyers, you see. I would probably see Frank Long in the morning and say what are you going to do today and what how is so and so, and Frank, he would attend to it.

Q. Finally Betty came back from Seattle?

A. Yes, she returned.

Q. And you had a conversation with her? A. Yes.

Q. You didn't meet her personally?

A. Never met her before that I know of.

Q. That was while Hanford and Long were still here—still at Tulsa? A. Mr. Long was here.

Q. That was before they had gone back?

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, you remember that finally Frank——

A. I know Frank—I know Betty, they telephoned me into my office or sent somebody in to say that Betty was there if I wanted to look at her and I went in and seen her and talked with her.

Q. Talked with her? A. I remember that.

Q. You remember that. Now, you knew about the fact that searches had been made for Thomas Atkins, didn't you?

A. I was learning pretty fast along about that time.

Q. Yes, sir, learning pretty fast, that they had searched the country over and couldn't find him, didn't you?

A. Well, I wouldn't say that I did just then, but I was keeping up to date about these things, I was becoming interested and I was keeping up to date on those things.

Q. And you learned that they neither found him alive or dead at that time? A. I certainly did.

Q. Because that was true? A. Because that was true.

Q. Did they bring you a copy of that census card and show it to you? A. The census card of Thomas?

Q. Yes, sir. A. I don't think they did.

Q. Now, Betty continued to stay around the office there, after she came back from Seattle, didn't she?

A. Well, you see the Gem Company's office—maybe I wouldn't go in there for two weeks at a time.

Q. Well, you passed right by it?

A. Well, there was a door—we never opened that door; we had something up against it—I think a picture.

Q. What floor were you on? A. The fourth floor.

Q. The First National Bank Building?

A. The First National Bank Building—been there for years.

Q. The Gem Company's office is adjacent to yours?

A. Right along there—I have six or seven rooms.

Q. How many rooms did you have?

A. I think we at that time, before we moved to Sand Springs, three, four, five, I think about seven rooms, and the Gem Oil Company, I think had three rooms.

Q. Who was Mr. Eberle?

A. Mr. Eberle was to bookkeeper.

Q. For you? A. For the Gem Oil Company.

Q. Who was your bookkeeper?

A. Mr. Bookkeeper, I have several bookkeepers.

Q. At that time?

A. At that time, my bookkeeper in that office there—you see a part of my books are kept out at Sand Springs.

Q. At that time they weren't though?

A. Yes, part at that time kept at Sand Springs.

Q. Was it somebody beside Eberle? A. Yes.

Q. I don't care who it was. A. Yes, yes.

Q. Now, Betty was around there from the time she returned from Seattle, wasn't she continuously around there—around your office or the Gem office?

A. I believe she was around the Gem office but I don't believe she ever talked to me very much until after she had been back a month or such a matter. I saw her with a little girl—young girl, who had just come from school.

Q. Her daughter?

A. Her daughter, and then I sent for her to come in my office and then I took an interest in her and wanted her to do something with the girl and talked to the girl because I knew of the reputation she had.

Q. She continued to be around there from the time she returned from Seattle for several months?

A. Well, I wouldn't say that; quite a while.

Q. Quite a while? A. For quite a while.

Q. Finally Long and Hanford went back to Seattle?

A. They made two or three trips to Seattle.

Q. You remember distinctly, don't you, that they did take a trip to Seattle, leaving Tulsa about the 3rd of July?

A. Oh, no, I don't remember that. I don't remember when they went, what date they went or what month they went. Now, I didn't pay much attention to the Minnie proposition after I had paid the second ten thousand dollars.

Q. You mean the second five thousand dollars?

A. Second five thousand dollars, because I was convinced that there was a Tommy.

Q. But between the time you entered into the matter you kept up to date until you paid the second five thousand?

A. Kept up to date until I paid the second five thousand.

Q. Alright. We will find out when you paid that.

A. The second five thousand?

Q. The second five thousand.

A. I paid that after Minnie——

Q. After Minnie had testified at Tulsa?

A. After Minnie had made a statement to us and had identified and talked with some Leavenworth people. Rube Smith, I think was one of them and they brought over several from Leavenworth to Kansas City.

Q. And she saw them?

A. She saw them and they identified her as the Minnie and talked over the Tommy proposition, and after that Mr. Rice says there is no question, Charlie, but what we are alright, and that she had this child at Granny Letcher's—we paid them the other five thousand dollars.

Q. Now, that was September 29th, 1914, wasn't it?

A. I don't know; the record will show better.

Q. Three months exactly after you got your lease?

A. Well, sir, that is the time we paid the money; I don't think we paid it until then.

Q. After that you paid the money. Let's see what happened in the meantime, Mr. Page; in July or rather in June, when Hanford and Long came back from Seattle, there was some sort of contract made with Hanford besides the one that related to the purchase of that lease by the Gem Oil Company, wasn't there?

A. What is that? Some kind of contract made with Hanford? If there was, I don't know.

Q. Well, what about Hanford's expenses?

A. Now, that was made by the lawyers up stairs and Josey likely had something to do with it.

Q. But you didn't know nothing about it?

A. I likely knew about it; I don't remember.

Q. The lawyers represented you and the Gem Oil Company and Mr. Josey?

Q. Mr. Josey was there. Mr. Josey, you know, is very careful about those things and Josey no doubt knew all about it, and I was depending upon them.

Q. Did you make the trade in relation to the ten thousand dollars? A. I did.

Q. Why was it that you didn't pay the ten thousand dollars down?

A. Because I wanted to defer paying as much of it as possible until I was positive Minnie was identified by some of the natives down here in Oklahoma.

Q. Then, when Mr. Rice told you in Kansas City after these witnesses came there from Leavenworth, and looked at Minnie, that there is no question but that Minnie is the mother of Thomas, that statement wasn't the statement that controlled you in making the payment, was it?

A. Why, that—I don't know that Rice said it in that many—in that language.

Q. Well, that is substantially what he said?

A. Or, even in the language that I used, but after my lawyers——

The Court: Mr. Page, you are asked whether that statement was the one that caused you to make the payment; let's get at that.

A. Well, the meeting that we had at Kansas City was——

The Court: The payment was made shortly after that?

A. The payment was made shortly after that, yes, sir.

Q. Alright. Now, Long and Hanford back in July, or rather Mr. Hanford, after they had been up to Seattle, brought Minnie back to Tulsa and she testified at Sapulpa?

A. She did.

Q. Let's see about that first five thousand: Mr. Hanford, I believe was to get that?

A. Well, if he was, I knew nothing about that. I had bought the lease for ten thousand dollars through her attorney and whatever they did with the money, I don't know, but maybe I did at the time, but I don't remember it now.

Q. Have you got that first check? A. Have I?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. It showed here—that is in evidence here in the Receivership case.

Q. The first check was?

A. The first check, as I understood someone to say.

Q. Didn't you withdraw it from the court if it was?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You think it was introduced at the Receivership?

A. Well, I wouldn't——

Mr. German: I would like to ask counsel if they know whether that check is.

Mr. Stuart: Well, I don't, but if it was not left with the Receivership papers, I will get it for you.

Mr. German: Well, alright.

Q. Now, you made that so-called second check, or the other five-thousand-dollar check, you had an endorsement put on it, not payable before September 29th, 1914—July 29th, I beg your pardon?

A. Possibly, I wouldn't say; I don't know.

Q. Now, Mr. Hanford came down with Minnie and she testified July 26th, didn't she, or the 27th?

A. I can't say.

Q. Some where in there?

A. Shortly before that check was due, I know, because that—that is the reason it kind of rattled us a little bit. She claimed the Peterkin kid was born at a certain place or one of those children at that hospital, and we got mixed up there, and then I wanted to quit, you know.

Q. Just drop it?

A. I was considering it very seriously, we were.

Q. Now, Mr. Page, when Minnie came down from Seattle that first time, she—you met her at Tulsa in your office, or in the Gem office? A. The first time?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. The first time, I don't know where I did meet her. I know I had her out at my house.

Q. Yes, and talked with her? A. Yes.

Q. And she went down to Sapulpa and testified about the child being born at the Sisters' Hospital? A. Yes.

Q. Then that Thomas was born to her and that she had heard he was dead?

A. Well, I don't know—I can't say that; in fact I don't know; I know after she came, she went to Sapulpa and testified, I know that.

Q. Weren't you present? A. I think I was.

Q. Where was Sam Brown the day she testified?

A. No, Sam Brown, the day she testified, I don't know; Frank Long could likely tell you.

Q. Well, he was in Sapulpa? A. Maybe he was.

Q. Wasn't he? A. I don't know; maybe he was.

Q. Did he see Minnie that day? A. I don't know that.

Q. Didn't he see Minnie the day before?

A. I don't know that.

Q. Did Wadsworth see Minnie that day or the day before, or Robinson—Bill Robinson?

A. I think we had people come—we had her over there, and had people come, paid their expenses in from around here, for the [] identify Minnie and see if they knew her, and see if she was the real Minnie.

Q. Where was it you had them come to identify Minnie?

A. Why, on the porch at my house, some of them, and likely some at the office—I can't say.

Q. Before or after you went over to Sapulpa?

A. I don't know whether it was before or after. I think it was before we went over.

Q. You didn't have her at your house after she testified at Sapulpa, did you?

A. Why, I think I did, I wouldn't say for sure; I think I had her there over night.

Q. Anyhow, these parties came and identified Minnie; they remembered she was Minnie, at your house?

A. Yes, out on the front porch.

Q. You think that was before she went to Sapulpa?

A. I think that was before she went to Sapulpa.

Q. Because that was the big thing that you were interested in?

A. Well, yes; we wanted to have her identified.

Q. How long was she in Tulsa before she went to Sapulpa to testify? A. Now, I can't say that.

Q. You don't remember? A. No, I don't remember.

Q. Who identified her there at your house?

Q. Now, I can't tell you that; Frank Long could tell you, because I am a very poor hand to remember names, anyway.

Q. No question about who she was when they saw her and identified her? A. I didn't think so.

Q. You were entirely satisfied that it was Minnie, weren't you? A. I was entirely satisfied it was Minnie.

Q. Then, Mr. Page, why didn't you go up to the bank that day and pay her that five thousand dollars?

A. We were ready to.

Q. But you didn't? A. We were ready to.

Q. Ready to?

A. Yes, we would willingly paid it, if it had been due.

Q. Wasn't she asking for it?

A. Now, I don't know whether she was or not but we were ready to give it to her, but when she told us about the hospital, somebody hurried right down there—Frank Long, possibly, and found that she hadn't been in the hospital, it disgusted me with the proposition very much.

Q. Because she had deliberately falsified?

A. Yes, sir, I thought so.

Q. She told you out at your house that——

A. Well, it was on the witness stand.

Q. It was after that that Frank Long went to the hospital? A. It was after that if I remember right.

Q. Nancy Atkins' lawyers were at Sapulpa and cross examined her when she testified there?

A. I presume they did. Mr. Rosser was there.

Q. The attorneys for the Gypsy Oil Company were there and cross examined her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was an important question there as to whether Minnie was the mother of Thomas Atkins, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then, you after she had testified, how come you to shoot Frank Long up to Leavenworth so rapidly?

A. You know we didn't know whether Tommy was dead or alive; we were running down every clue.

Q. What would the records at the Sisters' Hospital in Leavenworth have had to do with whether he was alive or dead?

A. It is hard to tell, you might have got a clew there.

Q. From the records made up in 1886?

A. You might have learned something.

Q. And that is why you sent him up there?

A. We run down everything we possibly could.

Q. What I am asking you is why you sent Frank Long to Leavenworth so soon after Minnie testified?

A. To check up her testimony.

Q. Why didn't you send him before?

A. I don't think we knew about the hospital before.

Q. You knew she was going to testify about the hospital?

A. How did I know?

Q. I am asking you? A. I don't think so.

Q. Hadn't Mr. Long told you that she was going to say that the child was born at the Sisters' Hospital?

A. Not that I knew of.

Q. Before she testified?

A. Not that I know of. Not that I know of.

Q. Mr. Page, what did you put her on the witness stand for at Sapulpa?

A. My recollection is my lawyers was tending to that case and they likely went over the testimony with her, and I likely went over the testimony with her, but as to what she said to me prior, I couldn't tell you; but it developed after the trial, that is after the hearing at Sapulpa, that her child was born at the Sisters' Hospital, and we immediately went to checking it up.

Q. Don't you know, Mr. Page, that you found out right after she testified at Sapulpa, from Rogers, Betty's co-worker——

A. Rogers? There is a man, my boy, I never talked to very much.

The Court: Finish the question.

Q. That the Sisters' Hospital story wouldn't stand up; didn't you learn that Rogers told Frank Long that?

A. What do you mean by the hospital story wouldn't stand up? What do you mean to insinuate that the hospital story wouldn't stand up?

Q. You understand my question, don't you?

The Court: Do you understand what he refers to?

A. We didn't try to make anything stand up only the truth.

Q. You know what I mean, Mr. Page?

(Thereupon record was read by the reporter.)

A. No, I didn't learn that from him.

Q. Anyhow, Frank went immediately to Leavenworth?

A. I wouldn't stay, him or Hanford.

Q. And sent word to you that there wasn't anything there about it?

The Court: I assume what you mean as to whether the hospital story would stand up, is that the story was not true?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Witness: Now, that is all right.

The Court: It would be better for counsel to use that.

The Witness: Thank you.

Q. Mr. Page, you had a little talk with Minnie after she had testified, after you had found out what the record did show, didn't you?

A. I wouldn't say for sure, quite probably I did.

Q. When was the first time that you heard the name Peterkin? A. I couldn't say when I heard that.

Q. Don't recall? A. I don't recall, no.

Q. Mr. Hanford went to Boston, didn't he, shortly after that? A. Mr. Hanford went to Boston.

Q. And finally upon his return you talked to him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. He reported to you what Peterkin had told him?

A. Yes.

Q. Then, you wrote or had Frank Long write Mr. Josey a letter, he being in the east at the time, did you not?

A. Well, I couldn't tell just how that was, I know he was in the east, he was in Boston, I believe.

Q. You remember the circumstance?

A. I remember we wrote Mr. Josey, I insisted on Mr. Josey going down and seeing—learning something about this.

Q. From Peterkin?

A. From Peterkin, and I wasn't satisfied with the explanation that I had got from Mr. Hanford, and I wanted Mr. Josey to go down and see him, because I wasn't really satisfied with the explanation that I got from him.

Q. At that time you knew that Bartlett was still making a search for a live Thomas, didn't you, and that the Gypsy was? A. Well, I think so, yes.

Q. And you knew that the Gypsy, or Bartlett was using Sadie James, and the Gypsy was using Dennis Jones in that effort?

A. Not at that time, but I knew that the Gypsy was using Dennis Jones, and I knew we were trying to get Dennis, but he wouldn't got to work for us until he got a clean slate from the Gypsy.

Q. You wanted Dennis in your employ? A. Yes.

Q. And Sadie was working for Bartlett trying to find a live Thomas and you were aware of that?

A. Well, was she working for him at that time?

Q. Shortly before that, after you had found Minnie, you knew?

A. Yes, I knew she had worked for him before and after I believe.

Q. And you knew, did you not, at that time, that Nancy Atkins was still claiming that she was the mother of Tommy, and owned the land?

A. Oh, yes, we had known that from the time we started, still know that.

Q. And you realized that you would have a fight with her? A. Not serious after I had investigated it.

Q. I understand, but you hadn't carefully investigated it at that time?

A. I think I investigated very carefully after I talked with Judge Hanford—the judge that was on the bench there.

Q. Judge Stanfield? A. Judge Stanfield, yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Page, who else within your knowledge was searching for a living Thomas besides Bartlett and the Gypsy?

A. Well, I think Charlie Wrightsman was.

Q. At that time?

A. Well, maybe it was later, I couldn't give the dates of any of that stuff. I know there was quite an opposition in the field to find a Tommy.

Q. Well, who else, if anybody, was searching for a living Thomas in the summer and early fall of 1914?

A. I couldn't tell you.

Q. You knew of no others?

A. I might have known but I can't recall it.

Q. But you did know that the Gypsy and Bartlett were actually searching for a living Thomas?

A. At one time I know they were.

Q. Now, you succeeded—— You didn't get Mr. Josey to interview Peterkin, but Mr. Long had written him, you remember that? A. No, I don't.

Q. It was your idea that he should do it?

A. Well, I don't know what my idea was then, whether he should have done it. I know we wanted to get Mr. Josey to go down and see Peterkin and I wasn't just satisfied.

Q. You complained with Mr. Hanford because he hadn't a better report from Peterkin, didn't you?

A. Complained to him?

Q. Yes?

A. No, sir. No, I don't think I complained to him about not having a better report.

Q. Talked a great deal about it?

A. I did complain. I wasn't satisfied—— Mr. Rice, my attorney, wasn't satisfied with the sort of indefinite reports we got from Hanford. And we thought Mr. Josey or somebody should go down and see Peterkin.

Q. You remember the fact that he did report Peterkin had told him that Minnie had had a child in Leavenworth, you remember that fact? A. I think so.

Q. But that it died when it was very young?

A. Well, I believe so.

Q. Now, Mr. Page, about that time, Sadie came around, didn't she?

A. About that time Sadie James came in, just about.

Q. Now, you had known what character of woman she was prior to that time?

A. Never had known of her or heard of her that I know of.

Q. Now, you met Sadie in your office there, or the Gem Oil Company's office there, which was it?

A. Mr. Long brought Sadie into my office and I was busy.

Q. And then you made an engagement to meet her in the park that night? A. Yes, sir.

Q. With Mr. Long?

A. Well, not necessarily with Mr. Long; Mr. Long was to meet her when she got off so she could get up to the park. Yes, I was to meet her in the park.

Q. Colored folks are not allowed in your park?

A. They are, but they have their days and the white people have their days.

Q. So, Mr. Long was going to permit Sadie to come in, although she was a colored woman, on that night?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why was it that you didn't trade with her or talk with her in your office, instead of waiting until that night at your park?

A. Why, because possibly I was busy, or possibly it was a better time to sit down and talk. It was in the summer time, it was warm, and there might be lots of reasons in regard to that. Maybe I wanted to say lots of things to her and didn't have time up there. I couldn't tell what was going to run through my mind at that time.

Q. Well, you were desirous of employing her at that time?

A. Why, if I remember it clearly, she gave me to understand that I needn't worry about a live Tommy; that she could prove that Tommy was dead and buried. I says if you can——

Q. You are the person?

A. Yes, sir, you have a job right now, yes, sir.

Q. Now, you stated, I believe, at your Receivership testimony, that you knew what kind of woman Sadie was by reputation but you didn't know personally?

A. Well, I haven't read my testimony, but I know I didn't say that. I might have stated that I had heard of her, what her reputation was after this case had started, after we had found out about this Sadie James, but I never saw her or I don't think I ever knew who she was until after this case started. Until after we had found that she was in Seattle.

And thereupon, Court recessed until two o'clock P. M.

And thereafter, and at 2 o'clock P. M., Court having convened pursuant to adjournment, further proceedings herein were had as follows:

CHARLES PAGE, being recalled further testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Page, at the Receivership hearing, did you not testify as follows, referring to Sadie James: "Q. When Mr. Long brought her there"—that is, your office—"did he tell you anything about her? A. Why, he says Sadie tell me—— Q. Did he tell you anything about her character, the sort of woman that she was? A. I don't think he did; I think I had learned prior to that. Q. You had learned prior to that the sort of woman she was? A. I think so; that is the reason I was careful with her;" you testified that way?

A. I have no doubt I did, I believe I did.

Q. Further testifying: "Q. You knew then the sort of woman she was at that time? A. I think I did, without question." A. I do, I think I did, without question.

Q. That is true as to your testimony, is it not?

A. That was true a year and a half ago, it is more likely that I would remember it then than now.

Q. Now, referring to the time when you paid Minnie that money, isn't it a fact that you paid her forty-five hundred dollars of that five thousand after she had given her deposition at Tulsa? A. At Tulsa?

Q. Yes, sir?

A. Now, I don't know when that was paid, but I do know this—I do know this—that it was not paid until after we had talked with her, and had her identified and talked with some Leavenworth people in Kansas City.

Q. To refresh your memory I will ask you if you didn't testify this way at the Receivership hearing: "Q. When did you pay her that additional five thousand? A. I know this, I am—it comes to me—I am, oh, we didn't pay her until the day, I think a day or two before—no, hold on, I am mistaken there; we paid her because she went down to the bank and drew money—she said she wanted this money in the bank to her credit, and it was put in the—part of it, the five hundred dollars, and forty-five hundred dollars as I remember was put on time deposit check in the Central National Bank —forty-five hundred dollars, and I think five hundred dollars was placed to the open account of herself but after the law suit—after she had given her deposition. Q. After she had given her deposition? A. Yes, sir."

A. That would be right there.

Q. Now, referring to the time when you find out that the Government was figuring on a lawsuit here, don't you know that Judge Allen recommended the institution of a suit to cancel this allotment in the middle of October 1914, and that it was several days after that before Quinton Garrett made application to select this land?

A. If you will put—no, I don't; but if you will ask me what I know about the filing of the Quinton Garrett and of starting of this suit, I can tell that to you.

Q. Well, it is hearsay to you, isn't it?

A. Part of it is, what is hearsay, I can call them in here.

Q. You had Mr. Josey to come over to see Judge Allen, did you not? To persuse him not to file the suit?

A. No, sir, I had him to come over here to see Judge Allen but not to commence the suit until he had investigated our title, and we told Judge Allen, if we were wrong we would positively quit claim and quit, and Judge Allen told him—Josey is in the city, you can get him up here.

Q. Josey told you what he told—— A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't talk to Judge Allen? A. No, sir.

Q. Alright. Now, Mr. Page, on the same day that Minnie testified at Tulsa, in Rice & Lyons' office, you took a deed from her, didn't you?

A. I knew nothing about that, as you might say; that was done by advice of attorney—by Ben Rice. That was done unbeknownst to me.

Q. You signed that instrument, though?

A. I signed a letter.

Q. Didn't you sign that contact there drawn up with her and signed by you, and acknowledged by you and her both, on the date she testified at Sapulpa?

A. Well, I signed a letter or something; I knew that I didn't own the property or the deed didn't amount to anything; it was some protection my lawyers were taking—what it was, I don't know.

Q. You don't know? A. No.

Q. I will ask you why this provision was inserted in that contract: "It is further provided that this instrument is subject to the following conditions, namely: that in the event Thomas Atkins, the son of the first party"—that would be the son of Minnie—"and the person described in the allotment of said land, or the rightful heirs of the said Thomas Atkins, shall successfully maintain a title to said land, and the estate above described, as against the first party, the payments hereunder shall cease and second party shall be released from all liabilities hereunder, except that upon the confirmation of this conveyance and the release for payments theretofore made, the said payments shall be due and payable to the said Thomas Atkins or his heirs, during the lifetime of the said first party and on her death the unpaid difference between the amounts paid up to the time of the death of the said first party, and the said ten thousand dollars if any ascertained as aforesaid, shall be payable to the said Thomas Atkins or his heirs." Why did you put the provision in there, statement in there, or reference in there to the rightful heirs of the said Thomas Atkins?

A. Mr. German, it is likely that I never read that article, I know I never read it in the world.

Q. Who prepared that? A. Ben Rice.

Q. He was the same attorney for you who examined Minnie when she gave her deposition? A. Yes.

Q. He was the same attorney who was with you in Kansas City? A. Yes.

Q. When Minnie gave her statement?

A. Yes, maybe Ben didn't, maybe Mr. Lyons did that, or some of his men, I didn't know that contract or deed was signed until after it was signed.

Q. Do you know why the following provision was inserted in that contract?

A. I wouldn't know a thing about it; that was done by the lawyers and not by me.

Q. Mr. Page, you know Mrs. Mattie Cobb, formerly Mrs. Edwards, who lived at Stacy, Missouri; you went out with Frank Long and Crilly to her house?

A. I went out to see one old lady out in the country; I never was in Leavenworth I think but once in my life; and Mr. Long wanted me to go down there, and I wanted to go. He said they had now the evidence connected up with positive proof in regard to the birth of the child and he wanted me to see one dear old lady he said down there that had it in the Bible when her babies were born, and so on, and I was interested.

Q. Did you see the Bible?

A. I never have looked at the Bible, although we have it right here I think in town.

Q. Now, did you go down to that old lady's home?

A. I did.

Q. That was Mrs. Cobb?

A. I think they called her Mrs. Cobb; it was eight or ten miles out in the country; Mr. Crilly took us out in the country in his automobile and she was washing.

Q. You know Ella Abbott? A. Very well.

Q. She lives at Leavenworth?

A. She is in the city now.

Q. You knew about the slate and clothes that she is supposed to have?

A. Well, I don't know so much about the clothes, I know that we have books, school books, and we have what is supposed to be Tommy's slate, and we have checked that up and had chemical analysis on it, and so on.

Q. Ella is the person that produced it for you?

A. Ella is the one that produced them for us, yes, in a way.

Q. She has been here in the city during this trial?

A. She has been here right along. She was up at my hospital at Sand Springs for a while; she was sick with pneumonia.

Q. Ella was supposed to know about the death of Thomas, wasn't she?

A. Well, now, I never went over the testimony with anybody, with any of the witnesses, I don't think one of them with the exception of this old lady you spoke of.

The Court: As to her, you don't know?

A. No. No.

Q. You have talked with her a great deal?

A. Only in a nice friendly way; tried to keep her happy and make her happy and so on.

Q. Mr. Page, you say that you employed Sadie, and Dennis, and Rube too, Rube Smith; have you ever produced any witness, or has any one for you obtained any witness to swear to the death of Thomas Atkins?

A. I think we have some people who are willing to swear to it.

Q. You have never put any witness on the stand?

Mr. Cruce: We object, if the Court please. The records will show.

The Court: The records will show.

Mr. German: It will in this Court.

The Court: The records will show as to what is here.

Q. Did you put any witness on in the state court who testified as to the death of Thomas Atkins?

The Court: Is that record in the state court in evidence?

Mr. German: Just a little.

Mr. Cruce: We object to it because it is immaterial.

The Court: He may answer if he knows.

Mr. Cruce: Exception.

A. I don't think we ever did.

Mr. German: That is all.

The Court: Any further questions?

Mr. Stuart: That is all, Mr. Page. I may need Mr. Page for a few questions later.

Mr. Allen: If the Court please, we have one witness here from Kansas City, a very short witness; counsel have agreed we may put on now.

Mr. Hanford: I would like to ask Mr. Page one question before he leaves the stand.

The Court: All right.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Page, you were asked on cross examination if the forty-five hundred dollars, five thousand dollars paid to Minnie was paid after her deposition at Tulsa. I would like to ask you if it is not a fact that that money was paid to Minnie at Leavenworth before she came to Tulsa and she went down to the bank and put it in the bank by herself after she got to Tulsa?

A. Mr. Hanford, I don't know whether it was paid to her in Leavenworth or not. Now, you would know, and Frank Long would know, but I know Minnie came to me with the check and wanted me to go to the bank with her and arrange for interest and a certain amount to check on, and I was instrumental in doing that.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Page, at the time she went to the bank, at that time she had a certificate of deposit for forty-five hundred dollars and money in her hands to put in the bank?

Mr. German: I object to counsel leading the witness.

The Court: Mr. Page has testified he has no personal knowledge with regard to this.

A. I couldn't tell you about that, but I knew that Mr. Rice tried to keep us from paying Minnie for a long time.

The Court: We will not go into that.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, STUART BREWSTER was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the Government and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Please state your name? A. Stuart Brewster.

Q. Where do you live?

A. I live in Leavenworth, Kansas.

Q. What is your age? A. Thirty-two.

Q. What business are you engaged in?

A. I am with the Claim Department of the Travelers Insurance Company.

Q. You are a lawyer by profession? A. I am.

Q. Do you know Alva Adams? A. I did.

Q. Were you raised in the same community that Alva Adams was raised in?

A. Well, I don't know whether, I was raised in Leavenworth, I have lived there for some time.

Q. Did you play with Alva Adams in Leavenworth, and the boys with whom he played in 1897 and 1898? A. I have.

Q. What were the names of some of the boys with whom you played at that time?

A. Well, there was Alva Adams and a boy we called Skinny Warren, his name was—I don't know his first name; and a boy called Pied Owens.

Q. What was his name?

A. I don't know his first name.

Q. To refresh your memory, was his name Tommy Owens?

A. Tommy Owens, yes, sir. Then, there was a boy by the name of Earnest Endress, and a boy by the name of George Foster, and a boy there that we called Sheeney Browser, I think his name was Solly.

Q. Was George Warren in that crowd?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Swipe Smith, did you know Swipe Smith?

A. I never knew Swipe Smith at that time, not until later years.

Q. Tommy York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he in that crowd? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any boy in that crowd that you played with, or did you know any boy at that time by the name of Tommy Atkins or Indian Tommy? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hold any official position in the City of Leavenworth? A. I was police judge for two terms.

Q. Have you held any other official position? A. No, sir.

Q. When was you police judge there?

A. I think I went out of office in 1914; I had been in office four years previous.

Mr. Allen: That is all. Take the witness.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Were you ever engaged by anybody to do any work in this case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who employed you?

A. Mr. White came to Leavenworth and I was associated with Judge Harper; and he wanted Judge Harper to look up some witnesses for him and Judge Harper turned him over to me and I did look up some witnesses for Mr. White.

Q. You knew that he was representing the Nancy Atkins interest, did you?

A. I did not; I did not know who he represented. I don't know now.

Q. Well, how came you to look up witnesses if you didn't know what it was about?

A. Well, he had the names of the witnesses.

Q. Well, what did he say it was about? A. Beg pardon?

Q. What was it all about? What did he tell you he wanted the witnesses for?

A. Well, he had the names of the witnesses and I located them and it seems to me that one evening he had some witnesses in the office and I took some statements from these witnesses; I think I acted as a notary.

Q. Do you know what the names were?

A. I remember one old colored man by the name of Ira—I don't [] what his last name is. He has been the janitor there at the First National Bank for years.

Q. Ira somebody, a janitor at the bank? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what other did you take?

A. I don't remember.

Q. What witnesses did you see for him?

A. A lot of colored people.

Q. What were their names? You have lived there all your life, haven't you? A. No, sir.

Q. How long have you lived in Leavenworth?

A. Since 1895.

Q. Since 1895?

A. And then lived there previous to that.

Q. Well, you lived there for twenty-five years?

A. Yes, sir, about.

Q. You ain't over 50 are you?

A. Not quite that old.

Q. You lived there a good while and during that time you were well acquainted there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew these colored people that you were talking about? A. Yes.

Q. Now, who were they?

A. I don't remember the names of those people.

Q. You don't remember their names? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember what part of town they lived in?

A. Up in north Leavenworth.

Q. North Leavenworth, what street?

A. Up around north Third street.

Q. How many of them told you that Tommy Atkins never lived at Granny Letcher's?

A. How many of these witnesses?

Q. Yes, and who were they?

A. I don't remember that that was a part of the statement; these witnesses I think made a statement to the effect that there was a Tommy Atkins, and that he was drowned up in the creek in north Leavenworth.

Q. Yes, you found one that was drowned and you stopped at that, didn't you?

A. I think that is what their statement contained.

Q. And that was the Tommy Atkins that satisfied you that the Tommy Atkins that was in Leavenworth was no more, wasn't it? A. Well, I was never satisfied about that.

Q. You never were satisfied about that?

A. I don't know anything about it.

Q. Now, what year were you born? A. 1885?

Q. 1885; that makes you how old? A. 32.

Q. 32? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember Tommy York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Remember the Crilley boys?

A. I remember Mr. Crilley, I don't remember his boys.

Q. Didn't know his boys?

A. I think he has a son by the name of George Crilley.

Q. But you don't remember his boys?

A. Not as a boy, no, sir.

Q. You never played with his boys? A. No, sir.

Q. The Crilley boys? A. No, sir.

Q. And you never was around Crilley's barn as a boy?

A. No, sir, I never was up in that neighborhood

Q. That part of town? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, all those people told you about the Tommy that was drowned, told you it was Tommy that was at Granny Letcher's? A. I don't remember that they did.

Q. Well, don't you remember that they did?

Mr. German: Your Honor, we object to that as improper cross examination and as hearsay evidence as to what these people he interviewed for Mr. White told him.

The Court: I hardly see how it is proper cross examination following the direct examination of this witness. I believe he did testify that he never heard of the Tommy Atkins.

Mr. German: He said that he never knew one back in Leavenworth.

A. In those days when I used to play with those boys, I never heard of him.

The Court: He was asked if he knew Tommy Atkins and he said no, not back at that time.

Mr. German: But not recently.

Q. Where if you remember, did you first live in Leavenworth; name the place.

A. I remember living on Vine street; 213 Vine street.

Q. Vine street. How far is that from Seneca street?

A. Oh, that is ten or twelve blocks.

Q. What did you say? A. Ten or twelve blocks.

Q. Ten or twelve blocks? A. Yes, sir, south.

Q. South. Alright; now what is the next one?

A. The next place that I lived?

Q. Yes. A. I remember living on Olive street.

Q. Well, you never lived down on Seneca, did you; down on Seneca street?

A. Well, I lived about—at the time I testified I played with these boys, I lived in the Ryan Building, cata-cornered from the National Hotel and that is about three blocks from Seneca.

Q. But you never played down with the Crilley boys in the Seneca neighborhood?

A. Never played on Seneca street.

Q. Never played on Seneca street in your life?

A. Played on Cherokee.

Q. You heard of the Tommy Atkins, didn't you?

A. Lately I have, yes, sir.

Q. Well, you didn't then? A. Beg pardon?

Q. Well, you told the Court, didn't you, that you heard of a Tommy Atkins that was drowned, didn't you?

A. Lately, yes, sir.

Q. When you were getting up these witnesses?

A. That was about two years ago, I guess; three years ago.

Q. Now, when you heard that, they told you it was the same Tommy Atkins that had been at the colored woman's, didn't they? A. I don't remember that they did.

Mr. German: We move to strike that.

The Court: He says that he doesn't remember, and the only please it could have would be something I thought counsel had in mind, I thought it might be brought out, but he doesn't remember.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Tell the Court exactly what your connection was with the Nancy Atkins case.

The Court: I think I understand it fully. Mr. White went up there and employed with firm with which he was to look up some evidence and he has testified with regard to it. He got the witnesses and took some statements.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, understands I am not criticising——

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. Allen: Your Honor, I don't think that is what the witness said.

The Court: That is not going to influence me a bit in this case.

Mr. Allen: I think the witness stated that he merely introduced Mr. White to the witnesses.

The Court: He was given the names of some witnesses and looked them up and possibly took a statement; that is all there is to it.

Q. Where did you play with these boys?

A. On a vacant lot near Second and Cherokee streets.

Q. How far is that from Seneca?

Mr. Hanford: Seneca and what, Judge?

Q. From Third and Seneca?

A. Well, about four blocks to Seneca.

Recross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Four blocks from Third and Seneca?

A. Let's see; yes, about four blocks.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Where did the these boys live that you played with?

A. Well, Alva Adams lived at Main and Deleware street, up over the waterworks office, and the Warren boys lived close to this vacant lot, and the Browse boy I think lived across the street from the vacant lot, and the Friedman boy lived across the street, and Tommy York lived on Third street, and I don't remember where George Foster lived.

Q. Did you know the Crilley boy?

A. I didn't know him at that time.

Q. Was he—did you know later?

A. I think I know a George Crilley, who is the son of Mr. Crilley, the liveryman.

Q. Older or younger than you? A. I think he is older.

Q. Did you know Elos Crilley? A. No, sir.

Q. How far did Alva Adams live from Third and Seneca?

A. Well, he lived 5 blocks.

Q. What did you play there?

A. Played baseball on the vacant lot.

Q. Did you play war?

A. I don't remember playing war.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. Stuart: Do you gentlemen want to see this?

The Court: You desire to fix some date, Judge?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir. (Referring to Exhibit 19.)

The Court: Merely to fix the date; why can't you gentlemen agree as to the date this service was performed?

Mr. German: I don't see any reason, Your Honor, why the witness may not refresh his memory and fix the date.

Mr. Stuart: That is all I am after.

The Court: He may refer to that, Judge.

Q. When did you get that commission, that one?

A. The 13th of May, 1885.

Q. The 13th of May, 1885? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where? A. 305.

Q. Did Stella Forrest ever live at 305 Seneca street?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where did she live, Dennis? A. 230.

Q. What? A. Seneca street.

Q. Never lived at 305?

A. No, sir, across the street; lived at the northeast corner of Third and Seneca, 230.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. You say you have two commissions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you commence working on the police force?

A. I served a little while in 1880, I think; road tax service.

Q. In 1880? A. Just a short time.

Q. And you were appointed special policeman when?

A. Well, when I was served in 1880, I was called a special policeman.

Q. And did you continue in that service from year to year until '85? A. No, sir.

Q. When were you first appointed—when were you again appointed there a special? A. In 1884.

Q. Well, you know?

A. Well, she may have lived on Seneca street at some other place, but I didn't visit those houses as a guest; I was porter at the hotel and went there at times to take messages for men while I was portering.

Q. Lilly White never lived on Seneca street but one time, did she? A. Not to my recollection.

(Witness dismissed.)

Q. You told him about Tommy, didn't you?

A. Tommy is what I asked the money for.

Q. Minnie, at the time that you came down here and drew money at the '95 payment, did you go up to the payment?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you go from to the payment?
A. Muskogee.

Q. Muskogee, how did you go? A. I went a horseback.

Q. When you got out to the payment did you draw any money, did you get any money out there?

A. Well, when I went out there, I went in where they were going to pay; there was some man sitting there but I don't know who he was. I says let me see the books, and he just shoved the book over to me and I looked and there was five of us on the book to draw, and that was myself and Tommy and Harvey and Charlie and Alice. Well, I say, Alice is dead, I couldn't draw for her. Well, he gave me the money for the four of us, that was Charlie, Harvey, myself, and Thomas. It was about fifty-seven dollars I think.

Q. Who got Nancy's and Ed Schrimpsher's?
A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know who got that? A. No, sir.

A. Well, yes, when he got hurt I was down at Eufaula and he had somebody telegraph me to come at once at Checotah, that he was shot, and I went immediately and stayed with him until he died.

Q. Minnie, when you left here, had you been to Fort Logan before that time, you had been to Fort Logan before the payment, before your brother got hurt?

A. Oh, yes, I went from Fort Logan and came to Muskogee.

Q. Did you go back to Fort Logan?
A. Yes, sir, a second time.

Q. Who went back with you?
A. I went back with John Couch.

Q. With John Couch. When you got to Kansas City on your way, did you stay at the depot or did you go up town?

A. No, we got off the train and I sat in the depot, and John says you wait here I am going to get a drink and a shave; and I sat in the depot and John went and got a shave and a drink, and that time the train came and we got on the train for Denver, Colorado. We didn't stop in Kansas City but a few minutes.

Q. Did you see Sadie James on that trip?

A. No, sir, I didn't see Sadie.

Q. Did you have any talk with Sadie about robbing the Government out of some money? A. No, sir, not me.

Q. Did you ever tell her you had put up a job on the Government and was trying to get away? A. No, sir; no, sir.

Q. Now, Minnie, when you were out at Seattle, who was the first person that ever came to your place about this claim of Thomas? A. Sadie James.

Q. Now, I want you to tell the court what Sadie James said to you just as near as you can?

A. When she first came she was all stewed up and excited, and she talked so fast I couldn't exactly understand what she was trying to drive at. She says, you know me; I says no. She says I went to Carlisle school with you, it is mighty funny. I says, no they didn't allow colored people to go to Carlisle when I did. Well, she says, I want to come in I want to talk to you. I says all right. So, she came in and she talked and then she wanted to know about my children. Well, I knew I had Tommy but I didn't want to express my business to Sadie, I couldn't tell what she was after, I couldn't tell what she was driving at. I says, yes, I have a Tommy; and she says what is his name, and I says his name is Tommy Atkins. She says, I—— I don't just remember how she did say that to me about him now.

Q. As near as you can, go ahead?

A. Oh, I says, Sadie but my Tommy is dead. Well, she says, that's all right we will make a Tommy; she says I am working for the Government now, I am working for Mr. Bartlett and the Dawes Commission, Mr. Cook, and she mentioned four men and she says—— Oh, she mentioned several, but I don't just remember any. I says, no you can't make no Tommy, because my child is dead. I kept saying my child is dead. Well, she says, we are going to make a Tommy because I am working for the Government now, I am going to make a Tommy, I am going to produce a Tommy. I say, I can't help what you produce, my child is dead. I says that is all I can do.

Q. Now, did you ever hear of a woman out there named DeVal? A. DeLaval, yes, sir.

Q. Now, Minnie, I want you to tell the court when Mrs. DeLaval first came to your place?

A. Well, she first got in with a dressmaker that I had sewing for me, a few things; and she hung around the dressmaker, and I went down one afternoon and the dressmaker gave me an introduction to Mrs. DeLaval; and we were talking, not on the case, but a week after that, I always noticed she wanted to come around my house, but she didn't know how to get around. So, my husband he got sick in the hospital and Mrs. DeLaval came the very afternoon he was in the hospital. And I says, how would you like to stay over night here, I am by myself, maybe you get tired staying at the hotel. Well, she picked that right up, don't you know, but I says wait I have got to go up to Mrs. McCombs and take her washing, and I says I will be back and call you on the telephone if I let you stay. I come pretty near forgetting it, but while I was at Mrs. McCombs, I says Miss DeLaval is going to stay over night with me. She says, Oh, Minnie, don't you ever do that; she is up to something, she says you go down and get your night dress and come back up and stay with me. You mustn't let that woman in your house. So, I took Mrs. McComb's word. She says, Minnie you will never live to morning if you let that woman in your house, she is up to something.

Q. Well, now when she came to your house, did she ever ask you to stay all night?

A. No, she didn't ask me to stay all night; she told a dressmaker that if she could get me to get her to stay all night she would give her five hundred dollars, she said to the dressmaker.

Mr. Linebaugh: We object to the statement of——

The Court: The question is whether this witness was apprised of that at the time.

Mr. Stuart: Yes.

Q. Did the dressmaker tell you in the presence of Miss Dlabal? A. No, she didn't; no, she didn't.

Mr. Stuart: It is not admissible.

The Court: I will not consider it.

Q. Now, Minnie, Miss Dlabal did come out there to your house?

A. Yes, she came out there three or four times.

Q. And you talked together? A. Yes, we talked together.

Q. Now, in the case of this dictagraph, did you know the dictagraph was in your house at the time—at the time that it was going on?

A. No, this is the way they done when they come out. The man come out and told me, this electrician she was working with, he come out and said Mrs. Folk, there is a complaint in the city about too much juice being used in the valley and I believe it is at your house. And I didn't know what to do, and I said examine my lights and see about it; and he did, and I said I have ten lights all told, one in the cellar, and one in the yard, and he went up through there and I gave him permission to go in the attic, and he was boring these holes and I was sitting there talking to him and I said what are you doing, destroying this man's house—I am paying rent here, and the man makes me take care of this house; and he said, oh, we have to do this, and he had to put this other thing that he wanted right over the porch where I was sitting, and I said, O, no, you can't destroy this house—you can't put nothing up on this porch, and he whispered to this fellow—young fellow, and he said, she won't let me do this, I will have to take it and run it on the side next to the cellar button, which he did do, and he then took it straight down and straight back between my ash pile and my garage, he run this wire out.

Q. Now, when was this photograph taken, Minnie?

A. Well, these pictures were taken the day after, or maybe a couple of days after, I don't remember.

Q. You can't remember about that?

A. No, sir, but they were taken.

Q. Now, Minnie, you remember Mr. Montgomery coming out there? A. Yes, sir, I remember it.

Q. You remember the conversation you had with him?

A. Yes.

Q. You remember signing a paper for him? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you at any time tell him that you wanted to take that back?

A. I told Mr. Hanford that I had done wrong and I wanted to see Mr. Montgomery to tell him that because he worried me so, and had me worried and he talked all kinds of talk to me, you know; that he was sent from Washington, D. C., to protect me and oh, he talked so much that I just got unstrung and didn't know what to do, and when I went up to Captain MacNab's he was there and he just snapped his hands at me, just like a bulldog in his house, you know, and said you just got to tell me you ain't got no Tommy, or I will send you over the road; and I got stewed up and I said I just got to get rid of him—I had to get rid of him, he tortured me and I couldn't stand him any longer.

Q. How came you to take it back?

A. I just took it back because I knew I was storying, and I told Mr. Hanford that I was storying.

Q. What did you say to Mr. Montgomery when you told him that you had told a lie about it?

A. I said to Mr. Montgomery that I told him a lie at Captain MacNab's about Tommy; I got a child named Tommy and I just got to take it back, that is all, and I just threw that in the fire; well, he couldn't do any more about it then.

Q. Mr. Hanford told you to take it back?

A. No, Mr. Hanford, didn't tell me.

Q. Did anybody persuade you to take it back?

A. No, I just took it back because I knew I was in the wrong and I took it back.

Q. Now, Minnie, when you testified down here at one of these places, it is immaterial to this question which it was, you said that you had Tommy at the Sisters Hospital; now, I want you to tell the court whether you said that—why did you say it?

A. Well, I told them that I had Tommy at the Sisters Hospital because I didn't want anybody to know where I had him, when I had him at Granny's. I just told them that I had him at the hospital but I had him at Granny Letcher's and not the hospital.

Q. Why is it Minnie, that you will tell for the first time now, the father of your child, why will you do it when you refused heretofore to, why do you do it now?

A. Well, I just refused this way, because they all just wanted to hang it on to me that my father was a colored child——

Q. Not your father.

A. That my son was a colored child and that his father was colored and I simply wouldn't have it, for it wasn't colored.

Q. And you say you tell that now because they charged you with having a colored baby? A. Yes.

Q. Minnie do you remember anybody who was around Granny Letcher's when you had that baby?

A. Well, there was quite a lot of people out and in; some I can remember and some I can't remember, but of course I remember distinctly of one woman, was the fortune teller, she was in there a great deal, and then there was a lot of boys around there; a lot of other women came in to see the baby, but I just can't tell all the names.

Q. Do you know any boys that were around Granny Letcher's? Name some boys that you knew there at Granny Letcher's. Can you call the names of any of them?

A. Well, Walter Banks he was around there, and Sam Nash, he was around Granny's, and Granny's son.

Q. Granny's son? A. Jim Mayo.

Q. Jim Mayo, he was around? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, before you had this baby, did you know the fortune—the old fortune teller? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you go with her sometimes?

A. Sometimes we would run around together.

Q. Sometimes. Do you remember ever visiting Mr. Lange's store with her?

A. Yes, I used to go in Mr. Lange's.

Q. Did you know Mr. Lange at that time?

A. Yes, I knew Mr. Lange.

Q. What kind of a store did he run?

A. What kind of a drug store did he have?

Q. Yes; was it a drug store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Drug store. Do you remember Minnie, whether you ever purchased a pocketbook from him?

A. Yes, he had a couple there, kind of odd ones, and I said to Mr. Lange, I said Mr. Lange, could I buy this, and he said yes; so, I took and bought one of those little odd pocketbooks he had.

Q. Were you pregnant at that time? Do you remember whether you were or not?

A. Well, I just can't say; it seems I was. Yes, I was but not enough to show, you know.

Q. Minnie, did you attempt in any way to conceal your condition from the public, or keep it from the public?

A. Oh, yes, I done all I could; I wore my corsets up to last and didn't want to show it.

Q. When you were at Mrs. Grodevant's, did Mrs. Grodevant ever speak to you about your pregnancy—about your being pregnant?

A. Well, only thing, I wore corsets so much when I worked for her and the only thing she said to me, why are you sick so much every morning, Minnie; and I said oh, I am sick is all.

Q. Yes? Why you were sick at the stomach?

A. Yes, she asked me; I said I am sick, that is all. I didn't want her to let me go, you know, and I was trying to hide it.

Q. Do you know whether any of your children were ever in Wagoner?

A. Yes, my sister Nancy had Harvey there in Wagoner awhile, and he used to run in the grocery store, Charlie told je—that is my boy.

Q. Never mind; that is hearsay. But did you leave your children there, or either one of them?

A. No, I left Charlie and Harvey with Kate Holden.

Q. Kate Holden? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was Kate Holden? A. A half sister of mine.

Q. Now, Minnie, when you left Leavenworth, what did you do with Tommy? A. I just left him there at Granny's.

Q. Did you have any talk with Granny about leaving the child there?

A. Just asked her would she keep him and look after him for me because I couldn't; I couldn't get work with him. I just wanted him to have a home and I just left him there.

Q. Now, Minnie, after you went to Seattle, did you stay at the soldier's homes the most of the time; you were with the soldiers, were you? A. Yes, working for the officers.

Q. Now, I will ask you whether or not you ever spoke to anybody in Seattle at the soldiers' barracks out there, quarters, or whether you ever told your husband about your past life until this case came up?

A. No, sir, I didn't want anybody to know it.

Q. You didn't want anybody to know it? Did you write to anybody in this country? A. No.

Q. Did your people know where you were?

A. No, they did not know where I was.

Q. You weren't put on the roll by the Dawes Commission so far as you know? A. No, sir.

Q. You have got no rights yourself?

A. No, sir, I haven't any rights.

Q. Did you ever know anything about the Dawes Commission, Minnie? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of it until this case came up?

A. No, sir, it is the first time.

Q. Never knew there was any such thing as a Dawes Commission? A. No, sir.

Q. Until this case came up? A. No, sir.

Q. Minnie, were you ever at St Joe, Missouri?

A. No, sir, I never was away from the army.

Q. Did you ever see a man by the name of Charlie Bailey at St. Joe, Missouri?

A. No, sir, I don't know Charlie Bailey.

Q. Do you know him when you see him?

A. No, sir, I don't know him when I see him.

Q. Did you ever see him to know him? A. No, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Mrs. Folk, you are about 53 years old now, aren't you?
A. Yes.

Q. You were a good girl when you attended Carlisle School, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You never had any improper relations with men until after you left there, at Leavenworth?

A. Not until I went to Leavenworth.

Q. The overseer of you girls at Carlisle was a Miss Hyde?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. At this school they had no boys and only girls of Indian blood?

A. Yes, they had boys, but the boys were on one side and we were on the other. We couldn't get to the boys, they kept the boys on their side.

Q. They had no girls of negro blood?
A. No, they had none there.

Q. You never associated with negro girls up to that time?
A. No, not at Carlisle.

Q. Now, this Miss Hyde chose you among the girls to go out to her brother's home in Leavenworth, Kansas, as a domestic? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You traveled alone, did you?

A. Yes, I traveled alone.

Q. From Carlisle to Leavenworth. You reached Leavenworth in the daytime or at night?

A. It was towards evening.

Q. Towards evening. Mr. Hyde knew you were coming, and Mrs. Hyde, did they?

A. Yes, she wrote and told them.

Q. She wrote and told them; did they meet you at the station and take you to their home?

A. I don't know whether it was them or not; some one met me.

Q. And took you to Mr. Hyde's home?

A. Home, yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Hyde was in the banking business at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you the only domestic at his house?

A. Yes, I was the only one working there.

Q. They provided sleeping quarters for you there at the house, did they? A. Yes, I slept up stairs.

Q. You slept up stairs? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They had a two-story house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you continued that relation for a little while?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they have any members of the family other than Mr. Hyde and his wife?

A. Why, I don't know as they did.

Q. Was there any children?

A. Yes, sir, they had three children.

Q. You helped the mother take care of the children, some times, did you?

A. No, I didn't have anything very much to do with children; she did that. I had enough to do to keep the house clean and do the cooking.

Q. You were then a girl 17 or 18 years old?

A. About along there.

Q. Now, Minnie, who was your first sweetheart?

A. In Leavenworth?

Q. Yes. A. It was Lee.

Q. He was a white man?

A. Yes, he was a white man.

Q. Now, how long after you was at Mr. Hyde's until you got acquainted with Lee?

A. Well, I think I was there about 2 or 3 weeks, about 3 weeks before Lee came down, but I had seen Lee before on the streets, you know.

Q. Yes, what kind of a looking man was he?

A. He was a nice looking man.

Q. Black hair or light hair?

A. Yes, he had black hair.

Q. Black hair; black eyes or blue eyes?

A. I think his eyes were brown as well as I can remember.

Q. Did he have a mustache or was he smooth shaven?

A. No, smooth shaved.

Q. Well, a while ago I expect I was in error myself and possibly got you into error as to your age; you perhaps were older than 17 or 18 at that time—you were perhaps 20 years old when you got to Leavenworth?

A. Well, I don't know how old I was.

Q. You think you are about 53 now? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, you have been called upon a good many times to tell your story about your relations with Tommy Atkins since this controversy arose and since the matter of the value of the Tommy Atkins allotment has been known, haven't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have been greatly annoyed because you have had to tell it so frequently, haven't you?

A. Yes, I have been annoyed lots of——

Q. You have told that story—this time you are now telling it is the fifth time you have told it in court, isn't it? The first time is when you gave your testimony in July, 1914, in the District Court at Sapulpa you testified?

A. Well, now, I am telling nothing but the truth about everything.

Q. Well, this time; you first gave testimony in court at Sapulpa, in July, 1914? A. Yes.

Q. Then you were called upon in October, 1914, in Rice & Lyons office in Tulsa, to give your deposition which was to be used in the state court of Creek County, at Sapulpa, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Then in this court when the Receivership hearing, you were called upon to give testimony at that time, weren't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then when the depositions were taken before Mr. Penick the Examiner appointed by this court, you were called upon again to give your testimony, weren't you? That was in Seattle, Washington? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So this is the fifth time that you have been called upon in court to tell this story, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, out of court you have been called upon to make written statements about what you knew about Tommy Atkins, haven't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The first time was up at Seattle when Mr. Long and Mr. Hanford were there, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. The second time was when you come down from Seattle to Kansas City, you and Mr. Hanford, and in the hotel there with Mr. Page, and Mr. Rice and Mr. Long and Hanford, you told your story again? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, the next time you were called upon to make a written statement was when Mr. Montgomery came to see you at Seattle, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, have you made any written statements other than the ones that I mentioned to you that you remember?

A. No, not that I remember.

Q. Now, Mrs. Folk, in all of these statements and each time that you have testified, no person has ever talked to you who was against you or against your interest before you made a statement except the one time that Mr. Montgomery was there, isn't that true?

A. Oh, there was lots after me but I wouldn't talk to them.

Q. I understand. You have never made a statement or you have never talked to them in reference to the Tommy Atkins matter that you felt at the time you did the talking was opposed to your interests except the time that you talked to Mr. Montgomery, have you?

A. Well, Mr. Mongomery—he was there for no good.

Q. I understand, he was there against your interests.

A. He was there against me.

Q. Now, have you ever talked to any other person?

A. No.

Q. Who was against your interests, who you thought and knew to be against your interests? A. No.

Q. So, everybody to whom you talked since this matter arose has been one that you believed at the time that you talked was friendly to your interests except when Mr. Montgomery talked to you, is that true?

A. No other talked to me that wasn't just right, either.

Q. I understand, but did you know they wasn't right when you talked to them?

A. No, I was innocently of it all the way through, you know.

Q. So far as you knew you thought they were your friend?

A. I thought they were my friends; I treated them as friends.

Q. Now, going back to Leavenworth, you got acquainted with Lee after you went to work for Mr. Hyde?

A. Yes, I got acquainted with him at Mr. Hyde's.

Q. You were never in Leavenworth before you went there from the school at Carlisle?

A. No, that was my first time.

Q. You had never seen that city before. Now, this man

Lee—that was his given name, was it, or was that his surname?

A. I can't remember his last name but that was his first name—Lee, I think.

Q. Now, you knew his last name at that time?

A. I did, but can't state it now.

Q. How long did you know him?

A. Well, I went with Lee until I went out to the Fort. I ran around with him until I went out to the Fort.

Q. Now, among your people, the Creek Indian people, it was not uncommon for them to have common law marriages, that is, I mean for a man and a woman who like each other to go together and live together as husband and wife without a necessity or formality of a marriage license, isn't that true at that time? A. I didn't know that.

Q. When you lived down here in Indian Territory?

A. I didn't know that; I was a young girl and wild; ran around and had no one to tell me any different.

Q. And you kept company with Lee because you liked him, didn't you? A. Yes, I liked him.

Q. And he told you he liked you? A. Yes.

Q. And you were sweethearts, weren't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you kept company with him until you went out to the Fort, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, he was what girls might call your steady, wasn't he? A. Yes, until I went to the Fort.

Q. Now, the Fort is about three miles away from the City of Leavenworth? A. Yes, three miles from Leavenworth.

Q. And you would go out with him frequently, would you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, in this time, did you ever keep company with negro men? A. No, sir.

Q. You had nothing to do with them, did you?

A. No, I had no steady company with these colored men.

Q. You never would go to public places with negro men as your escort, would you? A. No, not to my knowledge.

Q. You have no negro blood in you, so far as you know, have you? A. No, not that I know of, I haven't.

Q. You are an Indian woman, part Indian blood, and part white blood, that is your understanding is it?

A. That is the way I was told.

Q. You speak English fluently and have since your girlhood days, haven't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You really can't speak the English language now at all, can you? A. Yes, I can speak a little bit.

The Court: Do you mean the Indian language?

Q. I mean the Indian language.

A. Yes, I speak a little bit.

Q. Speak well enough to carry on a conversation?

A. No, I can't speak that well.

Q. Just some few Indian words? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you never had any relatives that you know of that were part negro, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. And you never kept company with negro men up there as your escort that you know of? A. Not that I know of.

Q. You didn't go around theatres or other public places about town there with negro men as your escort, did you?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. You kept company regularly with Lee?

A. Yes, until I went to the Fort.

Q. Until you went to the Fort. Now, Lee you say was a coachman for somebody; who was that somebody?

A. Well, I thought his name was Colonel Blunt but I might be mistaken. He was a coachman for some colonel out at the Fort, that I know.

Q. Now, about how long do you think that you worked for Mr. Hyde?

A. Well, I used to work for Mr. Hyde for over three months—three or four—yes, about that.

Q. Now, during that period of time, did you get acquainted with any other young men?

A. Well, I would see lot around town; when I would go to town, I would talk to them like any other young girl would talk to men.

Q. Well, I mean to keep company with you—for them to come to see you? A. No.

Q. How frequently did Lee come to see you?

A. Well, I was with Lee every night.

Q. Every night? He was pretty regular in his calls upon you and very attentive to you, was he? A. Yes.

Q. Now, that was continued over how long?

Q. Until we went to the Fort.

Q. How long was that? A. When I went out to the Fort?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, it was after—I went from the Hyde's to the Fort; I went from George H. Hyde's to Mrs. Grodevant's at the Fort.

Q. And you went directly from the Hyde's out to work for Mrs. Grodevant? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't stay in town a part of the time, that is in the town of Leavenworth? A. No, I went out there.

Q. You didn't stay there in the town of Leavenworth any time? A. No.

Q. Now, did you get acquainted with any women at that time? A. Yes, I used to know some women out there.

Q. You knew Mrs. Mary Hamilton?

A. Yes, I knew Mary in town.

Q. You knew Grandma Baine? A. Yes.

Q. You knew a man named Jackson, he used to take you sleigh riding? A. Yes, I went sleigh riding with Jackson.

Q. You knew a man named Oliver?

A. Well, I didn't know Oliver until after I had Tommy.

Q. Now, you didn't have any woman associates there in Leavenworth, did you, Minnie?

A. Well, I will tell you I wasn't much for having women company and I am not yet.

Q. You didn't at Leavenworth have any women associates?

A. No, I went around a good deal by myself or some fellow would be with me.

Q. Some fellow, usually a man would be along; you preferred the company of men to that of women at that time, did you? A. Well, I don't care much about women yet.

Q. Were you an errand girl or run errands for any woman there that you know of?

A. Well, I don't remember if I did.

Q. If you went to run errands for any women in Leavenworth you don't now recall it? A. No.

[Q.] Now, then, you moved out to the Fort to Mr. Grodevant's, and we will pass over that for a little while, probably refer back to it after a while, and go out to Seattle. You lived there at the Fort in Seattle?

A. No, I didn't live at the Fort, I lived in the valley.

Q. You were married to your present husband, Mr. Folk?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say you have had several children?

A. Yes, I have had five.

Q. You never gave birth to any child except out of wedlock, did you? A. What?

Q. That is you never gave birth to a child from a man to whom you was married? A. No.

Q. They were all born out of wedlock? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Folk is the only man to whom you was ever married? A. Married.

Q. And you married him when?

A. I married him in Van Couver Barracks.

Q. I will revert back to Leavenworth just for a few minutes now. You got acquainted with a man named Jackson, there, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And how long did Lee keep company with you altogether, Minnie?

A. Well, I never kept company with him what time I was working at Hyde's, and then he kept company about a month or so when I went up to Grodevant's, and then I just quit him.

Q. You quit him? A. Yes, he didn't quit me.

Q. You quit him. Now, Minnie, why?

A. Well, I just seen some soldiers around I liked better.

Q. You liked the soldiers better than you did a civilian, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you transferred your affection to the soldiers, or to some particular soldier, is that right?

A. Yes, but I had already had Tommy before I kept company with the soldiers.

Q. Well, we will get to that after a while. Now, I believe you said in about two months after you went to Grodevant's, why, you quit Lee? A. Yes, about that.

Q. And after you quit him, who was your next sweetheart?

A. Well, I just didn't have any right regular sweetheart.

Q. Well, who went with you?

A. Well, I don't just remember now.

Q. Well, can't you remember back now and tell us some of those soldiers that you permitted to go with you, keep company with you? A. After I left Grodevant's?

Q. No, after you threw Lee overboard; what I want to find out if I can, who was then your sweet-heart after Lee?

A. Well, I went with a fellow called Oliver.

Q. Now, you went with Oliver; what was his given name?

A. I don't know. That was all I knowed.

Q. And how long did you keep company with Oliver?

A. I didn't keep company with him long.

Q. Well, about how long?

A. Oh, about a couple of weeks.

Q. And then who was the next sweet-heart?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, you had a sweet-heart named Peterkin at one time, didn't you?

A. Well, I didn't have him until I was working for the Staffords.

Q. You didn't have him until you were working for the Staffords. Now, you are sure of that?

A. Well, I just don't remember.

Q. Can't you tell us, I want you to be definite as near as you can, when it was that you got acquainted with Peterkin and began to permit him to go with you?

A. Well, I don't remember just when it was, but I went with him, but I don't just remember when it was.

Q. Now, you knew Peterkin and liked him well, didn't you? A. Yes, I liked him.

Q. He was your sweet-heart for sometime, wasn't he?

A. Yes.

Q. By him you had children, didn't you?

A. Yes, I had Robert Lee by him.

Q. You took his name, didn't you?

A. Well, he told me I could.

Q. Certainly, that was agreeable to him. You were really living with him as man and wife, weren't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, can't you tell us when it was after Oliver was your sweet-heart that Peterkin began to be your sweet-heart?

A. That must have been about a year afterwards.

Q. About a year afterwards, and not until after you had quit working for the Stafford's, is that your testimony?

A. Well, as far as I can remember.

Q. Now, how long when you moved to Seattle, do you remember how long you lived at Seattle from this time back?

A. I think we were in Seattle pretty near four years.

Q. Pretty near four years?

A. I think that is, I don't know how long the regiment was there.

Q. How long had it been when you moved to Seattle since you had lived at Fort Logan which is near Denver?

A. Ask me the question again.

Q. Well, how long had it been since you lived at Fort Logan near Denver, when you moved to Seattle?

A. Well, I went from Denver to Michigan, Fort Wayne.

Q. And how long did you stay there?

A. We were there about two years before the regiment was moved to Van Couver.

Q. And how long were you at Van Couver?

A. Well, we were there quite a little while, I don't know just how long.

Q. Just your best judgment?

A. I don't just know how long.

Q. Well, was it as much as two years, or three years, or one year?

A. I think I was there about six years, something like that.

Q. About six years? A. In Van Couver Barracks.

Q. And then from Van Couver you went where?

A. From Van Couver we went to the Philippine Islands.

Q. And how long were you there?

A. I was there five months.

Q. And then from the Philippine Islands you went where?

A. And then from the Philippines they sent me back to the states.

Q. Then, where were you located?

A. I went back to Van Couver Barracks again.

Q. How long did you stay there?

A. I stayed there until my husband came over from the Philippines.

Q. About how long?

A. Well, he had three years to do over there, so he stayed there altogether—two years to do there and I stayed there from that time.

Q. And then from Van Couver you went where?

A. Helena, Montana.

Q. And how long did you stay there?

A. Well, I think we were there about two years, something like that.

Q. And from Helena, you moved where?

A. To Seattle, Washington.

Q. Then, it had been over ten years since you had lived at Denver, Fort Logan? A. Yes.

Q. During that period of time, had you kept in communication with anybody at Denver or Fort Logan by letter?

A. No, I didn't get——

Q. Did you hear from Fort Logan during that time?

A. From Leavenworth?

Q. No, when you were up at Fort Wayne and Van Couver Barrack and in the Philippines and back to Van Couver Barracks, and Seattle, during that period of time, did you hear from Fort Logan? A. No.

Q. And that had been for a period of over ten years since you had heard from Fort Logan. Now, the first time that you knew anything about the value of Thomas Atkins allotment, was when Sadie James told you out there at Seattle?

A. Yes.

Q. She come out to see you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you told counsel that at that time you were not acquainted with Sadie, you didn't intend it that way?

A. No, I didn't know her.

Q. Well, you had known her before?

A. No, I never did know Sadie. I never knew Sadie at any time.

Q. You knew Sadie when you lived down at Leavenworth, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. She worked right across the street from the Banker Hyde's didn't she? A. I didn't know.

Q. Minnie, if the question was asked you when you was a witness at Sapulpa about your acquaintance with Sadie, did there exist in your mind any reason why you should deny having known her?

A. No, I don't deny it because I didn't know her; I didn't know Sadie at any time.

Q. When you gave your testimony at Sapulpa, in July, 1914, were the following questions asked you and answers returned: "Q. Who told you? A. Well, they don't have to tell me, they came to me. I didn't want to see them. Q. Who told you? A. Sadie James. Q. Who is Sadie James? A. Working for Bartle. Q. Do you know where she lives? A. I only know she lived on the corner on the street from George H. Hyde."

> The Court: You are asked if you testified that way at Sapulpa, that you knew she lived on the corner of the street from George H. Hyde's?

A. I don't think I did, because I didn't know Sadie James.

Q. Now, when you were at Leavenworth, you went by the name of Minnie Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mrs. Brown and Minnie Peterkin?

A. No, I didn't go by the name, Mrs. Brown.

Q. You never went by that name; you went by the name Minnie Peterkin? A. Yes.

Q. And Minnie Atkins? A. Yes.

Q. And that is all? A. That is all.

Q. Now, Sadie James, this negro woman, went to Seattle to see you and told you about the value of Thomas Atkins' land, didn't she? A. Yes.

Q. And that is the first person from whom you ever learned about that land and its value, is it?

A. No, Mr. Long came afterwards.

Q. Well, but before Mr. Long came?

A. Sadie was the first, yes.

Q. Now, you learned at that time that Sadie was working for Mr. Bartlett?

A. She said she was working for Mr. Bartlett.

Q. She wanted to buy the land from you?

A. Yes, she wanted to get them to come there to buy the land from me.

Q. Wanted to get Bartlett to come? A. Yes.

Q. And she wanted to pay you four thousand dollars, didn't she?

A. Yes, she said that Bartlett would, she didn't offer to do it.

Q. But that Bartlett would pay your four thousand dollars? A. Yes.

Q. You wanted to take that, didn't you?

A. Well, I didn't know any better, I thought I would take it.

Q. Yes, that was agreeable to you? A. Sure.

Q. Sadie stayed there some little time, didn't she?

A. Well, she stayed there about a week, but she didn't see me every day.

Q. She come out more than once?

A. She was there about two or three times.

Q. Now, she told you in a part of that conversation, part of the conversation that she had with you, that we will make a Tommy? A. Yes, she said we will make one.

Q. Well, did she tell you how?

A. No, she just said she would send to New York or some place and get a Tommy.

Q. Now, you told Mr. Long, he came along pretty soon and you had a talk with him? A. Yes.

Q. And you told him that there was a woman in Denver named Mary Hamilton that could tell him where you had left Tommy, didn't you? A. No, I didn't tell him that.

Q. Well, didn't you tell him that there was a woman in Denver that knew the woman you had left Tommy with?

A. No.

Q. Did you use the name Mary Hamilton in talking with Mr. Long? A. I know Mary Hamilton, yes.

Q. You just didn't understand my question. Did you use the name Mary Hamilton in talking to Mr. Long and Mr. Hanford? A. Yes, I think I did.

Q. Now, where did you get that name?

A. Mary Hamilton?

Q. Yes? A. I always knew her.

Q. Certainly you knew her back in Leavenworth, but it had been over ten years since you had heard from her, now how did you find out where Mary Hamilton was, who told you?

A. Sadie.

Q. Sadie James?

A. Sadie James came and told me that she was living in Denver.

Q. Tell the Court in what connection Sadie James told you about Mary Hamilton being in Denver?

A. Well, she told me she was out to see Mary Hamilton in Denver and Mary Hamilton told her that I had buried my Tommy at Fort Logan; and I said my boy is not buried out at Fort Logan, he died in Leavenworth; Mary must have got it wrong I says.

Q. Minnie, was it in the same conversation where Sadie told you we were making Tommy that she told you about Mary Hamilton? A. Was that——

Q. In the same conversation?

A. I can't remember. She said so much that I can't remember.

Q. She also told you about Mary's husband? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She told you she had been by to see him?

A. Yes, she had been there.

Q. She knew they were there but you didn't and she told you about it, and now then, refreshing your memory, didn't you tell Mr. Long when you talked to him and Mr. Hanford, that's the woman that knew you and told Mr. Long to go by Denver and see her; and Mr. Long told you he was going to do it, didn't he?

A. I don't remember, I might have.

Q. You might have done that. Now, the first time that you talked with Sadie, tell the Court as nearly as you remember just how the conversation with reference to this land and Sadie wanting to buy it for Bartlett came up, just as nearly as you remember?

A. Well, she said so much about it that I just can't tell.

Q. I understand she said a good deal, but now you were interested in getting this money and you had heard about it before, now can't you tell us just how it came up?

A. Well, she told me the first time not to deal with anybody except her and Bartlett. Well, I said, Sadie I am going to deal with a person that I know I am right with, I am going to tell the truth about this; I said I have a Tommy; you don't look right to me Sadie the way you are going on. Well, she got a little vexed at me.

Q. What did she say that made you think that she didn't look right?

A. Because she didn't want me to speak to Mr. Long or have anything to do with Mr. Long.

Q. That was after Mr. Long had come? A. Yes.

Q. Let's don't get over there, let's stay to the time that you were talking to Sadie before Mr. Long come. You and and Sadie virtually had made a trade?

A. No, we hadn't made exactly a trade. I didn't know what she was driving at.

Q. But she told you that Bartlett was coming and would give you four thousand dollars for the land and you wanted to take it; that was before Mr. Long come?

A. Yes, she had made arrangements before Mr. Long come.

Q. Now, that first time when this conversation between you and Sadie James took place, when you first got that four-thousand-dollar proposition, tell the Court what was said between you and Sadie?

A. Well, that was where she said that Mr. Bartlett was coming down at five o'clock; that she had made arrangements for the bank to be open; Mr. Bartlett and the Dawes Commission and Mr. Cook and several others she mentioned, I don't remember now, was coming down to pay me the four thousand dollars at five o'clock. I said, no I have got to wait and see. And I told my husband to go up and tell Lieutenant McCombs—— No, he told Captain MacNab and Captain MacNab said no you ain't going to accept that money at all from Sadie James.

Q. That was after Sadie had been there several days?

A. Yes.

Q. Let's stay with the first day, the first conversation you had with her, tell the Court what Sadie said and what you said that first day in the first conversation you ever had with her?

A. Well, she just asked me if I had a child named Tommy and I told her.

Examination by the Court.

Q. Minnie, where were you now the first time you saw Sadie out there? A. I was at my home.

Q. What time of day was that?

A. She come in the morning.

Q. And she came in the morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you in your house when she came? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see her before she got into the house?

A. No, sir, I didn't see her until she was up there at the door, rapping on the door.

Q. And then you went to the door? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell me, if you can, the first thing that Sadie said?

A. She says, hello there, don't you know me? And I says why no I don't know who you are. She says I am Sadie James from Leavenworth.

Q. Then, what happened?

A. Then, she says I want to come in, and I let her in, and then she says to me, why, she says, you have some land, she says, land belonging to your child Tommy. And I said, well I had a child Tommy. The first time I didn't want to tell her and I didn't tell her right away, I kind of sawed her off; and finally I owned up and says yes, I have a child named Tommy Atkins. And she says well you have a valuable piece of land in Oklahoma; and she says I was sent down here she says to try and get it from you by Mr. Bartlett and Mr. Cook for four thousand dollars.

Q. That was the first time?

A. That was right in the start.

Q. What else happened that first day between you and Sadie after she told you about Bartlett?

A. Then, she went away from the house and stayed over night.

Q. Now, she said Bartlett or somebody was coming to give you four thousand dollars for the land. Was there any arrangement between you and Sadie as to when the man would come or when the money would be paid?

A. No, sir, I didn't recollect anything else but she said that she had wired to Bartlett and he would be down right away.

Q. Then she went away? A. Then she went away.

Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Now, Minnie, did you ask Sadie, or did the question arise in your mind, as to how Sadie located you out there?

A. Well, she had been all over, she had asked everybody she knew.

Q. How do you know? A. That is what she told me.

Q. You asked her how she located you? A. Yes.

Q. And she told you that she had been looking all around for you and finally located you. And the screen door was latched when she first came up and she asked if she could come in, and you unlatched the screen and she came in?

A. Yes, she came in the house.

Q. She took her hat off did she? A. No.

Q. And then what occurred as you have told the Court; now, then, she come back the next day, did she? A. Yes.

Q. Tell the Court what she talked about the next day?

A. Well, she just talked on that one subject all the time, she wanted Bartlett to get the land and wanted to give me the four thousand dollars.

Q. Was it that day that she told you we will make a Tommy on the first day? A. She said it all the time.

Q. That was what you all talked about? A. Yes.

Q. And then she also said I am going to produce a Tommy? A. Yes.

Examination by the Court.

Q. Did she say anything about making a Tommy the first day she was there? A. Yes, she did, Judge.

Q. Well, now, tell me, Minnie, how that came up, what you said that caused Sadie to say we will make a Tommy?

A. Because I told her that my Tommy was dead. She says, never mind about your Tommy being dead, we will make a Tommy. That is what she said to me.

Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. She wanted then to make a live Tommy, did she? A. Yes, that was my understanding with her.

Q. And how did she figure out she was going to buy the land from you then if your child was alive?

A. I don't know how they had it framed up, I couldn't tell you.

Q. Now, you knew and had been told that in order for you to get this land you would have to be the mother of Thomas Atkins and he would have to live and die, is that right?

A. I always knew I would have to be the mother of him and I was the mother of him.

Q. And he would have to live and then die?

A. He had lived and died.

Q. And he would have to be dead for you to get it, didn't you? A. That is the way I had it.

Q. And that is the way you understood it at that time, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And after that conversation you had with Sadie, then Sadie told you Bartlett would come and pay you four thousand dollars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you was to sell the land, is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, the next day she came and you talked some more about the same matter, did you?

Q. No, the next day—— I just can't remember how many days she was there, and I don't like to state anything that I can't remember, and I don't remember how many times she was there.

Q. I don't want you to state anything that you don't remember? A. She was there.

Q. Now, in which conversation was it, Minnie, that you had with Sadie that you read that letter, you read the letter that you had gotten from somebody, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Had you received a letter from anybody at that time?

A. Not when Sadie was there.

Q. You hadn't gotten that? A. No, sir.

Q. You had received correspondence hadn't you, you write to people? A. Yes.

Q. And you don't remember having shown Sadie any letter? A. I didn't show Sadie any letter at all.

Q. Well, now, what was it you did talk about the second day, tell the Court?

Examination by the Court.

Q. First, Minnie, just let me see if you remember. You have told me about the first time she came there, then you say after telling you about Bartlett she went on her way. Now, can you remember the next time that she came back?

A. The next time—— I will study.

Q. Well, take your time. I want to know just what you remember about it? A. Ask me the question again, Judge.

Q. You told me about her being there the first day?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Her coming there and you finally let her in and she talked to you, and she told you about Bartlett and the four thousand dollars. Now, do you remember the next time she came back?

A. Well, she went away that day, she didn't stay very long and she went to town and I suppose, I don't know, I suppose she must have telegraphed Bartlett, because he was to come that Saturday to pay me the four thousand dollars; but she couldn't get connections with him or something.

Q. Well, did she come back the next day and tell you that?

A. Yes, sir, that she couldn't get connections with Bartlett.

Q. What time of day was that?

A. She came in the morning.

Q. You were at your house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She told you she couldn't get connection with Bartlett? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did she stay that time?

A. This was on a Friday she said she couldn't get connections with Bartlett.

Q. She didn't stay very long that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember anything she told you that day, or any talk you had further that she couldn't get connections with Bartlett, on that second trip?

A. Then, Saturday morning.

Q. Well, that was Saturday morning? A. Another day.

Examination by Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Let's don't refer to Friday yet. I want to ask you what day of the week it was that Sadie first come to see you?

A. I believe it was on a Monday.

Q. Now, on Tuesday did she come?

A. No, I think she skipped a day.

Q. Then, she came out to see you on Wednesday, what time Wednesday? A. Always in the morning.

Q. Always in the morning. Now, how long did she stay Wednesday? A. She never stayed very long that time.

Q. About how long? A. About an hour I guess.

Q. Now, during that hour you all talked about Tommy Atkins' land?

A. No, I didn't talk much. I just let her do the talking, I didn't have much to say.

Q. What was she talking about?

A. Trying to get it for Bartlett.

Q. Now, what did she say in that conversation, as nearly as you can remember now?

A. Well, that is all she said; that she would wire Bartlett and have him come down and give me four thousand dollars for the land.

Q. That was on Wednesday. Well, she was there an hour, she talked more than that, didn't she?

A. Well, she talked to me lots, but I can't remember all that she really did say; some things I do and some things I can't.

Q. Did she say anything to you that day about making a Tommy?

A. Yes, after that she said they would make a Tommy, she didn't say she would.

Q. Did she tell you who would help?

A. She was going to have me do it, I told her my Tommy was dead.

Q. All you had to do was tell the people when they come was you had a Tommy Atkins?

A. I told them I had a Tommy Atkins.

Q. That was the understanding between you and Sadie, was it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, on Thursday, did she come out to see you?

A. Well, I don't know whether it was or not, I couldn't say who was there.

Q. Did somebody come to see you?

A. Mr. Long came while she was coming.

Q. No, on Thursday did Mr. Long come?

A. I don't know whether it was Thursday or not, but I know he came. You see, the idea was this: Sadie tortured me and run after me so about this land that I could not tell the dates, because I was all unstrung and didn't know what to do, was just upset so.

Q. But you said Sadie came out Friday?

The Court: I was trying to get at it, the days in the week—Minnie, I want to ask you one more question. How long was it after Sadie first visited your house there before Mr. Long came, about how many days.

A. I think Sadie was at my house about—I think she was out there about three days before Mr. Long came.

The Court: All right.

Q. Now, you said she came out Friday and told you Bartlett couldn't come; now, was that before or after Long came that Sadie told you? A. Before Long came.

Q. That was before Long came? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Long came how many days after that?

A. He didn't come but one day.

Q. Well, but how long after Sadie told you she couldn't get connections with Bartlett? A. I don't remember now.

Q. Now, when Mr. Long come was Sadie there?

A. No, when Mr. Long came Sadie didn't come in; Sadie was walking up and down on the sidewalk with the detectives.

Q. Oh, there were detectives following her?

A. She had them to watch my house I guess.

Q. You think she had them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You thought she had them?

A. Well, she was talking to them.

Q. Oh? A. She told me they were detectives.

Q. They were following Sadie around?

A. No, Sadie went over to them.

Q. She was a little excited about them and kind of mad?

A. She was kind of worried.

Q. And Mr. Long or somebody went up there to see who they were, didn't they, Mr. Hanford or Captain MacNab?

A. No, I don't know—— I told them Sadie was up there. I told the Captain that Sadie was up there on the hill, but I didn't know who they were.

Q. Had you known Mr. Long before he came there that time? A. No, sir.

Q. You had never seen him before? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know any of the people that he was representing? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, when Mr. Long come, was that in the morning or afternoon? A. It was in the morning.

Q. Was there anybody at your house?

A. Captain MacNab was there and the two orderlies, and I won't say whether Mr. Hanford was or not, I just can't remember, but I know Captain MacNab and two orderlies were there.

Q. Did you and Mr. Long go in the house and have a little talk?

A. He was in the house there in front of everybody. He was in the front room.

Q. All of them were in the house there?

A. Yes, he didn't sneak around about it.

Q. But, I mean did you have a conversation where other people didn't hear you?

A. Yes, they all heard it in the front room.

Q. What was it Mr. Long said to you?

A. He just walked in and he said, are you Minnie Atkins? I said yes, I am Minnie Atkins. He said something else but I don't just remember. But anyhow, he asked me if I was Minnie Atkins.

Q. Then, did he ask you anything else?

A. I don't remember what that was.

Q. Well, did he ask you anything else?

A. I don't think he did, just asked me if I was Minnie Atkins.

Q. How long did Mr. Long stay there?

A. He didn't stay very long.

Q. Well, about how long did he stay?

A. Well, a few minutes, he was talking with the Captain, I didn't time him while he was there.

Q. The only question Mr. Long asked you then was "Are you Minnie Atkins?"? A. That is what he asked me.

Q. And you told him you were?

A. Yes, sir, Minnie Atkins.

Q. And then he left?

A. No, talked with Captain MacNab.

Q. But he never talked with you any more? A. No.

Q. You never talked with him any more on that trip, is that right? A. No.

Q. You never said another word to him on that trip, is that right? A. Not to my recollection, I might have.

Q. Then, he and Captain MacNab were talking out on the porch were they? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Long come to your house that afternoon?

A. Well, I couldn't say whether it was in the afternoon or the morning, but it seems to me like it was the morning.

Q. Did Mr. Long make two trips to your house?

A. No, just the once.

Q. Now, did anybody come to see you after Mr. Long had been there? A. No.

Q. Sadie James come, didn't she?

A. No, not after Mr. Long, Sadie didn't come no more because I didn't want to talk to her.

Q. Wasn't Sadie mad because Long was there?

A. She was when she was up on the sidewalk.

Q. She didn't want you to trade with Long?

A. No, sir, she didn't want me to have any dealings.

Q. How do you know she didn't?

A. I went up to her on the sidewalk and she says, who is in the house? And I says, Mr. Long. Well, she says, for heaven sake don't have any dealings with Long, I want to make a deal with Bartlett. I says I am going to deal with the man that is right with me.

Q. And you thought Mr. Long was the right man?

A. I thought Mr. Long was the right man and I just left.

Q. But all Long said to you was, "Are you Minnie Atkins?"? A. Are you Minnie Atkins.

Q. Then, did Sadie come back to see you the next day, which was Sunday?

A. Well, I can't just state how many times, I don't know.

Q. Did she come our there on Sunday?

A. Yes, she was there on a Sunday.

Q. Stayed with you quite a while?

A. She stayed quite a while I guess.

Q. Your husband was at that time away?

A. Yes, he was, was at Spokane.

Q And what did Sadie talk with you about now on Sunday?

A. Well, the same old thing. The same old thing, trying to get that land for Bartlett.

Q. That was after Mr. Long had been there, that Sunday?

A. Yes.

Q. And she stayed with you two hours, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was the same old thing, she wanted to talk to you and get you to sell the land to Bartlett? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She didn't want you to make the trade with Long?

A. No, she didn't want me to make the trade.

Q. Did she tell you she had been double crossed?

A. No, I don't remember.

Q. What did she say about Betty Mann?

A. She said Betty was helping her hunt me up.

Q. Did she say anything about Betty treating her unfairly and having gotten Long up there before she could get Bartlett? A. No, I don't remember.

Q. You knew Betty Mann was there?

A. She told me she was down town but I had never seen her.

Q. She wasn't known as Betty Crowell at Carlisle; she was known as Sarah Crowell?

A. Sarah Crowell when we went to school; I didn't go from here to Carlisle, I went from Tullehassee.

Q. Sadie had told you that Sarah Crowell, then Betty Mann, was there at Seattle helping her?

A. No, she said Betty Mann was in Seattle helping her.

Q. Helping her do what? A. To locate me.

Q. For what purpose, did she tell you?

A. For Bartlett. They were both working for Bartlett.

Q. Sadie told you that they were both working for Bartlett. Well, did Long tell you, or did he say it in your presence how he found out where you were?

A. I just can't remember what he did say to me about it.

Q. He said something about how he found you?

A. Yes, but I don't remember how he found out.

Q. Do you know whether he used the name Betty Mann at the time?

A. I don't know, I think he did, but I ain't sure.

Q. Now, then, who did come to see you between the time Long was there and the Sunday that Sadie was there?

A. Nobody didn't saw me.

Q. Mr. Hanford did, didn't he?

A. The Captain.

Q. Captain MacNab come with Hanford? A. Yes.

Q. Had you met Mr. Hanford before that?

A. No, I never did.

Q. You didn't know him at all? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, you didn't want any lawyer, did you?

A. Well, I said I didn't at the time.

Q. Well, that was the fact about it? A. Yes.

Q. Why didn't you want a lawyer?

A. Well, I don't know why.

Q. The reason you didn't want a lawyer is because you wanted to trade with Sadie?

A. No, I didn't want to trade with Sadie.

Q. You told Hanford you wanted to take that four thousand dollars, that was all the money you would need, that Sadie had offered you, didn't you?

A. I said she offered it to me, I didn't say I was going to take it.

Q. Told him you were going to take it?

A. I told him she offered it to me.

Q. You told him you didn't need the services of a lawyer, didn't you? A. Yes, I guess I did.

Q. Then, at that time, you wanted to trade with Sadie, and Sadie's man Bartlett?

A. Well, I thought she was dealing straight.

Q. And that was after Long had been to see you and had left? Is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Now, then, on that trip Long never came to see you any more? A. Yes, he came another time.

Q. Was that after he had been down to Tulsa? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you talk about Hanford going down to Tulsa with Long? A. Yes.

Q. Who told you about that?

A. I knew he was going, the Captain told me he was going.

Q. What did the Captain tell you he was going for?

A. To look after my land, to see that I wouldn't get robbed out of it and everything.

Q. And then Hanford and Long came back from Tulsa?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then what did Mr. Hanford tell you about the land when he got back?

A. Well, just told me, I don't just remember what he did tell me about it.

Q. Did you ask him about it? A. No, not very much.

Q. Did you ask him how much it was worth?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did he tell you how much he had been offered for it?

A. He said it was pretty valuable land.

Q. Did he tell you how much he had been offered for it?

A. Well, I don't think he did.

Q. Did you ask him? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ask Captain MacNab?

A. No, I didn't ask Captain MacNab about it.

Q. Do you remember anything Mr. Hanford told you about his trip to Tulsa? A. No, I don't just remember now.

Q. Now, then, Mr. Long come out to see you with Mr. Hanford did he? A. Yes.

Q. What did Mr. Long come for?

A. Well, he just come because he wanted to know my whole detail.

Q. That was the time then he asked you the details and asked you about Thomas Atkins?

A. Yes, he just wanted to know the truth about it.

Q. That was on the second trip?

A. That was on his second trip.

Q. He wanted to know the whole detail about it?

A. Yes, he wanted to know the whole truth.

Q. Did you try to tell him the whole truth?

A. Well, I didn't exactly tell him all that was the truth, because I didn't want anybody to know about my business.

Q. You didn't want to tell him where the child was born?

A. No.

Q. Was there anything else that you wanted to conceal at that time?

A. I wanted to conceal everything if I could.

Q. Well, did you want to conceal at that time the season of the year in which Tommy was born? A. No.

Q. And you told him that Tommy was born in the summer time, didn't you?

A. Well, he was born somewhere's in the summer.

Q. You told him that Tommy was born—— No, just kill that question. Was there any reason, Minnie, at that time, in your own mind, why you should conceal from Long the people for whom—the names of the people for whom you were working just before Tommy was born?

A. Well, I don't know, I can't state any reason, I just didn't want them to know how I got him.

Q. You just didn't want them to know how you got him, but it didn't make any difference to you at that time whether you got him at Hyde's or Grodevant's or Stafford's, or where you got him, just so they didn't know where you got him?

A. That was the idea.

Q. Now, you told Mr. Long that you had to quit Stafford's because you were pregnant with Tommy?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. You didn't tell him that?

A. No, I didn't tell him that.

Q. Didn't you tell him and he asking you about your life history that you first worked for Hyde, then worked for Grodevant, and then worked for Stafford, and quit Stafford because you were pregnant with Tommy? A. No, I didn't.

Q. You didn't tell him that?

A. No, I didn't tell him that.

Q. How, did you tell him that the last time that you ever heard from Tommy was in 1899 when he was living but sick?

A. No.

Q. If on the 9th of July, 1914, he sent a telegram to the Gem Oil Company at Tulsa, in which he said among other things: "Minnie last heard of boy in summer 1899, was alive then but sick; think he died soon after," he didn't get that information from you, is that right? A. No, I didn't tell him.

Q. You didn't tell him that? Now, you did tell him that the boy in your judgment was born in 1886 or '87 at the Sisters' Hospital, didn't you? A. Yes, I told him that.

Q. And that, at that time was your best judgment except as to the hospital part of it?

A. Well, I knew he wasn't born at the hospital but I just said that to him.

Q. At that time, was it your best judgment that Tommy was born in 1886 or '87?

A. He wasn't born in the hospital.

Q. I understand, but at that time when you were talking to Mr. Long, was it your best judgment——

A. Well, I was just——

Q. That Tommy was born in '86 or '87, and in the summertime?

By the Court.

Q. How is that? At that time I understand you thought that Tommy was born in '86 or '87?

A. No, he wasn't born in the hospital.

Q. Well, he wasn't born in the hospital but you told Mr. Long that he was born in the hospital?

A. Yes, but he wasn't born in the hospital.

Q. You told Mr. Long, also, that he was born in '86 or '87, do you remember about that?

A. I don't know just what month I told him because I don't remember the month, Judge.

Q. Well, I know, but do you remember the year, whether you told him in '86 or '87—what I am trying to get at is when you did tell him, the year you thought Tommy was born; did you try to tell him what you thought was the truth about the year?

A. Yes, about the year but he wasn't born at the hospital.

Q. What you told him about the hospital wasn't true?

A. Yes.

By Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. You told him what you believed to be true about the season of the year; in the summer time?

A. Yes, he was born in the summer.

Q. Now, Mr. Long told you too, didn't he that Tommy would have to be dead for you to have any interest in the land?

A. No, Mr. Long never said that to me in his life.

Q. Didn't Mr. Long tell you that if Tommy was your child, lived and died, the you would be the owner of the land?

A. I told Mr. Long, myself, that Tommy was dead.

Q. I understand, but didn't Mr. Long tell you three or four different times that if Tommy was born to you, lived and died, you would be his heir and would own the land?

A. Yes, that is what he told me.

Q. Now, when was it that Mr. Long told you that with reference to the 9th of July, if you remember the date that I have read this telegram that he sent?

A. I don't remember when he told me.

Q. Now, after that and on July 10th, which is the next day, did you tell Mr. Long that there was a woman in Denver who would remember Tommy's custodian and that Thomas died in 1900 or 1901? A. No.

Q. If on the 10th of July he sent a telegram to his company in which he said among other things that: "Minnie gives name of woman in Denver as remembering the name of Thomas' custodian. Will see her on the way back. Minnie's opinion is that he died 1900 or 1901," then he didn't get that from you? A. No, I don't know when Tommy died.

Q. Now, Mr. Long asked you at that time who you knew in Leavenworth, didn't he? A. Yes.

Q. And you told him all that you knew? A. Yes.

Q. Who were they? A. You mean the people?

Q. Yes, that you told Mr. Long about, not the ones you remember now, but the ones you told Mr. Long of up there at Seattle.

A. Well, I just remember those that I did tell you that I remembered.

Q. Well, who were they? A. I just told you.

Q. Well, I didn't catch the names; will you tell me again?

A. What people was around me when I was at Granny's, is that what you want?

Q. Oh, no. I want you to tell me who you told Mr. Long you remembered having known in Leavenworth.

A. Well, I knew Mr. Atchison, and I knew policeman, and I knew Bill Grape, and I knew quite a lot of people around there.

Q. Did you tell those to Mr. Long up there?

A. I told him that I knew those people.

Q. You told him at that time, did you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, aren't you mistaken, didn't you tell him at—subsequent to the time when you were down in Kansas City that you knew them?

A. I told him when I went to Leavenworth who I knew.

Q. Yes, when you went to Leavenworth but I mean up there when Mr. Hanford and Mr. Long came back from Oklahoma?

A. I don't just remember who all I told him I knew.

Q. Now, did you tell him anything about, or had you told anybody at that time, anything about the negro house, about the colored house, or were you trying to conceal that?

A. No, I told him that I used to go to Granny's.

Q. You told him at that time that you used to go to Granny's? A. Yes.

Q. You used that expression, did you? A. Yes.

Q. Granny Letcher's? A. Yes, I did.

Q. You told Mr. Hanford that, did you? A. Yes.

Q. At that time? A. Yes.

The Court: What time was that, Minnie? When did you tell them that?

A. I told them that when I was in Leavenworth, when they came out to—the second time they came out to Seattle when Mr. Long and Mr. Hanford came out to Seattle to see me, I told Mr. Long that is where I knew Granny Letcher at; that is where I had Tommy.

The Court: That was the second time?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie are you sure of that. Are you sure when

Mr. Long and Mr. Hanford came back from Oklahoma and when Mr. Long was talking to you getting your life's history, are you sure that you told him that this child was born at Granny Letcher's?

A. Well, it is either that—I either told him there or when I went to Leavenworth, I don't know; but I think I told him there.

Q. You think you told him there. Had you ever told anybody else? A. No.

Q. Now, you knew Granny Letcher pretty well, did you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What kind of looking woman was she?

A. Well, colored.

Q. Colored; well was she light, or dark or medium?

A. She was so dark, she was kind of brownish; not very black.

Q. She wasn't a coal black negro—that is, all negro?

A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Well, was she pretty nearly white?

A. No, she wasn't pretty nearly white, but she wasn't black; kind of a yellow like.

Q. Could she read and write?

A. I don't know; I never asked her.

Q. You never got a letter from her, then, did you?

A. I got a letter telling me Tommy was dead but I don't know that it was from her.

Q. But you didn't know; it wasn't signed Granny Letcher, was it? A. Yes, it was from Granny.

Q. It was from Granny? A. I think it was.

Q. Now, when did you remember that that letter was from Granny? A. When did I remember?

Q. Yes, when did you remember that that letter was from Granny Letcher?

A. I don't remember now, it has been so long.

Q. You told Mr. Long that you didn't know who you had left your child with, didn't you?

A. Well, I told him that because I didn't want to tell any of them where I had left him, and when I found that I just had to tell I told them the truth.

Q. You said a while ago that you thought you told Mr. Long that you gave birth to him at the negro house—Granny Letcher's?

A. Well, I knew I gave birth to him at Granny Letcher's.

Q. Well, did you tell Mr. Long that?

A. Yes, I think I did.

Q. Then, at that time you made that fact public to the world, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Then, why, when you went on the witness stand at Sapulpa, did you say he was born at the Sisters' Hospital?

A. Simply because I wanted to hide it if I could and when I seen I couldn't, I told them where I had it.

Q. But you had already told it to Mr. Long?

A. Sure.

Q. So, at the time, there existed when you gave your testimony at Sapulpa, no reason why you should conceal the place of that child's birth, was there?

A. No, but he wasn't born in the hospital.

Q. I understand, but why Minnie, did you swear in the court at Sapulpa after that, that he was born in the hospital?

A. I didn't swear.

Q. Didn't you give that testimony?

A. Yes, I gave it but I am just telling you why I gave it.

A. Well, you were under oath when you gave it, weren't you? A. I don't know.

Q. Ma'am? A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know that you are under oath now?

A. Yes, I know that I am under oath.

Q. Now, then if Mr. Long telegraphed to his company that you didn't remember the name, or description of the woman of person with whom you left Tommy, he was mistaken, was he? A. Yes.

Q. Ma'am? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you tell Mr. Long about all the children that you had given birth to? A. Yes, I told him.

Q. You are sure of that, are you? A. Yes.

Q. Had you told anybody else before that about all the children that you had given birth to?

A. Yes, I told several others but I don't just now remember who.

Q. Then, Minnie, in July, 1914, I will ask you if the following questions were asked and the following answers returned by you at Sapulpa: "Q. Minnie how many children are you the mother of? A. Thomas, Harvey, Charlie and Alice. Q. You never gave birth to another child? A. No, sir"; did you give that testimony?

A. I don't remember saying that I did have another one.

Q. You say now that you don't remember whether those questions were asked and those answers returned?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did there exist in your mind at that time any reason why you should conceal the birth of a child to which you had given birth? A. No, I don't know as I had any reason.

Q. If that question was asked you, did you want to answer the truth?

A. Well, I said when I had five, I did answer the truth.

Q. Just answer my question. Now, if that question was asked you, did you want to answer it truthfully?

A. I don't remember that was asked me.

Q. I understand, but if it was, did you want to answer it truthfully?

A. I wanted to answer the truth and tell them that I had the five, if I did have them.

Q. Minnie, did you tell Mr. Long about Robert Lee Peterkin? A. No.

Q. Why? A. Well, I just didn't tell him.

Q. Have you any reason? A. No.

Q. For not telling him to assign?

A. No, just didn't tell him.

Q. Ma'am? A. Just didn't tell him.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Hanford about Robert Lee? A. No.

Q. Why? A. I don't know; I just didn't tell him.

Q. Robert Lee was born in the summer time, wasn't he?

A. I don't just remember when he was born.

Q. In the month of July, wasn't he?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Robert Lee was born in 1886, wasn't he?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you tell them down at Sapulpa where you gave the testimony there, anything about Robert Lee? A. No.

Q. Why? A. I don't know why I didn't.

Q. He was a boy child that was born to you, lived, was named and died, didn't he? A. Didn't live long.

Q. But he lived a while and you named it, and he died?

A. I didn't name him; Peterkin named him.

Q. Now, he died in Leavenworth, didn't he, and was buried in Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. You said a while ago that you told Mr. Long that Tommy was buried in Leavenworth, is that true, did you tell that? A. No.

Q. Now, did you tell Mr. Long out there—I don't know whether I asked you this or not; I am trying not to repeat: Did you tell Mr. Long out there and Mr. Hanford, or either of them in that second visit that you didn't remember the name or the description of the woman that you left Tommy with? A. Yes.

Q. Well, did you tell them also that you had left Tommy with Granny Letcher?

A. Well, I left him with a colored woman, but I didn't tell them who.

Q. You didn't use the name Granny Letcher, then?

A. No.

Q. When you said a while ago that you did, you were mistaken then, were you? A. Yes, I reckon I was.

Q. Now, since you have made that correction, did you tell—do you now remember of telling Mr. Long that the last you heard of Tommy was in 1899, when he was sick?

A. No, I don't remember telling him.

Q. You don't remember of telling him that? Now, Minnie, you testified down at Sapulpa that you worked for Hyde's and then went to Fort Leavenworth and worked for Grodevant, and went from Grodevant's to Stafford's, and left Stafford's because you were pregnant with Tommy, didn't you?

A. No, I don't think I did.

Q. Were the following questions asked and answers returned by you at that time, in that testimony:

The Court: Where is that now?

Mr. Linebaugh: Sapulpa, in July, 1914.

Q. "Where did you from from Carlisle? A. I went to George H. Hyatt's"—the record here has it HYATT; I understood the name to be HYDE—"the banker in Leavenworth, Kansas. Q. How long did you work for him as cook? A. I stayed there three months. Q. Where did you go from there? A. From Leavenworth? Q. Who did you work for there? A. George Grodevant, the overseer or carpenter. Q. He was overseer of what? A. Do carpenter things for people. Q. Of what? A. Military prison. Q. Kind of a repair man? A. No, he seen that the prisoners done their work well; when they done things, he seen that it was well done; that is what they paid him for. Q. How long did you stay at Grodevant's? A. A year and six months. Q. Where did you [] from there? A. Lieut. Stafford's, a school officer there. Q. How long were you there at Stafford's? A. I was there about a year. Q. And how did you come to leave the Stafford's? A. Because I was with a baby by the name of Tommy Atkins." Was that your testimony there?

A. Well, I didn't leave the Stafford's to have Tommy.

Q. I understand that you don't say that now; but did you say that then? A. Yes, as far as I can recollect.

Q. Now, that was the very same thing that you had told Long in Mr. Hanford's presence that second trip that he took up there, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you told Mr. Long also that you was working for Stafford's just before you gave birth to Tommy, didn't you? He asked you about that? A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. But you testified to that also down at Sapulpa, didn't you? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was the following question asked you and the following answer returned by you at that time: "Q. With whom were you—with whom were you working immediately before you went to the hospital to give birth to the child? A. I just repeated it once before, who I was working for. Q. What was his name, again? A. His name was Lieut. Stafford." That is the testimony you gave at Sapulpa, wasn't it?

A. Yes, but I didn't have Tommy after leaving Stafford's.

Q. I understand, but——

The Court: She says yes, she gave that testimony.

Q. Now, that is what you told Mr. Long, isn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. Now that is true as to Robert Lee Peterkin, isn't it; you did have Robert Lee right after you left the Stafford's, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, when did it first occur to you to say that this child, Tommy Atkins, was born in the Sisters' Hospital? A. What did you say?

Q. When did it first occur to you to say that this child was born in the Sisters' Hospital?

A. I said that when Mr. Long and Mr. Hanford came down to Seattle to see me.

Q. I know, but why did you say it?

A. Why, I said it because I didn't want them to know that he was born in Granny's house.

Q. In a negro's house? A. Yes, that is why I said it.

Q. Well, why didn't you say he was born in some white woman's house, or over at the Fort, why did you say the hospital? A. Well, I was trying to hide it.

Q. Well, what was it you knew in reference to the hospital that prompted you to tell them it was in the hospital?

A. Because I was in there.

Q. That is it. You knew that you had been in there, didn't you, and you told them that fact, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And therefore when you went down to testify at Sapulpa you knew that you had at one time been in the hospital, didn't you? A. No, I never had any baby in the hospital.

Q. I know you didn't give birth to a child, but you had been there for other purposes, is that right? A. No.

Q. Well, you had been to the hospital?

A. Yes, I had been in the hospital.

Q. Now, you stated at Sapulpa, testified there, that on four or five different times the question was asked you four different times, that you had given birth to this child at the Sisters' Hospital? A. Yes.

Q. You knew that to be false?

A. Yes, I knew it was false.

Q. Had you before that time ever told anybody any story except the hospital story? A. No.

Q. As to the place of birth of Tommy? A. No.

Q. Then before that time you never had told Mr. Hanford that this child was born at an old negro woman's house, had you?

A. Yes, I had told Mr. Hanford it was born at Granny Letcher's.

Q. I know, but did you tell him before you gave your testimony at Sapulpa? A. No, I didn't tell anybody.

Q. You didn't tell anybody before that testimony, did you? A. No.

Q. Before you gave that testimony you were concealing from everybody the place of the birth, wasn't you? A. Sure.

Q. Now, the father of this child recognized him, didn't he, as his child?

Mr. Stuart: Which child?

Mr. Linebaugh: Tommy Atkins.

A. No, I had quit him when I had Tommy.

Q. Did you give this testimony at Sapulpa: "You don't know whether the father ever recognized the child or not? A. Sure he did." A. I never said that.

Q. You didn't say it. Now, you had to—after your Sapulpa testimony you had a trip, didn't you?

A. I went back home.

Q. Well, you went somewhere else before you went home, didn't you? A. I don't think so.

Q. Didn't you go up to Leavenworth?

A. Yes, I think I did.

Q. Who went with you?

A. Myself and Mr. Hanford; myself and Mr. Hanford, I think.

Q. What did you go for?

A. Oh, I don't remember whether I went or not after Sapulpa.

Q. Well, you did go, didn't you, you remember that you were in the hospital up there, weren't you?

The Court: Well, my recollection of the evidence is that that time she was in the hospital she was brought by Mr. Hanford from Seattle to Leavenworth.

Mr. Linebaugh: No, that was when she was an inmate of the hospital; illness.

The Court: Do you understand what he is asking you? You remember when you came to Sapulpa, don't you?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Now, when you left Sapulpa where did you first go?

A. I went to Leavenworth, to the Sisters' Hospital.

Q. That is it; now why did you go?

A. Well, I told Mr. Hanford that Tommy had born in the Sisters' Hospital, and he went to see if he had born in the Sisters' Hospital.

Q. He tell you before you started from Sapulpa that was what he was going for? A. No, he didn't tell me.

Q. Well, he told you why he wanted you to go along, didn't he? A. Well, I don't know but——

The Court.

Q. Minnie, what did Mr. Hanford tell you going to Leavenworth, or when you went from Sapulpa up by way of Leavenworth. what did he tell you?

A. He just said he was going to the Sisters' Hospital to see if I was telling the truth that he had born in the hospital.

Q. And then you went on up to Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you go out to the hospital with Mr. Hanford at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he looked at the records then? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where were you when he told you he was going there to see if you had told the truth about it, where was that; that down at Sapulpa, or on the way up there, or where?

A. No, I can't just remember that, Judge, when he told me that; that is what he went for.

Q. That is what he told you? A. Yes.

Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Do you remember when he told you that was what he was going there for, whether it was on the road or before he got there, or when?

A. I don't remember what he told me, but I know he went to see if I was telling the truth.

Q. And he went to a good deal of trouble looking over the records, didn't he, to see if you gave birth to the child?

A. Yes.

Q. You knew you had not?

A. I knew I had not given birth to a child in the hospital, but I knew I gave birth to a child.

Q. Why didn't you tell Mr. Hanford before he went to the trouble to look over the records?

A. Well, I just didn't tell him.

Q. Just didn't tell him and that is the only reason you want to state. Now, did Mr. Hanford go anywhere after that?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. Do you know of his going up to see Mr. Peterkin, did he tell you about going over to Boston, Massachusetts, to see Mr. Peterkin? A. Yes, he said he seen Peterkin.

Q. Well, do you know whether he went to see Mr. Peterkin? A. No.

Q. Do you know who gave him any information in reference to Mr. Peterkin? A. I did.

Q. You did. Now when did you give that to him?

A. When we was in Tulsa.

Q. Before the testimony or after the testimony at Sapulpa? A. I told him in Tulsa.

Q. Well, before you went to Sapulpa or after you came back from Sapulpa?

A. After I came back from Sapulpa.

Q. And before you had gone to Leavenworth, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what did you tell him about Peterkin at that time?

A. Oh, I just stalled him off again. I told him—I don't remember what I told him.

Q. Who was present when you did the talking?

A. Just I and Mr. Hanford, I guess.

Q. Just you and Mr. Hanford? A. Yes.

Q. Well, did you tell him about Peterkin being your sweetheart? A. Yes.

Q. Ma'am? A. Yes.

Q. And what else did you tell him?

A. Oh, I don't just remember now.

Q. Well, do you know how he found out where Peterkin was? A. No.

Q. How long was he gone over there to Boston before you saw him?

A. I don't know how long; I don't know anything about that.

Q. You knew he was going?

A. Yes, I thought he was going; I didn't exactly know.

Q. Now, then when he came back what did he tell you?

A. Well——

The Court.

Q. If you remember what Mr. Hanford told you, when he got back, after he saw Peterkin, you may state.

Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Tell us what he told you.

A. When he got back he said what made you tell me that Peterkin was Tommy's father. I said I just said it to be saying, I knew I wasn't telling the truth.

Q. Go ahead. Anything else?

A. That is all he said to me.

Q. He said what made you tell me that Peterkin was Tommy's father, when you knew it was not true. Then where were you when he told you that?

A. He came back to Seattle.

Q. He came back to Seattle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then did Mr. Hanford go anywhere?

A. I don't know where he went after that.

Q. Well, now, when was it, Minnie, that you had told Mr. Hanford that Peterkin was Tommy's father? A. Tulsa.

Q. Tulsa, and who was present at the time you told him?

A. Just I and Mr. Hanford.

Q. Where were you in Tulsa? A. In the hotel I think.

Q. How come you to tell him that, just tell the court about how the conversation arose and why you told him?

A. Just because I wanted to tell him; just wanted to tell him to stall him off.

Q. Tell him to stall him off; stall him off of what?

A. Didn't want to tell the truth about Tommy, about his father.

Q. Now, Minnie, Mr. Hanford came back to Seattle and how long was he there before you came down to—oh, I am getting a little ahead. Now, when you went up to Leavenworth with Mr. Hanford, did you go about town any?

A. I don't remember.

Q. That time you went up there to look at the records in the hospital? A. No, we went back to the hotel.

Q. Well, didn't he get a buggy and drive you around town?

A. Oh, yes, he drove me around for me to show him where Granny lived.

Q. And you had told him then at that time about Granny, had you?

A. I told him I could tell him where she lived, if I went around to see in Leavenworth, I could remember that much.

Q. Well, when had you on that trip?

The Court: I want to ask Minnie a question right there. Had you told Mr. Hanford at that time what the name was of the colored woman that you left the child with?

A. Yes, I think I did.

The Court: You had told him before the first trip to Leavenworth?

A. I told him after we had been to the hospital.

The Court: After you had been to the hospital. All right.

Q. Who did you get that name from, Minnie?
A. Granny Letcher? Q. Yes. I always knew her.
Q. You knew her as somebody's granny?
A. Well, we all called her Granny that is all; but her right name was Molly Letcher, but we just called her Granny.
Q. You knew her as Sadie's granny?
A. No, I don't think she was anything to Sadie.
Q. Well, Sadie called her Granny?
A. I don't know what Sadie called her.
Q. You have heard that? A. No, sir.
Q. Never heard that.

And thereupon court recessed until nine-thirty o'clock A. M., May 30, 1917.

And thereafter, and on May 30, 1917, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., court convened pursuant to adjournment, and further proceedings herein were had as follows:

MINNIE ATKINS being recalled, further testified as follows:

Cross Examination by Mr: Linebaugh.

Q. Minnie, from the time that you left Carlisle School and went to Leavenworth, you have had to work for a living, haven't you? A. Yes, sir.
Q. You never had any surplus money during that time, have you?
A. No, I always had to work for a living.
Q. When you married Harry, Harry was an employee in the band, in the army? A. Yes.
Q. His salary wasn't very great, was it?
A. Thirty-six dollars a month.
Q. And you and him had to live on that thirty-six dollars? A. No, I worked out and helped him.
Q. Now, that was the condition of your finances in July. 1914, wasn't it? Harry was getting thirty-six dollars a month and you were working out to help him? A. Yes.
Q. Now, Minnie, did you get any money when you signed this lease? A. Yes, sir.
Q. How much money did you get?
A. Five thousand dollars.
Q. Well, they didn't pay that money to you, did they?

A. My lawyer got it for me.

Q. Hanford got three thousand of it and MacNab two thousand, and you didn't get any, did you?

A. I got my five thousand, yes.

Q. At that time? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you are mistaken about that, aren't you? You didn't get any money at that time, did you?

A. Not just right away but I got it.

Q. When you signed this lease, you didn't get any money, did you? A. No, not right away.

Q. Now, you needed money worse than Mr. Hanford needed it, didn't you? A. Well, I don't know.

Q. You needed it worse than Captain MacNab needed it, didn't you? A. Well, I don't know what they got.

Q. Well, didn't you want some of that money?

A. Sure, I wanted it.

Q. You needed it, didn't you Minnie?

A. Yes, I needed it; that is why I gave them the lease.

Q. And they wouldn't give it to you, did they?

A. Yes, they gave it to me.

Q. Not at that time, did they?

A. No, but they gave it to me.

Q. Well, why didn't they give it to you at that time, Minnie?

A. Well, the reason I guess—the reason they didn't give it to me right then, I didn't tell right out everything, you know.

Q. Well, now Minnie, that was before you had ever told them any story in court, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And there was five thousand dollors up there that they [] give you a cent of, did they?

A. Well, I don't know how that was.

Q. Well, you didn't get any?

A. I don't remember how.

Q. Why didn't you get any? Didn't you ask them about it, Minnie? Didn't you talk that matter over with your husband?

A. I don't remember whether I did or not.

Q. But you can't tell us why you didn't get any of the money at that time? A. No.

Q. It was your money, wasn't it?

A. Yes, it was my money.

Q. Well, have you ever gotten any of that five thousand dollars, the first five thousand dollars?

A. Why, yes, I got the five thousand.

Q. Well, did you think the lease was made for five thousand dollars?

A. No, the lease was made for ten thousand; Mr. Hanford got five thousand and I got five thousand; that made ten thousand dollars.

Q. Well, what did Mr. Hanford get five thousand for?

A. To look after it for me as far as I know.

Q. Did you have anything to do with that part of it, Minnie? A. No, I didn't have anything to do with it.

Q. Who did have anything to do with that part of it, Minnie? A. I don't remember.

Q. But somebody besides yourself? A. Sure.

Q. Now, Minnie, they didn't pay you any money for a long time, did they?

A. Well, they didn't pay me for a month afterwards, any way.

Q. Well, it was several months, wasn't it?

A. No, it wasn't several months.

Q. Well, now, what did Mr. Hanford tell you when he came back from Oklahoma, about you part of the money?

A. I don't just remember what Mr. Hanford told me about that money.

Q. Well, you asked him about it, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, can you tell us what he told you?

A. Well, when he came back, he just told me that he had got ten thousand for the lease.

Q. You asked him for your part, didn't you?

A. Yes, I asked him.

Q. Now, what did he say?

A. He said he would get it after—he would give it to me.

Q. When?

A. Well, he didn't state when—he said he would give it to me.

Q. But he didn't give it to you at that time; you hadn't told the story, is that it? A. I guess that is it.

Q. That is what you said a while ago, is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. They were waiting for you to tell your story before they gave you any money, that is a fact, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, you had been here at court all the time during this trial, haven't you? A. Yes.

Q. You have heard almost all the witnesses testify, haven't you? A. Yes, I heard them.

Q. Now, you didn't hear Mr. Long testify, did you? You wasn't in the courtroom when he gave his testimony, was you?

A. Well, I could have been in.

Q. I understand, but you wasn't was you?

A. Well, I just got tired of coming in and sitting.

Q. Did anybody tell you not to be in the courtroom when Mr. Long testified?

A. No, nobody didn't tell me; they told me to come over every day if I wanted to.

Q. Now, Minnie, if Mr. Long wrote to his company that somebody was proposing to make a negro of the father of your boy, he didn't get that information from you did he?

A. I don't know anything about Mr. Long doing that.

Q. Well, if he testified that he had written a letter which contained the statement that somebody was figuring on making a negro the father of your child, he didn't get that information from you did he?

A. No, he didn't get it from me.

Q. If he wrote a letter saying that Rube Smith was the uncle of your child, he didn't get that information from you. You never co-habited with a negro man in your life, did you?

A. No.

Q. Now, Minnie I believe you said yesterday that you never had any negro blood in you that you know of?

A. Well, I haven't that I know of, if I have I don't know it.

Q. Now, if you were referring to a gentleman, you would mean a white man or an Indian, wouldn't you?

A. If I was referring to a gentleman?

Q. Yes, using that expression, the gentleman did so and so, you would refer to a white man or an Indian? A. Yes.

Q. Now, if you used the expression a lady, you would refer to a white woman or an Indian woman? A. Yes.

Q. You wouldn't refer to a negro woman using that expression, would you? A. No.

Q. Now, Minnie, in Sapulpa when you gave your testimony there, were the following questions asked you and answers returned: "Who is the lady you left Thomas with? A. I don't remember."

Mr. Stuart: Who was it asked that question, Mr. Linebaugh, please?

The Court: Who was conducting the examination?

Mr. Linebaugh: Well, I want to beg the court's pardon, I want to start in ahead of this, I will get to that presently.

The Court: It doesn't appear who was interrogating.

Q. Now, when Mr. Hanford was interrogating you, was the following questions asked and answers returned by you: "Q. Minnie, where did you go after you left the Sisters' Hospital? A. After I left the Sisters' Hospital I carried him to a lady to take care of him in Leavenworth by the day and I went out to work. After work I would always come back to him."

The Court: Was that your testimony at Sapulpa Minnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, also this by Mr. Hanford while he was examining you was the following question asked and answer returned: "Q. Minnie where did you go from Leavenworth? A. I gave Thomas Atkins to a lady to keep for me; now, at the time I couldn't get work, and the Eighteenth Infantry left there and I went to Denver, Colorado, and then to Fort Logan."

The Court: Was that your testimony at Sapulpa, Minnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, then, on cross examination by Mr. Gresham, was the following question asked and answer returned: "Q. Who is the lady you left Thomas Atkins with? A. I don't remember"? A. I said that.

Q. And then also to Mr. Gresham, was the following question asked and answer returned: "Q. What kind of a looking woman was she? A. That's too far back. Q. You remember all these things that occurred at that time? A. I can remember, yes, but I don't remember that. Q. That is one of the things you have forgotten? A. I may not have forgotten it, it has been sometime, it may come to me, if it does I may have the pleasure of telling you."? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: That was still at Sapulpa?

Mr. Linebaugh: All of these questions that I am asking until I tell you were at Sapulpa.

Q. Now, was the following question asked and answer returned, when Mr. Lytle was cross examining you: "Q. You say you don't know with whom you left Tom Atkins? A. I don't remember the lady's name."? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then, to Mr. Lytle further, did you say: "Q. And yet you drew a payment for him the same as if he was alive, is that right? A. Yes, and I drew for four of us I knew he was dead then. Q. How did you know it, you had not seen him for five years, had you? A. Well, I was corresponding with the lady."? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that question asked and answer returned?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was this question asked and answer returned, you were asked about getting work from Thomas: "Q. And who did you get that work from? A. That lady I can't tell you about. Q. You don't know where the lady is now? A. No, she is dead."? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, was the following question asked and answer returned: "Q. I believe you stated that while you were at Fort Wayne, near Detroit, you learned that this lady had died? A. Yes. Q. How did you obtain that information? A. I got a letter from another lady." Were those questions asked and answers returned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then was the following question asked and answer returned: "Do you know the address of the lady at Leavenworth who had the care of your child? A. No."? A. No.

Q. That was not your testimony, is that correct?

A. Yes, I didn't know.

Q. You did answer that question as it was asked, as I have read it to you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, was Granny Letcher a married woman if you knew her in 1885, was she married at the time?

A. Now, I can't remember if she was married.

Q. You don't know if she had a husband or not at that time? A. No, I don't know.

Q. If you knew Granny Letcher in 1885, you knew that there was some children in her home?

A. Yes, children were there.

Q. There was Walter Banks, Sam Nash, and Jim Mayo?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, if you testified at Sapulpa that the lady that you left Tommy with had a husband but didn't have any children, you didn't have in mind Granny Letcher at that time, did you? A. What did you say?

Mr. Linebaugh: Just read the question to her.

The Court: Did she so testify?

Mr. Linebaugh: Yes, sir.

Q. Were these questions asked and answers returned by you: "Q. Do you know what street she lived on? A. Oh, maybe I could find it. Q. What was her occupation? A. She taken in washing for a living; worked around. Q. Did she have a husband? A. Yes. Q. What was his occupation? A. I don't know. Q. Did she have any other children? A. No."?

A. No, she didn't take in no washing that I——

Q. Wait a minute; were those questions asked you and those answers returned by you when you were giving your testimony at Sapulpa?

A. Well, I don't know; I don't remember saying that.

Q. You don't know whether you said that or not? A. No.

Q. If you did say that, Minnie, you didn't have in mind Granny Letcher at that time, did you?

A. Well, I always knew about Granny Letcher but I didn't say much about it.

Q. But you didn't know whether she had a husband and you did know she had children?

A. Well, she must have had a husband.

Q. Now, Minnie, you had a friend over at Fort Wright, when you lived at Seattle, named Mrs. Richardson, didn't you?

A. Yes, she wasn't no friend of mine; I just knew her.

Q. You just knew her. You found out that she was fixing to sail for Alaska about that time, didn't you?

A. Well, I don't know whether she was going to go to Alaska or not.

Q. Somebody told you that she was, didn't they?

A. I don't know about that.

Q. Did Sadie and you talk about Mrs. Richardson?

A. She said that she found out from Mrs. Richardson where I was living in Seattle, Washington.

Q. Sadie told you she found out from Mrs. Richardson where you were living in Seattle, Washington? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, how did Sadie find out what house you lived in, Minnie?

A. She found my husband in the Post and he directed her to my house.

Q. And she came down to your house pursuant to that direction? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Minnie, after Mr. Hanford came back from Boston, you and Mr. Hanford came down to Leavenworth, didn't you—Kansas City? A. Yes.

Q. You were traveling alone, that is, there were no other persons with you from Seattle?

A. Just I and Mr. Hanford.

Q. You talked about the case, did you, coming down?

A. Well, not very much.

Q. You talked a little? A. Yes.

Q. Minnie, did Mr. Hanford accuse you on that trip of having testified to lies down at Sapulpa and tell you that you would have to straighten it up and change that story?

A. No.

Q. Didn't he tell you on that trip, coming down on the train, that you had lied in your testimony and that you had to straighten up those lies? A. No.

Q. He didn't tell you that? Didn't he take you into the drawing room of the Pullman car and tell you that?

A. I never was on the drawing room in the Pullman car.

Q. You wasn't in the drawing room of a Pullman car with Mr. Hanford any where on that trip from the time you left Seattle, until you got to Kansas City?

A. Never was in a drawing room in my ife with Mr. Hanford at any time.

Q. At any time? A. At any time.

By the Court.

Q. Now, Minnie, that means in the day time, whether at any time, on any trip, during the day time, you went in the drawing room, and talked with Mr. Hanford, in a perfectly respectable way; do you remember ever having done it?

A. I wasn't in no drawing room.

Q. Never was? A. No, sir.

By Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Now, Minnie, when did you first hear that they had gotten witnesses to prove about the birth of Tommy at Granny Letcher? A. I don't know.

Q. Do you remember who told you?

A. Nobody didn't tell me; nobody didn't tell me.

Q. Well, what did you and Mr. Hanford talk about on the trip from Seattle down to Kansas City?

A. Well, we just talked about different little things.

Q. Did he tell you about having been down to Leavenworth and getting some witnesses?

A. No, I don't think he did.

Q. Well, you heard that after you got down, didn't you, that there was some witnesses? A. Yes.

Q. Now, who told you?

A. Well, he said to me, if you go to Leavenworth, will you know some of the people around? And I said yes.

Q. Now, who did he mean when he said that?

A. I don't just remember now all he named.

Q. Can you name any of them that he told you? Asked you if you would remember?

A. Well, he just asked me would I remember some of them and I said yes, if I seen them I would remember them.

Q. Now, who was it you told him you would remember if you saw them?

A. Well, I would remember Mr. Atchison, and I remembered——

Q. Mary Hamilton?

A. I told him I knew Mary Hamilton.

Q. And Grandma Spain? A. I remembered her.

Q. And that was all you would remember wasn't it?

A. No, quite a bit I would remember if I seen them.

Q. Now, when they got you down there, who took you over to Leavenworth?

A. Who took me over to Leavenworth?

Q. Yes. A. From Kansas City?

Q. Yes. A. I think Mr. Long did.

By the Court.

Q. Minnie, you say you remembered Mr. Atchison; what do you remember about him when you lived in Leavenworth? Where did you see him?

A. He was just in the drug store.

Q. Mr. Atchison?

A. Not Mr. Atchison—yes, it was Mr. Atchison.

Q. He was the druggist? A. Yes.

Q. Who was Mr. Lange, or Lange?

A. I believe he worked for Mr. Atchison as far as I can remember.

By Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Now, what did Mr. Hanford tell you as to why he wanted you to go to Kansas City before you left Seattle for Kansas City?

A. When we left Seattle to go to Leavenworth?

Q. Yes, what did Mr. Hanford tell you that he wanted you to go down there for—what reason?

A. Well, he told me he wanted me to go to Leavenworth with him and the tell him the exact place where I had Tommy and I told him I would.

Q. Well, you and he had been to Leavenworth before that, hadn't you?

A. Well, I had just kind of forgotten; I didn't want to tell right out, that was the reason.

Q. What made you remember—what had happened in the interim to make you remember, if anything?

A. Well, I just remembered. I just studied it out, and studied, and studied, and remembered.

Q. Let's see; then you got down to Kansas City, and Mr. Long took you over to Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you went around there at Leavenworth and met people, Mr. Long took you around, and met people, didn't you? A. Well, the people knew me as soon as they seen me.

Q. Yes, they knew you just as soon as they saw you, and then after that Mr. Long took you back to Kansas City, didn't he? A. Yes, we went to Kansas City.

Q. Then, Mr. Long, Mr. Hanford, Mr. Page, and Mr. Josey and Mr. Rice all got in a room there at Kansas City and brought a stenographer in and asked you to tell them what you knew about it, didn't they? A. Yes.

Q. And you had several sessions there about telling them what you knew, you didn't finish it all at one sitting, did you?

A. Yes, I finished it.

Q. That is, you would talk a while and they would ask you to think about it, think about certain matters, and then you would come back, or after a while they would talk again and then you would think about something more, some more matters, and then they would talk again? A. No.

Q. They told you there that they wanted you to tell the truth, didn't they, about this matter? A. Yes.

Q. And then they proceeded to tell you what the truth was?

A. No, they didn't tell me I told them myself, they didn't tell me what to say.

Q. No, they didn't tell you what to say. Now, they asked you there who you remembered at Leavenworth, didn't they, and the only persons you could tell them without suggestion on their part was Mary Hamilton, and Grandma Spain, isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. And they would suggest to you, why you knew Rube Smith, and then you would say yes, is that right?

A. Yes, I knew him because he used to hang around Letcher's all the time.

Q. I understand. Now, you didn't know Crilly very well then, did you? A. I used to get rigs from Crilly.

Q. When you were talking over there at Kansas City, you didn't know even the name of that livery stable, did you?

A. Oh, yes, I did.

Q. Didn't they ask you this question, were these questions asked you and answers returned there at Kansas City: "Q. Was there a livery stable near there"—— Talking about Granny Letcher's place on Seneca Street. "Yes, I can't think of the name. Q. Was it Crilly? A. Some such name as that." Is that what you told them at that time? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, you didn't have, down there at Leavenworth, any women or girl associates, did you?

A. I used to run around some with Ida Foster.

Q. You did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you testified in your deposition before Mr. Penick, that you ran around with Ida Foster, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. And you testified in that deposition that Ida Foster and you were running around together at the time Tommy was conceived, didn't you?

A. I don't remember saying that.

Q. You testified there in that deposition that you and Ida Foster would go to a certain hotel and do things at that hotel, didn't you? A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, you do remember Ida Foster, don't you?

A. I remembered her right along.

Q. And you testified in the deposition out at Seattle last year that you knew Ida Foster well and ran around with her, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, they asked you something about Ida Foster there at Kansas City, didn't they? A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell them this: "Q. Do you remember a girl named Ida Foster? A. Well, that is the girl that Mr. Smith said I went around with, you know; I might have went around with her, but I don't remember. Q. You don't remember her at this time? A. No."

A. I said that, but I remembered her.

Q. You told them that, but you did remember? A. Yes.

Q. How come you, between that time, and the time you testified before Mr. Penick, to remember Ida Foster so well, what happened in the interim?

A. Well, I just went around with her.

Q. To recall it to your mind?

A. I just went around with her.

Q. Between this time at Kansas City and the time you testified before Mr. Penick, who had you talked to about it, Minnie? A. Nobody had talked to me about it at all.

Q. Now, Mary Smith, they asked you about her, didn't they; they took you over to Leavenworth to see her? A. Yes.

Q. She was one of your witnesses that testified for Mr. Page and you at Leavenworth?

A. I don't know whether she testified or not.

Q. Well, now, Mary Smith didn't remember you when she saw you, did she? A. She said she did.

Q. They asked you about Mary Smith there at Kansas City, didn't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, didn't you say this: "Q. Could you hear Granny talking to her?" That is Mary Smith. "A. Yes, this Mrs. Smith, it wasn't a brick building you know, and she come up and she went down stairs and she said, why this is a white woman you have up stairs, and when anybody is sick they look white, you know, and Granny said no she isn't a white woman, she has got some Indian in her; and this lady says, oh, no, she hasn't. And when I saw her afterwards she was telling me about that, and I said, well that was me, and she said, well, you weren't that stout, and I said well, I was just a kid then." Is that what you told them at Kansas City?

A. Yes.

Q. You were trying to tell them the truth, were you?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, now, what had happened between that time and this, that has made you remember Mary Smith so well?

A. Oh, I don't remember that so well.

Q. Now, Minnie, they asked you about Rube Smith there, didn't they? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I asked you a while ago about your testimony taken before Mr. Penick in the deposition, with reference to Ida Foster. Were these questions asked you and answers returned by you with reference to Ida Foster: "Q. I hope now that you will be able to answer this question and not have any more scenes. Did you ever go up to this hotel with Ida Foster there with two men? A. I think I and her was up there but I don't know about two men, we used to go up there and get something to drink a good deal at the hotel." And furthermore did you say, was this question asked: "Q. Minnie, I will quit asking you about your men associates and ask you about a girl or two if you will calm down. What girls did you see there in Leavenworth? A. I ran around with a girl by the name of Ida Foster a good deal. Q. Do you know where Ida Foster is now? A. No. Q. When was the last time you ever heard of Ida Foster? A. I haven't heard of her since I left Leavenworth. Q. Was she married at that time? A. She was a young girl running around. Q. Was she an Indian girl? A. No, she had some color in her. Q. Where did she live? A. She used to hang out at Granny's too, I don't know where her home was." Were those questions asked and answers returned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, was there anything happened between the time you told these gentlemen about Ida Foster in Kansas City, and the time you testified that made you remember her better, that you can state to the Court? A. No.

Q. Now, I believe I had asked you before referring to that deposition, if they asked you about Rube Smith up there at Kansas City. They did ask you about Rube Smith, didn't they? A. They asked me if I knew him.

Q. Yes, you didn't know him very well at that time, did you? A. I knew him.

The Court: Now, get to the questions, Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Was this question asked and answer returned by you: "Q. Well, do you remember seeing Rube around there about the time the child was born"—talking about Rube Smith. "A. Well, I think the day I was sick, he came there and delivered some groceries to Granny Letcher; I don't know much about Rube." A. Yes, I said that.

Q. Now, Minnie, you didn't want to testify to that story that they were talking about in Kansas City, did you?

Mr. Stuart: Now, I object to that, Your Honor, that story covers a vast field. If there was a fact that she was asked to testify to and did not testify to, I think he ought to present it.

The Court: Well, if the witness understands the story——

Mr. Linebaugh: I will ask this question.

Q. I will ask you if you didn't understand at that time the Leavenworth story, did you? A. Yes, I understood that.

Q. You did. Well, didn't this happen: weren't these questions asked and answers returned: "Q. Do you remember the name of John McCormick, yourself or did you say that because it was suggested to you? A. No, I remember I said it yesterday. Q. You remember that yourself? A. Yes. Q. Now, after you left Leavenworth, you went to Denver? A. For Fort Logan. Q. And who did you go with to from Fort Logan? A. Gee, do I have to go over all that again? Q. Yes. A. What was it? Q. Who did you go with to Fort Logan? A. Does that come in about Thomas Atkins? Q. Yes. You will have to tell the whole story; there is no question about that and you will have to tell it on the stand. A. I ain't going to court. Q. Well, that is up to you but that is what you will. A. I will tell all about that part of it; what I want to have upon my mind is the Leavenworth affair." Were those statements made there in Kansas City?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember? A. No.

Q. Do you remember telling them that you wouldn't go to court? A. I knew I would have to go to court.

Q. Just answer my question, please.

A. No, I don't think I did tell them that.

Q. Now, Minnie, you had told Mr. Long that this boy was born in the summertime; hadn't you? testified to that?

A. Yes, he was born in the summer.

Q. Now, when they were talking to you at Kansas City, you changed the season of the year, didn't you, and told them there that the child was born in the winter time?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Didn't you? "Q. What time of the year was this child born? A. Some where in 1885, I think. Q. Was it in the summer or in the winter? A. It was in the winter." And further did you say: "Q. Now the child was born in the winter time? A. Yes, in the winter like; she had to buy lots of wood and coal, it must have been in the winter." Did you answer those questions? A. I can't remember.

Q. Well, if you did, why did you change the season at which the child was born?

A. Well, I just thought it over and it was somewheres in the summer. It was right in the winter.

Q. Now, you also changed the season and put it in cold weather when you testified before Mr. Penick and gave your deposition there, didn't you, at Seattle? Were the following questions asked and the following answers returned by you at Seattle when you gave your deposition: "Q. Minnie, what time of the year was Thomas born? A. It was between warm and cold; I think it was getting summer but it was cold yet. Q. Still cold, yet? A. Still cold." Is that right, did you give that testimony?

A. Well, I don't remember whether I did.

Q. Now, did you tell them up in Kansas City, that he was born in the winter?

A. In the summer, towards winter but it was in the summer as far as I can remember.

Q. Now, Minnie, did you nurse Tommy at the breast?

A. Yes, I nursed him a while.

Q. How long did you nurse him?

A. Well, I nursed him when I was in Leavenworth as long as I was around there.

Q. For how long? A. I don't just remember how long.

Q. In the receivership hearing when you testified in this court, were the following questions and answers returned by you: "Q. Did you stay at Granny's after he was born and stay with him there also? A. Yes, I nursed him while he was there. Q. How long? A. I just can't say. Q. About how long? A. I don't know. Q. A month? A. I can't say. Q. Less than a week? A. Well, I nursed him quite a while. Q. Six months? A. Yes, about that." Is that right?

A. Yes, I said that.

Q. You nursed him then about six months; that is your recollection, is it? A. That is my recollection.

Q. Baby at your breast and nursing, you remember that, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, you didn't have intercourse, or permit any man to have intercourse, sexual relations with you while you were nursing your baby, did you?

A. Well, I don't know if I did.

Q. Well, you know whether you did or not? A. No.

Q. You didn't. You told these gentlemen at Kansas City that too, didn't you; that you didn't have intercourse with any man while you were nursing your baby—Tommy; is that right? A. I don't remember that I did.

Q. Let's see if you did. Were the following questions asked: "Q. Did Tommy nurse? A. Yes. Q. During the time that he was nursing did any man come to see you? A. No." A. I don't remember that.

Q. Now, Minnie, you told them at Kansas City, that your first child was a boy, didn't you?

A. My first child is a boy; I said that and that is right.

Q. And that is the truth, isn't it? A. That is the truth.

Q. You further told them there that your second child was a girl, didn't you? A. I didn't tell them anything.

Q. Now, let's see: "Q. Your first child was a boy, was it, Minnie? A. Yes, Thomas Atkins. Q. That is your first child? A. Yes." A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, was the following questions asked and the answers returned: "Q. You never lived with Peterson"—I presume that refers to Peterkin—"at Leavenworth? A. No. Q. Now, where was your second child born? A. At Denver, Colorado, and her name was Mabel. Q. That was a girl? A. Alice was her right name. Q. That was a girl? A. Yes."

A. Yes, I said that.

Q. Now, you also testified to that in Mr. Rice & Lyons' office in October, 1914, a little while after you were talking to these gentlemen at Kansas City, didn't you? Over there when they were taking your deposition in Mr. Rice and Lyon's office wasn't this question asked you: "Q. When was Alice born with reference to the time that Thomas was born? A. Alice was born in Fort Logan, and Thomas in Leavenworth. Q. Alice was born afterwards? A. Thomas was first and then Alice."? A. I said that.

Q. You said that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, did you hear of Mr. Hanford writing a letter to Mr. Peterkin, asking him not to tell anybody what he knew concerning you? A. No, I never did.

Q. Never heard. Now, Minnie, up there at Kansas City, they told you that it was going to be pretty hard to get over that hospital story, didn't they?

A. No, they didn't tell me nothing.

Q. Let's see. They were talking about your Sapulpa testimony: "Now, you testified at Sapulpa that you left Lieutenant Stafford's because you were with a baby, Tommy, that wasn't true, was it? A. No, because—— Q. And you testified that you went from there, from Lieutenant Stafford's to the Sisters' Hospital, that isn't true, is it? A. No, I had him in town. Q. Now, why did you testify that way down at Sapulpa? A. Now, I just can't remember you know, Mr. Rice, how they get at you. I don't know how to tell you, what to say. Q. Well, now, was it because you didn't—— A. I didn't want them to know right out. Q. What kind of a place Granny Letcher's was? A. Exactly. Q. Well, that is what you must say because it is difficult to explain that testimony, and I want you to tell the reason why you testified that way at Sapulpa." Did that happen? A. I didn't want to tell them.

Q. Did that happen? Did that happen at Kansas City, what I have just read to you? A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, Minnie, you told Judge Stuart yesterday that you remembered the father of Thomas Atkins?

A. I always knew the father.

Q. You always knew?

A. I always knew the father of my child.

Q. You was asked that question at Sapulpa when you gave your testimony, and Mr. Hanford your attorney objected to your being required to answer, didn't he?

A. Well, he just objected because I told him I wouldn't tell him.

Q. Told him you wouldn't tell him and he objected. Now, he was your first sweetheart?

A. Yes, my first sweetheart.

Q. Did he ever make you any present of things?

A. Yes, he used to give me things.

Q. Well, now, do you remember any present he ever gave you?

A. Well, he didn't give me any present, he used to give me money once in a while.

Q. But, when you first got to going together and he was making up to you? A. No.

Q. Did this man Oliver ever make presents to you?

A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Peterkin, did he ever make you any presents?

A. No.

Q. Well, did you buy things about town for your own pleasure, these little trinkets? A. Yes.

Q. Now, tell us some things you bought back there in 1884? A. Sometimes I bought beads and breast-pins.

Q. You bought some beads, did you, when did you buy them? A. I don't remember.

Q. Where did you buy those beads? A. In the store.

Q. What kind of beads were they, Minnie, do you remember? A. I think they were red.

Q. And then did you buy anything else?

A. Breast-pins, handkerchiefs and things that way.

Q. Now, where did you buy the breast-pin?

A. I don't remember the stores it has been so long.

Q. Do you remember the store where you bought the beads? A. No.

Q. Do you remember the store where you bought the breast-pin? A. No.

Q. Well, did you buy anything else for yourself that you now remember? A. No, I don't remember.

Q. Now, Minnie, you didn't know who the father of Tommy was? A. I always knew the father of my child.

Q. Now, just wait a minute. But you didn't know who to say the father of Tommy was when you were up at Kansas City? A. I knew all the time, I just didn't say it.

Q. Well, they was wanting you to say that you didn't have any steady company at that time when Tommy was conceived, didn't they? A. No, sir.

Q. And didn't you say that?

A. No, I don't remember saying it.

Q. Well, now, let's see. First, I will ask you if this happened when they got to talking about the men that would come to see you; was this statement made to you in the form of a question: "Did you take men there with you, or did men come there to see you, that is what I mean, how about that, Minnie, go ahead, it will all be over with in a little while."

A. No.

Q. Minnie, when you were talking there at Kansas City, did the following occur: "Q. Did you get with child after you left Hyde's? A. Yes, after I left Hyde's, I was around town. Q. Minnie, you left Mr. Hyde's—were you going with any man particularly? You had no sweetheart or lover particularly? A. No, I didn't want any. Q. And you were going with a number of men, were you? A. No, I wasn't going with a number, either. Q. Well, what were [] doing? A. Oh, I was just around. Q. Running around pretty well? You weren't going with any particular man, you say, when you left there. Were there two or three men going with you particularly when you left Hyde's? A. About two I guess. Q. Do you remember their names? A. No." That happened?

A. No.

Q. That didn't happen at all. Now, this is the first time when you have ever given a written statement or given testimony when you have named or have undertaken to name the father of the child you claim to have had named Tommy, isn't it? A. Yes. I always knew the father of the child.

Q. But this is the first time that you have ever undertaken to tell it?

A. Well, I just made up my mind to tell the father of the child and I just told it.

Q. He was your first sweetheart?

A. Yes, my first sweetheart, at George H. Hyde's.

Q. And the father of your first child?

A. Father of Tommy Atkins.

Q. And you don't know his name, is that right?

A. His name is Lee.

Q. Lee what?

A. Well, I can't remember his last name; I did know his full name but I can't remember it.

Q. Now, Minnie, you told them there at Kansas City, that Mary Hamilton knew nothing at all about Tommy, didn't you?

A. No, she didn't.

Q. And that is what you told them at Kansas City?

A. She doesn't know anything about it.

Q. But you told Mr. Long up there in Seattle that Mary Hamilton, in Denver, could tell him where and who you left the baby with, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't tell Mr. Long that.

Q. You didn't tell him that? Now, you didn't get any letters from anybody about Tommy, did you, Minnie?

A. Yes, I got a letter.

Q. Now, did this happen in Kansas City? They were talking about your trip down here to the Territory and they asked you this question: "Q. Well, I mean the first trip. Now, the only letter you had from the Territory, when you made this first trip, was from Lee?"—that was your brother— "A. To come down. That was the first. Q. Up to that time had you had any letters from Granny Letcher about Tommy? A. No. Q. Did you get any letters at all from anybody about Tommy? A. No." Did that happen up there at Kansas City?

A. I don't remember if I said I didn't get any letter about Tommy.

Q. Now, the only letter that you ever did receive about Tommy was a letter from Wadsworth, inclosing a deed that he wanted you to sign that you got just before Sadie was up there, wasn't it?

A. No, I don't know nothing about that.

Q. When you gave your deposition at Seattle was the following question asked and answer returned: "The letter that you had telling you that Thomas was dead, you received that when you were at the Fort, just before you came to Fort Lawton, didn't you? A. Yes, sir. Q. There was a deed with that letter, was there? A. Yes. Q. And somebody wanted you to sign that deed, whoever wrote that letter, didn't they? A. Cad Wadsworth wrote the letter. Q. From Oklahoma? A. No, it was my sister's husband. Q. How? A. My sister's husband. Q. Where did he live? A. Out in the country. Q. Where from, out in what country? A. Thirty miles from Muskogee."?

A. I got a letter, but I don't know who wrote it.

Q. Did it contain a deed?

A. Yes, there was a deed to it.

Q. Now, what did you do with that letter that you got?

A. Well, I had it in my home and my husband burnt a lot of letters and I suppose it was burned up as I have tried hard to get it.

Q. Why did he burn it up?

A. Well, he was just burning up his own letters. We had a fuss.

Q. What did you fuss about?

A. Well, I don't remember now.

Q. Minnie, when did you first tell your husband about these children?

A. I never told him anything about my children.

Q. Well, when was the first time that you ever told your husband that you had been the mother of children and that you was the mother of children? A. I never told anything.

Q. Well, you have told sometime, haven't you?

A. He didn't know I had any children.

Q. Sure, he didn't know it when you were married?

A. No, sir, I didn't say anything then.

Q. And you didn't tell him until when, Minnie, when did you tell him?

A. Well, I just told him after this thing came up.

Q. After Sadie came to see you, then it was that you told your husband about your children?

A. Well, I don't know it was when Sadie came to see me.

Q. Well, it was that time or afterwards?

A. I don't remember just when it was.

Q. And then you had a fuss?

A. Never had no fuss about the children.

Q. Well, what did you fuss about?

A. Well, I don't know, I can't just remember, didn't amount to anything.

Q. Now, when was it you received this letter with the deed with reference to the time that you first told your husband about the children?

A. Well, that was a long time that he burned up the letters when we was in Seattle.

Q. He burned them in Seattle? A. Yes.

Q. Now, after you had told them at that time in Kansas City, that you had never received any letters about Tommy, they had an adjourned session, didn't they?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. And called you back and talked to you some more, isn't that right? A. No.

Q. And then, didn't this happen. You had in the meantime refreshed your memory in some way to remember that you did get a letter from somebody, saying that Tommy was dead? A. Yes.

Q. And then they said to you: "Q. Now, where was it you got a letter saying that Granny Letcher was dead? A. Detroit, Michigan. Q. What is the name of the Fort there? A. Fort Wayne. Q. And was it there that you got the letter saying that Tommy was dead? A. Yes, that is the place. Q.

Do you remember anything about that letter saying that Tommy was dead? What it said? A. It just says, I write to you as a friend to let you know that your baby was dead, that Granny Letcher had. See? Q. Yes. A. And a few other words, a few things besides that before she closed, you know. Q. It didn't say how it died, or anything? A. No, it didn't explain anything.""? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, you never told any of your relatives, except John Davis, about Tommy, did you?

A. I told my brother and him.

Q. You told your brother and John Davis?

A. Yes, I had those children.

Q. You wanted Harvey and Charlie—you wanted Harvey to be put on the roll because he was of Indian blood, and you wanted him to get his rights as a Creek Indian?

A. I just told them I didn't know how they was put on the roll.

Q. I know, you just told them because you wanted them to have their rights as Creek Indians?

A. I told them about Tommy, too, as well as Harvey and Charlie.

Q. So they could have their rights as Creek Indians?

A. Sure; I couldn't get anything; I wanted them to get something.

Q. You wanted them to have their rights as Creek Indians? A. Nobody didn't give me anything.

Q. You told them up there about coming down to the Territory, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You told them that you were down here for about a year, didn't you? A. Well, I judge that long.

Q. And that is your best judgment? A. Yes.

Q. How long before the payment, was it, that you came here?

A. Well, I don't remember just how long—the date.

Q. I understand; about how long had you been here before you took that horseback ride over to Okmulgee to get your money?

Q. I must have been here about three or four months as well as I can remember.

Q. And you stayed here altogether about a year?

A. Yes, I think it was.

Q. Now, after talking with you up there at Leavenworth—at Kansas City, they asked you how old Tommy was when you left Leavenworth, didn't they? A. Yes.

Q. You told them that he was about a year, or a year and a half old? Didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, that is what you testified to down at Sapulpa, wasn't it? A. Yes, I think I did.

Q. And you left Leavenworth in January, 1888, didn't you?

A. I don't know what month it was that I left; I don't remember months or dates.

Q. Well, it was in the early part of the year, wasn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you testified then at the Receivership hearing that Tommy was about two years old when you left Leavenworth?

A. Well, I can't exactly remember how old he was. I just give my best judgment about it; I didn't know.

Q. You were telling them as near as you could remember, there at Kansas City?

A. That is as I could tell—as near as I could remember.

Q. And you told as near as you could remember at Sapulpa? A. I don't know whether I did or not.

Q. That was about a year and a year and a half old when you left; now, Minnie, you now say to Judge Stuart, that it was two or three years—he was two or three years old when you left. Why do you make the change, Minnie?

A. Well, I studied it out more and more, and it come to me.

Q. Who helped you to study, Minnie?

A. I studied it myself; nobody made any suggestions to me.

Q. Well, you have been talked to a good deal, haven't you, Minnie?

A. Well, if I was talked to a good deal, I wasn't talked to for me to say something that I shouldn't say.

Q. What did they talk to you about, Minnie?

A. Different things.

Q. About how old Tommy was when you left Leavenworth, did they talk to you about that? A. No.

Q. Never did, is that right?

A. Well, I think they did ask me how old he was.

Q. Well, what did you tell them?

A. Well, my best recollection, I think he was about two or three years old when I left. I don't know; I just was judging.

Q. When you gave your Sapulpa testimony, Minnie, you had talked to fewer of your friends then than at any other time that you had made the statement in this transaction?

A. I don't remember.

Q. When you talked to Mr. Long and made a sworn statement to him, you had talked to fewer of your friends about Thomas Atkins than at any other time?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You told Mr. Long that Tommy was about a year and a half old when you left Leavenworth?

A. I don't remember if I did.

Q. Now, Minnie, you didn't work right up to the time that you gave birth to your baby did you? A. Why, sure not.

Q. Certainly not. How long was it before you gave birth to that baby that you quit work?

A. Well, I went from Hyde's to Grodevant's to work, I was with Tommy, and I was only away all during that time just three weeks.

Q. Before you gave birth to the baby, how long had it been before you had done any work?

A. When I gave birth?

Q. Yes? A. It was about three weeks before I worked.

Q. It was two or three months, wasn't []; you couldn't work for two or three months? A. No, I worked around.

Q. You worked around where?

A. Went back to Mrs. Grodevant's after he was born.

Q. I know—— A. I don't remember though.

Q. You remembered that at Kansas City, didn't you Minnie? Didn't you tell them in Kansas City that you didn't do any work for two or three months before your baby was born?

A. I don't remember of telling them that.

Q. Did this happen up at Kansas City? "How long were you there off and on before your child was born?" They were talking about Granny's place. "A. Oh, about three months, two or three months, I guess." Did that happen there? A. I don't remember if I said that.

Q. Now, didn't you testify in your deposition at Seattle as follows: "Q. How long did you think you worked up to the time that the child was born? A. I worked up to two months before I had it, because I laced down so tight it would always make me sick like, I know that much."

A. Yes, I said that.

Q. So then that was the truth, was it? A. Yes.

Q. And for two months before that baby was born you didn't do any work for anybody? A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, where were you staying for those two months before that baby was born?

A. I don't remember where I was staying, down to Granny's sometimes and all around.

Q. Now, then, you were confined, that is in bed, for how long with the child? A. About two weeks.

Q. Then, you nursed him for about six months?

A. Yes, I nursed him.

Q. The little fellow had to nurse quite frequently?

A. Well, when I wasn't there they had a bottle for him and when I went down I nursed him.

Q. When did that bottle idea occur to you, Minnie?

A. Well, I always knew we had a bottle.

Q. You never have sworn to it before, have you?

A. Well, I always knew it though.

Q. You say there at Kansas City you nursed the baby did you then?

A. Well, I nursed him at my breast, yes, sir.

Q. You said in your deposition at Seattle that you nursed the baby at your breast? A. Yes, I nursed him.

Q. And this is the first time right now that you have ever said anything about that baby being fed with a bottle, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, how come you now just at this time to think about that?

A. Well, I think of lots of little things.

Q. I know, but who has refreshed your memory?

A. Nobody didn't refresh it.

Q. Where were you the two months, Minnie, before this baby was born?

A. I worked at Grodevants pretty near time for that baby to be born.

Q. Yes, but there was two months that you didn't work, you went over and stayed at Mrs. Edwards?

A. I didn't stay there, I was just out and in.

Q. And that was before the birth of your baby? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you told them at Kansas City that you didn't remember the name of any girls that you went with at all, didn't you, at Leavenworth?

The Court: I think you have gone over that.

Mr. Linebaugh: I believe so. I beg the Court's pardon for repeating; there is so much of this it is difficult for me to keep it in mind.

Q. Now, Minnie, they were talking to you there at Kansas City a little something about a live Tommy, weren't they?

A. I don't know of them talking to me about a live Tommy.

Q. Didn't they have some conversation there with you about some boy that might be brought up to you to be identified? A. Not to me.

Q. Did this happen: "Q. Did you ever see Tommy after you left Leavenworth? A. No, but nobody will ever bring him in and tell me it is him." A. No, I never said that.

Q. If you did say that, do you now remember why you said it? A. Yes, I remember why I said it.

Q. Alright; why did you say it?

A. Simply because they wanted to bring in a colored child to me for Tommy Atkins and I said I wouldn't stand for it.

Q. That is what you said? Who wanted to bring that colored child in to you?

A. Sadie James and all of them.

Q. They wanted to frame up a colored child, didn't they?

A. Yes, and I said I wouldn't have it; that is all.

Q. And you had a fuss with them, right there, didn't you?

A. And you got mad, and you got so mad and nervous that you got sick and went to the hospital, didn't you?

A. Yes, went to the Cushing Hospital.

Q. They had negro boy right down there in the hotel, didn't they? A. I don't know where they had him.

Q. They wanted you to let them bring him up to your room?

A. That was that nigger Carter and I said that wasn't my kid.

The Court: What else was said, Minnie?

A. I said, no, no colored kid is my kid; and someone called up while I was in the hotel at Leavenworth, and said that Henry Carter wanted to come up and see me, that I was his mother, and I said no, no Henry Carter is a child of mine; and I wouldn't stand for it; and I said my child that I had when I was at George Hyde's—and Henry Carter is no child of mine. And Mr. Long telephoned for Henry Carter to come up in the office and see me and he said no, I won't come up unless somebody will come with me; and Mr. Long said, no, you come by yourself; come up and prove to us that Minnie is your mother; and he wouldn't come.

By the Court.

Q. You said someone wanted to bring up some colored boy; where was this—at the hotel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was it there who wanted to bring up a colored boy? A. I don't know who.

Q. Who told you about it? How did you come to know that they wanted to do that?

A. I think it was Mr. Long told me that somebody was trying to frame up a colored boy on me.

Q. He told you that?

A. Yes, sir, and I said Mr. Long, nobody won't frame up no colored boy on me because I know the father of my child.

By Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. You got mad about that?

A. Yes, I got mad and got sick.

Q. And got sick and went to the hospital? A. Yes.

Q. That is what made you sick, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And you wouldn't give your deposition there at Leavenworth because they brought that nigger story up on you?

A. No.

Q. And they came up to the hospital and paid you some money, didn't they?

A. I don't know whether—yes, I got some money.

Q. Paid you some money out at the hospital? A. Yes.

Q. And then they took you down to Tulsa, didn't they?

A. Yes, I went to Tulsa.

Q. And after that you agreed to give your deposition, didn't you? A. I don't remember.

Q. What? A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, when they took you from the hospital, after paying you that money in the hospital, they took you to Tulsa, and took you out [] Charlie Page's home, didn't they?

A. No.

Q. What?

A. I didn't go to Charlie Page's home right away.

A. I was stopping down town in a rooming house.

Q. Didn't Mr. Hanford call up to Charlie Page's home and they arranged for you to go right out there, and you went right out there with your nurse?

A. No, I didn't go out there to stay.

Q. You brought a nurse down from Leavenworth, didn't they?

A. Yes, a nurse was with me because I was sick in the hotel there.

Q. Who paid the expenses of that nurse?

A. I don't know.

Q. Who paid her railroad fare?

A. She just stayed one day and one night.

Q. Who paid her railroad fare down there?

A. I don't know.

Q. You didn't do it, did you? A. No.

Q. Who paid her for the services at Tulsa?

A. I don't know.

Q. You didn't do that, did you? A. No.

Q. Now, who was it that came up to the hospital to talk with you and get you in a good humor, Minnie, there at Leavenworth, when you had gotten mad?

A. Nobody didn't come up and talk to me and get me in a good humor.

Q. Well, who came there and paid you the money; who did that? A. What you say?

Q. Who came there and paid you the money at the hospital at Leavenworth?

A. Nobody didn't pay me the money, I got the check.

Q. I understand, but who gave it to you, Minnie?

A. I think it was Mr. Hanford.

Q. Mr. Hanford, came to the hospital and gave you the check, and that was the check for five thousand dollars, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And that was the first cent you had ever gotten out of this transaction, wasn't it?

A. No, it wasn't the first cent I got out of it either.

Q. When did you get anything out of it?

A. I got five hundred dollars out of the five thousand.

Q. Where did you get that money?

A. I got it at Seattle, out of the bank.

Q. You did? Now, was that check made payable to you that they gave you out in the hospital at Leavenworth?

A. Yes.

Q. You didn't cash it, did you? A. I didn't need to.

Q. I understand; somebody else was paying all your expenses were they? A. I suppose.

Q. Do you know who was paying your expenses?

A. Mr. Page.

Q. Mr. Page; and so you took that money down to Tulsa and put it on time deposit right there at Tulsa, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you do that for, Minnie?

A. For it to draw interest.

Q. Well, you lived up at Seattle?

A. Well, that was alright.

Q. Banks up there pay interest, don't they?

A. Well, I just wanted to put it in there and I put it in there.

Q. That was Mr. Page's bank, wasn't it?

A. No, that wasn't Mr. Page's bank.

Q. Whose bank was that? A. I don't know.

Q. Who told you what bank to put it in there?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, how did you find out the bank to put it in there?

A. I think I asked Mr. Long what would be the safest place for me to put my money in the bank and Mr. Long told me about that bank.

Q. And you put it in on time deposit? A. Yes.

Q. How long did you leave it there on time deposit?

A. I left it there about four months, I guess.

Q. And the- you agreed to give your deposition, didn't you, and did give it in Rice & Lyon's office in Tulsa? Is that right? A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, Minnie, when you told Judge Stuart on direct —no; now, Minnie, in July at Sapulpa, in July, 1914, at Sapulpa, and also prior to that time, you had stated that the child was born after you left Stafford's; in your October testimony that you gave at Rice & Lyon's office, you stated that the child was born after you left Hyde's, is that right—before you went to Grodevant's?

The Court: I think that matter was covered in cross examination yesterday.

Mr. Linebaugh: Not as to the October——

A. I didn't have Tommy after I left Stafford's at all.

The Court: You asked her about her various statements, you went over all of that.

Q. Now, then, was—— I am pretty sure I haven't asked you this. If the Court please, I don't think I have—— In your Receivership testimony—— That is in the testimony you gave in this Court in March, 1915, you testified that Tommy was born before you worked for Grodevant's, didn't you? A. No, I don't think I did.

Q. Was the following questions asked and answers returned by you—— Now, then, in your depositions before Mr. Penick—— I will refer back to that place when I find the place—— In your deposition before Mr. Penick, you testified that you was carrying Tommy, in answer to a question from Mr. Hanford, while you were working for Grodevant's, didn't you? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now, what happened between the two times that refreshes your memory as to where you was working when Tommy was born?

A. Well, I knew all the time, there was nothing to refresh my mind.

Q. I understand; then, why did you say in March, 1915, the following, if you did say it: "Q. Then, you went from Hyde's to Grodevant's? A. No, I didn't just go right off. Q. Now, how long until you did go? A. Well, I did not go up to Grodevant's until I had Tommy Atkins. When I left Hyde's I was with him. Q. How long from the time that you left Hyde's until you went to Grodevant's? A. I don't know just how long. Q. Give the Court some idea? A. Well, I was there, I was down about a year in the city." A. No.

Q. You didn't give that testimony. Didn't you also give testimony to that effect in your deposition in Rice & Lyon's office? A. I might have, I don't remember.

Q. Now, did you in your testimony at Seattle testify that you was carrying Tommy when you worked for Grodevant's? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what had happened in the meantime to refresh your recollection?

A. Nothing had happened, I just knew all the time.

Q. Had anybody talked to you?

A. Nobody had talked to me.

Q. Nobody had made any suggestion. Now, Minnie, how old was Tommy when you come down to the Indian Territory? A. I don't know just how old he was.

Q. You stated in your Sapulpa testimony that he was about five years and six months old, didn't you?

A. Well, I was guessing.

Q. That was your best judgment at that time, wasn't it? Now, did you sleep at Granny's for a period of a year?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you testify before this Court in March, 1915, did you testify as follows: "Q. Well, you had to have some place to sleep during that year? A. Well, I stayed the most at Granny Letcher's. Q. Slept there quite a lot, did you? A. Yes."

A. No, I didn't say that. I could always get a place to sleep.

Q. Now, Minnie, when was Tommy born, the time of day, was it in the night time or in the day time?

A. Well, I couldn't say whether it was day or night. Now, that is too far back for me to remember.

Q. Do you remember, Minnie, when the pains begun, when you began to feel the pains of child birth?

A. Well, they commenced in the day.

Q. In the day. In the morning or afternoon?

A. Oh, I don't just remember when it was.

Q. How long were you in pain before the delivery of the child? A. I don't know how long.

Q. Don't you remember about how long?

A. Well, it was about as long as anybody would be in pain for a child.

Q. I understand, how long were you in pain before you delivered this child?

A. I don't know, I don't remember.

Q. Did you have a doctor? A. Yes, I had a doctor.

Q. Who was the doctor? A. Dr. McCormick.

Q. You was asked at Sapulpa, weren't you, who the doctor was and you told them then that you didn't know, didn't you? A. Well, I had to study all those things out myself.

Q. Well, has anybody helped you in your study?

A. No, I had to study; that was a long time for me to remember, and I was only a child like, and I had to study. I might have got some things wrong not meaning to do it.

Q. The question was asked you, was it at Sapulpa, if you remembered the doctor: "Who was present at the birth of Thomas Atkins? A. I don't remember that. Q. What doctor waited on you? A. I don't know that."

A. Well, I didn't at that time, but I studied it out.

Examination by the Court.

Q. Who paid the doctor, Minnie, do you remember that?

A. He didn't get any money that I know of, Judge.

Q. Who sent for him? A. I don't remember that.

Q. Had you ever seen Dr. McCormick before that?

A. Well, I heard of him, I knew of him.

Q. How do you remember how you knew of him, Minnie?

A. No, this is what I said to Granny; I said, well I have to have a doctor, I am pretty sick; and she suggested you had better go and get Dr. McCormick.

Q. Who got him?

A. Someone around the house there, I don't know who.

Q. And how long after that until he came?

A. He wasn't very long I don't think coming.

Q. Minnie, what time of day was that, if you remember?

A. Seemed like to me he came in the evening as well as I can remember.

Q. And then he was there until the boy was born?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he come back any more?

A. I think he did to see if I was all right; I couldn't say for sure, but I think he did.

Q. Did you know at that time where Dr. McCormick lived?

A. No, I didn't know.

Q. Had you heard about him before this?

A. Granny just suggested that she would get him.

Q. Well, was that the first you heard of Dr. McCormick?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When she suggested it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Minnie, while we are on that point. Now, after the baby came how long was it, just tell me as nearly as you can how long it was after Tommy came until you went back and went to work at the Fort?

A. Well, I think just a little over three weeks.

Q. Little over three weeks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, you went back to work where?

A. To Grodevant's.

Q. To Grodevant's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you say you would come down to see Tommy at Leavenworth? A. At night, yes, sir.

Q. Every night? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you go back and forth from Leavenworth? A. It was a bus.

Q. And you come down, what time in the evening would you come down?

A. Well, just as soon as I could get through with my work I would come down. Sometimes they would get through about eight o'clock, and sometimes half past seven, just according what time Mrs. Grodevant's brother-in-law would get there, Frank Grodevant, I had to wait on him.

Q. You say you had to wait on him?

A. He was boarding there with them.

Q. And he didn't eat with the rest of the family?

A. No, he was always late; he worked in town.

Q. Now, then, how long would you stay in town on those occasions?

A. Well, I would stay down there with Tommy, sometimes catch the last bus going back up again.

Q. About what time would the last bus usually go?

A. Half past twelve.

Q. And then you would go back? Now, about how long, Minnie, did you continue to go down to see him that way, every night on the bus?

A. Well, I just couldn't state how long it was, Judge, that I would go down that way.

Q. What did the bus charge? A. 10 cents.

Q. Ten cents each way? A. And you say you would nurse the baby when you made the trips?

A. When I made the trips, and when I wasn't there, of course they gave him the bottle.

By Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Minnie, right in that connection, did you tell those gentlemen up at Kansas City, the following: "Q. You stayed there at Granny Letcher's for about a year after he was born? A. Yes, around in Leavenworth. Q. Where did you leave Tommy? A. There at Grandma Letcher's; he never left at all this time, you know—he was merely going on—— Well, some said he was pretty near 14 when he left Granny's but he left Granny's in this way; there was a woman came there and told Granny that I had told her to take him, and that is how he come to disappear, but I didn't. Q. Well, you stayed there for about [] year then; did you pay Granny for taking care of the boy? A. No, she took care of him herself."

A. I didn't stay there a year.

Q. Well, I know, but did that happen in Kansas City?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you say that at Kansas City? A. Yes.

The Court: How is that, Minnie? Did you say that at Kansas City?

A. Yes, but I didn't stay with Granny a year.

The Court: Sometimes you don't make it plain where the place it.

Q. Now, in that connection, in Rice & Lyon's office, when you were giving depositions there, were the following questions and answers returned by you:

"Q. Minnie, state whether or not there was a child born to you in Leavenworth? A. Thomas Atkins. Q. Your answer is the, yes, there was a child born and you named him Thomas Atkins? A. Yes. Q. Where was he born? A. He was born at Granny Letcher's. Q. At Leavenworth? A. Yes. Q. After Tommy was born, how long did you remain in Leavenworth? A. Well, after he was born I must have stayed about a year. Q. And when you left Leavenworth, where did you go? A. I went up to the Post. Q. That is the Fort? That is the Fort about three miles from Leavenworth? A. That is the Fort."

The Court: You are asked, Minnie, if that was your testimony in Rice & Lyon's office when your deposition was taken.

A. Yes, as far as I could remember, that was *t*hat I said.
Q. Now, Minnie who went for this doctor that you had?
A. I don't know.

Mr. Stuart: She stated twice she didn't know.

The Court: I covered that; she said she didn't know.

Q. You told in Kansas City who went, didn't you?
A. I told them who waited on me.
Q. Who paid the doctor's bill?
A. I don't know who paid it.
Q. You told them in Kansas City who paid the doctor's bill, didn't you?
A. Well, I wasn't sure whether he paid it or not.
Q. Did this negro man Rube Smith pay the doctor's bill?
A. I can't say that he did for I don't know.
Q. Now, did this happen in Kansas City, were these questions asked you and answers returned: "Q. Do you remember the name of the doctor? A. No, I don't exactly remember it because I just told Granny Letcher to get a doctor, and I think she sent a colored man for the doctor; I don't know his name. Q. What colored man was that? A. Rube. He came there with some groceries. Q. And was the doctor a white man or a colored man? A. I don't just remember that either; he must have been a white man. Q. How many times did that doctor come, do you know? A. No, I was awfully sick, I don't remember. Q. Did you pay the doctor? A. I borrowed the money. Q. Who did you borrow it from? A. I don't know where Granny got it. Q. You got the money really from Rube Smith? A. Yes. Q. You got the money from him to pay the doctor? A. Yes." Were those questions asked you and answers returned by you at Kansas City?

A. Yes.

By the Court.

Q. Now, was that true, Minnie?

A. No, it wasn't true. I was just guessing at it. I was just guessing I got the money from Rube and all; I couldn't remember about Rube paying it. Some of the statement is true and some I just made a guess.

Q. Now, which part is true, Minnie, tell me that; which part did you guess about and which part is true?

A. Well, I was only guessing about Rube paying it, and my borrowing the money—I don't remember about borrowing any money.

Q. You were guessing at that?

A. I was guessing about that as far as I could, because it was so far back.

Q. Now, which part were you not guessing about? Were you guessing about the doctor?

A. No, Granny said that she was going to send for Doctor McCormick, I remember that.

Q. You can remember that?

A. Yes, sir. I wasn't guessing about that.

Q. Well, you know that you did have a doctor?

A. Yes, sir; but the paying and things that way, I was just kind of guessing, I don't know for sure how he got his pay or anything that way.

By Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. Minnie, did you ever go up to this Doctor McCormick's office? A. No, sir.

Q. You remember there was—to refresh your memory, don't you remember there was a man named Doctor McCormick whose office you did go to about some other matters?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, when you left Leavenworth was this baby walking around? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How was he dressed the last time you ever saw him?

A. Tommy?

Q. Yes.

A. Always kept him in white—little white dresses.

Q. Did he have a little white dress on the last time you remember seeing him? A. I don't remember, I can't say.

Q. Now, tell the Court, Minnie, how that baby of yours looked, and how he was dressed, if you can, the last time you ever saw him.

A. Well, I just can't remember how he looked the last time, but he was always around in little white slips.

Q. Minnie tell the Court where the boy was the last time you ever saw it.

A. I left him at Granny Letcher's when I went to Fort Logan.

Q. What time of the day was it, the last time you ever saw him?

A. I left for Denver, Colorado, that—for Fort Logan that evening—that night, in the night.

Q. But what time of the day was it, the last time you ever saw your baby?

A. I don't just remember the day.

By the Court.

Q. What time of the day, do you remember you left for Fort Logan in the evening?

A. Yes, I went in the evening.

Q. Then, how long before you left, was it, before you saw your baby? A. I saw him in the morning.

Q. Of that day? A. Yes, I left that night.

By Mr. Linebaugh.

Q. You had a mother's love for this baby, didn't you?

A. Sure.

Q. Where was he about the house that last time that you saw him? A. He was playing about the house.

Q. Where was he when you bid him goodbye?

A. In the house.

Q. Where in the house? A. At Granny's.

Q. I know; where in Granny's house?

A. Down stairs in the room.

Q. Who was there?

A. Granny and several people; I don't just remember who the people were.

Q. Can you remember any of them?

A. No, I can't remember.
Q. Could he talk to you at that time?
A. I don't remember whether he talked or not.
Q. Minnie, don't you remember whether your baby could talk? A. I guess he could say a few words.
Q. Could he? Could he? A. I guess he could.
Q. Did he? A. I think he did.
Q. What few words?
A. I don't remember the few words that he said.
Q. What were the first words you ever heard him say?
A. He called me Mamma.
Q. And what was the first word other than Mamma that you ever heard him speak?
A. When I would go around there to see him or anything, he would ask for titty.
Q. That meant he wanted something to eat, did he?
A. Sure.
Q. He called your breast titty; now what words did he speak that last time you saw him? A. I don't remember.
Q. Did he speak any words when you bid him goodbye? Do you remember? A. I don't remember.
Q. You came back to Indian Territory in 1906, didn't you?

The Court: Yes, that is plain. That has been gone over.

Q. Did you go from Kansas City to Leavenworth?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you telephone over to Leavenworth?
A. I don't know.
Q. Minnie, when did you hear first that Sadie James was on your side? A. Sadie James never was on my side.
Q. Didn't they tell you up there at Kansas City that Sadie James was now helping them get evidence?
A. No, they didn't tell me.
Q. When did you first hear that Betty Mann was on your side? A. I didn't know Betty Mann was on my side.
Q. Dennis Jones, did you know about him being on your side? A. No.
Q. Babe Smith, did you know about him? A. No.
Q. You didn't know whether they were on your side or not? A. I didn't ask about that.
Q. Now, when you came down to Tulsa, the day you gave your deposition, you also made a deed to Mr. Tiger to your royalty interest in this land, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.
Q. What did you do that for?
A. Simply because I was in the right.

Q. But you were selling him, deeding him your whole interest in this land, weren't you?

A. I don't know whether I did or not.

Q. You signed that, didn't you? A. I think I did.

Q. Did you advise with anybody before you signed it?

A. No.

Q. You read it over before you signed it, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, why then did you put this in there, Minnie: "That in the event Thomas Atkins, the son of the first party —referring to you—and the person described in the allotment of said land, or the rightful heirs of said Thomas Atkins shall succeed in maintaining a title to said lands"; what was that put in there for? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, when you read it over, didn't you inquire to find out? A. No.

Q. Now, why was this put in there, Minnie: "That upon the commencement of any suit or suits by the United States, the Creek Nation, or Thomas Atkins, or persons claiming under him, or by any other person or persons presenting a bona fide case, all payments shall stop," do you know why that was put in there? A. No.

Q. When you read that over did you ask anybody?

A. No.

Q. Did you in talking with your lawyer, Mr. Hanford?

A. No.

Q. Minnie, do you know why you wasn't in the court room when Mr. Hanford gave his testimony?

A. Yes, I just didn't want to come over.

Q. You didn't want to hear his testimony?

A. Yes, I didn't say I didn't want to.

Q. Why didn't you come over and hear it then?

A. Well, I just didn't come over, had no reasons.

Q. Now, you had a little falling out with Mr. Hanford, didn't you? A. No.

Q. Now, Minnie, you didn't get acquainted with this man Peterkin—— When did you get acquainted with this man Peterkin? A. When I was out at the Fort.

Q. You didn't meet Peterkin until you had begun to work for Stafford, you testified in the deposition, didn't you?

A. That is right.

Q. Well, now, that is right is it? How long did you work for Stafford? A. I think I worked for him a year.

Q. That is your best recollection?

A. Yes, my best recollection.

Q. You were in Leavenworth all together about three years? A. I think I was there pretty near four.

Q. About three and a half years, weren't you all together?

A. I don't know, I don't remember just how long I was there.

Q. Well, you worked for Hyde's how long?

A. Well, I judge I was there about three months or a little over.

Q. And for Grodevant's how long?

A. A year and six months.

Q. And for Stafford you say about a year, maybe a little longer? A. Maybe a little longer, I don't remember.

Q. But when you left Stafford you went to work for a rich Jew, didn't you? A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, you have testified heretofore that you did work for a rich Jew in every testimony that you have given, didn't you?

A. Well, there was some rich Jew there I worked for, but I don't know much about him.

Q. How long did you work for this rich Jew?

A. I don't know.

Q. About how long? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, just your judgment?

A. I have no judgment how long it was.

Q. After you left the rich Jew, where did you go to work?

A. I don't know where all I worked.

Q. Do you remember any other place that you worked in Leavenworth except the places that you have named?

A. No, I think when I quit there is when I went to Denver.

Q. When you quit where? A. The rich Jew.

Q. You went then to Denver? A. I think that is it.

Q. Well, you left Stafford to go to the rich Jew did you, ma'am? A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, Minnie, tell the Court the circumstances of your get acquainted with Granny Letcher?

A. Well, she was a woman there that anybody could go in and out and go around and I just went there.

Q. Well, the first time you got acquainted with her, do you remember that incident?

A. When I first knew her?

Q. Yes, the first time you ever saw her?

A. The first time I ever saw her she lived on Choctaw Street.

Q. Cherokee Street you mean?

A. Choctaw, I think, I don't remember.

Q. Well, were you at her house then?

A. I had seen her yes.

Q. What was the occasion of your meeting, just tell the Court?

A. No occasion. Just like I would see anybody else.

Q. Now, you told them up there in Kansas City that Granny Letcher was pretty near white, didn't you?

A. Well, she wasn't black.

Q. Well, was she pretty nearly white?

A. Well, as far as my recollection.

Q. That is as far as your recollection goes, now was there anybody, Minnie, around there that you went with pretty frequently that you now remember?

A. No, I don't remember.

Q. Was there any one that you now remember that was your companion that you went with frequently?

A. Oh, I went with different women, I don't know who. I didn't have any steady companions.

Q. Can you name some of those women?

> The Court: That was all gone over yesterday. She testified she never had much to do with women.

Q. While you were working for Hyde's you worked all the day, did you? A. Yes.

Q. That was true at Grodevant's? A. Yes.

Q. True at Stafford's was it?

A. Well, I just don't know how long I worked at Stafford's.

Q. I understand, but while you worked you worked during every day, did you?

A. No, I was off every afternoon at Stafford's.

Q. What time?

A. Well, I would get through with my dishes about half past one or two o'clock, and then I would go to town.

Q. Then, you would have supper to get?

A. At half past six o'clock.

Q. You had to get back to cook it?

A. I would always get back at half past four or five o'clock.

Q. That was the only time you had off at Stafford's, was that time in the afternoon, was it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, when you worked for the rich Jew, did you stay at his house and work during the day time?

A. Yes, I would work in the say and do up my morning work and then go back and get supper just like anybody working out, they have some time off.

Q. During the days you were out at the Fort, you were nursing Tommy, did you have anything for your own service, your own use, breast pump, anything like that? A. No.

Q. Well, how did you manage your breasts during the day, they would fill up so you would have to relieve them some way? A. Well, I would pump it out.

Q. You just told me you didn't have a breast pump?

A. I didn't. I pumped it with my hands.

Q. You remember that, do you? A. Sure I remember it.

Q. Did Robert Lee nurse?

A. I don't know. He didn't live long after he was born.

Q. But the time he did live, did he nurse?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, when you come down here to Indian Territory or to Oklahoma the first time before you gave your Sapulpa testimony, where did you stay?

A. Down town in the hotel.

Q. Did you stay at Mr. Page's home any time?

A. No, I would just go out there at Mr. Pages, I never lived with Mr. Page.

Q. Before you were put on the witness stand, did you talk with Mr. Page or anybody else about what you were going to testify?

A. Mr. Page didn't know what I was going to testify.

Q. You had talked to the lawyers? A. Yes.

Q. You had told them what your testimony was going to be? A. Yes, as far as I could remember.

Q. That was true before you testified at Tulsa, wasn't it?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did Mr. Hanford ever tell you, Minnie, that you had made a mistake in any of your testimony about saying four children and that you should correct it and say five?

A. I told him myself, I told him I made a mistake, I should have said five at the beginning.

Q. You said four at the beginning, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. When you left the witness stand down at Sapulpa, did Mr. Hanford step up to you and say, now you have made a mistake, you have said four and you had five?

A. I knew all the time I had five.

Q. I understand, but did Mr. Hanford say that?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You didn't tell anything about Robert Lee down there?

A. I wasn't asked about him.

Q. Is that the reason you didn't tell about him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were asked as to the children, Charlie, Harvey, Alice and Tommy?

A. Robert Lee didn't live hardly any.

Q. Alice didn't live either did she?

A. Yes, she did, she lived to get on the rolls.

Q. Was there any difference in the complexion of Charlie and Harvey? A. What?

Q. Is Charlie a light complected boy and Harvey dark?

A. Well. Charlie is a little lighter than Harvey.

Q. Charlie is a little lighter than Harvey? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know how to account for that?

A. Well, I suppose it came about this way: Harvey took after me being dark; and Charlie took after his father, being a white man. In fact, both children's father was a white man.

Q. Every child you have had, the father was a white man?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And every child you have had, you have named for some man, haven't you except this one that you say you had named Tommy Atkins?

Mr. Stuart: Well, she said she named him for a man.

The Court: Named him for her father.

Q. Well, I mean the man who was your paramour at the time you conceived the child? A. Yes.

Q. When did you tell about having five children, Minnie, the first time? A. I don't remember.

Q. You never have testified to that, have you, until the receivership hearing?

A. Well, I knew I just had to tell the truth about my child and I told—my children and I up and told about my children as far as I knew.

Q. Now, down at Kansas City, when they were talking there, and Mr. Hanford was present, that was in a room there, did you tell them anything about the Peterkin child? A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Hanford tell them anything about the Peterkin child? A. No.

Q. How did they know it? A. I don't know.

Q. Mr. Page had learned about Peterkin down at Tulsa, hadn't he?

A. I don't know nothing about what Mr. Page had learnt.

Q. Now, when you gave your deposition in Rice & Lyon's office, did you testify anything about the Peterkin child?

A. No.

Q. Why didn't you?

A. Well, the business didn't come up on the Peterkin child. it come up on Tommy Atkins.

Q. The business didn't come up on the Peterkin child?

A. No, it come up on the Tommy Atkins.

Q. Now, Minnie, you didn't name Tommy Atkins until you came down here in 19—?

A. He was always named Tommy Atkins. When he was born I named him Tommy Atkins.

Q. When you gave your deposition in Sapulpa, following questions were asked and the following answers returned: "Q. How about the other names that were on there in the family containing your name? A. Well, I had Tommy put on because that was in my name; I hadn't named Tommy Atkins and I had my uncle put him on there as Tommy Atkins."

A. I didn't say that.

Q. You didn't give that testimony?

A. I don't remember of giving it.

Q. That was the time you had your uncle put him on the roll, wasn't it?

A. I don't know whether my uncle put him on or not; I don't know who put him on.

Q. Didn't you say in your deposition at——

A. Well, I was just guessing, I don't know.

Q. At Seattle, didn't you give the following testimony: "Q. You put him on the pay roll"—talking about Tommy—"A. I had my uncle put him on. Q. When? A. When I was in Muskogee. Q. Did you tell your uncle you had a child by the name of Tommy, did you? A. Yes. Q. You didn't know whether he was dead or not, did you? A. I knew he was dead then." Did you give that testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And further did you give this testimony: "Q. Relying, I said just relying on the fact that he had been living and you had not heard that he was dead and you therefore presumed he was alive in 1905"—I presume that is intended for 1895—"A. I told my uncle I had a baby in Leavenworth named Tommy Atkins, would he put him on the roll and he said he would." That was your testimony there, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, when were you sick in your pregnancy?

A. I don't remember.

Q. When you were sick at the start and not at the conclusion, weren't you? A. I guess so.

Q. Then, the times that you were sick was just after you became pregnant and not just before the child—not just before the birth of your child, wasn't it? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you know a man at Leavenworth, named Dennis Jones? A. Yes, I knew him.

Q. Now, in your Tulsa deposition, did you give the following testimony with reference to Dennis Jones—did you testify there, that you knew Dennis Jones but wasn't acpuainted with him? A. Yes.

Q. That was the truth? A. Yes, I knew him.

Q. At that time, was it? A. Now, Minnie, you had never gone with any soldiers, or had you gone with any soldiers when Tommy was born?

A. No, I didn't go with any soldiers.

Q. Until after Tommy was born? After Tommy was born —that is what you told those people up there in Kansas City wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. They were asking you if a railroad man didn't come to see you and you told them that they did, didn't you?

A. I don't remember telling them anything like that, no.

Q. Ma'am? A. No.

Q. Now, did you write back to Leavenworth after you left there? A. No.

Q. You never wrote a letter to anybody; did you ever send any communication of any kind back to Leavenworth after you left?

A. I can't remember whether I did or not; I might have.

Q. Now, in your deposition in Seattle, did you give the following testimony——

And thereupon, court recesses until 1:30 o'clock P. M.

And thereafter, and at 1:30 o'clock, court convened pursuant to adjournment and further proceedings herein were had as follows:

Mr. Linebaugh: Before I turn over the witness might it be agreed, gentlemen, that the statements she gave in Kansas City, this record which Mr. Hanford gave us shows that this statement was taken on the 29th of September, 1914, may it be agreed as to the date?

Mr. Stuart: I think so; of course that is in subject to our objection.

The Court: I presume it is agreed then that all the testimony incorporated in questions relating to these—this Kansas City testimony of Minnie, put to her here, all that testimony appears in the transcript where she——

Mr. Linebaugh: Your Honor, I was just going to come to that now. For the purpose of shortening this record, I wanted to ask counsel if they will take the daily transcript and those statements made at Kansas City by the witness, and if it appears that I have in each instance, when I have interrogated her about something that was asked her here, that that interrogation was correct, that is, that I read correctly——

Mr. Stuart: I assumed that of course.

Mr. Linebaugh: May it then be agreed that that portion of the record about which I interrogated her, may be offered as a part of the cross examination of this witness?

The Court: That may be admitted and considered by the Court as to what that shows in answer to your questions, whether she so testified or not.

Mr. Linebaugh: I ask if the same will be true as to the testimony given by this witness at Sapulpa, at Tulsa, in Rice & Lyon's office in 1914, in the Receivership hearing before this Court, and in the depositions given before the examiner at Seattle, Washington, in the interest of shortening the matter.

Mr. Stuart: In the interest of shortening the matter but not in the interest of justice—— Your Honor, I hate to agreed to agreed to any thing of that sort; you can't tell what the witness said unless you find out all that she said. I haven't read this at all, but the other one I have read some of and I don't know just how to do that; however, I believe I will agree for it to go in, Your Honor.

The Court: Then it will be understood in relation to her hearing at Sapulpa, and the depositions taken at Tulsa, and the hearing had at Kansas City; now w*h*ere there any others?

Mr. Linebaugh: The receivership hearing.

The Court: And the testimony in the receivership hearing.

Mr. Linebaugh: And her deposition before Mr. Penick in Seattle, in January; and so far as the testimony of Minnie Atkins has been referred to by counsel in cross examination and quoted by him in his questions, will be considered, now, as offered in evidence and admitted in evidence as being the testimony appearing at Sapulpa, Tulsa, Kansas City hearing, and the Seattle deposition, and on the receivership hearing.

Mr. Stuart: I would like to have the record show subject to such exceptions as the witness has already made.

The Court: Certainly

Mr. Cruce: Except also—and subject also to objections that we made to any portion of the Kansas City statement.

The Court: Yes, of course, if that were not done, counsel would take time to offer in evidence the various things, then counsel for the other side might, if they desired have all or certain other parts if they desired.

Mr. German: Twice Your Honor spoke of the Kansas City statement as being taken at a hearing; you understand that was a private inquiry?

The Court: I understand what that was and probably it would be of some interest to me if I had it all, but I have that part in here.

Mr. Linebaugh: It is agreeable, if counsel desire that it all may go in.

By Mr. Hanford: I wish to strike the questions and answers relating to the 1895 payment and enrollment as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and I will state that my motion to strike is made at this time, as I didn't object to the questions to avoid the continuity of the examination.

By Mr. Blakeney: We want to object to any examination of this witness upon any grounds because of action attempted to be alleged regarding the fraudulent enrollment for the reason that the same is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial; this objection not of course appearing at this time as the Government has not pleaded its record or pleaded its evidence, but we will insist that this evidence will never be made by anything relevant or material under the issues and pleadings in this case.

By Mr. Hanford: I want to make an objection and want to ask her a preliminary question: Minnie, is it your intention to be in Muskogee at the time this case is on for trial?

A. Yes, sir, I will be there.

By Mr. Hanford: On the question and answer preceding, the defendants Folk and Hanford object to the taking of the testimony of the witness at this time, and move to strike the previous questions and answers, and further move to strike the deposition of the witness taken at this time.

By Mr. German: We will not cover as much detail then, Mr. Hanford, as we would have.

By Mr. Hanford: She is going to be there.

By Mr. Blakeney: I don't expect this statement in any way to abridge any matters I desire to cross examine her about.

Q. When did you receive the second five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars, or the consideration for the oil lease which you executed to the Page interests?

By Mr. Blakeney: We object, as assuming that she received any five thousand.

Q. I will ask this question then: Did you receive five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars from either the Gem Oil Company or Page & Josey, as a part of the consideration of an oil and gas lease which you gave them, as the last payment of the consideration of ten thousand ($10,000.00) dollars?

A. Do you mean did I receive it from Page & Josey?

Q. Yes?

A. Yes, I received the ten thousand—five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars.

Q. When did you receive that five thousand—the last five thousand?

By Mr. Hanford: Object to that on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. That is, did you receive it before or after you testified?

A. After.

Q. At Tulsa? A. After.

Q. After you had testified?

A. I didn't receive it first.

Q. You didn't receive it first? A. No, sir.

Q. You testified at Tulsa in the fall of 1914, didn't you —this last fall, a year ago, in October or November? Do you remember, Mrs. Folk? A. Why, I testified in Sapulpa.

Q. But I am speaking of the time that you testified in Tulsa at the office of Rice and Lyons, was that this fall a year ago? A. It was in the summer.

By Mr. Hanford: I don't think she understood your previous question.

By Mr. German: I will waive that, we can prove the date of that testimony from another source.

Q. Mrs. Folk, state whether or not Mr. Hanford saw you between the time that you signed the admission when Frank Montgomery was here and the time that you withdrew that admission and took it back? A. I don't understand you.

By Mr. Blakeney: I object to the question as assuming that she signed any admission and assuming that she took it back.

By Mr. German: Well, I will withdraw the question. That is all.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Minnie, you received that five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars at Leavenworth, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You were sick in bed? A. Yes.

Q. And in the hospital? A. Yes.

Q. And after you got out of the hospital you went to Tulsa, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And it was while you were in Tulsa that you gave your deposition in Rice & Long's office? A. Yes.

By Mr. German: I want to ask her redirect one question.

By Mr. German.

Q. You say you received that five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars at Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. And it was about how long after that until you testified in the office of Rice & Lyons at Tulsa?

A. It was about a week after.

Q. After the time you received this five thousand dollars at Leavenworth, a number of witnesses had testified there, hadn't they, at Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. And did you hear them testify? A. No, I was sick.

Q. You didn't hear any of them? A. I didn't hear——

Q. You were sick in the hospital? A. Yes, I was sick.

Q. At the hospital?

A. No, I was at the hotel a day, and I went to the hospital.

Q. You went on the witness stand there at Leavenworth, didn't you, for the purpose of testifying?

A. Yes, I went, but I was sick.

Q. You fainted on the stand at Leavenworth, didn't you?

A. No, sir.

Q. You collapsed, didn't you?

A. I didn't collapse at Leavenworth, I collapsed in Kansas City.

Q. On the road from Leavenworth to Tulsa?

A. Yes, Kansas City to Leavenworth.

Q. All right, on the road from Kansas City to Leavenworth. How long before you went on the stand at Leavenworth was it before you collapsed in Kansas City?

A. I didn't go on the stand at Leavenworth.

Q. All right, I thought you went up to give your testimony there?

A. I took sick and they couldn't have me, and they had it in Tulsa.

Q. When you received this five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars at Leavenworth, how was it paid to you? A. In a check.

Q. Check, did you get the money on the check there in Leavenworth? A. No, sir.

Q. Who gave you the check, who was it signed by, I mean?

A. I didn't notice who had signed it.

Q. It was planned for you to go on the stand there at Leavenworth, wasn't it?

By Mr. Hanford: Objected to on the ground that it is hearsay, and calls for a conclusion of the witness, is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

By Mr. Mahoney: And very leading.

Q. Do you know whether you were to take the witness stand at Leavenworth? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was it your intention to give your testimony there?

A. I can't say.

Q. Why did you go on to Tulsa from there?

A. Because I was still sick.

Q. Did you not go on to Tulsa for the purpose of giving your testimony at Tulsa as soon as you got so you could?

A. As soon as I was able, but I was still sick.

Q. When you received the five thousand dollar check at Leavenworth, was that before or after you was taken ill?

A. I was sick when I got it in the hospital.

Q. How long were you in the hospital at Leavenworth?

A. A week.

Q. Was it during that time while you were in the hospital that other witnesses were giving their testimony, or had they already testified? A. I can't say.

Q. Did you go from Kansas City to Leavenworth—as—at the time that you went from Kansas City to Leavenworth, or that day, did you understand that the witnesses at Leavenworth had already testified? A. No, I don't understand.

Q. You didn't know whether they had or not?

A. No, sir.

Q. You weren't informed about that?

A. Yes, I think I was.

Q. What information had you received about it?

A. Just going to Leavenworth for testimony or something.

Q. Did the witnesses at Leavenworth see you?

A. I can't say whether they did or not.

Q. Did you go in the room where the notary was taking that testimony any at all while you were in Leavenworth?

A. What did you say?

Q. Did you go in the room where the notary public was taking that testimony at Leavenworth any at all, at any time?

A. Yes.

Q. When you went in there, were they taking the testimony of anybody? A. No.

Q. What did you go in there for?

A. To see people if they knew me.

Q. Were there very many people in there?

A. Quite a few.

Q. Do you know whether anybody had given any testimony up to the time that you went in that room?

A. I don't remember.

Q. When was it that you received the five thousand ($5,000.00) dollar check, with reference to the time that you went into that room, before or after, or at the same time, or when?

A. I don't remember how that is, how that was, I don't remember so good how that was.

Q. What is your best recollection on that subject?

A. That when I drew the five thousand is what you are after?

Q. Yes, whether it was before or after you went into the room? A. Oh, I don't know.

Q. You don't remember? A. No, sir.

Q. When you went to Tulsa from Leavenworth, where did you stay?

A. When I went to Tulsa to Leavenworth?

Q. From Tulsa to Leavenworth? A. Where did I stay?

Q. Yes?

A. When I left Leavenworth and went to Tulsa, where did I stay?

Q. That is the question. A. In the hotel.

Q. How long? A. The whole time that I was there.

Q. You went out to Mrs. Page's home, didn't you?

A. I visited her during the day, I didn't visit——

Q. How many different days did you visit her?

A. I don't know, a couple of days in the week if I got lonesome.

Q. You were not confined in your bed? A. Where?

Q. At Tulsa?

A. I was sick in the hospital at Leavenworth.

Q. I mean when you went to Tulsa?

A. I was still sick, but I wasn't sick enough to go in the hospital, but I was sick.

Q. How came you to visit the Page home?

A. Well, I just visited them because I knew them and I went there.

Q. Did Mr. Page or Mrs. Page invite you out there?

A. No, I just said I wanted to go out to Mr. Page's when I went to Tulsa.

Q. And you did? A. I went out there.

Q. How long after you reached Tulsa was it until you gave your testimony at the office of Rice & Lyons?

A. How long was it?

Q. Yes?

A. Oh, I was in the hotel, I guess, about a week.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Minnie, when you got sick in Leavenworth and went to Tulsa a nurse went down on the train with you, didn't she?

A. Yes, a nurse went with me.

Q. And you went to the Brady Hotel, didn't you, from the train? A. Yes, from the train.

Q. I was with you at the time, was I not, Mr. Hanford was with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Don't you recall when you got to the hotel, Mr. Hanford called up Mr. Page and told him that you were still sick?

A. Yes, I remember.

Q. And asked him about a hospital? A. I remember.

Q. And then you didn't stay at a hotel, but went out and stayed at his house?

A. Well, I wasn't there very long.

Q. But when you first got there, that is what took place, isn't it? A. Yes.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Minnie, you know what you did at Tulsa, don't you?

A. What?

Q. You know what you did at Tulsa on that trip, don't you? A. What I did?

Q. Yes, ma'am, what you did?

A. What do you want me to tell you what I did for?

Q. You told counsel that you didn't go out to Page's house in the night time, and in a minute afterwards, you admitted that you did go out and stayed at Page's house, and that transaction occurred about a year ago, didn't it? Now, do you mean to tell us that you don't know what you did at Tulsa, or that you do know?

A. Well, when I say the other, I mean I went out there.

Q. Why did you say the first then?

A. Well, I don't know why I said. I have said so much to you that I ain't altogether——

Q. You have had so much said to you in the last few months you are rattled?

A. I know what to say at the time when I study and think it out, but not at the minute.

Q. Minnie, please study and think out now, and answer to every question I ask you and let's get it right. You went to Okmulgee in 1895, didn't you, to the Indian payment?

A. Yes, I was there at the payment.

Q. First came to Muskogee and visited there a few days, and from there you went to Okmulgee? A. Yes.

Q. You rode horse-back to Okmulgee, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. Who did you go with?

A. Well, I don't know, I just—I have been studying out to see who I went with there, I don't know just who it was.

Q. You went with a crowd, didn't you?

A. I think it was a woman and a man, but I am not sure, I think that there was three of us went on horse-back.

Q. Your recollection now is that three of you rode from Muskogee to Okmulgee on horse-back?

A. I am sure I rode from Muskogee to Okmulgee to the payment on a horse, I am sure about that.

Q. Your recollection is that two others rode with you?

A. I wouldn't swear, but that is my recollection.

Q. You could only swear as to recollections as to occurrences in the past, so give us your best recollection. Now, Minnie, when you got over there, what did you find out as to how much money you was entitled to draw?

A. Well, I asked how much I was to draw but Grayson, in Eufaula, had taken it up.

Q. Now, before you went over there, you had made an application?

A. No, they didn't take it all up, it wasn't all.

Q. Wait a minute. Before you went to Okmulgee, you had had Grayson, of Eufaula, to get your children on the roll, on the pay roll, is that right or not? A. I guess so.

Q. Well, we won't guess now. How did your children get on that pay roll. If you don't know, say you don't know?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You found they were on the pay roll when you got over there? A. Yes, they were on it.

Q. When you got over there, Minnie, you found three of your children on the roll?

A. That was Harvey, Charlie, and Thomas.

Q. You found those three on the roll, did you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You found another child had been put on the roll——

A. But was dead, that was Mabel.

Q. What was Mabel known by besides Mabel?

A. Mabel Peterkin.

Q. Wasn't she sometimes known by Alice?

A. Well, they called her Alice, but her name was Mabel.

Q. Mr. Peterkin wanted a child named Mabel and you named it Mabel because he wanted it, and you always called the child Alice, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. I hope you will be careful in answering questions not to answer the last part of it, but to answer the whole question, keep in mind the whole question. Then, you had at that time given birth to four children, one of which had died?

A. Yes.

Q. Had you given birth to more than four children at that time?

A. I had five but the other was not big, wasn't born, kind of a miscarriage.

Q. You had had a premature birth?

A. That was after Tommy.

Q. Tom was the first child? A. Of all, yes.

Q. And then you had a miscarriage and a child had been born, what was the name of that child? A. Robert Lee.

> By Mr. German: I object to that question on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and improper cross examination.
>
> By Mr. Blakeney: Any questions that I ask that are not proper cross examination, I will make the witness my own for the purpose of that question.
>
> By Mr. German: Then, Mr. Blakeney, may we not have it understood that I object to any question that you may ask that does not pertain to the questions that I inquired about, and that all of those are your examinations —direct examinations.
>
> By Mr. Blakeney: Yes, they may be so treated. I just want to examine the witness—cross examine her where I can, redirect where I can, and make her my witness where I cannot cross examine her.

Q. This child, Robert Lee, lived about a week or ten days, or two weeks, did it?

A. I don't know, sir, how long it lived.

Q. About how long do you say it lived?

A. I can't say.

Q. Now, Minnie, think a minute and tell us just how long that child lived, you know about how long?

A. Well, he didn't live very long, but I don't think it was a week, he didn't live very long.

Q. Minnie, how old was you when your first child was born? A. I can't remember how old I was, old enough to——

Q. Well, about how old, you remember the occurrence, now? A. Sixteen.

Q. You were about sixteen. What Indian blood have you? A. Euchee and Creek.

Q. What is Euchee blood, what do you mean by Euchee blood? A. I don't know.

Q. Don't you know that Euchee was the name merely of a band or sort of a village?

A. Well, I know I have got Creek in me.

Q. You know you have Creek. Minnie, if you had any negro blood in you, would you admit it?

A. No, I have no colored blood in me and I won't admit it.

Q. If you did have, would you admit it?

A. I don't know.

Q. You think now that you cannot say whether you would admit it if you had any?

A. Well, if I had it, it is no disgrace if you got it you got it, is all.

Q. Well, if you had it, feeling as you feel, you believe you would admit it if you had it?

A. Well, I don't feel that I have it. I have no symptoms to show you that I have it.

Q. That is not the question. The question is, is your surroundings in life such, and your residence with whites—association with whites during your life and your standing at this time such, if you had it would you admit it?

> By Mr. German: I object to that as calling for a conclusion and opinion of the witness and as argumentative.
>
> By Mr. Hanford: Object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. I don't know.

Q. You went to school to Alice Robertson a little while, did you? A. She was a teacher at Tallahassee Mission.

Q. How long did you go to school to her?

A. I went to school with her until Tallahassee School burned down.

Q. How long was that?

A. I can't say, for I don't remember.

Q. Minnie, how long did you go to school at Tallahassee?

A. Well, I don't exactly like to say for I don't exactly know whether it was a year or two years or what, I can't remember.

Q. You can't remember whether it was one year or two years? A. No, my memory is very poor.

Q. Your memory was poor in recalling incidents of your girlhood. Tell us whether you went to school one year or two years?

A. It was pretty near two years before it burned down.

Q. Then you went nearly two years at Tallahassee, I just wanted to get the facts, and am not trying to confuse you, it is your best recollection that you went there about two years, is it?

> By Mr. Hanford: I ask for a request at this time. The witness is very nervous and is unable to go on, which is manifest from her appearance at this time that a recess is necessary.

The Examiner: A recess of ten minutes.

By Mr. Hanford: She is ready to go on now.

Q. Minnie, I am not trying to mix you up now, I am just trying to get the facts. The Tallehassee School burned down and from there you went to Carlisle, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Did you go immediately to Carlisle after the Tallehassee School burned down?

A. It seemed like they sent up a week after it burned or something like that, it wasn't very long, I know.

Q. Were you boarding at the Tallehassee School?

A. Yes.

Q. How old were you at that time?

A. About fifteen years old, I guess.

Q. Then, how long did you stay at Carlisle?

A. I was there two years.

Q. You were there about two years and half, were you not? A. Two years is as much as I can recall.

Q. Have you ever been to school anywhere else except at Tallehassee and Carlisle?

A. That was the first school that I went to.

Q. Tallehassee. What did you do at Carlisle, were you studying the school books or were you learning domestic science?

A. Oh, we had a little of everything to do, learning sewing and studying, and everything.

Q. When you left Carlisle you had obtained all the education you have ever obtained from school and school books?

A. Oh, I know some yet.

Q. Minnie, I asked you if that was all of the schooling you had?

A. Yes, I had no more schooling after I left Carlisle.

Q. How far advanced were you in your books?

A. Oh, I wasn't very much advanced because I wouldn't pay much attention to my books.

Q. Were you studying arithmetic?

A. Yes, arithmetic and geography.

Q. Reading and spelling, were you? A. Yes.

Q. How far were you in arithmetic?

A. I wasn't very far because I wouldn't study very much.

Q. How far were you Minnie? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, you know about how far—— you know about how the arithmetic commenced, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. The first it commenced teaching you the addition, didn't it? You had to study addition, learned addition?

A. I didn't study very much arithmetic, because I didn't learn it and they couldn't do with much with me on arithmetic, so I didn't study very long.

Q. You mean that you didn't like the arithmetic?

A. No, I didn't like it. I would hide it every chance I got.

Q. And didn't study it because you didn't like it? A. No.

Q. What reader were you in? A. Fifth.

Q. You were in the Fifth Reader?

A. I wasn't much good in school because I took no interest in it.

Q. What did you take interest in?

A. Oh, having a good time.

Q. That was your—— A. That was my hobby.

Q. That was your spirit and feeling when you were at Carlisle? Did they allow at Carlisle boys and girls to go to school together?

A. No, we were separate, they had their quarters, and we had ours.

Q. Was your good time that you referred to association by you with the boys that—— A. No, the girls and things.

Q. Your pleasures were confined to your association with girls or boys?

A. The girls, and sometimes we would write to the boys.

Q. You left Carlisle about how old? I believe you said about sixteen before, didn't you?

A. I said I left Carlisle about fifteen, when I was fifteen.

Q. Then you were mistaken when you said that you left Tallehassee when you were fourteen?

A. You say my age, I don't remember so good, I was a big girl, I know that.

Q. You were then about eleven years of age, wasn't you when you started to Tallehassee and about twelve when you went to Carlisle, and about fifteen when you left?

A. I guess so, I can't remember my age so good.

Q. Quite a big girl when you left Carlisle?

A. I was big enough to look after myself, I had to work out for a living.

Q. You were grown then were you? A. Yes.

Q. You came to Leavenworth and went to work in a family by the name of Hyde? A. George H. Hyde.

Q. You were sent to Leavenworth by the sister of Mrs. Hyde, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. To do what kind of work in the Hyde family?

A. Well, she wanted the cooking done, and I done the cooking.

Q. You studied cooking in school, hadn't you?

A. No, they didn't teach me cooking. It was a sort of talent for me to know how to cook. I watched my mother cook.

Q. You did cook for the Hyde's? A. Yes.

Q. About how long? A. I was at Hyde's about——

Q. Now, be careful? A. Three months or a little over.

Q. You were there then three or four months? Where did you sleep when you were working for Hyde's?

A. Up stairs.

Q. In the Hyde house? A. Yes, in the Hyde house.

Q. Where did you work when you left the Hyde house?

A. Oh, I worked all over, at different places.

Q. Well, now, commence and tell us in the order in which you did your working. Take your time and get it accurate now? A. Well, I have said it so much that——

Q. You never said it to me before?

A. Said it to a thousand of others.

Q. Now, commence and tell me where you worked—commencing right at the place where you went to work?

A. I worked at the house, and from the house I went to Grodevant's, and from Grodevant's to Stafford's, and I then came to town again.

Q. How long did you work for the Grodevant's?

A. Oh, I was there off and on all the time.

Q. How long? A. Two or three months.

Q. When was Tommy born?

A. He was born when I was in Leavenworth. I had Tommy with me when I was at Ide's.

Q. Did you have Tommy with you when you came to Leavenworth?

A. No, I got Tommy at Hyde's at Leavenworth.

Q. Tommy was conceived at Leavenworth? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember the occasion on which Tommy was conceived?

> By Mr. Hanford: We object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and an improper question.

A. No.

Q. You don't know the day or night or place on which you became pregnant with Tommy?

A. No, I don't know just that minute or that day or that night.

Q. You don't know at the identical time, you don't know. Do you recall the first knowledge that you had that you were pregnant? A. No.

Q. You discovered that you was pregnant from the fact that you had missed your mensturations, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall now the occasion that you discovered that? A. No.

Q. Did you consult a doctor about it?

A. I didn't have to consult a doctor, I knew I was that way.

Q. You was then about sixteen years of age, wasn't you?

A. About that.

Q. This was your first child? A. Tommy was my first.

Q. You had had no experience in matters of that kind, and you discovered that you had become pregnant and you say you didn't consult any doctor as to whether he could produce a miscarriage or abortion or anything of that kind?

A. I didn't know enough to do it, or I would have done it.

Q. You didn't know enough to do that. What sized woman were you at that time?

A. Well, I was quite a woman, quite a girl.

Q. You are fleshy now, you wasn't so fleshy then were you?

A. I wasn't so fleshy then, no. I got this flesh on me in Denver, Colorado, but I wasn't in any way then.

Q. What do you say was your weight then?

A. I don't know because I never had myself weighed.

Q. You couldn't give us an estimate of about how much you weighed? A. No.

Q. What was the color of your hair? A. Black.

Q. There was no tinge of gray in your hair at that time, was there? A. No.

Q. You was a young, healthy, strong, black-eyed girl?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us what man you knew at that time in Leavenworth?

A. Oh, I knew lots of men, I couldn't give you all the names of men that I knew.

Q. Tell me those that you associated with?

A. Well, sometimes I would go around with Mr. Crilly.

Q. Who was Mr. Crilly?

A. He run the stable there in Leavenworth.

Q. And who else did you run around with?

A. Oh, I can't say, there was different ones.

Q. When did you—— Can you give the name of any other man? A. Yes, I could give the names of lots of them.

Q. That you ran around with?

By Mr. German: What time are you inquiring about?

By Mr. Blakeney: Inquiring about the time of the conception of this child, Tommy.

A. Oh, I knew quite a lot of men, I don't know, I don't just remember.

Q. Do you know who is the father of Tommy?

A. Sure I know.

Q. Will you tell us who his father was? A. No, sir.

Q. Why won't you tell us?

A. Simply because I won't, I object to telling it.

Q. Tell us why you object? A. No, I won't.

Q. Is the man living now? A. I won't tell it.

Q. If the father of Tommy was a white man you wouldn't object to telling, would you?

A. If he was a colored just the same, I wouldn't tell it.

Q. Minnie, where were you when Tommy was conceived?

A. I was staying at Granny Letcher's.

Q. How were you staying at Granny Letcher's?

A. Simply because she always let us girls come there any of the time.

Q. You understand what I mean by conceiving, don't you?

A. Having him.

Q. No, I am not talking about having the child, I am talking about where you were when the child was conceived, when you became impregnated? A. Oh, some hotel.

Q. Some hotel, do you remember the name of the hotel?

A. No, I don't remember the name of the building.

Q. You do have in mind a picture of the hotel but you have forgotten the name. Do you remember the man that was with you? A. Sure I know.

Q. How many times did you go to that hotel with that man? A. I don't know.

Q. About how many times? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever go more than once—— Minnie, I am not trying to—— Oh, well——

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and an improper question.

> By Mr. German: I want the record to show that a recess is taken for a couple of minutes for the witness to calm herself and recover from crying.

Q. Minnie, I will quit asking you about any of your men associates, and ask you about a girl or two, if you can calm down. What girls did you know there when you were in Leavenworth?

A. I ran around with a girl by the name of Ide Foster a good deal.

Q. Do you know where Ida is now? A. No.

Q. When was the last time you ever heard of Ida Foster?

A. I haven't heard of her since I left Leavenworth.

Q. Was she married at that time?

A. She was just a young girl running around with me.

Q. Was she an Indian girl?

A. No, she had some colored in her.

Q. Where did she live?

A. She used to hang out at Granny's too. I don't know where her home was.

Q. Minnie, you feel that I cannot go into this matter of asking you about your life there without causing you nervousness?

A. Well, I am nervous and I can't stand it, I went through it so much, you know. If it was my first time, it would be different, but I have went over this a million times.

Q. I hope now that you will be able to answer this question; not have any more scenes. Did you ever go up to this hotel with Ida Foster and with two men?

A. I think I and her was up there, but I don't know about two men. We used to go up there and get something to drink a good deal in the hotel.

Q. Who run that hotel?

A. I don't remember now, it was too long for me to put it through my mind.

Q. White or black? A. It was a white hotel.

Q. I would like to know what other places you ever met men, but I don't want——

A. I met them at Granny Letcher's and I met them in this hotel.

Q. Did you ever meet any colored men in either?

A. Yes, there was some colored men around there, working around for Granny.

Q. Did you ever occupy apartments with a colored man at Granny Letcher's? A. No, no, no.

Q. Anywhere else? A. No.

Q. You are sure of that, are you, Minnie? A. Yes.

Q. If you had, would you admit it?

A. Yes, I would admit it if I had.

Q. Why is it you smile when you say that? Are you saying that sarcastically? Would you honestly admit that you had occupied a bed with a colored man?

A. No, I didn't occupy a bed with——

Q. I say, would you admit it if you had? A. If I had, yes.

Q. Tommy was very much darker than you were, wasn't he?

A. Tommy isn't no colored man child, I want everybody to know it.

Q. Tommy was very much darker than you were, wasn't he? A. Well, he wasn't no colored child just the same.

By Mr. Blakeney: Read her my question, will you, please.

A. He is not much darker than me, Tommy isn't.

Q. When was the last time you ever saw Tommy?

A. I left Tommy with Granny when he was about two years old, I think.

Q. How often did you see Tommy?

A. I never seen Tommy after that.

Q. During the time that you stayed out at the Fort?

A. I would always be down around there with him.

Q. Minnie, when you used to go and get drinks at the hotel, did you ever get intoxicated?

A. No, I didn't get intoxicated in the hotel.

Q. Did you get intoxicated at Granny's?

A. No, sometimes we would be that way on the streets.

Q. You have been intoxicated on the streets, have you?

A. Sure.

Q. Where would you go then when you would get intoxicated? A. I would run up to Granny's.

Q. When you gave birth to the child you named Tommy, how long did you stay in bed? A. It was about two weeks.

Q. Were you in bed two weeks at that time?

A. I think it was two weeks.

Q. You was a strong healthy woman at that time, were you? A. Sure.

Q. Who was the doctor attending, if any doctor attended when Tommy was born?

A. I know him, but I can't say his name now.

Q. You do know him? A. The doctor?

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. Give us a description of him now, tell us where we might find him, or where you last knew——

A. Well, you would have to dig him out of the ground.

Q. He is dead is he? A. He is dead.

Q. When did he die? A. I don't know.

Q. How do you know he is dead?

A. He is dead, because I wanted to find him.

Q. He lived at Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was the first person that you saw that you recalled who visited you after the birth of the child besides the doctor? A. Mrs. Witt washed and dressed him.

Q. Mrs. who? A. Witt.

Q. Do you know whether Mrs. Witt is now living?

A. She is in Leavenworth.

Q. Still living in Leavenworth? A. I think so.

Q. Did you see her when you went over to Leavenworth?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you talk to her about it?

A. No, I didn't talk very much about it.

Q. Who was with you when you saw Mrs. Witt?

A. I was there just in Leavenworth.

Q. Who went with you over to Mrs. Witt's place?

A. Mr. Long.

Q. You and Mr. Long went over to Mrs. Witt's house?

A. Yes.

Q. And you talked to Mrs. Witt about it?

A. She knew me as soon as she saw me.

Q. Did she recall that? A. Yes.

Q. She had washed your baby?

A. I used to go up to Mrs. Witt's lot too, when I was living there.

Q. Was Mrs. Witt married or single at the time?

A. She was single.

Q. At the time she dressed the baby? A. Single.

Q. How old was she? A. I can't say.

Q. Compared with your age?

A. Mrs. Witt is pretty old now, not very old either, I was the oldest.

Q. You frequently visited her—— Mrs. Witt, then, was it?

A. No, I didn't know her by Mrs. Witt. All I knew was Ella.

Q. Ella? Ella, then, dressed your baby? What time was the baby born, day, night, or daytime or nighttime?

A. It was in the evening, night.

Q. Early?

A. I can't say whether it was night or morning, I won't say what hour, can't remember.

Q. How long did Ella stay?

A. She would come in and out to see me, couldn't stay.

Q. What was Ella doing there?

A. I can't say what she was doing there.

Q. What had she been doing when you associated with her before you got down with a child?

A. She had a little place up there, had a little home.

Q. She lived there? A. Yes.

Q. Who lived there with her? A. I don't know.

Q. Who did you see about the home when you went there?

A. Wasn't nobody in particular in her place that I wanted to see, I just knocked around anywhere there.

Q. What I want to get at, was Ella living there by herself, or with parents or husband? A. No, she had a——

Q. Was girls living with her? A. Yes.

Q. Is that what you mean?

A. Yes, that is what I mean.

Q. Then, I understand. She was merely a keeper of a house of ill fame, is that what you mean to infer? A. Yes.

Q. And was she at that time, at the time that you used to go up there and see her?

A. Oh, I can't swear that she kept a bad house or anything. We used to just go there, you know.

Q. What would you go for, what would you do when you got there?

A. Drink beer and carouse like anybody does.

Q. Drink beer and carouse and associate with the men?

A. Yes, and get back to the men again.

Q. You would go back to the men again. Do you object to my getting back to the men? A. I don't want to hear it.

Q. Who was the next woman you saw, or person that you saw after Ella came and dressed the baby?

A. The next day I think it was a woman came by the name of Mrs. Smith.

Q. Was that her name then?

A. Yes, she was always Mrs. Smith, to my recollection.

Q. Who was Mrs. Smith?

A. She was a half-breed woman there or something.

Q. Half breed what? A. Dressmaker.

Q. What was her breed? A. I don't know.

Q. What do you mean by half-breed?

A. She had some Indian in her.

Q. Part Indian, you understood?

A. What I call half-breed.

Q. She came, you say, either that day or the next day?

A. The next day at noon, I think.

Q. Were you in bed when she came? A. Yes.

Q. What did she do?

A. Oh, she just asked Granny who was upstairs, and Granny said "Some white woman is up stairs," and she came up.

Q. You heard her ask Granny? A. No, they told me.

Q. What did you hear her say, if anything? Not what they told you?

A. When she came in, she said: "I hear you got a white woman up stairs with a baby and I would like to see it." I heard her asking down stairs "A white woman up stairs with a baby, I would like to see it."

Q. And she came up?

A. She came up and didn't stay but a minute and she went back.

Q. What did she do when she was up there?

A. Just looked at me.

Q. Talked to you? A. No.

Q. Do you recall that the baby was crying and that she tried to stop the baby from crying? A. I don't recall.

Q. You don't recall that she told you the reason the baby was crying? A. No.

Q. And that she changed some of the clothing of the baby to try to prevent it from crying? You don't recall anything like that? When you went to Leavenworth, you saw Mrs. Smith, didn't you? A. Yes, I seen her.

Q. Who did you see her with?

A. She was there by herself at her home.

Q. Who was with you when you went over to see her?

A. I was with Mr. Long.

Q. Mr. Long took you over to see Mary? A. Yes.

Q. What conversation did you have there?

A. I didn't have any. Wanted Mrs. Smith to know if she could identify me and Mrs. Smith said: "Oh, yes, it was me."

Q. Mrs. Smith—— You knew Mrs. Smith fairly well before you got confined over in Granny Letcher's, didn't you?

A. I knew her, but they wanted to know if she knew me.

Q. But way back in the eighty's, before Tommy was born, you did know Mrs. Smith? A. Sure I did.

Q. And she knew you? A. Yes.

Q. And you went up there to see whether or not she could identify you as being the same woman?

A. Yes, that is what I wanted.

Q. What did Captain Long say to her in your presence?

A. He never said much of anything.

Q. Who did she say anything——

A. She just said that she knew me.

Q. That is the first and only thing she said?

A. That is all she said in front of me.

Q. Was Mr. Long trying to keep you from going to these witnesses? A. What?

Q. Mr. Long had you and exhibited you to the witnesses, but was trying to keep the witnesses from talking to you, wasn't he? A. I don't think so.

Q. Did you have a conversation with this old friend of yours there?

A. I talked to her what little I had to talk about, I didn't care much about talking to her.

Q. Why didn't you care about talking to her? Were you trying to keep concealed your life and experiences at Leavenworth during that time?

A. Yes, I was trying it but it seems I couldn't keep it anyway.

Q. You didn't want to voluntarily discuss that you had made the mistake when you were a girl, did you?

A. I didn't want it ever to be brought up to me again.
Q. Well, you were trying to conceal it, wasn't you?
A. I just can't stand for all that to be said to me.
Q. I am trying to be considerate of your feelings now.
A. You have no feeling.
Q. I was trying to——
A. I want to go, Mr. Hanford, I just can't stand it any longer and I won't.

By Mr. Hanford: Do you consent to another recess?

By Mr. Blakeney: Yes.

Thereupon, a brief recess in the taking of the testimony of this witness is had because of the inability of the witness to proceed on account of weeping.

By Mr. Blakeney: I made the statement in the record that I was not going to permit any promise that Minnie would be present to curtail my examination, but I will accept that statement now, as I believe that I can have no satisfactory examination without the assistance of the court, and I am going, however, to object to the use of any of this evidence unless she is produced as a witness, because I have been unable to cross examine her about matters that are material in this examination in chief—material to the examination in chief.

By Mr. German: I want to say in the record that I don't concur with counsel in thinking that he is compelled under the circumstances to discontinue his examination. The only thing that has occurred is that the witness has three times broken down due to nervousness, but that each of the two preceding times she has revived and the examination has been continued and it can be done again. She is now composed and I can see that he can now continue his examination. It has only been about three minutes ago that she broke down this time.

By Mr. Hanford: The purpose of this portion of the record relating to Minnie's nervousness, I would like to ask her a question.

Mr. Hanford.

Q. Minnie, what is the cause of your nervousness? Is it natural, or is it just the reviving of the past?

A. Well, I don't just like to have them talk right down on those things about the man and everything, it just works me up.

By Mr. Blakeney: Let the record show her emotional outbreak after the asking of that question.

Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Minnie, can you now calm yourself and let me inquire into the past transactions of your life and answer truly without any hesitation?

A. Well, of course, I will answer them.

Q. Minnie, how long had you known this Foster girl?

A. I didn't know her so very long, I didn't run around with her very much.

Q. What did you say her name was, Ella? A. Ida.

Q. Ida Foster, what is she doing in Leavenworth now, what was she doing when you were there last summer?

A. She was just well, like I was, running around.

Q. Did you get my question? What was she doing last summer?

A. I didn't see her last summer, I haven't seen her since I left Leavenworth. I just say that I run around with her.

Q. When did you commence that wild life?

A. I always had it, it was born in me.

Q. Had you been wild when you were at Tallehassee?

A. Yes.

Q. And at Carlisle?

A. Oh, I wasn't so wild at Carlisle as I was at other places.

Q. What other girls did you know when you were living at Leavenworth and used to run with?

A. Oh, I don't know just what girls I ran with, I can't say.

Q. Can you name any other now, besides Ida Foster?

A. Well, I went with her a good deal more than anybody else, that is the way I remember her.

Q. Do you know what finally became of Ida?

A. No, I don't know, I didn't ask when I was down there.

Q. You don't know where she is now, have you ever heard where she was? A. No.

Q. Did she finally go into a house of prostitution?

A. I don't know.

Q. You never heard. What other girl did you know now, just tell us the ones you ran with?

A. Well, I didn't run in particular with any girl. Do you want to know what woman and people I knew?

Q. Yes, take the women first. I am referring to all females as girls, what female associates you had is what I mean?

A. I didn't have any particular associates with women, I always traveled pretty much by myself.

Q. Did you room with anybody?

A. Yes, I wouldn't be rooming with any girl though.

Q. When you say "working," you would work at Hyde's —you would stay up at Hyde's, Minnie?

A. No, I didn't stay to Hyde's lots of times.

Q. While you were working, you didn't stay at Hyde's place?

A. Not all the time, sometimes I would and sometimes I wouldn't.

Q. You left Hyde's to go to the hotel sometimes and to Granny Letcher's, as you stated? A. Yes.

Q. Whenever you got intoxicated, you say you would go to these places and stay all night and carouse with men, would you? A. Yes.

Q. Can you name anybody that you saw in Leavenworth that you saw when there last summer, that you knew during that period of time?

A. Oh, there was quite a few around that I knew.

Q. Name them now for us?

A. I can't remember their names now.

Q. Have you any information in your possession that you could get their names from and give us the names of them?

A. Lots of people in Leavenworth I know.

Q. I am talking about those that you knew, those that were real associates of yours?

A. Oh, I never seen anybody that was really my associates, I never seen them any more.

Q. Did you see any men?

A. No, I think that they are all dead.

Q. You didn't see any men that you had associated with during your girlhood? A. No, I seen Mr. Crilly.

Q. Why, Minnie, do you object to telling us the father of Thomas? A. Well, I don't just want to.

Q. Is that the only reason that you have? It would be no more reflection on you, would it, to admit now the name of the father than your admission that you had the illegitimate child?

A. Well, I just always said I wouldn't and I don't want to.

Q. Well, now, isn't it a fact that you in admitting that you are not giving the name of Thomas' father——

A. I am giving Thomas' name after me, he is not named after the father, he is named after me, Tommy Atkins, and I am Minnie Atkins.

Q. Isn't it the fact that you are unwilling to give the name of Thomas' father because you think it would be an additional reflection upon you?

By Mr. Hanford: I object to the question and all this line of interrogation regarding the father of Thomas Atkins on the ground that it is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and not pertinent to the issues in the case, and the further ground that that question has already been ruled upon by this court, the witness has been excused from answering.

By Mr. Blakeney: Not on the issues we have presented, however, to this court.

A. I don't just want to tell it.

Q. Minnie, when you had Tommy, you had quit working for—who did you say you quit working for to have Tommy?

A. The Hyde's.

Q. You quit working for Hyde's and had Tommy, that is your recollection now is it?

A. Yes, I had Tommy when I left the Hyde's.

Q. When you worked for Hyde two or three months or four months——

A. Well, I had him in me when I left Hyde's.

Q. You went on working for whom?

A. Oh, well, I worked around for a while until I was ready to have him.

Q. Did you say you were pregnant?

A. Oh, I didn't show much, I kept my corset laced down, I didn't want to show it.

Q. You were able to conceal it?

A. Yes, as long as I could.

Q. How long before you had the child were you compelled to quit working to avoid disclosing it?

A. Oh, I had to quit about three months I think, I would work around town though with him—with it.

Q. You quit Grodevant's, you mean, about three months?

A. I don't just remember how long I quit there.

Q. You commenced working in September for the Grodevant's didn't you, and worked there on up to the following July, which would be practically ten months. Now, how did you have a child in that—during that time?

A. Well, I had him.

Q. Well, Minnie, tell us when—just that?

A. If I could only think, you wouldn't have to ask me, I know I had him.

Q. You know you had a child in Leavenworth? A. Sure.

Q. And you know you had a child resulting from your dissipation you just mentioned, running around, and your associations with men. Can you tell us the time you quit working?

A. That is how I am bothered in between them, couldn't get it quite as I should.

Q. You can't tell the order in which you went to work.

A. Sure, couldn't get it in my mind how I ought to tell it, you see.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you had this child before you went out to Grodevant?

A. Well, that is how I have got it, but I don't like to say, but I am in between the time, you see.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you worked up within a few days before you had the child? A. No.

Q. Minnie, are you sure you didn't? A. Yes.

Q. How long did you think you worked up to the time that you had the child?

A. I worked up to two months before I had him, because I know I laced down so tight it would always make me sick like, I know that much.

Q. How long did you stay at Granny Letcher's now, after you had Tommy there?

A. Well, I was just out and in all the time, I would go down to see him and work around in town and see what I could do.

Q. Now, Minnie, just refresh your memory, let me ask you: Grodevant's lived out at the Fort, didn't he? A. Yes.

Q. Now, after you had Tommy, you stayed around Leavenworth a year or more, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You didn't go out to the Fort, you stayed around so you could go to Granny's and nurse your baby, didn't you?

A. Sure I did.

Q. Then, don't you know that you had Tommy after you left Grodevant's? A. Yes, that is when I had him.

Q. That is your recollection now?

A. That is my recollection now.

Q. Now, Minnie, about how old was Tommy when you left Leavenworth? A. Leavenworth for good?

Q. Leavenworth for good?

A. He was about two years old.

Q. Did you see Tommy a day, or the day before you left?

A. I seen him, yes.

Q. Why didn't you take Tommy with you?

A. I asked Granny to keep him, and if I could make money enough I would send it to her. I was young and didn't have work half the time.

Q. What did you let your child, whose father you say was a white man, a child of yours, remain with a colored woman for?

A. Well, I just wanted him left there because she was good to me when I was carrying him.

Q. You felt perfectly congenial with Granny, didn't you?

A. Yes, I liked Granny.

Q. Did you regard it any humiliation to associate with Granny and live with her? A. No, I just liked her.

Q. You felt that was just as good as living with a white family?

A. Well, I thought if I could put him at Granny's they wouldn't know so much about it how I got him. I left him there to hide it.

Q. Well, did you ever send any money to her for Tommy after you left? A. I had nothing to send.

Q. You never did send any money after you left Leavenworth, did you leave Tommy—— A. Yes.

Q. You gave it a mother's affection did you? A. Yes.

Q. Did you have that feeling when you left Leavenworth?

A. Yes, and I told her I would send her money if I had it to get him clothes.

Q. You went to Fort Logan? A. Yes.

Q. You found it difficult to make a living out there?

A. Well, I made a little living, yes.

Q. You found it impossible to send any money back to Granny to help support Tommy, did you?

A. I just didn't send any.

Q. Well, did you not send it because you didn't want to?

A. No, it wasn't because I didn't want to, if I had it she was welcome to it.

Q. You didn't send it because you didn't have it to send?

A. Didn't have it to send.

Q. Did you write to Granny about Tommy?

A. No, Granny didn't know—didn't know where to locate me I guess.

Q. Did you tell Granny when you left?

A. I didn't say anything to any of them.

Q. You ran away from Leavenworth without letting anybody know where you were? A. Yes, I just went away.

Q. And abandoned your child?

A. Well, I didn't exactly abandon him.

Q. You never afterwards wrote to inquire about him, and you never afterwards sent it anything for its support, is that right? A. I didn't have it to send.

Q. But it is a fact that you didn't send any money to Granny or Tommy? A. No.

Q. Do you remember a man giving Tommy a little pair of boots?

A. I remember of a man—ain't a man—some clothes.

Q. What clothing did he give?

A. I didn't see him give them to him, he just said he gave them to him.

Q. You saw the clothing didn't you?

A. No, I haven't seen it.

Q. When did he tell you that he gave him clothing?

A. When I was down there the first time

Q. About how long ago?

A. That was summer before last.

Q. Who was that man that told you that?

A. Sam Nash told me he gave him clothes.

Q. Didn't Sam Nash tell you that he had given the little child a little pair of red topped boots and he had one of the boots about his place?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as hearsay and incompetent.

By Mr. Hanford: We object on the same ground.

A. I don't remember him saying about the boots, I do the clothes.

Q. You don't remember yourself that Sam Nash or anybody else gave any clothing to Tommy while you were keeping him?

A. No, well—— While I was around there I clothed him myself.

Q. Minnie, when did you next hear anything of or from Tommy after you left Leavenworth? A. What?

Q. When did you next hear anything of or from Tommy after you left Leavenworth? A. When did I hear from him?

Q. Yes, or of him?

A. Well, I heard from him but I just can't tell where it was, what place I was at.

Q. What did you hear?

A. Some one wrote and told me he was dead.

Q. Who wrote you?

A. I don't know, can't remember it now.

Q. Have you got that letter now?

A. No, I did have it though.

Q. You did have it when? A. When I got here.

Q. When you got here at Fort Logan? A. Yes.

Q. You had it, got the letter after you got here?

A. No, I didn't hear it after I got here, I had the letter after I got here.

Q. Where is it now?

A. Well, I and my husband had a set to, and he burned up all my mail.

Q. Since you came here? A. Yes.

Q. You don't know who wrote that letter?

A. No, I just was trying to study.

Q. You can't remember who wrote it?

A. I was just studying, I can't remember.

Q. Was it somebody you knew?

A. It seems like to me it was.

Q. Can you tell us who it was? A. No, I can't remember.

Q. Did that grieve you?
A. Yes, I felt it bad, but what could I do.
Q. Did you make any inquiry as to what he died with?
A. No.
Q. Or where he had been buried? A. No.
Q. You never made any inquiry at all? A. No.
Q. Don't you love your children?
A. Of course, I love my children.
Q. Why didn't you have any affection for Tommy?

By Mr. Hanford: Object to the question on the ground that it is a misstatement. She has just stated that she cared for her children.

By Mr. Blakeney: I object to counsel coaching.

Q. You didn't care enough for Tommy to even tell the people keeping him where you were going, you never wrote about him or sent anything for his support; you received a letter some years later of his death, you have never made any inquiry about how, where, or when he died, is that true?

By Mr. Hanford: Object to the question on the ground it is argument, incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial and a misstatement.

A. Yes, I loved him and everything, but what was I going to do.

Q. You had two other illegitimate children with you, didn't you, Minnie, Charlie and Harvey?
A. Well, I had a little more sense when I had them.
Q. Well, how old was Tommy when you had Charlie?
A. Tommy would have been about—when I had—— No, it would be Mabel first—— Alice.
Q. Mabel died, didn't she?
A. Alice was before Charlie, she died, but——
Q. How old was Tommy when Charlie was born?
A. I can't say how much between them.
Q. Give us about, he was a little infant boy at the time?
A. Yes.
Q. And you got sense by the time that you had gotten Charlie, why then didn't you try to get Tommy and bring him to your home to live with you?
A. I had no home to live, I had to work out all the time.
Q. What did you do with Alice?
A. Alice didn't live very long, she died in Logan.
Q. And Charlie?
A. I had to pay people to look after him when I worked.
Q. You maintained a home, didn't you?
A. They didn't have anything for you with children to work.

Q. You did maintain a home, and you were living with a soldier by the name of Harris, wasn't you?

A. No, he wasn't no soldier.

Q. What was he?

A. He was a man, Lee wasn't a soldier.

Q. Well, what did he do?

A. He was the Government contractor for the beef.

Q. He ran a butcher shop there in Fort Logan, didn't he? A. Yes.

Q. He supported you?

A. Yes, he helped me with my children.

Q. Did you ask him to let you bring Tommy?

A. I didn't want to let him know I had any more.

Q. What? A. I didn't want to let him know.

Q. You wanted to conceal from him the fact that you had Tommy, is that true? Minnie, did you want to conceal the fact from this man that you had Tommy because you wanted to conceal the fact of your reckless life?

A. That was it exactly, that was it.

Q. Or was it because of some peculiar objections you had to Tommy? A. No, that was it.

Q. Or was it the fact that Tommy is so dark?

A. Why, no, Tommy isn't dark, why do you think he is dark?

Q. Why do you think he is not?

A. Because I know he is not.

Q. When did you last see him?

A. I never seen him but I know he is not dark.

Q. Why, because you know he was not very dark when he was an infant?

A. No, he is not dark, he is not very dark.

Q. You are saying he is not dark, because you want to emphasize the fact that his father is a white man, that is the reason, isn't it? A. His father is a white man.

By Mr. Hanford: I object to the question as argumentative, incompetent, and irrelevant and immaterial.

A. His father is a white man.

Q. Well, now, you got this letter telling you that Tommy was dead, how old do you say Tommy was at that time?

A. Well, I ought to judge Tommy at that time had to be about eight or nine years old, order than that.

Q. Older than that? A. I just can't say how old he was.

Q. Well, let's see how old he was. Tommy was living when you went over to get this money for him, wasn't he?

A. Yes.

Q. You hadn't heard he was dead then?

A. He wasn't dead then.

Q. Why?

A. If he was dead he couldn't be on the payroll.

Q. You put him on the payroll?

A. I had my uncle put him on.

Q. When? A. When I was in Muskogee.

Q. Did you tell your uncle you had a child by the name of Tommy, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You didn't know whether he was dead or not then did you? A. I knew he was not dead then, yes.

Q. Now, Minnie, that was some eleven years after Tommy was born you were putting him on the roll? Tommy was approximately eleven years old then and you hadn't heard from him in eight or nine years and you didn't know whether he was dead or alive, did you? Isn't that right?

A. Well, he was living when he was on the roll.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you did know that he was alive, that you frequently heard from him and of him, isn't that a fact?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as argumentative, irrelevant, incompetent, and immaterial, leading and suggestive.

A. I won't answer, I don't know.

Q. Minnie, there is nothing to disturb you there?

A. No, it doesn't disturb me, but I knew he wasn't dead when he was on the roll.

Q. Just tell us why you knew it, what ways had you of knowing it except to see him?

By Mr. Hanford: We object to the question, she says she doesn't know.

By Mr. Blakeney: She says she did know.

Q. What ways did you have of knowing that he wasn't dead when you put him on the roll? A. Well, I don't know.

Q. Were you just relying on the fact that he had been living? A. No, I am not lying at nothing.

Q. Relying, I said, just relying on the fact that he had been living and you hadn't heard that he was dead, and you therefore presumed he was alive in 1905?

A. I told my uncle I had a baby in Leavenworth named Tommy Atkins, would he put him on the roll, and he said he would.

Q. You told him then who the child was living with?

A. Told him I had him there at Granny's.

Q. You told him that Granny was dead or alive then?

A. I didn't know that Granny was dead.

Q. You didn't know what Granny did with the boy when she died, did you? A. No.

Q. You didn't know whether Granny was alive or dead when you was talking to your uncle?

A. I knew I had a child and I wanted him enrolled.

Q. Now, had you heard from men going to Leavenworth from time to time that Tommy was still alive, did men tell you they had seen Tommy?

A. I just knew he wasn't dead then, that is all.

Q. Didn't they tell you? Had you never received any information that Granny had sent the child out of town?

A. Granny didn't know where to write to me.

Q. What? A. She didn't know where to write to me.

Q. Didn't soldiers moving around tell you that Granny sent the child out of town for a family to raise? A. No.

Q. Minnie, did you expect Granny to raise and support your child?

A. No, I didn't expect her, I would have went back sometime and got him and looked after him when I could be able to do it.

Q. Well, why did you think Granny would take your child and feed and clothe him? A. She did it.

Q. Because you promised to pay her for it?

A. Yes, but I had nothing to pay her.

Q. And when she did it, you expected her to do it for charity? A. Yes.

Q. You tell us that, you just expected Granny to take your child and raise it, feed it, clothe it, and care for it in its tender years, did you? A. No, I expected to get it.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you thought Granny ought to do that because it was a colored child?

A. Tommy isn't a colored child.

Q. You don't know where you received that letter announcing Tommy's death do you? A. No.

Q. Was it before you went to Muskogee to draw that money?

By Mr. Hanford: I object to the question, she has stated that she doesn't know.

A. I just can't remember where.

Q. Well, you know it was after you went down to draw this money, don't you?

A. Oh, it was after I drew the money, of course, when I heard he was dead.

Q. You wouldn't have drawn the money——

A. I wouldn't have drawn the money if he had been dead.

Q. How long did you stay at Okmulgee when you drew this money?

A. I went in the morning and stayed and came back that night.

Q. Did you go up to Leavenworth when you were down?
A. No.

Q. Why didn't you, Minnie? A. I don't know.

Q. Why didn't you stop at Leavenworth to see Tommy when you went down to Oklahoma?

A. I intended to come back through that way and stop off and see him.

Q. Why didn't you stop when you came back?

A. Well, I didn't.

Q. Well, why?

A. I don't know. My intentions was good enough, but I didn't.

Q. Did you ever hear where Tommy was buried? A. No.

Q. Did you ever know Tommy was dead until Mr. Long or some of these parties mixed up in this suit——

A. I told Mr. Long myself that Tommy was dead. Mr. Long didn't know nothin'.

Q. Did Mr. Long make any inquiry about how you knew it? A. I don't remember, I told him.

> By Mr. Hanford: I object to the question and move to strike all this testimony relating to the death of Thomas Atkins, on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not involved in the issues in this case.
>
> Mr. Blakeney: Well, I think that is true. Well, it is involved. I think it is true it is not competent evidence if he was dead.

A. Mr. Long didn't tell me that he was dead.

Q. Did Mr. Long tell you that he wanted to try to prove that he was dead?

A. I don't remember of his telling me that.

Q. Minnie, you know you wouldn't have any right to this land if Tommy was living, don't you?

A. I know I wouldn't have any right to it if he was living.

Q. You know that? A. Yes.

Q. And you have made leases and deeds and conveyances to this land, haven't you, isn't that right? A. I just leased it.

Q. You have leased it and you have made a trust deed of this land to Captain McNab, haven't you? A. Yes.

Q. You have exercised ownership and control of this land, haven't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you have done it upon the theory that Tommy was dead, that is true, and the only information that you have that Tommy is dead is that somebody, whose name you don't know, had somebody write you a letter telling you he was dead, is that right? A. Know he is dead.

Q. Why, how, when? A. I can't explain or tell you.

Q. What? A. I can't explain or tell you.

Q. Well, how do you know it? A. I just know it.

Q. Well, you have no other way of finding out things except by the five senses, have you?

A. No, I just know he is dead.

Q. You wouldn't claim your son is dead just to get his land, would you, Minnie?

A. No, I wouldn't claim that he is dead just to get his land, no, but he is dead. I will know my own child if he is produced to me, I will know him at any time anybody brings up a Tommy Atkins to me when it is Tommy Atkins, I will admit that is Tommy Atkins.

Q. How will you know? A. I will know my own child.

Q. How will you know him?

A. I haven't forgotten how he looked.

Q. You think there will be such a resemblance in the man thirty four or five years of age, or thirty one years of age to an infant that you will recognize him?

A. Yes, I will know him.

Q. Have you made any effort to try to find your son?

A. I have asked lots of people if he is living or anything.

Q. Who have you ever asked?

A. I asked people in Leavenworth if they thought they knew where the baby was.

Q. Who did you ask in Leavenworth?

A. I asked Mrs. Smith if she thought she knew where he would be.

Q. What did she tell you? A. Said she didn't know.

Q. What? A. Said she didn't know where he was.

Q. But she said she had seen him in the last few months, didn't she? A. No, she didn't tell me that.

Q. How long did she tell you it was before she had seen him? A. I don't just remember what she did say.

Q. Don't you remember she told you she knew exactly where he was raised, and that she had seen him in Leavenworth a few months before you talked to her?

A. She said that, but that wasn't the Tommy that she knew.

Q. How do you know? Did Long tell you that wasn't the Tommy? A. No, Long had nothing to do with it whatever.

Q. But she did tell you that, didn't she? A. Yes.

Q. Mary Smith now, did tell you, when you were talking to her there, that she knew where Tommy was, where he was raised, and had seen him but a few months before?

A. No, she didn't tell me that.

Q. What did she tell you?

A. She said she knew where Tommy was and where he was living, but that wasn't the Tommy.

Q. How do you know?

A. Because I asked for him to come to me while I was in Leavenworth and see me but he didn't do it, the one she had reference to.

Q. You did ask?

A. Yes, and why did he refuse if he wasn't my child.

Q. That is the reason you say he isn't your child? A. No.

Q. Don't you know that he did come up and try to see you and Long wouldn't let him see you? A. No, Mr. Long did.

Q. Did Mary tell you why she knew this was your child?

A. No.

Q. Now, Minnie, didn't she tell you why? A. No.

Q. Didn't she tell you that she had made an examination of this boy for a mark on him? A. No.

Q. Didn't she tell you that—— Think a minute.

A. I am thinking. Mary didn't tell me that, Mary Smith didn't tell me that.

Q. Didn't Mary Smith tell you about a mark on Tommy Atkins and about her making an examination of this other boy to see whether he had the same mark or not? A. No.

Q. You are sure of that—— Mary Smith didn't tell you that? A. Not that I can remember.

Q. Didn't you tell her about the mark that was on Tommy? A. Me?

Q. Yes? A. No, sir, I didn't.

Q. Wasn't you trying to help identify your son?

A. He had no marks on him anywhere's when I had him.

Q. None at all? A. No, not a mark.

Q. Not a mark of any kind, what do you mean by a mark, what do you think I am talking about?

A. You think a mark he had on him is where he fell over on a flat iron and marked his arm with a flat iron.

Q. That is what you are referring to and he had no such mark as that on him?

A. No, not when I left him with Granny.

Q. What did they call Tommy? Did they call him Indian Tommy? A. I don't know whether they did or not.

Q. Was he walking when you left Leavenworth?

A. No, he was just about two years old when I left him.

Q. Well, he was walking around the place, wasn't he?

A. Trying to walk.

Q. Which was he doing?

A. I don't know. I don't know whether he was walking at two years or not, I don't know whether they called him Indian Tommy or not.

Q. Didn't Mary tell you in this conversation: That about a month or so ago, one morning about seven o'clock before she had gotten up, that some one rapped on her door, that she opened the door and there stood a man, a young man who I immediately recognized as Tommy Atkins and I was able to recognize him—which I recognized as Tommy Atkins and I exclaimed, "My God, isn't this Tommy Atkins"?

By Mr. German: We object to that as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and hearsay.

A. She didn't tell that to me.

By Mr. Allen: That is objected to as leading and suggestive. We want to move to strike all of the questions of this witness—all the questions propounded to and answers given by this witness calling for or relating any conversation had between this witness and any other party.

Q. You knew Jim Mayo, didn't you?
A. I knew a Jim Mayo.
Q. How old was he when Tommy was born? A. Just a kid.
Q. How old? A. He was a baby too.
Q. A baby. Was Jim Mayo—— You mean that Jim Mayo was a baby? Now, I want you to think. Don't you know Jim Mayo was married at that time, running a base ball club or team there in Leavenworth?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as contradicting his own witness and leading.

Q. Don't you remember that?
A. I said that he was a kid running around there, big fellow.
Q. Don't you know he was married? When Tommy was born, don't you know Jim Mayo was married and living two or three blocks from this house, don't you, Minnie?
A. I don't know he was married.
Q. Didn't you know that some of his—that he had two or three other women boarding there with him who worked up there sometimes at Granny Letcher's?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the same reason.

Q. Well, let's see, you knew Walker Banks, didn't you?
A. Yes.
Q. Isn't he the boy you had in mind instead of Jim Mayo?
A. It is Walter Banks.

By Mr. Allen: We object to that question.

A. There was other boys that stayed there—Jim Mayo and Nash—Sam.

Q. Sam Nash was a big boy, wasn't he? A. I guess so.

By Mr. Allen: We object to that question as leading and suggestive.

Q. Minnie, did you know Burns that run with Jim Mayo?

A. No.

Q. You are very sure of that, are you?

A. I say sure I don't remember.

Q. Don't you know that Burns is a colored man that lived there in Leavenworth, and that you run with him?

A. No, I didn't run with no Burns.

Q. Do you know Burns now?

A. No, I don't know him, and I didn't run with him I said.

Q. Tell us all the colored people you knew in Leavenworth, commencing with the girl? I don't mean those that you actually know, but those that you drank with or visited with?

A. I knew those but I didn't drink with them, I knew them by going around Granny's.

Q. Tell us all you knew coming around Granny's?

A. Well, I knew a fellow used to bring wood there by the name of Bill, I can't think of his other name now.

Q. Describe them to us. Now, was he a yellow one?

A. What?

Q. You knew a young man there, a sort of a yellow boy?

A. Oh, I can't remember.

Q. Did you ever see anybody bring any vegetables there at Granny's and stay all night.

A. A fellow there run a grocery store.

Q. I mean from the country?

A. Yes, but I don't remember who he was.

Q. Describe him as you remember him?

A. I said I didn't remember who he was.

Q. I know, but I want you just to describe him the best you can remember, you don't remember his name?

A. I can't describe him.

Q. He was rather a heavy set or short fellow, wasn't he?

A. That must have been the fellow, if he was yellow it must have been Bill.

Q. Don't you remember one that came in from the country and stopped there, had whiskers, not very long, but came there and would stay at night with Granny?

A. I can't remember.

Q. Do you remember a man of that kind, drove a spring wagon I think, named Carter?

A. No, that is not his name, I know who you mean, that ain't his name.

Q. What is his name?

A. I think his name was—— Oh, I don't know what his name was.

Q. Minnie, you have been told about the claim of this Henry Carter, haven't you, that has been explained to you hasn't it? A. No.

Q. And you have been warned whereas you must not admit things that would benefit Henry Carter's claim?

A. No, I haven't been warned anything like that.

Q. Hasn't Long warned you? A. No.

Q. Hasn't Long and these men explained to you that if your son recovers that you will have to give up this land?

A. Well, I know if he recovers, I will have to give it up. Long wouldn't have to tell me, I know it myself.

Q. You know that and you are interested in not having him recover? A. No, I wish he would recover, I wish they would find him tomorrow.

Q. You don't wish it hard enough to try?

A. Sure I can't help.

Q. When you were at Leavenworth trying to find it out, you had Mr. Long with you, didn't you?

A. Trying to find him?

Q. Did you ever talk to anybody that you wasn't talking in the presence of Long?

A. Oh, lots talked to me and Mr. Long wouldn't be there.

Q. Anybody that knew anything about you having a child there? A. Yes, they knew I had the child there.

Q. Long let you talk to somebody now at Leavenworth when he was not present? A. No.

Q. He did not, you never talked to anybody at Leavenworth while Long was not present?

A. I talked to anybody I wanted to talk to.

Q. You didn't want to talk to anybody when Long wasn't present?

A. Nobody around for me to talk to, I would talk to them

Q. You went down to the Federal Court to testify for Page, didn't you, in the Receivership hearing at Muskogee?

A. Yes, I was in Muskogee.

Q. You knew, didn't you, that they had taken Mary Smith down to testify? A. No, I didn't know it.

Q. Did they take Sam Nash down to testify, did you see Sam Nash there? A. No.

Q. Did you see Bishop there? A. No.

Q. Was George Crilly there? A. Yes.

Q. You saw him. Did you know why George Crilly wasn't put on the stand? A. No.

Q. Don't you know that George Crilly told you and the lawyers in your presence that he knew where Tommy Atkins was at that time, and they said, "Well, you can go on home, we don't want to prove that." Did you hear that? A. No.

Q. Was a man by the name of Cox there?

A. No, not that I know of.

Q. Minnie, you intend to go down, do you? A. Yes.

Q. To the Court? A. Yes.

Q. George Crilly saw Tommy Atkins there at Granny Letcher's when you were keeping him there, didn't he?

A. Yes.

Q. He was up to your apartments and saw you and Tommy there together, didn't he, a number of times?

A. I don't know how many times.

Q. I said a number, several times, didn't he? A. Yes.

Q. You have taken this child over to his stable, haven't you? A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, Judge knew the child very well, didn't he?

A. Yes, he knew him.

Q. Do you remember who got you to go out to the Fort from the Hyde's—to go out to the Fort from Leavenworth?

A. Yes.

Q. What was that man's name?

A. His name was Lee.

Q. And who did you go to work for first out there?

A. When I first went out to Leavenworth?

Q. Yes? A. The Grodevant's.

Q. Did you work there steadily? A. No.

Q. Were you the—— Who did the work?

A. Mrs. Grodevant sometimes, and I did.

Q. What kind of a room did you sleep in?

A. It wasn't finished overhead.

Q. While you were working for the Grodevant's, Minnie, were you carrying Thomas at any of that time?

A. I think I was, I don't know.

Q. Well, did Mrs. Grodevant ever say anything to you about your condition? A. She said I looked funny.

By Mr. German: I object to that question and answer on the ground that it is a self serving declaration, and move to strike the answer for that reason.

Q. Well, Minnie, how did you go out to the Fort from Leavenworth? A. The first time?

Q. Yes? A. In a buggy with Lee.

Q. In a buggy with Lee? A. Yes.

Q. What mode of transportation was there between Leavenworth and the Fort, were there street cars or trains?

A. As near as I can tell it.

Q. Where did Granny Letcher live at that time?

A. On Seneca street.

Q. Did you ever know of Granny living at any other place?

A. I think it was Cherokee, I can't think of that street, I know where she lived before, I can't think of the street now.

Q. Was that before or after she lived on Seneca?

A. She lived there first and then she moved on Seneca.

Q. Did you go to her house any when she lived at that other place? A. Yes, we used to go there.

Q. Do you remember anything about that house—the first house she lived in, what kind of a house it was?

A. Well, it was pretty near like the other one, she would allow us girls to come there, you know.

Q. Well, can you tell what it looked like, can you picture it? A. Not exactly.

Q. Do you know when she moved?

A. No, I don't remember when she moved.

Q. It was before Thomas was born?

A. Thomas was born in the other house on Seneca.

Recross Examination by Mr. German.

By Mr. German: I desire to cross examine on Mr. Blakeney's direct examination.

Q. Minnie, you say that Thomas was born at which house, do you say on Seneca, or that other street?

A. I think it was Seneca.

Q. How long had Granny been living on Seneca street?

A. I don't know just how long.

Q. What kind of a looking woman was Granny?

A. She was fleshy and kind of dark—fleshy.

Q. Tall, medium, or short?

A. She was kind of—well, I can't give you the exact height of her.

Q. Well, would you say tall, medium, or short, or what?

A. Wasn't so very tall.

Q. Then, you would say she was a little above the average in height? A. Yes.

Q. Was she thin or heavy?

A. Kind of heavy, Granny was.

Q. What would you have judged she weighed?

A. I don't know that.

A. I think it had a porch half way running around.
Q. Partly in front and partly on the side?
A. That is what I think it was partly.
Q. Partly what?

A. I would just say a porch in front, I don't know whether it run around or not.

Q. Did it have any other porches?
A. I don't remember.
Q. How were the rooms arranged down stairs?

A. I don't remember that, it has been too long for me to remember about them rooms.

Q. Don't you remember whether there was two rooms in front, or just one down stairs, and how it was arranged?

A. Well, she had a parlor and bed rooms and kitchen.
Q. Now, the kitchen, was the kitchen in the rear?
A. I don't remember that, how they were arranged.
Q. How many rooms up stairs? A. There was two.
Q. Any hall up there? A. The rooms were divided off.

Q. These rooms up stairs, there was just two rooms, just one partition wall up there, is that right?

A. I can't just remember now how them places were laid out.

Q. Well, are you sure whether there was a hall and two rooms or whether it was different from that?

A. I can't say at all, because——
Q. Which room was Tommy born in? A. The last room.
Q. Where? A. Up stairs.
Q. Which is the last room? A. The room that faced north.
Q. Faced north? A. Yes.

Q. Which way does that house face, do you mean that the house faced north, which way did Seneca street run?

A. This way.
Q. Which way is that, east and west, or north and south?
A. I don't know.

Q. You were not turned around in Leavenworth, were you?

A. Yes, I was turned around considerable in Leavenworth.

Q. What way did you think it faced, the house?

A. Well, I think it faced that way.

Q. Now, which direction did it face, which direction is that way, you say that way?

A. I can't remember about how that house was now.

Q. Now, Thomas was born in the room that was on—in the front of the up stairs or in the back?

A. In the upstairs, I think—I won't say, I don't remember whether it was the back or the front, I won't say, it was one of those rooms up stairs.

Q. Now, wasn't there any more to the upstairs but the four rooms? A. As much as I can remember.

Q. How were they arranged, in two's or how?

A. Well, it looked like when we got in, we come on a porch, and we went in the door, first we hit the parlor as far as I can——

Q. And then what?

A. Oh, I can't remember, it's too long ago for me.

Q. You were there quite a good deal, weren't you?

A. Sure I was.

Q. But don't remember how it was arranged? How long did you stay there at any one time?

A. Well, the longest I stayed was when I was sick with Tommy.

Q. How long do you think that was?

A. Well, I was about two weeks sick, I think more; I used to go there all the time I didn't make it my home.

Q. You say you had this child after you left the Grodevant's, is that correct?

A. Well, I can't exactly figure how, when I had him in that time, because I had him in town I know.

Q. Well, what is your best recollection now?

A. After I went to town—back to town.

Q. Back to town. You didn't go to the Fort any more to work after you had Tommy? Did you or not?

A. I think—— I don't know whether I did or not.

Q. You went over from the Grodevant's to a family by the name of Stafford, didn't you, to work—Lieutenant Stafford's?

A. No, I think I had Tommy before I went there, I can't saw how, I kind of get mixed up some way; I worked around so many places, I can't give no definite answer to that.

Q. You left Hyde's with a soldier to go to Grodevant's, didn't you? A. No, sir, I didn't.

Q. Well, with a man named Lee?

A. Yes, but he wasn't a soldier.

Q. He was a white man? A. Yes.

Q. Where did he work?

A. He was the Colonel's coachman.

Q. Colonel, who? A. Colonel——

Q. You don't remember? Some Colonel in the army there at Leavenworth, at Fort Leavenworth?

A. Yes, he was his coachman.

Q. And the Hyde's were away from home at the time you left there? A. No, they were home.

Q. Did they know you left with him?

A. Yes, they knew I left with him.

Q. He took you to Grodevant's?

A. Took me up there to see them.

Q. And you were employed by them?

A. Well, I just didn't go right that day, I went back the next day to see them again.

Q. And then were employed, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. So, you don't remember where you were working when Thomas was born?

A. I wasn't working much of anywhere, I was just here and there, wasn't steady anyway.

Q. Wasn't working steady for anybody at that time? Then it must have been either after you left Grodevant's or after you left Stafford's, wasn't it? Well, I will ask you this, Minnie: You worked steady for Grodevant's while you worked for them, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't work steady there.

Q. You worked steady for Lieutenant Stafford, while you worked there, didn't you?

A. I wasn't so very steady there either.

Q. How long at a time would you be away from Lieutenant Stafford's, do you recall?

A. No, I don't know how long it would be at a time.

Q. You don't remember how long at a time you would be away from Grodevant's? A. No.

Q. Were you away from Grodevant's more than a week at any one time from the time that you commenced to work for him until you quit? A. I don't remember.

Q. The letter that you had telling you that Thomas was dead, you received that when you were at the Fort just before you came to Fort Lawton, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. There was a deed with that letter, wasn't there?

A. Yes.

Q. And somebody wanted you to sign that deed, whoever wrote that letter, didn't they?

A. Cad Wadsworth wrote the letter.

Q. From Oklahoma? A. No, it was my sister's husband.

Q. How? A. My sister's husband.

Q. Where did he live? A. Out in the country.

Q. Where from, out in what country?

A. Thirty miles from Muskogee.

Q. That is the letter that you referred to that is burned up isn't it?

A. No, the letter that is burned up—all those letters are burned up.

Q. Was the boy that Mary Smith referred to, summer before last, who she claimed was Thomas Atkins, was he this man H. Carter?

A. I don't know anything about that Smith business, I don't know.

Q. Mary Smith referring to some boy and you say it was not Thomas?

A. Well, I said it wasn't Thomas, I don't know what his name was.

Q. You don't know what his name was? A. No.

Q. Now, what is the name of that half breed Indian that you referred to as having been at Granny Letcher's, or having been in Leavenworth when you were living there?

A. Half breed?

Q. Yes, you spoke of a half breed Indian coming in one day when you were at Granny Letcher's?

A. That was Bill, that wasn't Tommy.

Q. Oh, it was a man was it? A. Yes.

Q. I thought there was a half breed Indian woman there?

A. That was Mary Smith, she has got Indian you know, I think.

Q. She has got Indian in her?

A. I don't know, I just took it by the looks.

Q. What is the rest?

A. She would be white, I guess.

Q. White and Indian, did you see her summer before last? A. Yes.

Q. She lives in Leavenworth now? A. Yes.

Q. Your child that was born and died at Fort Logan, Colorado, was born at the Post hospital, wasn't it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did it die at the Post hospital? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have a child that was born and died at the Post hospital? A. No, sir.

Q. Named Mandy Atkins?

A. Mandy Atkins, that is my sister.

Q. I know, but I am speaking of the Fort Logan Colorado Hospital?

A. No, my child didn't die in the hospital at Fort Logan, or it wasn't born in the hospital, Mabel—— I mean Alice.

Q. Did you have a child at Fort Logan named Nancy that was born and died?

A. No, that is the only children I had: Thomas, Harvey, Charlie and Alice.

Q. Minnie, the records in the hospital at Fort Logan Hospital show that a child was born to Minnie Peterkin and it lived about ten months and died in the hospital?

A. No, it wasn't in the hospital.

Q. The records of the hospital show the birth and death of a child?

A. I never had it in the hospital and it never died in the hospital. They come down to my home and got the child and took it to the Post Cemetery and buried it, it wasn't born in the hospital.

Q. The records in the hospital show a child of Minnie Peterkin named Nancy. Now, it may be true that it wasn't born or didn't die there, but you gave the name Nancy?

A. There is nothing there belonging to me by the name of Nancy Atkins, I don't know nothing about that, because they all knew there in Fort Logan that my name was Minnie Atkins, it wasn't my child.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Minnie, you were asked just now about a letter at the last place before Fort Lawton, that was Fort Harrison, Montana, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever receive a letter there with a deed in it, or any paper? A. No, I got it at Montana.

Q. At Montana?

A. That is the letter I got at Montana, Fort Harrison.

Q. That is the letter that you spoke about? A. Yes.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. Hill: I want to ask Mrs. Folk some questions in regard to her statement at Kansas City.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hill.

Q. Mrs. Folk, before you had this conference with Mr. Page, Mr. Josey, Mr. Long, Mr. Hanford, and Mr. Rice at Kansas City, you had been to Leavenworth twice had you not?

A. I think so.

Q. You had talked to quite a number of people there and with your counsel and was doing the best you could to remember the facts inquired about? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You intended to answer truthfully all the questions that were put to you in that conference, were you not, Mrs. Folk? A. I was trying to answer all I could remember.

Q. And were trying to answer them truthfully?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I want to read you from page 31 and see if these questions and answers were put to you, if these questions were put to you and answers returned by you: "Q. How did you happen to go to the Territory? A. I went back because my brother sent for me and wanted to see me. Q. Who was your brother? A. Lee Atkins. Q. Did he write to you? A. Yes, sir. Q. Had you written to him before that? A. No, he found out where I was. Q. Had you written to any of the folks in the Territory? A. No, I didn't want them to know."

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I will ask you to listen to this from page 33 of the record, questions and answers: "Q. Now, when you went from Fort Logan down to the Territory, now, while you were at Fort Logan before you went down to the Territory and while you were living with Peterkin before he was ordered away, did you get any other letter from the Territory that you remember of, from the folks in the Territory? A. Charlie used to write to me all the time. Q. Charlie, who? A. Charlie Peterkin. Q. Well, I mean any of the others in the Territory? A. I got this letter from the Territory, at Detroit, Michigan, when we were up there about Tommy. Q. Now, when did you go to Detroit? A. When the Seventh Infantry came back from Cuba, they were ordered to Detroit Michigan, to Fort Wayne Q. Now, that was all after you had been down to the Territory, wasn't it? A. I made two trips you know. Q. Well, I mean the first trip, now, the only letter you had from the Territory when you made your first trip was some letters you got from Lee to come down? A. That was the first of the whole thing." Is that true? A. Yes.

Q. Now, continuing on page 34: "Q. Up to that time had you any letters or correspondence about Thomas? A. No. Q. Did you get any letters at all from anybody about Tommy? A. No. Q. Did you make any inquiry of anybody about him? A. Not after I went away." Did you give those answers to those questions? A. I don't remember.

Q. How is that? A. I don't remember.

Q. "You didn't see anybody from Leavenworth from the time you went down to the Territory? A. I only seen the Hamilton's when they came. I left them there and went to Muskogee to see my brother." Was that true?

A. No, that ain't right.

Q. Did you say in this conference at Kansas City—— You shake your head, the stenographer don't get that? A. No.

Q. You did not say that. Now, page 35: "Did Mary Hamilton tell you about Tommy? A. No, sir. Q. Did you ask her? A. No, sir. Q. Did she know anything about Tommy being dead? A. No, I kept away from her. Q. You kept away from her in Muskogee? A. Yes, I didn't want her to know. Q. Did her husband know? A. Oh, Claude, no he didn't know nothing." Did you make those answers to those questions? A. Yes.

Q. Page 37 this question and these answers: "Now, you wrote John Davis about your having the children, did you, that is what children that you had? A. I didn't tell him about Tommy. He knew about Charlie and Harvey because he saw them." A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. You didn't say that. "Now, did you not tell him about Tommy and Alice? A. Well, I don't remember." Did you say that? A. Yes, I told him about Tommy and Harvey.

Q. The question is did you make this statement in this way in this conference at Kansas City? A. No.

Q. Page 39, I will ask you these questions and answers—

Mr. Cruce: Couldn't we shorten that by just considering it all in?

Mr. Hill: You admit that these were the statements made by her at that time?

Mr. Cruce: Yes, just let the whole thing in.

The Court: All right, the whole transcript of the Kansas City conference, which counsel have referred to will become a part of the record by agreement of counsel.

Mr. Linebaugh: One portion of it we do not think it would be competent to be offered by the Minnie Atkins —Page interests.

The Court: What portion is that?

Mr. Linebaugh: That is the portion with reference to the manner of the enrollment of Thomas Atkins.

The Court: Was the statement made by her?

Mr. Linebaugh: Yes, sir, or any testimony—— We do not think it would be competent for them to offer any testimony by this witness as to the manner of his enrollment.

The Court: I may not understand just what that contains. I have the impression that this only contains statements made by Minnie Atkins in answer to questions which were put to her?

Mr. Linebaugh: That is right.

The Court: Am I right about that?

Mr. Linebaugh: Yes, sir.

The Court: Well, then, in my judgment, this whole matter should be before the court, all the questions asked and all the answers made.

Mr. Linebaugh: I think so too as to questions asked and answers made at Kansas City.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Linebaugh: Not subject to proof here in affirmative proof.

The Court: It will be in the record for comparison with statements made elsewhere, the one portion to the other.

A. Well, I just exactly can't say where he did live.

Q. Was he a white man?

A. Yes, the same as my mother. He was my mother's brother. I don't know whether he had Indian in him or not but they said they were white. I suppose he had Indian because they had land. He had a big farm.

Q. You lived on his place for a while, didn't you?

A. No, we didn't live with my uncle. We didn't live on my uncle's farm. I don't just remember what he did with Nancy, you know, but I was with him the longest. He brought me to Muskogee to go to school.

Q. What school was that? A. Tallahassee Mission.

Q. You stayed there three years?

A. I think it was quite that because then you see I came to Leavenworth.

Q. You came to Leavenworth, did you, after you were at Carlisle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you must have been how old when you left Carlisle? A. Well, that I can't just exactly say.

Q. Sixteen or seventeen?

A. No, I wasn't that old, I don't think.

Q. Now, your father died when you were thirteen and you were at Tallahassee a year or so, were you? A. Yes.

Q. And that would make you fourteen or fifteen and then you were at Carlisle about three years?

A. I didn't put in the full three years.

Q. That would make you about seventeen or eighteen years old. Does that seem about right to you?

A. I don't think I was that old.

Q. Is that so? Well, what would you say?

A. About sixteen, going on seventeen, I think.

Q. Now, why did you leave Carlisle?

A. Why Miss Hyde's brother sent for one of the girls at the school as a cook.

Q. And you had studied cooking?

A. Yes, I took cooking lessons in Philadelphia while I was at school, during the vacation, you know.

Q. In Philadelphia, Pa.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long were you in Philadelphia?

A. They sent for us right in again. I didn't——

Q. (Interrupting) You went in there during the holidays?

A. Yes, and we had to come right out again.

Q. Now, Miss Hyde's brother sent for one of the girls to come to Leavenworth?

A. Yes, to cook, and I was the one.

Q. You had never been in Leavenworth before? A. No.

Q. And did anyone go with you? A. No, I went alone.

Q. And you went from Carlisle to what town before you went to Leavenworth?

A. Well, I just went to Leavenworth from Carlisle.

Q. Did you go through any other cities?

A. Oh, I remember the cities that I went through traveling but I didn't take much stock in them you know.

Q. Did you go through St. Louis? A. I couldn't say.

Q. You don't remember particularly any of them?

A. No, because I was alone and I didn't get out and I didn't ask, you know.

Q. Who met you in Leavenworth?

A. I think nobody met me. I think I asked the hack driver to take me up to George H. Hyde's.

Q. Did you know George H. Hyde before then?

A. No, just from letters to his sister.

Q. And was he a white man or an Indian?

A. He's a banker at Leavenworth.

Q. A white man? A. Yes.

Q. And you went to work at his place?

A. At his place on the Esplanade.

Q. And were there any other people working there besides you?

A. I was the only one at that time; I was the cook. They wanted me to nurse but I didn't want to nurse, it kept me in too much.

Q. Did they have a number of children? A. Three.

Q. Now, did anybody else, live in the house or around the Hyde residence besides you, any other help?

A. Well, there was a laundress there, but I don't remember her name. I know the laundry was done at the house. I didn't do the laundry and I didn't bother about who did it.

Q. Have you any recollection now about this laundress?

Q. Yes, it came to me later that they had a laundress, you know.

Q. Do you remember this laundress, Kate Logan?

A. Yes, I remember of her after they told me about it, I knew they had one in the house.

Q. Do you remember now this Kate Logan?

A. Yes, she hasn't been dead so very long.

Q. She died a week ago last Saturday. Now where was the Hyde home relative to the rest of the town, do you remember where it was; can you tell about where it was?

A. They Hyde building?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, it was up facing the river, you know, the Esplanade ran across the front and it was up back among some trees. There were big trees in the yard and you came out by the side of the kitchen and went out the gate again.

Q. Now, Leavenworth was the United States Fort, wasn't it? A. No, the Fort is up above Leavenworth.

Q. How far? A. It's called three miles.

Q. What was the name of that Fort then?

A. Fort Leavenworth.

Q. Now, do you remember the name of any of the girls that you were acquainted with at that time, while you were living at the Hyde house?

A. Well, I will tell you. I was a person that was a great deal to myself. I didn't mix up much with women and up to yet, I don't mix up with them. I don't know why. It's a way that I have myself.

Q. You don't remember the names of any of them.

A. No. One that I went with around in Leavenworth, her name was—I can't tell you her name now. The women I know in Leavenworth, is that what you want?

Q. Yes.

A. I knew Mrs. Hamilton and Grandma Spain; I couldn't tell but I couldn't help but know them because they all came from Carlisle.

Q. Did you know Mary Hamilton at Carlisle?

A. Yes, she was the government laundress.

Q. And she moved afterwards to Leavenworth?

A. Yes, for her health.

Q. And this Mrs. Spain?

A. That was her mother. There was three of them traveled together before she married Jim Hamilton.

Q. Claude Spain, the old lady and the daughter. What became of Claude Spain, do you know?

A. Well, the last time I heard of him he was in Colorado at Fort Logan.

Q. How long ago was that?

A. That's been quite a while ago.

Q. You haven't heard of him lately?

A. No, I never corresponded with them.

Q. Old Mrs. Spain is dead? A. Yes, she was old.

Q. And Mary Hamilton, you don't know, you haven't seen her lately? A. No, she moved to California.

Q. How long ago was it that you saw Mary Hamilton?

A. I haven't seen Mary Hamilton since the Seventh Infantry went to Cuba, to fight.

Q. That's about 1898, about sixteen years ago?

A. I haven't seen her since.

Q. Where was that that you saw her?

A. She was at Fort Logan, she was living there.

Q. You never saw Mary in Denver?

A. Not when she lived in Denver, no, sir. This was a town just like this is Kansas City, you know.

Q. And Claude Hamilton, have you seen him since?

A. No, I haven't. I would know Claude Hamilton. I don't want to know him.

Q. What was the matter with him?

A. I just didn't care for him.

Q. He wasn't in the army?

A. Yes, he was in the Army once but he isn't in it now. He was a Government painter but he's not in the Government now, he's for himself.

Q. Was he in the army at Leavenworth?

A. No, he used to paint inside the Fort but he painted in Denver at Fort Logan.

Q. How long did you stay at Mr. Hyde's?

A. Pretty near three months, or about three months.

Q. You didn't work anywhere else after you left Mr. Hyde's before you went to Grandma Letcher's?

A. Oh, I just worked—I worked at a place but I can't tell just now; I worked there just a few weeks or a couple of weeks, I don't remember, at a rich Jew's but I don't remember their names.

Q. Now, Mr. Crilly was a white man wasn't he?

A. Yes. He ran the livery stable and I used to go there and get rigs.

Q. And Rube Smith was a colored man? A. Yes.

Q. And who ran the saloon, do you remember?

A. No, I couldn't tell you that.

Q. And do you remember who ran the rooming house over this saloon?

A. No, I never was up there in the rooming house.

Q. And who was in business with Mr. Crilly, do you know?

A. No, I don't know. He had a partner but I don't know who he was.

Q. Where did Crilly live?

A. Kind of close to the stable.

Q. Now, did this stable face Grandma Letcher's house?

A. It was across the street and we used to go in the alley and Mr. Crilly's house, where he lived, faced Letcher's also.

A. I don't know whether they were there to stay but I know there were white girls but I can't say that they stayed there. I can't say that.

Q. Were there any other girls of Indian blood there besides you? A. No.

Q. You were the only one? A. The only one I know of.

Q. Do you remember the names of any of the girls that were down there at that time?

A. Yes, he remembers me.

Q. He used to bring coal and wood there to the house?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, this Rube Smith, did you know him pretty well?

A. No, I didn't know him so well, Grandma Letcher used to get groceries there and sometimes I would go and get the groceries but I don't know much about him.

Q. Did Grandma Letcher have any children around the house at that time? A. She had a one armed boy.

Q. What was his name do you remember? A. Sam Nash.

Q. Sam was a colored boy, wasn't he?

A. Yes, he's colored.

Q. Do you remember any other colored boy being there?

A. Well, there was another one that they called "Walter."

Q. Who was Walter, do you know his last name? A. No.

Q. Do you know Walter Banks? Do you remember that name? A. They just called him Walter.

Q. Do you know whose child Sam Nash was?

A. I think he was just left there.

Q. Do you know whose child Walter was?

A. No, he was just left there.

Q. How long were you there, off and on, before your child was born?

A. Oh, about three months, two or three months, I guess.

Q. How long was it after you left Hyde's that the child was born? A. How long?

Q. Yes, after you left Mr. Hyde's place?

A. I don't know how long it was.

Q. Did you get with the child after you left Hyde's?

A. Yes, after I left Hyde's. I was around town.

Q. Minnie, when you left Mr. Hyde's, were you going with any man particularly, you had no sweetheart or lover particularly? A. No, I didn't want any.

Q. And you were going with a number of men, were you?

A. No, I wasn't going with a number either.

Q. Well, what were you doing?

A. Oh, I was just around.

Q. Running around pretty well? You weren't going with any particular man, you say, when you left there. Were there two or three men going with you particularly, when you left Hyde's? A. About two, I guess.

Q. Do you remember their names? A. No.

Q. Your first child was a boy, was it, Minnie?

A. Yes, Thomas Atkins.

Q. That is your first child? A. Yes.

Q. Now where was Tommy born?

A. At Grandma Letcher's, up stairs.

Q. Did you have a doctor? A. Yes.

Q. Did you remember the name of the doctor?

A. No, I don't exactly remember because I just told Granny Letcher to get a doctor and I think she sent a colored man after a doctor. I don't know his name.

Q. What colored man was that?

A. Reub. He came there with some groceries.

Q. And was the doctor a white man or a colored man?

A. I don't just remember that either. He must have been a white man.

Q. How many times did that doctor come, do you know?

Q. No, I was awfully sick, I don't remember.

Q. Did you pay the doctor? A. I borrowed the money.

Q. Who did you borrow it from?

A. I don't know where Granny got it.

Q. You got the money really from Reub Smith? A. Yes.

Q. You got the money from him to pay the doctor?

A. Yes.

A. I can't remember about those things.

Q. Now, at the time the child was conceived, were you going with more than one man?

A. No, there was more than one.

Q. Were you living at Granny Letcher's at the time the child was conceived?

A. I was staying there when it was born. It was born at her house up stairs. I used to go there, not steady to stay, but if I wanted to have it there I had arrangements so I could have it there.

Q. Well, when the child was conceived, were you going to Granny Letcher's at that time? A. Yes, I was going there.

Q. And were you staying with more than one man?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know whether you had one steady sweetheart at that time or not? A. Yes, I know that.

Q. You had more than one? A. No, I had one.

Q. At the time the child was conceived you had left Hyde's residence?

A. I wasn't at the Hyde's when the baby was born. I had left Hyde's. They don't know nothing about it.

Q. I mean, when you begun carrying the child?

A. I had left Hyde's.

Q. During the time that you were carrying the child, you lived at Letcher's a good deal of the time?

A. Off and on I would go there most of my time.

Q. And just before the child was born, you were living regularly at Letcher's, were you? A. Yes.

Q. Well, were you there two or three months before it was born? A. I was rooming there off and on you know.

Q. Now, did you see men there or go there with men?

A. No, I just went there to be there.

Q. You went there with men or did you see men after you got there? A. No.

Q. Did you take men there with you or did men come there to see you, that's what I mean. How about that, Minnie? Go ahead. It will all be over with in a little while.

A. Well, they came there. They knew I was there.

Q. And about the time you started to carry this child, had men been coming there to see you?

A. Well, I didn't see them after I knew it was pretty near time for it to be born, I didn't see them.

Q. Well, I mean about the time you began carrying the child, did men come there to see you? A. Yes.

Q. A number of men? A. No, not a number.

Q. How many, two or three or four, did the soldiers come there more at that time?

A. No, there wasn't no soldiers, it was the citizens of the town.

Q. The railroad men? A. No.

Q. Any railroad men at all? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't remember any now? A. No.

Q. Now, the child was born in the winter time?

A. Yes, in the winter like, she had to buy lots of wood and coal. It must have been in the winter.

Q. Do you remember anybody that was in the house at the time the child was born?

A. An old lady called "Betsy"—I had a nurse, an old lady called—I told Mr. Long her name but I have forgotten it.

Q. She was a nurse? A. She nursed me.

Q. White or colored? A. Colored.

Q. And who else was in the house?

A. Granny was there. She had a lot of girls down stairs.

Q. And Sam Nash?

A. Yes, and this Walter was there too.

Q. Do you remember the names of any of the girls that were there? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember the names of any of the men that used to come to the house about the time the child was born?

A. Well, this man Grape used to bring the wood and Reub used to bring the groceries. He was there with the groceries and things.

Q. Who else, do you remember? Do you remember anybody else?

A. I know another man but I don't know whether he was out and in or not. He lived away down by the river.

Q. Who was that?

A. I can't think of his name. Mr. Long knows it.

Q. Was he a white man?

A. No, he was a colored man, you know. You know noe colored people are, they will hang around a place and the reason I went there to have Tommy I didn't want the white people to know about it. I thought it was a good hiding place and I went there but I guess it was about the worst place I could get into.

Q. After Thomas was born, did you ever see his father?

A. No, I know his father but I am not going to tell.

Q. Did you see his father after Thomas was born?

A. In Leavenworth?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, I know who he is.

Q. Did he come to see the child after it was born? A. No.

Q. He never did? A. Not the father of the child, no.

Q. Did any of the other men that you were going with at that time? A. No.

Q. Did Granny Letcher know who the father was?

A. I don't know whether she did or not.

Q. Do you know whether any of the people around there knew who the father was? A. I don't know that either.

Q. Did the father ever give you any money after the child was born?

A. Yes, this fellow used to give me some money.

Q. Did he ever do anything for the child?

A. No, I don't know as he did.

Q. Did he admit that it was his child? A. I don't know.

Q. How long did you stay there after the child was born?

A. Why, Tommy could get around quite good.

Q. He was a year or so old?

A. About a year old, not quite one year old because I went to Denver then from Leavenworth.

Q. You stayed there at Granny Letcher's for about a year after he was born? A. Yes, around in Leavenworth.

Q. Where did you leave Tommy?

A. There at Grandma Letcher's; he never left until this time, you know. He was nearly going on—well, Sam said he was pretty near fourteen when he left Granny but he left Granny's in this way. There was a woman came there and told Granny that I told her to take him and that's how he come to disappear, but I didn't.

Q. Well, you stayed there about a year then, did you pay Granny for taking care of the boy?

A. No, she took care of him herself.

Q. Did Tommy nurse? A. Yes.

Q. During the time that he was nursing, did any men come to see you? A. No.

Q. The father was never around there after the child was born? A. No.

Q. Where did you see him when he gave you this money, you said he gave you some money and where did you see him when he gave you the money?

A. Oh, around town—down town.

Q. He didn't come to Grandma Letcher's to see you?

A. No.

Q. Now, while Tommy was nursing, was Reub Smith ever around the house?

A. He came in and out with the groceries and saw him.

Q. He saw him all the time he was with you?

A. All the time he was at Granny Letcher's.

Q. Did he ever see Tommy with you?

A. Yes, he saw him around the house when I was there.

Q. Did your room have a stove in it?

A. I don't know how it was heated.

Q. Did Reub ever come into your room when Tommy was in bed with you? A. No.

Q. He never saw Tommy in bed with you? A. No.

Q. Well, do you remember seeing Reub around there about the time the child was born?

A. Well, I think the day I was sick he came there and delivered some groceries, to Granny Letcher's. I don't know much about Reub.

Q. You say the child nursed at the breast, did he? A. Yes.

Q. And Reub would come in with the groceries while the child was nursing? A. I don't know how that was.

Q. And who was this man who delivered the wood and coal?

A. Grape. And then another man was hanging around Granny Letcher's was Sam Parker or Bill Parker.

Q. Who was the hot tamale man?

A. Chinie, he was the hot tamale man. And there was Sam Parker, Will Parker it was.

Q. Who was Chinie? A. He was the hot tamale fellow.

Q. What did he look like?

A. He had a yellow skin and looked like a chinaman and talked like one but he wasn't a chinaman, I don't think.

Q. Was he around there while the child was nursing?

A. I used to get hot tamales from him. He was there around. I guess, though, there were so many around that I can't say, you know. There was three or four other fellows there that knew Tommy.

Q. Now, after Tommy was born, you stayed in and around Leavenworth there for about a year, who did you go with during that year, anybody in particular?

A. Oh, I couldn't tell you that.

Q. Well, was there any white woman around there at the time Tommy was born? A. A white woman?

Q. Yes.

A. Mrs. Smith. A woman by the name of Mrs. Smith, you know. She came to Granny and Granny told her that there was someone sick, not to be so noisy so she said: "Can I go see" and she said: "Well, yes, you can." So she came up stairs.

Q. Could you hear Granny talking to her?

A. Yes, to this Mrs. Smith. It wasn't a brick building, you know, and she came up and she went back down stairs, and she said: "Why, this is a white woman you have up stairs," and when anyone is sick they look white, you know, and Grandma said: "No, she isn't a white woman. She has got some Indian in her." And this lady said: "No, no, she hasn't." And when I saw her yesterday she was telling me about that and I said: "Why that was me." And she said: "Well, you weren't that stout," and I said: "Well, I was just a kid then."

Q. Who was the mid-wife?

A. It began with a "B"—you know I can say it to myself but I forget—Betsy, she was an old lady. She nursed me.

Q. Then the doctor that waited on you was a white man?

A. Dr. John McCormack.

Q. Did you say that or do you remember it?

A. Well, I remember now that he waited on me.

Q. What I want to know is what you remember yourself.

A. No, I don't tell anyone to tell me what to say. I can talk for myself, you know.

Q. Do you remember the name of John McCormack yourself, or do you say that because it was suggested to you?

A. No, I remember it. I said it yesterday.

Q. You remember that yourself? A. Yes.

Q. Now, after you left Leavenworth, you went to Denver?

A. To Fort Logan.

Q. And who did you go with to Fort Logan?

A. Gee, do I have to go over all that again?

Q. Yes. A. What was it?

Q. Who did you go with to Fort Logan?

A. Does that come in about Thomas Atkins?

Q. Yes, you will have to tell the whole story. There's no question about that and you will have to tell it on the stand.

A. I won't go to court.

Q. Well, that's up to you, but that's what you are.

A. I will tell all about that part of it. What I want to have impressed on my mind is the Leavenworth affair.

Q. Now, you went with whom, Peterson, to Fort Logan?

A. I never said at the beginning, that I went with him there.

Q. Well, who did you go with?

A. Who was my steady company?

Q. Yes. A. Deb Harrison, when I was in Fort Logan.

Q. Who did you go from Fort Leavenworth to Fort Logan with? A. I went with Peterson.

Q. Where did you meet Peterson? A. At the Fort.

Q. Were you working at the Fort? A. A little while.

Q. Who did you work for?

A. Lieutenant Stafford. Now do you want the Fort story?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, the Fort story is, that I first worked for Mr. Grodevant. He was the Carpenter's Superintendent at the prison and from there I went to Lieutenant Stafford's in the Kindergarten.

Q. What's the Kindergarten?

A. The officers' school and then from there the Eighteenth was ordered to Fort Logan. Well, then, I went from there then——

Q. (Interrupting) Peterson was in the Eighteenth?

A. Yes.

Q. How long did you live with Peterson before you left Fort Leavenworth?

A. No, I didn't live with him. He was my sweetheart.

Q. Didn't you keep house for him? A. No, not there.

Q. You are sure about that?

A. No, I didn't keep house in Leavenworth for Peterson.

Q. Who did you work for there at the time you were going with Peterson?

A. I just said Lieutenant Stafford. He tells him I was at another place that I wasn't.

Q. You never lived with Peterson at Leavenworth?

A. No.

Q. Now, where was your second child born?

A. At Denver, Colorado and her name was Mabel.

Q. That was a girl? A. Alice was her right name.

Q. That was a girl? A. Yes.

Q. And did that child die there? A. Yes.

Q. How long after her birth?

A. Oh, she lived to be about a year old.

Q. Did you take care of the child during its lifetime?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, who were you living with after you went to Fort Logan, did you live with Peterson out there? A. Yes.

Q. And this child was born in Denver, or Fort Logan?

A. Fort Logan and is buried in the cemetery there.

Q. And then you went with Deb Harrison after that?

A. Yes, after he was ordered to Cuba.

Q. After Peterson was ordered to Cuba? A. Yes.

Q. Let's see how long you were at Fort Logan before you went back into the Indian Territory?

A. After the 18th was ordered—no the 18th wasn't ordered to Cuba. The 18th was ordered to Fort Clark, Texas.

Q. The 18th was ordered to Texas? A. Yes.

Q. Now when the 18th was ordered to Texas, you took up with Deb Harrison? A. Yes, that's Harvey's father.

Q. And Harvey and Charley were born before you went to the Territory? A. Yes.

Q. How did you happen to go back to the territory?

A. Well, I went back because my brother sent for me and wanted to see me.

Q. Who was your brother? A. Lee Atkins.

Q. Did he write to you? A. Yes.

Q. Had you written to him before that?

A. No, he found out where I was.

Q. Had you written to any of the folks at the Territory?

A. No, I didn't want them to know.

Q. And Lee wrote to you about how long before you went back into the Territory, I mean, how long after you got this letter was it, that you went back?

A. I got the letter right away and Harrison gave me the money to go and see him.

Q. Do you know whether that letter is?

A. Yes, in the stove.

Q. Burned up, is it? A. Yes.

Q. About how long ago? A. After we came to Lawton.

Q. Do you remember the contents of that letter?

A. He just said that he hadn't seen me for many many years and he would like to see me and he said I was out there and he would like for me to come down and see him, was all.

Q. Did he say anything about any Creek payments or anything like that?

A. No, I got that after I was down there; I got that in Muskogee.

Q. Now, where did you put that letter when you got it?

A. Where did I put it?

Q. Yes. A. It was with all my other letters.

Q. Now where did you keep your other letters, in the trunk? A. No, I had a whole suit case full.

Q. Whatever letters you got you put in this suit case?

A. No; that was letters I carried for years and years and years; I never destroyed any of my mail, you know.

Q. Now, this letter that you got from Lee, did you put it in this old suit case?

A. Yes, will all my other letters.

Q. Did you have any letters when you were in Colorado at that time?

A. Just that one letter from Lee to come to Muskogee to him.

Q. Did you have any other letters that you received at that time? A. Yes.

Q. Who were they from?

A. From other people—different people.

Q. And you put that letter in with those other letters?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, this suit case of letters that was burned, was that a lot of letters from old sweethearts?

A. Yes, from old sweethearts and letters about Tommy —about his death.

Q. And your husband got tired of seeing them around, did he?

A. No; whenever we had a scrap he would burn up my mail. I made him get out of there and pack his grip and go to the Bend.

Q. He had never burned up your mail before?

A. No, he just took that streak that day.

Q. Now, when you went from Fort Logan down to the Territory you took Harvey. Now, while you were at Fort Logan, before you went down to the Territory and while you were living with Peterton, before he was ordered away, did you get any other mail from the Territory that you remember of, from any of your folks in the Territory?

A. Charlie used to write to me all the time.

Q. Charlie who? A. Charlie Peterton.

Q. Well, I mean any of the others in the Territory?

A. I got this letter from the Territory in Detroit, Mich., when we were there, about Tommy.

Q. Now, when did you go to Detroit?

A. When the 7th Infantry came back from Cuba, they were ordered to Detroit, Mich., to Ft. Wayne.

Q. Now, that was sometime after you had been down to the Territory, wasn't it?

A. I made two trips, you know.

Q. Well, I mean the first trip. Now, the only letter you had from the Territory when you made this first trip, was from Lee?

A. To come down, that was the first of the whole thing.

Q. Up to that time had you had any letters from Granny Letcher about Tommy? A. No.

Q. Did you get any letters from anybody at all about Tommy? A. No.

Q. Did you make any inquiries from anybody about him?

A. Not after I went away.

Q. You didn't see anybody from Leavenworth from the time you left there until you went down to the Territory?

A. I only seen the Hamiltons when they came. I left them there and went to Muskogee to see my brother.

Q. So the Hamiltons were at Leavenworth when you left there?

A. I left them in Leavenworth, the Hamiltons, and they came to Ft. Logan.

Q. Now, how long was that after you went to Ft. Logan that they came out? A. I don't know.

Q. A year, would you say?

A. I don't know; I don't like to say a thing I don't know.

Q. Do you know how long you were at Ft. Logan before you went down to the Territory?

A. All told, I was there eight years.

Q. You were there about three or four years probably before you went down to the Territory the first time?

A. Yes. The very first time I left Logan and went down to Muskogee, I was with Bev Harrison.

Q. Now, during the first five years that you were at Ft. Logan the only people you saw from Leavenworth were the Hamiltons?

A. Yes; but they didn't talk to me anything about Leavenworth.

Q. Now, did Mary Hamilton tell you anything about Tommy? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ask her? A. No, sir.

Q. Did she know anything about Tommy being born?

A. No, I kept away from her.

Q. You kept away from her in Leavenworth?

A. Yes; I didn't want her to know.

Q. Did her husband know?

A. Old Claude? No, he didn't know nothing.

Q. Did Claude ever say anything to you about Tommy?

A. Those people never spoke to me about my kid—those Hamiltons.

Q. Now, after you left Fort Logan to go down to the Territory, did you come through Kansas City?

A. Yes, I came through Kansas City.

Q. Now, you came back through Kansas City?

A. I had to come through here to go to Muskogee.

Q. And you came through with the two children?

A. Yes, I took them with me.

Q. That was Harvey and Charlie? A. Yes.

Q. And did you go to Leavenworth on that trip?

A. I never put my foot in Leavenworth after I left.

Q. And you went on down to the Territory and went to Muskogee? A. Yes, to Muskogee.

Q. Now, who did you see at Muskogee, of your people?

A. Well, I didn't see anyone just exactly, you know. Lee knew I was coming and he run a billiard hall and pool table in Muskogee and run Monte games; that's the way he earned his living. He was in a game or something and happened to be a little late at the train and I didn't stand around and wait for him. I went up and inquired for Miss Alice Robinson. I stayed there and then telephoned Lee that I would see him in the morning. Alice had some girls there teaching and didn't have very much room and I made a bed for Charley on the floor and had Harvey in the bed with me. I stayed there that one night with Alice and then the next day I came down to my brother's.

Q. And how long were you in Muskogee before you went over to Okmulgee?

A. I don't know how long I was there but the payments wasn't very long before that, I know.

Q. You had never attended one of those payments?

A. No, sir, that's the first one I ever was at.

Q. Did you know Sam Brown?

A. I met him at the payments.

Q. He took you to the payments?

A. No, sir, I took myself on a horse.

Q. Did Lee go with you?

A. No, sir, I and a woman went out on horseback but I don't know who she was.

Q. You went out on horseback?

A. Yes, across the prairie.

Q. And who told Sam Brown who you were?

A. Well, I suppose my brother told him that I was his sister.

Q. Your brother was there when you got there?

A. Well, I don't know so much about what did happen to Lee that day.

Q. Do you remember whether or not, before you went to this payment, you saw your uncle, John Davis?

A. I don't think my uncle had got killed before the payment so I did, you see. He used to come—I used to——

Q. He was living at the time of the payments? A. Yes.

Q. Now, were you at his house, do you remember?

A. Yes, I used to ride out to his house. He lived quite a ways out from Muskogee, in the country like, and he used to come in town to see me a great deal with the two horses and we used to go horseback riding.

Q. Now, you told John Davis about your having the children, did you, that is, what children you had?

A. I didn't tell him about Tommy. He knew about Charley and Harvey because he saw them.

Q. Now, did you not tell him about Tommy and Alice?

A. Well, I don't remember.

Q. Now, do you remember whether John Davis was at the payment at Okmulgee when you went over there?

A. No, I and this woman went to the payment on our horses and I went in and signed for four kids.

Q. Did you see anyone of your relatives there before you went in?

A. No, I didn't see any of my relatives. I simply got off, hitched my horse and went up the stone courthouse steps and Sam Brown pushed out a paper and said: "Sign your name and how many you sign for."

Q. Did you know Sam Brown?

A. Yes, I knew Sam at that time, he wasn't so old.

Q. How did you know Sam at that time? Where did you see Sam before you saw him there?

A. I never saw him until I saw him at the payment.

Q. I mean, when you and this woman hitched your horses there and went in to this stone courthouse and went into this room, did you know who was sitting there at the table?

A. I knowed it was Sam Brown but he was younger.

Q. How did you know it was Sam Brown then?

A. Well, they told me around there who he was.

Q. Now, did John Davis, tell you, do you think?

A. No, uncle didn't come up with me to the payment.

Q. Well, was he there at the payment?

A. Not when I was there.

Q. Now you went in there and there was a man sitting at the table when you went in there. Did you know who this man was?

Q. I asked when I came back and they said it was Sam Brown.

Q. What did you say?

A. I said: "I am going to sign for five of us, four kids and myself."

Q. And what did he say? A. He said, "Alright."

Q. And did you sign for all of them? A. Yes.

Q. The dead child and all? A. Yes.

Q. They didn't pay you for the dead child, did they?

A. No.

Q. Who called your attention to that?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Somebody said something about whether they were all living or not, did they? A. Yes.

Q. Did Sam Brown call your attention to that?

A. That I couldn't tell you. About the dead child.

Q. Now, did Sam Brown know anything about your children and about who your children were when you went in?

A. No, I don't think he had ever seen my children.

Q. You just told him what children you had had? A. Yes.

Q. Did he ask you where they were?

A. No, he didn't ask me much questions. He just simply paid me and I signed my name.

Q. How did they happen not to pay you for the dead child?

A. I couldn't tell you anything about that. I gave him the names of five, four children and myself.

Q. What was your idea about telling him about the child that was dead, did you think they would pay you for that child?

A. Well, somebody told me they would but I found they didn't. I was told they paid for the dead as well as the living, and I said: "Well, I have one more to put in then. I will put in Alice."

Q. Did Sam Brown ask you how many children you had?

A. No, Sam didn't ask me about any children.

Q. Now, do you know Ed Schrimpser?

A. Well, they spoke a whole lot about him and I suppose I do. He didn't go there with me.

Q. Do you remember a woman named Janetta Brooks?

A. I know a woman named "Janetta" but I don't know whether it's Brooks or not.

Q. Was Janetta there that day?

A. I don't know whether she was or not.

Q. Was Nancy there that day?

A. I didn't get Nancy's money.

Q. Well, do you remember seeing her there? Lee got her money? A. No, not while I was there.

Q. Well, do you remember seeing her there at all?

A. We rode down there in the morning and got back there at half past twelve that night.

Q. You didn't ride to Okmulgee from Muskogee and back in a day?

A. We certainly did. We got back at twelve o'clock that night. We made it in that day and a night. We rode fast. We didn't creep along the road and the roads were good

Q. Do you remember how much money you got, Minnie?
A. It wasn't very much.
Q. Did you sign anything when you were there?
A. I signed for the money after he paid me.
Q. What did you sign, do you remember?
A. Minnie Atkins.
Q. Did anybody else sign while you were in there?
A. There was a lot of people signed for the money.
Q. Did you know who else signed about the same time that you did? A. No, I don't remember.
Q. Was anything said while you were there about Nancy?
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. Now, Minnie, did John Davis ever ask you who was the father of Tommy? A. No.
Q. Did you ever tell him? A. No.
Q. Did you ever tell anybody down there?
A. I never told nobody.
Q. I don't mean his name. I mean did you ever tell anybody down there who the father of Tommy was?
A. I didn't tell anybody.
Q. Didn't you tell Davis that his father was a white man and that Tommy was afterwards enrolled down there?
A. I might have, I can't say.
Q. Do you have any recollection of talking with Davis? You think that over, we will take it up after a while.
A. I will think about that, of course. I used to talk to my uncle lots. He used to try to pump things out of me and I didn't say much either.
Q. Now, after you went back to Muskogee, after the payment, what did you do with Harvey and Charley?
A. Well, I went after the payment, I left Charley and Harvey a few days in Muskogee but then I came back from Eufaula after the payment and I let Kate take Charley out.
Q. Kate who?
A. Kate Holder, my half sister. She took Charley but I took Harvey back with me and where I got this other business mixed up. You see, it was Harvey I took out to Elmira's but I had him there with me and I left him out there about a week or so until I went to camp meeting and then Jimmy and I went back and got him.
Q. Who is Jimmy?
A. He is Eddie Walker's first cousin.
Q. Was he in the army? A. No, he wasn't no soldier.
Q. Now after the payment then, you took Charley where?
A. Not Charley.
Q. I know, but what did you do with Charley?

A. I left him while there with some lady in Muskogee. I couldn't take them both but I took Harvey because he was the baby. Then this camp meeting came up and I wanted to go and the only way I could go was on horseback. Well, I asked Jimmy if he would go with me and carry him a while and I would carry him a while until I got to my half sister Elmira.

Q. Now, what was her name?

A. Her right name was Ellen and her husband was Jim Bruner.

Q. How where does Elmira Bruner live?

Q. She lives quite a little ways from Eufaula in the country. We crossed the creek.

Q. What creek was that; was that Deep Ford, do you remember?

A. It was just a Creek and where they lived was White Woods.

Q. Was it a settlment?

A. No, I couldn't see very many houses. She was quite a ways out in the woods by herself.

Q. And you left Harvey there?

A. Yes, just until the camp meeting was over and then I went back and got him. I had him still at Eufaula when Lee was shot.

Q. Then you went to Checotah?

A. No, I left Harvey with Aunt Susie and for a week until I went to attend to Lee. She lived across the little ravine in the woods.

Q. That's at Eufaula?

A. Yes. Then after we buried Lee I went back and got Harvey and brought him to Muskogee and give the two of them together [] Kate Holder and that's the last I had to do with the children.

Q. Now, did you know where Nancy was at that time?

A. While all this was going on?

Q. Yes? A. She was in Wagoner.

Q. Did you see her?

A. Well, when Lee died, the morning that Lee died, they telegraphed for her to come; but something happened; I don't think she came.

Q. There were trains running—railroads?

A. There was a railroad through all those three places then.

Q. Now did you see Nancy at all when you were down there this time? A. I saw her in Wagoner.

Q. You were in Wagoner a while yourself? A. Yes.

Q. Did you have the children there?

A. No, my children—Kate came into Muskogee and got my children in Muskogee.

Q. And where did she take them?

A. She took them out to her home where she lived on the farm, in the country.

Q. Where was that? [A.] I never was there.

Q. Who was her husband?

A. I think it was Cad Wadsworth; I think that was her husband.

Q. Now, did Kate ever write to you about these children?

A. Well, some one wrote to me about this children with land but I don't know who; I fixed a paper out for them to get it and everything, but I don't remember what I did do.

Q. You signed up some papers?

A. I wrote back and asked them—no, I don't think I did.

Q. Did you sign up any papers? A. No, I didn't sign any.

Q. You said just now that you fixed up a paper?

A. Well, now, I don't know that I did; it will have to come to me better.

Q. They—did they write to you about Tommy?

A. They didn't know nothing about Tommy; I didn't tell them anything about Tommy.

Q. 1895; this was, wasn't it, do you remember the date?

A. I don't remember any dates.

Q. Now, after the payment, about how long was it before you left Muskogee and that country—went out of the Territory—six months or so, or a year, or how long was it?

A. Oh, I must have hung around there a good year, because I went up and saw Nancy a week in Wagoner, and I and her had a falling out.

Q. What did you have a falling out about?

A. Oh, I just had a falling out with her; she didn't do to suit me, so I just left her.

Q. Was that over a man? A. No, sir.

Q. Did Nancy have any children at that time?

A. No; Nancy never had any children but the one; Lee told me about her, but she never had any when I first saw her; that's the only one Nancy ever had in her whole life.

Q. Did she tell you anything about her child?

A. She told me about her having this baby, but she didn't tell me what it was; but Lee told me it was a girl.

Q. Did Nancy say whether it was a boy or girl?

A. I didn't ask her anything about the child.

Q. She told you she had had a child?

A. Yes, but that it didn't live but a day or something like that; but Lee told me, as soon as he saw me that she had had a little girl, but it didn't live. They had it in Wagoner, I think he said.

Q. What did Nancy say about the child, anything?

A. Nothing to me.

Q. Did you tell her anything about having Tommy?

A. No, Nancy don't know nothing about me having Tommy.

Q. How did you happen to name Tommy, Tommy?

A. I wanted him to have my name.

Q. How did you happen to name him Tommy?

A. After my father; that's what I thought about—my father's name was Thomas.

Q. Well, the boy's name was Thomas, too, wasn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. And you left—was it after the Creek payment that you went to Wagoner and visited Nancy?

A. Yes, it was after the payment, because I was in Muskogee around quite a little while, you know, and I knew all the Couch boys, you know, and a lot of them around there, and Frank and all of them; and I said to myself one day: "I will just run out and see Nancy for a week," and I did and come right back.

Q. What was Nancy doing?

A. I think she was boot-legging.

Q. She hadn't been in the penitentiary then, had she?

A. She had been, but my brother got her out. She had been and he was trying to get her out. He said she had always caused him so much trouble, and he was going to disown her. She was always storying and getting him into trouble, and he said to me, "Don't you say that's your sister, either," and I said, "Well, I couldn't do that."

Q. Where was Nancy living?

A. She was stopping at a little house out on the edge of the prairie.

Q. Did you stay there with her?

A. I wasn't there very long with her; I stayed mostly at a lady's down below her there.

Q. Then you went back to Muskogee after that?

A. Yes, and then I went back to Muskogee after that, and then I and John Couch came to Denver, Colorado, and then I never hit the Territory any more. I sent him back and then I didn't go back.

Q. John Couch was a man, was he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. An Indian?

A. No, he's a white man; there [] three brothers of them, John, Frank and Bennie.

Q. You gave John the money to get back?

A. I sent him back.

Q. I mean you gave him the money to go back home?

A. Sure. Now, I will tell you how he come to go back with me to Denver. I thought I kind of liked him and I thought, "Well, I will settle down and get married," and when I got ehre, I seen others and changed my mind, and I told him to go back to his mother.

Q. Now, after you went to Denver, did you live with Bev Harrison again? A. Yes.

Q. And did you live with Harrison clear up to the time you left Ft. Logan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you left Ft. Logan and went to Detroit? A. Yes.

Q. And who did you go with there?

A. I went with Lieutenant Wallace and took care of the twins.

Q. But you lived with Harrison then up to the time you left Ft. Logan?

A. He went first; he went to Arizona for his health. When the second contract came on, he bid too high and he lost it, and he told me if he lost the bid on the contract for the meat that he would go to Arizona for his health. So he did, there were two bidders for it and the other fellow was lower so he got it. He gave me about $300, or something—I know he gave me a pile of money and he said, "I think I have consumption; I haven't very good health, and it worries me, and I'll go away for my health," and I said, "All right; I will knock around and some day I may get tired of knocking around and I will settle down."

Q. Was it very long after that that you went to Detroit?

A. We went to Detroit as soon as the 7th came from Cuba.

Q. And you were in Ft. Logan a year or so after you came back from Muskogee?

A. Nearly two; I went to Detroit with Mrs. Lieutenant Wallace to take care of her twins; then he was sent—let's see how is this—well I went out with them and I worked with them a while and I got tired nursing the kids for her and I took another place with Lieutenant Breckinridge; but anyhow we went from Detroit to Vancouver Barracks.

Q. Now, when you were in Detroit, did you get any mail at all from the Territory—around Muskogee and that country? A. No, I got this letter——

Q. (Interrupting) You didn't get any letters from any of your people about the registration of the Indians for allotment, etc., while you were in Detroit?

A. No; I got a letter from Helena, stripped out for land, you understand. I sent a paper back to tell them to give the children land, you know. He sent me a paper to sign and send it back for the children.

Q. You got that in Detroit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you get any other letters in Detroit, any letters relative to Tommy?

A. I only got this letter about Tommy's death.

Q. Now while you were in Detroit, you got this letter from Tom Holder about Charlie and Harvey? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you write any letters to anybody in the Territory relative to Tommy? A. Never.

Q. Did you write any letter to Mrs. Wadsworth? A. No.

Q. Now, you got a letter relative to Tommy. Now, who was the letter from?

A. Well, that's what I have been trying to study and I can't, you see.

Q. Now was that from Granny Letcher?

A. No, it wasn't from Granny Letcher. Granny Letcher was dead; this woman said Granny Letcher was dead and Tommy had left and that he was dead.

Q. Now, before that did you ever get a letter from anybody asking you to send some money to take care of Tommy?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was that from?

A. Oh, I don't know who that was from.

Q. Now, where did you get that letter, where were you?

A. In Detroit.

Q. Before you got this letter saying he was dead; you don't know who that letter was from? A. No.

Q. How long was that before you got the letter saying he was dead? A. It wasn't very long.

Q. Was it from the same person?

A. I just can't remember how that was; they asked me to send some money for Tommy.

Q. Was that the first letter you ever got asking you to send money? A. Ues.

Q. And the last?

A. No, I have no recollection; I don't know.

Q. What town was it from? A. Leavenworth.

Q. It was from Leavenworth, you are sure of that?

A. Oh, I am sure it was from Leavenworth.

Q. Now, this letter saying he was dead, where was that from?

A. The letter that this woman, whoever wrote to me he was dead, was from Leavenworth, but I can't say who.

Q. Were you writing to any men in Leavenworth at that time? A. No, I didn't write; I didn't answer.

Q. Did you have any other letters from Leavenworth, any of your old sweethearts write you and so on?

A. No, I didn't want to know them, so I didn't answer.

Q. Did you get any letters? A. No.

Q. The only two letters that you got from the old country, or Leavenworth, or Kansas, were these two letters about Tommy? A. That's all.

Q. And the letter you got from Holden about Harvey and Charlie? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you left Detroit, you went where?

A. We went to Vancouver Barracks.

Q. Vancouver Barracks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And from there to the Philippines? Is that right?

A. We went to the Philippines and back from the Philippines to Vancouver Barracks again.

Q. Did you ever see Tommy after you left Leavenworth?

A. No; but nobody will ever bring him in and tell me it's him.

Q. You never saw him yourself?

A. Well, I saw him enough to know that nobody couldn't run in somebody and tell me it's Tommy.

Q. Well, you never did see Tommy after you left him in Leavenworth? A. No. And now he's dead.

At one thirty o'clock P. M., Wednesday, September 30, 1914, Mrs. MINNIE FOLK, further answered interrogatories propounded to her as follows:

Q. Now, Minnie, you testified down at Sapulpa—you remember when they had the hearing down there—that you went from Lieutenant Stafford's, where you were then working, to the Sisters Hospital. Now is that true?

A. Yes; I went to the Sisters' Hospital but not for that child, you know.

Q. I know, but did you go there from Lieut. Stafford's?

A. No.

Q. Where did you go from Lieut. Stafford's?

A. I went to Colorado.

Q. Did you work at Lieut. Stafford's after Tommy was born? A. Yes, just a——

Q. Just a few weeks? A. Yes.

Q. You didn't work at Lieut. Stafford's before Tommy was born? A. No.

Q. Are you sure?

A. I worked for Lieut. Stafford, but I can't say, you know, now.

Q. You don't know whether you worked at his place before Tommy was born or afterwards?

A. I can't remember, but I worked there, you see, and I went from there to Denver.

Q. Were you working for Lieut. Stafford when you left Leavenworth to go to Denver? A. Yes.

Q. Well, that was after Tommy was born?

A. Yes, a good while.

Q. So you are pretty sure that you were working for Lieut. Stafford after Tommy was born?

A. I am sure of that, yes.

Q. Well, that's what I am trying to get at. Now, then, why did you leave Lieut. Stafford's? A. To go to Denver.

Q. Now, you testified at Sapulpa that you left Lieut. Stafford's because you were with a baby by the name of Thomas Atkins. That wasn't true, was it? A. No, because——

Q. And you testified that you went from there, from Lieut. Stafford's to the Sisters' Hospital. That isn't true, is it? A. No; I had him in town.

Q. Now, why did you testify that way down at Sapulpa?

A. Now, I [] just kind of rattled, you know, Mr. Rice, how they get at you; I don't know how to tell you or what to say.

Q. Well, now, was it because you didn't——

A. (Interrupting) I didn't want them to know right out.

Q. What kind of a place Granny Letcher's was?

A. Exactly.

Q. Well, that's what you must say because it's difficult to explain that testimony, and I want you to tell the reason why you testified that way at Sapulpa.

A. That I didn't want them to know it?

Q. That you didn't want them to know it was at Letcher's, is that the idea?

A. I didn't want them to know I went there or what kind of a place it was—see?

Q. How long were you at the Sisters' Hospital the time you were there? A. About three weeks.

Q. Was that after Tommy was born?

A. Oh, yes, he was born.

Q. It was after that that you went to the Sisters' Hospital? A. Yes.

Q. That's all right; just tell the facts, because there's nothing in the world to conceal. Now you testified that you had a baby there at the Sisters' Hospital. That's not true, is it?

A. No, I had him at Granny's; but I was there; I was at the Hospital.

Q. Well, Minnie, when were you first married?

A. At Vancouver Barracks.

Q. And what year was that, about—you were married at that time to your present husband?

A. Yes; I am married to him eight years.

Q. You were not married at the time Tommy was born?

A. No. Did I say in there I was?

Q. No. Now, Minnie, at Sapulpa you testified that you left Tommy at Fort Leavenworth with a lady whose name you couldn't remember. That's not true, is it?

A. No; I remember her; I knew her name.

Q. And you left the baby with Granny Letcher?

A. That's the truth.

Q. Now why didn't you tell the truth at Sapulpa?

A. Oh, I don't know, Mr. Rice, why I didn't; I didn't want them to know.

Q. What kind of a place it was and what kind of a woman Granny Letcher was, is that the idea?

A. Yes, I didn't want them to know. They know it all right, so what am I going to do?

Q. Now, going back a little bit, when you went down to Muskogee and Ft. Logan and you saw your uncle John Davis, didn't you tell John all about Tommy and Alice and Charlie and Harvey? A. I didn't tell him anything.

Q. Well, now, you must have told him something.

Q. Oh, I told him I had the children, you know.

Q. You told him about Alice being dead?

A. Yes, but I didn't tell him just all the particulars, you know.

Q. I know; but you told him about Tommy being born and Alice being born? A. Oh, yes, he knew that.

Q. Well, you told him that? A. Sure.

Q. Did you tell him where you had left Tommy?

A. I just told him I left him in Leavenworth, but I didn't mention the place—not to my uncle.

Q. Where did Alice die? A. Fort Logan, Colorado.

Q. She's buried there, is she? A. Yes.

Q. Now, at the time of the payment, when you went in there to the payment, you started to draw money for Alice and they told you you couldn't?

A. Well, I put down for four; I don't know whether they took it as a fact or not; they said the dead drew and I put down four.

Q. Do you remember whether they paid you for Alice or not?

A. I don't remember whether they paid me for Alice or not; but it seems to me they said they didn't pay for the dead.

Q. Can you remember now who it was that wrote you for some money for Thomas?

A. No, I never can remember the name.

Q. Did you know the person that wrote to you?

A. She just wrote as a friend would be writing to a friend, but I can't remember.

Q. Well, was it somebody you knew?

A. I must have known them, or they couldn't have known my name, you know.

Q. Well, do you remember now that the letter was from some one you knew?

A. Well, it was from someone I knew, and someone that knew about Tommy, or they couldn't have wrote to me.

Q. Who knew about Tommy besides your uncle? Have you any idea of anybody that knew about Tommy of your folks besides your uncle?

A. No, I didn't tell them much about them.

Q. Did you tell Nancy?

A. No; Nancy don't know anything, and Nancy can't say she does, because she don't.

Q. Were you ever in St. Joe, Missouri?

A. St. Joe—no.

Q. Were you ever in the hospital there, twelve or thirteen years ago? That would be a year or two after the Spanish-American War? Were you in this country at that time?

A. The only hospital I was ever in in my whole life was the Sisters at Leavenworth; that's the only hospital I was ever in.

Q. Minnie, did you ever sign—on October—in October, 1912, where were you? That's about two years ago?

A. I was in Helena, Montana.

Q. And you weren't in Kansas?

A. No, I never was in Lawrence, Kansas, no.

Q. You didn't sign any deed in Lawrence, Kansas?

A. No; I had no cause to.

Q. Well, you didn't sign it? Is that a fact?

A. No, I didn't sign any deed.

Q. Who were you working for in October, 1912?

A. I was working for Captain Ferguson at Ft. Leavenworth.

Q. He is now at Fort Leavenworth, but he wasn't at Fort Leavenworth two years ago?

A. I was working for him at Helena, but he is now at Fort Leavenworth.

Q. You were working for Captain Ferguson at Helena, and that's the same Capt. Ferguson who is now at Fort Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir, at the school of instruction.

Q. And you were there during the whole of October, 1912?

A. I was there until he went away.

Q. How long were you in Helena?

A. A little over two years, going on three.

Q. When did you leave, do you remember what month?

A. We left in January.

Q. 1913? A. Yes.

Q. And you were all there during the fall, you weren't away from there, say six months before you left?

A. Well, no, from the time I went from Vancouver Barracks to Helena, I never left there until the troops were ordered away.

Q. You weren't away for a week, even?

A. No, sir, I was never out a day even; I had no place to go, only to town.

Q. Now, where was it that you got a letter saying that Granny Letcher was dead? A. Detroit, Mich.

Q. What's the name of the Fort there? A. Fort Wayne.

Q. And was it there that you got the letter saying that Tommy was dead? A. Yes, that's the place.

Q. Do you remember anything about the letter saying that Tommy was dead, what it said?

A. It just says, "I write to you as a friend to let you know that your baby was dead that Granny Letcher had"—see?

Q. Yes.

A. And a few other words, a few things besides that before she closed, you know.

Q. It didn't say how he died or anything?

A. No, it didn't explain to me.

Q. Did you write to her? A. No.

Q. You never answered her letter? A. No.

Q. Now what became of that letter? You saved it for quite a while and then it was burned up by your husband this spring, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. From Fort Wayne you went to Vancouver—where did you go from Fort Wayne? A. Michigan?

Q. Yes? A. Vancouver Barracks.

Q. And from Vancouver you went to the Philippines? A. Yes.

Q. And then you came back from the Philippines to Vancouver Barracks again?

A. Yes, to Vancouver Barracks, again.

Q. And then from Vancouver Barracks to——

A. Helena, Montana.

Q. The name of the Fort at Helena, Montana, is what?

A. Fort Harrison.

Q. Now, you said the last time you saw Nancy was at Eufaula at the time that Lee was shot, is that true?

A. Well, I can't say that Nancy came when they telegraphed her or not; they telegraphed her and whether she came or not I can't say.

Q. Now, do you remember whether you went up to Wagoner to visit her after that time or before that time?

A. Lee was dead when I was in Wagoner.

Q. Did you ever know a man named Charlie Bailey?

A. No; they say that name to me so much, but I can't locate him.

Q. He's the man that says he saw you in St. Joe, Missouri.

A. He never saw me there—not that man.

Q. Well, you never was there, were you, Minnie?

A. No, I never was in St. Joseph.

Q. Did any of your relatives ever write to you about your applying for an allotment?

A. For Harvey and Charlie?

Q. No, for yourseif? A. I don't think so.

Q. Now, how did you ever hear that you had stayed away too long to get one? A. How did I ever hear it?

Q. Yes. [A.] They told me when I was up there.

Q. Who told you that? A. I don't know.

Q. When you came this time? A. No; the other time.

Q. When was that, when the payment was made?

A. I don't understand you.

Q. Here's what I mean; when did they tell you that you had been away too long to get an allotment?

A. An allotment for the money I got?

Q. No, I mean land.

A. I knew I couldn't get land; I knew I was away too long my own self.

Q. Well, how did you know it?

A. Well, my brains told me I couldn't get any land when I was away so long; I wasn't here to tell anyone to get it for me, and I didn't ask for any. I asked for Harvey and Charlie.

Q. So far as you can recollect now, nobody ever explained to you that you were away too long?

A. I don't know what you are getting at.

Q. Well, now, I am trying to find out, if you don't, if you didn't have some other correspondence, some other letters from your relatives that you have forgotten?

A. Nobody wrote and told me I couldn't get any land.

Q. Well, how did you figure it out?

A. Well, I figured it out this way; I figured when you go away and never return to your own home or anything like that, you feel that you are not entitled to anything. That's the way I figured it out in my own mind.

Q. How did you know that Harvey and Charlie had a right to land? A. I am their mother.

Q. Well, how did you know they had a right, how did you know that?

A. I knew it myself; I am their mother and I have Indian in me and I have a right to have land in the Indian Territory.

Q. Did some of the letters that you got from your relatives tell you that or did you write and ask them?

A. I wrote and asked them to put them on for land.

Q. Did you tell them to put Tommy on, too?

A. No, I didn't speak for Tommy.

Q. Why didn't you?

A. Well, I will tell you why I didn't speak of Tommy. You see after I spoke about Harvey and Charley, I think that's after I got the letter about Tommy being dead. See?

Q. That's all right, and you thought that Tommy wouldn't be entitled to an allotment, and because Alice didn't get any money, you figured that Tommy wouldn't be entitled to anything, he being dead?

A. Yes, that's the way I figured it for myself, you know.

Q. Now, you said in answer to a question here—they were pounding you along about Charlie Bailey and you weren't feeling very strong and they said this, now: "Do you know whether or not Charlie Bailey was guardian for one of your children" and you answered, "No." "Q. You don't know? A. I left my children with my half sister Kate Holder, and I understand, I don't know how it came up, Nancy came to take possession of my children later on, and I don't know how she came to get possession of my children; I never could learn. Q. You were well acquainted with Charlie Bailey, weren't you? A. I guess I was."

A. I don't know Charlie Bailey and I ain't going to say on the stand that I do, because I don't.

Q. Well, what did you say it there for?

A. I don't know, because I don't know Charlie Bailey; he don't come in my mind—that name Charlie Bailey; I hear that so much, you know.

Q. Well, when you don't know, why you just say you don't know. Don't let them worry you into saying you were acquainted with him.

A. Well, I hear that name so much—Charlie Bailey—I can never located that Charlie Bailey and I never have located him yet.

Q. Now, they asked you this question: "You don't know whether the father ever recognized the child or not?" And you answered, "Sure he did." Now yesterday you said that he didn't. Now did the father ever pay any money for the support of the child? A. I don't know.

Q. Now, you testified that Tommy was about six months old when you left Leavenworth, and yesterday you said he was about a year and a half old. As a matter of fact he was about a year and a half, wasn't he?

A. Yes; he was a year and a half.

Q. Minnie, at the time that you drew the money at Okmulgee, for Tommy, you hadn't got this letter saying he was dead. Is that right? A. No, I hadn't.

Q. When did you last see the letter saying that Granny Letcher was dead and that Tommy was dead?

A. When was that?

Q. When was the last time, where were you when you last saw these letters?

A. He burned them up in Fort Lawton, Seattle.

Q. Now, when did you last actually see those letters?

A. When I was in Denver, I was just looking over my mail, you know. Not Denver, you see that's where the trouble is—I said Denver, I meant Helena.

Q. Now, Minnie, when did you first learn that Tommy had had land in the Indian Territory? About how long ago was it when you first learned that? A. That he had land?

Q. Yes? A. Well, I didn't figure on him having it.

Q. Well, when did you first learn that he did have it?

Q. Why I knew he must have had land if I was his mother.

Q. No. Now, somebody came to you some months ago and they told you that Tommy had some land down in the Indian Territory that was valuable, and so on, didn't they?

A. Well, the first I knew of it was from Sadie James.

Q. And about how long ago was that?

A. That's when she was trying to locate me.

Q. That was several months ago?

A. I guess it was that long; it was when she was in Seattle.

Q. That was in the spring and summer of this year?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when you left Leavenworth to go to Fort Logan and before you left, now, did you go down to Granny Letcher's and say anything to her about Tommy?

A. I just said I was going away.

Q. What did you tell about Tommy?

A. I told her if I could keep him there and if I could get any money or anything, I would send to help her.

Q. Did you ask her to write to you? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever send her any money?

A. Well, she wrote, or some one wrote for her to send her some money, but I didn't have any to send.

Q. Well, did you ever send any before you got that letter? A. No.

Q. Well, where was it you got that letter?

A. It was in Ft. Wayne.

Q. How long were you in Ft. Wayne?

A. Oh, I guess the troops were there nearly two years or over two years.

Q. First you got a letter from somebody saying to send some money for Tommy, is that it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know who that letter was from?

A. I think that letter was from Granny Letcher.

Q. Do you remember what the letter said?

A. That was all—just asking for some money.

Q. Did she give you any news about Leavenworth?

A. No.

Q. And how long after that was it that you got the letter that Granny was dead? A. About a year.

Q. And how long after that that you got the letter that Tommy was dead?

A. That was another year afterwards.

Q. How long had you been in Fort Wayne when you got the first letter asking for money?

A. Well, I had been in Fort Wayne, I guess, over two years because I was there until the troops were ordered out you know.

Q. Which letter did you get first?

A. Granny Letcher's.

Q. You got that first? A. Yes.

Q. And then you got the letter that Tommy was dead?

A. Yes.

Q. The first one you got was asking for money?

A. Yes, from Granny Letcher.

Q. Did Granny Letcher say anything about being sick in her letter to you? A. No; she just asked for money.

Q. What was Granny's name, do you remember, besides Granny?

A. Something like Lowe—we always called her Granny Letcher, you know.

Q. Well, I know; but if you wanted to write to her, how would you address her letter? A. I didn't write to her.

Q. Well, how would you have addressed it?

A. I would have just said, "Mrs. Letcher, Ft. Leavenworth."

Q. You don't know her first name?

A. No, not for me to tell you, I don't.

Mr. Long: It was Molly or Mary.

Q. Now, Minnie, when you came back from Fort Logan to go to Muskogee, you came through Kansas City and you knew that Tommy was in Leavenworth, only a short distance from Kansas City. Now, why didn't you go over to see him?

A. Well, I can't explain why I didn't, but I didn't.

Q. Well, now wait. Was it because you had been—because you had quit a good deal of your rough play?

A. Yes; I didn't want to go back to Leavenworth, and when I left it was with the understanding that I wouldn't go back.

Q. Was it because of the rough character of this house, that you didn't go back? A. Yes, I didn't want to go back.

Q. You said you left there with the understanding that you wouldn't go back. Was that understanding with yourself?

A. Yes, I made up my mind that I wouldn't go back, and when I left there, I was going to change my name and not come back.

Q. What name were you in the Sisters Hospital under?

A. Minnie Peterkin.

Q. Now, Minnie, when did you first hear that Harvey and Charlie had land in the Indian Territory?

A. I always knew they would have land.

Q. When did you first hear that they actually had it?

A. Sadie James told me.

Mr. Page: Did you ever get Tommy's deed for his land?

A. No, I don't think so.

Mr. Page: Did you write a letter to anybody telling them to be sure and enroll Tommy and the other two boys?

A. No.

Q. Now, she wrote a letter telling them about Harvey and Charlie, but because Alice didn't get any money, she figured that Tommy wasn't entitled to any land, because he was dead. How old was Harvey and Charlie when you took them down to Muskogee from Fort Logan?

A. Well, Charlie must have been going on five or over five; he could go around; he could walk everywhere and help himself, and Harvey was just a baby about a year old—in short clothes; I think he was just kind of crawling around.

Q. He was two or three years old, wasn't he?

Q. I wrote to either Cad or Mitch to put Harvey and Charlie out for land.

Q. Now, I didn't get that very clear down there. (Reading) "Minnie, when did you get this letter from Tom Holder about the land—then what did you do? A. I asked him to put Harvey and Charlie——" and then somebody interrupted. "Q. How did you do it, by letter? A. Yes, by letter. Q. Who did you write to? A. We wrote to him. Q. Well, Minnie, did you write to anybody down there about putting—what did you do about having your family and yourself and your children enrolled? A. I asked him to put us on; I asked him to put four of us on, which called for Thomas Atkins, Harvey Atkins, Charlie Atkins and Minnie Atkins, but I guess he didn't do it." Now Minnie, a little while ago you said you didn't ask him to put Tommy on because Tommy was dead at the time you got the letter about Harvey and Charlie. That's right, isn't it? Tommy was dead when you got the letter about Harvey and Charlie, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Now, before that you had written down there to Holder about putting you all on the roll?

A. Not on the roll for payment, but for land.

Q. That's the idea exactly. You wrote that letter down there and told them to put you and the three children, Tommy, Charlie and Harvey on the roll for land? A. No.

Q. Well, what about it then? A. No, I didn't do that.

Q. Well, what did you do?

A. Well, I didn't do that with Thomas, because I heard he was dead and I asked for those two——

Q. Well, before you heard he was dead, did you write a letter down there about putting you and him on the roll, or putting him? [A.] No, she didn't because Charlie and Harvey were not living. [Q.] Did you write a letter down there asking them to put Tommy on the roll before you heard he was dead?

A. I can't understand now. Now you have got me kind of mixed up.

Q. Now, Minnie, to go back now to Ft. Wayne, what time of the year was it in 1900 that you left for Vancouver?

A. I don't know the years or the times; I can't tell.

Q. Well, was it winter or summer? Did you leave in the winter or leave in the summer for Vancouver, can you tell?

A. It must have been in the summer we went, because we went on the boat.

Q. Now, how long was it before that, about that you got the letter saying that Tommy was dead? A. Before we left?

Q. Yes?

A. Well, it was a year before you left when I heard that, you know—we were there a year.

Q. It was nearly a year before that that you heard that Tommy was dead?

A. Yes, before we went to Vancouver from Fort Wayne.

Q. Yes. Now—— A. I got that kind of wrong.

Q. Now, how long was it before you got the letter that

Tommy was dead that you heard about enrolling Tommy and Charlie and Harvey? A. How long was he dead did you say?

Q. No. Now, you left Vancouver in the summer of 1900 and about a year before that you had got a letter saying Tommy was dead? A. Yes.

Q. Now, was it before that or after that that you got this letter about enrolling Harvey and Charlie?

A. For land?

Q. Yes?

A. Well, I just can't say whether it was before or after; but I know I got the letter that Tommy was dead; but I can't say whether I got this letter afterwards about Harvey and Charlie or not.

Q. Now, did you write a letter to one of the Wadsworths?

A. Yes; but I don't know whether it was Cad or Mitch.

Q. Now, why—what did you say in that letter?

A. I just asked him to put them on the roll so they could get land.

Q. Put who on the roll? A. Harvey and Charlie.

Mr. Page: And didn't you say for yourself and Tommy?

A. Well, Tommy was dead—I couldn't say for him because I didn't.

Mr. Page: Where were you when you got that letter from Wadsworth, in Vancouver?

A. Yes—no, it was in Detroit, at Fort Wayne.

Mr. Page: Well, didn't you——

A. (Interrupting.) This letter that I got from either Cad or Mitch was in Fort Wayne before I left.

Mr. Page: Where was that signed?

Mr. Rice: It's Fort Wayne.

Mr. Page: You want to freshen your memory on that, Minnie, because we want it just as it is, you know.

Adjourned until Thursday, October 1, 1914.

The Court: Perhaps that had better be identified now; has it been marked?

Mr. Cruce: I don't believe it has.

The Court: Mark it the court's exhibit if you want to, by agreement of counsel. (Marked Exhibit A.)

Cross Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. When you brought Charlie and Harvey to Oklahoma, where did you bring them from?

A. I brought them from Denver, Colorado, to Muskogee.

Q. Did you bring them by the way of Kansas City?

A. No, sir.

Q. What way did you bring them?

A. Yes, I guess I did.

Q. You came through Kansas City? A. Yes.

Q. How long did you stop in Kansas City on this trip?

A. Just got off of the train and got on the other one to come to Muskogee.

Q. Was the bringing of those children to Oklahoma, the object of your trip? Was that the reason why you made that trip? A. No, I came to see my brother.

Q. You also came on a visit?

A. On a visit to see my brother.

Q. Now, on this trip you left your children in Oklahoma and they have resided there ever since? A. Yes.

Q. That is correct? Leavenworth is only a short distance from Kansas City, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Why didn't you pick up Tommy on your way down here?

A. Well, I had all I could do to—I couldn't hardly make a living for those two and I didn't stop to get the other one for I couldn't make a living for the two I had.

Q. Now, wasn't this the reason that you didn't care about the circumstances of Tommy's birth, where he was born, where he had lived, and so forth—— A. Oh, yes, I cared.

Q. Being known to your people in Oklahoma, or in the Indian Territory? A. I cared about him.

Q. What? A. I cared about him.

Q. Well, did you want your people in Oklahoma to know those circumstances? A. No, I didn't tell them.

Q. Did you ever tell them the circumstances surrounding the birth and life of Tommy? A. No.

Q. You never did? A. No.

Q. Because you didn't want them to know? A. No.

Q. Now, you had known Granny Letcher for some little while before Tommy was born, hadn't you?

A. Yes, I had known her.

Q. And had been to her place a number of times?

A. Well, not so many times, but I knew and went there two or three times.

Q. You had been there several times; you knew Mary Smith back in those days, didn't you?

A. Well, not so very well but I seen her.

Q. You were acquainted with her and remembered her?

A. Yes, I remembered her a little.

Q. She did some sewing for you at that time, didn't she; along about that time?

A. Well, I can't say that she did; I don't know whether she did or not.

Q. You don't remember about that? All you remember is that you know her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when you got to Leavenworth, two or three years ago, hunting for old acquaintances, you saw Mary Smith there, didn't you? A. Yes, I seen her.

Q. And you and Mary Smith, and some others went over the town to find what old acquaintances you could in an auto, or in a hack, or something, didn't you Minnie? A. No.

Q. You didn't ride around over town with her?

A. Not to my remembrance, I didn't.

Q. Who were you with when you recognized policeman Murphy? A. I think I was with Mr. Long.

Q. Who else? A. I think just I and Mr. Long.

Q. Just Mr. Long? A. I think so.

Q. No one else? After you left Tommy at Mother Letcher's when he was two or three years old, you never saw him any more? A. No.

Q. And all you know about him from that on is what you have heard? A. Yes.

Q. From third parties.

Mr. Cobb: That is all.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Minnie, you said that before you came to the Territory you wrote your uncle that you had a boy named Tommy?

A. I did.

Q. And asked you to send him some money? A. I did.

Q. That was before '95, before that payment, before you came down here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you ever seen Mr. Long at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Had you ever seen Mr. Hanford? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know Mr. Page? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know Mr. Rice? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know anything about the land?

A. No, sir, I didn't know anything.

Q. Now, Minnie, where did you have the Peterkin—Robert Lee Peterkin?

A. I had him at the Wood house—the Wood's house.

Q. Where did you have Tommy?

A. At Granny Letcher's.

Q. You remember, do you, distinctly, both of those places?
A. Yes, I had him at Granny Letcher's.

The Court: My mind is not quite clear about the two trips referred to to Oklahoma—to Indian Territory. Maybe the record is clear on that.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Minnie, when you came to Oklahoma from Fort Logan at the time you got the money down at Okmulgee, had you ever been to Oklahoma from Fort Logan before that?
A. No, that was the first time.
Q. Did you stay down in Oklahoma for some time after you got the money?

Mr. Cruce: Mr. Hanford, that was the Indian Territory.

Q. The Indian Territory?
A. I came from Fort Logan to Muskogee.
Q. And you stayed here for some time?
A. Yes, I stayed here I guess for pretty near a year.
Q. And then you went back to Fort Logan?
A. Yes, I left the two children with my half sister and then went back to Fort Logan.
Q. And who did you go with? A. John Couch.
Q. Did you ever make another trip to the Territory from Fort Logan? A. No, that was my last.
Q. Did you ever make more than that one trip when you came down at that time? A. No.
Q. In other words, I want to ask you how many times did you come from Fort Logan to the Territory?
A. I only made that one trip when I came down to see my brother, to Muskogee from Fort Logan.
Q. And they you stayed here——
A. Then I stayed here with the children and then asked my half sister if she would take [] of my two boys for a while and she said yes, she would take care of them as long as I wanted her to keep them, and then I made a trip back from Muskogee to Denver again with John Couch.
Q. Minnie, you were asked why you came down to the Territory from Fort Logan; why did you come here? Did you leave Fort Logan and come to the Territory?
A. Well, I——
Q. Let me ask you this, if I may lead her a little bit——

The Court: Hasn't she testified that she got a letter from her brother?

Mr. Cruce: Testified that three times.

By the Court.

Q. I want to ask you this, Minnie; you got the letter I understand from your brother Lee, is that right?

A. From Lee Atkins.

Q. He was your brother? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, while you were down here, he was shot and died?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, just tell me again, as near as you can, what he said in that letter—why he wanted you to come.

A. He just wrote to me and said—said, well, sister, I have heard where you are at now, and he said will you come down to see me, and I think I answered it and said I would if you could meet me. I know I answered it but I can't remember what I said; and then I was going with a fellow in Fort Logan by the name of Harrison and his health was poor, so he went to Arizona, and I said, Well you give me money to go down and see my brother; I said to him, I am going down to see my brother; and he said alright, how much do you want, and I said wil my two children, I reckon five hundred dollars, and he give it to me.

Q. And you came down to see him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you heard of the grass payment before?

A. No, sir, I didn't know anything about it.

Q. When was the first you heard about that?

A. I didn't know anything about the payment at all until I went down to Okmulgee.

Q. How did you happen to go to Okmulgee?

A. Well, a lot of the people in Muskogee, young people—boys and girls—were saying there is a payment at Muskogee.

Q. Out at Okmulgee?

A. Okmulgee; and I had a girl friend here and I said I believe I will go out to—just for fun I said, if I can hire a horse. So I went down to the livery stable and I got a horse, so I went out there, and when I went out I hitched my horse, and I said, oh, by the way, I guess I will go in and see who are getting money; and there was a man there with a book and who it was I can't remember; and he shoved the book over to me, and I seen where Harvey, and Charlie, and Alice, and Thomas and myself were on the book, too, and I said I am down here for some money, and you will have to pay me——

Q. You went over that yesterday. That was the first you knew when you went over there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't expect the money when you went over there? A. No, sir.

Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Now, can you tell what time of year it was when you come to Muskogee? A. It was in the summer.

Q. Do you remember whose house you went to?

A. Alice Robertson's.

Q. And what makes you remember it was summer?

A. They had some kind of entertainment for the children and they were in white.

Mr. Linebaugh: There was one matter I entirely overlooked. I would like for this witness' true height to appear in the record and I want to know would it be agreeable to you that she be measured?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, we will measure her at the hotel.

The Court: You will agree on that.

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, I have a certified copy of judgment in the case of Charles Lain against Sadie Lain, that I want to submit to counsel on the other side.

Mr. Hanford: If the court please, yesterday I offered the deposition of Captain MacNab and named the page at which it would be found. Captain MacNab was recalled once or twice and I want all the references to his testimony.

The Court: It all appears in the index.

Mr. Hanford: It appears in the index.

The Court: Just let the record show all of Captain MacNab's testimony as appears in Mr. Penick's report is admitted.

Mr. Hanford: Both for the Government and the defense.

The Court: Both for the Government and for the defense. Now, this judgment is offered in evidence. I hear no objection.

Mr. German: We object to it as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: That is in relation to this divorce transaction?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: It may be admitted.

ALEXANDER J. MacNAB being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Allen.

A. No, I have since learned that they had been—that they were married. I have seen the marriage certificate in which the signatures were her's. At that time I merely saw her and didn't know her at all but I was speaking at that time, so far as I knew at that time, she was married, and since then I have learned she actually was married, for I have seen the marriage certificate.

Q. When was she married to Harry Folk?

A. Well, if I remember correctly, it seems to me that it was in 1907 but I am not sure of that. It was sometime previous—a number of years previous—to the time I first knew her.

Q. Do you remember the occasion of Sadie James coming out here to see Minnie Atkins?

A. I remember seeing her once or twice; I remember the first time I saw her, very distinctly.

Q. With reference to the time that you first saw Sadie, when did you first learn—when did you learn that Minnie claimed to be the mother of Thomas Atkins?

A. Well, it was at the time that Sadie James was here—if that is what you mean, in reference to the time she was here. It was at the time that she was here that I learned anything whatever of Mrs. Folk's affairs, including the claim that she was the mother of the child named Thomas Atkins.

Q. Who suggested that you act as trustee for Minnie?

A. Mrs. McComb.

Q. Was Sadie present? A. No.

Mr. Hanford: I don't think that he understood your question.

Mr. Allen: Yes, read the question.

Mr. Hanford: I mean the one before that.

A. Are you speaking about the legal trustee?

Q. That Minnie turn over her property to you to manage for her?

A. I believe it was on the advice of Mr. Hanford that I was made the trustee; it was made—I first took up an interest in Minnie's affairs on the request of Mrs. McCombs who felt that Minnie needed somebody to take some——

Q. I was not inquiring about that.

A. Some legal experience, I wanted to explain. I believe, however, the actual trusteeship was taken upon the advice of Mr. Hanford and Mrs. McCombs—they were both present.

Q. Why did you happen to call Mr. Hanford into the case? A. Because I knew him as a lawyer.

> Mr. Hanford: I object on the grounds that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and not a matter involved in the issues of this case.

Q. Who employed Mr. Hanford?

> Mr. Blakeney: Object to the question for the same reason.

A. Well, I got Mr. Hanford into the case; he was employed by Minnie Folk.

Q. Captain MacNab, did Sadie—had you talked to Sadie James and Minnie together at the time you called Mr. Hanford into the case? A. Yes.

Q. And Sadie, in Minnie's presence, had told you of the claim, had she?

A. I don't remember distinctly, whether Sadie had told me of the claim or not.

Q. After——

> Mr. Blakeney: Wait a minute—let him answer. He started to give an explanation—you interrupted.

> Mr. Allen: You may cross examine him when you have him.

> Mr. Blakeney: I want him to answer the question.

Q. Captain MacNab, at the time that Sadie was here, this trustee arrangement was agreed upon, wasn't it, by which you were to become her trustee?

A. It was—I don't know whether she was still here. She was here all the morning of that day.

Q. And a deed of trust was signed by Minnie to you?

A. To me?

Q. And Mr. Hanford was by you later sent to Oklahoma?

A. Yes, he was sent there by me as trustee.

Q. And you made a lease to Charles Page, or the Gem Oil Co.?

A. Yes, it was signed by me as trustee, as I remember it.

Q. What was the consideration paid for that lease?

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial—not involved in the issues of this case; purely a private matter.

A. The consideration for the lease was $10,000.00 as I remember it. I am not sure but that the lease might have been made out for $1.00 but as a matter of fact, I think it over. I believe the lease itself, did not state the amount for—the actual consideration.

Q. How much was agreed to be paid?

A. $10,000.00 for the lease.

Q. Is that all?

A. Well, a one-fourth interest in the oil.

Q. Is that all of the money?

A. That is all the money, yes.

Q. Was there any agreement that they were to pay any attorney's fees of the trustee—that is in addition to that?

A. Nothing in the lease.

Q. I mean outside of the lease.

A. Not that I remember of—not that I know of.

Q. How much was you paid as trustee? A. As trustee?

Q. Or otherwise? A. They were paid $10,000.00.

Q. How much outside of that $10,000.00 were you paid?

A. Nothing.

Q. You never received anything for your services as trustee or otherwise growing out of this transaction?

A. No, when I——

Mr. Hanford: Mr. Allen, may I ask the purpose of this examination?

Mr. Allen: Just to show the interest of the witness is all.

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Q. Now, Captain MacNab, how was that $10,000.00 paid—the ten thousand that went to Minnie?

A. Now was it paid?

Q. Yes, sir. A. Why, it was paid by check.

Q. One, or two checks? A. There were two checks.

Q. For how much each? A. For $5000.00 each.

Q. To whom were they made payable?

A. Why, I think they were made payable to Mr. Hanford.

Q. Both of them? A. Both of them, as I remember it.

Q. What was done with both of them?

A. Well, there was $5,000.00 of that was cashed for attorney's fees, and expenses, etc., and the other five was to be turned over to Minnie at a later date, sometime at the end of the month and it was put in a safety deposit bank down town by Mr. Hanford, and he was away at the time this was to be paid over to Minnie and later on I was away on leave; some other arrangement was made, I don't—Minnie got the $5,000.00 to be turned over to her; whether it was that same check that was cashed or another one made out, I don't know —I was away at the time.

Q. Why was it agreed that it was to be paid at a later date?

A. The people asked that this money be not turned over to Minnie for a few days, something less than a month it was at that time, because they wanted to get her testimony before it had been paid; not knowing Minnie, they said, their experience which had been unfortunate and that when they got money they went to pieces and they requested for safety on their side, that until they could get the case straightened out, that this not be paid until the end of the month. That was my understanding and the way it was explained to me also explained to Minnie and it was satisfactory to her.

Q. And your understanding is, after she had testified, she was paid the $5,000.00?

A. No, and it was not the understanding that she was not to be paid this until she had testified.

Q. What did you testify to a while ago?

Mr. Hanford: I object to his cross-examining his own witness.

Mr. Allen: I thought he misunderstood himself.

Mr. Blakeney: I thought you misunderstood him.

A. Will you read the answer to the question before that for me? (Previous answer read.) I would like to add there when I stated until they could get her testimony, I didn't mean when she testified before the court because they had no hope to bring that case to trial within the time stated that money should be turned over to her.

Q. Do you know as a matter of fact or not, whether they did get her testimony before they paid that $5000.00?

A. I do not.

Q. Where was that $10,000.00, or any part of it, deposited and to whose credit? A. Of that $10,000.00?

Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and purely as to private affairs.

Q. Just sir.

A. You mean all of it that I have personal knowledge of, or any part?

Q. Any part that you know anything about or heard anything about.

Mr. Blakeney: We object to what he heard as hearsay and incompetent.

Q. Any part that you know anything about.

A. That was $5000.00 turned over to Mr. Hanford and to myself by Mrs. Folk; of that, Mr. Hanford took $3,000.00 for the expenses to which he had been put and to carry on the case. $2000.00 of it was taken by myself, of which $2000.00, two hundred ($200.00) has since been expended for expenses in the case and the other eighteen hundred is on deposit in the National Bank of Commerce in Seattle as a fund upon which I can draw at any time for any purpose that I see fit in this case. This money, however, was turned over by Mrs. Folk to me as a commission for my services rendered and as I have explained to Mr. Hanford, I could accept no commission under those circumstances and I keep that money to expend for the benefit of Minnie, herself, in case I should need it for legal purposes or any other purposes, and that money is now deposited there in the bank to my personal credit; in a separate account, however, from my personal account.

Q. When did you make up your mind in reference to the time she paid you this commission that it would be improper to receive it? A. At the time it was turned over.

Q. You took it then as a commission, didn't you?

A. You are putting words in my mouth. I did not consider it was improper to accept that as a commission for services rendered. I merely said that I as an officer and this woman being the wife of a soldier, I did not feel, personally, like taking a commission from her.

Q. Why did you take it?

Mr. Hanford: I object to that as cross examination.

Mr. Blakeney: We object to it as cross examination.

Q. Please state why, and for what purpose, you did take it at the time it was taken.

A. I took this as a method of having some way of protecting Minnie's interests in case it became necessary for me to take some legal action involving the expenditure of money.

Q. Have you any knowledge of what became of the other $5000.00?

A. No statement has been rendered and none was required; I knew indirectly the expenses have gone far beyond that amount representing Mrs. Folk's interests.

Mr. Hanford: May I inquire, Judge, did you ask about the other five thousand or the rest of this first five thousand?

Mr. Allen: I am speaking of the other five thousand.

Q. You have testified about the other three thousand that Mr. Hanford received and of two thousand that you received; what became of the other?

A. I only know what Mrs. Folk told me, that that had been turned over to her personally and that was acceptable to me as trustee. The other five thousand was not handled through me because I was away at the time.

Q. The only duties involving upon you, then, as trustee of this woman, as I understand your testimony, was making a lease to the Gem Oil Company and receiving the $2000.00 in trust for her, is that the extent of your——

Mr. Blakeney: We object to his distortion of the evidence as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Hanford: We object on the ground that the question included a misstatement of the evidence; incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Q. Was any other service performed by you, Captain MacNab? A. Is that first question withdrawn?

Q. No. Was any other service performed by you up to the time that you resigned the trust?

A. That is the part I am to answer?

Mr. Blakeney: Put that in the record—I am answering the last part.

Q. Go on.

A. Both Minnie and her husband had come to me for advice and counsel a number of times.

Q. Captain MacNab, has anything else been paid to you directly, or indirectly, by Page, Lang, the Gem Oil Co., Mr. Hanford, or anyone else connected with this case? A. No.

Q. Other than the $2000.00 you have testified about?

A. No.

Q. Has anybody promised you anything? A. No.

Q. You remember Mr. Montgomery coming here in December, 1914, and having a conversation with Minnie in your presence and in the presence of Mr. Hanford?

A. Yes, I remember his coming here—a little over a year ago as I remember it—I don't remember the month.

Q. Did Mr. Montgomery have a conversation with Minnie Folk in the presence of yourself and Mr. Hanford about the 17th of December, 1914? A. Yes, about that time.

Q. Where? A. In my office in my quarters.

Q. Did Minnie make any statement at that time in regard to Thomas Atkins?

A. She signed a statement that had been prepared in reference to that.

Q. Do you know substantially what that statement contained? A. Well, I only remember its general affect.

Q. What was done with the statement she signed?

A. The statement was first turned over to me and later, I gave it back to her—what she did with it, I do not know.

Q. Who turned it over to you?

A. It was turned over to me—I don't remember who did the actual turning over; I think I picked it up myself, if that is what you mean—it was on the desk. It was understood that I was to keep the statement.

Q. Understood by whom?

A. By Mrs. Folk, Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Hanford and myself.

Q. That you were to take the statement and keep it for how long? A. Keep it until——

> Mr. Blakeney: I want to object to the question as leading; let it be told what the conversation of the parties was without calling for a conclusion.

Q. Go ahead.

A. To keep the statement until Mr. Montgomery——

Q. I will strike that. State the conversation; the conversation on that subject that occurred at that time as to you keeping the statement.

A. It was to the effect that this statement was different from testimony that Minnie had already given before the court of Oklahoma and that Mr. Montgomery was to wire his superiors or the authorities at Washington to obtain immunity for her from prosecution for statements to the contrary that she had made before the court, and that when this immunity was granted, which he felt sure it would be, the statement was to be turned over to him—Mr. Montgomery.

Q. Was that the condition upon which it was delivered to you?

A. That was the condition as understood by all of us, by which I took charge of it.

Q. What did you do with that statement?

A. I turned that back the following day, I believe it was, or certainly within two days, to Mrs. Folk.

Q. And have you seen it since? A. I have not.

Q. Do you remember what that statement contained?

A. I remember the main point of it.

Q. The substance of the statement?

A. The substance of the statement.

Q. Will you please relate the substance of that statement?

A. The substance of the statement was that she had never had a son named Thomas Atkins and that she had only had three children; a girl that had died, and two boys, Charlie and Harvey.

Q. Was that all of the statement?

A. That was all the statement that had any bearing on this case and it was all that I remember.

Q. To refresh your memory, did that statement contain a statement that Thomas Atkins, appearing upon the roll, was placed there by her and that it represented the name of her father? A. It did not.

Q. And that she put it there to draw the grass money in 1895? A. It did not.

Q. Did it contain the statement that the Thomas Atkins for which she drew the grass money was her father?

A. It did not; if there had been any such statement as that, I would have remembered it—there was no such statement as that in that paper she signed.

Q. Did Mr. Montgomery agree for you to turn the signed statement over—back to Minnie?

A. He did not; he objected to my turning it back to her.

Q. You turned it back to her over his objection?

A. I did.

Q. State whether or not, he told you at the time, he could procure immunity as he agreed to do, for her.

A. He had shown me a telegram that he had gotten in answer to one that he had sent to Washington and this telegram did not grant immunity, as I remember it. It in a way, dodged the issue granting immunity and he felt, however, that he could still get it, as I remember it.

Q. State whether or not, he asked you to return the statement until he could secure immunity.

A. I don't remember whether he asked me to or not; it would have made no difference if he had.

Q. Was that statement signed by Minnie Atkins in your presence? A. Signed by Minnie Atkins in my presence, yes.

Q. In your office? A. In my office.

Q. Where was this written?

A. I don't remember that—I don't remember whether it was written there or not; I am not sure on that point. My impression is, however, that it was prepared before Minnie was brought up there but I am not sure on that point.

Mr. Blakeney: I would like to examine this witness before Mr. Hanford, as he would probably want to cross-examine him.

Mr. Hanford: I object upon the ground that I am entitled to cross-examine the witness upon his direct examination on each side.

Mr. Blakeney: So may I.

Mr. Hanford: You have filed a cross-petition.

Mr. Blakeney: I don't care—go ahead if you prefer.

Mr. Allen: Let me ask one more question.

Q. Captain Mac Nab, with reference to the time that you accepted the trust, how long before you resigned it? To make myself plain, you stated that Minnie Atkins gave you a deed of trust to manage her property for her. A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you relinquish that trust?

A. I don't remember the date, it was, however, after the deed had been signed and the necessity for my acting as trustee had passed.

Q. And you have not been acting in the capacity of trustee since that? A. No.

Q. Was that relinquishment of your trust filed for record in Oklahoma?

A. It was turned over to Minnie to be sent there to be filed.

Q. About how long after you received your deed of trust from her was it that you executed the relinquishment?

A. I don't remember just how long but it had been several months—just how long, I don't remember.

Q. Had it been as much as six months?

A. Oh, I think it had been a little more.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Captain, how long did you say you knew Minnie?

Mr. Hanford: I withdraw my objection to the examination of this witness on the part of Mr. Blakeney, as attorney for Henry Carter, at this time, he being unfamiliar with the case and with the matters testified and to be testified to by Captain MacNab, and can best bring out the evidence in the case before cross examination.

Mr. German: I want to enter one thing in the record. The Government expresses surprise at the testimony of the witness to the—substantially to the effect that a signed statement did not contain any reference to the name of Thomas Atkins having been placed upon the rolls in order to draw the grass money and that it was the name of her father.

Mr. Blakeney: We object to this statement being put into the record. There is nothing to justify it in this examination and the statement itself is improper.

Q. The question was, how long have you known Minnie?
A. I have known her by sight since I first saw her in——

Mr. German: One other thing, if you please, Mr. Blakeney; we will probably want to cross examine the witness on the proposition of the substance of the signed statement.

Mr. Blakeney: Which, when that is tended, we will object to you cross examining your own witness.

Mr. Hanford: The defendants, Folk and Hanford, object on the same ground.

Q. What year would you say it was that you first met Minnie?

A. I first saw her in December of 1912 at Fort Harrison.

Q. Fort Harrison where?

A. Fort Harrison, Montana—and I have seen her off and on since then.

Q. During that entire time she has been married to Mr. Folk? A. Yes.

Q. Who did you say Mr. Folk was?

A. He is corporal in the band of the 14th Infantry.

Q. He is a white man? A. Yes.

Q. About what aged man is he?

A. Well, I should judge he is not over 45—just estimating.

Q. During that time has Minnie had any children born to her, or living with her, that you know of?

A. None that I know of.

Q. Your acquaintance with her and her family relations have been more intimate during the last year—I will say, since you have been acting as her trustee? A. Yes.

Q. What members of her family has she living with her besides her husband?

A. None that I know of.

Q. When did you say that you met Mr. Montgomery?

A. It was about a year ago.

Q. The date placed by the Government in the question, about December of 1913—1914, I mean, is about correct?

A. I should think so—about correct.

Q. Where did you first see him?

A. Why, at Fort Lawton.

Q. Did you see him first alone, or did you and Minnie see him together first?

A. No, he talked to me first.

Q. What did he say to you, Captain, in that conversation?

A. He said that he represented the Government; that he represented the Government and had come out here to rey to get this matter straightened out, and that he was a representative of the Indian Department, as I remember it.

Q. Did he say anything to you about Minnie being subject to prosecution?

Mr. Allen: We object to the question as not proper cross-examination of this witness.

A. I don't remember whether he did or not.

Q. You say that he promised during the period of his visit, to attempt to get immunity for Minnie; immunity from what?

A. Immunity from prosecution from any testimony that she might have given before the court, that varied from that signed statement that she made, or was about to make at that time.

Q You mean by that that he would attempt to get immunity preventing Minnie being prosecuted for perjury?

A. Yes.

Q. For the testimony she had given? A. Yes.

Q. Did he have a copy of that testimony? A. I don't know.

Q. Did he have what he claimed, a purported copy?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall that he did start to read some evidence that he had, and as he would read it Minnie would say, yes that is right?

Mr. German: We object to that as improper cross examination.

Q. Do you remember anything of that kind?

A. No, I don't remember that.

Q. You don't remember, then, any evidence being read to Minnie, or exhibited to her in your presence? A. No.

Q. Mr. Montgomery did tell you that he was working for the Interior Department of the United States Government?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he tell you that her evidence which she had given had been given in the State Court in which the Federal Department had no jurisdiction? A. He did not.

Q. Didn't explain anything to you? A. No.

Q. He did, however, leave the impression on Minnie that he could give immunity? A. Yes.

Q. For her testimony before the State Court? A. Yes.

Q. What was Minnie—what was the apparent affect on Minnie of the statement of Mr. Montgomery as to her having committed perjury in her testimony and his efforts to obtain immunity?

Mr. German: I object to that as improper cross examination and for calling for a conclusion and opinion of the witness.

A. As I remember it, Minnie did not seem to be much interested in the immunity; I don't think it had any affect on her one way or the other. She seemed to be mainly interested in the fact that if she signed that statement, she would not have to have anything more to do with the case; the other side of it, she didn't seem to consider very strongly at all—she was so possessed with the idea that if she signed that paper she would be through with all this business that the question of immunity did not seem to enter very strongly into her mind.

Q. Minnie did not seem frightened by the statement about her committing perjury in the former testimony?

> Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination and calling for a conclusion.

A. No, I don't think she did.

Q. What did she say in the presence of Mr. Montgomery and the other parties who were present, as to her desire to get away from the annoyance, or annoyances, to which she had been subjected to in this matter?

A. Why, in my opinion, that was her only idea.

Q. The question, Captain, what did she say, if anything, to convey that idea to you?

> Mr. German: I object to that as improper cross examination.

A. I remember she asked him if she signed that paper would she be through with the case—would she have to go down to Oklahoma any more; would she be all through with it, or words to that effect.

Q. What did Mr. Montgomery say?

A. Mr. Montgomery, as I remember it, I think I remember his words were—your troubles will be over; I think those were the words he used.

Q. Did Minnie in this conversation with Mr. Montgomery, relate any of the experiences she had had with persons who had been trying to get leases or statements from her?

A. I don't [ ] that she related any of them at that time—I don't remember that she did.

Q. I don't mean for you to detail them but didn't she state that they had been annoying her about these matters?

A. Yes.

Q. You say you gave it back to Minnie—gave the statement back to Minnie? A. Yes.

Q. Why did you give it back to her?

A. Because Minnie had made the statement to me——

> Mr. German: Wait a minute, we object to that as improper cross examination and calling for an opinion and conclusion of witness, and move to strike the answer so far as given.

Q. Go ahead, Captain. (Reads part of the question already given.)

A. That this signed statement was false; that he had persuaded her to sign it and that she had been thinking it over, and she had come to the conclusion that it was very wrong for her to have signed it; that it was not true, that she did have a son named Thomas.

Q. When did Minnie make that statement to you?

Mr. German: Just a moment; I want to make a motion in reference to that answer. I move to strike that answer on the ground that it is not responsive to the question and that it is hearsay evidence, and incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. I believe it was the day following the evening on which she signed it.

Q. What time of the evening had she signed it?

A. If I remember it, it was early in the evening. I am not positive of the exact time, but as I remember it was in the evening.

Q. Do you mean in the evening after dinner? A. Yes.

Q. Six o'clock evening?

A. There had been a number of conferences and meetings in my office, and had been before that; I don't remember positively which one of those it was, but as I remember it, that particular meeting was in the evening but I don't state that as a positive fact.

Mr. Allen: We move to strike the answer of the witness as not responsive to the question, and as improper cross examination.

Mr. Blakeney: Counsel has moved to strike out one of the answers just preceding, or the second preceding answer, on the ground that it was not responsive and to avoid that objection I want to ask you this.

Q. Now, to state what Minnie said to you about this statement after she had signed it——

Mr. Allen: We object as improper cross examination, hearsay, incompetent, and irrelevant and immaterial.

A. She stated that this paper that she had signed was not so; that we had misled her in some way to get her to sign it, and she had been thinking it over and she had come to the conclusion that she had done very wrong; that it was not true —these statements she made in there, in that written statement; that she did have a son named Thomas and that she signed a statement saying that she had not had a son named Thomas, and that that statement was not true.

Q. What did you then do with the statement, if anything? A. I then took the statement and turned it over to Mrs. Folk.

Q. You say that this conversation that you have just related now, was in the afternoon of the day following the evening that it was signed?

A. As I remember it, the statement was taken down to me in the evening—I remember that very distinctly. It was in the evening that this paper was taken down to me.

Mr. Allen: We object as improper cross examination and as incompetent.

A. And it was in the evening, as I remember it, following the signing of the statement by her.

Q. Where was she when she signed the statement?

A. She was in the office in my quarters.

Q. When was the first time, now, that you saw Minnie or talked to Minnie with reference to her interests in this land in Oklahoma?

Mr. Allen: We object as improper cross examination.

A. The first time that I talked to her was some time I think in June, a year and a half ago—June of 1914, that would be.

Q. Is that the conversation that you referred to in your examination in chief, in which—related by Mrs. McCombs, was it? A. Yes.

Q. Mrs. McCombs had spoken to you about the matter?

A. Yes, Mrs. McComb had asked me to go down and assist Minnie.

Mr. Allen: We object as improper cross examination, and as hearsay as to what Mrs. McComb said.

A. By advice.

Q. Go ahead and answer.

Q. Assist Minnie by advice, in regard to some matter that had come up or about which Minnie didn't know very much; that she was going to make a business deal with somebody concerning land or something, in which she didn't know what interest she had in it, and without knowing, she was going to sign this over. Minnie had been a servant for Lieut. and Mrs. McComb, and she felt very kindly towards her, and she got Lieut. and Mrs. McComb and I to go down there to do what we could to assist Minnie in this business deal, whatever it should be.

Mr. Allen: We move to strike the answer of the witness for the reason that it is not responsive to the question. It is relating a conversation with Mrs. McComb, and it is hearsay and incompetent.

Q. In response to this request did you go down?
A. I did.
Q. Where did you go to?
A. I went to the house where Mrs. Folk had lived.
Q. Who did you find there?
A. Think Minnie was there alone—I don't believe her husband was there at that time.

Q. I wish you would state the conversations and transactions that occurred from that time on, during the remainder of that visit, as best you can remember.

Mr. Allen: We object as incompetent, as hearsay, and as improper cross examination.

A. Well, as I remember the conversation, the gist of it was that Minnie had had a son named Thomas she told them. The conversation with her was, as she had explained it, that she had had a son named Thomas; that that boy had some claim on some land down in Oklahoma, and I think she said at the time that the boy was dead, or supposed to be dead—I have forgotten which; that she was entitled to the land and that there was some people coming to get her and give her two thousand dollars for it and that she was going to take it. Now, there was a lot of other conversation while I was there, and some other people arrived.

Q. Did you make any inquiry of her as to her knowledge of this land, or knowledge of its value?

Mr. Allen: Mr. Blakeney, before that last question, we move to strike the answer of the witness.

A. Yes, she knew nothing whatever about what it was or about what its value was.

Mr. Allen: We object to that question as improper cross examination, incompetent; it is hearsay and we move to strike that part of the answer already given for the same reason.

Q. Who came in, during the time of this visit?
A. A Mr. Long with some man who was with him.
Q. Do you know his name?
A. I don't know the name of the man who was with him.
Q. I wish you would just state what Mr. Long said there.

Mr. Allen: We object.

Mr. Blakeney: Kill the question.

Q. I wish you would state the conversation that occurred after Mr. Long came, between any of the parties then present.

Mr. Allen: We object as incompetent, improper cross examination and hearsay.

A. Minnie had asked me to represent her; do the dealing with the people who would come, and she had agreed to rest on my advice. When Mr. Long came, Minnie told Mr. Long that he was to talk to me. Mr. Long, after finding out who I was, and who Mr. McComb was, who was with me, stated that they wanted to get a quit claim deed to this land of Minnie; he also stated that the land was very involved there with a number of claimants to it. He wanted to pay a definite sum for a quit claim deed to the land. I believe the first sum mentioned was $2000.00, and that was the only sum mentioned at that time.

Q. Captain, to refresh your memory, did not Long only want a lease—that it was Sadie James who wanted a deed?

A. Well, Mr. Long—it may have been that Minnie told me that the man was coming up to get a quit claim deed. I know as soon as Mr. Long found out that I was to handle the case, at that time I explained to him that any deed or lease, or anything, was to be not signed until an investigation had been made as to what the land was—what title she had to it—and what other offers were made to it by other firms. Now, as to whether Mr. Long himself stated that he wanted that for a lump sum, a quit claim deed, or whether Minnie had told me he was coming up to offer this amount, I am not definite, but I know it was during the same conversation that the lease was talked of.

Q. Was any lease made or agreed to be made there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did Mr. Long leave papers with you? A. Yes.

Q. What did he leave?

A. He had a blank form prepared for signature and I don't now remember whether it was for a lease or a deed. He had a blank form prepared for signature—he left that with me, and he walked up to the Post with me—or part of the way, anyway—he left that with me and he gave me some references of people that he telegraphed to in various states of the United States, Tulsa, Oklahoma, and Kansas City, as to the reliability and responsibility of the people that he was representing.

Q. What did you do with the instruments that were left with you?

A. I sent for Mr. Hanford and firm—that I think, was kept by us, and a copy of it made—I forget which, because it did describe the parcels of land that this paper dealt with, and we either kept that one in order to get that one to get the information, or made a copy of it, I don't know which.

Q. Was that the first time, now, that you consulted Mr. Hanford?

A. The first time that I consulted him was when I telephoned him concerning this matter and he came right up. I think I telephoned him about noon and he came up that afternoon.

Q. About what time of day was it that you were talking to Mr. Long?

A. It was in the morning, I think about ten o'clock.

Q. I understand now, that you talked with Mr. Long in the morning and he left the paper with you? A. Yes.

Q. And you came on up to your Post and had your lunch and telephoned to Mr. Hanford? A. Yes.

Q. Did he come on that afternoon?

A. He came out that afternoon.

Q. What did you do then?

A. I sent these telegrams and got satisfactory answers back from the bank that had been referred to me as to the reliability and responsibility of Mr. Page and Mr. Josey. That afternoon, I went back down to see Minnie.

Q. Who went with you, Captain, if anybody?

A. Mr. Hanford was with me.

Q. Who did you find there?

A. I would like to state that I don't—I am not quite sure whether Mr. Long walked up with me in the morning or whether it was in the afternoon. I believe it was not in the afternoon, because Sadie James comes in there some place in the morning after Mr. Long had left. Then, in the afternoon when I went down, I——

Q. Just a minute now, Captain. With that explanation I am not clear yet. A. Yes.

Q. You are not sure whether Mr. Long was there in the afternoon and Sadie came the following morning?

A. No, my understanding is this—that Sadie James came there that morning after Mr. Long had left.

Q. That Mr. Long came in the early morning? A. Yes.

Q. And Sadie James came later in the morning? A. Yes.

Q. And you telephoned to Mr. Hanford?

A. After I got back.

Q. And you then went down with Mr. Hanford in the afternoon?

A. In the afternoon, and Sadie James was still there and

Mr. Long didn't come to Minnie's house that afternoon but he met me down near the gate near the car line and he walked up with me—that is where he walked up.

Q. What did Sadie James say with reference to her business there?

A. Sadie James said that Mr. Long was not the man she was supposed to bring out to make this deal with Minnie at all; that he was somebody else and that they had had her followed by detectives, so she would not come to Minnie's house —I don't know. She told a wild story about being followed and that was the reason she had not arrived on time, and that the other man that was to have come and pay Minnie the $2000.00 had not come from Oklahoma yet; that the man she was representing had not arrived and that this other man, Long, Minnie was not to have any dealing with him at all because Long was not her man and that Minnie had to deal with her—Long was not her man.

Q. Do you remember who Sadie James claimed to be representing?

A. She claimed to be representing a man named Bartlett.

Q. Who was she expecting, if she stated?

A. She was expecting, as I understand it—she was expecting Mr. Bartlett himself.

Q. Have you stated substantially all that was stated by Sadie there, now, that you can remember?

A. Sadie was very excited and rather incoherent.

Q. If not, state all that you can remember.

A. She was very excited and rather incoherent but she was very firm in her determination to keep Minnie from signing any papers for anybody until her man got there.

Q. About how long did this visit continue?

A. Well, it continued for quite a while; it continued over an hour, that I am sure of—I don't know how much longer than that.

Q. Did anybody else, now, come in besides yourself, Minnie, Mr. Hanford and Sadie James? A. While we were there?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I don't remember. Mr. Long came up there but he didn't come in—he started up toward the Post and when I was starting home, I met Mr. Long at the gate—that goes into the Post—and we walked at least a part of the way up.

Q. What did Mr. Long say to you?

Mr. Allen: We object as improper cross examination, incompetent, and hearsay, and move to strike out the testimony of this witness relating to Mr. Long for the reason that it is incompetent, improper cross examination.

A. Mr. Long, among things that I remember he stated, said that he was glad it was to be handled by some responsible people; that they much preferred to do business that way—with somebody that could put it on a business basis and in answer I told Mr. Long that the thing was going to be handled on a business basis, and there was going to be no rushing of any body through to signing papers in a hurry, until we found out what was being signed, and what other firms of equal interest was willing to pay for a lease and the property was valuable, and it was going to be a question of making a lease to people who had the best offer. Mr. Long said that all his firm asked was to be given the same chance as others.

Q. Had Mr. Long up to this time offered you ten thousand dollars for the lease? A. No.

Q. Was Mr. Hanford with you during this conversation that you had with Mr. Long as you came up through the Post?

A. I don't remember whether he was with me just at that time or not.

Q. When did you next see any of the parties in connection with the matter?

A. Well, it was in the afternoon that I went down to Minnie's quarters—Minnie's house again—and found that she had made up her mind to go to Spokane with Mr. Long, where her husband was at that time temporarily stationed with the band and sign over a lease to him, the consideration being about four thousand dollars. Did I say a lease?

Q. Yes.

A. As I remember it, it was a deed—she was to sign over whatever right, title or interest she had to it for four thousand dollars—that is my understanding of it. She was quite convinced that she was going to do that; that that four thousand was all the money that she would want in the world and it would keep her all her life, and I am not very sure it was a deed which she was going to sign for Mr. Long and was going to Spokane. Her husband was there and they were going to sign it. She had an idea that four thousand dollars was all she could use in her lifetime.

Q. Did she so state?

A. She so stated to me at the time.

Q. Was Mr. Long there? A. Mr. Long wasn't there.

Q. Did she go to Spokane then? A. She did not.

Q. Can you state why she didn't go?

A. Yes, Mr. Hanford and I decided——

Mr. Allen: We object as improper cross examination, hearsay and as incompetent.

A. Mr. Hanford and I decided that it would be very foolish for her to sign over a deed for her property to anybody without knowing what it was, especially when there seemed to be so many people anxious to get it and to get it as soon as possible, and we tried to dissuade Minnie from going and finally did succeed in getting her to agree to come up here to the Post and talk it over with Mrs. McComb who was responsible for our being in there in the first place.

Q. Did you go up and talk it over with Mrs. McComb?

A. We came up and talked it over with Mrs. McComb.

Q. Did Minnie go with you? A. Minnie came with us.

Q. As as result, now, of the advice of yourself and Mr. Hanford and the conversation with Mrs. McComb, Minnie decided she would not go over, did she?

Q. She decided she would not go over to Spokane.

> Mr. Allen: We object as incompetent, hearsay, and improper cross examination. We ask that the answer be stricken for the same reason.

Q. What then, if anything, did you do, or did Minnie regarding the land?

A. Well, it was then decided and I believe, on the legal advice of Mr. Hanford and backed up by the personal advice of Mr. and Mrs. McComb, and the consent and willingness of Minnie that this property should be deeded over to me in trust to prevent Minnie from doing the very thing that she had been contemplating doing that after noon, deeding it over to somebody for a small sum without knowing what it was, acting under the instruction of somebody—Minnie is rather susceptible to suggestions, and in the morning she agreed to let me handle the case, and in the afternoon we found her all ready to go, I had an idea, through somebody else without consulting any of us who were trying to handle her interest, and we decided the best thing to do was to fix it so that Minnie herself could not handle it. Minnie thought it was a good idea, and the action on her part was absolutely free and uninfluenced, except by the people she thought were her friends.

Q. During any of the conversations up to this time now, had any mention been made as to where Minnie's interests came?

A. No, except that Minnie herself had told me that she had had this son Thomas.

> Mr. Allen: We object.

A. And that she was entitled to some land in some way—just how it was, at that time we did not know. What information we got about it, we got from Mr. Long later.

Mr. Allen: We move to strike the answer given by this witness as not responsive to the question, and as incompetent and as hearsay.

Q. Do you remember about when she made that statement to you that she had had a son named Tommy?
A. She made that——

Mr. Allen: We object to the question because it is improper cross examination, self-serving declaration, and hearsay.

A. She made that statement, first, to me when I went down there in the morning when Minnie was alone and before I had seen Mr. Long or any of the others connected with the case.
Q. She had made this statement to you that he had a son named Tommy before you had met Sadie James or Mr. Long at her place? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Allen: We object for the same reason.

Q. Did she tell you anything about when, how, or where, she had had a son by that name?
A. Well, she told me that it had been in Leavenworth.

Mr. Allen: We object to this question for the same reason.

A. And that her explanation as to her being very young at the time and inexperienced and foolish and getting into trouble, and the way she explained it, I understood she was trying to—what she was trying to get into my mind was that this was an illegitimate child that she had had and that she kept very quiet about it because of its being an illegitimate child, and it took quite a while for her to get to telling me that she had had this son—a great many explanations.
Q. I wish you would state now, substantially, the best you can, that conversation, commencing at the first of it. I do this because you say it lead you to the conclusion—I will get you to state because we can see then what conclusion can be drawn.

Mr. Allen: We object to the question as hearsay and calling for a conclusion of the witness, as a self-serving declaration of Minnie Atkins, and as incompetent.

A. She gave the explanation that she was young at the time and inexperienced; that she was working in Leavenworth and that she had some bad luck there; said that she got into trouble and that she had a child and that this child's name was—had been named Thomas; called Thomas Atkins.

That is the substance. Those remarks she did make during this long conversation and those were the ones that lead me to the conclusion that it was an illegitimate child. She didn't use the word illegitimate and didn't say that she was married at the time; she said that she was a young girl and inexperienced, and that she had gotten into trouble and had a child.

Q. Did she—where—that is, the particular place in Leavenworth where she had that child? A. No.

Q. What, if anything, did she say became of the child?

Mr. Allen: We object for the same reason.

A. Well, she didn't have him very long as I remember it. She turned him over to somebody but who it was it was rather indefinite in my mind—now—it was at the time.

Q. Did she talk to you at length about it?

A. Not about the boy.

Q. Or was her statement brief?

A. She talked to me at length about her affairs but she said very little. I think I have repeated the substance of her conversation. I didn't know at the time what had become of the boy and I understand that she didn't know. She had turned this boy over to somebody else to raise, or take care of, and who it was I didn't understand.

Q. Captain, excuse me, you say I understand; we must have what was said about it or the substance of her statements.

A. Well, I cannot give you exactly what she said but she said what she told me was all to the effect that she had turned that boy over to somebody when he was only a year old, or three years old, I forget which, but she didn't know his present whereabouts, or what had become of him. I remember that very distinctly.

Q. Did she say anything to you about the father of the child?

A. She did not. She did tell me that she understood the boy—she did tell me that she understood that the boy was dead and I believe at the time that she told me, this Sadie James was there, that she told me that the boy was dead, but she said nothing whatever about the father of the boy, as to who it was.

Q. Now, we were talking about this first conversation now, in which you say was discussed that she had had the child in her young years? A. Yes.

Q. Sadie James was not present at that time?

A. No, not at first, no.

Q. The statement she gave you about the child being dead was in a later conversation when Sadie James was present?

A. No, she told me that morning. I remember distinctly that she had two things that seemed to be on her mind. She said I am the mother of that child; I remember her stating that in that many words, and I asked her what had become of the boy and she told me she had given him away or somebody had taken charge of him when he was one or three years old, I forget which, and that the boy was since dead.

Q. Did she tell you how she ascertained his death?

A. No, I asked if she knew of her own personal knowledge whether the boy was dead or not and she said she did not—that she heard that he was dead.

> Mr. Allen: We want our objections to go to all the questions calling for a conclusion of this witness, and especially as to the conversation had as to Minnie Atkins as being incompetent, hearsay, self-serving declarations, without making those specific objections to each question—may they go, Mr. Blakeney?
>
> Mr. Blakeney: Yes, sir. I am not asking for any conclusions.

A. I would like to explain that the indefiniteness of my answers are a good deal due to the indefiniteness of her statements at the time. She was trying to conceal as much of her past as possible and she made her statements rather indefinite, is the reason that my idea of the circumstance was rather hazy at the time, due principally as I figured it at that time to conceal as much as possible of her past.

Q. How long was it after this conversation that you first saw Long?

A. It was not very long—I was still there when he came.

Q. You had this conversation with Minnie the morning that you first saw Long? A. Yes.

Q. Who was there with you, if any body, at that time?

A. Mr. McComb.

Q. Mr. McComb?

A. Yes, Lieut. McComb; I don't remember if he was in the room when this conversation with Minnie took place. I am rather under the impression that he was out on the porch but Minnie told it to me herself—to me alone—but he was there; had gone down with me and came back with me and he was there at the house. I don't believe he was in the room at the time that Minnie told me this.

Q. When did you see Sadie James, now, with reference to the conversation?

A. Well, Mr. Long had come and gone when Sadie James appeared and unless I am mistaken, Sadie James came that afternoon while Mr. Hanford and I were there.

Q. That is your recollection is it?

A. My recollection is that she came there in the afternoon when Mr. Hanford and I were there, because I remember that Mr. Hanford and I went up—the reason I can place her visit a little more definitely, as I remember Mr. Hanford and I went up and spoke to the detective who had been very palpably following Sadie to keep her from coming to Minnie's house and that was why Mr. Hanford was there, and they were still very palpably shadowing the house.

Q. Let's talk about these detectives a while; who were they? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever meet them?

A. Except to come up there—we joked a little with them. I think we said two or three words as to whoever they were following still being there, or words to that effect but I never met them that I remember of—never have met them since or have seen them since.

Q. Did they tell you who they were?

A. No, I didn't know who they were.

Q. Didn't they tell you they were detectives?

A. They did not.

Q. Did you get the information that they were detectives from Sadie?

A. From Sadie James who said those men were following her all morning was the reason she had not gotten there, so as not to lead them to Minnie's house, but that they had hung to her trail all morning and that she hadn't come.

Q. But you went on after talking to the detectives to Minnie's house and found Sadie there?

A. No, it was after Sadie had come into the house and told us that these men had been following her that we saw them up there and went and spoke to them, and went back to the house.

Q. Where were those men in reference to the house?

A. Just on the hill in front of the house, about 34th Avenue; there were some trees there and they were sitting, or standing by them.

Q. What distance? A. Not over 75 yards.

Q. The house was in plain view from that point, was it?

A. Yes, and they were in plain view from the house; they could be seen peering around these bushes from time to time.

Q. Did you talk to Mr. Long about these men?

A. No, except—I don't remember that I talked to him about them—I don't think I did ever say anything to Mr. Long about them.

Q. Mr. Long never told you that these were his detectives or detectives working for his principal?

A. No, not that I remember of; I don't remember of his mentioning them, or of my mentioning them to him.

Q. Now, when you went on back to the house, how long did Sadie stay there?

A. I think she was still there when I left.

Q. What time do you say that you left?

A. Oh, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Q. Mr. Hanford leave with you? A. Yes.

Q. Was anything said in the conversation there, while Sadie was there, about Tommy?

A. Sadie James did a good deal of talking and her conversation was to the effect that Minnie was not to sign any papers at all until her man got there.

Q. I mean, Captain—— A. About Tommy?

Q. I mean about the birth, life or death of Tommy. Was that discussed by any of the parties?

A. There was a statement made by her that the child was dead—by Sadie James.

Q. Sadie said the child was dead? A. Yes.

Q. Did she say where the child died? A. No.

Q. Did she attempt to give Minnie any of the details of the death of her son?

A. No, we didn't pay much attention to Sadie at the time; I considered her rather an excited negro, whose conversation was rather incoherent—I didn't see just where she came in on the case at all, except that she had been hired by somebody to find Minnie, and she had found Minnie. I didn't consider any statement that she made of any value. She was very excited from being followed.

Q. She was excited from the detectives having followed her? A. Yes.

Q. And you say she talked considerably and incoherently?

A. Yes, excitedly.

Q. But so far as you know, Sadie said nothing about the birth, or life, or death of Tommy except the fact that he was dead? A. That Minnie said that?

Q. No, Sadie.

A. No, that is the only thing that I remember—that is the only statement that I remember that had any bearing on the case at all.

Q. Well, now, Captain, just to get this fixed in your memory again, don't you recollect that Sadie represented many times that Tommy was dead?

A. Yes, she repeated a number of times that Tommy was dead; that was the only statement that she made that had any bearing on the case that I remember.

Q. Then in this long conversation with Minnie, you do remember that she repeated several times that statement?

A. You mean Sadie James?

Q. Yes, Sadie James repeated several times that statement?

A. Yes, it was my impression at the time that she was trying to impress on Minnie that one fact.

Q. Did Minnie make any statement so far as you remember?

A. No, I don't remember Minnie making any statement that afternoon.

Q. Now, you didn't make the lease that day or make any conveyance, or any sale of the land that day—to Long or anybody else? A. No.

Q. Mr. Hanford left with you, did he?

A. As I remember it, he left with me, yes.

Q. That is your recollection? A. Yes.

Q. You had received telegrams from the banks that you had wired to, had you? A. Yes.

Q. You had from those telegrams been advised that Page and Josey were responsible oil men? A. Yes.

Q. I believe you said the next morning Long offered you four thousand dollars?

A. No, it was that afternoon that Minnie told me that she was going to Spokane with Mr. Long and sell the property for four thousand dollars.

Q. You and Mr. Hanford, now, left Minnie's, leaving Sadie James there?

A. I think Sadie James was there when we left Minnie's.

Q. You were later advised in the same afternoon by Minnie that she was going to Spokane?

A. No, as I remember it—of course it is a long time ago, as I remember it Sadie James didn't arrive until after we—Mr. Hanford and I had gotten there, and found Minnie all ready to go to Spokane, already fixed to go, and that it was while we were there that Sadie James came in on the scene and that Mr. Long came up while Sadie was there and didn't come to the house.

Q. I want to get this clear—then having learned that Minnie intended going to Spokane, you went down to Minnie's house to get her to come to Lieut. McComb's place?

A. That was in the evening—that was later on.

Q. When you left Minnie then, in the afternoon, she had not finally decided not to go to Spokane?

A. Yes, she had decided it, as I remember what we said and what Sadie James said when she showed up, that had a bearing on the case. As I remember, Mr. Hanford and I hadn't had much influence on Minnie and while we were there Sadie James came up and she had something to do with Minnie changing her mind, Mr. Long didn't come to the house

Q. Did she decide not to go with Mr. Long before you and Mr. Hanford left or did she finally decide in the evening after you had the conversation with Lieut. McComb?

A. No, decided to go before we left there.

Q. Then why did you have the visit with her at Lieut. McComb's place?

A. It was to get her up there to persuade her to turn the matter over to me.

Q. Mr. Hanford had suggested that she do something of that kind before coming to Mrs. McComb's house?

A. No, when we got over there—to Mr. McComb's residence and talked it over with Mrs. McComb.

Q. Did you bring Minnie with you?

A. I don't think so; I think I walked up the hill with Mr. Long.

Q. Don't you recall that on your way up you had a conversation with Mr. Long and made the request and he promised he would return to the city without attempting any further to influence Minnie until such time as you all could advise him?

A. Oh, I don't remember that—I don't remember that; lots of those details that are not distinct in my mind—I don't remember that.

Q. You went to Lieut. McComb's place to see his wife, Mrs. McCombs? A. Yes.

Q. For whom Minnie had worked? A. Yes.

Q. You went there to induce Mrs. McCombs to assist you in influencing Minnie so as to prevent Minnie from squandering whatever interest she had in this land?

A. Yes, it was to get Mrs. McComb to talk to Minnie, to persuade to allow us to handle the case entirely and not to take any action herself.

Q. Did you exhibit to Minnie the telegrams that you had received from the banks regarding the responsibility of these gentlemen who attempted to deal with her?

A. I don't remember whether I did or not; very probably not.

Q. Not after you got up to Mrs. McComb's, you talked to Mrs. McComb and then you sent for Minnie, did you?

A. Yes, that is the way I remember it.

Q. And finally you reached the agreement?

A. Yes, when that was supposed and how it was brought about I don't remember exactly but it was that same evening and the deed of trust was executed that same evening.

Q. Now, Captain, did you ever receive any correspondence from Messrs. Josey and Page?

A. No, I never received a letter from either one of them.

Q. Did Minnie ever receive a letter from them that was exhibited to you? A. No.

Q. Or any part of which was read to you? A. No.

Q. Did Minnie ever receive a letter from anybody regarding this land, or interest in this land, or regarding her relationship to Tommy Atkins, which you read or saw, or had read to you?

A. A don't remember a single one and I don't think there is one that was ever exhibited to me.

Q. Don't you recall that Minnie received a letter, soon after these conversations that you have stated and showed it to you, from Mr. Page in which Mr. Page stated, Minnie I have found your son Tommy; he was taken out and raised by an old negro family, named Carter, and known as Henry Carter? A. No.

Q. You say you never did or don't remember?

A. No, I never did.

Mr. Hanford: I object to the question and move to strike the answer on the part of the defendants Folk and Hanford, on the ground that it is improper cross-examination.

Q. You say that you never knew that Minnie had received such a letter?

A. No, that is what I say, I don't know. I know that she never showed me such a letter and I didn't know that she ever received such a one.

Q. Don't you remember that in the presence of Judge Allen, Minnie exhibited to you a letter?

Mr. Allen: No, I never was here before.

Q. Did Minnie exhibit any letters in the presence of Montgomery when he was her- and some Government officer?

A. No.

Q. Has any other Government officer ever visited you besides Montgomery?

A. I don't believe so—I don't remember. There have been a great many people from different firms and different companies that have come up here and interviewed me but I don't remember of only one that represented the Government, or claimed to represent it and that was Mr. Montgomery.

Q. Are you acquainted with a gentleman by the name of Cook? A. I don't remember him.

Q. Claimed to be a special agent for the Department of the Interior? A. I don't remember him.

Q. You saw Mr. Robinson, did you not, in the room this morning; Robinson, the gentleman who was in here with us early this morning?

A. I don't remember which one was Mr. Robinson.

Q. Have you ever met a man named Robinson, connected with this transaction? A. You mean this same one?

Q. Yes. A. Not that I remember of.

Q. What special agents, or detectives, have you ever talked to regarding this matter? A. Well, I can't tell you.

Q. I didn't ask you to tell all of them, Captain, just those——

A. I remember one named Koehler who came up here a time or two and tried to get me to take an interest in somebody that he felt—and the reason that he rather impressed himself on my mind, he was a man employed first by Mr. Long, told me he had been, and that he was now endeavoring to promote the interest of some other claimants. There have been so many that have come to see me on this thing that I don't remember who they all are. In fact, I turned them all away with the statement that I knew nothing whatever about the case and my only advice to Mrs. Folk to do nothing except through her lawyer, and my conversation was not long enough to impress it on my mind.

Q. Referring to the other question, did you ever see any letter written to Minnie about this land or about Tommy Atkins?

A. I don't remember ever seeing any letter that was written to her concerning it.

Q. You never saw any letter that had a picture of a child in Minnie's possession?

A. I don't remember seeing one and I think if I had of seen it, if it had any bearing on the case, it would have impressed itself on my mind, or if I had thought it had any bearing on the case.

Q. Captain, you have no interest, financially or in any other form, in this litigation, have you?

A. None whatever.

Q. You intend to use the $2000.00 to promote the interests of Minnie's rights to the land? A. Naturally.

Q. And have no interests, directly or indirectly, in the result of this controversy? A. None whatever.

> Mr. German: I move to strike each and every answer and all the answers to the interrogatories propounded by Mr. Blakeney, on the ground that they are not responsive; that they—that the questions elicited conclusions, opinions, and self-serving declarations. That they were—that the answers that they called for are immaterial, incompetent and inadmissible, and irrelevant, and upon the ground that the questions and inquiry was improper cross examination.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Captain MacNab, you stated that on cross examination by Mr. Blakeney, that Sadie James stated that Thomas was dead. Is it not a fact that Minnie stated that the child was dead, that Sadie James used her best efforts to try to persuade Minnie not to say that the child was dead?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination, as incompetent, and as a self-serving declaration.

Mr. Blakeney: And we object for the same reason, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and not proper cross examination.

Mr. Hanford: For the purposes of the record, I will state that my cross examination of Captain MacNab goes both to the evidence brought out on the part of the complainant and to that of the defendant and cross-complainant Henry Carter and others.

Mr. German: Now, Mr. Hanford, may we not have an understanding that we make the same objection to all your questions and save the record?

Mr. Hanford: That was be an objection to cross examination at all——

Mr. German: No, it would only apply to such questions that we desire to press it to when the testimony was offered.

Mr. Hanford: I prefer that you make your own record.

Mr. Blakeney: I want to further object there, Captain MacNab stated repeatedly that Sadie James had stated in this conversation that Tommy was dead and that Minnie made no expression in regard to it and this was done on my cross examination.

A. My remembrance of Sadie James' statement was that Sadie stated that the boy was dead—that was the way that I remembered it.

Q. Didn't Sadie repeatedly point her finger at Minnie and state but you don't know that he is dead? A. Yes.

Q. He might be dead but you don't know that he is dead?

Mr. Allen: We object to the question as improper cross examination, incompetent and self-serving declaration of Minnie Atkins.

Mr. German: Can we have this understanding Mr. Hanford, that all questions that you propound to him concerning the conversations on the occasion that you are now inquiring about, may be treated as objected to by us on the same grounds that Judge Allen has just now announced?

Mr. Allen: And upon the further ground that the witness has shown himself to be an interested witness, and the question is leading.

Mr. Hanford: He is your witness.

Q. Answer, Captain.

A. Yes, I remember Sadie telling Minnie that she, Minnie, didn't know that Tommy was dead, and Minnie said that she didn't know that Tommy was dead. I asked her, as I stated before, if she knew of her own knowledge that Tommy was dead and she did not known of her own knowledge that Tommy was dead. I believe that is why I came to ask Minnie that Sadie told Minnie, that she, Minnie, didn't know that Tommy was dead.

Q. Going back to the beginning of this case, Captain MacNab, what was your first conversation with me in regard to it?

Mr. Allen: We object for the reason that it is incompetent, calling for hearsay evidence, and improper cross examination.

A. You mean over the telephone or after you had come up?

Q. I mean over the telephone if it was.

A. Well, I don't remember exactly the conversation.

Mr. Blakeney: We object to that as a self-serving privilege and as incompetent.

A. I don't remember exactly the conversation but it was to the effect that these people were trying to get this woman to sign a deed, as I remember it was a deed, to certain property down there that she did not know anything about. They were trying to rush her through to sign it; it looked as though there were several trying to get the paper signed in their favor and that I wanted Mr. Hanford to come out and look the thing over and give me some advice on it.

Q. And I came out? A. You came out.

Q. That afternoon, immediately following this conversation? A. Yes.

Q. Who sent the telegrams inquiring as to the reliability and standing of Mr. Page and Mr. Josey?

A. I don't remember. Do you mean as to who wrote them out or who took them to the office?

Q. Who delivered them to the office?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, did the answers come to you?

A. I don't remember that, whether they came to me direct; I know I got the answers, though.

Q. Where was your conversation with Mr. Hanford when he came out that afternoon?

A. I believe the first conversation was in my quarters.

Q. Was that a long conversation?

A. I don't remember just how long it was.

Q. Did you relate to him the story Minnie had told you regarding the birth of this son?

A. Yes, I gave him all the circumstances that I knew during this conversation.

Q. And you went, then, direct to Minnie's house?

A. Yes.

Q. And found her there? A. Yes.

Q. And that was where you learned that it was her intention to go to Spokane? A. To go to Spokane.

Q. To join her husband and sign a deed, as you say?

A. A deed as I remember and I still think it was a deed that she was to sign, and if a quitclaim deed, she was to be through with it.

Q. Well, were you there when Sadie James arrived?

A. Yes.

Q. With the detectives following her?

A. With the detectives following her.

Q. Did you or Mr. Hanford participate in the conversation after Sadie James arrived?

A. In what way do you mean?

Q. You stated that Sadie James did a lot of talking—do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember whether anybody else did any talking at that time?

A. No, I don't remember any other conversations, or the conversations of any of the others except what I have already stated.

Q. You remember Sadie James discussing Mr. Page, or any discussion on her part of a forged deed? A. No.

Q. You went up the hill with Mr. Hanford, you said, to interview the detectives—wasn't that on the suggestion of Mr. Hanford for the purpose of getting private conversation concerning Sadie James?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent and improper cross examination and as calling for the conclusion of the witness.

Mr. Hanford: I will withdraw the question.

Q. You stated that yourself and Mr. Hanford left the house after Sadie James arrived. When did you leave with respect to Sadie James leaving?

Q. Why, I am not quite sure that she left at the same time we did, or whether she was still there at the house—I don't remember.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you and Mr. Hanford stayed there at the house until you saw her depart and then went down by the bridge and stayed there and watched until you saw her get on the car and saw her pay her fare and leave?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination and as incompetent.

Q. No, I don't remember when she left. I don't remember whether, as I stated before, whether she left at the same time we did, or whether she was still there when we left.

Mr. Allen: I want this record to show this, that counsel for the Government takes the position that this witness is an interested party and by his testimony has himself shown that he was appointed trustee for Minnie Atkins and negotiated these transactions, and employed counsel for Minnie Atkins, and that he is hostile to the—

Mr. Blakeney: We except to that statement.

Mr. Allen: To the Government in this case and therefore object to counsel for Minnie Atkins asking him leading questions.

Mr. Blakeney: We object now, to any such statement made by counsel as improper and as no objection that the examiner is required to place in the record, and we insist that it be stricken from the record, being merely part of counsel's argument in this case.

Mr. Hanford: Defendants Folk and Hanford object to the statement of counsel on the ground that it is argumentative, on the ground that it is testifying on the part of counsel and on the ground that it [] a misstatement of the evidence.

Q. Then where did you encounter Mr. Long after leaving? A. Somewhere in the vicinity of the gate which leads up from Pleasant Valley to the Post.

Q. You had a conversation with him there such as you have related? A. Yes.

Q. Do you leave Mr. Long there after that conversation?

Mr. Allen: We object as incompetent and improper cross examination.

Q. I don't remember whether Mr. Long walked all the way up into the Post, or whether he left us part of the way up. I remember his walking part of the way up the hill.

Q. Isn't it a fact that he started to leave and came running back and made some other suggestion after the statement you had made and left and went back to town?

Mr. Allen: We object as incompetent and improper cross-examination and as calling for a conclusion of the witness.

Q. I remember starting to leave once and going back to where we were but I don't remember whether he left then or whether he walked on into the Post with us.

Q. Isn't it your recollection that it was on your way up the hill into the Post with Mr. Hanford that the matter of the trusteeship was first discussed?

Mr. Allen: We object as incompetent and improper cross examination and as calling for a conclusion of the witness and as leading.

A. I don't remember when that matter was first discussed.

Q. Did you agree at once to accept that trusteeship when it was proposed? A. No.

Mr. Allen: We object as improper cross examination.

A. No, I did not.

Q. Then, you mean to say that you were reluctant to accept it?

Mr. Allen: We object as improper cross examination, leading and putting the words as suggested to the witness in the answer.

A. Very much so.

Q. Was it urged upon you?

Mr. Allen: We object as incompetent and improper cross examination.

A. It was.

Q. Was there any agreement, or any understanding, between you and Minnie Folk and Mrs. McComb, or any of the parties that any compensation was to be paid to you for your services as trustee? A. No.

Q. Did you expect any compensation or remuneration?

A. I certainly did not, and I objected to stating in the lease that a certain per cent would be given the trustee in case of the—well, a certain per cent of the profits from the lease, and that was explained to me by the counsel, Mr. Hanford, that there must be an interest carried in that lease to make it irrevocable; saying that if there was no interest in it, she could revoke it at will. It was explained afterwards to her that that interest was only put in there to make it legal and it was understood by counsel and myself that it was only put in there to make it legal, and that is the only place where it was stated, the deed in trust—not the lease.

Q. And that was put in there to prevent her from being able to deed away her interest regardless of the trusteeship?

A. Explained to me by counsel.

Q. So as to prevent it from being only a nominal trusteeship?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as calling for a conclusion, and as improper cross examination, and as suggesting the answer.

Mr. Blakeney: I want to object to the record—I am perfectly willing that my examination be treated, any part of it, in cross examination, to make the witness my own for that purpose, so that any part of my cross examination so far as is competent——

Mr. Hanford: The defendants, Minnie Folk, Harry B. Folk, and Edward C. Hanford, agree to the statement of counsel, and by this agreement stipulate that the testimony on the part of Henry Carter be considered as direct examination.

Mr. Allen: In view of the statement of counsel for Mr. Hanford and Minnie Folk, and counsel for Henry Carter, counsel for the Government now object to each and every and all the questions propounded to this witness upon the further ground that they are leading and ask that the questions and answers be stricken for that reason.

Q. Then, after your leaving Minnie Folk, when did you next see her—that is, after this conversation in the afternoon when Sadie James was there?

A. I don't remember the exact hour but later on in the day she was up in the Post.

Mr. Allen: Let me understand you Mr. Hanford, are you now making this witness your own witness?

Mr. Hanford: I am cross examining as to both of your testimony.

Mr. Allen: Alright. Then you don't make him your witness.

Q. Did she rejoin you and Mr. Hanford about the time that you met Mr. Long near the entrance to the Post?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination, as suggestive and leading, and as incompetent.

A. I don't remember.

Q. Didn't Minnie come running across the bridge, waving to you and Mr. Hanford to wait, crying——

Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent, improper cross examination, and as suggestive and leading.

A. I don't remember that circumstance.

Q. Did Minnie ever tell you about a brother of hers that was killed?

A. It was about that time—at that time, I believe it was that same day she said something about a brother being killed and it was while we were standing, while we were in the vicinity of the gate there. I don't remember whether it was the same day or not; I remember her standing on the hill there, saying something about somebody killed her brother—that they had something to do with this case and she didn't want to have anything to do with them, or see them, and I don't recall what those circumstances were but I remember her telling the story about her brother being killed and we were standing by the gate when she told us that. I don't connect it with that day, it was about that time; whether it was that day or not I don't remember, but as I remember it was it was something that Sadie James had told her that somebody was connected with this killing of her brother.

Q. Then, after you met with Mrs. McComb and Minnie and Mr. Hanford to arrange for the trusteeship, a trust deed was executed to you? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember who was present at the time it was executed?

A. Well, there were those that you have mentioned and I believe Lieut. McComb and a notary public from town, and if I do not mistake—if I remember his name, it was Carver, I think—am not sure of that, it was a notary public who had come up from town to stamp the deed.

Q. To acknowledge the deed?

A. To acknowledge the deed, yes; someone to whom Mr. Hanford had telephoned to, I believe, who was in the same office building there—his name has escaped me now.

Q. Was he present at the time the deed was executed?

A. He was present there at the time the deed was executed because he had come out to attest to the deed.

Q. At that meeting do you recall Mrs. McComb telling what Minnie had told her about how many children she had had? A. No, no, I don't.

Q. Do you recollect Mrs. McComb ever stating in your hearing what Minnie had told her, if anything, about how many children she had had?

Mr. Allen: We object.

Mr. German: Answer that yes, or no, please, sir.

A. I don't remember any statement she ever made.

Q. Did Mrs. McComb ever tell you that Minnie had told her that she had five children?

> Mr. Allen: We object to that as hearsay, incompetent and immaterial cross examination, leading and suggestive.

A. No, I don't remember her stating that, telling me that Minnie had told her that. It is my understanding that she did have five and if it was ever mentioned it has escaped my mind. I don't remember any such statement.

> Mr. Allen: We ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive to the question and as a conclusion arrived at by the witness.
>
> Mr. German: Particularly that last statement of the witness as to his understanding.
>
> Mr. Allen: I desire to limit my motion to strike the last part of this answer.

Q. When was it understood—when did you decide, rather, to authorize Mr. Hanford to go to Oklahoma to investigate this matter with the view of making a lease?

A. Why, I believe it was the day following.

Q. Did you have any understanding with Minnie as to what you would endeavor to get for her for the lease?

A. Yes.

> Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination and as incompetent.

Q. What was that understanding?

> Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination and as incompetent.

A. Minnie was to have gotten $4000.00 for a quit claim deed if she went to Spokane, and we agreed to Minnie—the circumstances looked so strong to us that we agreed with Minnie, or made the voluntary agreement with her—statement to her that we would see that she got at least $5000.00 for the lease so that she got more for a lease than she would for a deed and still have the one-fourth interest in anything that was produced on this land, and it was understood when Mr. Hanford went down there that Minnie must receive in cash, at least as much money as if she would have gotten in cash if she had deeded this over, and we raised it a thousand dollars in order to make it just so much better than a deed would have been, so the sum of five thousand dollars was to be obtained for Minnie in cash for her lease.

Q. Then a lease was executed by you and forwarded to Oklahoma?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination and as leading, and as incompetent.

Mr. Hanford: He so testified on direct examination.

A. Yes, I believe after Mrs. Folk and Harry Folk also signed the lease.

Q. And when did you first see those checks that you spoke of, two checks for five thousand dollars?

A. Well, it was late—about a month later, I think; it was in the month of July, if I remember it; either when I was up at Morgan Lake for manoeuvre or after I returned here, I don't know.

Q. Did Mr. Hanford bring them back with him? A. Yes.

Q. You stated that one of those checks was not to be paid later; wasn't that payment to be delayed until Minnie Folk could be identified as Minnie Folk?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper and incompetent cross examination, and as leading and suggestive.

A. It was to be delayed until—it was my understanding it was to be delayed the Page people had made some further investigation and had their testimony lined up, so to speak—that was my understanding of it. The check, if I am not mistaken, was dated the 31st of July.

Q. I show you this photograph and ask you if you ever saw that? A. Ever saw this photograph?

Q. Yes, before. A. I don't remember ever seeing it.

Q. Do you remember when that photograph was taken?

A. Why, I remember—it seems to me Mr. Long said he had taken a photograph of Minnie to take back to Oklahoma with him.

Q. Then, when Mr. Long returned to Seattle with Mr. Hanford, he brought these checks, did he?

Mr. Allen: We object.

A. He returned about that, whether he returned with him or not I am not sure.

Mr. Allen: We move to strike the answer of the witness about what Mr. Long stated for the reason that it is improper cross examination.

Q. At that time, Captain MacNab, was not the sole question on the part of the lessees in regard to Minnie's title to this land as to whether she was the real Minnie Atkins?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent and improper cross examination, and as for calling for a conclusion of the witness.

Q. I will withdraw that question and ask you first if at that time, had any suit been commenced by the Government on the part of the Creek Nation to cancel that allotment?

A. None that I know of.

Q. When did you first hear of that suit or anything relating to that suit?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent and improper cross examination.

A. From Mr. Montgomery when he was here in December, a little more than a year ago.

Q. At the time Mr. Long——

Mr. Hanford: I will ask to have this photograph marked for identification as defendants Folk and Hanford's Exhibit No. 1.

Q. At the time Mr. Long told you that he had had a photograph taken, did he not tell you that was taken for the purpose of having Minnie Folk identified?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent and improper cross examination and hearsay.

A. I don't remember his telling me so; I understood that was why it was taken but I don't remember his saying so.

Mr. Allen: We move to strike that part of the witness' answer in which he states what his understanding was.

Q. Captain, who is that photograph of? A. Minnie Folk.

Q. You recognize where it was taken?

A. It was taken on the front porch of the house in which she lived.

Q. In Seattle?

A. In Seattle, I should say from the looks of the house and the back-ground.

Mr. Hanford: I will offer that in evidence. Any objection?

Mr. Allen: We object to it as incompetent, improper cross examination, and not properly identified.

Q. That five thousand check that was to be paid to Minnie Folk was locked in the safe deposit vault, you say? A. Yes.

Q. And it was not cashed in July because Mr. Hanford was out of the city? A. Was away.

Q. Do you recall when Mr. Hanford went to Oklahoma after his return with those checks?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent, and improper cross examination.

A. Very shortly afterwards. I don't remember how long.

Q. And when he left, he left hurriedly?

A. He left hurriedly. It seems to me it was a Saturday afternoon.

Q. That would be after banking hours, wouldn't it?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent and as improper cross examination and for calling for a conclusion of the witness.

A. Yes, it was after the deposit boxes in which this check was kept was locked and couldn't be gotten out until Monday morning; at any rate, the bank could not be gotten into and I believe it was a time lock, and Mr. Hanford expected to be gone only a short time and the check was left there with the understanding that it would be cashed when he came back.

Q. After Mr. Hanford had gone to Oklahoma, did you see anything further of Sadie James?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination and incompetent.

A. I don't remember whether I saw her again after Mr. Hanford left for Oklahoma or not.

Q. Did Sadie James ever come to your house with Mr. Bartlett?

A. She was up there once but I don't believe she was with Mr. Bartlett, I don't [] she came to my quarters with Mr. Bartlett. I think he came alone when he came to my quarters.

Q. Captain MacNab, when Mr. Montgomery first came to you, what did he tell you was his object in coming here to interview Minnie Folk?

Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent, and improper cross examination. In this connection I want to say that was merely inquired about the concession of Minnie Atkins as to its signing and the circumstances; we don't want to be technical. We would prefer that you go in this evidence but we desire you to make him your witness for that purpose and give us an opportunity to cross examine.

Mr. Hanford: But you did inquire, Judge Allen; I have the privilege of cross examining the witness.

Q. Answer the question.

Mr. Blakeney: I insist that that is proper cross examination of the matters that I inquired about.

A. He told me that the Government had decided to take a hand in this thing, as the case seemed rather involved and he was here for the sole purpose of getting at the facts concerning the case for the benefit of the Government.

Q. Well, did he give you any impression of his interestedness, or disinterestedness?

A. He gave me the impression that he was not interested in the case in any way but as an employe of the Government, hired to get up the facts of the case; that he had not any interest in the matter at all—in fact he gave me positively the impression that he had no interest in the case.

Q. That is as to his personal interest?

A. That is to his personal interest.

Q. But as to the position of the Government with regard to this case, did he give you any impression as to the Government's attitude?

A. I don't remember that he made any statement as to the Government's attitude.

Q. Well, did he state to you that he had come for the purpose of investigating the facts of the case, to obtain the facts of the case, or did he give you the impression that he had with knowledge of the facts preconceived?

> Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent, improper cross examination, as calling for a conclusion of the witness.

A. I don't remember as to his making any definite statement as to the Government's stand in the case.

Q. Relate as you remember it what he stated to you when he first arrived.

> Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination and as incompetent.

A. That there had been a great deal of testimony given down there that was absolutely not so; that the Government had become interested in the case and that he came to establish—to get at certain facts—get at the truth of certain facts that the Government felt had been misrepresented before the court and to get up the entire proof concerning the matter. That the statements made down there before the court by various witnesses were not in conformity with the facts and he came up here to establish—to find out what the facts were, and to verify certain data that he had.

Q. Did he read to you from any paper or document relating to that matter?

A. I have an indistinct remembrance—he had a lot of papers with him—I was not particularly interested in the case—

Q. Isn't it a fact that he read to you from a statement made by Sadie James; an affidavit signed by Sadie James?

A. Yes, he read, I think, the affidavit of Sadie James. He read several things to which I didn't pay much attention because I wasn't interested in that phase of the case, I didn't know anything about the legal side of the case; I had never taken any interest—didn't know what testimony had been given, and didn't care, and it was merely after I had done what I could for him and was waiting for him to report, he insisted on going into the case further than I cared to go into it, and he did read some papers which I don't remember now. It didn't make any impression on my mind; he did read the affidavit of Sadie James, I remember that distinctly.

Q. How long was he here altogether?

A. I don't think it was over four or five days at the outside.

Q. How many times did you see him during those four or five days?

A. Well, he came up to my quarters several times, just how many I don't know. I kept trying to tell him that I didn't desire to take any interest in the case, or for him to state to Mrs. Folk that he was in any way coming from me or took my evidence, that I had given him all the help I could but I didn't want to influence Mrs. Folk in any way, because I knew she was susceptible. He insisted on operating through me, coming to me first and going down there and saying he came from me; he saw me several times, I think principally for the purpose of saying that he had just come from me when he went to Mrs. Folk.

By Mr. Allen: I move to strike the answer of the witness for the reason that it contains a conclusion of the witness and is improper cross examination, and incompetent.

Q. When was the last time that you saw Mr. Montgomery?

A. Why, I believe the last time I saw him was when I—— I believe the last time I saw him was when Minnie signed that paper, I don't remember whether I saw him after that or not; I talked with him on the telephone I know.

Q. Did he come to your quarters alone at that time?

A. At the time that Minnie signed that paper?

Q. Yes?

A. I don't remember. As a matter of fact, I believe I did see him once after that when he had a telegram from some representative of the Interior Department.

Q. Isn't it a fact, that on that day Mr. Montgomery came to your quarters and requested you to have Mrs. Folk come there, and you telephoned for her to come to your house?

A. I don't remember whether it is or not.

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination and as incompetent.

Q. And isn't it a fact that while you were waiting for her to come there I came to your house and found Mr. Montgomery there, and you stated to me that Minnie Folk was on her way up there to the house now?

A. I don't remember whether he came up there and we sent for Minnie, or whether we brought Minnie up, I know that they was there at the house and the statement was signed, but the circumstances of their arriving I don't remember; I do remember that you came in while Mr. Montgomery was there and that your arrival there was, so far as I knew, accidentally.

By Mr. Allen: We move to strike the answer of the witness for the reason that it calls for a conclusion of the witness and is improper cross examination and incompetent.

Q. Did Minnie ask you anything about that statement before she signed it?

A. I remember of Minnie saying there to myself or Mr. Montgomery, "What would happen if I sign that thing and it isn't true." and I remember both Mr. Montgomery and myself told her that if ever there was a time when she could get down and tell a truth it was then, and if it wasn't the truth she should not sign it; I remember asking that or words to that effect.

Q. Did she sign it readily or what was her attitude?

A. No, she fooled around a good deal before she signed it.

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as calling for a conclusion of the witness and improper, and we move to strike the answer for the same reason.

Q. She appeared to be acting from an impulse?

A. I don't know.

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as calling for a conclusion of the witness.

Q. In signing that statement, was there anything peculiar in her state of mind, or attitude?

A. I know she asked me two or three times——

By Mr. Allen: We object to the question for the reason that it calls for a conclusion of the witness and is improper cross examination.

Q. Answer the question.

A. I remember her asking me two or three times if she should sign that statement, if I wanted her to sign that statement.

Q. Who wrote out that statement?

A. I don't remember that, my impression is that Mr. Montgomery wrote it, but I don't remember that even.

Q. Did he write it in your office?

A. I don't remember whether he wrote it or had it prepared, I think that he wrote it there, but I am not sure as to that, I am not sure as to that, whether he had it when he came up there or whether he wrote it while he was there.

Q. Was it written in pen and ink or in pencil?

A. I don't know, I don't remember distinctly enough now, I think it was written in pen and ink.

Q. Did Mr. Montgomery take any copy of that statement?

A. Not that I know of. If he did, he didn't take it while he was in there. There was no copy made of that statement there in that room.

Q. Now, Captain MacNab, isn't it a fact that you came into your house and Mr. Montgomery stated to you in the lower hall that he wanted to write out a statement and to ask Minnie to sign it, and that Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Hanford and yourself went up stairs to your office and left Minnie sitting in the front room, and there you gave Mr. Montgomery a scrap of paper and found a pen and he sat down and wrote the statement there?

A. I don't remember the circumstances of the matter, I don't recall whether it was written in the office or whether he had it prepared. My impression has been that it was written up there, but I am not positive on that point.

Q. Did counsel for the Government interview you prior to your testifying this morning regarding that statement—that statement that Minnie signed?

A. You mean Judge Allen?

Q. Judge Allen or Mr. German, or both? A. Yes.

Q. Did you state to them then your recollection of what that statement contained? A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell them that that statement contained any reference to Minnie's father?

A. No, they didn't ask me that question.

Q. Captain, did you take any pains to try to determine whether or not Minnie Folk really had signed a statement that was untrue before you gave it back to her?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent, improper examination, and calling for a conclusion of this witness.

A. Yes, I went down and had an interview with Minnie, I questioned her very carefully.

Q. Did she convince you that she had signed a statement that was untrue?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as calling for a conclusion of the witness, and as improper cross examination, and incompetent.

Q. Were you satisfied in your own mind?

A. I was satisfied in my own mind that she had, or I never would have turned that paper back to her.

By Mr. Allen: We move to strike the answer of the witness as unresponsive and as a conclusion.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Captain MacNab, that Minnie Folk stated several times to Mr. Montgomery in your presence and in the presence of Mr. Hanford in your quarters, prior to signing that statement, that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins and that he could never make her change that?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the reason that it is improper cross examination.

A. Prior to the time she made that statement?

Q. Yes?

A. No, not if I remember rightly, I never saw Minnie in Mr. Montgomery's presence prior to that time, I refused to go down there with him.

Q. At that time I speak of?

A. Prior to the signing of the statement?

Q. Yes, in the house?

A. No, I don't remember of making any such statement as that at that time, I don't remember her making it to him at all.

Q. You left the house shortly after Minnie's arrival, and left her there with Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Hanford, did you not? A. I might have, I don't recall that.

Q. And you were gone a short time?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. And before your leaving, didn't Mr. Hanford charge Mr. Montgomery with misrepresentation as to his statement as to constitution and immunity, and that he was only there as an attorney for the Creek Nation, which was an interested party seeking to get her to make a statement against her own interests?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the reason that it is an improper cross examination, that it is an erroneous statement of the facts, in that it presupposes that the witness afterwards left the room, which is not a fact as shown by his testimony.

A. Yes, I remember Mr. Hanford telling him that he had misrepresented his status, and that he was merely an attorney of an opposing interest.

Q. And didn't Mr. Montgomery reply that he only wanted to find out the truth, and that if she was the mother of Thomas Atkins, that was all he wanted to know, and if she wasn't that he wanted to find that out?

A. Yes, or words to that effect.

Q. And then didn't Mr. Hanford tell Mr. Montgomery that she had told you many times, if you want to ask her again, ask that again and satisfy yourself?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that for the reason that it is incompetent, improper cross examination, a self-serving declaration of the defendant Hanford.

Q. You have attempted to prove that statement, and that is the facts surrounding the signing of that paper, and they all go in to prove the whole transaction and to cover the question of whether or not it is a concession or a misstatement on her part?

A. I don't remember Mr. Hanford stating that in so many words to Mr. Montgomery.

Q. Was that statement sworn to? A. No.

Q. You remember of Minnie's asking Mr. Montgomery or you whether or not if this land reverted to the Creek Nation whether or not her boys would get some of it?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as improper cross examination and incompetent and leading and suggestive.

A. Yes.

Q. And didn't Mr. Montgomery reply: "Yes, they would get their share?"

A. Yes, as I remember, he either answered that, or to that effect; that they—— Minnie wanted to know if her boys would get their share of that and his answer was to give her the impression that they would.

By Mr. Allen: I move to strike that part of the witness' answer wherein he states his impression of the answer given.

Q. What did Mr. Montgomery say with reference to that matter, Captain? State what his answer was in words, as near as you can.

A. Why, I don't remember the words. I know he said that this would revert to the Creek Nation and that all the members of the Creek Nation would have equal interest in it when it reverted, or words to that effect, I don't remember exactly, but it was to the effect that Minnie's boys being enrolled as members of the Creek Nation would get a share of it, that was the impression that I gathered and I was present when the question was answered.

Q. Captain MacNab, going back, at the time this matter first came—at the time of the execution of the trust deed and discussion of the leases and so forth, did you have any knowledge of the matters of the enrollment and the matters relating to the allotments of Indian lands? A. No.

Q. Anything of that kind? A. None whatever.

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent and improper cross examination.

Q. You stated that Mr. Montgomery requested you to turn over that written statement to him sometime after it came into your possession? A. Yes.

Q. Did you inform him that you intended to turn it over to Minnie Folk?

A. I informed him that I intended to turn it over to Minnie Folk.

By Mr. Allen: We object.

Q. Was that conversation with Mr. Montgomery in person or was it over the telephone?

A. It was over the telephone.

Q. What did you tell him in that conversation?

A. I told him I was convinced that the statements were not true in this signed statement; that he himself had in a measure been unfair; that he had used my name and had sort of gotten at Minnie through me indirectly, and I had distinctly told him from the start that I didn't wish him to do that, that I didn't wish to have anything to do in the case, that he got, through misrepresentation in a way—had gotten Minnie up to my quarters to sign this statement, and that all the time directly opposed to my wishes he had operated on Minnie's sympathies through his apparent influence with me and his apparent standing with me, and I felt that he had been unfair, that he had gotten me into this case again where I didn't wish to be, and that he had used my influence over Minnie to get this statement signed, and that I felt thoroughly convinced that it was untrue; that he hadn't gotten the immunity that he promised and if he had it would have made no difference; I was thoroughly convinced that the statement was not true and I was going to turn it back to her.

By Mr. Allen: We move to strike the answer as a self-serving declaration, and a conclusion of this witness; that it is hearsay and incompetent.

Q. Do you remember what day of the week that conversation occurred? A. No, I don't.

Q. How long after the signing of the statement, did that occur?

A. Well, it is my impression now that it was the next evening, but I am not sure about that. It was in the evening that I took the statement down there and turned it over to her I know.

Q. Did Mr. Montgomery call you or did you call him?

A. I think I went to the 'phone and called him and told him I intended to give that statement over, but I am not positive on that point.

Q. Is that the only telephone conversation that you ever had with Mr. Montgomery?

A. No, I remember of his calling me up at other times, I don't remember what it was about, I remember his calling me up at least once before or after that, but I don't remember what it was about.

Q. Did you have any other telephone conversation with Mr. Montgomery regarding the matter of turning over that statement to Minnie and your reason for so doing?

A. He told me to the effect that I couldn't turn that back to Minnie, I think he said "You can't turn that back to Minnie."

Q. You didn't get my question, Captain. Did you have any other telephone conversation?

A. Not at any other time that I remember concerning that.

Q. Why did you call him and get him on the telephone?

A. He was at the Hotel Washington.

Q. Where were you, Captain?

A. I was in my quarters at Fort Lawton. He was in the Washington Hotel at Seattle and I was in my quarters here at Fort Lawton.

Q. You stated, Captain, that you didn't want to be concerned in this case. Why didn't you want to be in this case?

A. Well, I had taken it up in the first place merely to assist the wife of one of the soldiers in the regiment, who had to have somebody to help her. She was not capable of handling her own affairs and the most natural thing, she came to get one of the officers of the regiment and I had carried the thing forward as far as I intended to, and it was a great deal of trouble and worry to me and I felt she was secure in her possession and not likely to be bilked out of this property, and I gave it over and deeded it back.

Q. Was there any understanding between you and Minnie Folk at the time that you took the trusteeship that it was to extent only until that stage should be reached?

A. The understanding was: I told her over and over again that as soon as this thing was on a business basis I intended to deed this thing back to her.

By Mr. Allen: I want to move to strike the two last answers to questions, for the reason that they are not responsive to questions and state a conclusion of this witness, and that they are incompetent and hearsay.

Q. Captain MacNab, from whom did you first learn Mr. Montgomery's exact position with regard to this case as probate attorney for the Creek Nation?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as calling for a conclusion of the witness, improper cross examination, and incompetent.

A. From Mr. Hanford.

Q. Did Mr. Hanford tell you that it was Mr. Montgomery's object to seek to cancel the plats to this land and have it revert to the Creek Nation?

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent, improper cross examination, and as a self-serving declaration.

A. It was my understanding at the time that the understanding given to me by Mr. Hanford, that this land, if it reverted to the Creek Nation, had been filed on by somebody else, and that this was merely a preliminary to a furtherance of that claim. That was my understanding whether it was given at that time or a little later, but it was through Mr. Hanford that I first learned that Mr. Montgomery was not a merely disinterested official of the Interior Department, that is what I inferred from Mr. Montgomery; and it was Mr. Hanford that informed me that he was representing a special interest that was a co-claimant for the property.

Q. Did Mr. Hanford tell you about the Quinton Garrett—your statement refers to the land—filing on the land?

A. I believe that is the name.

By Mr. Allen: We object to that as incompetent and as improper cross examination.

Q. And that if the patent were cancelled by the Creek Nation, that then the filing of Quinton Garrett would be thought to be established to obtain the land as an allotment?

A. That another claim that had no allotment—that another claimant that had no allotment had filed on this land and if it reverted to the Creek Nation then they would attempt to establish that filing on that land to acquire the title to it.

Q. Now, Captain what I want to ask you about is when did you first learn that it was Mr.—that Mr. Montgomery's object was to seek to obtain from Minnie a statement against her own claim so as to have it revert to the Creek Nation? When did you first learn of the Creek Nation's interest in the land apart from the Government itself?

A. I don't remember, I don't remember. It was sometime after Mr. Montgomery arrived here.

Q. Then, when Mr. Montgomery first arrived, you understood that he represented the Government at large?

A. I understood that he represented the Interior Department and I didn't understand that he was representing a rival claim to Minnie Folk.

Q. Did Mr. Montgomery inform you that he was corresponding with the Interior Department or with Washington?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he state with who in Washington, or did he merely state Washington?

A. He didn't state who in Washington. I remember his stating that by working through Washington War Department he could have the Commanding Officer here to produce Minnie Folk or take any such action as that that was necessary, but that he didn't want to do that unless it was necessary. In other words, he told me that if he could get to interview Minnie and see me and get our information it would not put him to the necessity of requiring these things done through the Government at Washington and the War Department, and there was nothing—— No way that I could assist him any further than I did. I told Mr. Montgomery the same things that I told anybody else, who apparently had any right in this case to know anything about it. It was not very much—I refused to go with him to see Mrs. Folk for the reason that it would look as if he had my approval in the endeavor he was making, and I felt that impression in the state of mind that she was in would undoubtedly be influenced by my presence there with Mr. Montgomery, especially with the fact that he was bringing out the points—that he was representing all the Government and could get anything that he wanted to through the War Department by working through the authorities at Washington; he told me that in so many words.

By Mr. Allen: We move to strike the answer of the witness for the reason of its stating a conclusion, improper cross examination, and incompetent.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Captain MacNab, you stated a while ago that Mr. Montgomery left the impression with you that he could get immunity for Minnie Atkins?

A. He stated that he felt quite positive that he could do that.

Q. You knew that it would take him some time to get that, didn't you?

A. He said that he could get it by telegram.

Q. And you concluded his effort to get immunity by telling him that you intended to return the concessions to Minnie?

A. He had already made one effort and he had not obtained immunity.

Q. And you knew that he was working on that then?

A. Yes, he wanted to proceed to obtain a definite statement of immunity.

Q. He requested you to obtain the signed statement to be turned over to him? A. Yes.

Q. Captain, do you remember all that was in that signed statement?

A. I remember all of the essentials that were in the signed statement.

Q. It was considerably longer than what you have testified to would have contained, wasn't it?

> By Mr. Blakeney: We object to this redirect examination as no reference was made to the conversation or contents, no reference made to the contents of the signed statement in anything on cross examination.
>
> By Mr. Allen: I am cross examining him upon the predicate that I made and also upon the examination of Mr. Hanford.

Q. Who did he say in that signed statement that this name Thomas Atkins on the roll represented?

A. He didn't say.

Q. Are you sure of that? A. Positive.

Q. You are not prepared to say exactly what that statement contained, are you?

A. It contained the facts—the statements—the facts——

Q. Just answer the question. You have stated the substance of what you remember it contained?

A. Yes, I am prepared to state the essentials of that letter that has any bearing on this case.

Q. Tell us now exactly what that statement contained, Captain McNab?

A. The statement contained a declaration of the fact that she had never had a son named Thomas, that she had only had three children, a girl who had died and two boys, James and Harvey—Charlie and Harvey. The girl that had died, I think the name was Alice, the girl that died, I think it was Alice, and two boys, Harvey and Charlie.

Q. How long was that statement?

A. I think it was contained all on one sheet of business letter paper in ordinary long hand writing.

Q. Did it cover practically a business sheet of paper?

A. With the heading and the signature it just about took in the sheet of paper as I remember it.

Q. Then, what else was in that statement besides what you have stated?

A. That was all the essentials of the statement.

Q. You don't remember the balance of the statement?

A. There was nothing else in there that had any bearing on this case, there was nothing in that statement as to who was carried on those rolls as Thomas Atkins.

Q. Why do you say that now?

A. Because I remember very distinctly there was no expression as to how the name came on there.

Q. Had you heard how it came on there?

A. Yes, sir, Minnie told me I think.

Q. I mean in connection with the confession?

A. No, I don't know, I didn't know.

Q. What did Minnie tell you?

A. Minnie had told me that she had drawn the allotment for these children of hers.

Q. Which children?

A. Thomas, Harvey and Charlie, and I don't remember the names of all of them, there was one of them left off, but Thomas name was on there, I have seen a photographic record of the roll.

Q. How could she tell you that Thomas' name was on the roll——

> By Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is improper redirect. There is no reference to the roll on the cross examination.

A. My remembrance of it was that she told me that she had drawn an allotment for these children of hers when she was passing through Oklahoma a number of years ago.

Q. Did she tell you she had drawn allotments or money?

> By Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

A. Well, I believe it was an allotment of money.

Q. An allotment of money? A. Yes.

Q. For Tommy, Charlie, Harvey, and the girl?

A. Well, I don't remember whether all of the children were all there, it seems to me that it was either Charlie or Harvey, Tom and Alice, as I remember it, but I know the name of Thomas was the only one that I was interested in on there; there was two or three others I think on there, I remember the name Tommy was there and I think Alice was on there; she said they were her children.

Q. She told you she put them on the roll to get that money for them?

A. That is my recollection how it came on there; whether she told me at the time of this record, I don't know.

Q. Told you it was some four——

A. Yes, while she was going through Oklahoma, that she had drawn the allotment.

Q. Captain, you say that Frank Long proposed to buy the allotment for two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars, and left with you a blank form of quit claim deed?

A. I don't remember the amount stated in that.

Q. Where did you get the two thousand dollar impression?

A. Well, the two thousand dollars is what Minnie was originally to get, and it may be as I say, that she was to have gotten that from Bartlett, or from the man that Sadie James was representing and whom she wanted him to wait for; whether Mr. Long's first statement was two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars, I don't know, but his second statement, the one in the afternoon, the one that Minnie was going to accept as she told us, was four thousand ($4,000.00) dollars.

Q. You stated on cross examination to Mr. Hanford that he left with you a quit claim deed for two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars?

A. No, I don't think I stated definitely that it was two thousand dollars.

Q. And that Sadie James came in and objected to signing same, saying that the man had not come yet?

A. I didn't make any such statement as that.

Q. What did you say?

A. I said that Sadie objected to her signing any paper for anybody until her man came.

Q. Then, that deed for two thousand dollars was not to Sadie's man, was it? A. Apparently not.

Q. With that deed, there was a statement, either a statement or a blank affidavit for Minnie to sign, was there not, to the effect that she was the mother of Thomas Atkins and that he was dead?

By Mr. Hanford: I object to that on the ground that it is improper redirect examination.

A. I believe there was, I believe there was a statement to that effect, I don't know whether it was in the form of an affidavit or not.

Q. Now, was it about that time, or before or after, that you discovered the detectives failing Sadie, that the deed and affidavit was left?

A. I am not sure just when that was, whether he left that with me in the morning before these detectives and Sadie James showed up, or in the afternoon after they had shown up, and I am not positive that that statement of the four thousand dollars was included in the deed, whether it was written in there or not, that was a statement of him concerning this deed however.

Q. When was the four thousand ($4,000.00) dollar proposition made with reference to the deed carrying the two thousand ($2,000.00) dollar consideration and the affidavit left with you? A. What was that question?

Q. When was the four thousand dollar proposition made to Minnie with reference to the time that the deed, carrying the two thousand dollar consideration and the affidavit, was left with you?

A. You keep insisting on saying that this deed carrying the two thousand dollar consideration was left with me. I didn't state at any time that this deed definitely carried a two thousand ($2,000.00) dollar consideration; it was my impression that the first proposition by Mr. Long was two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars, and I know definitely that that was the amount that Sadie James had agreed that Minnie Folk was to get from her man. The proposition that was made to Minnie by Mr. Long, according to Minnie's statement, was that she was to go to Spokane and was to get four thousand dollars ($4,000.00) from Mr. Long for signing over the deed.

Q. Who was with Minnie when she told you about that proposition? A. Mr. Hanford.

Q. Was Sadie James there too?

A. No, I don't think she was, I don't think Sadie came in until afterwards.

Q. Did Sadie come there while Minnie was there, or did she come to you with Minnie?

A. Sadie had been there to Minnie's house a number of times before we got there, before we got into the case at all, but Sadie didn't come to the house while we was there until after Minnie had told us about this, my impression is, I am quite sure we had gotten down there and Minnie had told us that she was going to Spokane and sign over a deed for four thousand ($4,000.00) dollars, and while we were there that Sadie came to the house.

Q. And then Sadie James insisted upon Minnie making you a trust deed, didn't she?

A. No, no, she didn't. In fact, she didn't know anything about it until after it was done.

Q. You don't know of the conversations that occurred between Sadie and Minnie? A. No.

Q. Now, in reference to that conversation occurring there about the four thousand ($4,000.00) dollar deed and going to Spokane? A. Yes.

Q. And which Sadie, you say, was there objecting to her signing any papers to Frank Long, when was the statement made by Sadie that Tommy Atkins was dead? Was it at that time, or before, or afterwards?

A. Well, it was while Sadie was there at the house that first afternoon and while we were there.

Q. Now, when did you first learn that Minnie had had a Tommy?

A. Minnie told me that herself before Mr. Long came, the first morning I went down there, and I talked to Minnie alone.

Q. Who told you before that that she had had the child?

A. Nobody had told me that she had a child named Tommy, I didn't know anything about her affairs.

Q. Had Sadie talked to you at that time?

A. No, I hadn't seen her at that time.

By Mr. Hanford: I object to that on the ground that it is improper redirect examination.

Q. Had Sadie James talked to Minnie Atkins before Minnie Atkins first told you about having a Tommy Atkins?

A. Well, I don't know whether she had talked to her or not.

Q. Did Minnie tell you, at the time that she told you of having a Tommy, of having talked to Sadie?

A. She told me that she was offered—was going to get two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars for this property and that the man was coming up later during the day to talk it over and to complete the deal.

Q. Whom did she say she had talked to about it?

A. Well, it was somebody that had come up from Oklahoma to look her—I gathered the impression and made quite sure it was Sadie James she had talked to before and had brought the message that she was to get two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars.

Q. You say it took Minnie a long time to come to the point of telling you about Tommy? A. Yes.

Q. Do you want us to understand by your testimony that she hesitated a long time to tell you about having a child that you didn't know at the time anything about her having?

A. Yes.

Q. You were not inquiring about a child, were you?

A. No, I didn't know anything about the case. She was trying to put me in possession of enough knowledge to be able to advise her and assist her in making a business deal, and was trying to give me as much information as she could applying to the case without telling me any more about her affairs than she had to.

Q. But the first time you knew the child was dead was when Sadie told you, or told Minnie that in your presence?

A. No, Minnie had told me that this child had died and I asked her, I think it was a little later, I asked her if she knew the child was dead of her own knowledge and she said "no, that she knew he was dead," she hung to that; I asked her if she had seen him with her own eyes or only had some one else's word for it and she said she only had some one else's word, that she didn't know of her own knowledge that the child was dead.

Q. Did Sadie later tell you in her presence that he was dead? A. That is my remembrance.

Q. Sadie told you where the boy died? A. No.

Q. Or where Minnie had him? A. No.

Q. Did you learn at that time where the child was born?

A. My remembrance was that the child was born in Leavenworth.

Q. But what place? A. No.

Q. To refresh your memory, did you learn that the child was born in the Sisters Hospital in Leavenworth? A. No.

Q. Five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars of this money that was to go to Minnie, you say was held up a while, the check was to be returned on some contingency about locating the—about providing the information that they had, or something of that kind? A. Yes.

Q. The other five thousand was immediately disbursed, Hanford receiving three thousand ($3,000.00) dollars and you two?

A. That was turned over to us by Minnie Folk herself, that money was given to Minnie Folk.

Q. But it was given to her through you as trustee?

A. Yes.

Q. She merely indorsed the check, didn't she? A. Yes.

Q. This other five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars was deposited on time deposit in the Central National Bank in Tulsa, wasn't it? A. Not that I know of.

Q. When Mr. Montgomery was here and when that statement was signed by Minnie, wasn't it suggested by either you or Mr. Hanford that ought to immediately draw that money out of the Tulsa Bank and get it in Seattle?

A. It wasn't suggested by me because I didn't know anything about Minnie's affairs, I didn't know where she had this money.

Q. You heard that discussed there that day, didn't you?

A. I have an impression that there was something stated about drawing some money from a bank.

Q. And at Minnie's request, wasn't it agreed there that Mr. Montgomery was to go to the First National Bank of Commerce of this city——

> By Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is improper redirect examination and move to strike the previous question and answer.
>
> By Mr. Allen: Kill it.

Q. State whether or not at Minnie's request, upon the advice of some one present, Montgomery either agreed to go with Minnie to the First National Bank of Commerce of Seattle and draw a draft on the bank at Tulsa, so as to get that money out of Tulsa so that it could not be tied up by Page upon hearing of this concession?

> By Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that is improper redirect examination.

A. No, I don't remember that circumstance.

Q. What do you remember about the proposition there to transfer that money there from Oklahoma to Seattle?

A. I didn't even remember that it was to transfer money from Oklahoma to Seattle, I had no interest in Minnie's personal affairs, I didn't know that she had this money deposited down there. When you mentioned that, I remember something being stated, something being talked over about where Minnie had this money deposited, but what it was I don't know, I had no interest in it because it didn't concern me in any way.

Q. There was something said about the money on deposit though?

A. There was something said about money on deposit.

Q. You say the deed of trust Minnie gave you provided for a present to you? A. Yes.

Q. And it was later understood that you were to receive a commission of two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars out of the ten thousand ($10,000.00) dollars that was paid?

A. It was understood—— Yes, it was later understood; not later understood—it was later done.

Q. And after it was done, you decided that you were not to take the commission?

A. No, it was at the time it was done, I didn't see that there was anything improper in taking it at all for the services rendered; it was only a matter of my own personal feelings in the matter as to the acceptance of this.

Q. So then later you decided to convert it into a fund for the purpose of aiding her in recovering this allotment?

A. No, I decided at that time that Minnie had already spent—been rather extravagant; I knew she was incompetent to handle her own affairs, knew if she only got a little money out of this she would run through with it very rapidly, and it occurred to me at this time if her affairs didn't go as I saw that they ought to go concerning this case, there was a certain amount of responsibility attached to me and I would have no fund upon which to draw in representing Minnie's interest.

Q. Well, the other thousand ($1,000.00) dollars that was paid to Mr. Hanford was to go as a trust fund for the purpose of paying costs of this litigation, wasn't it?

A. It was turned over to Mr. Hanford for the expenses and service that he had incurred.

Q. Up to that time——

A. And would incur in carrying out the case.

Q. If the two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars was to be used in the same way, why wasn't it also turned over to Mr. Hanford?

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as a misconstruction of the witness' evidence.

By Mr. Hanford: The defendants Folk and Hanford object on the ground that it is improper redirect examination.

By Mr. Allen: This witness may be regarded as called for further redirect examination.

A. As I have stated before, this money was turned over to me for personal services rendered to Minnie Folk, the disposition of it, the expenditure of it, or the use of it was as decided by me was for my own personal reasons; I thought there was no reason why I should not accept it if I felt so personally inclined, and I accepted it as a personal fee paid to me; that is understood by Mrs. Folk, and as far as she knows today it was personally paid by her to me for services rendered. The further disposition of that two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars is a matter which concerns me personally only; if I spend it on my own personal affairs it would be perfectly legitimate, it was turned over to me for services rendered and my further disposition of it to her further interest was only a matter of my own desire.

Q. You are not under any obligation now to pay any part of that money in furthering this litigation?

A. None whatever.

Q. You made a trip to Oklahoma, didn't you, in connection with this case, Captain MacNab? A. No, sir.

Q. You have never been down there?

A. I was in Oklahoma in 1903 and 1904, at Fort Reno, Oklahoma, the only time I have been in the state, except passing through, more than ten years ago.

Q. You say that after Minnie signed this concession in your office, you went down to her house and had an interview with her? A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Hanford with you? A. No.

Q. Did you call up Mr. Hanford that day when you found that Mr. Montgomery was going to bring her to your office for an interview?

A. No, I don't think I called up Mr. Hanford I am quite sure I didn't call him up.

Q. How did he happen to know about it and come to your office?

A. He didn't know about it, he happened to come in there accidentally at that time, he came in quite often to my quarters to confer over the case with me and it was accidental that he was there at that time.

Q. Did he ask you to come down and see Minnie after the concession had been signed?

A. I don't remember whether he did or not.

Q. You know you did go down?

A. I went down to see her.

Q. And there you talked to her, did you? A. Yes.

Q. You told her there that concession would lose her the allotment, did you?

A. You mean when I was talking to her?

Q. Yes? A. No.

Q. Mr. Hanford had at that time told you that Mr. Montgomery was representing Buell, had he?

A. Why, he had told me—— No, he hadn't told me that he was representing Buell, as I remember the name, but he told me that he was representing and opposing case to Minnie, whether he told me that after the concession or not I don't remember.

Q. He told you that Montgomery was not representing the Government of the Creek Nation, but a rival claim?

A. Yes, I don't know that he told me he was not representing the Creek Nation.

Q. What about Quinton Garrett?

A. Well, as I understood at the time, Quinton Garrett interests had filed on the land and if they succeeded that this action by the Creek Nation to have the Tommy Atkins claim cancelled, then this Quinton Garrett claim would be taken up to acquire the title to the land.

Q. And you had understood from Mr. Montgomery—Mr. Hanford that Mr. Montgomery was representing this rival Quinton Garrett claim?

A. No, I had not understood that directly but that is that he was representing, as I understood it, the Creek Nation, which is merely a preliminary to the filing for title by the Quinton Garrett interests.

Q. With that information then, you went to see Minnie and talked to her about this concession?

A. No, it wasn't upon that information at all.

Q. But had that information when you talked to her after she had made the concession?

A. Yes, I had that information then, and I think I had it before Minnie signed the document, I am not sure; at any rate, that had no bearing upon my action.

Q. Mr. Hanford also came out that night to see Minnie, didn't he?

A. Yes, he came out and I think I met Mr. Hanford after I left Minnie's quarters, I am not sure, I don't know that Hanford was here at all while I was in the house.

Q. Mr. Hanford was with her some that night, wasn't he?

A. I don't remember.

Q. After leaving Minnie he went back to see you that night, didn't he? A. I believe he did.

Q. Then, the next morning you came back to see Minnie, didn't you? A. No.

Q. Did you talk to her the next morning? A. No.

Q. Did you talk to Harvey Folk the next morning—— The next morning Mr. Hanford came back to see Minnie, didn't he?

A. I don't know, when I turned this statement over to Minnie Folk, I was very much disgusted with the entire affair and I told her not to come to me any more for assistance or advice because she had deceived me and I had done all I could to help her out and she had made a mess of things and that I was through, and I told her not to come to me any more, that I was very much disgusted.

Q. You stated you called Mr. Montgomery to tell him that you were going to turn over this concession. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Montgomery called you after having been unable to find you at the Post?

By Mr. Hanford: I object to the question on the ground that it is improper redirect examination, and I move to strike the questions and answers previously recorded as to these transactions on the ground that they are improper redirect examination, and on the further ground that they are leading.

Q. To refresh your memory, isn't it a fact that Mr. Montgomery called you from the hotel, the New Washington, the following day after this concession was signed, after having been unable to find you at the Post and talk to you with reference to this concession?

By Mr. Hanford: Objected to on the ground that it is improper redirect examination, and the further ground that it is leading and suggestive and the further ground that it is hearsay.

A. I don't know of any endeavor of Mr. Montgomery to find me at the Post, and as I stated originally, it is my impression that I called up Mr. Montgomery on the 'phone. I was not positive on that, I am not positive now as to whether I called him or not. It is my impression I called him up. At any rate, I informed him over the 'phone that I intended to return this statement, and told him my reasons.

Q. You stated that you deeded this property back to Minnie because you had become tired of the fuss. Is it not a fact that Minnie had become distrustful of you and Mr. Hanford and that she desired or requested you to deed it back?

By Mr. Hanford: I object on the ground that it is improper redirect examination, on the further ground that it is leading and suggestive, on the further ground that it is a misstatement of the evidence. The witness testified that he relinquished his trusteeship—— The witness did not testify that he relinquished the trusteeship because he was tired of it.

By Mr. Blakeney: We object to the question because it is wholly incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. State whether or not it is a fact that you relinquished this trust because Minnie Atkins had become distrustful of you and Mr. Hanford?

By Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and can serve no purpose except to impeach the witness, and is an improper method of impeaching a witness, and particularly a witness called by the Government.

A. I deeded this back because the object for which the trusteeship had been accomplished—— It was deeded back at that particular time because it was desired—not definitely expressed, but it was desired, however, by Mrs. Folk, because

I felt that she had become distrustful of me, of my interest in the case.

Q. You say Mr. Montgomery didn't tell you who he was receiving—who he was communicating with in Washington?

A. He didn't tell me by name, I understood that he was communicating with the Interior Department.

Q. Didn't he show you some telegram- that he received from there?

A. Yes, he showed me a telegram from there, and I understood from the signature that it was from an official of the Interior Department.

Q. Didn't you understand—— State whether or not you understood—to refresh your memory, that it was Mr. Sells, Commissioner of Indian Affairs?

A. Yes, Sells was the name I think.

Q. And to refresh your memory, didn't he tell you he was also communicating with R. C. Allen, attorney for the Creek Nation?

A. I don't remember his telling me that. I don't recall that.

And thereupon the witness is dismissed.

ALEXANDER MACNAB, being recalled for further examination testified as follows:

By Mr. Allen.

Q. Captain MacNab, at the hour of adjournment yesterday, you were upon the witness stand in this case, I believe?

A. Yes.

Q. You had related during the course of your examination that the facts in regard to the signing of the confession by Minnie Atkins—at the time that confession was signed, was Mr. Hanford present? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Just before the confession, in the presence of yourself and Mr. Montgomery, did Mr. Hanford warn Minnie that is she signed this confession that it would mean that she would lose the right in this allotment?

A. I don't remember Mr. Hanford's doing that directly, I know that Minnie understood that because she asked if that was the case, she was told that it was, I don't remember Mr. Hanford telling her so.

Q. Mr. Hanford was there advising her during the time you were discussing the signing of this confession, was he?

A. Well, he was there.

Q. Did he have any conversation with Minnie?

A. Nothing—— He had no conversation with her while he was there except in the presence of all of us.

Q. I mean in the presence of all of you?

A. Why, he took part in the general discussion that was there, I suppose that he had general conversation with her during that time.

Recross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. When Minnie discovered that she could get four thousand ($4,000.00) dollars for her interest in the land, she insisted, I understand you to say, that she wanted to do it, as that was all the money that she would need?

A. Yes, she had an idea that four thousand ($4,000.00) dollars was more money than she would ever be able to spend.

Q. When you say she had the idea, I want you to tell us how you know she had it, did she say so?

A. Yes, she said so. She apparently had no idea of how much money four thousand ($4,000.00) dollars was.

Q. Captain, just let me interrupt a minute. When you give your opinion it is not evidence. In the trial of a case, we must not get the opinion of witnesses, but the facts, and for that reason I would like to have you confine yourself to what Minnie said about these matters.

A. Yes, Minnie said that four thousand ($4,000.00) dollars was all the money she ever would be able to spend.

Q. At the time she signed this statement that Montgomery prepared, or did prepare, she had received five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars?

A. Yes, I don't know that of my own knowledge either. That transaction, she told me she received that much, she didn't receive it through me, I never saw it, but I don't think there is any doubt but that she had received five thousand dollars at that time.

Q. She was being annoyed by a number of parties about the case?

A. She was being very much annoyed, so much so that she was hardly rational—through a mental nervous state—from this annoyance. And I would like to add right here that I told Mr. Montgomery that Minnie was hardly rational when he first came there, and before he got the statement from Minnie or had any interview with Minnie.

By Mr. Allen: I move to strike the answer of the witness because it is improper cross examination and states a conclusion of the witness, is not responsive to the question, and the witness has not shown himself to be qualified to testify as an expert, and the testimony is incompetent.

Q. You told Mr. Montgomery in one of the first conversations that you had with him, that on account of her being so much worried, that Minnie was scarcely rational or responsible? A. Yes.

Q. And unable or incompetent to transact business—attend to and transact business?

A. I didn't say that in those words, no.

Q. What did you say?

A. I told Mr. Montgomery that due to Minnie's state of mind, through the annoyances and nervousness brought around by this case, that I would not have any confidence in the statements that she made; that I felt if—that if I took any action there, Minnie was likely to say anything that she thought would be what I wanted, or any statement that might get her relieved from the difficulty that she seemed to be in at that time, due to the annoyance of various claimants of various kinds; shadowing by detectives and other annoyances that had gotten her to such a state of mind that I had no confidence in her ability to testify. I told Mr. Montgomery that, or words to that effect.

Q. What was Minnie's condition at that time?

A. She was very nervous and very easily excited. She had an idea that some of these people were trying to put her out of business, as she expressed it; in other words, to kill her.

> By Mr. Allen: We move to strike the answer of the witness as not responsive and not proper cross examination, stating a conclusion of the witness, and incompetent, and as hearsay.

Q. Now, I understand you to say that Frank Montgomery assured Minnie that if she would execute this statement that he would procure or attempt to procure immunity for Minnie from prosecution for perjury growing out of her testimony formerly given in the trial or hearing of some case?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he refer to any other criminal act that Minnie had committed, or for which she was liable?

A. Not in my presence that I remember of.

Q. Did he say anything about Minnie's testimony having been given in a proceeding in a state court?

A. No, not that I know of.

Q. Did he make any explanation of how he expected the Interior Department or Federal Government to give any immunity for any offense committed in the State Court?

A. He did not.

Q. Did you, or any of the parties present, mention that matter?

A. I know I did not, because it did not occur to me, and if anybody else mentioned it, I do not remember it.

Q. Mr. Montgomery referred frequently and with considerable emphasis to the fact that she would be liable to criminal prosecution perhaps in this matter? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Hanford told Mr. Montgomery there in that conversation that that was all bunk, or words to that effect, didn't he?

A. I remember Mr. Hanford entering into a discussion with Mr. Montgomery, in which he said "This talk of immunity has nothing whatever to do with this case, that is all aside from this case, or that cannot be done," or words to that effect. I remember his entering into a discussion with Mr. Montgomery and saying, "That has nothing whatever to do with this, the immunity side of this case has nothing to do with it," or words to that effect.

Q. Did Mr. Hanford say in that conversation that Minnie had done nothing to need any immunity?

A. Yes, I believe he did, that was a conversation between Mr. Hanford and Mr. Montgomery, and I remember that Mr. Hanford did take issue with Mr. Montgomery over the question of immunity as to whether it was necessary or as to whether it could be gotten.

Q. Now, Mr. Montgomery, you say, sent some telegrams to Cato Sells, the Indian Commissioner?

A. Yes, he sent—I don't know that he sent telegrams——.

Q. He told you he sent telegrams?

A. He told me he sent them, yes, sir.

Q. Got answers?

A. I saw the answer, and I am quite sure it was signed "Sells"; I think that was the name, I think it was the Indian Commissioner.

Q. Can you tell us just what that telegram stated?

A. No, but it was to the effect that he proceed with the case and get the evidence as far as possible, that the question of immunity could be taken up later, or words to that effect. At any rate, I know positively that it did not grant any immunity.

Q. That telegram was exhibited to you?

A. It was exhibited to me, yes.

Q. There was nothing in that telegram that stated that the Federal Government has to—nothing to do with any immunity? A. No, it didn't state so.

Q. Did it state what the immunity referred to?

A. No, I don't think so, I don't remember.

Q. Did you ever know that Montgomery wired to the Secretary of the Interior, or the Indian Commissioner, asking that immunity be granted to Minnie for drawing money from the United States, or the Creek Nation in 1895? A. No.

Q. Was that ever referred to? A. Not in my presence.

Q. Captain, how long have you been around the Army Post? A. Army Post?

Q. Yes? A. Since 1898, seventeen years.

By Mr. Blakeney: I withdraw that question.

(Witness dismissed.)

By Mr. Hanford: I wish to call Captain MacNab as witness on behalf of the defendants, Minnie E. Folk, Harry B. Folk, and Edward C. Hanford.

And thereupon, DENNIS JONES was recalled for further direct examination and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Dennis, you were asked several times by the attorneys for the other side, Government attorneys, whether you represented Sadie James in the divorce suit there of Charles Lain against Sadie Lain. I now hand you a paper and ask you what that purports to be?

A. This is the decree, copy of journal entry, certified copy.

Mr. Stuart: We offer this, your Honor.

The Court: For the purpose of showing merely this man wasn't noted as counsel?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Mr. German: That journal entry shows another lawyer was, J. K. Codding.

The Court: I think it would be unnecessary to encumber the record with that record. It may be admitted that the certified copy of this journal entry in the case of Lain vs. Lain recites that J. K. Codding was attorney.

Mr. Stuart: And that Dennis Jones had no connection?

Mr. German: No, we don't admit that.

The Court: And that Dennis Jones' name does not appear in the body of the judgment. Does it appear anywhere?

Mr. German: I don't say anywhere in the record up there.

The Court: I am talking about this judgment.

Mr. Stuart: Here is the decree reciting the judgment and he is not in it.

Q. Do you know this man Codding? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Allen had him employed to assist him in the investigation at Leavenworth?

A. Mr. Codding told me he was.

Q. Do you remember whether he was acting with Mr. Codding up there? A. Yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. This man, J. K. Codding is the warden of the State Penitentiary at Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Has been for several years? A. Yes, he has.

Q. Prior to that he practiced law in Leavenworth with his son?

A. Well, I think he was warden and then after a time he, during different administrations, he come to Leavenworth and practiced law for a while, and at the election of Capper for Governor he went back as warden.

Q. Now, Mr. Codding, you knew as the lawyer who was appointed by the State, represented the State in the matter of cleaning up the whiskey situation there in Leavenworth?

A. He was one of them; he was Assistant Attorney General.

The Court: I don't assume that Mr. Codding is anything but a man of the utmost probity.

Mr. Stuart: We do not either.

Mr. German: I am leading to another point, I have a design.

The Court: All right. Go on.

Q. Now, then, Dennis, you wrote a letter to Mr. Codding recommending Sadie James to Mr. Codding in the matter of this divorce suit, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. In some matter?

A. In some matter but not the divorce suit.

Q. What was it?

A. In 1913, when Sadie James came to Leavenworth, she came to my office, as I related on the stand the other day, and said some old soldier, a friend of hers, had some property down in Odessa, Missouri, and she wanted me to go down there and see if I could recover it. I said to Sadie, that is an intolerable place down there for a black man——

The Court: Is this the same that you told before?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: This matter has been gone over with this witness, Mr. German.

Q. Well, that is the same J. K. Codding?

A. That is the only J. K. Codding I know of.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, GEORGE KINNEY was produced and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins, et al., and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Cruce.

Q. What is your name? A. George Kinney.

Q. Where do you live? A. Tulsa.

Q. What is your business? A. Oil business.

Q. Were you employed by Mr. Page and Mr. Josey to represent them in drilling of wells on this Thomas Atkins allotment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you begin, Mr. Kinney?

A. Well, I don't remember just——

Q. In what year? A. Well, 1914.

Q. About what time of the year, your best judgment?

A. Well, I think it was about November, my recollection.

Q. Have you a statement—— Are you able to state from memory, without refreshing your recollection, of the expenditures made and when they were made? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, have you made a statement that will enable you to do that? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. German: Your Honor please, if that is what counsel is eliciting, we have on file with this Court full details and itemized statements of all expenditures in the matter of the operations of this property.

The Court: Giving dates and everything?

Mr. German: I think so.

The Court: I think there is an order providing for reports from time to time, is there not: If they have been complied with, I think that will give all the details.

Mr. Hanford: That is up to the date and time that the Receiver was appointed?

Mr. Cruce: This is just a statement up until the date of the bringing of this suit. Why not agree that this may be filed as an exhibit.

Q. Is this a correct estimate, this report that you have here? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Is this a matter with regard to which you are familiar, all these details?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: You had them in charge?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: What did you make this statement up from?

A. The books.

The Court: Kept by whom?

A. Kept by Mr. Curtis.

The Court: Who is he?

A. He is the bookkeeper for Mr. Page.

The Court: You are Mr. Kinney?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: And what is your connection with this work all during this time?

A. I was superintendent.

The Court: For what company?

A. Page and Josey.

The Court: You were the superintendent?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: I take it that his testimony is gone into with result in this statement here.

Mr. German: Your Honor, Mr. Curtis, as I understand it, is in the city; he is here, as I understand it, he is the man that kept all the books.

The Court: Is Mr. Curtis here?

Mr. Pinson: He is under subpoena subject to call.

The Court: Under whose subpoena?

Mr. Pinson: The Government.

The Court: Will Mr. Curtis probably be here?

Mr. Pinson: I understand he will be in rebuttal by us.

The Court: Now, when Mr. Curtis comes, this may be admitted now subject to your examination of it with Mr. Curtis, and if Mr. Curtis says it isn't correct, it may be corrected. I think it is very important to show what was done in the early stages of this case right from the beginning up to the time this litigation arose and particularly the dates at which the various things were done.

Mr. Cruce: I believe that is all.

Q. Do you know anything about the purchase of any field tanks that appear on that statement?

A. Well, I know we built five steel tanks.

Q. Do you remember when you bought those tanks?

A. Well, it was in the winter of 1914 and '15 that they were built.

Q. But you can't give the exact date? A. No, I can't.

Q. What do those tanks cost a piece?

A. Well, my recollection is that they cost about fourteen thousand five hundred dollars a piece, fifty-five thousand barrel steel tanks.

Mr. Cruce: We may be able after Mr. Curtis comes to fix the price.

The Court: Well, I think, then, before this is admitted in evidence, you gentlemen had better get a little bit more definite data in regard to it. I think it is important to show these things and it is important that the Court know that the dates given are correct, and that the Court has the proper dates.

Mr. German: One question I would like to ask about——

The Court: Alright.

Recross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Kinney, were you first—the first person to drill any wells on this property? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You drilled the first well that was drilled for Mr. Page?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you know when you begun that well?

A. Well, I don't remember; I don't recollect. It is on there I believe. I believe number two was the first well.

Q. Will you refer to that if it will refresh your memory and tell us when you began the well?

A. It was spudded in November 3rd, 1914, and showed the Bartlesville sand on January 15th, 1915.

Q. Now, that was the first well completed?

A. Yes, that was the first well completed.

Q. What date in January? A. It was completed?

Q. Yes. A. January 15th.

Q. January 15th. When was the second well started for Mr. Page?

A. Well, the second well that was completed was the well that was on the property when we got it that we drilled deeper; it was finished February 4th, 1915.

Q. When did you commence drilling it deeper?

A. Well, I don't remember; this doesn't show but I think we had probably sixty days work on it.

Q. When did you first go on this property for the purpose of taking any timbers on it, or anything of that sort?

A. Well, I think it was along about June, I am not sure; the fore part of the summer; I don't remember.

Q. How did you get on the property when you entered on it? A. We just moved a rig on it.

Q. Moved a rig on it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Through the fence?

A. I don't know whether there was a fence around it then or not, I know there is not now.

Q. You knew about that well you completed being on the property at the time you entered on it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whose well that was?

A. That was the Gypsy Oil Company's I supposed.

Q. Who was attending to that well at the time?

A. I don't know who was.

Q. Somebody was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was then producing from the Wheeler sand was it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they have any tankage there?

A. Yes, sir, there was two two hundred and fifty barrel tanks.

Q. Who did [] consult if anybody about entering on to the land?

A. I didn't consult anyone at all; I was ordered to move the rig in.

Q. Who ordered you to move the rig on? A. Mr. Page.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Cruce.

Q. Mr. Kinney, one thing I forgot to ask you; what do these wells cost to drill, just a rough estimate?

A. Well, about ten thousand dollars what they cost then.

Q. A piece? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, this well, the Gypsy well; it was the Gypsy well, you say? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That you drilled on down to the Bartlesville sand you finished that the 9th of February? A. The 4th of February.

Q. The 4th of February? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you had been drilling you think about sixty days?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when did you begin the third well? Does that show?

A. Yes, sir; spudded in December 25th, 1914, and completed February 24th, 1915.

Q. Does that show when the fourth well was started?

A. Yes, sir. It was started on December 10th and completed on February 20th.

Mr. Cobb: 1915?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Cruce: Now, I understand that on the Receivership hearing, wasn't this matter gone over then?

Mr. German: No, very loosely.

Mr. Cruce: I was going to say, if the matter was gone into then——

Mr. German: I was very loosely gone into.

Recross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Those steel tanks, where were they placed, were they not put on this property? A. No, sir.

Q. Was there ever any plan to put them on this property?

A. Well, we made a survey one time, but the grades were so heavy that we changed them and got a property right north a half mile.

Q. When was it now that you made that survey?

A. Well, I don't remember about the time we started to build them on the other place, I don't remember.

Q. When was it you started to build them on the other place? A. Well, in the winter of 1914 and '15.

Q. Do you remember the time of the Receivership hearing, don't you, you knew of that? A. Yes, I guess I did.

Q. The last days of February, 1915, was this before or after that, that you made your plans to put them on this adjacent property, this other property? A. It was before that.

Q. Now, at this time, how many tanks had been ordered then? A. At what date?

Q. At the time—— Well, say of the Receivership hearing? A. And that was in—— When was that?

Q. That was the last of February, 1915?

A. Well, I don't know, but I rather think they were all ordered before that time. I am not so sure about that.

Q. When did you receive your first tank, do you remember?

A. Well, no, I think it was sometime in January, I know we had one almost completed on the first of the year, and the tank builders went on a strike, that is the way I remember that so well.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, HARRY B. FOLK, being produced as a witness on behalf of the defendants, Minnie Atkins, et al., and being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Your name is Harry B. Folk? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are a musician, first class, in the band of the Fourteenth United States Infantry? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Linebaugh: May I ask the witness a question: Are you the husband of Minnie Folk?

A. I am, sir.

Mr. Linebaugh: We object to the witness testifying, if the Court please.

The Court: This is a civil case; in criminal cases the husband or wife is not allowed to testify for or against each other, but in a civil case it is controlled by State Statute.

Mr. German: We have a State Statute which precludes them.

The Court: If there is a State Statute which precludes them, that would have to be sustained.

Mr. Cruce: He might testify as to the other parties.

The Court: Let's see. Here are the Page interests and the Carter interests; he may testify, I will hear it.

Mr. German: We except.

The Court: Exception noted.

Mr. Hanford: Judge Stuart announces that he will recall the witness as a witness for the defendant, Charles Page, and that will clear up the matter.

The Court: Well, I assume that he was being put on by the Page interests now.

Mr. Stuart: Being put on by both, Your Honor.

The Court: All right. I understand he is appearing now as a witness for the Carter interests, the Page interests, and the Minnie Folk, and on the theory that these other interests are involved in this case, I am going to permit him to testify.

Mr. Maxey: If Your Honor please, we will make the same objection and the same exception as the Government.

The Court: Exception noted.

Q. Your present station is Yuma, Arizona—— No, the regiment has been transferred? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is now stationed at Van Couver Barracks, Washington? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are the husband of Minnie Folk, the defendant in this case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you been married to her?

A. The 31st of March, 1907.

Q. Since the 31st of March, 1907? A. Yes.

Q. And you and she have lived together continuously during that time except a period when she was sent back from the Philippines sick and you remained over there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was in what year?

A. That was in—— We left Van Couver in 1908, and she was over there with me five months and the doctor ordered her back on account of——

Q. Well, that is the time that she was away? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were with her—— She was with you when you were stationed at Fort Harrison, near Helena, Montana?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will ask you if you recollect a letter that she received at that time in regard to some private matter? A. I do.

Mr. German: We object to that as assuming that she received a letter, which is an issue in the case.

The Court: Well, the question is if he recollects that she received the letter.

Mr. Hanford: Whether or not she received such a letter.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Linebaugh: Might we object further on the ground, and call the court's attention, on the ground that it is inadmissible and incompetent, that they are now inquiring as to something that occurred between husband and wife not related to any matter of agency between either or for either, but a private matter occurring in the home between the two.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor, this testimony, I might suggest he is seeking to elicit will not in any sense develop any communication between husband and wife at all.

The Court: The question is with regard to whether a letter was received from someone; the witness has answered that he remembers the receipt of such a letter. I assume that counsel now has in mind to attempt to prove by this witness the contents of that letter. That is what you are trying to do I assume?

Mr. Hanford: I am going to prove the fact that she received a letter, but I don't believe that I can prove the contents by this witness.

The Court: Well, then, you have gone as far as you propose to go in regard to this letter.

Mr. Hanford: I will prove something in regard to the contents. Let me ask one more question.

The Court: All right.

Q. Did you read that letter? A. I did not.

Q. Do you know what was in it? A. I do not.

Q. Was there anything accompanying that letter?

A. Nothing, just simply a large envelope with a large sheet of paper in it; I brought it down from the Band Quarters, we lived about a mile from the Band Quarters outside of the Post and I brought the letter down and I handed it to my wife. I never open none of her mail, never did before or never did since; and I handed her this letter and when she opened it, she told me to go away, and I walked away and came back and kind of looked over her shoulder and saw it in her hand, marked all at the top and at the bottom in this way and this way, and at the corner of it it was marked in red ink. That is all I saw of it.

Q. What would you call that ruling of lines?

A. Well, it appeared to me like a surveyor's map or something like that.

Q. And you asked her what it was in regard to?

A. I did. She wouldn't tell me.

Q. You have since learned what it was in regard to?

A. I have not.

Q. You haven't learned? A. No, sir.

Q. You were in Spokane, Washington, were you not, in June, 1914? A. I was.

Q. You were ordered there with your band?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For duty? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long were you there? A. Four days.

Q. Did anyone come to see you there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who? A. Why, Mr. Hanford and Mr. Frank B. Long.

Q. Do you remember what day that was?

A. That was on the 16th of June, 1914.

Q. And what did they come to see you in regard to?

Mr. Linebaugh: Just a minute. We object to that, if the court please, as incompetent, and inadmissible.

The Court: Why?

Mr. Linebaugh: For the reason that this would be offered, as I take it, for no purpose except to support the testimony of somebody that has heretofore testified, and that portion of that somebody's testimony has not yet been called into question.

The Court: What is the purpose of this anyhow?

Mr. Hanford: The purpose of this examination, if Your Honor please, is to show that Mr. Long and myself went to Spokane and took the matter up——

The Court: You needn't state what transpired. You propose to show what you said to this man about that transaction?

Mr. Hanford: Yes, sir.

The Court: And you and Mr. Long have testified with regard to that feature of this Seattle transaction; that you stopped and saw him there.

Mr. Hanford: Well, if your Honor please, the Government contends, it is charged, but it is not charged in the bill, but by argument, they have asserted that they charge the defendants with bad faith and with fabricating a case, and I want to——

The Court: You want to show what was said there?

Mr. Hanford: What was said there.

The Court: I don't care for you to state what you propose to show by him, what you propose to establish by his statements.

Q. What did they take up with you at that time?

A. Why, they took up my wife's allotment, or some land that she was supposed to get down here in Oklahoma. And it appears that she agreed with yourself, and Mr. Long, and Captain MacNab and Lieutenant McCombs, in Fort Lawton, and you brought it down there for me to agree, for me to sign it, and to have it read over thoroughly so I would understand it. I don't know anything about land and I don't know yet. It was brought down there and they held a conference and Lieutenant Winton, his father is from McAlester down here, I believe it is McAlester; he knew something about this oil land. He was adjutant at Fort Wright at the time. I got a telegram before you started to remain there. We were supposed to be there a month, and the troops were ordered to Butte, Montana——

The Court: Let's not go into that.

Q. Was anybody else there besides those you have mentioned? A. Captain Wright and Major Stokes.

Q. Which one of those officers, if any was a lawyer?

A. Lieutenant Winton was a lawyer.

Q. Who? A. Lieutenant Winton.

Q. What was the name of the Captain that was there?

A. Captain Wright.

Q. And they explained everything in regard to this matter to you at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how long did that conference last?

A. Three hours.

Q. And after that you were satisfied with the arrangements that had been made? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And exhibited to you the trust agreement?

Mr. German: I object to counsel leading.

The Court: I don't question for a minute but what you and Mr. Long did just what you say there. I don't see the necessity of this testimony now.

Mr. Hanford: It goes to controvert the charge that they made that everything was in bad faith.

Q. Mr. Folk, you recollect the time that Mr. Montgomery was in Seattle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you present at any of the interviews that he had with your wife?

A. Well, the way that came about——

Q. I am asking, were you present at any of the interviews she had with him?

A. Well, two of them that I know of, yes, sir.

Q. And did you remember of anything that she had done in the way of signing statements or anything like that?

A. No, sir, that is I did, it was on a Thursday; he arrived on a Monday and he had an interview with Captain MacNab it seems and we were going over some dance music, and Captain MacNab and Captain Miles was down at the Band Quarters hearing some of it, and he told me——

Q. Well, did you learn that she had signed any statement or made any statement to Mr. Montgomery? A. No.

Q. During the time he was out there? A. No, sir.

Q. Did she tell you? A. No, sir.

Q. Did she tell you that she had done anything for Mr. Montgomery?

A. No. I can explain myself better, I can't answer that question.

Q. Without going into details, did you have any—— Do you remember the time that Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Hanford came down to the house one time and found you there and not your wife? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what did you tell Mr. Montgomery at that time?

A. Well, I told him——

Mr. German: We object to that, if the court please.

The Court: Was that testified to by Mr. Montgomery?

Mr. Hanford: No, Your Honor.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. I will ask you if your wife told you anything that she had done the night before that day?

A. She told me she told a bald-faced lie in signing what she signed at Captain MacNab's quarters.

Mr. German: We object to that as hearsay and self-serving, self-serving declaration.

The Court: Objection sustained. What she told him as a matter of substantive proof as to what she had done of course has no place in this case, it is merely hearsay from her to this man.

Mr. Stuart: That letter that you saw, did your wife read you that letter?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Stuart: Did she refuse to let you read it?

A. She did.

Cross Examination by Mr. Maxey.

Q. How old are you?

A. I will be forty-one next November, 23rd.

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. Stuart: Now, Your Honor, I think we are through, except this: We want to put in the detailed statement with reference to these improvements; and one witness from Leavenworth who will probably be here tomorrow morning and he will take about five minutes.

The Court: The detailed statement you refer to, is that the one that was offered this afternoon?

Mr. Stuart: The statement from Mr. Curtis.

And thereupon, court recessed until nine-thirty A. M., May 31, 1917.

And thereafter, and on May 31, 1917, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., court convened pursuant to adjournment, and further proceedings herein were had as follows:

Mr. Stuart: Here is that Five thousand dollar check that you asked me for; let that be marked as defendant's Exhibit (marked defendant's Exhibit B-21).

The Court: Let this check now be identified. It may be admitted.

Mr. German: As defendant's Exhibit B-21.

And thereupon, E. O. CURTIS, being produced as a witness on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins et al., and being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. What is your name? A. E. O. Curtis.
Q. Where do you live, Mr. Curtis? A. Tulsa.
Q. What is your business?
A. I am the auditor for Mr. Page.
Q. Auditor for Mr. Page—Charles Page?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Are you familiar with the books of Mr. Charles Page?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. I will ask you whether or not you have a book that treats of the Tommy Atkins lease? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Have you drawn from those books a detailed account of the expenditures commencing in August and ending in January? A. Yes, sir.
Q. August, 1914, and ending in January, 1915?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Please examine that and see if that is the statement that you prepared from the books? A. Yes, sir, that is it.
Q. You made it in triplicate, did you?
A. Yes, sir, an original and four copies.
Q. Now, Curtis, please take this paper which I hand you and tell me when those expenditures on the Tommy Atkins' lease commenced.

Mr. German: Now, Your Honor, this is secondary evidence; this is not the best evidence.

The Court: If we are relying on the books to determine this, and I think the books may be relied upon, I think the books are the best evidence. In a case of this kind where books are resorted to, if they consist of a number of entries, one familiar with the books, such as the bookkeeper, may make a detailed statement as to what the books show; that may be testified to on the condition that the books are in court subject to the examination on cross examination. Are the books here?

Mr. Stuart: No, they are not here. I will state to Your Honor, that before Judge Sanborn, this is the exact system we followed.

The Court: In the Receivership hearing; the Circuit Court of Appeals has announced the method of admitting these things. Is the objection still urged to this statement?

Mr. German: Yes, sir, Your Honor, we have not examined the books and know nothing about them. We don't want to be captious about that but the statement that Judge Stuart refers to I think begun about March, 1915——

Mr. Stuart: We will bring the books if necessary.

The Court: Well, I am merely passing upon this objection; the objection is made. If the books were here subject to examination, then you have complied with all the conditions necessary to make this statement admissible.

Mr. Stuart: Now, Your Honor, I have also the vouchers here, the vouchers for each one of these items paid by vouchers.

Mr. German: Will you produce the books here, Judge?

Mr. Stuart: Well, we will do it if the court requires us to do it.

The Court: Now, these vouchers, tell me about those, Judge.

Q. Explain what they are?

A. They are the original entry carried through the journal and ledger.

Q. What are they?

A. They are checks paid through the bank and also credit vouchers.

Examination by the Court.

Q. And you have those paid checks here which correspond, as you say, to the items mentioned in this statement? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Those receipts then are subject to your examinatiton, gentlemen. Why may they not be a check against this statement? Now, as I understand it, the material facts here are what were those expenditures made for and what were the expenditures by Mr. Page or his interest upon this property?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, that is what those are for.

The Court: And your inquiry will relate to a period before the suit and about that time?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir.

The Court: You don't propose to cover from that period down to this?

Mr. Stuart: No, just that anterior to December, 1914, and anterior to the suit. We have everything prior, Minnie Atkins' confession and everything prior to the suit January 18th, and no more.

The Court: Those statements as I understand purport to set forth the various expenditures, the amounts and dates.

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir.

The Court: As shown by the books?

Mr. Stuart: Yes, sir, and the vouchers are here to check it up receipted and paid vouchers.

The Court: I will permit the statement to be used in evidence. The counsel for the Government and conflicting interests may examine the vouchers and if they deem the books should be in court, the court will, upon their application, pass upon that matter.

Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Now, are these the vouchers here in these five or six packages, which are a check against the items in that account? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which you have drawn off from the books? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you draw them off correctly? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Stuart: We offer defendants Minnie Atkins et al., Exhibit B-22 and 23, in evidence.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Have you two exhibits?

A. One is to December 17th, and the other is from December 17th to January 18th.

Q. Is this in quadruplicate? A. Yes, sir.

> Mr. German: Can I have one of them?
>
> Mr. Stuart: Certainly.

Q. Mr. Curtis, this item, this one thousand six hundred dollars ($51,600.00), appearing in the itemized statement of expenditures up to December 17, 1914, there are two items for fifty-five thousand barrel tanks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, those two items are dated November 25, 1914?

A. Yes, sir.

> The Court: Mr. German, let me suggest this: Inasmuch as this has gone into the record and it is a long list and you haven't examined it, this witness will be here all day; perhaps you can shorten this if you examine it during the noon hour and let him be examined later in the day.

Q. Those two tanks weren't put on this Atkins property, were they?

A. They were put on the tank farm that was owned by the Atkins lease.

Q. How far north of this Atkins property?

A. I think it is about a half a mile. It was owned by the Atkins lease.

Q. Owned by the Atkins lease? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. Well, they stored their oil there.

Q. Also stored oil from other properties too?

A. No, sir.

Q. Wasn't there a lease south?

A. Well, they stored some in there and paid twelve hundred dollars storage, but they didn't own any interest.

> The Court: You say owned by the Atkins lease, what parties owned it?

A. Mr. Page and Mr. Josey.

Q. And do you mean that it was stored oil that was run from the Atkins lease? A. Paid for by the Atkins lease.

Q. What property was it on?

A. Carthena Richards tank farm.

Q. Carthena Richards? A. Yes, sir.

> Mr. German: Now, we will wait, Your Honor, until after lunch on that.

Q. Do you know when that tank farm was bought?

A. It is put right there; it is on the statement.

Q. Not the tank, but the tank farm.

A. That is what I mean.

Q. Is there—is that charged up to this lease?

A. Oh, yes, paid by this lease.

Q. Show me the item and tell me what it is by reference there.

A. The original payment was made there December 4, 1914, to C. B. Walker, voucher 1902 on schedule A.

Q. What page of the schedule?

A. Schedule A, first page.

Q. December 4th? A. 1914.

Q. To C. B. Walker apply on price tank farm hundred dollars?

A. Yes, sir, the rest is paid there under voucher 2000 on the same page, thirteen hundred and ninety-six dollars and forty cents.

Q. C. B. Walker, balance purchase of tank farm site?

A. That is the land.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hill.

Q. Now, on the item 2000 there, that seems to have been put on the 12th—28—14? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This statement purports to be to December 17th?

A. Well, they were examining the title of the tank farm before they paid that balance; the original hundred dollars bonus paid there—the surety was paid December 4th.

Q. But this item thirteen hundred and ninety-six dollars and forty cents wasn't paid until December 17th?

A. Yes, sir, but the obligation was assumed before that.

Q. For the reason that it was assumed before that you put it in payments prior to December 17th? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Some other items were paid after December 17th on this statement; no—some other items paid on December 17th; Republic Supply Company material twenty-eight hundred, six dollars and five cents?

A. Well, that was a credit voucher; the cash wasn't paid at that time but that was the time they shipped the material to the lease.

Q. Then this doesn't represent actual cash expense to December 17th? A. No, credit vouchers don't.

Q. This statement I am speaking of, it doesn't represent actual cash expenditures to December 17th?

A. No, represents cash paid prior to that time and also obligations assumed to that time.

Mr. Hill: It seems to me this statement should be actual cash expenditures.

The Court: Well, you gentlemen can point out to me; the prior statements will be admitted, and the Court can determine for himself whether it was before a payment or afterwards, if it is determined finally there is some date in there which divides the two sets of items.

Mr. Cruce: I might state to the Court that he made the statement exactly like we instructed him to; we assumed that obligations contracted prior to December 17, were obligations whether paid for or not.

The Court: It appears now that the statement as drawn, that the Court can determine when each payment was finally paid in cash.

Q. Now, Mr. Curtis, this represents expenditures on physical properties; it doesn't represent any purchase price of the Tommy Atkins lease or expenditures thereto?

A. Absolutely not, no, sir.

Q. Does your books show the expenditures, the purchase price and expenses? A. On the leasehold account?

Q. Yes? A. Not on the Tommy Atkins book.

Q. Does it show it anywhere? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Other book? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This is merely a statement kept separate from——

A. These items represent material when received.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Curtis, I understand you to say that this represent the actual money paid out on the Atkins lease for material and work and development? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you put on here the actual cash paid prior to December 17th, and the money paid on obligations incurred prior to December 17th? A. Yes, sir.

Recross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. But the payments were not made until after December 17th? A. Some of them were not but the cash shows them.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Now, these two tanks here; one 55,000 barrel tank, on the 25th of November, 1914, eleven thousand two hundred and fifty dollars; was the tank bought exclusively for the Thomas Atkins lease? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that farm site bought for the Tommy Atkins lease? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And for the other tanks also? A. Yes, sir.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. Hanford: If Your Honor please, at this time we wish to offer the deposition of Mike Stanton, a witness for the Government at page 2254.

And thereupon, MIKE STANTON, being called on behalf of the United States, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. German.

Q. What is your name? A. Mike Stanton.

Q. What age you, Mr. Stanton?

A. I will be seventy-four the 15th of next August if I live that long.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Stanton?

A. I live on Kiowa Street between Sixth and Seventh, 610 Kiowa.

Q. Leavenworth, Kansas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you resided in Leavenworth?

A. About fifty-seven years.

Q. Does that cover your residence at Fort Leavenworth too? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You lived at Fort Leavenworth sometime?

A. Yes, sir, I lived there off and on about twenty-two years.

Q. When did you move out of the Fort the last time?

A. I think it was 1886.

Q. Eighty-six? A. 1886 I moved back to town.

Q. Well, while you were residing in the Fort did you know an Indian woman there called Indian Mary or Indian Minnie?

A. Yes, sir, I knew both.

Q. You knew both, where did you know Indian Minnie?

A. The first that I remember of seeing her was on the corner of Shawnee and Main Street.

Q. When was that?

A. I think that was in 1867 or eight.

Q. Did you ever see her again?

A. When I moved to the Fort in sixty-nine or along in seventy, I seen her along the avenue there and she recognized me.

Q. Do you mean the avenues in the Fort? A. Sir?

Q. You mean the avenues in the Fort?

A. Yes, I think she was employed in the Fort at that time, this Indian Minnie, not Indian Mary now.

Q. And she recognized you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, do you know when that was that you saw her in the Fort or how—for how long a time, I will ask you that, was it? A. I don't think it was at the Fort.

Q. For how long a time?

A. Probably about a year, not quite a year. We were grading around the Fort extension, and I had seen her with this buggy—baby buggy.

Q. Baby buggy?

A. Going along the side-walk, that was sometime in the seventies.

Q. Sometime in the seventies? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have seen her with a baby buggy?

A. I think she was working for some officer at the time.

Q. Now, this Indian Mary that you spoke of, where did you know her?

A. I knew her out at the Reservation by being ordered to drive her off of the Reservation.

Q. What kind of a character was she?

A. Well, she was considered a pretty rough character, she was ignored at least by most of the people I think. Mr. Wilson, he ordered me that whenever I would find her anywhere on the Reservation, on account of being around with the men so much in fixing the roads, be sure if I taken it to attend to it to notify the patrol to drive her off, and that is how I got to know her.

Q. Now, when was the last time that you ever saw her as near as you can remember? A. I think it was about eighty.

Q. When was the last time, so far as you know, that you ever saw Indian Minnie that you referred to?

A. I don't think I remember seeing her since seventy.

Q. Did you hear anything about either one, Indian Mary or Indian Minnie, after you moved off of the Reservation the last time?

A. No, sir, I did not. I didn't know which was which.

Q. You didn't know which was which? A. No.

Q. Well, did you hear anything about either one of them after you moved off of the Reservation?

A. No, sir, I never heard anything about them.

Q. What became of them, if you know?

A. Well, this Indian Mary was, to the best of my recollection, was found in a ditch east of the Rock Island Depot. The Rock Island Depot was on the north of Sixth Street at that time.

Q. She was found in a ditch?

A. Found in a ditch and I don't—that is the woman that we had to drive off; the other one I have never heard any bad account of her.

Q. Found in a ditch, what do you mean, drunk or what?

A. Found dead.

Q. Found dead? A. Found dead.

Q. Do you remember when you heard that; when was it that you heard that, Mr. Stanton?

A. Oh, that was—it was a year or so after I came from the Fort; I came from there in eighty-six.

Q. A year or so after you moved out of the Fort?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Out of the Reservation? A. Yes, sir.

Cross Examination by Mr. Bond.

Q. When you first saw Indian Minnie at Shawnee and Main street she was about thirty-five years old? A. No, sir.

Q. Fifty?

A. I think not. I don't think she was, I wouldn't judge that she was over seventeen or eighteen.

Q. That was 1868? A. About sixty-eight.

Q. Then you lost track of her until you saw her with a baby buggy in 1870 up at the Fort? A. Yes, sir; yes, sir.

Q. Then you lost track of her completely?

A. Yes, sir, completely.

Q. Indian Mary, how old was she when you first saw her?

A. Well—— She was such a rough person that I never did go close enough to know exactly what age she would be, she looked so rough and desperate that I couldn't tell you very well.

Q. Was she stout? Powerful woman?

A. Yes, always had a black eye or a broken nose.

Q. And a dark skinned disreputable looking Indian?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you ever have an opportunity to put her off the Reservation up there? A. Yes.

Cross Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. You say an Indian Minnie twice? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was all? A. How is that?

Q. And that was all? The only times that you ever saw her?

A. I only remember of seeing her the time that I was doing this improvement down here, first on the corner of Main and Shawnee, that was the first place at that time.

Q. And you did that in 1868?

A. She was working in that hotel that we were repairing then.

Q. You were repairing a hotel and she was employed in the hotel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was she doing—— I mean by that, was she a chamber maid?

A. I don't know whether she was a chamber maid or had charge of the business there; the boys would want to get a bucket to water their horses, we had to water our horses in the river at that time, the water was pretty scarce, and I found her so obliging, willing to accommodate them and direct them where they would get something convenient, it attracted my attention.

Q. Have you any way of fixing that date as 1868?

A. Sir?

Q. Have you any way of fixing the date at 1868? You have fixed the date at 1868, do you have to depend on memory entirely for that?

A. No, 1868 was when I first met her.

Q. Do you have to depend on memory to fix that date?

A. We were fixing the building.

Q. Well, do you have to depend on memory as to the year that you fixed the building? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have no other way of fixing that date with any more certainty? A. No.

Q. And after some forty-eight years your recollection is that you saw her in 1868? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You don't know whether she had any children or not?

A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. You don't know whether she had a husband or not?

A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. You were then some two years later up at the Fort, was you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you saw this same woman out with a baby buggy?

A. With a baby buggy.

Q. Had a baby in the buggy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember whether the baby was laying down or sitting up?

A. No, I don't know which. I was riding along the street and she was on the side walk and she recognized me and then I thought where I had seen her last, and that I think was the last that I have ever seen of her excepting along in that direction.

Q. And you don't have any impression as to whether the baby was a mere infant or whether it was old enough even to walk from what you saw?

A. No, I don't know whether it was able to walk.

Q. And then you saw her and you continued your way until you passed out of sight and she passed out of sight, and you never saw her after that?

A. Oh, I have seen her in the same direction.

Q. After that? A. Sometime after that.

Q. How long after that?

A. Oh, probably a month or two.

Q. A month or two after that, in 1870? A. Yes.

Q. You never saw her after 1870? A. I did not.

Q. She married—— Whether she was married and alive or was married at that time, you don't know?

A. No, sir, I do not know.

Q. She was a woman of good repute?

A. So far as I knew she was.

Q. You never heard anything to the contrary?

A. No, sir.

Q. What hotel was it she seemed to be running?

A. This building I had the contract to fix it from a man by the name of Bartholamew Cranson, he owned the property.

Q. Is he dead or alive?

A. He is dead. He had two places down here on the corner of Second and Shawnee. I built that building for them, and on the corner of Main this was known as the, called Baxter Hotel, the Baxter Hotel is the one that I had been fixing under me.

Q. Is the building still standing?

A. No, sir, not for years.

Redirect Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Stanton, did you look at that baby in that baby buggy or not? A. How?

Q. Do you remember of looking at the baby in the baby buggy? A. Well, I just simply noticed it coming up, you know.

Q. Did you know whose baby it was? A. I did not.

Q. Do you remember whether it was a white baby or an Indian baby? A. I don't know that, Judge.

Witness dismissed.

And thereupon, CHENEY TRENT, a witness being produced on behalf of the defendants Minnie Atkins, et al., being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Beall.

Q. What is your name? A. Cheney Trent.

Q. Where do you live?

A. I live west of Wagoner in Wagoner County.

Q. How far from the town of Wagoner? A. Ten miles.

Q. Are you a Creek citizen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Enrolled as an Indian or a freedman? A. Indian.

Q. What is your father's name? A. Dick Atkins.

Q. What is your mother's name? A. Lettie Shannon.

Q. What was your father's father's name?

A. Thomas Atkins.

Q. Is Thomas Atkins living?

A. Well, I don't know which one you mean.

Q. Your grandfather Dick Atkins.

A. No, sir, he is not living.

Q. Do you know when he died? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember the last time you saw him?

A. I never did see him.

Q. How old are you?

A. Well, I really don't know; I only can tell you when I was born—I was born the last year of the Civil War; the following spring.

Q. Who represented you in your application for enrollment? A. Judge Thomas.

Q. Was that Judge John R. Thomas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have a brother named Thomas Atkins?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is he living? A. No, sir.

Q. When did he die?

A. He died the year of the filing commenced, the fall of the filing commenced.

Q. How old was he when he died?

A. He was 13 years old.

Q. Did he live with you? A. He lived with my father.

Q. How far did you- father life from you?

A. About a mile.

Q. Did you see your brother Thomas Atkins every day or two up until the time of his death? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Nancy Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Nancy Atkins ever visit your father's house?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would she be a frequent visitor there?

A. Oh, sometimes.

Q. About how often?

A. Well, probably about three or four times a year.

Q. Where was Nancy Atkins living at the time she would visit your father's house?

Q. She was living at Wagoner.

Q. Did you ever see your brother Thomas Atkins in and about Wagoner with Nancy Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How would your brother happen to be in Wagoner?

A. Why, my father hauled wood there all the time; furnished the town with wood, and he would drive a wagon for my father.

Q. That is your brother Tommy would drive a wagon with your father going in to Wagoner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How often would he make those trips?

A. If it wasn't raining or snowing, he would make it every day.

Q. Tommy would go with him on most of those trips?

A. Yes, sir, yes, sir; pretty near every time.

Q. How many times have you personally seen Tommy Atkins around the town of Wagoner with Nancy Atkins?

A. Well, I just can't tell that because I didn't keep the correct time.

Q. That would be frequently?

A. Yes, sir; when I would go to town. I never went so very much like some peoples goes to town.

A. Four miles north of here—you might say McLouth—

there was no McLouth at that time. There was no McLouth until '82.

Q. What business were you engaged in then?

A. Farming.

A. Well, until '82.

Q. When did you move to the town of McLouth?

A. I moved there in '82, the first time.

A. Well, two miles and a half.

Q. Did you know him then? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What year did you become acquainted with him?

A. 1879.

Q. How frequently were you about his place, or was he about your place in the two or three years following '79?

A. Oh, I can't say that I was ever about his place, or him about mine.

Q. Did you know the members of his family?

A. Yes, pretty well.

Q. During the time that you was living out on the farm, what members of the family did you know?

A. Members of his family?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, I knew his son, Shannon, and I knew Mrs. Yokum, and I knew Adis, and Susie—well, I guess that is all.

A. On Henry's.

Q. What business were you engaged in at that time?

A. Banking.

Q. How long had you been in the banking business at McLouth at that time? A. Since '87.

Q. I will ask you, to call your attention, now, specifically to the statement in the will, which reads, I give and bequeath unto my grandson, H. Carter, for his sole use, the following described real estate, the west twenty acres of the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 27, township 9, range 20, in Leavenworth County, Kansas, and ask you if you wrote that clause in the will? A. Deeding him that land?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Just state what old man Henry Carter said to you, if anything, about H. Carter.

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and hearsay testimony.

Mr. German: The same objection.

A. Why, he said—he went ahead and enumerated this other land that he wanted to leave to—left one forty to a boy and girl with the home place on it, and another to two daughters, and then, he left this twenty—he said I want to leave that twenty to H—and I said H what? And he said, H is all we call him. I don't remember well how I did put it down. He was always called H—like the capital letter H.

Q. Did he make the statement to you at that time as to whether or not he was the grandson?

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike the latter part of the witness' answer as not responsive to the question. (Question read.)

Mr. Hanford: Objected to as hearsay testimony.

Mr. Stuart: The same objection.

A. Why, not that I know of; I should say not. The old man hardly knew what a grandson, or nephew, or anything like that was. I am satisfied in a clerical way, that he was a nephew; he was is what is commonly called an illegitimate nephew.

Mr. German: Do you mean nephew?

A. Grandson; illegitimate grandson.

Mr. Blakeney: I move to strike out what was generally known as not responsive.

Q. Mr. Steeper, could H Carter read and write?

A. Yes, he could write; he could read—write pretty good letters.

Q. Could write, could he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And could read? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After you read the deed, did he read it?

A. Excuse me, did you say the old man?

Q. Old man Henry Carter?

A. No, sir, he could neither read or write.

Q. You say, then, old man Carter could neither read nor write? A. No, he was an old plantation negro.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Steeper, you say you were never around the old man Carter's house, and his place?

A. Well, I used to pass along the road; I maybe was in on the premises; I can't tell you, I know I was passing there when the old man hollered to me to road and said he wanted me to do some writing for him. That is about the way they generally come at you when they want a will made. He said I want you to do some writing for me; wanted to leave this land to the children, and I said alright, when you get ready, come to town to the bank and I will fix you up.

Q. That was about the time the will was drawn?

A. I can't tell how long; might have been a month and might have been six months.

Q. The bank you were connected with in 1887, was that the first bank that McLouth ever had? A. Yes, sir.

A. Yes, sir.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All the time from the time it was started until the time he died?

A. There was very little banking done here in '87; started a little along in '90, you know. It was slow work here; very little money in this country, then.

Q. Did you help the old man to keep his business affairs straight in any way?

A. No, the old man was very close about his business affairs. They were a very secretive family.

Q. The old man was a right successful farmer?

A. Old Henry?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, yes; he was always credited with having money, you know. Loaned a little money.

Q. He kept his account with your bank? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you hear him discuss his family affairs very much?

A. No.

Q. Did he ever discuss them with you before you prepared his will?

A. No, I don't know that he ever did, or after, either.

Q. You knew the names of his children, I believe you say?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you get to learn their names?

A. Well, country neighbors like these, we usually get to know the names of the boys and girls of the neighbors.

Q. It was in that same way that you learned what it was claimed what H—rather learned what the claim was with reference as to who H was?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as to asking for hearsay, and incompetent.

A. Now, what is that? I learned the same way who H was? In a common neighbor's way, you mean?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. What was the general repute here in the neighborhood, as to whose child H was?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, and hearsay; irrelevant and immaterial.

A. The repute was—it was commonly believed, it was Adis' child.

Q. Adis, the daughter of Henry Carter?

A. Of Henry Carter.

Mr. Blakeney: Move to strike out the last answer as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. How large a child was H when you first remember to have seen him? A. About eight years old.

Q. Do you know about when that was? A. No.

Q. About when was it that you first saw this boy, what is your best recollection as to that?

A. Well, now, I can't give much idea as to that. I would ride up and down this road all the time; I saw the boy riding a mule, the latter part of the time from '90, he used to ride the mule in, pretty often. '87.

Q. Was that before? A. I can't tell you.

Q. Do you remember whether it was before or after you started your bank that you first saw him? A. No, I don't.

Q. What business were you in before you started your bank after you came to McLouth?

A. Well, I left farm in '82, and came down to McLouth here, and I was in the store business until '85, and then, I went back on a lot of land up north and I lived up there. My family did, until '91. I started a bank in '87, and I used to ride to and fro every morning and evening from '91. I was on this road a great deal.

Q. Were you on the road a good deal before you started your bank?

A. Yes, when I was on the farm, you know—three or four times a week, I should say.

Q. H was a favorite, was he, of old man Carter? A. Yes.

Q. He was his favorite boy around the place?

A. Yes, I think so. He only had one other around the place—Tom.

Q. He made kind of a pet, didn't he, out of H?

A. I think he did.

Q. Do you know how it happened that you wrote in the will, the statement that Mr. Blakeney read a while ago—my grandson, H Carter—why did you write the words grandson?

A. I presume I would do it as any ordinary notary public, or clerk would do it.

Q. Where did you get the information that he was the grandson? A. Common hearsay in the neighborhood.

Q. Just common hearsay? No, after you had drafted that will, you say you read it over to the old man Carter?

A. Yes.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as not a correct statement of the evidence.

Q. Or did you do that?

A. Well, I could only answer like this; he asked me could I take an acknowledgment to a deed. I would say, as to personal recollection about it. I never did make a will in my life unless I was very careful to call the party in privately and read it over carefully to them before I called the witnesses in.

Mr. Blakeney: I move to strike that last statement as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not responsive.

Q. Have you written very many wills?

A. Yes, sir, a great many.

Q. Had you written very many up to 1895?

A. Well, several.

Q. Now, what was your practice with reference to reading the wills over before they were executed, after you had drawn them, to the person who was making the will?

A. What was my practice?

Q. Yes, sir.

Mr. Blakeney: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. As to reading it over to the party who was about to sign it? A. You mean my practice, don't you?

Q. Well? A. I read it over to them.

Q. Well, that is what I mean. Did you invariably do that? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. I never wrote a will for a man but what I would read it to him.

Q. Then, you remember, do you of his having signed it by mark? Carter having signed this will by mark?

A. Yes, he signs by mark.

Direct Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. T. J. Minney, isn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is he here now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does he do?

A. He lives down there at the hotel—hotel just below the bank.

Q. Daniel W. Blair? A. He has moved to Chanute.

Q. Kansas? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say you have no recollection of reading this will to Henry Carter? A. No particular recollection, no.

Q. I will ask you if it isn't a fact that after drawing an instrument, or a will, as you say, wouldn't you merely state all the parts you had given to the different children, or the different persons named?

Mr. Stuart: Object to that because it is leading and suggestive.

Q. To see if it was given correctly?

A. No, I read them from the top to bottom; always got hold of what and make a rough draft, after getting what they want; then, go and write the will and after they come in, read it to them, and if it is alright, call a couple of witnesses and take it.

Q. But you don't remember anything about this transaction? A. No.

Witness dismissed.

Mr. Cobb: We also desire to introduce the deposition of Mr. T. Dick, shown at page 3125 of the report of Mr. Penick, as Special Examiner in this case.

And thereupon T. DICK being called on behalf of the defendant Henry Carter, sworn, and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. State your name, age, occupation and residence.

A. My name is T. Dick; I live in McLouth; I am 69.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. I ain't doing anything.

Q. What has been your occupation in life?

A. Well, sir, I was a farmer up until about twelve or fourteen years ago, and then, I had the Post Office, here, for twelve years.

Q. Were you acquainted with old man Henry Carter during his life time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you get acquainted with him?

A. The first year I was in Kansas—'71.

Q. Are you acquainted with, you say, old man Henry Carter—during his life time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how far was your farm from the Carter farm?

A. Two miles, I think it is; a mile to the county line—yes just two miles.

Q. And you went on that farm, you say, in '71?

A. '71, yes, sir.

Q. And how long did you live on that farm?

A. I lived on that farm until McKinley was elected president.

Q. That was 1896?

A. Yes, I guess it was about that time; and I lived here in McLouth since then.

Q. Mr. Dick, did you know the members of Henry Carter's family? A. Why, I knew two girls and two boys.

Q. What girls?

A. One of them they called Susan, and one of them they called Adia.

Q. And what were the boys?

A. Why, Shannon and Tommy.

Q. Did you ever see a boy around Carter's known as H Carter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first see him?

A. Why, I first seen him in '88. The wasy I know it, is I was running a thrashing machine at the time, and we thrashed for Higgins, and he sold out that year and went away.

Q. Didn't he sell out in '89?

A. '89, yes; but it was '88 we thrashed for him.

Q. It was the last year you thrashed for Higgins?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was the last crop Higgins raised on that land?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. If he received the crop when he sold and shared——

A. He didn't, though.

Q. Do you know the facts?

A. Yes, sir, we thrashed there and thrashed for a man named Barney Rich.

Q. Just tell, how, just when you first saw him, just what sized boy he was?

A. Well, when I first seen him, I was there at old man Carter's and we were talking there in the yard and I think four children were playing there in the yard, and I asked him who they were, and I think he said three of them belonged to his son-in-law Yokum, and one of them was a boy he had gotten in Leavenworth; he said he took him to raise.

Q. Had you frequently been to the Carter place before that? A. Oh, yes, I was around there; would pass.

Q. How often would you be around the place?

A. Oh, I can't tell you; pass there a lots of times.

Q. Did you ever stop?

A. We stopped when the old man was out where I could talk to him.

Q. Did you ever see any boy about there—had you ever seen H about there before? A. No.

Q. You knew H from that time on, up until he was grown, did you? A. Yes, sir, seen him, off and on.

Q. You had never seen him before that time?

A. I had never seen him before that time.

Q. About how big a boy was he?

A. Oh, he was a child, I judge, between three and four years old; somewhere along there. He might have been five, but then, I don't think he we—could have been five years old then.

Q. You knew Adis, did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had known her for several years previous to that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever know of her having a child?

A. Heard talk of it.

Q. Well, did you ever see her when she [] pregnant?

A. No.

Q. How often would you see her?

A. Oh, I would see her very often when I was going by there; I don't know how often.

Q. Well, prior to the time that you saw this child there, of five years of age, had you seen her several years at intervals? A. Yes.

Q. You had never seen her pregnant? A. No.

Cross Examination by Mr. Hanford.

Q. Where did you see Adis? At the farm? A. Yes.

Q. Was she there all of the time?

A. No, part of the time she worked in Leavenworth, was my understanding.

Q. Did you see her in Leavenworth? A. No.

Q. So, you didn't see her continuously, then?

A. Oh, see her probably once a year, or oftener than that, too, but she worked quite a while in Leavenworth.

Mr. Blakeney: I want to move to strike out the statements of the witness as not responsive to any question about what he heard about Adis having a child, as hearsay, incompetent, and not responsive.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike out also, what Mr. Carter told—what the witness says Mr. Carter told him regarding the child that was pointed out to him on the place, on the ground that it is hearsay and incompetent.

Mr. Blakeney: I want the record to show whether or not he desires to embrace the whole—that would be hearsay, also, under his contention.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Dick, when did you first do any thrashing—that is, with your own machinery?

A. With the thrashing machine?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, after—he was up there—I went down to Mr. Steeples, and I asked him if he could tell me when Higgins sold out. We run that thrashing machine three years; the third year, thrashed on Higgins place again.

Q. Higgins had sold out?

A. Yes, and that is where I got my date.

Q. What date was that? A. He sold out in '89.

Q. You say you started your thrashing in '87? A. Yes.

Q. And thrashed for three years? A. Yes.

Q. This boy was around old man Carter's when you thrashed the second——

A. Yes, we deviled Higgins about him when we were thrashing there, the first ever I seen of him.

Q. Deviled Higgins in what way?

A. Telling him how much it looked like him.

Q. Was there any common talk in the community as to whose child it was? What woman's child it was?

Mr. Blakeney: Objected to as incompetent, hearsay, and immaterial.

A. Yes.

Q. What was that talk?

Mr. Blakeney: We object for the same reason; incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. Why, it was—the supposition was that it was Adis'.

Q. Was that the talk in the community?

A. That was the talk around.

Q. Was there another child there called Pink?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as not proper cross examination.

A. Yes.

Q. That child was also at old man Carter's?

Mr. Blakeney: Object as not proper cross examination, incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. Yes, she was at the old man Carter's.

Q. Now, how old was Pink at the time you were threshing there the second year, or in the year '88?

A. I don't know whether Pink was there at that time or not.

Q. You are not sure about that?

A. I am not sure about that. Pink was not there—I don't know whether Pink was there that time or not; she was the one, I guess, they never denied but what that was Adis' child.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as to what they never denied and move to strike it out as not responsive, incompetent, irrelevant, and not material.

Q. Mr. Dick, you lived within two miles, you say, of old man Carter's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. While you were living on the farm? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And up until the time McKinley was elected?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you would see his family more or less during all those years that you lived on the farm, wouldn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before you commenced to run your own thrasher, you would help the thrashing of the wheat in the neighborhood, wouldn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you helped thrash wheat?

A. Thrashed for fourteen years but they never run team thrashing machines then. I run a horse power for a good while, and then after we quit that, why, I did not thrash for three or four, or five, years, maybe and we got steam thrashing machinery. The first one that ever was in the country.

Q. Whose was this horse power thrashing machine?

A. Belonged to me and my partner.

Q. So it was five years between the time you quit running your horse power thrashing machine?

A. Must have been five years.

Q. And the time you got your steam thrashing machine?

A. Yes.

Q. It was in '87 that you got your steam thrashing machine? A. Yes.

Q. You say it was in '81, or '82 that you quit running that horse power? A. Yes.

Q. How long had you run your horse power thrashing machine?

A. Well, I owned three different horse power thrashing machines.

Q. And you thrashed on the Carter place with horse power machinery and on the other neighbors——

A. I never thrashed for Carter's with a steam thrashing machine.

Q. But you did with horse power?

A. I did with horse power.

Q. And you thrashed for all the other neighbors around?

A. Yes.

Q. With the horse power? A. Yes.

Q. And with the steam, except Carter? A. Yes.

Q. Now, might it not have been when you were running the horse power machine that you noticed this boy H?

A. No.

Q. Quite sure it was not?

A. I am quite sure it was not then, you know. Higgins, you know, didn't live on that place only four or five years. I didn't own a thrashing machine while he lived there.

Q. You didn't thrash for him at all with the horse power? A. No.

Q. Where did he live before he came on that place?

A. I don't know where he came from; he was a stranger in there.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, a recess is had until 3 o'clock P. M.

And thereafter, court reconvened at three o'clock P. M., pursuant to adjournment, and the following proceedings were had:

Mr. Stuart: Mr. German, do you want to cross examine Mr. Curtis?

Mr. German: Not at this time. We have him here under process as our witness too.

The Court: He is under process for the Government?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: And you may want him in rebuttal?

Mr. German: Yes, sir.

The Court: He may be excused now until Tuesday morning.

Mr. German: Your Honor, I think we will want the books too, and want him to bring the books.

The Court: Well, let him bring the books of original entry.

Mr. Stuart: Your Honor will let us know what books, there are so many of them?

Mr. Long: We can bring the books.

And thereupon, MARY A. SMITH was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendant, Henry Carter, and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. What is your name? A. Mary A. Smith.
Q. Where do you live? A. Leavenworth, Kansas.
Q. How long have you lived in Kansas?
A. Lived in Leavenworth fifty-one years.
Q. I will ask you if you ever knew a party in Leavenworth by the name of Mollie Letcher? A. Yes, sir.
Q. How long did you know her?
A. I knew old Mollie Letcher for twenty or twenty-five years, maybe longer than that.
Q. Did you ever know an Indian woman around her place?
A. I saw her there, yes.
Q. Do you know what name she went by?
A. Indian Minnie.
Q. How old did Indian Minnie appear to be when you first saw her?
A. Well, between nineteen and twenty-one or twenty-two years, I judge that.
Q. Just a young woman? A. Yes, sir.
Q. When you first knew her, Mrs. Smith, did she appear to be abnormal in any way? A. No, sir.
Q. She didn't appear——
A. Not when I first knew who she was.
Q. She didn't appear to be pregnant. Did you afterwards notice any abnormal condition in her?
A. Saw her once while in that condition.
Q. In your judgment, in what stage of pregnancy was she at that time?
A. Well, I saw her about one month before the birth of the child.
Q. Did you know about a child being born to this Indian girl? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Were you there at the birth of the child? A. No, sir.
Q. Did you see the child or the Indian Minnie after the child was born? A. The next morning.

Q. The next morning after it was born? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that?

A. They were at Granny Letcher's up stairs in the north room.

Q. Did you see—— How long from that time did you see this Indian girl around there?

A. Well, about a month or two.

Q. Did she have the child with her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether she nursed that child or not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You saw that yourself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What became of Indian Minnie after a month or two?

A. Well, she worked from place to place, around Fort Leavenworth and in the city.

Q. And did you see her back at Granny Letcher's?

A. No, I never saw her there.

Q. You never saw her there?

A. Not after the child was about a month old.

Q. You just saw her around town? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you continue to see her around the town there, Mrs. Smith?

A. Well, from three to four years.

Q. In other words, three to four years after the boy was born? A. The birth of the child.

Q. Birth of the child? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During that time, did you see the child with her on any occasion? A. I saw her with him once.

Q. Where was that, Mrs. Smith? A. At my house.

Q. At your house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the occasion of her coming to your house?

A. I had some little clothing that a lady gave me and I wanted to give them to her for her baby; I left word at Granny Letcher's and she came after them.

Q. You say that you never saw Indian Minnie after the child was three or four years old you say?

A. No, never seen her.

Q. Do you know what became of her? A. No, sir.

Q. How long did you see the boy around there?

A. I saw the boy until he was between four and six years old, I don't remember which, but he was big enough to toddle around on the street.

Q. Play around on the streets? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what became of the boy?

A. Well, I heard he went into the country to live with a colored family that was on a farm.

The Court: What she heard will not be considered. That will be stricken from the records.

Q. Is Granny Letcher living or dead?

A. She is dead.

Q. From whom did you hear of this matter?

A. From Granny Letcher.

Q. How long was it after this time until you again saw this boy if you saw him again?

A. I met him once on the street I guess he was about thirteen years old.

Q. Did you recognize him as the same boy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any conversation with him at the time?

A. Just a few words.

Q. You are sure it was the same boy? A. Positively.

Q. I wish you would state to the court just what that conversation was at that time?

A. Well, when I was going down the street I met him in the street playing with a ball.

Mr. Cruce: If the court please, we object to that as hearsay.

The Court: Anything he said or what he did wouldn't be competent.

Mr. Cobb: Just on the question of identity.

The Court: Question of identity?

Mr. Cobb: Yes.

The Court: Well, this woman knew him?

Mr. Cobb: Very well, I will not insist on it.

Q. Mrs. Smith, do you know what the boy was called there in Leavenworth when he was around Granny Letcher's?

A. He was called Tom, Tommy Atkins, and had a nickname Commidore.

Q. Now, have you again seen that party, that boy?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you next see him, Mrs. Smith?

A. Well, I saw him I guess it was a couple of years ago, probably not quite that long.

Q. Where did you see him then, Mrs. Smith?

A. Well, I sent for him. I heard about an Indian boy and I sent for him to come and see me. He come to my house one early morning and when he knocked on the door I opened the door and I recognized him.

Q. How did you recognize him?

A. Well, I knew his features, knew his face.

Q. You recognized him from his appearance and from his features? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any other way of identifying him, Mrs. Smith? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Just state to the court what it was?

A. Well, there had been three or four there trying to say they were him, and I knew they were not him. When they came, I said: Now, listen, before you go any further——

Q. Now, I don't care for the details.

A. I knew him—— I asked him if he had a mark on his back and he said yes.

Q. Did you make an examination to see if he had a mark on his back? A. No, sir, I took his word for it.

Q. Have you ever made an examination to see whether the mark was there? A. I saw the mark, yes.

Q. Describe that mark to the court.

A. Well, it is a mark just below the shoulder blade. It is not a red mark nor a brown mark, but it is more white then when he was a baby.

Q. When you examined him, did you find that mark on him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you say it was more of a white mark than when he was a baby? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you notice that mark on him when he was a baby?

A. Yes, sir, the morning after he was born.

Q. How come you to notice that mark on him the morning after he was born?

A. Well, when I was a younger woman I used to practice nursing and when I went into Granny Letcher's she told me that the baby had cried all night and would I go up and see what was the matter, and I guess maybe his clothes are too tight on him, and she asked me to examine him; and I did, and I found the mark and I asked her what she had been doing to him to cause those marks and she [] nothing—they were there when he was born.

Q. Recognized some marks when you dressed the baby the next morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you saw when he came to your house——

A. I didn't see them when he came to my house.

Q. Well, when? A. When I saw them, yes.

Q. You merely asked him about them then?

A. I asked him, yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mrs. Smith, you say this Indian girl went by the name of Indian Minnie? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you ever seen her since she disappeared from Leavenworth? A. Yes, I saw her a couple of years ago.

Q. You didn't see her until a couple of years ago?

A. No, I never saw her.

Q. When you saw her, Mrs. Smith, did you know that she was the same woman that went by the name of Indian Minnie? A. Well, I was positive, yes.

Q. In what way did you recognize her? A. Well, she had the resemblance and everything, and then she recognized the color of some sewing that I done for her.

Q. Now, just state to the court what was said about the sewing that made you recognize——

A. Well, we went to the Fort—Fort Leavenworth, in a taxicab, a automobile, and while going out we got to talking to get acquainted and she mentioned herself about the red calico dress that I made her.

Q. Now, when she gave—in order words, you recognized her as being the same party? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From her appearance and then from the conversation you had with her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you say you drove around with her in an automobile when she was there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the purpose of driving around with her?

A. Well, I guess no individual purpose at all; she was going to the Post to see somebody that she had worked for, and asked me go along.

Q. It was to find people that she knew? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you she recognize you when she came to your place there? A. I don't know.

Q. Did she appear to remember you?

A. Not until I had a talk with her.

Q. Now until you had a talk with her? A. No, sir.

Q. And then you went with her to the Fort?

A. To the Fort, yes.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Where did you see this Indian Minnie two years ago?

A. At my own home.

Q. Who was with her? A. Mr. Long.

Q. And it was the same Indian Minnie that you saw at Granny Letcher's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You know that? A. I know that, yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you testify in that case that Granny Letcher told you that this boy was dead?

A. She did, yes; when he went to the country, she said she heard he was dead.

Q. Now, let's see; was this question asked you: "Do you think that you would be able to recognize the boy if you saw him? Well, I don't know; you see that has been twenty-nine years ago and he was only a baby when I saw him but I think I could draw off the resemblance if I would see him, but I heard afterwards, I used to do a great deal of reading and writing for this old lady Letcher, and I heard afterwards that the boy was dead; she let someone take it and she said he was dead."? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is correct. So, the boy you saw at Granny Letcher's was the baby that Minnie had? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you saw the baby with this Indian Minnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Granny Letcher told you that that baby was dead? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mrs. Smith, when it was a baby, it had a red spot under its shoulder? A. Kind of pink—pale pink.

Q. Sort of a strawberry, wasn't it?

A. Well, not so deep as a strawberry.

Q. Well, sort of a strawberry, and now it is a grape colored—white grape?

Mr. German: We object to the statement of the witness that Granny Letcher told her that the boy was dead.

The Court: Merely a part of the cross examination——

Mr. Stuart: That is all.

Q. The scar you talk about now looks like a bunch of California grapes, doesn't it—white grapes?

A. No, didn't look like grapes; looked like a spot.

Q. Did you say it looked like grapes? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, it is like a spot——

A. No, sir, it is like a blister or something on him.

Q. It was pink then? A. Yes, sir, pink.

Q. And it is white now?

A. Yes, sir. It gradually grew white because I dressed him many a time.

Q. How fast did it grow white? A. I don't know that.

Q. Don't you know how fast it grew white?

A. No, I never measured it.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. Mrs. Smith when did you first have this matter called to your attention and by whom?

A. I disremember but the first time anybody ever talked to me was by a colored lady.

Q. Sadie James?

A. I think that is what her name is; I learned afterwards.

Q. How long after Sadie James talked to you was it that you talked to Mr. Josey? A. About a month.

Q. What was Mr. Josey's name, initial?

A. I don't know?

Q. Was it R. A. Josey?

A. I think so, I'm not positive.

Q. Who was with Mr. Josey when he talked to you?

A. Nobody

Q. Then after Mr. Josey talked to you, when was it you first talked to Long—Mr. Long?

A. I don't remember; not very long.

Q. You talked to all of those people before you saw Minnie? A. I didn't talk to very many.

Q. I know, but you talked to those three before you saw Minnie Atkins? A. Yes.

Q. And they told you all about her life, didn't they?

A. No, they didn't say a word about Minnie; their business with me was to find the boy. That is what they wanted to do.

Q. They told you about the boy born at Granny's didn't they?

A. No, they didn't have to; they told me who he was.

Q. Told you who he was. Will you tell the court please, why you didn't testify in 1914 that Henry Carter was a boy? Just tell the court why it was you didn't testify in 1914 that Henry Carter was a boy?

A. Any time that I have testified I recognized the boy and if anybody got the testimony wrong, why I didn't give it.

Q. Just tell the court, frankly, why it was that you didn't say anything about the boy in 1914?

A. Where was that, Leavenworth?

Q. Yes.

A. Why I certainly did, if I was on the stand; I certainly did.

Q. Did Mr. Long tell you not to say anything about Henry Carter? A. No, sir.

Q. Did Mr. Josey? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, you didn't say anything about him did you?

A. Why, they didn't give me time; you didn't give me time.

Q. I wasn't there.

A. You dismissed me there in the postoffice in our town before I could say anything.

Q. 1914 when you testified? A. 1914—1915, I guess.

Q. When you testified in the courthouse in Leavenworth?

A. I don't know when it was but you know very well when it was, I was there. I know you dismissed me mighty quick.

Q. You were produced as a witness on behalf of Mr. Page at that time, weren't you?

A. I don't know anything about Mr. Page; I never met him, that I know of.

Q. You were produced by Mr. Long? A. Mr. Long, yes.

Q. And you were examined on that occasion by Mr. Rice, the attorney for Mr. Page and Mr. Long?

A. I met Mr. Rice, yes, sir.

Q. He examined you on the witness stand that day, asked you questions? A. I think so.

Q. You told Mr. Long and Mr. Josey and Sadie when you talked to them about making this red calico dress for Minnie, about remembering her by that?

A. No, sir, I did not. When I met this Sadie and the first of them I didn't see Minnie either.

Q. I know, but you told them?

A. No, sir, I never mentioned it.

Q. Didn't you tell either one of them about making a dress for Minnie? A. Afterwards I did.

Q. When?

A. After I had met Minnie and talked to her. Minnie recognized me and remembered the dress.

Q. She didn't recognize you at first?

A. I think she did, yes.

Q. I thought you said she didn't recognize you at first?

A. Well, of course being away from her so long, we couldn't recognize each other on the spur of the moment, we have grown stouter.

Q. Sadie James told you all about this boy born at Granny's? A. No, sir, because I didn't give her time.

Q. Well, you told her about it? A. No, I did not.

Q. Who did you tell about it?

A. I knew it because I was there, I don't have to have anybody tell me.

Q. His name was Commidore?

A. No, his name was Tommy Atkins, but George Crilly nicknamed him Commidore.

Q. Had George Crilly been talking to you, Mrs. Smith?

A. No, sir.

Q. Mrs. Smith, didn't some one tell you not to remember anything about that scar? A. Not that I remember.

Q. Is that the reason you didn't testify to it?

A. I have always testified to it. If you have got any testimony that that isn't in, I didn't make it.

Q. When were you married, Mrs. Smith?

A. Married, I was married forty-three years ago, you can count that up for yourself.

Q. To Mr. Smith? A. Mr. Smith, yes, sir.

Q. You were then living with your husband when you saw this child? A. Yes, sir, living with my husband.

Q. You saw this woman a month before she gave birth to a child?

A. Oh, I saw her quite frequently before that, but I saw her in that condition a month before she gave birth to the child.

Q. She was in a very large condition at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had known her before that time?

A. I had seen her on the street but never knew her.

Q. You knew she was staying at Granny's?

A. No, I knew she was a girl called Indian Minnie.

Q. And she was living at Granny's when you first saw her in this pregnant condition?

A. She was sitting there I suppose she was living there.

Q. You saw her frequently at Granny's until after the child was born? A. No, I never saw her but once.

Q. You saw her in the daytime? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All the times you saw her at Granny's was in the daytime? A. Just that one time, yes, sir.

Q. But you saw her when the child was how old?

A. The next morning after the child was born.

Q. That was in the daytime?

A. Yes, sir, in the morning.

Q. You saw her frequently thereafter? A. Oh, no.

Q. How often?

A. Maybe once every two weeks; I sewed for this Mrs. Letcher.

Q. And you saw her in the daytime when you did see her?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And she was staying then at Granny's?

A. Always seemed to be there, I suppose she was staying there.

Q. How long did she seem to stay there?

A. Don't know.

Q. Until she went out to work? A. Don't know.

Q. Well, about two months? A. About a month.

Q. So, it was about two months you saw her at Granny's?

A. One month.

Q. One month before and one month after?

A. Just about that time, might have been a little more and might have been a little less.

Q. Then, after that you saw her how often at Granny's?

A. I didn't see her any more at Granny's.

Q. She was working in town?

A. Yes, sir, and at the Post, Fort Leavenworth.

Q. Where, in town? A. Don't know.

Q. But she was working in the town?

A. She was working in town, yes, sir, some place.

Q. And when did she go to work at the Fort?

A. Don't know.

Q. But afterwards she went to work at the Fort?

A. Think so.

Q. Mrs. Smith, what sized woman was Minnie at that time?

A. Well, a very well built woman, I don't know exactly.

Q. Would she weigh a hundred pounds at that time?

A. Yes, and more.

Q. She was small of stature? A. No, she was stout.

Q. Do you remember the occasion when Mr. Cook and myself went out to your house about 1915 and 1915? A. I do.

Q. After you had testified? A. I do.

Q. Did you tell us there that this woman you saw at Granny Letcher's couldn't be the Indian Minnie you later saw?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you tell us there that Mr. Long had suggested to you that you say nothing about the scar on the boy's back?

A. Did not, because Mr. Long never suggested such a thing to me.

Q. But you didn't say anything about the scar on Tommy's back? A. I did, yes, sir.

Q. You did when you testified at Leavenworth?

A. I did. If you haven't got it that way you misrepresented it.

Q. I didn't transcribe these notes, the stenographer did.

A. Yes.

Q. What year was it that you saw her there?

A. Don't know.

Q. You said in 1914, it was 1885 or 1886?

A. I don't know, it was between twenty-eight and thirty years ago, thirty-two or thirty-three years ago might have been.

Q. How long had Granny Letcher been living on Seneca Street when you saw her?

A. Don't remember, don't remember quite a long time.

Q. She had been living on Seneca Street some two or three years you testified in 1914? A. I think so.

Q. Is that right, had she been living there for two or three years when you first saw Minnie there?

A. I don't know that long ago.

Q. But she had been living there a long time?

A. Granny lived there, yes.

Q. Before you ever saw Minnie there. You say she worked some place in the town of Leavenworth, do you know where she worked? A. I don't know, not whose house.

Q. But you don't know where in the city she was working? A. No, sir.

Q. But she was working down in the city some place?

A. Worked some place, at least she said she was.

Q. This boy you saw at Granny Letcher's was a negro boy, wasn't he? A. He didn't look it to me.

Q. Didn't he look like an Indian boy with negro blood in him? A. No, sir, didn't look like negro to me.

Q. Well, he was fully as dark as Henry Carter?

A. Well, I couldn't tell you, because a baby has never got its natural color.

Q. But you thought he was the son of a negro father, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't have no thought like that; I never waste time to think.

Q. Never stopped to think about it? A. No.

Q. Mrs. Smith, you say—— Did Dennis Jones ever talk to you about this case? A. Don't think he did.

Q. Rube Smith? A. No, sir.

Q. You have never talked to either of them? A. No.

Q. Sure of that?

A. I might have passed the time and said something, but never had a conversation.

Q. Then, the only people you have talked to before you testified in Leavenworth, was Sadie, Mr. Josey, Mr. Long and Minnie?

A. No, naturally suppose that I would speak to other people about that, not no attorneys though.

Q. But you talked to those four you remember? A. Yes.

Q. And you talked to Crilly?

A. Well, not on this subject.

Q. You gave your deposition in Leavenworth on the 13th of October at the Court House?

A. I don't remember when it was.

Q. It was in the fall of 1914. At that time was this question asked you and this answer returned: "Q. And was this Minnie Atkins colored or white or Indian, so far as she appeared to you? A. Well, she was fair enough but she did not look like a white person to me"? A. I said that.

Q. "Q. How old was the baby when you saw it at that time? A. The first time? Q. Yes. A. Just about a day old"?

A. Well, a night old would be about a day old.

The Court: You said that?

A. I said the next morning after it was born.

Q. Then were these questions asked and these answers returned: "Q. Were you at that time acquainted with Indian Minnie?" speaking about 1885 and 1886——

A. I don't remember if that question was asked.

Q. Wait a minute, "Not personally acquainted with her, I met her though"? A. Yes.

Q. "Q. Where did you first see her? A. I first saw her at this old lady Letcher's. Q. What were the circumstances occurring at the first time you first saw Minnie Atkins at old lady Letcher's? A. Well, I taken some sewing home that I had been doing for the old lady, and she said that she had a sick woman there and I asked her what was the matter with her and she said—— Q. Leave out a little of what she said. A. I said could I go up stairs and she said yes and I went up stairs. Q. Whom did you see? A. I saw a girl looked to be about a quarter grade Indian. Q. Where was she? A. She was in bed. Q. Who was with her when you saw her? A. There was no one with her only the baby when I saw her." Were those questions asked and those answers returned? A. My answer was not that I asked to go up stairs.

The Court: Was the rest of it all right?

A. Yes, they asked me to go up stairs and see what was the matter with the baby.

Q. Were these questions asked you and these answers returned: "You saw the mother around for about a year after the baby was born? A. Seemingly that long."

A. I didn't see her at Granny Letcher's.

Q. But you saw her around?

A. Knew she was in town but I didn't see her anywhere. That was only when she came to my house to bring a little sewing that she wanted me to do.

Q. How old was the baby then?

A. Oh, I saw her with the baby when he could stand alone.

Q. You saw her frequently until the baby could stand alone? A. Once or twice I saw her but not frequently.

Q. Did you ever see her in a family way after that baby was born? A. Saw her frequently after that?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. Were these questions asked and answers returned: "What kind of a looking boy was it at the time he was four or five years old? Was he light or dark? A. Well, he was just about what you call half grade. Q. Might have been Indian, might have been negro? A. He looked more like a colored boy than he did an Indian."

A. I never have said that he looked like a colored boy.

Q. "Of course he had straight hair; he didn't have no curly hair but he was rather brown." Did you make those answers?

A. Not that he looked like a colored boy; I never have said it.

Mr. Allen: May it be agreed that I am reading this right?

Mr. Cobb: We will take it for granted that you are reading it right.

The Court: We will take it for granted that you are, Judge.

Mr. Stuart: What page is that?

Mr. Allen: Page 270, Judge. The last answer was 270. I would like to read that answer over again—she interrupted.

The Court: Read the question and answer.

Q. "Might have been Indian and might have been negro? A. He looked more like a colored boy than he did an Indian; of course he had straight hair; he didn't have no curly hair, but he was rather brown."

The Court: Did you make that answer at Leavenworth?

A. No, sir.

Q. Were these questions asked you and answers returned: "Do you think you would be able to recognize that boy if you saw him? A. Well, I don't know; you see this has been twenty-nine years ago; he was only a baby when I saw him but I think that I could draw off the resemblance if I would see him; but I heard afterwards, I used to do a great deal of reading and writing for this old lady Letcher, and I heard afterwards that boy was dead. She let someone take him and I think she said he was dead."

A. Yes, that is what she said.

The Court: That was your answer at Leavenworth?

A. Yes, but I didn't say that he was a negro boy.

Q. Was this question asked you and answer returned: "Q. When did Granny Letcher tell you that the boy had died? A. Well, it must have—he must have been seven or eight years old then." A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Now, was that your testimony at Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You talked to Mr. Long within two days before you testified at Leavenworth, didn't you? A. I don't remember.

Q. To refresh your recollection I will ask you if this question was asked and answer returned: "Have you talked to Mr. Long within the past two days with reference to this matter? A. I believe I did," refreshing your recollection from that do you say now whether or not you talked to him just before you testified at Leavenworth? A. I don't remember.

Q. But you did talk to him shortly before you testified? A. I think I did.

Q. You were living right next door to the Letcher home, wasn't you at the time this child you saw was born?

A. I was about two blocks away.

Q. Were these questions asked and answers returned by you: "Where were you living at the time that you went to this Letcher woman's house? A. I was living right next door."

A. No, sir, because I wasn't living right next door and I couldn't testify to that.

Q. "Next door to her? A. Yes, sir. Q. How long did you live there? A. I lived there about a year."

A. No, not at that time; I did live there once upon a time but not when the baby was born.

Q. When did you live there Mrs. Smith?

A. Well, I disremember but I know I lived there.

Q. In after years, was it? A. Yes.

Q. And you lived next door on Seneca street, at one time, to Granny Letcher's?

A. West of Granny Letcher's—east of Granny Letcher's.

Q. Wasn't it Mary Lower that you saw there at Granny's at one time, and isn't that the child that you are now testifying about? A. No, sir.

Q. State whether or not a picture was brought to you of Mary Lower during the early stages of this case?

A. No, sir, never have seen her picture.

Q. Wasn't a picture of a baby brought to you? A. No.

Q. Were these questions asked you and answers returned: "How much sewing did you do for her"—speaking of Granny Letcher. "A. Well, I don't know; I have sewed for Mrs. Letcher for about ten years. Q. You have sewed for Mrs. Letcher for about ten years. A. Yes, sir. Q. Did a good deal of sewing for her? A. Yes, sir. Q. Now, at what time do you say you lived next door to her about a year, about that part of that year; what time in the year were you living there was it that you first saw that child? A. I disremember. Q. You don't remember that? A. I know it was not cold enough that I wrapped up when I went over there."

A. That was at the time of the birth of the child.

The Court: Was that your testimony at Leavenworth?

A. Well, not while the child was there I didn't live next door to them. It was after the child was taken away.

The Court: How about the rest of it?

A. It is alright.

Q. Was it cold weather? A. No, sir.

Q. What did you mean when you said it was not cold enough that you wrapped up?

A. Well, I suppose they must have meant what time of year that boy was born. That question was asked me and I said I didn't remember the month but it wasn't cold enough for me to wrap up. This is the only question that I gave that answer to.

Q. Now refreshing your recollection, you saw a baby there at Granny's when you lived next door, didn't you?

A. No, sir.

Q. That is the baby you are talking about, isn't it?

A. No, I didn't see no baby there.

Q. Well, it was a little cold, wasn't it?

A. Oh, it wasn't cold, no; I didn't have nothing around me and I came two blocks away.

Q. Well, it wasn't summertime, you remember that?

A. Oh, no, it wasn't hot. I wasn't hot going down or coming back.

Q. Were these questions asked you and these answers returned: "Q. How long since you and your husband separated? A. Four years ago in February. Q. You were living with him at the time that you lived next door to this woman? A. Yes, sir."

The Court: Was that your testimony at Leavenworth?

Q. Was that your testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Has anybody ever asked you not to say anything about this scar on Tommy's back? A. Never that I remember.

Q. You don't remember that? Sure of that?

A. Don't remember who it was or when it was.

Q. But somebody did, didn't they? A. No, sir.

Q. When Mr. Cook and myself talked to you about the very first thing you told us was that the boy that you saw with a woman at Granny Letcher's is now Henry Carter, wasn't it? A. Well, that is what they called him then, yes.

Q. You said Henry Carter is the boy I saw at Granny's, didn't you? A. The boy that call Henry Carter.

Q. And you told us also, did you not at that time, that the Minnie Atkins who was brought to your home by Mr. Long, was not the woman that was stopping at Granny Letcher's at the time you stated you saw the baby and the woman in bed?

A. No, sir, I don't think I made that statement to you.

Q. You say Indian Minnie remembered you?

A. I think she did.

Q. She didn't at first though?

A. Well, she had to—of course we are both broken, a few years on our heads; we didn't look like we did when we were young.

Q. Dennis Jones with her when you saw her? A. No, sir.

Q. Who was with her? A. Mr. Long.

Q. Who else?

A. I don't think anybody else was; I don't remember.

Q. Was Mr. Crilley?

A. Oh, he was driving the car, yes.

Q. And it was some little time before you recognized her, wasn't it, Mrs. Smith? A. No, sir.

Q. You had been told she was coming there?

A. No, sir, I never knew she was coming until she got into the house.

Q. Who introduced you to her? A. Mr. Long.

Q. You knew she was in the city, though?

A. No, I didn't know that.

Q. Well, they told you they were going to bring her down there though? A. How do you know they did?

Q. Didn't they? A. No.

Q. Didn't Sadie tell you so?

A. Why, Sadie never said only a few words to me and I chased her out of my house.

Q. What did Long say when he introduced her to you?

A. Just said—introduced me, said this is Mrs. Smith, and this is Minnie.

The Court: How long was Sadie in your house, Mrs. Smith?

Q. She was there twice; came the first time and asked about this boy and I told her——

The Court: How long was she there the first time?

A. About five minutes the first time.

Q. And then how long was Mr. Josey there?

A. Mr. Josey talked to me about a half hour.

Q. What did he ask you about?

A. Asked me did I remember that boy and I told him yes.

Q. Then how long after that was it when Mr. Long was there? A. I disremember.

Q. What did Mr. Long say to you about it?

A. I don't know; asked me if I would recognize the boy or if I knew he was dead or alive.

Q. You paid any money when you were testified in Leavenworth in 1914?

A. Why, I got my witness fees, that is all I ever got.

Q. How much? A. A dollar and a half a day I think.

Q. Didn't you give five dollars? A. Who?

Q. Mr. Long?

A. Give me expenses back and forth, that is all.

Q. How much? A. Give me five dollars.

Q. You testified there that you knew this child, and knew Minnie and never said a word about Henry, did you?

A. Henry? I didn't know Henry.

Q. Do you know Mr. Hanford? A. No, sir.

Q. This gentlemen here sitting down?

A. I don't think I do; no.

Q. Never saw Mr. Hanford?

A. I might have seen him; I have seen about fifty.

Q. Did he ever come to your house to talk to you?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did he come there with Minnie?

A. I don't think anybody ever been there with Minnie but Mr. Long.

Q. Mr. Crilley wasn't with Minnie?

A. Oh, he was always driving the car or the cab.

Mr. Allen: Henry; stand up please.

(Henry Carter stands up in rear of court room.)

Q. Is that the boy you say you saw at Granny's?

A. Positively sure he is the boy.

Q. Positively sure he is the boy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have seen him off and on from the time you saw this boy there until the present time, haven't you? A. No, sir.

Q. How old was he when you last saw him?

A. When I last saw him?

Q. Yes?

A. Well, I saw him a couple of years ago, the first time I saw him since he was about 13 years old, and from four to six I saw him every day, sometimes three and four times a day, because I almost took care of that child.

Q. You knew about old man Henry Carter coming in there and getting him and taking him out to his home, didn't you?

A. I knew someone came in from the country and took him out.

Q. Oh, he is the boy you saw at Granny Letcher's?

A. Yes, he is the boy.

Q. And do you know Adis Wright? A. No.

Q. Did you have a boy about this age, Mrs. Smith?

A. My boy was about two years older, about two years.

Q. Did he play with Henry? A. No, sir.

Q. Why didn't he play with Henry?

A. Well, I lived too far away and didn't allow my boy out in the streets, he was too young.

Q. You didn't allow your boy to play with negroes?

A. Well, I didn't consider Henry a negro.

Q. Henry lived with a negro woman?

A. Yes, sir, and a thorough-bred one too.

Q. What? A. A thorough-bred one.

Q. What do you mean?

A. Well, real nigger, she was a real nigger.

Q. Was she light complected? A. No, sir.

Q. Was she jet black?

A. No, not jet black, she was a common dark negro.

Q. She didn't have any white blood at all?

A. I don't know about that.

Q. She was a real nigger? A. I think she was, yes.

Q. What was your boy's name that was two years older?

A. Percy W. Smith.

Q. Where does he live? A. I hope he lives in Heaven.

Q. He is dead now? A. Yes.

Q. What was his nickname? A. Swipe.

Q. Swipe Smith? A. Yes.

Q. He never played with Tommy?

A. No, I don't think he ever did, no.

Q. What year was he born in?

A. Well, my boy would be thirty-four years old if he was living now.

Q. He played with boys his age, did he?

A. Well, in those times he didn't, he was too young to play with anybody then.

Q. But up to the time that this boy disappeared from Granny's he was too young to play with boys, wasn't he?

A. Well, he used to run around in the streets wild, like a wild animal anywhere and everywhere.

Q. But, before he got very wild and while he was still young he was taken to the country?

A. Well, between four and six years old he disappeared from me.

Q. Well, you continually saw him at Granny's for years?

A. No, not years. After just a little while.

Q. But you know he disappeared?

A. I know he went away and I asked her for him because I was interested in the little fellow.

Q. She lived down in that part of town, you understood where or about where?

A. Well, reading the papers, never saw her in my life.

Q. You heard so? A. No, I don't know.

Q. Indian Minnie didn't?

A. I think she did, I am not sure of that.

Q. You never saw them?

A. No, sir, I was a married woman and had my children all in a bunch, and I stayed with them and didn't have those people in my house.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. You testified in 1914 at Leavenworth, and last year you were subpoenaed in Leavenworth again were you?

A. I don't think so, I might have been. I dismissed all of those things because they don't interest me enough to put them down, make a memorandum of them.

Q. When you got there, you remember this gentleman here, don't you? A. I certainly do, I think I do.

Q. Never heard of them at all?

A. Heard of them, yes, sir.

Q. Now, this scar business you talk about, you didn't testify to that, you weren't asked about that when you testified in 1914? A. Pardon me, about what?

Q. When you gave your testimony in Leavenworth, you weren't asked about the scar then? A. Why, sure.

Q. Now, you think it over?

A. I have given my evidence, whenever I gave it I mentioned that spot on that boy's back.

Q. Are you certain of that?

A. I am positive, sure. If you haven't got it in my testimony somebody has knocked it out.

Q. Who was it asked you that question?

A. Everybody that ever come to me.

Q. No, but when you were on the stand, who asked you about the scar? A. I didn't get on the stand.

Q. You know what testifying is, don't you, Mrs. Smith?

A. Well, I am testifying now, ain't I?

Q. You are testifying under oath. You testified in Leavenworth under oath?

A. I certainly did, but I didn't get to say nothing.

Q. You testified once in Leavenworth under oath?

A. Why, certainly.

Q. When you gave your testimony that Judge Allen asked about, that was the testimony you gave under oath?

A. Some of it.

Q. But what he read you, that was under oath?

A. Not all of it.

Q. You did testify under oath? A. I did.

Q. And nobody asked you about that scar, did they?

A. They wanted to know how I knew this was the boy and I told them about the scar on his back.

Q. When you testified in Leavenworth under oath?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are certain of that? A. I was certain.

Q. You are sure, you are as sure of that as you are that the scar was red? A. No.

Q. Did you know Alva Adams?

A. No, sir, I wasn't out among the boys, the tough boys like those.

Q. But you lived next door to Granny Letcher?

A. She wasn't no tough boy.

Q. Well, she was a tough lady?

A. Well, not apparently to me, never was tough when I was around her.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Cobb.

Q. Mrs. Smith, mention was made of the fact that you were separated from your husband years ago; how long did you live with Mr. Smith? A. Live with Mr. Smith?

Q. Yes?

A. Well, I have been separated from him seven years and I have been married to him forty-three years, so you can figure that up.

Q. That would be thirty-six years you lived with him?

A. About.

Q. How many children have you raised? A. Six.

Q. Mrs. Smith, when you gave your deposition in Leavenworth, that is the first time, in October, 1914, was that before or after H. Carter had come to you to be recognized?

A. I think it was after.

Q. You think it was after he came to you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, to refresh your memory, you stated that Carter, you first saw him recently about two years ago?

A. Well, two or three, I haven't set down the dates of these things you know, because it didn't interest me that far.

Q. You don't remember whether that was before or after Carter came to you? A. I think it was after.

Q. When you gave that testimony? A. I think so.

Q. Now, at Leavenworth, when you were called to the Federal Court House there to give your deposition, who did you first see there?

A. Don't remember, I saw everybody, went right in the room where they all were.

Q. You saw Mr. Allen and he took you off in a room and talked to you I believe you said, is that right?

A. I don't remember whether he did at the County Court House or not, he did in the Federal Court.

Q. In the Federal Court? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After you had talked to him did he use you as a witness or not? A. No.

Q. Told you you could go? A. He didn't want me.

Cross Examination by Mr. Allen.

Q. The first time you saw me was long after you testified, at your home?

A. Well, don't remember that. There has been so many bothering me, but I remember you. But I do remember you.

Q. I was there with Mr. Cook, don't you remember?

A. Who you were with there, I think a short stout man.

The Court: Well, I understand, Judge, that you were not there in 1914.

(Witness dismissed.)

And thereupon, BENJAMIN ENGLISH was called and sworn as a witness for and on behalf of the defendant, Henry Carter, and testified as follows:

Q. She didn't live out on the street? A. No, sir.

ELIJAH FOWLER being called on behalf of the defendant Henry Carter, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. State your name, age and residence.

Q. My name is Elijah Fowler; I live in Jefferson County, Union Township; I am 65 past.

Q. Mr. Fowler, have you resided in this county during the last thirty years? A. Since 1870.

Q. 1870. What business are you engaged in, and have you been engaged in since 1870.

A. Oh, farming, and running a thrashing machine; only kind of business in the way of farming.

Q. Were you acquainted with old man Henry Carter during his lifetime? A. I was.

Q. Where did you get acquainted with Carter?

A. I got acquainted with him soon after I came here in '70.

Q. How far did you live from him in '70?

A. Oh, something like a mile, when I first got acquainted with him.

Q. And how long did you live within a mile of him?

A. Oh, two or three years.

Q. Then, where did you move to?

A. Well, then, I moved up on the place where I live now.

Q. And how far is that from the place Henry Carter lived?

A. About two and a half miles.

Q. State what acquaintance you had—what association you had with H. Carter? A. With who?

Q. Old man Henry Carter, during his lifetime?

A. Well, not anything more than in business. I run a thrashing machine and I thrashed for him a good many times. Of course, in a business way; they were colored people and we didn't neighbor back and forward, anything more than business. I thrashed for him at different times and was there.

Q. Was his place on your route to town or did you frequently pass his place?

A. No, it wasn't on my route to town but I seen the old man right often, and was passing there quite often.

Q. What members of his family did he have living with him during the '70's when you knew him?

A. Oh, I can't tell you now, it has been a good while ago. There was quite a bunch of kids around there; some of them pretty well grown, some of them grown and gone. He had a boy that came back there, I seen him once or twice; I think his name was John. For ten years after I came back, he was gwoen and gone when I came here. I seen the girls Adis and Susan, and the one that married Yokum; saw them quite often.

Q. You saw Adis quite often did you?

A. Yes, frequently in passing there.

Q. How frequently could you say that you saw Adis during '79 and '80? What is your best recollection about it?

A. I can't say that—nothing but memory, and I am getting at an age where my memory is not very good any more. Probably saw her a time or so but to say how many times, I can't do that.

Q. What is your best judgment in the years '70 up to '85 that you saw Adis?

A. Two or three times each year, anyway.

Q. Did you ever see Adis pregnant during that period? A. Sir?

Q. Did you ever see Adis pregnant? A. No, sir.

Q. Up to that time, had you ever seen her pregnant? A. No.

Q. Now, did you know a boy named H Carter? A. Yes.

Q. When was the first time you ever saw him at old man Henry Carter's place?

A. Well, I have nothing but memory. It would be around some place, twenty-seven or eight years ago.

Q. How old was he at the time you saw him?

A. Well, a kid about so high; four or five years old. Big enough to run after the old man and ride a mule.

Q. The first time you saw—ever saw H Carter about old Henry Carter's place, he was four or five years old?

A. Somewhere around there; four or five years old—big enough to run around after the old man, and run after the mules—the first time I knew of him.

Q. How frequently had you been around the place before you saw H Carter the first time when he was four or five years old?

A. Oh, I have been up there and at the place, several times, but to say definite, I can't.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Fowler, what direction did you live from old man Carter's, the first two or three years?

A. I lived northwest.

Q. Then, what direction did you live when you moved from there?

A. I moved up on the road here; I was southwest of him then.

Q. Southwest of him?

A. Yes, when I moved from over there.

Q. You were between him and the schoolhouse? The Brown schoolhouse, wasn't you then?

A. Yes, there was a road over that way to the Brown schoolhouse, but I very seldom went that way because it was a better way to go south, and not go that way.

Q. Did you have any children going to school along in the '80's? A. Yes.

Q. How many children have you?

A. I have 9 children; that is, I had 9 children; two of them are dead.

Q. And they went to school at the Brwoen schoolhouse, did they? A. No, sir.

Q. What schoolhouse did they attend?

A. They went to the Grove.

Q. You didn't live in the school district that——

A. I lived in the Grove district; they lived in the Brown district.

Q. Do you remember when Maria Yokum moved away from the old man Carter's farm over on to—you remember when old man Yokum moved off of the Carter farm and went over on to some creek—Big Stranger Creek, I think it was?

A. When he left the old man Carter farm, didn't he go to Leavenworth?

Q. Well, what is your recollection about it?

A. Well, I can't say definite. It was in the '80's.

Q. He went there to Leavenworth, or Big Stranger?

A. Yes, he went away from there. My recollection is he went to Leavenworth but he might have went to Stranger.

Q. This Yokum—Maria Yokum's husband you are talking about?

Q. Did you see H around the Carter place about the time the Yokums moved away from there?

A. No, it was quite a time after that.

Q. Quite a while after that?

A. Yes, before I seen him.

Q. When did you commence the thrashing business?

A. About '76.

Q. About '76? A. 1876.

Q. Did you have any partners in the thrashing business?

A. Yes, a man by the name of Everett.

Q. How long did you thrash small grain in this community?

A. Oh, we run a machine together a couple of years.

Q. Did you do any thrashing after that?

A. Oh, I have been thrashing ever since.

Q. Now, did you always thrash old man Carter's wheat?

A. Most always, there was probably not a time that I thrashed four or five years at different times that I was out of the business. I almost always thrashed for old Henry Carter when he had any thrashing; sometimes, he didn't have any.

Q. Now, the first time you ever noticed this boy H, was when he was big enough to ride a mule around? A. Yes, sir.

Q. If he was around old man Carter's before that, you don't remember seeing him? A. No, sir, I didn't see him.

Q. You say that was 27 or 28 years ago?

A. Around about that; might have been a little more or little less. Nothing only memory.

Q. Did you see him then, a great deal after that?

A. Oh, I seen him quite often.

Q. Where would you see him riding a mule?

A. Oh, he was generally around the yard when I would pass there, or out with the old man. He was generally with the old man.

Q. What name did he go by? H what?

A. Well, he always run by the name of H Carter.

Q. What did the old man Carter call him? Did the old man ever say to you or in your presence what kin they were?

A. No, he just told me—I twitted the old man—asked him the first time I seen him, if that was one he had gone out and brought in and he said no, it was a little boy he brought to raise. That is all I know about it; what the old man told me.

Q. What was the general repute in the community as to whose child he was?

Mr. Blakeney: Object as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and asking for a conclusion.

A. Well, I know nothing only what I heard.

Q. What did you hear it? A. What?

Q. When did you hear what you know?

A. Oh, soon after that I seen him there. It wasn't long. I don't remember—a year or two. They began to talk it around that it was Adis' kid. I heard that he was, and I heard that he wasn't. Some said it was Adis' kid—circulation, I suppose—and some said he wasn't.

Q. Was there very much talk along that line?

A. Not a very great deal.

Q. You didn't see any other children around old man Carter's place at all, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. Wasn't any little girls there? A. What?

Q. Wasn't any little girl around there?

A. No, not that I seen.

Q. Never did see one?

A. Well, later on there was one they called Pink; I don't know where she came from, and I think maybe she stops around there yet.

Q. Pink? A. Yes.

Q. Now, that was a nickname, wasn't it?

A. I don't know that either.

Q. Did you ever hear her called Viola? A. I think not.

Mr. Blakeney: We object as not proper cross examination.

A. No, not that I know of.

Q. How old was Pink when you first saw her around there?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as improper cross examination, and immaterial.

A. Oh, she was quite a girl.

Q. How old do you suppose?

A. Ten or twelve years old.

Q. The first time you ever saw her there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You never had seen her there before that, had you?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. Was she riding a mule? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see her riding a mule?

A. Not that I mind of.

Q. Did old man Carter ever tell you anything about whose child she was? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear in the community in those days, whose child she was?

A. Oh, later on, I heard that she was Adis' child.

Q. How late after you first saw the girl? A. What?

Q. How long was it after you first saw the girl, that you first heard that? A. Oh, a year or two.

Mr. Blakeney: We move to strike out the last statement about what he heard about Viola, as not proper cross examination, improper, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. Mr. Fowler, about the time, or soon after, you saw this boy H, I will ask you whether the general talk among the community and among the neighbors was that Adis had had a illegitimate child? A. I heard that talk, yes.

Mr. Blakeney: I object as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Q. Heard that talk? A. I heard that talk among the neighbors, yes.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. You had heard also, that it was not Adis' child?

A. Yes, I had heard that it was not.

Q. Heard it both ways? A. Heard it both ways.

Q. You said that when you first saw H, he was about four or five years of age? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, some two or three years after that—or maybe a year—you heard some talk that it was Adis' illegitimate child, and some, that it was not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Adis was married at that time, wasn't she, when the talk had begun to be circulated?

Mr. German: I object to the question as leading.

A. I think that if my memory serves me right, that the talk was circulated before she married Wright.

Q. About the time that she was marrying Wright, wasn't it? A. Yes, or about that time; maybe a little before.

(Witness dismissed.)

Mr. Cobb: Also offer the deposition of C. J. POST, which begins at page 3081 of Mr. Penick's report as Special Examiner in this case.

And thereupon C. J. POST being called on behalf of the defendant Henry Carter, sworn and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. Mr. Post, your name is C. J.? A. C. J. Post.

Q. You are the same C. J. Post who testified formerly on behalf of the Government in this case, at Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Post, you knew Henry Carter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew H Carter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long had you known Henry Carter before you knew H Carter?

A. Oh, a good many years; I don't remember just the number.

Q. When did you become acquainted with Henry Carter?

A. I was acquainted with Henry Carter I guess a few years—I don't know just what year he came there. I had lived there since 1865 and it was several years after when old man Carter came there.

Q. You said '85? A. '65.

Q. '65, and he came there a few years later? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how far did you live from him? A. Just a mile.

Q. Did you continue to live just a mile from him up to the time you left? A. I live there yet.

Q. Did you know his family?

A. Yes, sir; went to school with them.

Q. You went to school [] them. What members of his family, did you go to school with?

A. Why, Adis and Mary—I forget the others' names now. Three or four that went to school.

Q. Which quit school there first? Adis or you?

A. I don't remember exactly, I think I quit first; I wouldn't say right certain. I think she went to school after I did, though.

Q. Now, did you know his family well? Were you about his place occasionally or frequently?

A. Oh, occasionally, yes; not so very much there, that is, about the house. Of course, old man Carter worked for us a great deal—a day's labor for my father—and different kinds of farm work—hired him by the day.

Q. During the year '79 and '80, did you live there?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you any way of fixing those years in your mind?
A. No.

Q. You remember when Babe was married?
A. No, I heard, but I don't remember just what year.

Q. I don't mean the year, but you remember the circumstance? A. I remember the circumstance.

Q. Did you know the family at that time?
A. Well, I knew the family, yes.

Q. Did you ever see Adis Wright pregnant at any of the time you lived there? A. Never have.

Q. About the time that Babe was married, did you ever see her pregnant? A. Never have no time.

Q. When was the first time you ever saw H Carter?
A. Well, that I can't say exactly—what year it was—but as near as I could remember, it seems like he was a boy around four or five years old; something like that, if I remember right when I first seen him.

Q. A boy between three and five years of age?
A. Well, somewhere along there; a little tot of a boy running around.

Q. Did you have a talk with Henry Carter about the boy?
A. Some, yes.

Q. Where did you ever have any talk with him, or hear any statement? A. When he was working there at our place.

Q. About how big was the boy then?
A. Why, he was about four, or five, or six—something like that.

Q. How long would you say that you had this talk, after the boy had been first seen there by you?
A. How long after that?
Q. Yes.
A. Why, I can't say. Maybe it was a year, and maybe not a year, and maybe over a year.

Q. Just state the conversation you had with Carter regarding that boy.

Mr. Stuart: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, hearsay, and self-serving.

A. I don't remember how it come up. He said something about he got the boy at Leavenworth to raise.

Q. Got the boy at Leavenworth to raise?
A. Yes. I don't remember him saying whose boy it was,

as I remember of, but I remember him saying he got the boy to raise.

Mr. Hanford: I move to strike that answer as hearsay and incompetent.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. Mr. Post, of course, you didn't live in the Carter home any? A. No, though I had been there.

Q. And you didn't stay there in the day time any?

A. Not any length of time unless I happened to be there at different times—be up there—something like that; never stayed any time, except to thrash there—eat there.

Q. You would eat there when you worked there?

A. Yes, sir, the only time that I remember, when I worked there and helped thrash. I have cut his wheat five or six different times, and his oats with a——

Q. Now, what time of the year did they harvest wheat?

A. The latter part of June or the first of July; them days, we had later wheat. About the first of July.

Q. What time in the season, did they generally thrash the small grain? A. Along about Septehmber.

Q. Do you remember the first time you ever helped thrash there? A. No, I don't.

Q. Did you always help them thrash their small grain?

A. Why, I guess I did, most of the time. They helped us and we helped them—kind of swapped work; we all done that through the neighborhood, not only with him, but with others. Of course, I had a machine, and I cut his grain; he had no machine.

Q. You say of course you never stayed all night there?

A. No, I never did.

Q. And you would only be there at the house at meal time when thrashing season was on?

A. Thrashing season, cutting season, harvesting season; would eat dinner there, then, in the harvest season.

Q. But that is the extent of your being around the house?

A. Yes.

Q. You don't know where this boy H came from, do you, yourself? A. No, I don't.

Q. And you simply heard old man Carter say it was a boy he had got to raise? A. Yes.

Q. Say where he got him? A. Leavenworth.

Q. Did he say where in Leavenworth?

A. No, not as I remember of. I don't think he said.

Q. No. Adis Carter was old man Henry Carter's daughter? A. Yes.

Q. What kind of a man was old man Henry Carter?
A. What do you mean?
Q. Well, he was not an educated man, was he?
A. No, he wasn't educated.
Q. Did they attend church? A. Not that I remember of.
Q. Were they respectable colored people?
A. Respectable colored people. Never heard a word against the old man when he died, or any other time; straight.
Q. He was very particular about his family's reputation?
A. He was particular about his family, and he was honest and square. I never heard any one say of him anything the other way. Whatever he said or promised was good, and if he signed a piece of paper, it was good. I don't know if he signed one, but he would put a mark there, and it went.
Q. You say you never saw Adis pregnant? A. No.
Q. Did you know about her having a child named Viola?
A. No.
Q. You knew Pink, didn't you?
A. Yes, neighborhood talk that would come up.

Mr. Blakeney: We object now, and move to strike out as not responsive.

Q. You knew Pink? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Blakeney: We objert as not proper cross examination.

Q. And Pink and Henry, I believe you testified before, would go through your yard going to school?
A. Going to school, yes.
Q. Was there a neighborhood talk about whose child H was?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, and asking for hearsay, and improper conclusions.

A. Yes, there was a talk; neighborhood talk.
Q. In those days, when H was young? A. Yes.
Q. What was the neighborhood repute as to who the mother of H was?

Mr. Blakeney: We object as incompetent, hearsay, irrelevant and immaterial.

A. Well, there was talk. Of course, there was some talk that it wasn't and talk that it was.
Q. That what was? A. That it was Adis' child.
A. That H was Adis' child? A. Yes.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. You saw this girl, Pink, and Henry there together, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. They were reputed to be brother and sister, weren't they?

> Mr. Blakeney: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. That was the talk of the neighborhood.

Q. That they were brother and sister?

A. Of the neighborhood.

> Mr. Blakeney: We object to the last question as hearsay.

Q. And they were both understood by the neighbors and so reputed, to be Adis' children, weren't they? A. Yes.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. You state that the neighborhood talk was by some of them that it was Adis' child and by some that it was not Adis' child? A. Yes, that is what they claim.

Q. Just a discussion?

A. Just a discussion between the neighbors. There was none who knew, I suppose; it was guess-work.

Q. Nobody knew whose child Henry was?

A. No, or Pink, either.

Q. Some had a sort of matter of suspicion that it was Adis' child, and some, that it was not? A. Yes, sir.

> Mr. Stuart: Object to that last as leading and assuming—the answer.

Q. So, when you use the word the general repute, you just merely discuss in the neighborhood? A. Yes.

Witness dismissed.

> Mr. Cobb: Also offer the deposition of Asa Y. Chinn, which begins at page 3088 of Mr. Penick's report as Special Examiner in this case.

And thereupon, ASA Y. CHINN, being called on behalf of the defendant Henry Carter, sworn, and under oath, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. State your name, age, residence, and occupation.

A. My name, is Asa Y. Chinn; I am now in the horseshoeing and black-smith business in Oskaloosa, and paster in a church. Act in the capacity of a pastor. I will be 66 years old the 10th day of August, should I live to see it.

A. Horse shoeing and blacksmithing, and general repair.

Q. When did you go into the blacksmithing business?

A. Me?

Q. Yes. A. With my father?

Q. Yes.

A. I went in in '68; I was at school until '68, though I worked around there all the time, and after school hours, stayed at the shop with my father.

Q. How long did you work in the blacksmith shop?

A. Worked in it ever since.

Q. How long in Leavenworth with your father?

A. Oh, I worked with father about twenty years, and then I was in business there, myself, about ten or fifteen years—straight out.

Q. Worked with your father about in '88 then?

A. Yes, sir, I was with father until '89. April 26th, I went into business.

Q. By yourself?

A. No, sir, I went in business—my father bought another place, prior to the one where I was at, then, and I carried on that shop until father got out from the lease he had at the time I went in with him.

Q. Up until 1888, when you and your father were in the blacksmithing business, where was your shop?

A. The second building from the corner of Seneca and Third, on Seneca street, east of Third.

Q. The second building east of Third, on Seneca street?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Facing south? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was Crilly's barn with reference to your blacksmith shop? A. At that time?

Q. Yes. A. It wasn't there.

Q. When Crilly's barn—when did Crilly come in now?

A. The livery business, there on Seneca?

Q. In the livery business.

A. Along about, as near as I can recollect, it was along about '90, or——

Q. Had Crilly worked in any livery business prior to that time?

A. Yes, sir, up to this time. That was a hotel, though; before Crilly moved in there, it was a hotel—this barn on Seneca.

Q. Do you remember about when Crilly moved in there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Commenced the livery business?

A. Yes, the best I judge, along about '89, or maybe '90; I am not positive, but I have knew him ever since he has been there.

Q. Did you know Minnie Atkins? A. Indian Minnie?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir, I know Indian Minnie.

Q. Did you ever hear her last name? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was her last name?

A. Well, Minnie Atkins.

Q. Minnie Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Known as Indian Minnie, was she?

A. Called her that.

Q. Where did you know or see her?

A. I got acquainted with her across the street from father's shop.

Q. About when?

A. Well, that was about the first of '85; along there, or earlier. It might have been the middle of '84.

Q. Somewhere in '84 or '85, you got acquainted with her?

A. Yes, sir, yes, sir.

Q. Did she have a child there?

A. When I first knew her?

Q. No, not when you first knew her; at any time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where and about when did she have a child?

A. Well, she had a child around there where I stayed.

Q. Were did you stay?

A. I stayed at Mrs. Mayo's—Mrs. Letcher's, some called her.

Q. Some called her Granny Letcher?

A. Yes, sir. I roomed there and had taken my meals, often, there. I was a young man running around. I had a sister growing up—16, then; I stayed outside mostly, and made my home at my father's.

Q. Made your home at your father's but stayed over at Letcher's? A. A good deal, yes, sir.

Q. You knew Minnie Atkins, then, did you there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. About when do you say she had this child?

A. Well, to the best of my knowledge, it was along in '85. It was getting warm weather when I first seen her bring it there, along April or May—somewhere along there. I was staying there pretty near altogether, then.

Q. You say you think along in April or May, and you think it was '85? A. Yes, sir, most positive.

Q. Any way to fix the date?

A. Only by knowing about her business at my father's place across from it, and the tearing up of our business, brings it to my memory.

Q. When was your business torn up? A. There?

Q. Yes.

A. Along about the latter part of '93, or '93 my father moved from there.

Q. Do you know what her child's name was?

A. No, around the house they called him several names, but his name was Atkins—Tommy Atkins. We called him Dump—some called him Dump. Crilly named him a name. I just can't think it; I know it, if I heard heard. George named him that. He hung around his barn with several little children —but Crilly called him a name.

Q. Did you ever hear him called *T*ommodore?

A. That is the name—Commodore.

Q. Who gave him that name?

A. Crilly; Crilly was the first one called him that.

Q. How long did the boy stay around there?

A. Oh, I seen him two or three years; maybe four— pretty near four.

Q. Saw him around there you say, probably four years?

A. Yes, Mrs. Letcher's.

Q. Yes, Mrs. Letcher's.

A. Yes, anyhow, fully three years he was around there.

Q. Did you see the boy do anything?

A. Around Mrs. Letcher's?

Q. Yes.

A. No, sir, only playing around with other boys; with Sam. She had another boy—raising him—named Sam Nash. I don't know where he is; haven't seen him for several years. He played around with him a good deal; he went around and played around Crilly's barn with Sam. I never paid this child much particular mind, only I told her—I was very familiar with old Mrs. Letcher, because she was getting my change—of course, I don't need to explain, I wasn't no church man, then—and I told her——

Mr. German: I object to this on the ground that it is not responsive.

Mr. Blakeney: I consent that it all be stricken.

Q. Did you ever see this boy doing anything else there, with anybody else, besides the children?

A. Around Mrs. Letcher's?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see any man having the child around Mrs. Letcher's?

A. Oh, I seen him with Mr. Carter, riding on his wagon.

Q. You knew old man Henry Carter?

A. All my life, most.

Q. Where did you see Henry Carter have this child?

A. He would come up to Mrs. Mayo's every time he came to town; he brought in vegetables—cabbage and potatoes—and would peddle them around, and he would go there and sell stuff to her, and he would take this little fellow, and ride him around, but he brought him back there.

Q. You had seen him take the child out during the day and ride him out? A. All over town.

Q. During the time that he was peddling? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever see the child when the child was not around Granny Letcher's? A. Gone?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, I knew of him to be gone.

Q. About when did you find out that the child had disappeared, had left there?

A. Oh, that was a couple of years after old man Carter had him—carrying him around in his wagon. He had taken him to the country and kept him there.

Q. How do you know that? A. I was there.

Q. Where was you when Carter had taken him to the country? A. I was on Fifth Street and Oak.

Q. What did you see there?

A. He would bring him to town with him. We done blacksmithing after he had taken him away from Mrs. Letcher's and was keeping him.

Q. About how long after you quit seeing the child at Mrs. Letcher's until you saw the man Carter coming to town and bringing the child with him?

A. Probably the second week, or maybe three. I don't know as he ever came to town without bringing him along, and one of the girls, or the little fellow. He would always bring some of the children. He was old, and would always have this boy, or one of the girls.

Q. Were you ever at old man Carter's place? A. Me?

Q. Yes. A. Well, once, is all.

Q. When was that?

A. Oh, that was when I was a young man growing up.

Q. Before or—— A. Before.

Q. Before?

A. Yes, sir, before he took this little boy, Commodore, out there.

Q. Did you ever talk to old man Carter about the boy?

A. Just spoke to him in regard to the little fellow living at Mrs. Letcher's, and I asked him once, I said, how come you to take him and he said——

Mr. Stuart: We object to that as hearsay.

Mr. Hanford: The same objection.

Q. Commence again, and go over that statement.

A. Regards to saying to Carter?

Q. Yes.

A. I said to him, how come him—just asked him how come him to have him.

Q. What did he say?

A. Well, he has never answered me; that is, really true, and I didn't insist on him to know any further.

Q. He didn't say anything when you asked him that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know that the child that he had there was the same child that you had known as Commodore, or Tommy Atkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The same child?

A. Oh, yes, I had never missed seeing him, you know; same boy.

Cross Examination by Mr. Stuart.

Q. You say you are 65 now?

A. The 10th day of August, I will be 66 years old.

Q. If you live that long? A. Sir?

Q. If you live that long? A. If I live, yes, sir.

Q. How long have you lived in this country?

A. In this state?

Q. Yes. A. Since 1865.

Q. Where did you come from to this country?

A. I came from Fayette County, Kentucky—nine miles from Lexington.

Q. When did you first get acquainted with Granny Letcher?

A. I got acquainted with Granny Letcher, I guess, along in the '70's.

Q. Along in the 70's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was she living when you first got acquainted with her?

A. She was living down at the west end of town, on Pottawatomie Street, between 7th and Broadway, when I first got acquainted with her.

Q. How long did she live there after you got acquainted with her? A. Several years.

Q. How many years?

A. Two or three years, I don't know exactly.

Q. Well, give it as near as you can.

A. Well, I judge she lived there to my knowledge, three years.

Q. Three years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did she move to from that place?

A. She moved into the alley back of Harvey Edgerton's, between Seneca and Shawnee, on Third Stret; known as Vantuyl's barn, now.

Q. Do you moved she moved down to Seneca Street from that Pottawatomie—

A. I think she did, yes, sir.

Q. What year, was it, she moved there?

A. Well, it was along in between '79, or '78 and '80.

Q. She moved there in '79 or '80, in that place?

A. Some where near that.

Q. Was that the place where Minnie's baby was born?

A. I don't know.

Q. Was that the place where you first saw Minnie's baby?

A. On Seneca?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Granny didn't live at but two places in Leavenworth, after you knew her, did she? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Lived out on Pottawatomie, and down on Seneca?

A. Yes, sir. I knew of pretty near every place she lived, but I really know her better living in those two places. She might have lived down on Cherokee once, near Second, but I wouldn't be positive about it—which of the three places she went first. I knew her pretty near every place she lived.

Q. Well, tell me, where, just where, she lived in Leavenworth. Tell me the places.

A. I am not positive of those two places.

Q. And you don't know any other, do you?

A. I can't just place now.

Q. How old were you when you first began going around Granny Letcher's?

A. I was a man about thirty—near thirty—twenty-five or thirty; twenty-four, or something like that.

Q. And you commenced going around there just as soon as Granny moved to Seneca?

A. No, I had been to Granny Letcher's house before she moved.

Q. You went to see her on Pottawatomiee?

A. Yes, I went there to dances then.

Q. How old were you then?

A. I was a man twenty-three or four years old.

Q. About twenty-three of four years old? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What kind of looking boy was this boy Tommy you saw? Describe him as near as you can?

A. Well, he was a round faced; light, sandy hair, and real fair, you could hardly tell him from a white child.

Q. Pretty fair, and had sandy hair?

A. His hair was light.

Q. He talk Indian? A. Who?

Q. Tommy. A. Talk Indian?

Q. Yes, did he know any Indian words?

A. Not then, no, sir. He was a little fellow.

Q. Afterwards?

A. I don't know about afterwards. Then, he didn't know.

Q. You played with a boy named Sam Nash? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know a fortune teller there? A. Who?

Q. An old fortune teller? A. A man or woman?

Q. Woman. A. I knew everyone around there.

Q. I am satisfied you knew them all. Tell me if you knew one around there.

A. Yes, sir. Knew an Indian woman fortune teller.

Q. What was her name? A. Mary.

Q. Mary what? A. Indian Mary.

Q. Where did she live? A. Any place and every place.

Q. Where did she generally stay, this Indian?

A. That is something I never could locate—Mary's general staying place.

Q. Didn't she have a place where she slept?

A. She of course did, but I never——

Q. Did you ever see Minnie with her? A. With Mary?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir, never saw her.

Q. How often saw Minnie at Granny Letcher's?

A. How often?

Q. Yes.

A. Some nights I would go there every night and change clothes—I kept my change there, to dress up, and I wouldn't go back there until pretty near day, or middle of the night, or something, and I would go to my room. When I got there, I would go to bed, but I would see Minnie, off and on, about twice a week.

Q. When did you first commence seeing Minnie there? Tell me of the year as near as you can.

A. Well, I judge I saw Minnie there along at the rise of '85.

Q. I believe you said just now, you saw her in there in '84 or '85, didn't you?

A. I didn't see her around Mrs. Letcher's; I saw her before I saw her at Mrs. Letcher's.

Q. You saw her at Mrs. Letcher's the first time in '85?

A. Yes, sir, along in there.

Q. How long did Minnie stay around there?

A. Minnie stayed around there to my best knowledge—I just won't be positive—for say three—say four years. I can't be positive; I just don't know when Miles left for the—oh, I could tell you, she left with the soldiers when she left.

Q. Well, is it your impression that she stayed there three or four years?

A. I think it comes to me very favorably that she left there sometime along in '93.

Q. '93?

A. I believe that is pretty near the time when General Miles left—in '93. I ain't positive; I wouldn't say positive.

Q. That is about eight years after Tommy was born?

A. Yes.

Q. '93? A. Yes.

Q. You said Tommy was born in '85?

A. Yes, sir; now, I am not positive to it being that time, but if I knew when General Miles went off on his expedition, I would know, because I had a sister-in-law went with them.

Q. You don't know whether she left there in '88, or not?

A. No, I think I saw her there in '88.

Q. You think you saw her there as late as '93?

A. I believe; I am not positive now, about '93.

Q. Minnie was a pretty well known character there, wasn't she? A. Not with everybody. Quite notable with everybody.

Q. That is what I mean. Known as Indian Minnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. About the only Indian around there? A. No, sir.

Q. Indian girl?

A. Well, she was the youngest one of the other two; there was two others there. Indian Minnie was the youngest girl.

Q. How old was she?

A. I don't know but I judge Indian Minnie to be a woman about twenty-two or three, or maybe twenty-four.

Q. Twenty-four?

A. Yes, sir; along about that—just from her looks, a woman in her twenties

Q. You seen her since then?

A. No, sir, not since she left there, I never seen her since.

Q. When did you first communicate what you knew about this to anybody in the case?

A. Why, I was talking to a man, Monday, in the hardware store down home, and then it came out and I was to notified to come up here.

Q. Was Monday the first time you ever spoke to anybody about it? A. Yes, sir; yes, sir; didn't interest me at all.

Q. Never spoke to anybody until last Monday?

A. No, sir.

Q. Who was it you spoke to about it?

A. Two or three men in the hardware store.

Q. Name one.

A. Ben English was one. I was talking to him, through other men.

Q. Who else? A. Alexander, the hardware man.

Q. What Alexander? What is his first name?

A. I just can't think. If you will allow me—Mr. Jones will tell his first name. I talked with him. The first name, I can't tell you.

Q. What is the other man's name? A. That was in there?

Q. Yes. A. Oh, there was several.

Q. How came you to tell what you knew about it, Mr.——

A. About what?

Q. How came you to tell what you knew about this case?

A. Oh, I will tell you how. I stepped in there to get some bolts, and they were in there talking about it, and I said, this to the men, at large; I said, a lot of men know Indian Minnie, now, and talk about Indian Minnie, now, that didn't know Indian Minnie and English spoke up there, and said, do you know her? And I said, how do you know I know her, and he said because I seen you running around there where she hung out, and I said that is my business.

Q. That all you said? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you tell here what you told, to anybody?

A. Didn't tell it.

Q. Never told anybody at all until you told it here?

A. I told a man I knew, of it.

Q. When? A. Yesterday.

Q. Who were those men?

A. Why, I told lawyer Bell for one.

Q. You have known lawyer Bell all your life, haven't you?

A. No, sir.

Q. How long have you known lawyer Bell?

A. I guess I have known him ever since he came to Leavenworth but the amount of years—I don't know when he came to Leavenworth.

Q. How long has that been?

A. Well, I think I have known lawyer Bell twenty-two or three years—might be longer.

Q. You have been good friends during that time?

A. He and I, yes, sir. Yes, good friends.

Q. Well acquainted? A. Just men friends.

Q. You know lawyer Bell was in this lawsuit, didn't you?

A. I know nothing about it.

Q. Didn't know he was one of the lawyers?

A. No, sir, I didn't know this case was coming on, until Saturday.

Q. Never heard of it until last Saturday?

A. Oh, I have heard talk of it; never read a word of it, and never meddled in regards to it. Never interested in it at all, and very little now, please. Never meddled in a lawsuit—never did in my life.

Q. Where was you educated?

A. I never was educated; I went to school at Pittsburg, Penn.; went to school at Frankford. Ky.—Sam Clay school.

Q. You are pretty well educated?

A. Just limited learning.

Q. You are a correct reader?

A. Yes, sir, read a good deal.

Q. Read newspapers a good deal?

A. No, sir, don't never read—don't take any.

Q. Never read any? A. No, sir.

Q. What is your big prejudice against newspapers? Don't tell the truth?

A. It isn't that. I have taken the Leavenworth Times all my life until five years—just because it keeps me disturbed, in one way, and there is nothing in it that seems to digest properly on my thinking capacities that causes me to seem to desire to have them. I don't take them because I can't pay for them.

Q. Pretty hard to digest?

A. I can't get it off my brain at all.

Q. What is your course and style of reading? What do you read generally? A. In the English?

Q. In the English, yes? Classics?

A. Well, I am not—I just read right straight along a course.

Q. What is your course? What is it that you read straight along? You say you have eschewed newspapers?

Mr. Blakeney: I want to insist that the Judge has had levity enough, now.

Mr. Stuart: Just testing his intellectual capacity.

A. Judge, I haven't any particular course. The course I pursue most, is that as to the department of the human condition at large.

Q. In other words, you are a humanitarian and philanthropist? A. I want to be.

Cross Examination by Mr. German.

Q. You say you came to Leavenworth in 1865?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What age were you? A. When I came there?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I was 14—on the rise of 14. And the knowledge I have of it, you like to know of my age? My father was a Cherokee born, and reared down here at Tahlequah, and my mother died when I am five days old. My father in leaving Kentucky, willed me to my mother's young mistress, and the only thing I have identified as being my age, 66, this coming August 10th, is by which she gave me, August 10th, in '65, to go to Leavenworth, Kansas. That is all I have to go by.

Q. What blood have you beside Cherokee Indian?

A. Negro blood.

Q. What per cent of Indian blood, have you?

A. A quarter.

Q. You say that your father ran a blacksmith shop on Seneca street, between Seneca and Third?

A. Yes, sir, near Third.

Q. On the north side of Seneca street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the same place on the same lot where Crilly's livery barn was later established?

A. No, sir, I didn't so think. Where my father had a blacksmith shop, Doctor Brock has a barn on the lot; Doctor Brock bought the lot and built a barn there. Crilly's barn was on the lot west of the barn. That is now occupied by Doctor Brock, deceased.

Q. Then, your father's shop was west of the place where Dr. Brock's barn was? A. No, sir.

Q. East?

A. No, sir, my father's shop, I said, was on the lot where Dr. Brock's barn stands now.

Q. Then, Dr. Brock's barn was built there after your father moved away—away to another place in Leavenworth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Crilly start his livery barn on Seneca street, before your father moved away from Seneca street? A. No, sir.

Q. How long afterwards?

A. A couple of years, I should judge, I don't know much about that. I think maybe—yes, about a couple of years because the old hotel run a year afterwards.

Q. The old hotel? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did Dr. Brock have a livery barn? A. No, sir.

Q. Just his private barn? A. Just his private barn.

Q. How long after your father moved away from Seneca street, was it, that Dr. Brock's private barn was built there?

A. Three years.

Q. Now, was your father moved away from Seneca street on April 26, 1889? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Why, I kept books for my father. I have my father's books and his business transactions at home.

Q. At home?

A. Yes, sir, and I looked last night to see where we have been all this time. I declared myself to know nothing but what I know, and we moved away April 26th, 1893.

Q. 1893? A. Yes, sir.

Q. April 26th? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You said '89 a while ago.

A. Excuse me, please, sir, I mean '89.

Q. How does that book show you moved off of Seneca street in '89?

A. Why, I mean—why, we—my father had those lots listed, where Brock built his barn, and at that time we went into negotiation with Mr. Buck to buy those lots where we built our shop on.

Q. And your books show that, do they?

A. Yes, that we had this transaction?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, yes, they had to. Talking of my father and Mr. McFarland, yes, show the deal with him.

Q. Where was it your father started the shop after moving away from Seneca?

A. On Fifth and Oak; between Fifth and Walnut.

Q. Regardless of the year when your father moved to Fifth and Oak, did you know that Crilly's barn had not been started when your father moved? Crilly had not started to operated a barn? A. Oh, no.

Q. On Seneca street? A. No, sir.

Q. Was he operating a barn somewhere else?

A. He was in partners with another man.

Q. Where?

A. Down on Cherokee street between Third and Fourth.

Q. Partners with Joe Cranston? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Yes, sir. Joe Cranston was in partnership with him, on Seneca street when he started that barn there?

A. I never knew of his being interested in it. I shod for both parties.

Q. You said there were three Indian woman in Leavenworth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Give their names.

A. Indian Mary, Indian Leddie, and Indian Minnie.

Q. Which was the oldest one of the three?

A. Indian Mary.

Q. When did you first know Indian Mary there?

A. Oh, I knowed Indian Mary there when I first came there—the next year when I was there—knew her along in '67.

Q. When did she leave there, or what became of her?

A. She got killed there, I believe; I heard of her getting killed there on the reservation, I believe, and I am not positive. I think she did, though.

Q. Do you know how long that was after you came there?

A. From the time I came to Leavenworth?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, that was some 10 or 12 years, about 10 years; maybe more.

Q. Indian Leddie come there at the time Indian Mary was killed? A. Had she been there?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first know Indian Leddie?

A. I knew Indian Leddie about five or six years after I knowed Indian Mary.

Q. What became of Indian Leddie?

A. I understood she went—well, I bid them goodbye—they went down in to the—Creek Nation. She went off with the fellow she married, a painter there, and went away. Claimed to be married to a painter and went down to the Territory. I don't know just where now. Married a man named Williams, a painter, or took up with him, or something.

Q. Indian Mary stay out to the Fort much?

A. She would come in and out; stayed mostly around town but she went in and around the Fort. Had a good deal to do with the soldiers, you know. Would go down town, telling fortunes—or tried to. I knowed about that better, as a fortune teller.

Q. Did she use any opiates that you know of? A. Which?

Q. Use any opiates?

A. Not as I know of. Allow me to explain the meaning of your word?

Q. Dope?

A. No, sir, not as I know of; she drank a good deal.

Q. Indian Leddie—how long did she live in Leavenworth?

A. Indian Leddie, she stayed around there, I guess, about six years.

Q. What aged woman was she?

A. Indian Leddie was about thirty-seven or eight years old; she wasn't forty.

Q. Where did she live?

A. She lived around different places. She made dresses for people there. Lived at a place I lived for a while; lived with Mrs. Miller.

Q. On what street?

A. Ottawa, between Third and Fourth, north side of Ottawa.

Q. About what sized woman was she?

A. A woman who weighed about a hundred fifty-nine or sixty pounds; very poorly woman.

Q. What height was she?

A. A woman about five three or two.

Q. Did she have any children? A. Indian Leddie?

Q. Yes.

A. Never as I know of; she went away from there without any.

Q. Indian Mary have any? A. Not as I know of.

Q. About what year was it that Indian Leddie left Leavenworth?

A. Indian Leddie left Leavenworth somewhere about ninety-four or five, I guess. I am not just positive. She must have left there about '95 or '96.

Q. Where was your father's shop when you first knew Indian Leddie? A. My father's shop was on Seneca street.

Q. Where was it when Indian Leddie left there?

A. My father's shop was on Fifth and Oak streets.

Q. Where did your father live when his shop was on Seneca street? A. Between Third and Fourth, on Pawnee street.

Q. At Mrs. Miller's? A. No, my father owned property.

Q. You didn't live with your father all the time, did you?

A. Yes, lived with my father until after I married.

Q. When was it you lived with Mrs. Miller?

A. Mrs. Anna Miller's, where Leddie was?

Q. Yes.

A. I didn't live there; I kept care of the horses, waited on her. Her husband was a store-keeper in town and he got to be guard at Lansing, and he got me to go down there and leave at night, and Leddie, she stayed there with her to make dresses.

Q. Was that Leddie's home? A. No, sir.

Q. Where was her home?

A. Where ever she was working for white folks. She was a dressmaker. I don't know of her having any home.

Q. When did you first know Indian Minnie?

A. I know Indian Minnie for years later—three years later.

Q. Where was Indian Minnie living when you first knew her?

A. When I first met Indian Minnie first—when I ever heard of her—she was working out on South Esplanade. I don't know whether she was working—I wouldn't say positive she was working for Judge Hyde; or Paul Havens, but she was in that block there, working for Paul Havens or Hyde.

Q. Now, how long was it after you knew her there, at either Hyde's or Haven's, that you saw her at Molly Letcher's?

A. Oh, it was a year, I guess; eight or nine, or ten months. She might have come there before, but I never saw her.

Q. How big was this boy Tommy when you saw him? What age? A. When I first saw him?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, Tommy, I judge he was between eleven and twelve months. I just judge; I didn't have much knowledge of him.

Q. When was it you first saw the boy with reference to the time Minnie came to the Letcher home?

A. I would like for you to say it again.

Q. Was it before or after Minnie came to the Letcher's that you first saw the boy?

A. I saw Minnie at Letcher's before I saw the boy at Letcher's.

Q. How long before?

A. Oh, I saw her there several times; just visiting in there at night.

Q. Well, how long, now, was it before you saw the boy, that you saw her there?

A. I saw her two or three months—I judge about two months.

Q. And then you saw the boy? A. Yes.

Q. And then the boy was ten or eleven months old?

A. When I got acquainted with him, yes.

Q. Yes.

A. But I saw Minnie lots of times before I saw the boy.

Q. You had seen Minnie on South Esplanade?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where abouts was it that you seen her?

A. I seen her on the street but I never knew where she worked, direct, but I never seen her at different places.

Q. You just understood where she lived?

A. Yes, sir, but I knew she worked for Hyde's or Paul Haven's; not positive which one, but she was in that block.

Q. Now, you finally saw her at Molly Letcher's and after you had been seeing her around Molly Letcher's about two months, you saw the boy? A. Might have been longer.

Q. Well, how much longer?

A. I wouldn't say but that long.

Q. And the boy was eleven or twelve months old?

A. When I first saw him?

Q. Yes. A. Wasn't that old when I first saw him.

Q. How old was he?

A. He could just set alone; crawl around and fall over. That is why we called him Dumpy.

Q. Now, who took care of that boy when he was just big enough to be alone?

A. Mrs. Letcher took all the care of him that I seen; sometimes there would be other women there and they would handle him around but Mrs. Letcher did the most caring for him.

Q. You don't know where that boy was born?

A. No, he was born there in Leavenworth but I don't know which place.

Q. You suppose he was? A. Yes, I will say that.

Q. You have heard where he was born? A. No, sir.

Q. How old would you say he was when you first saw him?

A. Well, I first saw him he was from—oh, my idea of him he would be—maybe about—I don't know; I don't like to say.

Q. Well, was he eight months? A. Oh, yes, he was older.

Q. Six months?

A. He was a child about ten, looked like nine or ten months old. He might not have been; he was an awful poorly child. I guess he was about seven or eight months to come right down and sum him up. I don't know positively; I have not got him in my head to say. He might have been older.

Q. Well, that is sufficient; I am satisfied. Let's see, your father was operating a shop right across the street from Molly Letcher's? Is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did Molly live with reference to the VanTuyl Barn?

A. East of it on the alley; the house set along here on the alley.

Q. What kind of house? A. Barn—frame house.

Q. How many stories high? A. One.

Q. One story and porch? A. Yes, sir, a long house.

Q. You lived in that house some? A. No, sir.

Q. You changed your clothing over there, didn't you?

A. No, sir, not in that house.

Q. I misunderstood you awhile ago?

A. You didn't misunderstood me to say I changed clothing, but not in that house.

Q. Molly Letcher live in any other house on Seneca street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where?

A. In the front part; the baker shop was there and moved out.

Q. Who was it ran that baker shop?

A. I am not positive but either a man by the name of John Schott, or Frank—either—Schott Bakery.

Q. Did you know a man named Feth? A. No, sir.

Q. A Dutchman that lived next door to VanTuyl's stable, immediately east of it in the stone house?

A. Oh, yes, that is the stone house I spoke of where Mrs. Letcher lived.

Q. That is where Mrs. Letcher lived? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Wasn't there another house still east of that—stone house? A. A little house, yes, sir.

Q. What sized house was it?

A. A house about four or five rooms; I don't know exactly because the lumber yard was in there. I think a story and a half; might be two story.

Q. Who lived in that? A. I just can't tell you.

Q. Do you remember Gustav Dotter? A. Who?

Q. Gustav Dotter?

A. No, I don't yes, because I can't think of the name of that party.

Q. Did you know a man who ran a bakery in the back end of that story and a half house?

A. I would if I heard his name.

Q. Dotter? A. Dotter?

Q. Dotter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You know him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He ran a bakery in the rear end of that house?

A. Yes, sir, that is the one that Mrs. Letcher lived in.

Q. That is the house Mrs. Letcher lived in?

A. Yes, sir, that is the same house, I spoke to you about, where I kept my things once in a while. That is Mr. Dotter.

Q. That is the same house Molly lived in? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, let me see if I understand you. Did she live in two houses on Seneca street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. One of them immediately east of Van Tuyl's barn?

A. Both of them.

Q. And the other was the second house east of Van-Tuyl's barn?

A. No, sir, first house. Both of them were east of VanTuyl's—Edgerton's barn.

Q. Immediately east? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Any house between that house and VanTuyl's?

A. No, sir.

Q. These two houses were built on top of one another?

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, which one was east?

A. Both east; built houses in Kansas sometimes in front of a lot, and one on the back. I said before Mrs. Letcher lived in the house, that on the alley, and when she moved out, she lived in the front one.

Q. How long did Indian Minnie stay around the Letcher house?

A. Well, she didn't stay there so very long, around there; she was in and out.

Q. In and out for how long?

A. Oh, she never ever did—didn't make no practice of staying there.

Q. Never did?

A. Not that I know of but then, I am not there all the time. I am out and in.

Q. Well, for what period of time, now, was she in and out—how many years?

A. Well, I judge about two years; a year and a half—something like that.

Q. Wasn't four, then, like you said a while ago to Judge Stuart? A. Well——

Q. Did you not tell Judge Stuart it was about four years?

A. That I knew her around there.

Q. It was that way?

A. Sure, and you asked me if I seen the little boy around, didn't you?

Q. Now, you say Minnie was around the Letcher home about four years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is correct?

A. I saw her around; in and out that amount of years, but not to stay there.

Q. Did you ever talk to her?

A. Just to pass the time with her—how-do-you-do, Mrs. So-and-so.

Q. Well, what do you call her?

A. I called her sometimes Miss Minnie and sometimes called her Mrs. Atkins. That is all I heard, but I had no familiarity with her.

Q. Where did she stay besides the Letcher home and South Esplanade?

A. I believe I—don't want to be sure—but after she left out there on Esplanade, South Leavenworth, I will say, she went to the Fort. I know her; I have seen her going, mostly, down from the Fort. I didn't watch her much.

Q. And when she went away from Leavenworth, she went with General Miles? A. She went off that time.

Q. With General Miles?

A. They all got steamboat at the Fort and went up the river; I thought they were going to Denton.

Q. In Wyoming, you——

A. Yes, they went up to Helena, I think.

Q. Helena, Montana?

A. Yes, sir—either Butte, or Helena.

Q. Where was the boy when she left there?

A. When Minnie left?

Q. Yes. A. The boy was out to Carter's.

Q. Out to Carter's? A. Yes, sir, Carter had taken him.

Q. How long had he been out to Carter's when Minnie left? A. Oh, I don't know how long Carter had him.

Q. A year or two, or three, or four?

A. He hadn't had him no three or four years; couldn't have been over a year.

Q. Now, you don't know whose boy that was, do you?

A. Oh, no, I don't.

Q. He went by the name of Tommy, you say?

A. Tommy Atkins.

Q. And Crilly named him Commodore? A. Commodore.

Q. Where was Crilly's place of business when he named him Commodore?

A. Crilly's was just then taking possession and fixing sheds; he hadn't moved in there yet. At the old barn—the Seneca Hotel was fixing to move in there.

Q. Were you around there when Crilly named him?

A. I was in and out, yes, sir; I didn't live there. Now, I didn't hear Mr. Crilly name him that name.

Q. Alright, but you learned that he did?

A. I heard the boys all saying—we had a dozen names for him, as boys do.

Q. Give us some of the other names.

A. I never called him anything but Dumpy.

Q. Who nicknamed him Dumpy?

A. Different boys around there called him.

Q. Why did you nickname him Dumpy? A. I don't know.

Q. What other names did he have? A. I don't know.

Q. Commodore and Dumpy?

A. Yes, sir; different names they called him around there.

Q. Whose child was that?

A. You mean, who was the mother of him?

Q. Yes, that is what I mean. A. I can't say that.

Q. Now, didn't you hear somebody say in those days, whose child that was?

A. Yes, sir, I did then, but I don't know.

Q. You didn't know?

A. Yes, I heard it was Minnie's but I didn't know it to be. She took a great deal of pains in it's clothes there. She would bring clothes to it there, and she seemed loving toward it, but I can't say it was Minnie's. It was brought there when I wasn't there.

Q. Molly Letcher kept the child? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was brought there when you wasn't there? Where was you?

A. I was maybe at the shop, or somewhere else around town, and when I got there that child had been there three nights—when I turned there to put up that night.

Q. And it never had been there before that night?

A. Yes, sir, never had been there before.

Q. You were there frequently?

A. Yes, sir, before it was there, and after it was brought there.

Q. You know it was possibly nine or ten months old?

A. Well, I don't know the age of it, I wouldn't say.

Q. And did you hear where they brought it from?

A. No, sir, I never.

Q. Never heard nobody say? A. No, sir, never.

Q. Describe Indian Minnie.

A. Well, when she was around there, she was a slim, very fair complected woman; looked to be—weigh about a hundred, or a hundred and eight or ten pounds—that was when I first met her. Very long, straight hair, and she was quite a good looking girl—about as good looking a girl as we had up in Leavenworth at that time.

Q. What height was she?

A. She was a woman of about average height; she was about 5 foot, or maybe five-two or something like that, I judge her to be. I have been up side of her.

Q. She could have been five-three, couldn't she?

A. Yes, she could have been; I don't know exactly. I stood up and talked to her and of course, she wasn't as tall as I would be.

Q. How tall are you? A. I am about five-six.

Q. You are taller than that?

A. No, sir, I have never been called it in the government business.

Q. Aren't you about five feet ten inches?

A. I am five feet nine and a quarter.

Q. Minnie was about five feet and two inches tall?

A. I don't know exactly.

Q. Well, about that? A. Minnie?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, she looked to me about that, yes—five feet.

Q. Five or five two? A. Or a little over that.

Q. She wasn't quite as high as an average sized woman, was she?

A. Yes, what I called an average sized woman; young lady—young woman.

Q. She wasn't above an average of build very much?

A. Not when I first knew her.

Q. She wasn't unusually tall, or unusually low?

A. You can't say that a person would take a direct height or weight——

Q. What age was she when you first knew her?

A. I would guess her to be a woman in or about twenty. Or coming twenty—something like that, when I commenced seeing her.

Q. You never saw Minnie in a family way, did you?

A. No, sir.

Q. Never saw her in a pregnant condition?

A. Not that I ever know of.

Q. You saw her pretty frequently from the time that you first saw her on the street, until she left Leavenworth, didn't you?

A. Oh, I would see her, maybe once every week, or something like that, and then for a while I was away from home—she was there while I was away from home a while.

Q. Was that before or after you saw this boy around Mollie Letcher's that you were away from home?

A. That was before.

A. I was away from home about three months.

Q. How long before you saw this boy around, was it that you were away from home about three months?

A. Well, I came back home—when I came back to Leavenworth?

Q. Yes.

A. He was there at Mrs. Letcher's. I was not right there immediately when I come on down to Mrs. Letcher's, but he was there the first time I went to Mrs. Letcher's after coming from Atchison—I seen him there.

Q. You stayed in Atchison about three months?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, prior to the time that you went to Atchison, you saw Minnie about once a week?

A. Well, not regularly; mostly I saw her, just happened to be in the route. I would be Sunday afternoon down town —I would see her; never see her on the street regularly through the week. Nothing likt like. It would be mostly Sundays and afternoons.

Q. You knew Jim Mayo, didn't you? A. Well.

Q. And you knew Sam Nash? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This boy Tommy played with Sam Nash a good deal —played with Sam?

A. Around the house there; he was all the boy around there—he was larger.

Q. The only boy around there? A. Except Jim.

Q. Did you know a woman of the name of Annie Banks that stayed at Molly Letcher's?

A. She had several women stayed there. No, I can't say I knowed Annie Banks; I may have known her.

Q. Did you know a boy named Walter Banks—a little child that stayed at Mrs. Letcher's? Or was this the boy called Walter, sometimes—this Tommy?

A. I never heard of him called that and I couldn't place no Walter Banks that stayed around there—might. Mrs. Letcher was a very peculiar woman; she would take anybody that came along. People would leave their children for her to look after; she wasn't a woman to turn anybody away, and yet, I never paid any attention to those around. There was always several around there, mostly at night. When I didn't want to go up in the north part of town, home, I would go there and go to bed.

Q. And you would sleep up stairs?

A. No, sir, I would sleep down stairs.

Q. Were you very intimate with the Letcher's?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew everybody that stayed there regularly?

A. When I would go there, yes; know pretty nearly all. but people would come in there but I wouldn't see them. I would hear them talking but I wouldn't see them.

Q. Do you remember about a woman bring[] clothing over to Molly Letcher's? A woman by the name of Nash, bring clothing over to Molly Letcher's for a little boy?

A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't know about that?

A. I didn't know a thing about it.

Q. You say that Minnie seemed to take a great deal of interest in this boy Tommy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did she do, now, that say showed she had an interest in him?

A. She would do like others that came there would do of course, but she would pick it up and caress it and so forth but she seemed to have more of an affection feeling toward it.

What I noticed; I didn't care nothing about it, but Minnie had a deeper interest in him. She would bring little dresses and skirts there—I would see them— give them to Mrs. Letcher. I never seen anybody else do it. She could did it and I not seen it, and I just judged the way she took an interest.

Q. She was kind to him? A. Yes.

Q. Did you know Mrs. George Edwards who lived in the old Crilly—Seneca house?

A. Had been acquainted with them.

Q. Did she have any children? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many?

A. That I can't say; I think, though, she had two or three. A baby came there.

Q. What was there names? A. I can't tell you.

Q. Can't give the names of the children?

A. No, sir, I can't. Just got acquainted in passing.

Q. Did you know the Wood family? Colored folks who lived there on Seneca, the south side between Second and Third? A. Wood?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I never knowed any that lived there; might have before I come there, I guess.

Q. Nowhere on Seneca. Did you know Walter Woods, a little boy who lived next door to the VanTuyl house? VanTuyl barn?

A. No, sir, I didn't know him; if I knowed him, I don't remember him.

Q. Did you know Estella Forest who ran a bawdy house on the corner of Third and Seneca? A. Stella Forest?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir; boarding house.

Q. Bawdy house. A. Yes, sir, knew her well.

Q. Did you know Lillie White who ran a bawdy house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was her bawdy house?

A. Lillie White had a boarding house, Third and Seneca, Shawnee and Seneca—Second street.

Q. Second street between Shawnee and Seneca?

A. Yes, sir, and I think after Emma Williams moved out of this house, Third and Seneca, Lillie White had taken it.

Q. Lillie White lived in the house that Molly Letcher lived in, didn't she?

A. That was before—next to the lumber yard.

Q. A little east of the Van Tuyl barn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And didn't Molly Letcher move into that Lillie White house after Lillie moved out?

Q. Yes, sir, but she never moved in; she had lived in this stone basement house, first.

Q. But I am saying, after Lillie White did move out of that house, Molly Letcher moved in there?

A. I don't know and won't say whether Lillie White lived in it before Mrs. Letcher had taken it or not, but my mind was positive on Mrs. Letcher living somewhere else that I know of, but I can't place it.

Q. Wasn't it on Cherokee? A. Where Mrs. Letcher lived?

Q. Yes.

A. No, Mrs. Letcher did live in this White house; two houses here—here is the stone basement and there is the next one—east of it.

Q. Story and a half?

A. Yes, sir. This is one where she did live after living here. That is where Mrs. Letcher lived.

Q. You spoke of the Dotter's?

A. We called them Henry Dolter.

Q. Dotter, he lived in that story and a half house a good while? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After he moved out Lillie White moved in?

A. I don't know where she—I think it was occupied by Mrs. Letcher first.

Q. And she moved out?

A. When I left Mrs. Letcher was still living there.

Q. Then when did Lillie White live in it?

A. That is what I say, I am not positive where she lived in it first or Mrs. Letcher. I just am not positive about that and wouldn't say.

Q. Have you seen Henry Carter lately? A. No, sir.

Q. How long has it been since you have seen him?

A. It has been, I guess, about twenty years.

Q. Where was it you last saw him?

A. Well, I last saw him—I saw him in Leavenworth.

Q. Who with? A. He was on the street when I saw him.

Q. Did you ever see him out at old man Henry Carter's, here in the country? A. No, sir.

Q. You never did? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you now the boy pretty well?

A. When he was growing up?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, sir, I never seen him out there, because I never been out there. I knew him pretty good by him coming to our shop with old man Carter.

Q. About how frequently do you say you saw him after old man Carter brought him to the country, until twenty years ago?

A. I would see him once a week, or every other week, when he would come in.

Q. For several years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you know that is the same boy that you saw around Molly Letcher's?

A. No, sir, the only one the way I know it.

Q. How?

A. Knowing to take that boy out there, that is the only boy I knew him to have out there, because he was coming to my place all the time with this boy.

Q. And you do know that that is the same boy that was at Molly Letcher's by the name of Tommy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is the same boy that old Henry Carter brought to your shop? A. Oh, yes, sir.

Q. For a period of several years? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sometimes once a week, and sometimes, once in two weeks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was he called after old man Carter took charge of him?

A. They hardly ever called him any name. They would call him H, sometimes; have different names. I knew him as H Carter; when he come to grow up, he went by old man Carter's name.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Blakeney.

Q. You knew that the same boy that you learned later was H Carter, was the same boy they called Tommy Atkins?

A. Oh, yes, sure; they didn't change him.

Q. Did she have any children there?

Q. Did you know Etta Lower?

A. Laury? I don't think I knowed her.

Q. You didn't know her? A. No, sir, I don't think I did.

Q. You spoke of a fortune teller? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did that fortune teller stay?

A. Who? Indian Mary?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know.

Q. Did she stay at the Seneca house some?

Q. Where were those Indians staying?

A. Staying out on the reservation; Pilot Knob, and around out there.

Q. There were a lot of Indians there when you first came there, weren't there?

A. Not so very many; quite a few though. They went away in two years; '79, I think, but I don't know an Indian fortune teller that carried a child around on her back.

Q. How did Indian Minnie dress?

A. Dressed very neat; didn't dress so very fine.

Q. Did she wear any striped clothes, any red color in her clothing?

A. Well, not to any excess. She dressed like any other colored woman. Some times would be more red ribbon sticking on, but not any desire to show any.

Q. You haven't seen him until this time? A. No, sir.
